THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1907. NO. 1.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

FOUR BOYS KILLED BY LEHIGH VALLEY TRAIN

Run Down by Express as They Were Trying to Board a Freight at South Plainfield.

ALL FROM NEWARK

One Body Unidentified and Another Boy in the Party is Reported Missing—Youngest Victim 12, Oldest 16.

Death ended a New Year's day lark of four Newark boys at South Plainfield Tuesday. While trying to board an eastbound freight train near the Lehigh Valley station, to start the homeward half of a stolen ride, they were struck by a westbound express. Two of them, Elmer Dunn, 13 years old, and an unidentified boy, 12 years old, were killed outright; William Casey, 13 years old, and William Tell, 16 years old, died two hours later in Muhlenburg Hospital. A fifth boy is missing.

The accident happened at 4.40 o'clock, about 150 yards east of the South Plainfield station. The only eye witness located after the occurrence was fifteen-year-old John Casey, brother of William, who was with the party. His is the only story of the trip and its grewsome ending that authorities have.

The express train makes a regular stop at South Plainfield. The engineer shouted word of the accident to Station Agent Thomas Lineberry as soon as he drew abreast of the platform. Lineberry, with his son, John, Night Yardmaster Thomas Bohle and Robert Winthers, ran up the track with lanterns. It was well after nightfall.

At the side of the tracks they found John Casey bending over his brother's unconscious form. His story, told in frightened gasps gave them a hint of the horror that had taken place, and they hurried along the tracks. Between the rails of the outside track they found Dunn and the unidentified boy stone dead, with heads crushed in. Further on they found Tell, unconscious.

The bodies were taken to the station, and a call for the ambulance was telephoned. The ambulance, with Dr. Pittis in charge, reached the scene about half-hour later. The injured boys, with John Casey, were hurried to the hospital. Dunn was not hurt. William Casey died at 8.30 o'clock, without having regained consciousness. He had a compound fracture of the skull. Tell, who suffered mostly from shock, died fifteen minutes later. He became conscious after reaching the hospital, but lapsed again.

Station Agent Lindaberry wired news of the accident to the Lehigh offices in Newark, from there W. J. Casey, agent of the Lehigh at the Alpine street station, Newark, learned of why his sons had not come to supper. He hurried to the city, and reached the hospital just before William died. He took his other son home with him.

The story told by John Casey is to the effect that seven or eight boys of those generous gifts made the Christmas tree the finest ever held. Mrs. H. C. Irons gave the beautiful tree. To Messrs. Eugene and Allen Laing thanks are due for the dainty electric lights; churches and Sunday-schools, King's Daughters and other associations, and to merchants for generous gifts of varied nature and to friends beyond count, thanks are due. To Miss Mary Hubbell and Mrs. E. J. Lee for the music. The music box given by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman was enjoyed by the visitors and the children while awaiting the lighting of the tree. Mrs. De-Witt Hubbell, Mrs. W. D. Murray, Miss Kate F. Kimball and James Eyerett Kimball gave valued aid to Mrs. A. N. Selter, Mrs. John Valiant and Mrs. M. E. Kimball of the Home Board in arranging the tree.

In addition to the Christmas festivities at the Home, the children enjoyed greatly a Christmas entertainment given by the Elks on Monday afternoon before Christmas at Reform Hall. Mrs. Kimball, speaking for the Board, says: "For all these kind friends we can only offer the sweet prayer of Tiny Tim "God Bless Us All."

Lecture for Benefit of Hospital.

J. Dunbar Wright, brother of Mrs. J. E. Corlies and Mrs. John B. Dumont, of this city, will give an illustrated lecture at the Casino, Saturday, January 12, for the benefit of the hospital. The affair will be under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary.

CITY'S SEAL CHANGES HANDS AT HIGH NOON

MAYOR-ELECT FISK'S INTRODUCTION INTO OFFICE CLIMAXES RECEPTION.

At high noon Tuesday Mayor Buckle went out of office and Mayor-elect Charles J. Fisk stepped in. The change was marked by a simple ceremony.

It came as a climax to the reception held jointly by the retiring and oncoming executives at the Mayor's offices. The reception began at eleven o'clock, and was attended by over 100. Several women were among the visitors. City officers and political workers, and North Plainfielders who do business on this side of the brook were liberally represented. The visitors were welcomed by handshakes from the hosts, and a rapidfire exchange of "happy New Year's" marked the passing of the hour. The men who smoked found a box of fat black cigars within easy reach.

It was at noon exactly that Mayor Buckle, taking Mr. Fisk by the hand, placed in the other the seal of the city. He made a brief speech of felicitious character and Mr. Fisk responded as briefly and felicitously. There were about 100 guests in the room at the time, and they hastened to pour renewed congratulations on Mr. Fisk.

That was the actual close of the reception. The visitors drifted away rapidly after that, and by 12:30 the office was deserted except for the Mayor, Chief Kiely and the newspaper men. The reception was attended by all classes of citizens. The kid-glove district was represented as well as Pennsville. Among the city officers there were Councilmen Daniel, Tolles and Buxton, Chief of Police Kiely and Overseer of the Poor Alock Ayers.

CHILDREN'S HOME GETS $1,000 CHECK

MOTHER MAKES GIFT IN MEMORY OF SON; OTHER PRESENTS.

There were several special memorial gifts to the Children's Home at Christmas time which makes the work there a source of great encouragement to those in charge. A mother contributed to the endowment fund a check for $1,000 which was to have been her Christmas gift to a son who died during the year. A woman in London, England, whose mother was for many years a faithful member of the Board of Managers at the Home, sent $10 making her baby girl a sustaining member.

In memory of a sister, there was placed in the girls' dormitory a bed with its dainty furnishings. In addition to these memorial gifts, was one for $5 from a young orphan girl who, with a brother, was for many years in the Home and who wrote: "I appreciate your love and kindness to me a great deal. I think now as you have taken care of me so long I ought to do something for the Home."

The Board of Managers want to thank most cordially all the friends whose generous gifts made the Christmas tree the finest ever held. Mrs. H. C. Irons gave the beautiful tree. To Messrs. Eugene and Allen Laing thanks are due for the dainty electric lights; churches and Sunday-schools, King's Daughters and other associations, and to merchants for generous gifts of varied nature and to friends beyond count, thanks are due. To Miss Mary Hubbell and Mrs. E. J. Lee for the music. The music box given by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman was enjoyed by the visitors and the children while awaiting the lighting of the tree. Mrs. De-Witt Hubbell, Mrs. W. D. Murray, Miss Kate F. Kimball and James Eyerett Kimball gave valued aid to Mrs. A. N. Selter, Mrs. John Valiant and Mrs. M. E. Kimball of the Home Board in arranging the tree.

In addition to the Christmas festivities at the Home, the children enjoyed greatly a Christmas entertainment given by the Elks on Monday afternoon before Christmas at Reform Hall. Mrs. Kimball, speaking for the Board, says: "For all these kind friends we can only offer the sweet prayer of Tiny Tim "God Bless Us All."

Lecture for Benefit of Hospital.

J. Dunbar Wright, brother of Mrs. J. E. Corlies and Mrs. John B. Dumont, of this city, will give an illustrated lecture at the Casino, Saturday, January 12, for the benefit of the hospital. The affair will be under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary.

COUNCIL'S COMMITTEES

President Daniel Makes W. S. Tyler Chairman of Public Affairs Committee.

TOLLES FOR FINANCE

Glonk Goes from Street to Alms Committee, Ginna Succeeding Him—Hibbard Fire Chairman.

The Common Council for 1907 convened Tuesday night and organized by electing L. M. Daniel President. The retiring president, R. I. Tolles, nominating Mr. Daniel, after City Clerk J. T. MacMurray called the meeting to order, and the motion was seconded by Councilman Tyler and Montgomery. Councilmen Ginna and Tolles escorted the new president to the chair, after which he thanked the members for the honor conferred.

At the suggestion of Mr. Tyler a short recess was taken to confer about the adoption of rules and committees, and upon returning to the regular order of business, Jacob C. Dunham was re-elected janitor at a salary of $35 a month, it being understood that this amount covers work done for the district court. His salary heretofore has been $25 a month, but he has been doing work in the district court for several months for nothing.

Mr. Tyler's motion that the rules of order for 1906 be the rules for 1907 and he declared his intention of presenting at the next meeting of the Common Council a motion that the rules be adopted as the by-laws.

President Daniel in announcing his committees for the year said that he had given the matter a great deal of careful attention and had made the best arrangement possible according to his opinion. He had not attempted to favor any one member of the members, but had tried to select the members for each committee with a view to securing the best work for the city. He referred especially to the finance committee, stating that he had selected the chairman of the most important committees for its membership. He added that it had been customary to give the older members preference, not always on the merits, but because of their experience. This year there are seven members and Mr. Daniel said that some of the older members would be obliged to take positions on some of the light committees. The committees follow:

Finance—R. I. Tolles, chairman; H. D. Hibbard, D. Dean, F. DeW. Randolph, Herbert Buxton.

Fire and Buildings—Mr. Hibbard, Tolles, C. C. Randolph, Herbert Buxton.

Streets—D. F. Ginna, chairman; F. L. Montgomery, W. L. Gloak, W. S. Tyler and Herbert Buxton.

Lights and Trees—F. L. Montgomery, chairman; H. D. Hibbard, W. S. Tyler.

Alms—W. L. Gloak, chairman; C. C. Randolph, F. L. Montgomery.

Public Affairs—W. S. Tyler, chairman; G. P. Mellick, R. I. Tolles, D. F. Ginna, F. DeW. Randolph.

License—Herbert Buxton, chairman; W. L. Goak, D. F. Ginna.

Auditing—C. C. Randolph, chairman, F. L. Montgomery, H. D. Hibbard.

Police—F. DeW. Randolph, chairman; W. L. Gloak, G. P. Mellick.

Mr. Tolles then offered a resolution appointing George B. Wean, stenographer and copist for the coming year at a salary of $500, an increase of $100 over that of last year. While Mr. Tyler did not object to the increase, he thought the matter should be considered first by the finance committee. He made a motion accordingly, but it was lost, Councilmen Gaston, Ginna, Gloak, Montgomery, F. Randolph and Tolles voting against the motion and Councilmen Daniel, Hibbard and Tyler for it. The resolution offered by Mr. Tolles was then carried by a unanimous vote.

SPELL OF POET-SCOUT.

Cast by Capt. Jack Crawford Over Y. M. C. A. Audience.

Capt. Jack Crawford, the poet-scout, entertained a large audience at the Y. M. C. A. last night. He lectured for an hour and a half, and the speeding of the time made it seem like ten minutes.

Capt. Crawford appeared in his hunting suit, and he made an impression to begin with. He told stories and read his own poems; and stories and poems were good. He turned the tears and the laugh valves on and off at will.

Before leaving town this morning Capt. Crawford gave General Secretary Robbie a number of autograph copies of his poem "A Yuletide Bouquet."

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the borough, was out for a walk yesterday, for the first time since his recent severe illness.

CHARITY BALL NETS $2,000 FOR HOSPITAL

The Theatre and the Casino Both Thronged by Record-Breaking Crowds on New Year's Eve.

MISS IRWIN CAPITAL

In "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" Her Humor is Immense—Brilliant Scene at the Ball Following the Show.

Aside from the fact that it proved to be one of the most brilliant functions of the kind ever conducted in the city, the annual Charity Ball Monday night was a financial success in the fullest sense of the term. The net proceeds will be $2,000, an amount almost double the profits last season. Even Mayor Fisk was surprised at the splendid result and he was so elated that he could not resist informing the patrons at the theatre performance of the fact in the early part of the evening. The amount will be placed at the disposal of Muhlenberg Hospital's Board of Governors.

The plan of giving purchasers of tickets an entertainment in the form of a seat to witness May Irwin and her company in "Mrs. Wilson-Andrews" was a new feature of the ball and it had much to do with the subsequent success. The New Plainfield theatre held the most select audience that has yet assembled there and every number was well pleased with the jolly comedienne and her production. Her humor was contagious and the handsomely gowned women and their escorts left for the Casino in a happy frame of mind after the performance, ready to round out the old year and welcome the new amid terpsichorean delights.

The general committee had been exhaustive in its efforts to make the ball itself eclipse all previous efforts and there was something new at every turn. The Casino was a marvel of decorative effect when the dance was in full swing the sight was a never-to-be-forgotten one. Austin's full orchestra, of New York, was on the stage, almost hid from sight by a mass of palms, plants, and flowers; colored electric lights gleamed from the girders, streamers with the hospital emblem were plentiful and evergreen and holly lent a holiday atmosphere. The gowns worn were beautiful and, the conventional evening dress of the men served but to form a background for their showiness. The floor was supervised by Hartley Mellick, Roy Cox, Lawrence Tweedy, Harvey Fisk, J. Whitney Baker and Morris Dumont and their efforts greatly aided the dancers.

The fun reached a climax as the old year died out and the new one came. It was greeted with cheers by the merrymakers that were redoubled when several surprises arranged by the decorating committee were brought into play. Above the stage were the figures 1906 in red electric globes and these suddenly faded away to be succeeded by 1907. At the same time strings attached to bags of confetti placed high above the heads of the throng were released and everything below was deluged with it. As the tiny "flakes" whirled down, vari-colored lights were thrown about and the effect closely resembled a snow storm.

Supper was served by a large corps of waiters shortly after midnight and as the diners were gathered about the tables a quartette of colored instrumentalists sang and played for the delectation. The decorations in the supper room were almost as elaborate as those in the Casino proper and evoked exclamations of pleasure. Evergreen was plentiful and it was relieved by holly and strings of California peppers that were alike noveland effective. It was until 4 o'clock before the majority of the dancers thought of leaving for home and it was an hour later when the ball was officially declared over.

The women who acted as patronesses during the evening were as follows:

Mrs. L. E. Waring, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Mrs. William T. Kaufman, Mrs. William H. Murray, Mrs. H. W. Beebe, Mrs. William E. Lowe, Mrs. F. deL. Hyde, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Mrs. A. D. Shepard, Mrs. William Palmer Smith, Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Mrs. J. B. Dumont, Mrs. C. J. Fisk, Mrs. William C. Kinney, Mrs. L. G. Timpson, Mrs. F. W.

(Continued on Page 8.)

FATHER SHOOTS HIS SON

Accidental Discharge of Revolver Sends Bullet Into Body of Harvey Benner.

CONDITION PRECARIOUS

Missile Passed Through a Door Panel Before Striking the Boy in the Back.

Pierced through the body by a bullet from a .38 calibre revolver in the hands of his father, Harvey Benner, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Benner, of Walnut street, the borough, is at his home today in a precarious condition. The leaden missile entered his back after crashing through a door panel, passed through the right lung and came out at the breast. Medical attention was secured in a short time and every precaution has been taken to prevent after-results but the outcome is yet in doubt. It will be fully two weeks before it is known positively how he will fare.

The Benner house is located in the Prideville section of the borough and a circumstance that occurred a few days ago, induced the husband and father to secure a revolver for the protection of his wife while he was away. A stranger called at the door and insisted that Benner owed him some money. When Mrs. Benner informed her husband of the fact, he did not recognize the man from the description and for fear that the fellow might return with some evil intent he bought the weapon.

He undertook to show Mrs. Benner how to use it, Tuesday afternoon, and after loading the chambers, started to place it in a closet. As he turned, the revolver was discharged in some way and the bullet sped in a straight line toward the kitchen door. The boy was sitting on the top step of the porch and with the apparently undiminished force of the wooden obstruction, the missile entered his body. The first the father knew that his son had been shot was when the little boy gave a sharp cry and rushing out, they found him lying on the ground.

Harry Kesselring, a neighbor living on Harrison street, was just starting on a drive when the accident occurred and being informed of the fact he drove at top speed for Dr. Buchanan. The physician was secured and within a short time he had done everything possible to prevent blood poisoning and effects that generally follow a wound of this nature. The boy was resting easily this morning.

WHERE IS MUHLENBERG'S HOUSE PHYSICIAN?

Interne Left Suddenly Two Weeks Ago—No One on Duty Now.

Dr. Hempstead, who succeeded Dr. Anthony, as house physician at Muhlenberg Hospital, is not at the institution and there is considerable mystery as to his departure. Inquiry at the hospital and among the several physicians fails to disclose the reason. All that can be learned is that Dr. Hempstead left the hospital suddenly and without giving any notice. This occurred a couple of weeks ago. Since that time no one has been acting as house physician.

The matter will probably be considered at the next meeting of the Board of Governors, when steps may be taken to appoint a physician to the vacant position. Dr. Hempstead was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and came here well recommended. His home was in Paterson.

KICK AT F. S. C.

Mr. Weed Files a Protest With Council Over Trolley Service.

Frank W. Weed, of West Sixth street, presented a strong protest to the Common Council last night against what he called the abominable service given by the Public Service Corporation on the Fourth street trolley line. He described the cars used on that line as being small, accommodating twenty-two passengers, and said that when he complained to Col. Hine about the matter, was informed that the cars had been freshly painted and were in good condition.

Mr. Weed added that at the Jersey City headquarters of the Public Service Corporation Plainfield was considered an easy mark, that the city would stand for anything, and he was of the opinion that this is true. Mr. Weed asked the Common Council to take the matter up and endeavor to secure better service. The petition was referred to the proper committee.

Building House.

Mrs. Percy Stewart is having a frame house, 24x32, built at 435 John street. F. L. Lancaster drew the plans. She is building for speculation.

FISK'S MESSAGE FORECASTS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Wants Action on Municipal Water Supply Question and on Consolidation Idea.

FOR PERMANENT PAVE

Increase Police Force, City Hall, New School Houses, Another Fire House Among the Many Recommendations.

The first annual message of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, as read before the Common Council Tuesday night, follows:

To the Honorable Common Council, City of Plainfield.

Gentlemen:—The present administration has within its power to make the city of Plainfield known as the most progressive, enterprising, best governed city in the State of New Jersey.

The charter provides that the government shall be vested in a Mayor and Common Council, consisting of eleven members, and all that is required is that this body should conduct the affairs in a common sense, honest, thorough business like manner, wholly in the interests of the entire inhabitants, permitting no personal, political, individual, or corporate influence to swerve them from their purpose of acting on all matters that are brought before them, solely in the interests and for the benefit of the community in which they live and have been elected by the people to represent.

The City of Plainfield has a Board of Police Commissioners, Board of Fire Commissioners, Board of Public Works, Board of Water Commissioners, Excise Board, Board of Finance, Estimate and Appropriation, as some of the larger cities, but the whole government is vested in the Common Council. For convenience in conducting the business of the city it is the regular custom for the Common Council under rules adopted by the members, to be divided into various committees appointed by the president, the duties of which are to conduct and direct the business and working of the respective departments, subject, however, to the Council as a whole. These committees and the heads of the various departements have all submitted their annual reports of what has been done under their direction during the past year, the present condition of affairs in their respective departments, and recommendations for such improvements and work that should be taken up and carried out by your present body. These reports all speak for themselves and should be carefully read and considered by the proper committees.

The city of Plainfield is now entering upon the thirty-ninth year of its existence as an incorporated city. It has a population of nearly nine thousand. An assessed valuation for the purpose of taxation of $20,900,000. The city has built and owns for school purposes seven school buildings, which, with their furnishing, are valued at over $400,000; fire houses and equipments, $58,000; police alarm systems, $8,000; expenditure on permanent improvement of streets during last ten years, $300,000; cost of installing sewers and sewerage, disposal plant, $310,000; various properties bought for taxes, $7,000; total, $1,083,200. Against which we have a bonded indebtedness: Sewer bonds, $125,000; sewer notes to be replaced by bonds, $75,000; school bonds, $22,000; Lincoln School mortgage, $17,000; crematory bonds, $700; total, $274,700.

I call your attention to these figures as I shall refer to them more particularly later on. In order to familiarize myself with the present condition and needs of each separate department of the city, I am making a personal inspection and investigation, and as soon as your new committees are organized and ready, I shall take up with them in detail the requirements of their respective departments. At this time I shall confine myself to the more important questions of public interest. Taking them up under proper heads.

Police.

The Police Department of the city is in good condition. From the careful investigation made by me within the past few weeks, I am of the opinion that for so small a force the officers and men of that department are doing all that can be expected of them.

I would urge that your Honorable Body, by resolution, provide for a greater number of regular patrolmen than the rules of the department now allow. Under present conditions, the services of a number of special policemen are required, and in some instances, the appointment of all probationers, who, in case of proven efficiency, are designed to become regular members of the force, the fact still remains that they are but specials, and that there is no place for them among the regulars until the rules of the department are so amended as to provide for their admission. This condition is fraught with more serious possibilities than at first sight may appear. Special policemen are generally expected to do occasional duty only, and at the rate of twenty-five cents an hour during the time of actual service. Our special policemen, so far as hours of service and recompense are concerned, are on the same footing, but appointment and confirmation, are regular policemen, and in case of any possible dispute between the city and

(Continued on Page 8.)

OLDEST ASSESSOR RESIGNS POSITION

JOSEPH A. HUBBARD NOTIFIES MAYOR THAT HE DESIRES TO QUIT.

Joseph A. Hubbard, the oldest assessor in the city, has tendered his resignation to Mayor Charles J. Fisk, but as yet no action has been taken regarding it. The resignation was presented to Mr. Fisk a few days before he took office, succeeding former Mayor J. F. Buckle, but until he has an opportunity to fully consider it and confer with Mr. Hubbard he prefers to withhold the resignation.

A few days ago it was rumored that Assessor Hubbard had resigned, but the report was denied at the time. Just what Mr. Hubbard's reasons for retiring are cannot be ascertained at present. His work has always given general satisfaction and because of his long service he was especially especially valuable to the Board of Assessors in determining values.

Mr. Hubbard served the city for several years as its only assessor, but a few years ago a Board of Assessors was created and Mr. Hubbard continued on this board representing the Third Ward.

SUSPENDED SENTENCES IN THE POLICE COURT.

Day After New Year's and Judge Runyon is Lenient With Offenders.

There was a quiet session of the city court this morning, considering that it followed New Year's day.

Charles Williams, who has been successful in keeping out of the hands of the police since last April, had too much New Year's according to his testimony and Patrolman Charles Flynn was obliged to take him in. After Judge Runyon counseled Williams to try and be decent and stay sober as long as possible, he said that he would suspend sentence.

Roundsman John Flynn appeared against Lewis Coriell and Conrad Schroppe, two young lads, who were accused of being generally bad. According to the roundsman's statement the boys stay up all night and are leaders of a gang that molest full stand venders. Last night, when a drunken man was thrown out of a saloon near Park and North avenues, the boys shouted "police," "murder" and "here comes the patrol wagon." They were arrested late. Judge Runyon gave the lads a severe lecture and lots of good advice, after which he released them.

John Duffy, employed by George O. Stevens, the coal dealer, also started the New Year by getting full and using profane language about the Watching avenue trolley band. Doorman O'Gorman arrested Duffy at the request of Chief Kiely. He, too, was given a lecture, adding that if his offense had been committed on any other day but New Year's he would have soaked him. He made a New Year's present by suspending sentence.

TROLLEY CAR BLAZE.

Unable to Cope With It, Crew Summoned the Fire Department.

Part of the wood work in one of the main line trolley cars caught fire from the stove pipe as it was standing at the Watchung avenue terminus at 6.30 this morning. The crew were unable to put it out and an alarm was turned in from box 21, bringing apparatus to take care of all the S. P. C.'s local rolling stock. It only needed one extinguisher, however, to place the car out of danger.

Box 42 was pulled at 6 o'clock New Year's eve for a supposed fire in the home of Alfred P. Drew, located on the top of the Manning building on West Front street. It turned out to be "no cause for action" as the supposed fire was only the illumination and smoke caused by taking a flashlight photograph. It was seen by people in the street who thought it was a sure enough big blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards Entertain.

Among the pleasant New Year Day gatherings was the family dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place. There were eight members of the family present, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weightman, of Philadelphia; Dr. Rowland Cox, Jr., Archibald Cox, Roy Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Edwards.

Day Nursery Anniversary.

The women of the Day Nursery Committee have issued invitations to the first anniversary of the Day Nursery to be held Tuesday afternoon, January 15, from 2 to 5 o'clock, at the nursery, 444 West Third street. Each person attending is requested to bring a package of groceries for the store room.

REVIEW OF CITY WORK

Annual Reports of Various Departments Submitted to Common Council.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

Street Committee, Fire Chief and Police Chief Present Lengthy Statement of Departmental Work.

According to the usual custom the annual reports of the various committees were received at the first meeting of the 1906 Common Council, last Friday night. These reports including those of the street committee, Chief Kiely, of the police department, and Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, were presented and portions of them read. They were afterward ordered filed.

Following is the report submitted by the street committee:

We submit herewith our annual report of work done and moneys received and expended on streets and sewers during the year 1906.

Permanent Pavement.

Owing to the large amount of sewer work requiring attention this year, there has been but little done on that part of the street appropriation for permanent pavements. A committee report was received by the Common Council from the Board of Trade, in which a suggestion was made that the sum of $5,000 be set aside each year for the purpose of constructing a section of brick, telford or wood pavement, and that this part of the cost should be assessed upon the property owners. The latter suggestion was not received favorably by the majority of the Board of Trade, and report was submitted to the Common Council without recommendation on this point.

New Macadamizing.

Division street was macadamized by subscription between West Sixth and West Seventh streets, the owners paying $167.40; the block between West Fifth and West Sixth streets was done by contract. This contract includes Park terrace, Berkley avenue between Park terrace and Leland avenue, Webster place, north of Putnam avenue, Henderson street between Putnam avenue and East Seventh street, Richmond street, between Putnam and Watchung avenues, Kensington avenue between Park terrace and Front street and John street. Owing to the late start and early frost, this contract has not been completed.

The sum of $2,031.25 from the year's appropriation was a part of the assessment against the city for macadamizing under the contract completed last winter, and $2,031.25 will be the unpaid assessment for the work now under construction will probably be made during the coming year, requiring an additional draft on the appropriation for 1907.

A part of the city force, including the steam roller, has been employed in making the streets done by contract, but the bulk of this work has been laid by the steam tractor; it is included in the amounts shown on the schedule for those streets.

The prices for macadamizing have been 5 cents per square yard higher, ranging from 90 cents to $1.10 per lineal foot for roadways 16 feet wide.

Street Repairs.

The following described streets have been resurfaced during the year:

Park avenue from Randolph road nearly to Cedar brook, also between Front and Fourth streets; East Front street between Park and Watchung avenues; Watchung avenue between Front and Fifth streets; East Fifth street between Watchung avenue and Richmond street; Richmond street, part, between Fifth and Seventh streets; South avenue between Randolph road and Richmond street; Grant avenue, between Eighth street and Sherman avenue; West Front street.

On East Fifth street, Watchung avenue and parts of East and West Front streets, new tracks were laid, by the Street Railway Company, necessitating a large amount of street resurfacing in the part of the street occupied by the eighteen inches on each side being paid for by the company. These streets are now in excellent condition, and as the tracks in West Front are to be moved, there is good reason to believe that the tearing up of the streets to repair tracks will now be infrequent.

Slag Streets.

All the slag produced by the Ponemah Tool Works, has by kind permission of the company, been placed upon the streets at the west end of the city.

Clinton avenue and Mariners place between Front street and Dunellen avenue have been completed and nearly all of Evelyn avenue. It is recommended that the next work be done on Clinton avenue, south of Third street and on Third street, connecting Clinton and Evelyn avenues.

The application of slag to the sandy streets in this section of the city results in a good firm roadway, and prevents the washing away of the sand. Considerable work is required every year in repairing damage caused by the washing away of the sand, especially on West Third street west of Monroe avenue.

Grading.

In connection with the improvement of the Cox property east of Leland avenue, it became necessary to lower the Central railway track and grade a portion of Leland avenue in accordance with the established grade; further grading is needed on this street, particularly between Front and Second streets.

On East Sixth street, east of Richland street, flag and curb were laid, requiring the grading of new sidewalk. The work of grading Central street has been continued this year, and the remaining work can be done at moderate cost.

Grading has also been done on the following streets: West End avenue; Columbia place extension, Cottage place, East Fourth street, Ravine road and on Somerset street in Dunellen.

The erection of a new concrete bridge over Green brook at West End avenue necessitates a large amount of grading on the approach, also the construction of about two hundred feet of 15 inch storm sewer.

Tarred Streets.

East Front street, between Richland and Berckman streets and West Ninth street between College place and Arlington avenue, have been treated with "Tarvia," a grade of tar adapted for this purpose. Streets on which it is used promise to be less dusty than plain macadam, less liable to "travel" and they have an agreeable surface for driving. It should, however, be swept regularly, and a light coating of "Tarvia" should be applied after a year's use.

Curbing and Flagging.

During the year, 9,626 lineal feet of curbing and 14,674 lineal feet of flagging have been laid. A large proportion of the flagging ordered was laid by the city, the owners having failed to comply with the notices served, but a large amount of crush and flag were laid voluntarily. Requests have been received that North street, John street, Spooner avenue and portions of East Seventh street be flagged during the coming year.

A considerable amount of concrete sidewalks have been laid during the year, both as new work and for replacing flag walks; concrete slabs are also being used quite extensively, the amended ordinance permitting their use.

Cross-walks.

The usual work of repairing and replacing old culverts and cross-walks and of constructing new ones has been completed during the year. As far as possible, heavy, square-edged stones of hard, North River bluestone have been used for cross-walks, and these covers for culverts. While these become more general throughout the city, the annoying breakages will be a thing of the past.

Storm Sewers.

The year 1906 has been free from violent storms, and no damage has been done to the streets by freshets. The section of reinforced concrete storm sewer constructed in Richmond street, between East Fifth and East Seventh streets, has kept that part of the street free of storm water, and the extension to North avenue now being built will be of even greater service, as it will drain the depression under the railroad bridge. Storm sewers are needed on a number of other streets, but Richmond street railway tracks cross the gutter culverts, in which cases but little room is left below the rails for storm water.

The total length of storm sewers laid is 4.87 miles.

Brook Overflows.

East winter being a comparatively mild one, some good work was done in clearing out and widening Cedar brook from South avenue to Randolph road except where the brook is confined by stone walls. We believe that this work should be continued.

The attempt to secure the co-operation of adjoining county and township authorities in deepening Green brook having failed, it is now being built will be must undertake the work in self-protection, and also continue in the effort to secure the improvement of dams and the construction of others where they are needed. We recommend that this matter be kept before the Council until the overflow of our streets shall be made impossible.

Street Widenings and Extensions.

The widening of Park avenue on the westerly side, between Spooner avenue and the railroad, and of Stoothoff street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, also the extension of Stebbins place through private property to Fourth street, have been completed. Progress has been made in the widening of Spooner avenue, from Front street to Sixth street, but it may be necessary to have an assessment made by commissioners to complete this work. Other street improvements are desirable as for the public convenience are the widening of East Fourth street at the angle point east of Washington street, and the extension of Madison avenue, between Front street and the C. R. R. of N. J.

Street Sprinkling.

The cost of street sprinkling, $6,002.16, made a heavy draft upon the street appropriation for 1906, but it cannot continue to increase as more streets are macadamized, if the present system be continued. The service as a whole has been satisfactory, but there is room for much improvement in the details of operation. We suggest the employment of a man who shall give his whole time during the season to sprinkling and regulating the sprinkling of streets.

Miscellaneous.

In the replacing and repair of street railway tracks before referred to, the Public Service Corporation has used about 1,600 logs of trap rock, and the amount paid by the company for removing snow and for repair of tracks was $978.45. The assessment against the company for macadamizing Monroe avenue was $409.57.

The following streets are in urgent need of resurfacing: West Third, West Fourth and West Ninth streets, and parts of Park avenue.

Sewers.

The following sewers were constructed this year under contract with Callahan & Chamberlin:

Darrow avenue, North Front street, Park lane, Park terrace, Irving place; Iowa street, between Spooner avenue and Darrow avenue; Midway avenue, between East Third street and Berckman street; East Sixth street, between Richmond street and Central street; Columbia avenue, between Frederick street and Leland avenue; East Seventh street, between Leland avenue and Belvidere avenue; Berckman street, between Richmond street and North avenue; East Fourth street, from Richmond street 750 feet west; East Second street, from Berckman street to Richmond street; Ravine avenue, from Columbia avenue to North avenue.

In addition to these, sewers have been constructed in Denmark road extension and in Front street, the latter being opened by the Plainfield Land and Building Company. In order to save the time required for the adoption of an ordinance by the common council, these sewers were constructed entirely at the expense of the company, the city furnishing only the services of an inspector.

It was hoped to begin work this year on the low level sewer and pumping station, but owing to delays in receiving bids and the difficulty of securing cast iron pipe, the beginning of the work will be delayed until next year. As soon as the pumping station is in operation, a large number of sewers will be called for in the district to be served by this station.

It would be well to decide early in the year, on the total amount of work to be done during 1907, and have the necessary legal formalities completed in time to begin construction in early summer.

In order to provide a larger water-way in Cedar brook, the sewer crossing the brook at Richmond street near Watchung avenue was lowered and a manhole was constructed at each end of the inverted syphon.

There have been two stoppages of sewers during the year, one caused by roots and the other by defective flush tank. Fifteen house connections have been taken up and relaid on account of the insinuation of roots.

The year having been a dry one, less ground water than usual has entered the sewers, the total flow is now about a million gallons per day, received through 2,613 house connections, 261 of which have been made since last report. The total length of sanitary sewers is now 24.14 miles.

The new septic tanks and contact beds were put in operation on February first, and many improvements have been made to the works during the year, including a 24 inch by-pass around the screen tank for use while cleaning or repairing the latter, and a 15 inch pipe connecting the new tanks with the old contact beds. The material is on hand for constructing baffles in one of the septic tanks, intended to reduce the velocity of sewage by checking the velocity of flow more gradually.

The whole plant is now in successful operation and is frequently visited by engineers from other places.

The detailed statement of receipts and disbursements for streets and sewers is as follows:

Receipts—Streets.

Appropriation for streets	$31,000 00
Appropriation for Sycamore street	125 00
Public Service Corporation for repair of streets and removing snow	978 45
C. M. Meeker, for repairing streets	84 60
Property owners on Division street, for macadamizing	167 40
Sale of stone, brick, earth, etc.	61 42
Telephone Company	6 51
Use of street sprinkler	11 00
Repair of sewer ditches	29 81
	$32,455 17

The sum of $2,226.76, included in 1905 report of expenditures for storm sewer in Richmond street, and held pending the completion of the first section of said sewer, was paid to contractor during 1906. Similarly, the sum of $713.25 is carried over to 1907 for the second section of the sewer.

Disbursements—Streets.

Park avenue	$ 1,422 49
Washington street	11 59
Berckman street	38 91
Richmond street	185 06
East Front street	213 22
Watchung avenue	373 69
East Second street	72 68
East Third street	19 94
Cottage place	24 69
North avenue	137 66
Johnston avenue	19 54
Jackson avenue	11 38
Netherwood avenue	18 51
Leland avenue	101 03
Fillmore avenue	10 95
Sycamore street	514 51
East Fourth street	29 00
Front street	495 67
East Sixth street	65 73
East Seventh street	78 76
East Ninth street	20 21
Belvidere avenue (binding assessment)	496 80
Evergreen avenue	27 11
Rahway road	31 21
Hillside avenue	29 52
Belvidere avenue	20 20
Berkeley avenue (including assessment)	296 16
Seventh road	13 39
Ravine road	64 46
Franklin place	28 20
Prospect avenue	21 91
South avenue	2,324 05
Central street	194 42
Randolph road (including assessment)	927 11
West Eighth street	37 82
West Fifth street	28 93
West Sixth street	20 11
West Seventh street	10 10
West Eighth street	18 70
West Ninth street	115 94
Sherman avenue	97 12
Arlington avenue	10 54
Madison avenue	23 50
New street (including assessment)	692 68
Division street	444 20
Plainfield avenue	27 32
Columbia avenue	28 27
Spooner avenue	144 89
John street	15 54
Clinton avenue	322 49
Lee place	29 58
Monroe avenue	159 27
Grove street	17 71
Dunellen avenue	21 38
Essex street	14 44
West End avenue	82 55
Mariners place	483 23
Union street	1,031 56
West Front street	1,538 08
South Second street	22 70
West Third street	253 70
East Northfield road	56 17
Stebbins place	47 48
Evona avenue	435 56
Myrtle avenue	22 33
Minor repairs, 25 items	158 47
Total macadamizing, grading and turnpiking	$14,275 99
General flushing	4,732 45
Cleaning brooks and ditches	686 47
Culverts	435 45
Crosswalks	786 16
Sprinkling streets	6,024.16

The sum of $2,226.76, included in 1905 report of expenditures for storm sewer in Richmond street, and held pending the completion of the first section of said sewer was paid to contractor during 1906.

Cleaning catch basins	306 28
Removing snow from streets	329 62
Removing trees and limbs	17 66
Street sprinkling	6,002 16
Repairs and supplies	470 86
Repairs to macadamizing sprinkler	556 83
Repairs to street scraper	22 00
Blacksmithing	51 75
Assistants	1,449 27
City yard	13 04
Street signs	29 91
Total disbursements	$32,455 17

Receipts—Sewers.

Appropriation	$4,500 00
Sewer connection permits	262 00
Sale of cans and tile	12 88
Amount received in lieu of assessment	17 50
	$4,792 38

Disbursements—Sewers.

Salaries, Engineer	$1,200 00
Day inspector	900 00
Night operator	540 00
Labor at disposal works, including cost of 15 inch connection, repairing sinker pipe and drains	154 29
Tools and supplies, including materials for above	266 19
Water guarantee, disposal works	73 20
Water for flushing	579 06
Inspecting and flushing sewers	255 81
Insurance and repair of buildings	61 57
Inspecting construction of sewer connections	160 45
Inverted siphon under Cedar brook at Richmond street	196 22
Telephone	12 60
Extending sewer connection, Elm place	27 84
Analyses	23 05
Repairing and cleaning sewers and appurtenances	159 49
	$4,569 08

Amount certified to assessors for removing snow and ice from sidewalks ..... $ 364 17

Amount charged against property for flagging laid by city 746 51

Amount of contract for construction of sanitary sewers 9,670 05

Of this amount, $8,775.55 has been paid.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM H. GLOAK.
LESLIE M. DANIEL.
CHARLES C. RANDOLPH.
DANIEL F. GINNA.
HERBERT BUXTON.
Committee.

Fire Chief Doane's report follows:

"In accordance with the requirements of your Honorable Body, I herewith submit a report of the condition and operation of the Fire Department, giving the number of fires and alarms, with the amount of insurance and losses as nearly as could be ascertained for the year ending December 31st, 1906.

"The manual force of the Department is divided into two classes, permanent and call men. The permanent force consists of—

1 Chief Engineer.
1 Assistant Engineer.
3 Captains of Companies.
1 Driver of Chief's Wagon.
1 Tillerman.
5 Drivers of Apparatus.
3 Hose and Pipe men.
"The call force consists of—
1 Captain.
1 Veterinary Surgeon.
1 Engineer of Steamer.
23 Privates.

Houses.

"The city now owns and occupies three engine houses. The headquarters building, Nos. 145, 147 and 149 East Second street, is occupied by No. 2 Hose Wagon, No. 1 Hook and Ladder Truck, Chemical Engine No. 1, Chief's Wagon and exercise wagon. The Chief's office is located in this building.

"Nos. 206 and 208 West Second street is occupied by No. 1 Hose Company and No. 1 Steamer.

"No. 3 Engine House is located at 724 East Fourth street, and is occupied by No. 3 Combination Chemical and Hose Wagon, the spare Truck and exercise wagon.

"The Headquarters building, as a whole, is in good repair, except that the main or apparatus floor will soon have to be renewed.

"No. 1 Engine House needs extensive repairs. The front doors are about ready to fall to pieces; the floors need renewing. The center partition should be taken out, making one room of the apparatus floor. The stone pavement in the sidewalk, never a good job, is now in a very bad state. The stones should be taken up and the walk relaid with brick or cement.

"No. 3 Engine House is in good repair except that the interior needs painting.

Apparatus.

"The Department has in service—

1 Third size Amoskeag Steam Fire Engine, 600-gallon rated capacity.

1 Aerial Turntable Hook and Ladder Truck; 65-foot extension ladder; one 40-foot ground extension; 172 feet of side and rest ladders.

1 Double Tank 60-gallon Halloway Chemical Engine.

1 Double Tank 35-gallon Halloway Combination Chemical and Hose Wagon.

2 Hose Wagons.

2 2-horse Wagons.

1 Chief's Wagon (good).

1 Chief's Wagon (old).

1 Iron Frame Hook and Ladder Truck (on call).

8 Three-gallon Halloway Extinguishers.

"During the year, the Aerial Truck has been repaired and painted, and the steel tires removed and replaced with rubber tires. All of the Hose Wagons and the Chief's Wagon have been touched up and varnished. This puts all of our apparatus in good order. I hope that the Council will be able next year to place rubber tires on the two Hose Wagons, then all of the apparatus will be equipped with rubber tires.

Horses.

"We have in use in the Department 5,000 feet of hose that is good; about 1,500 feet of hose which should be sold. We need 2,000 feet of new hose, as some of that which we have has been in use for seven or eight years.

Horses.

"Thirteen horses are owned by the city, twelve of which are doing duty. One is lame and is used only a part of the time. This horse should be sold and replaced with a good one. The two horses used for the Steamer are hired, and are used during the day, but are stabled at the Engine House at night. This team should be owned by the city.

Fire Alarm.

"This very important branch of the service has been well taken care of during the year by the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Company under the management of Mr. C. W. Simpson, but directly in charge of Mr. A. C. Applegate. All of our wire (24 miles) is strung overhead and requires a great deal of care to keep in order. There are 41 boxes or stations virtually on one circuit; two promote one twelve-inch steam gong located at the Electric Light station; four different bells houses (gongs (one located at the Pumping station); three mechanical and five electrical tappers located in the houses of officers and members of the Department. One bank of storage, forty cells, type E. Gas Engine and Motor Generator (Cabot) 120 Volt owned by the N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co.

"I would call the attention of your Honorable Body to my reports for the last three years in regard to the need of a repeater and switch board, and would add that the Buss Bar now in use in the battery room is dangerous even for an expert to handle under certain conditions. With the exception of a few electric light wires, our fire alarm wires are the only wires overhead in the center of the city.

Fires and Alarms.

"There have been 99 alarms during the year, 7 less than last year. Telephone alarms, 44; box alarms, 43; verbal or still alarms, 12.

Insurance and Losses.

Loss on buildings	$ 10,286.88
Insurance on buildings	112,650.00
Loss of contents	10,927.20
Insurance on contents	62,310.00
Total amount of Insurance	174,960.00
Total amount of insurance on buildings	20,444.08
Total loss insured and uninsured	21,264.08
Total value of property involved	243,403.00

Consisting of real estate, $149,075.00; personal, $94,328.00.

Deaths.

"We lost one member of the permanent force by death during the year. William Ross was killed by being thrown from a trolley car. He had served 35 years as a fireman in the Volunteer and Paid Department. A good, faithful man.

Water Supply.

There are in service 327 hydrants, 24 of which are four way; 303 two way, an increase of seven over last year. The water pressure throughout the city is about seventy-five pounds except in the East End of the city, and especially at Netherwood Heights, where the pressure will average about forty pounds. I hope that next year the Council will make some arrangement to increase our water pressure. The Water company placed in new seven million gallon pump in service in addition to the five million gallon pump now in use, replacing a three million gallon pump formerly used.

Recapitulation.

All of the apparatus in use in the department has been touched up and varnished. The Hook and Ladder Truck has been painted and varnished and the steel tires replaced by rubber tires. The old electric wire work in the headquarters building, condemned by the insurance companies, was all removed and replaced with new wires placed in iron conduits, and it is now in first class, up-to-date condition. The fire alarm wires throughout this building were all grounded and placed in iron conduits by the members of the department located there.

"I again call your attention to the need of a few more permanent men. A steam heater should be attached to our steam fire engine, and we need more hydrants in the business section of Front street. I trust the new Council will see the necessity of erecting a new engine house in the East End of the city.

"Respectfully submitted,
"CHIEF ENGINEER.
"Fire Department."

Chief of Police Kiely made the following report:

"I have the honor to submit herewith with the following as my seventh annual report, for the year 1906:

"Number of arrests for the year, 635, composed of, males, 549; females, 86; composed as to color, white, 483; negro, 152.

Composed as to nationality: American, 302; Afro-American, 152; Irish, 71; Italian, 30; Russian, 13; English, 13; German, 12; Scotch, 11; Polish, 10; Danish, 7; French, 3; Greek, 3; Hungarian, 2; Swedish, 2; Austrian, 1; Bavarian, 1; Belgian, 1; Welsh, 1. Total, 635.

"Arraigned in City Court, 545; arraigned in Justice Court, 90; total, 635.

"Arrested for the following offenses: Assault, 7; automobile law, 3; bicycle ordinance, 2; burglary, 9; burglary tools in possession, 1; demented, 2; disorderly conduct, 230; drunkenness, 18; drunk and disorderly, 118; embezzlement, 2; excise violations, 5; false pretense, 1; forgery, 1; gambling, 28; hack ordinance, 1; highway robbery, 2; junk ordinance, 3; larceny, 29; murder, 1; non-support, 1; peddling ordinance, 1; school law, 7; Sunday ordinance, 1; swindling, 1; trespassing on cars, 12; vagrancy, 19; miscellaneous, 27. Total, 635.

"Result of arrests: Suspended, 282; fined, 105; held for grand jury, 43; committed, 39; turned over to other police boards, 18; probated, 16; dismissed, 13; held over Juvenile Court, 9; held in bond, 8; committed to asylum for insane, 2. Total, 635.

"Amount of fines collected, $614.

"The expenditures per month of the department have been as follows: January, $1,715.10; February, $1,564.96; March, $1,778.65; April, $1,787.13; May, $1,682.55; June, $2,082.27; July, $1,785.81; August, $1,699.08; September, $2,001.50; October, $1,770.17; November, $1,528.84; December, $2,009.66. Total, $21,605.74.

"(January statement includes two months' salary of Officer Stillwell for salary for the months of November and December, 1905.)

"The expenditures of the department during the year have been as follows: Regular police, $19,215.61; special police, $75.75; headquarters' supplies, $263.78; keep of horse, $175.97; telephone service (N. Y. & N. J. Tel.), $19.55; rent of headquarters, $700; hack hire, $53.50; Police Aid's, $75; bicycle repairs, $168.65; maintenance of Gamewell system, $400; police equipments, $14.86; miscellaneous expenses, $455.07. Total, $21,605.74.

"I am pleased to state that during the year this city has been comparatively free from crime.

"The numerical strength of the police department of 22 men—Chief, sergeant, roundsman, doorman, driver and 17 patrolmen. During the past few years the city has grown extensively and the definite promise of rapid increase, so that pressing need is felt for increasing this department in order to protect equally all those who have the right to demand it. The present police station is not suited for police purposes in any way except the location.

"Yours respectfully,
"P. S. KIELY.
"Chief."

DELTA UPSILON CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS.

Maurice J. Thompson Now President of College Fraternity Local Club.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Thompson entertained the Plainfield Delta Upsilon Club, last Friday, at their residence, 122 West Fifth street. This organization is composed of graduate and undergraduate members of the Delta Upsilon fraternity living in Plainfield or its vicinity. Among the colleges represented last evening were Swarthmore, Rutgers, Columbia, University of Michigan, Williams and Hamilton.

The evening was passed in card playing and vocal music, and closed with the election of officers for the ensuing year, after a review of the events of the closing year by the retiring president of the club, Rev. L. R. Howard.

These officers were elected: President, Maurice J. Thompson; vice president, Lindsey Best; recording secretary, Harold D. Corbusier; corresponding secretary, Harold A. Nomer; treasurer, Levis M. Booth.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Best, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Tubby, Miss Peckham, Miss Bousquet, and Messrs. L. M. Booth, Alden Moore, H. A. Nomer and H. C. Fenno.

DINNER-DANCE GIVEN FOR MISS SULLIVANT.

Delightful Function Tendered by Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Sullivant.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Sullivant, of Watchung avenue, gave a delightful dinner-dance at the Park Club, last dinner-dance at the Park Club Friday vant, which was in the nature of a holiday function. There were nearly 100 guests, including many boys and girls who are home from school for the holiday season. There were also a number of out-of-town guests.

The Christmas decorations used by the Park Club were left in a position and served the purpose well. The dinner, which began at 7 o'clock by Mrs. Johnson, the club stewardess, and this was followed by the dance which continued until a late hour. Those who received with Mrs. Sullivant and her daughter, were Mrs. A. J. Johnson, Mrs. Anna Moal and Mrs. W. A. Garrigues. The young people had a jolly good time and a feature was the attractive programme of music.

JOHN J. K. COARD'S FUNERAL.

Held At His Daughter's Home Before a Large Gathering.

Attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the latter including many business associates, the funeral of John J. K. Coard was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Johnson, of Watchung avenue, Friday afternoon. Almost the entire retail force and staff of Yates & Co., of Philadelphia, the firm with which Mr. Coard was connected, was present, the store being closed during the day.

Prayer was offered and scripture read by Rev. Dr. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, while the remarks were made by Rev. Dr. J. W. Richardson, of Stamford, Conn., a former pastor. At the close he recited impressively the poem, "Somewhere." During the service several selections were sung by James Stanley, of New York, a member of the choir of the Crescent Avenue church. The floral tributes were numerous and included set pieces from Yates & Co., and Smith, Gray & Co., the latter firm of New York.

Deeds and Contracts.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded at Elizabeth: Highland Park Realty Co. to D. Loizeaux Lumber Co., northeasterly side Leland avenue, 250 feet southeasterly of Midway, Plainfield, $350. Nelson Runyon et ux. to Sarah T. Manning, Front street, corner Clason Dunn, Plainfield, $1. Lemuel E. Hart et al. to Emily Merle, northwesterly side West Second street, corner Charlotte L. DeMeza, Plainfield, $1. These contracts have also been filed: Anna B. McCready with Geo. J. Tobin, plumbing work new building, Denmark road, Plainfield, $1,515. Same with Charles H. Dutcher, heating, $995.

REFUSES LICENSE TO KERWIN'S HOTEL

Judge Booraem's Act is the Result of Expose In City Court Here.

KERWIN FOUGHT HARD

Tried to Prove He Conducted Orderly Place, But the Court Had Investigated Privately and Knew Facts.

The application of Lawrence Kerwin, proprietor of the Guinea Egg Hotel, for a renewal of his liquor license, was refused by Judge Booraem, of the Middlesex County Court Friday.

There was an open charge made in the police court here that Kerwin was doing a fine Sunday business in spite of the provisions of the Bishops' law. It came about through the arrest of Abram Wilde, of 206 Monroe avenue, for drunkenness. He claimed that he had just come from the Guinea Egg Hotel. Wilde told the Plainfield Chief of Police that Kerwin did such a Sunday business that his wife and daughter had to help him tend bar. Judge Booraem saw the published accounts of this and although no formal complaint had been made to him he decided to investigate the story before renewing Kerwin's license.

Kerwin, represented by Lawyer A. S. Marsh, of New Brunswick, made a strong effort to save himself from business ruin, but without avail. He swore that his place was orderly and that he never sold on Sundays. William Wilson testified for him that Wilde got his booze from him. Wilson, The court had made an investigation, however, and Wilson's testimony could not counterbalance the evidence in Judge Mooraem's hands to the contrary.

In the course of the hearing, Kerwin complained that the police authorities here had been spiteful and they would have him run out of business. The police here have never denied that they would like to have done it.

HORTICULTURISTS TO MEET AT TRENTON.

Annual Session Will Occur at State House Next Week.

The New Jersey Horticultural Society will conduct its annual meeting at the State House on Thursday and Friday of next week. Sessions will be held in the assembly chamber at Trenton and it has been arranged to have experts on horticultural matters address the delegates on various matters relating to the growth of fruits and flowers. President Horace Roberts, of Moorestown, has been actively engaged for some weeks past in arranging the details for the meeting which it is planned to make it the most successful in the history of the organization. Mr. Roberts will be among the speakers as will also Secretary Franklin Dye of the State Board of Agriculture.

The subject of fruit productions will consume considerable of the time of at least one session. Mr. Dye declared yesterday that the interest in fruit culture in this State was by no means waning and he stated that in so far as the quality of fruit is concerned, New Jersey still stands premier among the States of the Union. This statement, Mr. Dye declared, he made without fear of contradiction and he stated that the scientific growing and caring for fruit trees in this State was a matter on which the horticultural during the past few years. The delegates to attend the society's meeting will be appointed by the various county boards of agriculture through the State.

Foresters' Annual Entertainment.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting Friday, received one application and initiated three applicants. The new lodge paraphernalia was used by the degree team to the satisfaction of the candidates and others. The annual entertainment and dance will be held in Saengerbund Hall on Friday, January 18, when Prof. Howard's vaudeville aggregation, of Newark, will furnish the entertainment, and Professor Helnmeyer, of Elizabeth, the music for the dance. High Chief Ranger D. S. Howell, of Newark, and other High Court officers will attend. After the business there was an informal programme of songs and remarks by the members, followed by a smoker. The officers-elect will be installed at the first meeting in January.

Quietly Married.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Louise Denckla, of Fairview avenue, to Robert H. Sander, of West Hoboken. The ceremony was performed in that city, Wednesday afternoon, and was very quiet.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Dec. 6th, 1906, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call, showed the following named members present: Messrs. Kline, and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Chandler, Cladek, Darby, Grueger, Jensen, Krouse, Meisel, Murphy, Perry, Robinson, Rusling, Swain, Wall, Westphal, Wilbur and Woodruff—19; absent, Freeholder Kline, 1.

The minutes of regular meeting held on Tuesday, and adjourned meeting Nov. 22d, 1906, (reading of bills of both meetings being omitted), were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the city of Elizabeth—two bills for taxes for the year 1906, one for South Union street, $3,602, and the other for Broad street, land, $256.26.

Freeholder Chandler moved that the two bills be referred to the auditing committee with the power to act, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

From General J. Madison Drake, as follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 21st, 1906.

Gentlemen: Some time ago your board was pleased to accept from the Veteran Zouaves, of which I am whom I had commanded since 1867, many relics of the civil war, which they had gathered and carefully preserved, I now have the honor of tendering to your honorable body for preservation by the county, three historic flags that have often waved in the front rank of the battle line, my personal property, together with the valuable and artistic silken banner, presented the Veteran Zouaves by the*m Gen. H. Thomas* Veteran Guard of San Francisco, Cal., in August, 1886, while that command, the only military company that ever crossed the American continent on a pleasure excursion, was entertained as its guests. Of the three bullent rent colors, of which but fragments remain, one was ever borne at the side of Major General George Philip Kearny, of our own State, while the other two were carried through the war by the Fourth United States Infantry. I feel confident that your honorable board I will formally present these colors to the county at such time and place as you may decide.

Your obedient servant,

J. MADISON DRAKE,

Brig. Gen. Cond'g Veteran Zouaves.

Referred to public buildings committee and Freeholder Adams to arrange date.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The following report was presented and read:

Elizabeth, Dec. 5th, 1906.

Gentlemen: Your committee to whom the application of the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company for permission to place a conduit over Elm street bridge, Plainfield, N. J., was referred, would respectfully report, that they met with a similar committee from the Somerset county board, and the company's representatives, and have agreed on the conduits being placed there, upon terms contained in the agreement herewith submitted.

S. P. T. Wilbur, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

The agreement was as follows:

Whereas, The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company are desirous of placing their conduits and cables upon the new bridge across the Green Brook, which is the dividing line between Union and Somerset counties, at the foot of Elm street in the city of Plainfield, N. J., and

Whereas, The Boards of Chosen Freeholders of the Counties of Union and Somerset are willing that said Telephone Company shall place said conduits and wires on and over said bridge, upon the conditions and restrictions herein set forth.

Now therefore, This agreement witnesseth, that the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, a corporation, doth hereby agree to and with the Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, and the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Somerset, and their successors, for the consideration of One Dollar, and the privilege of extending and placing its conduits and cables upon and over the bridge at the foot of Elm street across Green Brook in the city of Plainfield, N. J., to place said cables and conduits in manner as herein provided, and to keep and perform the covenants herein expressed, namely:

1. The cables so placed in and upon said bridge shall consist of four cables extending from the top of the abutment on the northerly side of said bridge to and upon the abutment on the southerly side thereof, and shall not be more than three inches in diameter; said pipe shall rest on the top of the abutment wall on either side, and on the top of the iron girder and beneath the plank roadway of said bridge.

2. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company shall not make good any and all damage occasioned to said bridge or the abutments thereof, or approaches thereto, by reason of placing said cables and conduits thereon, and agrees to be responsible for all damage which may occur by reason thereof at any time hereafter.

3. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company further agrees to pay one third of the cost of painting said bridge, whenever hereafter the same may be painted.

4. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company further agrees to pay to said Boards of the County of Union, the sum of thirty dollars, and also to the County of Somerset, the sum of thirty dollars, for the privilege of placing before placing said conduits and cables upon said bridge.

5. The said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company further agree to, at any and all times, upon thirty days' written notice so to do so, by either of said Boards of Chosen Freeholders, their successors in office, representing said counties, or either of them, to make any reasonable changes in said cables, conduits and pipes, or if deemed necessary or advisable by either of said Boards of Chosen Freeholders, wholly remove *the same*s for the purpose of enabling repairs or rebuilding of said bridge, or any part thereof; and in case the said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company should fail to make such changes or removal in said conduits, cables and pipes belonging to said company within the time aforesaid, then the said Boards of Chosen Freeholders, their representatives, or either of them, are authorized to make such changes or removal to the bridge approaches and abutments at the expense of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company.

In witness whereof, the said New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has caused these presents to be signed by its second vice president, and attested by its secretary, and its corporate seal hereunto affixed, this sixteenth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and six.

THE NEW YORK & NEW JERSEY TELEPHONE COMPANY,

By J. Refll, 2d Vice President.

J. A. S.

Attest: W. H. Hopkins, Secretary.

(Seal)

Freeholder Chandler moved that the report and agreement be received, accepted and filer, which was so ordered, after Freeholder Wilbur had briefly explained that he had obtained the thirty dollars mentioned in the agreement to cover expenses occasioned to the county in arranging for the said agreement, and that a check for the said sum was attached to the agreement.

By the special committee heretofore appointed to confer with the Morris County Traction Co. for extension of time, etc., as follows:

Dec. 6th, 1906.

Gentlemen: The undersigned committee heretofore appointed on consider the application of the Morris County Traction Company for an extension of time, etc., to enable it to include the building of the road in accordance with the terms of an agreement made between said company and this board on the 23rd day of the third day of November, 1904, would respectfully report that after several conferences with the representative of said Traction Company, we would recommend the g rranting of the extension of the time within which said company should complete said road, from the 23rd day of January 1st, 1907, upon an agreement being entered into by and between this board and the said Morris County Traction Company embracing the following conditions:

1. That the granting of said extension shall in no wise interfere with the rights or privileges of any of the municipalities through which said Traction Company's road may pass.

2. That the Traction Company shall obtain from the several municipalities through which the said lines may pass, all consents necessary to the building or extension of the time winith which the same may be built.

3. That the said line be fully built and equipped in accordance with the terms of the agreement hereinbefore referred to, on or before the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and seven.

4. That in consideration of said extension being granted by this board the said Traction Company shall, from and after January 1st, 1912, furnish and light at its own expense all that portion of the county road over and along which their said lines are to be placed, and also the road along said road at least within three hundred feet of each other; to be all not less than 16 candle power, and to be kept burning from one hour after sundown, to one hour before sunrise every night.

Respectfully submitted.

Henry Krueger, Peter J. Meisel, George B. Cladek, Chas. J. Jensen, E. K. dams, Committee.

Freeholder Grueger moved the report be received and recommendation contained therein adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By commitie on West End avenue bridge, Plainfield:

Gentlemen: Your committee would respectfully report that the West End avenue bridge, Plainfield, is substantially completed, and the extent of the wing walls is in their judgment insufficient for the proper protection of the same; they therefore recommend, that this committee be authorized to have same extended fifty feet on each side at a total cost not to exceed $2,000, one-half of said amount to be borne by Somerset county and one-half by Union county.

Signed, W. A. Westphal, John Robison, Adolph H. Gruener, C. S. Chandler, Charles A. Smith, Committee.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the bill of the W. T. Kirk Co. for furnishing iron work for bridge on Alston Road, town of Westfield, for $250, be paid when properly audited by committee and engineer.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the bill of A. P. Stiles for concrete and mason work on the bridge on Alston Road, town of Westfield, amounting to $490, be paid when properly audited by the committee and engineer.

Freeholder Cady moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

On mition of Freeholder Chandler it was ordered that when this board adjourn it be adjourned to meet at the call of the director.

At this time county attorney Codington presented to the board a photograph containing the pictures of Chairman J. Frank Hubbard, John Farrell and Jacob Brucklacher, who constituted the building commissioners of the new court house, Architect William S. Ackerman, County Collector Edward M. Wood and Director Benjamin King. The picture was presented as a memorial tribute to the members of the commission and those associated with it who have died (Chairman Hubbard and County Collector Wood) since the commission was appointed.

The county attorney referred to the old court house and its great lack of facilities for public business and how to-day a magnificent building, which was now completed and occupied, possessing every modern convenience, as the result of the labors of the commission and others whose pictures were contained in the photograph. He referred feelingly to the great services rendered by the late Chairman and Director Hubbard and County Collector Wood, and said that the photograph would doubtless recall for many years to come the services so rendered. He said that the mission of the picture was presented by those contained in the same who were still living. Freeholder Cady in a few remarks accepted the photograph on behalf of the board and presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the photograph of the Union county court house commissioners which was presented by the gratefully accepted by this board and placed upon the wall of this room; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The following bills properly audidide and approved were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

Salary account:—James W. Fink $60, N. R. Leavitt $208.33, F. W. Westerfield, physician $187.50, W. R. Codington $75.

Committee expense account—Geo. W. Cole $3.50, H. Barton 2, S. P. Wilbur $2.90, John Robison $1, Benjamin King $12.84, Noah Woodruff $10.90, Dennis S. Murphy $4, John N. Cady $17.10, Henry Krouse $12.20, P. H. Meisel $5, W. A. Schupner $5, W. A. Westphal $7.75, Charles A. Smith $14.85, G. orge H. Wilson $3.50, John F. Wahl $6.75, E. K. Adams $15.70.

Members pay account—Noah Woodruff $48, John .N.C ady $36, Henry King $36, C. S. Chandler $48, A. H. Gruener $42, S. P. T. Wilbur $36, John Robison $24, Dennis S. Murphy $36, Henry Krouse $44, Charles J. Jensen $16, P. H. Meisel $28, George H. Kline $26, W. H. Swain $16, Charles A. Smith $28, George B. Cladek $48, W. A. Westphal $40, John F. Wahl $36, E. K. Adams $48.

Incidentals account—James E. Loughlin $4, Loney & Sage $5, Jas. Kirk $12.50, F. H. Brokaw, Jr. M., $21.20, J. Willard Urmston $25, Frank H. Smith $387.74, J. S. Stiner $30.25, Walter H. Thomas $15, Charles H. Baker $36, W. R. Codington $88.60.

Stationery account — Elizabeth Daily Journal $15.50, D. S. Walton Co. $6, Journal Printing Co. $6, F. E. Norris & Co. $6.90, $95.75, Elliott Fisher Co. $2.30, L. C. Smith & Bros. $178.50.

Jail account—W. H. Lawrence, Sheriff, $1,110, Henry J. Baker $41.45, Henry J. Schmidt $18.75, Berry & Co. $18.39, F. Lippmann $12.05, Albert C. Stein $11.32.

Lunacy account—W. R. Codington $45.

Publication account — Courier-News Publishing Co. $31.25, $31.25, Elizabeth Daily Journal, Times, L. S. Hyer $31.25, Elizabeth Daily Journal $31.25, salary secretary Union county board of taxation W. Townsend $400.

Contingent fund—W. R. Townsend $15, E. Robinson & Co. $25, Jeannette C. Summers & M. L. Noe $45, Bey of Elizabeth $610.28.

Election account—Anson P. Grant $5, Henry E. Ferris $5, Peter V. Weaver $14, James Crane $10.50, James C. Carey $7, Henry J. Schupner $10, Gustave Deinlein $3.50, Frederick Teipel $5, Henry F. Wolfskiel $25, Jacob Schmidt $100, Henry C. Graves $15, Wm. Tunison $30, Jilson & Falkenberg $32.45, J. Hervey Doane $23, John H. Doane $7, W. R. Tel. Co. $7.80, Peter Wood $9.50, $7.35, $3.40, Art Metal Construction Co. $72, H. V. Buttler & Co. $6.50, United Electric Co. of N. J. $16.52, Geo. W. Cole & Co. $3, Clark & Sawaro Co. $15.80, $23.26, N. R. Leavitt $3.25, A. C. Stein $21.48, Joseph Bauer $3.87, Kate Runyon $27, J. J. Carey $18.80, P. Vanderveer $14, W. H. Huiskamper $270.30, Columbus Refining Co. $24.04, Laitner Brush Co. $16.63, Gibson Soap Co. $12, Peter Wood $7.50, $7.50, Eclipse $32.91, Thomas W. White $14.75, $7.50, J. and S. S. Thompson $1.77, Brucklacher Bros. $8.45, W. S. Ackerman, Jr. $6.50, Elizabethtown Gas Co. $16, W. T. Kirk Co. $94.80.

Court account—Jas. Crann, $9.80, $84, Vincent Daniel $1.34, James J. Carey $18.25, $18.25, $18.25, $18.25, $112.50, Gustave Deihlein $80.50, Peter V. Weaver $91, Robert Walpole $80, W. R. Frazee, J. P. $17.75, L. W. Scudder, J. P. $8.08, Frederick Petrus $108, E. B. Lawrence $60, Frederick Teipel $112.50, George W. Peek, Jr. $74.75, D. H. Ramsay $81, Frederick Teipel $8.08, Wm. H. Squler, J. P. $2.25, Henry J. Schoppe $75, H. A. Pierson $7.50, W. B. Tousey, J. P. $5, John A. Galatian $104.50, Frederick Teipel $127.5, Edward C. Calvert $108.90, John K. English $211.52, Edward S. Atwater $416.66, N. C. J. English $503.04, W. H. Lawrence, sheriff $41.67, W. H. Donaldson, J. P. $6.55, Howard B. Kline $6.58, Noah Woodruff, J. P. $20.40, J. L. Bauer $25, Elizabeth Daily Journal $42, E. S. Williamson, Jr. $150, S. Birmingham $8.50, $5.25, $6.20.

Bridge account—Fred'k Ayers $251.25, J. L. Bauer $42.50, A. W. T. Kirk Co. $29, Wm. Hoffery $1.50, Edward Gran $40.90, Diedrick Krefe $54.48, Robert Rindell $498.87, Jas. G. Moore, $80, John W. Van Pelt $100, Wm. Guinee $28.50, $10, $9.50, 46.50, $45, J. A. Seymour $20, Chapman Lawrence $69.50, P. Hobensee $6.31, Frank Cole, Sr., $81.70, $148.50, $24.72, Thomas L. Carey $74.75, $76.50, Charles Ellbacher $36, $34.20, Dennis Whalen $22.85, Robert Kolling, Adam Sutter $15, Hatfield & Weldon $6.72, $22.50, Hans Lambertsen $12.50, W. T. Kirk Co. $600, John Conrad $22, T. Gallagher $5.60, Jacob J. W. Hope $205.15, $64.46, $17.65, $197.18, James G. Moore $125, C. H. Winans, $124.25, $215, Fred Bauer $95.50, Wm. Schoonover $1321, C. Nelson $2.90, G. B. Lovey $35, Hatfield & Weldon, $23.77, Stebbins Bros. $16.25, W. Hubbard $16.65, The W. T. Kirk Co. $2.50, Jacob G. Miller $10.50, F. J Hubbard $48, The Daily Press $1.50, Courier-News, $1.50, Joseph Bauer $1.50, Loizeaux & Co. $29.4?, James C. Hansen $27.50, Joseph M. Kelly $8.56, Nelson Bros. $48, T. C. Falconbridge $16.25, W. Tilton $15.75, W. H. Barton $5, Christian Lumbys $33.28, Hatfield & Weldon $16.62, The W. T. Kirk Co. $500, J. L. Bauer $7.50, Jacob Schmidt $5.50, The W. T. Kirk Co. $450.

Freeholder Krouse moved to adjourn, which wac carried.

The director declared the board adjourn, subject to the call of the director.

S. RUSLING RYNO, Clerk.

LITERARY.

The National for January is a "snappy" number. "Affairs at Washington," by its editor, Joe Mitchell Chapple, is exceptionally strong in character; and several additional pages are added to this department, giving to the reader an insight into the doings of the National Capital such as can be obtained from no other publication. "Cuba's Malady" is the title of one of the most timely articles of the month, and is written by John Wesson Noel, who has been in Cuba for some time, and has made a study of the conditions that led up to the intervention by the United States. Kate Restieaux contributes an interesting article upon John Greenleaf Whittier, the great American poet.

The January Everybody's is another holiday number full of purposeful reading. It opens with a surprises—a fit beginning to a new year of magazine achievement. After a year of world-circling travel and research, of pause wrerever men are squarely shouldering the responsibilities of mankind, Edward Howard Russell brings to a close his "Soldiers of the Common Good" in a remarkable summing-up. It is difficult to estimate the importance to Americans of this conclusion. It will be read by every thinking patriotic citizen. It is to be hoped that all satisfied ones will see it. "The Mere Incident of Failure," by Will Payne, is an interesting discussion of the alleged rules governing success. Its conclusions are surprising and convincing.

The new editors of The American Magazine are making good. Their periodical grows better every month. The January number is excellent. Ray Stannard Baker leads off with a description of an extraordinary experiment in brotherhood now being conducted in America—The Theosophical Institution at Point Loma, Cal. Katherine Tingley, the pioneer in the organization, is a wonderful leader, reminding one of Mary Baker G. Eddy in the ability she has exhibited. William Allen White, the famous Emporia (Kansas) editor and novelist, compares Emporia and New York City. Of course the article is compact of wit and wisdom. Ida M. Tarbell, proceeding with her story "The Tariff in our Times" tells about the outbreak of protectiinism that followed the Civil War.

FROM THE GLOBE.

A Springfield (Ohio) woman deserted her husband because he is tongue tied.—Washington Herald.

Now if that had been otherwise how the husband would have stood at his post, happy until the tie was severed.

The decision of Congress against simplified spelling does not discourage Prof. Brander Matthews. He says that the cause is becoming more popular all the time, and that is enough for him.—Providence (R. I.) Journal.

Anything that is enough for the professor ought to be enough for everybody.

A German scientist asserts that thoughts can be photographed.—City Item.

This is Bellamy Storer's chance to get even.

Fire Chief McHugh, of Deadwood, wrote to Secretary Root that the Utes had had enough hot air and needed rations and clothes.—Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

If the Utes are anything like most Indians what they need is a bucket of soap and a curry comb for each.

As we understand the situation, one of the members of the Populist party is in favor of joining the Republican party, but the other one is dead against it.—Topeka (Kan.) Capital.

Something wrong about this. It implies that one of the Pops is alive.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, who has been detained at home by illness, expects to be at the prayer meeting Wednesday night.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 6: Morning Watch.

By REV. WALTER J. FATES, D. D.

Secret communion with God.—Matt. vi, 6. Passages for meditation.—Gen. xxviii, 10; II Kings iv, 33-37, Matt. xiv, 23; Luke xxii, 41-43; John i, 48.

"I have much to do today, therefore I must be much in prayer." It is said to have been the favorite remark of Martin Luther. To some it seems a contradiction or at least a difficulty to be in prayer when busy about other things, but to the one who is accustomed to pray it is all clear. One who merely says prayers and needs to get his body into certain postures to say them devoutly, who makes much of the outward form and has not come to know the nature of true prayer as the inward attitude of the soul toward God, such a one will find it hard to pray and work at the same time.

But he who knows God close at hand and has learned to speak to Him as a man speaks to a faithful and near friend, such a one does not know the very stress of work will give greater urgency to the inner craving for communion and counsel with the Father.

This morning watch, do you observe it? Are you belong to the company who every morning before beginning the work of the day spend a little time in the reading of the book of God and in secret prayer to Him for guidance and protection during the day? If you have not begun it, why not begin to do it now? We need constant guidance in all our affairs by God. This can come only to those whose minds are fixed to do God's will. That must be all our purpose in life. And that is done, how shall we know what His will is concerning us in any particular case? He has promised to reveal Himself to us, as He does not to the world. Whoever comes into the Secret Presence will find that God has much in his thought and is earnestly desiring special direction that he may please and glorify God never fails to sooner or later come into consciousness that he knows what is pleasing to God and his spirit possessed of a different experience of divine things from any he has had. This comes by no outward voice or visible sign, but is an inwrought consciousness which has the highest degree of certainty for him who possesses it and needs no outward attestation to make it more convincing to him.

This talking with God not only brings clear knowledge of duty, but it also gives the strength to do it without useless struggle and conflict than is ordinary. By communion with God and meditation on His will and way we come to see that It is best, and our determination goes out to put ourselves in accord with the right and good, and not it is contrary to what we see is most desirable and altogether admirable.

Then, again, this talking with God puts us in the same frame of heart that He has. Knowing the right and true and nominible He finds it easy to love it and find our pleasure in that way alone. This brings peace and contentment. We are in harmony with ourselves and with God, and the petty contradictions of life in the world do not so much disturb us. All things come to work together for good for us, and life takes on new coloring and is altogether different.

Have you tried this and failed in a measure because of lack of time or forgetfulness? Has it come to little become dull and irksome routine, with no zest and little profit in it? Well, that is but the natural course with all new things. Begin all over again. Do not expect too much of yourself at first. Remember that God is the deep things of God's presence to be revealed to you at once. Consider how it is with earthly friends and acquaintances. When first introduced to a person you often find it difficult to make conversation and entertain him. You know each other or have much in common, but let a friend of many years' intimacy come in and how the wheels of talk spin round! Get acquainted with God and hold all you have in common with Him, first and last and in moments in communion with Him dull.

Whatever else you neglect this year, do not neglect to cultivate intimacy with God.

Kingdom of Heaven Is Within You.

If you do not wish for His kingdom, don't pray for it, but if you do you must do more than pray for it; you must work for it. You must work for it you must know what it is; we have all prayed for it many a day without thinking. Observe, it is a kingdom that is to come to us; we are not to go to it. It is not to come outside of us; but in the hearts of us. "The kingdom of God is within you." And, being within us, it is not a thing to be seen, but to be felt; and though it brings all substance of good with it, it does not consist in that. The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost;" joy, that is to say, in the holy, healthful and helpful Spirit.—John Ruskin.

Human Life.

It is the salvation of a noble nature to have some task of self denial, some motive for self sacrifice left, when all that made the daily burden of life endurable has passed away. Happy he who has habituated himself to look upon his whole earthly career but as a task of which the reward, though not given here, is as priceless as it is certain. I have remarked that a true gentleman is the smallest one to find against it.—Topeka (Kan.) Capital.

Something wrong about this. It implies that one of the Pops is alive.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 6.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Beginning with God and continuing with Him.—Gen. i, 1; John i, 3-14; xv, 4-7. (Consecration meeting.)

In the first verse of the first chapter of the first book in the Bible Moses declares that God was the beginning of all material things. "In the beginning, God!" A more majestic sentence could not have been selected to open the history of God's relation to the universe and to man. It presents at once the story and the key to all of all things. The story of the creation is not first told and the relation of God to it revealed, but the first in importance is put first in the record of the fact. And this is the proper method of opening this record. The creed is in all respects superior to the creation, and this fact should be recognized at once. God is the beginning of the material universe. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," and therefore His superior position should at once be announced. It is a singular fact that when the apostle John desires to relate the history of Christ, as the Son of God he also opens his story with the same expression—"In the beginning." "In the beginning was the Word (Christ), and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God." John desires to set forth the Son of Christ from the standpoint of His deity, and he also very properly begins with His existence with God in the beginning of eternity. Moses began the history of the creation of the world, and so should we. God should have the first and supreme place in our hearts and lives. We should begin the day with God. Every day should be begun with the reading of God's word and prayer to God. No man who wants the blessing of God upon his day's work should neglect to begin it with God. We may think that *we have no time for morning devo*tions, but we should take time. It can be taken from some of the time there's a will there's a way." We may think that we cannot afford to take the time, but the real truth is that we cannot afford not to take the time. Time spent with man, however important the business, will never repay us if it be time that should be spent with God. No man can rob God and expect to profit by the transaction. We should also begin life with God. Nothing is more important in early life than the consecration of the heart and life to God. The command is peculiarly in this respect and very explicit—"Son, daughter, give Me thine heart," "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth." "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." No language could be more definite. If the great crises of life we should be sin with God. This was the method of Christ Himself. No great duty faced Him without His going to God with it. We should follow the example of Christ in this respect. In a word, let us begin with God in everything we do, we need have no fear of the results.

Beginning with God, however, is not all the story. We must continue with God. A good start does not always insure final success. It only does so when the beginning is followed by good work. The Galatians began well, but soon grew weary, and the apostle Paul needed to exhort them to renewed zeal and fervor. We must take God with us on all occasions, and where we cannot take Him we should not go. But it is most encouraging just here that the taking of God's absolutely possible for the reason that God is willing to abide with us. What great condescension on His part! In the heart of God there is a desire willing to come into our hearts and abide with us, and except He abide with us we cannot lead Christian lives and bring forth fruit to His honor and glory. May He therefore abide with us and we with Him, that our lives may be fruitful in His service and that we may have the promise fulfilled in us, "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what you will, and it shall be done unto you."

Bible Readings.

Ps. xcii, 1, 2; Prov. iii, 9, 10; Eccl. xii, 1; Matt. ii, 33; John xxi, 20-23; Luke ix, 62; John vii, 31, 32; xv, 9; Gal. iii, 16; Col. i, 18-23.

What Christian Endeavor Is Building.

Christian Endeavor is building patriots who will stand in the forefront against iniquities which threaten to tarnish the flag. It is building Christian men who will help to make the precepts of Christ current in the commercial world. It is building leaders for the great enterprises of the church. It is building men who will be willing to fill humible places amid the strain and stress of things with confidence and joy.—Edwin Forrest Hallenbeck, D. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

Dr. Sheldon's Personal Indorsement.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, D. D., says in the Christian Endeavor World, of which he is editor: "I enjoy more than ever the work of my own Christian Endeavor *society this year. It is large and en*thusiastic. I am to begin the reading of some stories in about two weeks and shall have the pleasure of reading about 150 young people each Sunday night. This is as good an audience as any man could wish."

DISCARDED.

[The picture postcard has killed many valuable friendships.—Ashaway Review.]

Is any temper stand the test
Of pictures from the Donnerwetter
When other views are interspersed
By letter?

You wonder why I look forlorn;
Look at this card beside my platter
And you will find that Mary Morrow
The matter.

I long to know if Grace is well.
And surely it is more than shabby
To palm me off with views of Melrose Abbey!

I sent a check to Uncle James.
And—like the missive was to thank me—
Sent me a snapshot of the Thames
In flames.

And when I offer heart and hand,
To Clare she forwarded her view in
A picture card from Overstrand—
A ruin!

My prompt reply to all of them
Is fitting and expressive, very—
A picture card of Richfield Cemetery,
London Chronicle.

THE HALL OF FAME.

N. D. Hawkins, of Edinboro, Pa., who bought a Stradivarius violin years ago for $8,000, has sold it for $10,000 to Miss Leona Jackson.

The Marquis di San Giuliano, who has been appointed Italian ambassador at the court of St. James, is one of the most prominent figures in the political world in Italy, though he is still young.

Mrs. Elizabeth Crowe has been fined $3 at Ottawa for kissing her own child. She had been divorced, and when she met the child in the street she kissed it. Her husband charged her with assaulting it.

Dr. James Bruce Ross of the Johns Hopkins University has completed an edition of the gospel of St. Luke in the West Saxon. This is his fourth in his series of books in the English of the tenth century. He is also at work on several other volumes.

In appointing his son, Lord Bruce, as his private secretary the Earl of Elgin only followed the example of the late William E. Gladstone, who, when he became prime minister in 1859, appointed Herbert Gladstone, then a young man of twenty, to a similar position.

Charles A. Welch, the senior member of the Massachusetts bar, is the sole survivor of the Harvard class of '32, of which there were originally fifty-four members. He comes from an old Boston family, some of whose ancestors were residents of Boston as early as 1682.

Senator Proctor's great gift to Vermont—the Vermont Sanitarium for the Treatment of Tuberculosis Patients, for which he contributed $100,000, is now under construction near Pittsfield and will be completed next summer. Senator Proctor has given much of his great wealth toward such charities in his State.

J. Pierpont Morgan recently bought to this country the most valuable Bible now in America. The copy was made by the monks of Cluny, France, in the thirteenth century. With the Bible also came the original warrant for the arrest of John Bunyan, Mr. Morgan paying $25,000 for the Bible and warrant.

John F. Woodbury, of Manchester, N. H., the oldest blacksmith in point of service in New England, has at last retired. He was born in Rutland in 1827. At the age of eighteen years he started in a blacksmith shop at Holden and has been engaged in that employment ever since. He has sold his stock on Lowell street in Manchester, N. H., and will retire upon a farm.

SCHOOLS IN EUROPE.

Austria has a school to every 104 pupils and every 1,300 inhabitants at a cost of 19.1 cents.

In Russia there is a school to every 2,390 inhabitants, and the school expenditure of a Russian amounts to 5.5 cents.

In Italy, where the is a school to every 600 inhabitants, a school is visited by fifty-six children, and a pupil costs 16.17 cents.

In France there is a school to every 500 inhabitants. A school is attended by sixty-six children, and every Frenchman contributes 29.5 cents to the expenditure.

"In Germany there is one school to every 700 inhabitants, and on an average 100 children attend one school. The expense amounts to 38.25 cents a head of population.

In Spain there is a school to every 600 inhabitants, and fifty-six children constitute the average attendance. Every child, however, requires an annual expenditure of 25 cents. In England conditions are similar, but the costs amounts to 27.25 cents for each child.

Humors of Translation.

Victor Hugo always translated the Firth of Forth as "the First of the Fourth" and swore that he was right, *too, while Disraeli noted with amuse*ment "woobegone" as "douleur va guilty." An early translator of Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor" had it as "La Bride de Lammermoor," the second word meaning "bridle," and the same man rendered "Welsh rabbit" by "Lapin Dernier Chemise de Lamour" for "Love's Last Shift" in Sheridan's "The School for Scandal." "Hit or Miss" was done into French it almost was billed as "Frappe on Mademoiselle." That delightful piece is which Toole was at his funniest, "Walker, London," was referred to in a French newspaper as "Londres qui se Promene." The best that the translator could do for the "Stickit Minister" was "Le Ministre Ausaisine."

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor

THURSDAY, JANUARY 3, 1907.

HAS MUNCHAUSES BEATEN.

The Newark News thinks that James Martine, the farmer orator of Union county, should be the nominee of the Democratic party for Governor next fall. It bases its suggestion upon the fact that, according to the returns, Martine came very near beating Fowler in the race for Congress last fall. But it happens that Martine's vote was largely increased by cantankerous voting machines. It would be a difficult matter for Martine to secure the nomination for Governor unless he first propulsed to all the things that James Smith Jr., asked him to do, and he is not that sort of a fellow.—Trenton State Gazette.

That is just on a par with what the Trenton State Gazette furnishes its gullible readers every day in the year; that is, it is as far from the truth as where the Gazette usually gets. In the first place, the News-News never advocated James E. Martine for the Democratic nomination, and in the second place Mr. Martine's vote was not largely increased by cantankerous voting machines and the editor of the Gazette knows it. Only one voting machine made a mistake and its returns were rectified when the county election officers announced that Martine had beaten Fowler in Union county. The editor of the Gazette is entitled to a job as a yellow journal for by past performances he has surely earned it.

MACHINE TALKING GREEK.

State Senator E. R. Ackerman has received a carbonized letter from a Greek society in Jersey City stating that all the naturalized Greeks in New Jersey would throw their strength to the Democratic ticket next fall unless John F. Dryden should be elected. Even these poor innocent, deluded foreigners are being used by the friends of the ham pressed Newarker in his effort to get back to Washington, but as Senator Ackerman is a man of common sense it is to be supposed that he will resign their request—or rather of Dryden's political friends—to the waste paper-basket.

Following the example of the majority of other economy throughout the country, the P. S. C. has raised wages of employes. Considering the tremendous increase in the cost of living, only simple justice is done them. When the average wage-earner today tries to make ends meet on what was paid a year ago, he can do only so long as his credit holds out.

MANY SALES REPORTED BY ALBERT LEDERER.

Transfers of Local Property Made by a Hustling Agent.

During the past few weeks there has been a renewal of activity in real real estate and among the buyers who have been especially busy is Albert Lederer. Through his office William R. Codington has sold the property, consisting of three stores and four apartments, located at Watchung avenue and Fifth street, to Joseph Wright of West Front street. Mr. Wright will make improvements and build an addition to the building on Fifth street.

Mr. Lederer has also the Dr. Bonnell property at 324 Somerset street, adjoining J. P. Homan's property, to Rosenbaum Brothers, and has sold about $20,000 worth of property on Stebbins place. All the double houses on the southside between Third and Seventh avenue but one or two have been sold. Mr. Elanor Steele purchased two; also a house on West Fourth street; Mrs. Madison Avenue, owned by the Seventh Day Baptist Society. Another house on Stebbins place has been sold to Charles Burros, of New York; Fred Endress, of West Front street, has purchased two properties on the same street. Mr. Lederer also sold for the Seventh-Day Baptist society the store property on West Fourth street to Mann Brothers, grocers, and the later sold the property to W. Ham Davis, the present occupant.

MANY ACCEPTANCES RECEIVED FOR UNIVERSITY SMOKER.

All the details for the second annual university smoker to be held at the Casino on January 24, are being perfected in a satisfactory manner. It now looks as though it will be impossible to accommodate the crowd at the rate the acceptances are being received by Owen H. Fleming. Up to one member of the committee has expressed it the indications are that there will be an over-flow meeting on the outside.

The committee has been assured of a quartette from Yale and one from Princeton to help enliven the occasion, while an excellent vaudeville show will be well worth seeing. The promptness with which replies are being sent in already assures a successful affair, as the acceptances now exceed those of last year.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most important musical productions of the New York season is on at Daly's theatre. Thos. W. Ryley making known the beauties of the new musical comedy, "The Belle of Mayfair," which is now filling the playhouse nightly. The book is written by two of the cleverest women in all England, Chas. H. E. Brookfield and Cosmo Hamilton, while the music is by the pen of modern composers, Leslie Stuart, whose earlier works in this country of "Florodora," "The Silver Slipper" and "Lovely Lucy," have won for him great fame. The story is a modernized version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," although departing from the tragedy by the happy termination of the lovers. Daly's has assembled perhaps the most noteworthy cast that will have graced Broadway in a decade and which consists of—the Misses Christie Macdonald, Irene Bentley, Ethel Johnston, Valeska Suratt, Annabelle Whitford and the Messrs. Van Rensselier Wheeler, Ignacio Martinetti, Richard F. Carroll, Jack Gardner, Harry B. Butcher and J. Louis Mintz.

In presenting to the public Reginald De Koven's latest production, "The Student King," which was given its New York premiere at the Garden theatre on Christmas night, and which marked the New York debut of the American born opera of Lina Abarbanell, the grand opera soubrette, Henry W. Savage is endeavoring to eclipse his former efforts in the realm of light opera. It is also designed to be the most pretentious production that may even divide attention with his famous English Grand Opera company, for the production of higher grade operas. "The Student King" is said to be founded on an old sixteenth century custom in Bohemia that permitted the students of Prague University each year to elect a student king, whose reign began at noon to midnight on the annual feast day. Francis, a heroic young student who supposes himself to be of royal birth and Rudolph, Duke of Lyra as the Carnival King. On this day the bridal train of Princess Ilsa of Tyrol passes through Prague to meet King Rudolph, whom she is to wed. Francis as the Princess attends the festivities and meets the Student King under the impression that he is the real monarch. It is a comedy of errors, for after many complications and ludicrous misunderstandings at the masked ball, the lovers plan an elopement. The plan is frustrated by Rudolph, and Francis is about to be involved to exert his brief authority as ruling monarch, the hour of midnight arrives when he must give up his sceptre. His supposed mother on learning of his peril opposes before Rudolph and confesses that Francis is the long lost heir apparent who has been stolen in his infancy by the conspirators who seized the throne. Amidst great rejoicing Francis is released and Rudolph abdicates in favor of the new sovereign who then marries Ilsa.

LOYAL TEMEPRANCE LEGION HOLDS XMAS ENTERTAINMENT

The Annual Affair In W. C. T. U. Rooms On Saturday Night.

The Loyal Temperance Legion held its annual Christmas entertainment in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Saturday night. Mrs. Alvah A. TenEyck, the superintendent, was in charge. The rooms were appropriately decorated and two Christmas trees occupied a prominent position. The programme was furnished chiefly by the boys and girls of the legion, while a Punch and Judy show afforded lots of fun for both young and old. After the entertainment the children received boxes of candy and oranges.

The exercises opened with the singing of "Saloona Must Go," "Oat for Prohibition," and "Some Glad Day." These were followed with a "Message of the Christmas Bells," Miss Ruth Wahlig; "Hark the Christmas Bells," Miss Ruth Hyslop; "Sing a Song of Merry Christmas," legion; "Christ is King," Miss Emma Helloff; "Santa's Warning," Miss Alice Spangerberg; "The Birth of Christ," Miss Clara Yoder; "Jesus Loves You and Me," school; "Christmas," an exercise, Miss Grace VanDeenberg, Miss Grace Vail, Miss Ruth Deter, Miss Ruth Hoffman, Miss May Roth, Miss Elsie Howell, Miss Carrie Hafner, Miss Elsie Rosenberg, Miss Theodosia Vail, Miss Belle Godwin and Miss Marion Doughty; recitations, Harold Wahlig and Miss Bessie Carson; "O Joyous Bells," Wilbur Hoffman, Wesley McDonald, Raymond Lowe; "Old Fashioned New Years Ago," school; recitations, Miss Ruth Deter and Miss Dorothy Gaston; "Christmas Gifts," Miss Anna Vail; "Lullaby," school; "The Stars," the Misses Grace Vail, Theodosia Vail, May Hedloff and Elsie Van Deenberg; "When Daddy Lights the Tree," Miss Ellen Doughty; solo, "Three Kings of the Orient," Miss Dorothy Gaston; "White Ribbon Rally Song," school. The entertainment then closed with the Punch and Judy show.

ORGANIZE BARACA CLASS.

A Society for Men Formed at Faith Chapel.

The Baraca Class, composed of men, held its first meeting Sunday afternoon at Faith chapel. The organization is intended for men only, and has proved successful wherever classes have been organized. So far as known this is the first Baraca Class organized in city.

The class has elected these officers: President, G. H. VanNest; vice president, George M. Griffen; secretary, James Patterson; treasurer, Christopher Utzinger; press reporter, U. B. Crane; teacher, Rev. J. W. Musson; assistant teacher, Frank Stewart; librarian, Harold Stewart. Hostlers' committee, Percy Cannon, George Cornwell, George Adams, Joseph Carson, Edward Baker, Jr., George VanHorn and W. H. Conger. Relief committee, L. W. Randolph, W. A. Conger, U. B. Crane; social committee, Frank Stewart; William C. LaRue and James Patterson.

PASTOR SAYS FAREWELL

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of New Market, Retires From the Ministry.

REAL FIGHTING PARSON

General Sherman Made Him Quit Sky-Piloting to Become An Aide On His Staff.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, who is retiring from the ministry after a service of forty-two years, preached his farewell sermon at the New Market Baptist church Sunday morning. He has been in charge of the New Market church thirteen years and eight months.

The farewell sermon was heard by a congregation that filled the church. Mr. Fletcher made only a brief personal reference, but the words evoked evidences of strong feeling. He said he could not trust himself to speak at length on the parting. Tears were shed by members of the congregation, and the venerable pastor nearly broke down.

After the service the people crowded about the pastor and said things that kept his eyes bright with moisture.

A feature of the service was a solo by his daughter, Mrs. Robert Giddes, of the choir of the First Baptist church, this city.

After the church service, the congregation held a meeting, and adopted resolutions of appreciation and regret. They will be engrossed and presented to Mr. Fletcher.

The retiring pastor will continue to live in New Market. Although weakened by years of devoted service, he is still able to work in the Vineyard, and will supply pulpits occasionally, besides filling the office of Secretary of the East Jersey Baptist Home Missionary Society.

Mr. Fletcher is a veteran of the Civil War, with an unusual record of advancement and service. He entered the army in a New York regiment when the conflict started; as a private. He had the stuff of which good soldiers are made and rose rapidly to a captaincy. He had been studying for the ministry when the war broke out, and as the struggle, wore on his desire to serve in the church was drawn with the military glory that he won. He resigned his company command in February, 1863, to go to New York to be ordained. As soon as his ordination was accomplished he returned to his regiment as its chaplain.

But a chaplaincy was not long for him. His superiors hated to see so good a soldier confined by the cloth, and General Sherman finally induced the veteran soldier buried beneath the chaplain's garb to come forth again and show the youngsters how to war on the nation's foes. Chaplain Fletcher became Captain Fletcher once more, and rode a horse with a service marked sword at his side, as aide-de-camp to General Sherman. He was on the grand leader's staff all through the march to the sea. That his service was always soldierly is evidenced by the fact that he was brevetted a major when the war closed, and could have had a commission in the United States army.

In the forty-two years of his ministry, Major, the Rev. Frank Fletcher, has attended 1,300 funerals and 520 marriages. In his service at New Market he has attended 153 funerals and 67 marriages.

No one has been mentioned yet as Mr. Fletcher's successor. The deacons will have charge of the pulpit supplies.

TWO CONTESTED CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Cornelius Loughlin Loses and Decision Reserved in Berkowitz Case Reserved.

There were two contested cases in the district court, Monday, before Judge Newrorn. The first was that of Cornelius Loughlin against the Aluminum press and Plate Company, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $102 for services. G. W. Y. Moy, Esq., representing the defendant, contended that the Aluminum Press and Plate Company was dissolved and that the plaintiff could not recover from that company. A verdict of no cause for action was given. J. P. Owens, Esq., represented the plaintiff.

The second case was that of Berkowitz, a local tailor, against the New Jersey Central, the former claiming damages to the extent of $300 for the failure of the company to deliver some goods to him. The company did not deny the failure to deliver the goods, but asked the court to decide about the amount to which the plaintiff was entitled under a special clause in the c ontract, which states that it will be liable to the extent of $5 a pound. J. P. Owens, Esq., represented the plaintiff, and Mayor Garvin, of Bayonne, represented the company. Decision was reserved.

—Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell is building three new houses near Clinton avenue.

—The Somerset County Board of Freeholders will meet at Somerville on Tuesday, January 8.

—The Jolly Twenty-four Club will hold a dance and euchre in the Camera Club rooms Friday night.

CITY EMPLOYEES RAISED

Ordinances Increasing Pay of Firemen and Policemen Pass Common Council.

EFFECTIVE ON JAN. 1

No Need for More Officers in the Police Department Says Mr. Tyler In Voting Against Measure.

The ordinance granting an increase in pay to the policemen and firemen were adopted at the final meeting of the 1906 Common Council, last night, but not without considerable sparring on the part of members who opposed and those who favored them. The ordinances had previously been adopted on first and second reading, but on that occasion Councilman Tyler stated in voting in the affirmative that, after more mature consideration, he would reserve the right to change his vote.

In explaining that he would vote against the ordinance to grant increase pay to the policemen and create three new offices, Mr. Tyler said that he had given the matter very careful consideration and had come to the conclusion that it would be a mistake to pass the ordinance as now drafted. He did not think that with the present size of the police department an increased number of officers was needed.

He said that he favored an increase of pay to the firemen and policemen, realizing the increased cost of living. He had understood that this was one of the chief reasons for the increase, that the present salary was not enough for the men to live on, but he did not think that the heads of the departments should receive as much of an increase as the ordinances call for, that is 16 per cent. Increase for the chief, while the men under them were to receive an increase of 10 per cent.

In place of that, Mr. Tyler said that he favored a general increase of 10 per cent. for the men and an adequate increase for the chief. He did not think that the ordinances as drafted carried out the original intent, in fact it appeared to him that they worked in the opposite direction. By giving the chiefs such a large increase the action had wrought discontent among the men, under them and in certain instances had resulted in a strong feeling of resentment. He had been informed, so he stated, that certain members of the department had said that if the new ordinances killed than be adopted in the present form. Mr. Tyler said in closing that he would like to see the ordinances go over until next year, when certain changes could be made.

Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, spoke in support of the police ordinance. He said that it was not with the idea of increasing the salaries of the policemen, especially the men who would fill the newly-created offices, as it was for the purpose of giving the men an incentive to work for that the changes were proposed. He thought that the new offices would be an advantage and would not be any more than are to be found in other Plainfield's cities. In speaking of the increase to be given Chief Doane, of the fire department, he said that he would receive $1,100 as chief and $500 as building inspector, a total of $1,600, and Chief Fisk who now receive $1,400 would get $1,600.

At this time a vote was taken on the final adoption of the ordinance relating to the police department and it was adopted by a vote of six to one, Councilmen Tyler, Daniel, Gloak, Montgomery, Frank Randolph and Tolles voting in the affirmative and Councilman Tyler in the negative.

The above action was followed by a motion by Councilman Frank Randolph that the ordinance relating to a similar change in the firemen be adopted on third reading. This brought forth a protest on the part of Mr. Montgomery, who said that he was opposed to the amendment proposed. He said that it did not go far enough. He favored a larger increase in pay and intimated that he would be willing to vote for it. He then said that the growth of Plainfield necessitated such as warrant the separation of the offices of chief of the fire department and building inspector. One man he believed is unable to take proper care of both offices. In supporting his contention he stated that during the past year Chief Doane had granted 259 building permits, which represents lots of work, if properly attended to.

Mr. Montgomery said that under such conditions Chief Doane could not give the time to the fire department he deserves. He cited the fact that the chief had been connected with the department forty-two years, had never had charges preferred against him, his acts had never been investigated and he believed that he was entitled to every consideration. He also believed that the salaries of the men in both the fire and police department should be on the same basis.

He quoted figures showing the salaries paid in the Newark fire department, stating that the chief receives $3,600, the deputy $2,700, the battalion chiefs $2,000 each, and each captain $1,600, while the building inspector receives $2,500, and has several assistants. "Of course," said Mr. Montgomery, "the reason for objection to an increase of salaries is the heavy tax it imposes, but I believe that this could be lightened somewhat by imposing a small fee for the issuance of every building permit, say $2.50. In Newark it is $10. I would like to see this ordinance go over until next year when a new one can be framed, one that will better meet the requirements." Mr. Montgomery's motion to lay the ordinance over was not seconded, though Mr. Randolph's motion to adopt it was, but when the roll was called there was only five votes in favor and two against, hence the ordinance was killed, six votes being necessary to adopt.

Later Councilman Buxton got busy with the idea of having the ordinance reconsidered. Councilman Hibbard having arrived in the meantime and agreeing to vote in favor of its adoption if it should be brought up again. It was then necessary to get either Mr. Tyler or Mr. Montgomery to move to reconsider but at first neither one would do so.

Mr. Buxton finally made the motion, but Mr. Montgomery instantly arose to a point of order, claiming that he could not make such a motion as he had voted with the minority. After being informed that Mr. Buxton had voted with the majority, he declared Mr. Buxton's motion in order, and was about to put it to a vote, when Mr. Tyler arose and explained that he had originally intended to vote in favor of the ordinance, but that the vote was taken so quickly that he didn't fully realize at the time his decision. He then moved to reconsider the vote and the ordinance and on the second vote it was adopted, all but Mr. Montgomery voting in the affirmative. Both the fire and police ordinances go into effect January 1, and it will be up to Mayor-elect Fisk to make appointments under the new ordinances. Should the 1907 Council does not make a further amendment to the police ordinance abolishing them.

CITY BUYS TRACT.

Gives $1,500 for Pumping Station Site.

The ordinance providing for the purchase of Clifton & Campbell's land on Randolph road to be used for a sanitary sewer pumping station, was adopted on final reading at the meeting of the Common Council, last night, and the land was purchased by the city for $1,500. Mr. Gloak offered a resolution that the land be purchased and that the contracts be executed.

It was arranged to have Mr. Gavett buy the land from Clifton & Campbell and then sell it to the city, the firm being out of the city, and it being desirous that the land be acquired at this time. Contracts have been executed and the land is now owned by the city. However, no efforts will be made to locate the proposed pumping station there before spring, when the southside sanitary sewer will be built.

CHILDREN MADE HAPPY, Xmas Tree Pleases Little Ones at the Home.

The Christmas festivities at the Children's Home, Friday afternoon, were greatly enjoyed not only by the twenty children, but others who returned for the celebration, as well as people in the city and borough who are specially interested in this work. At 2 o'clock the children had their Christmas dinner, which included turkey and all the good things which accompany it.

The tree was lighted at 4 o'clock and then a generous distribution of gifts to all the children. It was the opinion of all that it was the best celebration ever held at the Home and both young and old shared in the festivities. Mrs. Horace Kimball, president of the association, assisted by the matron, Mrs. Hendrickson and other officers, had charge of the affair.

No "Pie Sic."

Councilman William S. Tyler states that there was no discussion of fires at the recent Councilmanic caucus to oppose the suggestions made by Mayor-elect Fisk regarding the arrangement of committees. There was a constantly changing division of sentiment on the several propositions as they were taken up in turn and no factional lines were instrumental in bringing about the results. A great many of Mr. Fisk's ideas met with hearty approval.

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c. Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

POLICE COURT NETS $511.50 FOR FINE

ROUTINE MATTERS AT FINAL MEETING OF 1906 COUNCIL.

In closing up the year's work the Common Council transacted a considerable amount of routine business Friday, at its final meeting. The report of Clerk Adams, of the district court, showed the receipts for the past month to be $123.09 and the disbursements $43.53. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that fourteen permits were granted in December and 259 for the year.

City Judge William N. Runyon reported that during the year $614 had been received and $102.50 disbursed, the balance, $511.50, being turned over to the city treasurer, W. F. Arnold. The report of City Treasurer Arnold was presented and filed. It will be published in full in The Daily Press in a few days, and in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Daniel, 200 copies in pamphlet form were ordered printed. The resolution also authorized the publication of the report in The Daily Press and another paper.

Councilman Frank Randolph offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the finance committee to have 200 copies of the police, fire and street committees' report printed in pamphlet form, as usual.

Several petitions for lights were referred by Chairman Hubbard, of the light committee, to the 1907 Common Council, and Mr. Daniel referred back the reports of the collector and district court clerk and they were filed. After the transaction of the business the minutes of the meeting were read by Stenographer George B. Wean and adopted, after which the Common Council for 1906 passed into history.

Before the members departed last night Mr. Daniel moved that a vote of thanks be extended to President Tolles for his many courtesies and skill as a presiding officer during the year. The retiring president thanked his colleagues for the kindly expression of their esteem. The motion will be spread on the minutes.

CHANGE OF CATECHISMS.

First Presbyterian School Considering Blakeslee in Place of Westminster.

The Sunday-school officers and teachers of the First Presbyterian church are considering the advisability of using the Blakeslee catechism in place of the Westminster catechism in their lessons. The subject was discussed at length at a recent meeting, and the question was laid over for further consideration.

The difference between the catechisms is one of system. The Westminster, which is the older of the two and generalized and used by the Presbyterian publication board, is a course based on the study of the Scriptures by sections. It covers practically the whole Bible, and takes about seven years for completion. The Blakeslee is a system on topical lines, wherein the study of Scriptural characters is prominent. It is published by a private concern.

Rev. C. E. Herring, the pastor, said this morning that sentiment as to the change was about evenly divided in the school. The consideration, he said, was quite calm and without warmth.

Hope chapel clings to the Westminster system, while the Crescent Avenue church now uses the Blakeslee system.

James F. Fosbre Remembered.

The members of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting Friday made an award for the benefit of James F. Fosbre, who has been ill for nearly a year. The prize was a ten dollar gold piece and was awarded to Bernard Clark, who held ticket 844, and a check for $172.35 was presented to Mr. Fosbre this morning. During the latter's illness he has been under the care of the Court physician, Fred D. Wilbee resigned his office of financial secretary and Obey Wilson was elected to fill his place.

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.

In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 3.37, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 6.57, 7.05, 7.30, 7.55, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55, 11.55, 1.36, 2.45, 3.47, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55 a. m. 12.06, 12.19, 12.45, 1.06, 1.21, 2.41, 3.45, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 4.47, 7.35, 8.01, 8.45, 9.34, 9.40, 10.02, 10.32 a. m. 12.06, 1.06, 2.41, 3.45, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55 p. m.

For Newark—3.36, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.47, 8.11, 8.36, 8.46, 9.25, 9.50, 10.42, 11.42 a. m. 12.42, 1.36, 2.45, 3.47, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.27, 9.31 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 4.47, 7.35, 8.01, 8.45, 9.34, 9.40, 10.02, 10.32 a. m. 12.42, 1.36, 2.41, 3.45, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55 p. m.

For Elizabeth—3.36, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.47, 8.11, 8.36, 8.46, 9.25, 9.50, 10.42, 11.42 a. m. 12.42, 1.36, 2.45, 3.47, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.27, 9.31 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 4.47, 7.35, 8.01, 8.45, 9.34, 9.40, 10.02, 10.32 a. m. 12.42, 1.36, 2.41, 3.45, 4.55, 5.36, 6.05, 6.25, 7.05, 7.30, 8.45, 9.47, 10.55 p. m.

For Plemington—7.11, 11.09 a. m., 2.09, 6.19 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 3.27 p. m.

For Phillipsburg and Easton—5.56, 8.21, 9.55, 11.09 a. m., 1.01, 2.09, 4.17 and 6.31 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 1.20, 3.27 and 6.31 p. m.

For Somerville—5.19, 7.11, 8.21, 9.17, 9.55, 11.09 a. m., 1.01, 2.09, 4.17, 6.19 and 8.23 p. m. Saturday only, 12.42 a. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 1.20, 3.27 and 6.31 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Manch Chunk—8.42 a. m., 1.20, 3.27, 6.31 p. m. Sundays—3.42 a. m., 2.02, 3.47, 7.05 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—8.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—3.42 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—3.47, 9.29 a. m., (12.42 Atlantic City Express Saturday only), 2.41, 4.55 p. m. Sundays—(8.53 Lakewood only), (8.53 p. m., Saturdays only, Lakewood only). Sundays—(8.01 Lakewood only), 8.53 a. m., 4.55 p. m.

For Toms River and Barnegat—3.37, 8.29 a. m., 1.27, 4.07 p. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Philadelphia—7.12, 7.39, 8.45, 9.12, 9.48 a. m., 1.17 night. Sundays—8.45, 9.53, 10.29, 11.42 a. m., 12.12, 2.13, 4.12, 6.44, 8.50, 9.48 p. m., 1.17 night. Sundays—8.45, 9.53, 10.29, 11.42 a. m., 12.12, 2.13, 4.12, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46 p. m., 1.17 night.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 6.44 p. m. Sundays—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44 p. m.

*Change cars at Bound Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Gen. Manager. W. C. HOPE, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. Gen. Pass Agt.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect May 13th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD:

7.55 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Manch. Chunk.

Rochester, Buffalo, and principal intermediate stations.

9.59 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.

1.47 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton, Manch. Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.

4.48 p. m. daily (except Sunday) for Wilkesbarre and Scranton. Express

8.07 p. m. daily for Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem and Manch. Chunk. Parlor Car via D. & H. R. R. to Scranton and Carbondale.

6.42 p. m. daily except Sunday for Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.

6.21 p. m. daily (except Sunday) for Rochester.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office open for the delivery of mail:

On Saturdays some half hour later.

Arrive—7.00, 8.40, 11.29 a. m., 2.30, 5.30 p. m.

Close—7.20, 9.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00, 6.00 p. m.

BLAIRSTOWN.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 5.30 p. m.

Close—9.00 a. m., 3.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND MILLSTONE.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 5.30 p. m.

Close—9.00 a. m., 3.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West or Southbound.

Close 12.30 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.30, 5.30 p. m.

Close—7.20, 9.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00, 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.00, 8.40, 11.29 a. m., 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—7.20, 9.00 a. m., 1.00, 3.00 and 7.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South closes at 7.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 7.45 p. m.

WASHINGTON, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel.)

Arrive—1.30 p. m. Close—8.05 a. m.

Washington, Warrenville and Gallia close 5.25 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.

Mail closes at 6 15 p. m.

H. H. BIRD, P. M.

OLD GLORY CELEBRATES.

State Officers of Daughters of Liberty Attend Affair.

Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, celebrated its eleventh anniversary Saturday night. There were present among others State Councilor Mrs. Frances Pullen, of Hightstown, State Vice-Councilor Mrs. Margaret Witt, of Jersey City, and delegations from Unity Council, of New Brunswick, and Liberty Council, of Dunellen. During the evening there was class initiation, four new members receiving degrees and one proposition was received. There was also presented to State Councilor Mrs. Pullen a cut-glass berry set, the presentation speech was made by F. L. Soper, Jr. After the business refreshments were served.

The newly-elected officers are as follows:

Councilor, Miss Marion Wakefield; vice councilor, William Latourette; associate councilor, Miss Gertrude Rittenhouse; associate vice councilor, Miss Nettie Rose; guide, Mrs. Lizzie GaNun; recording secretary, Mrs. Lottie A. Walker; financial secretary, Mrs. Anna Wakefield; treasurer, Mrs. Eva L. Moore; inside guard, F. L. Soper, Jr.; outside guard, Elmer GaNun; trustee, Theodore VanPelt.

LAST OF SANTA'S VISITS

Several Sunday-Schools Hold Christmas Exercises Last Night.

LIVELY PROGRAMMES

Carols, Recitations and in Some Instances, Professional Performers, Entertain the Children.

Several more Sunday-schools held Christmas exercises Friday. The programmes were rendered before audiences large. It was Santa Claus' last appearance in church circles here for 1906.

Hope Chapel.

The Christmas exercises at Hope chapel consisted of the presentation of a drama entitled "Christmas Folk and the Children," depicting the Christmas song and as it occurred in Northern Germany. The leading characters were as follows: "Mother," Miss Edna Bedell; "King Christmas," David Bowden; "Babouska," Miss Gladys Hunter; "Santa Claus," James Penny; "The Waits," Tom Muir; "the Knight Rupert," Ralph Eckert; the "Lord of Misrule," Benjamin Evans; a group of mummers, Walter Firstbrook, Allen Snyder, James Penny and George Mead; children, Alice Rimmer, Josie Snyder, Katharine Gray, Margaret Overland, Clara Weber and David Hendry.

As the mother sits by the fireplace on Christmas eve, King Christmas appears, followed by a host of his noisy mummers. The mummers are soon banished, except the minstrel "waits," who sings his Christmas carols. Presently the old woman Babouska enters, being errands of mercy in the service of the Christ child, and the Knight Rupert follows on a similar mission. Suddenly the jolly Santa Claus appears with pack full of toys for the children, and the children rush in at the sound of jingling bells. "Toys for good children and a rod for the bad," says Old Santa, and each one receives the toys.

The whole play was carried through with a spirit and skill that delighted the audience. Particularly good in their parts were Mr. Bowden, Elsie Rimmer, James Penny and Miss Eckert. The entertainment was followed by the usual distribution of candy and oranges to members of the school.

The children of the primary department received additional gifts, a doll for each girl and a book for each boy.

The committee in charge comprised I. W. Travell, chairman; G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Simons, Miss Elsie Rimmer, Miss Edna Eckert, Miss Mary Mozimer, Miss Elizabeth Storah, Miss Bertha Hodges, Miss Eunice Eckert, Miss Lillian Duckworth, Benjamin Evans, Tom Muir and Donald Mortimer.

The participants in the cantata were drilled by Mrs. Stuart Simons and its successful presentation was due to her tireless energy and artistic arranging.

Grace M. E.

The feature of the exercises at Grace M. E. church was a cantata entitled, "The Widow Malone's Christmas," an elaborate affair of its kind in three scenes. It was presented by members of the Sunday-school and was witnessed by an audience that filled the main room to its capacity.

The characters were taken as follows: "Santa Claus," George Parsons. "Jack Frost" Carl Steiner; "Widow Mullin," Reba Rodin; "Mrs. Applebee," Florence Smalley; "Mullin children," Rowland Odell, Clara Bodenheimer, Edna Mallis, Gladys Brokaw, Samuel and Clarence Bodine and Edna Beeching. Miss Edith Major acted as accompanist. One of the best things in the cantata was a song by Edna Mallis, a child of but four years. She has a very sweet voice and about three times the volume ordinarily possessed by a child of her age, and what is best, she knows how to use it.

The school sang the usual Christmas carols and at the close of the exercises, the customary candy, oranges and gifts were distributed. Miss Mary Steiner arranged the programme and drilled the cantata participants, while Superintendent W. J. Conroy had charge during the evening.

Faith Chapel.

The Sunday-school members of Faith chapel enjoyed their Christmas festivities Friday, the chapel being crowded to the doors with the children, their parents and friends. The decorations were elaborate, including an old-fashioned chimney and fire-place through which Santa Claus made his appearance.

Under the direction of Frank Stewart, assistant superintendent, who was chairman of the committee, an excellent programme was provided. The features were the piano solos by Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley and the recitations by Miss Justine Roberts. Both captivated the audience from the first. Mrs. Smalley's selections were really enjoyed, while Miss Roberts held the attention of all by her work, which included many child impersonations. They opened the programme with a piano duet and interspersed it with several selections. Then followed the singing of carols by the school, address of welcome by David Myers, violin selections by Clarence Lawrence, accompanied by Miss Viebrock; a song by Emily Conger, dialogue, Edna Stewart and Roy Haffner; remarks by Kenneth Roblee, cornet solos by Whitney Frazee, accompanied by Mrs. Smalley; recitations, Bessie Conger and Helen Myers and the singing of other carols.

Santa Claus appeared in the person of U. Bo Crane and made lots of fun as he distributed toys, dolls, oranges, candy, stationery and books to the children. There were also some special gifts. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Munson received a gold watch from the members of the chapel; Frank Stewart was presented with a gold watch fob, L. W. Randolph, superintendent, and W. A. Conger, organist, each a quilt made by the Ladies' Aid Society; Isaac Alexander, sexton, an umbrella and a candy cane; Mrs. J. W. Musson a large stocking filled with many useful things, U. B. Crane a chair from his Bible class and Percy Cannon a talking doll. The presentations were made by Superintendent L. W. Randolph and all the recipients were appreciative.

Congregational Church.

The young people of the Congregational church and their attendant friends were entertained by professional as well as amateur talent at the Christmas tree exercises Friday. Besides carols, an address by J. M. Whiton, and a series of tableaux, a vaudeville sleight-of-hand team furnished a lot of fun for the small folks. They made the children part of the entertainment.

The tableauxs were the last feature of the entertainment. Miss Catherine Phillips, as a fairy godmother, called familiar characters of fairyland from a chimney composed largely of boxes of candy. Emma VanAlstine, Florence Nielsen, Dorothy Barrett and Netta Steiner took part in the tableaux. Harold Nomer, as Santa Claus, distributed sections of the chimney, assisted by the fairybook characters.

TRINITY SUNDAY-SCHOOL GRADUATING EXERCISES

LARGE NUMBER OF PUPILS ADVANCED ACCORDING TO CUSTOM.

The annual graduation exercises in Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, yesterday, was a source of great pleasure to the large number of children who were graduated, as well as the older members of the school. It was a disappointment to all that the pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Dubbink, was not present, but he was remembered in the prayers of the school. It was the first graduation he had missed.

Sperintendent F. E. Smith was in charge of the exercises, assisted by Horace J. Martin, Sr. Mr. Smith announced the number of words the children who were promoted, as did also Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, who occupied the pulpit at the church morning and evening.

During the graduation exercises a majority of the children had some part. There were recitations by children in the Junior, Primary and Beginners' departments; also singing by the different departments. Mrs. L. R. Schofield is superintendent of the Junior department; Mrs. J. M. Ther superintendent of the Primary department. The graduates from the Junior department to the main school are as follows:

Edson Woodhull, Arthur Gaskill, Thomas Lindsay, Charles Kelderling, Clarence VanSickle, Helen Woolley, Elsie Tier, Madaline Strader, Margaret VanBeverter, Helen Roberts, Adelaide Fritz, Rosamond Rogers, Florence Hedges, Irma Conklin, Lucile Lafetra, Emma Edmund, Hazel Patrick, Irene Samuel, Edna Olliver.

These are the graduates from the primary department to the junior department:

Ralph Vroom, Philip Vroom, Benjamin Cooley, Arthur Giles, Walter Fisher, Charles Lindsay, William Dufficy, Joseph Kirch, William VanNest, Edson Day, George Hummell, Ernest Higgins, William Tier, Raymond Roth, Harold Hand, Joseph Mellick, Harry Irvin, Edna Edmunds, Mildred Priemer, Irma Codington, Elsie Debele, Anna Lee, Anna Veil, Caroline Porter, Elsie Bodine, Erma Lindsay, Letha Wherry, Hilda Bennett.

The graduates from the Beginners' to the Primary department follow:

Arthur Seader, Margaret Smith, Elsie Kurzhals, Benjamin DeNise, Alfred DeNise, Lucy Dress, Warren Kellogg, Leroy Mowen, Walter Conrad, Alfe Ames, Ethel McAfee, George Gary, Floyd Emmons, Margaret Chasline, George Wieda, Grace Sowden, Carrie Hafner, Fritz Hummell.

The present revival of "The Blackthorn" is meeting with the greatest success this season. The play, one of the best of the Irish comedies, has been brought up to date and a number of new situations and sensations introduced. Joseph J. Sullivan, who appears in his old role of "Denny Dolan," introduces a number of new songs he has specially composed for this production. "The Blackthorn" comes to the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night.

—James Curen, of West End avenue, has part of the contract for remodelling the Runyon building at Dunellen and he will open the new bank which is to begin business this month.

FESTIVALS OF CHRISTMAS

Celebrated in Majority of Local Protestant Churches Last Night.

GIFTS DISTRIBUTED

Carols, Recitations and Addresses Features of the Exercises—Trees Add to Enjoyment.

Christmas festivals, most of them more or less elaborate and all enjoyable, were entertained in the majority of the Protestant churches last night. Recitations, carols and addresses were the features. In some a lighted tree added to the brilliancy of the festivities.

First M. E.

The little folks of the First M. E. church Sunday-school had a jolly good time at their Christmas entertainment Thursday afternoon. The affair was under the direction of a committee comprised of Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, Mrs. Maurice McGrath, Miss Mattie Humble and Frank Miller, assisted by the teachers of the school.

The programme consisted of games, recitations and songs while H. W. Rankin, of Sandford avenue, entertained the children with sleight-of-hand and magic. There was a shower of candy. Emma VanAlstine, Florence Nielsen, Dorothy Barrett and Netta Steiner took part in the tableaux. Harold Nomer, as Santa Claus, distributed sections of the chimney, assisted by the fairybook characters.

First Baptist.

"Johnnie Doubter," a Christmas cantata, was given by members of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, Thursday, as the holiday entertainment, under the direction of Miss William Holmes, who drilled them in the several parts. The lecture room of the church was filled to overflowing with children and friends of the church.

"Johnnie Doubter," in the person of Lawrence French, did not believe in Santa Claus and all the various other characters were employed to convince him of the error of his way. There were many of the Mother Goose characters in the cantata and each one had an appropriate song or recitation, Miss Carro Bird, Uncle Sam, Ernest Conover; Mother Hubbard, Miss Henrietta Winn; Old Woman in the Shoe, Miss Violet Van Winkle; Miss Nobody, Miss Elizabeth Winn; Bo-Peep, Miss Beulah Van Winkle; Little Miss Muffet, Dorothy Hall; Red Riding Hood, Miriam Hall; fairy, Emeline Manning; Jack, Harold Marsh; Jill, Miss Elsie Moore; Joe Shiher, Herbert Hillman; Boy Blue, Elmer French; John Bull, Randolph Chandler; Georgie Porgie, Miss Lucy Douglass; Hazel and Belle Godown; Carrie Demler, Ruth Moore, Alice Drake, Edna White and Alice Chandler; Mr. Millionaire, Guyon Fountain.

After the entertainment there was the usual distribution of candy to the members of the school. Howard Case presided at the piano during the rendition of the cantata.

The primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school enjoyed their Christmas festival last Monday afternoon, when an interesting programme was presented under the direction of Mrs. J. A. Powlison, superintendent, assisted by the other teachers in the department. The programme opened with a carol, "Two Little Eyes," the singing of Luther's Cradle Hymn, and a carol, "I Wonder," by the department. It was reported that the names of two new babies have been added to the cradle roll.

Then followed a semi-chorus, "The Bethlehem Baby," by Mildred Wise, Dorothy Lee, Erma Gordon, Dobbins, Anna Sherwin and Ruth Johnson. A feature was a piano solo by Beth Martin. The children then spent some time playing various games, after which they sang "Christ Was Once a Little Baby." There was the distribution of gifts, every child being remembered.

Trinity Church.

The infants, the Beginners and the tots of the Cradle Roll of the Trinity church Sunday-school had a jolly good time at their Christmas entertainment Thursday afternoon. The affair was under the direction of a committee comprised of Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, Mrs. Maurice McGrath, Miss Mattie Humble and Frank Miller, assisted by the teachers of the school.

The programme consisted of games, recitations and songs while H. W. Rankin, of Sandford avenue, entertained the children with sleight-of-hand and magic. There was a shower of candy. Emma VanAlstine, Florence Nielsen, Dorothy Barrett and Netta Steiner took part in the tableaux. Harold Nomer, as Santa Claus, distributed sections of the chimney, assisted by the fairybook characters.

Grace P. E. Church.

The main school pupils of Grace P. E. church had their annual Christmas entertainment Thursday from 5 o'clock until 8. There was no set programme. Under the guidance of the teachers, the children romped and played games, ate refreshments, received a book and a box of candy, and romped and played again. There was a big tree on the platform of the parish house lecture room, from where the gifts were given out. As is customary at Grace, the children gave, instead of receiving, things of value. They made an offering for the diocesan poor two weeks ago, which went to the episcopal headquarters at Trenton.

All the teachers assisted Supt. Howard Fleming and Assistant Superintendent J. Paul Nolting in making the party a pleasant affair.

Crescent Avenue.

The entertainment for the members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Sunday-school was held Thursday afternoon and comprised a fine series of moving pictures. There were many new subjects presented and they were greatly enjoyed by the young people. William D. Murray was in charge of the gathering and he was assisted by teachers from the Primary department, Miss Halloway, Miss Dewey, Miss Brown, Miss Vandeventer and Miss Harmon.

Park Avenue Baptist.

Owing to various circumstances it was impossible for the Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church to arrange its usual form of entertainment consisting of home talent. Instead professional talent from New York City was secured, a programme of instrumental music, sleight-of-hand and humorous recitations. Afterward there was distribution of gifts. George E. Hall, superintendent of the school, was in charge of the affair.

During the evening there was a surprise in the nature of a presentation of a handsome Bible to Rev. A. E. Finn by the members of his class of young men. The presentation was made by Harry C. Runyon on behalf of the class.

Seventh-Day Baptist.

The Sabbath-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church enjoyed an excellent Christmas programme at the church, Thursday, and the attendance was large. Two Christmas trees, one on either side of the platform, were well filled with ornaments and brilliantly illuminated with small incandescent lights.

The programme opened with an organ and piano selection, by Miss Jessie Utter and Miss Mabel Maxson. The school sang "Joy to the World," which was followed with a reading: "The German Legend of Christians," by Miss Nellie Williams; a recitation, "The Fir Tree," by Miss Celia Cottrell; a song, "The Christmas Spirit," by school; a dialogue, "What the Christmas Tree Means," Miss Helen Rogers, fairy; the Misses Hannah Shaw, Helen Shaw, Dorothy Hubbard, Mary Hunting, Celia and Beatrice Cottrell, Katherine Shaw and Laura Stillman. Miss Beatrice Whitford was given by eight girls from the primary department, followed by recitations, "The Pine Tree Bough," by Miss Dorothy Hubbard; "When Addy Lights the Tree," by Miss Hannah Shaw, and song, "What Say the Bells," by the school. A feature was an original Christmas story by the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw. The story was largely the personal experience of Mr. Shaw when he lived in the western frontier. The school then sang, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," after which the gifts were distributed to the school, and the programme closed with a selection on the piano and organ by Miss Utter and Miss Maxson.

The entertainment committee consisted of J. B. Cottrell, chairman; Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Mary Ross, Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis and C. L. Ford. The refreshment committee consisted of Mrs. J. H. Hubbard, chairman; Mrs. Asa F. Randolph and Miss Mildred Greene.

Holy Cross P. E. Church.

Carols led by the full church choir, were the features of the Holy Cross Sunday-school Christmas tree gathering Thursday. The observance was held in the church. A big Christmas tree, strung with colored electric lights, was in front of the altar.

As is customary at Holy Cross church, the children brought gifts for the poor, instead of receiving them. The offering, three basketful of substantials, will go to the Children's Home. Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, was too ill to come out, and J. B. Calder took his place in speaking. H. Raymond Lodor was in charge of the music.

Bethel Chapel.

The Bethel chapel Sunday-school held its Christmas festival Thursday at the chapel and it was enjoyed by a large number of persons. The entertainment which was furnished by the young people of the school was in charge of Miss Helen Lovell, teacher of the boys' primary class and superintendent of the Boys' Club of the chapel. A. W. Duxbury, superintendent of the Sunday-school, acted as master of ceremonies and Mrs. Harry Lovell presided at the piano. The programme consisted of a number of recitations, drills and choruses by the girls and a march by the Boys' Club.

After the exercises Santa Claus, impersonated by Richard Lovell, distributed from a handsomely trimmed tree numerous Christmas presents to the little folks. A box of candy was also given to each member of the school, while all who were present were served with refreshments of cream and cake.

Warren Chapel.

Moving pictures formed both the afternoon and evening entertainments at Warren chapel. The children assembled in the afternoon in charge of Miss Swain and Miss Laura Lovell and after enjoying the wonderful moving views exhibited were treated to oranges and candy. The boys received toys and the girls books. At night another series of motion pictures was given before the older members of the chapel and afterward ice cream and cake was served. In the absence of Mrs. Snyder, chairman of the entertainment committee, of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Geo. Demarest presided. Her assistants were Mrs. Gibson Smith, Mrs. F. G. Berger, Mrs. Duff Shay, Mrs. William Bacon, Mrs. Elmer Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Wheeler and Mrs. John Higgins. William Demarest had charge of the ice cream.

* * * * Of all the newspapers in New York, the one which has approached nearest to the ideal of an "American newspaper should be in straightforwardness and tone, THE NEW YORK TIMES stands first."

—Harper's Weekly.

The New York Times

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

Gives more space to news than any other New York newspaper. It gives impartial news free from bias. It goes into homes that bar other newspapers.

The London Times' Cable News appears in this country exclusively in THE NEW YORK TIMES. No other American newspaper excels THE NEW YORK TIMES in the presentation of Domestic or Foreign News.

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Is Now Appearing Every Sunday IMPROVED AND ENLARGED

with an illuminated PICTORIAL SECTION OF EIGHT FULL-SIZE PAGES, embracing pictures of prominent people in society and public life, also scenes and incidents of the important events of the day.

The Magazine Section accompanying the SUNDAY TIMES presents a variety of interesting illustrated features and a unique selection of the best stories about men and women of prominence.

THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS

which accompanies the Saturday Edition, is the recognized authority to which the public looks for the first news of books.

THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL QUOTATION REVIEW

gives a weekly review of current prices of stocks and bonds; also the dealings in securities, including high and low prices—comprising a compact and convenient reference publication for investors and others interested in financial matters.

ORDER THROUGH YOUR LOCAL NEWSDEALER, or mailed direct from office, as per following rates:

Subscription Terms:

	By Mail.
One Year. Sundays included	$8.50
Six Months, Sundays included	4.25
Three Mon., Sundays included	2.25
One Month, Sundays included	.75
Daily, without Sunday	.17
Daily, without Sunday, per year	6.00
Daily, without Sunday, 6 mos.	3.00
Daily, without Sunday, 3 mos.	1.50
Daily, without Sunday, 1 month	.50
Daily, without Sunday, 1 week	.12
The New York Times Weekly	1.00
Financial Quotation Review	1.00
Saturday, with Section Devoted to Review of Books, per year	1.00
Sunday, with Pictorial Section per year	2.50

Postage to foreign countries for Daily and Sunday editions, add $1.05 per month.

Newsdealers who are not receiving THE NEW YORK TIMES—Daily and Sunday editions—should order a regular supply at once. Write for terms. Address Circulation Manager.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK.

NEW STATE DIVORCE LAW WILL SOON BE READY.

New Jersey is to have a new and stringent divorce law to make more difficult the breaking of the matrimonial bonds and to render less easy the temporary location here of disgruntled married persons from other States who come merely for the purpose of filing and securing releases from their marital entanglements.

The next Legislature will be asked to pass such a law to supplant the State's present divorce legislation and the legislature has undoubtedly enact the law desired. Governor Stokes is behind the movement, and three members of the National Divorce Congress are now preparing the bill. The divorce commissioners are United States Judge William M. Lanning and the Rev. Dr. Henry Collin Minton, a former moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, both of Trenton, and Vice-Chancellor John R. Emery, of Newark.

Vice-Chancellor Emery is now drawing the measure, and when it is completed another conference will be held previous to the introduction of the bill in the Legislature.

Judge Lanning and Dr. Minton are Presbyterians of the old school, who are much opposed to the general principal of divorce.

The New Jersey bill will permit divorce only for infidelity, desertion or cruelty. Provision will be made to prevent the abuse of the divorce laws by residents of other States who acquire legal residence here merely for the purpose of bringing suit. The measure will also include a number of the suggestions of the Divorce Congress.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night will be a big production of Augustus E. Erlanger's production of George M. Cohan's new comic play, "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." The entertainment is a novelty and quite original from the fact that it is not a performance of a distinctive character, except in its own field, as the author has very cleverly interwoven into it comedy, drama, melodrama, musical comedy and farce. Fay Templeton will play the role of "Plain Mary," a housemaid. The opposite character to that acted by Miss Templeton is "Kid Burns," a young man who has become very worldly wise through long experience on Broadway, and who expresses a most practical philosophy in piquant slang. This character, is acted by Victor Moore. To prove a splendid foil for Miss Templeton's clever acting.

DIED.

ROGERS—On Tuesday, December 25, 1906, Eunice Van Buren, daughter of William Henry and Sara Heuston Rogers, aged two years.

VARIAN—On Wednesday, December 26, 1906, Sarah Elizabeth, widow of Jacob S. Varian.

SAYRES—At Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 26, 1906, John H. Sayres, (Saddler) aged about 74 years, a native of Toronto, Canada.

ROSS—On Monday, December 31, 1906, Edward A., son of John H. and Belle W. Ross, aged 25 years, 3 months and 2 days.

SCHORB—In this city, December 31, 1906, John M. Schorb, in his eighty-second year.

SMITH—At Somerset Hospital, Somerville, N. J., December 31, 1906, Horace S. Smith, aged 60 years.

COARD—At Philadelphia, on Wednesday, December 26, 1906, John J. K. Coard.

SAYERS—At Plainfield, N. J., December 26, 1906, John H. Sayers, aged 72 years.

COCKS—On Monday, December 24, 1906, Alfred, beloved husband of Grace M. Cocks (nee Rowan).

HUNTER—In this city, on Tuesday, December 25, 1906, C. Harold Hunter, in his fourteenth year.

Funeral services from the resi-

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnaces—Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. L [illegible]

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

a new open ready for business.

All the latest appointments in the tonsoria

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets

Tinners, Plumbers and Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers prices. Bring your grate measurements to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning,
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us in their home locality. Permanent position. Liberal inducements to the right parties. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. H. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public, Office
Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD."

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with your name and address and 10c. for sample copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York City

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20, and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent. No investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago.

c 7 19 18

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and Elmer E. Nelson, Defendants.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein The Board of Trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund is complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant, on or before the fifth day of February next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and Margaret Nelson and you the said Ida A. Nelson, Adelia C. Nelson and William Nelson to the said complainant, dated July 27, 1906, on lands in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, and that the names of all the defendants are as follows: Edward Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson, William Nelson, Sarah V. Nelson, Joseph Nelson and Margaret Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and Adelia C. Nelson, Ida A. Nelson and William Nelson are made party defendants, because you are some of the owners of the mortgaged premises.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM M. STILLMAN,
Solicitor for Complainant.
32 West Front Street,
Plainfield, New Jersey.
Dated December 4, 1906. 12 12 4

INVESTIGATING TWO LOCAL BENEFIT SOCIETIES

Attention of Authorities Directed to Washington Assurance and Abe Lincoln Societies.

ONE-MAN CONCERNS?

David T. Van Boskerck Most Conspicious in One and Lewis Van Nest in the Other.

Because of complaints regarding the business methods of the Abe Lincoln Assurance Society and the Washington Assurance Society, both of which, it is alleged, do their principal business in Plainfield and are really run by Plainfielders, the Department of Banking and Insurance has been investigating the affairs of the two institutions.

The result is that the department finds itself confronted with a knotty problem arising out of the construction of the pecuniary profit act under which both associations were chartered in the office of the Secretary of State. This act provides for the incorporation of societies or organizations not formed for the purpose of profit, and permits them to pay death and sick benefits, with certain restrictions, which do not bring them under the jurisdiction of the banking and insurance department.

The Lincoln Society was incorporated in July 1904, its registered office being at 222 Market street, Newark. The trustees named for the first year were Lewis Van Nest and Jacob S. Jones, both of this city; William Van Nest, Harry D. Kent and Henry B. Anderman, all of Newark.

The charter provides that the "sole and exclusive objects are the relief and support of such members and such other persons as shall by reason of sickness, casualty or old age, or other cause, be rendered incapable of attending to their usual occupation or calling; to promote the decent interment of deceased members or widows of deceased members, and to enter into any contract with the members of said corporation, to pay death benefits, according to the by-laws and constitution of said society, to the husband, wife, father, mother, son, daughter, sister or legal representative of such members."

The evidence offered the banking department, by affidavit and otherwise indicated that only one meeting was held, and that no regular organization was effected.

In brief, it is the sworn testimony of several of the original incorporators. The investigation seemed to disclose that the affairs of the society have been run solely in the interest of Lewis Van Nest, of Plainfield, and Lawyer Jones in his professional interest. He seems to have collected all the money, kept the books of the society, and by means of commissions and other charges to have received the personal benefit from a considerable portion of the funds collected.

Although the banking department had not clearly established its own jurisdiction in the case, it is understood to be dissatisfied with the methods pursued, inclining to the belief that if the society has not physically exceeded the powers in its charter, its affairs are in such condition that its continuance will jeopardize the interest of the public. Further action, however, has been postponed pending advice from the attorney-general.

Mr. VanBoskerck was not at home when a reporter called at his house in West Second street today, but his wife said he was out of town and would be back this evening. In front of his home is a sign setting forth that the place is a branch office of the Washington Assurance Society.

The Washington Society at first declined to submit to an examination upon the ground that the department was without jurisdiction. President David Van Boskerck, in response to a request from the commissioner of banking, was at Trenton this morning and had a long conference with the department. It is understood that his statement of the methods and status of the company was quite satisfactory in itself, although it did not entirely agree with the report received by the department. The agent of the conference was that Mr. Van Boskerck consented to an investigation by the department, and it is likely that this will begin by Mr. Corwin tomorrow. Pending the results of the inquiry, the department is unwilling to make any statement, declaring that to do so might work an injustice and frighten the members of the society unnecessarily.

The Abe Lincoln Society has an office in Watchung avenue but Mr. VanNest lives at No. 146 Duer street. His wife told the reporter that Mr. VanNest is in Rahway and will not be back until night. A large sign in front of the house bearing the picture of Lincoln advertises the society. It contains Mr. VanNest's name. There are no large numbers of colored men in Plainfield insured in this society.

One of the complaints against the Washington Society was that it has been issuing straight life insurance policies of a face valued of $1,000. The society claims that the form of these policies are such that they do not conflict with the insurance law.

This has been one of the problems with which the department has been confronted in the past. The distinction between what may be done in the way of insurance by a fraternal organization and a regularly incorporated insurance company is not clearly defined and consequently the department frequently has trouble in establishing its right to take a hand in its affairs.

As far as can be learned, neither of the two societies has ever adopted any by-laws, and each seems to be in the hands of one man.

The Washington Society was formed in August, 1899. Its registered office is at 188 Market street, Newark. The trustees for the first year were Anthony T. Bowman, Thomas E. Warman, Hiram E. Johnston, George Ohl and Thomas J. Regan.

SOMERSET'S GRAND JURY FINDS FOUR INDICTMENTS

TWENTY CASES IN ALL INVESTIGATED BY THE DECEMBER BODY.

John F. Reger, who has had a rather strenuous time of it since he was appointed Prosecutor of Somerset county, will have only four indictments to try as a result of the work of the December grand jury, which finished its labors Thursday at noon in Somerville. Twenty cases were investigated.

The recent convictions obtained in the Criminal courts at Somerville seem to have had a deterrent effect upon the criminal propensities of the lower classes of citizens of Somerset.

Judge Lloyd, of Camden, who is to try the Supreme and Circuit cases at Somerville, has sent word both to Judge Schenck and Justice Garrigon that he will not be able to take up the cases ready for trial until Tuesday, January 29.

The following licenses were granted by Judge Schenck: Hotels—Richard A. Boyce, North Plainfield; Richard A. Crawford, Franklin Park; Joseph A. Blair, North Plainfield; John W. Hoffman, Basking Ridge; Louis Kuhn, Somerville; J. Ross Lake, Somerville; William Zimmerman, South Bound Brook; William Wheeler, Bernardsville. Saloon—James A. McCloskey, Millstone Hill.

The application of Charles Kissmak to keep a hotel at Raritan was laid over for a week.

PURSE FOR PASTOR.

Feature of the Giving at Marconnier Chapel's Biggest Xmas Party.

Marconnier chapel, Oak Tree, held its Christmas tree exercises for the Sunday-school children last night. The attendance was large, and the pleasing programme was much enjoyed. The chapel was prettily decorated.

The entertainment included numbers by Rankin, the magician, carol singing by the school and recitations. Santa Claus himself attended, and distributed gifts to all the children. The pastor, Rev. J. T. Lansdale, and the organist, Miss Mary Marrison, were not forgotten when Santa unloaded his pack. There was a purse of $10 for Mr. Lansdale and one of $5 for Miss Morrison.

It was the largest and most successful Christmas tree celebration in the history of the chapel. Horace J. Rankin, of this city, drilled the children in their singing, and led them last night.

FORGAVE HIS ENEMY.

Joe Shockok Melted Suddenly and Shook Hands In Court.

Mike Sapelo, a Pole, was arraigned in the city court Friday morning, charged by Joseph Schockok, a fellow-countryman, who charged the prisoner with having assaulted him with a bottle. Through interpreters, Judge Runyon gleaned the fact that the men quarrelled after an afternoon of cards and drinking at a Jackson avenue house. Joe said rude things about Mrs. Sapelo and Mike struck a beer bottle. It struck him on the head.

Judge Runyon ordered the men to shake hands and patch up the quarrel. Mike was willing, and even anxious, but Joe hung back. He looked bitterly at his left arm, which he claimed was partly paralyzed as a result of the bottle throwing. The court despairing of an amicable adjustment, closed the case and dismissed the men, when Joe suddenly melted and extended his hand. The court attendants applauded.

We'd Rather See Than Be One.

"Oh, the next act is in the somersault act," said the young lady to her escort in the circus.

"Oh, well, if you'll excuse me, I'll go out for a breath of air while that act is on," replied the man.

"Why, they say it's great!"

"Oh, well, I've seen so much of that sort of thing. I own an automobile, you know!"—Yonkers Statesman.

BENEFIT SOCIETIES CONVENTION THAT OMITS RESOLUTIONS

ANNUAL STATE CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS IN FEBRUARY

The annual State Conference of Charities and Corrections will be held in Paterson Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, February 10, 11 and 12. Many Paterson pulpits will be occupied Sunday morning by members of the conference. A mass meeting will be held Sunday afternoon, the details of which will be announced later. Other meetings will be as follows:

Monday morning, Feb. 11—On Defectives. Rev. George B. Wight, chairman.

Monday afternoon—On Immigration. Prof. H. A. Garfield, chairman.

Monday evening—On Children. Mrs. E. E. Williamson, chairman.

Tuesday morning—On Treatment of Criminals. Rev. F. A. Foy, chairman.

Tuesday afternoon—On Public Health. Dr. Wm. H. Murray, chairman.

This body has no constitution, no charter, no tangible assets, and no commercial rating. It doesn't adopt resolutions, has no platform, and follows no one to commit it to any action or to express an opinion in its name. It collects and distributes facts, records, experiences, presents ideas, establishes standards, tabulates results, indicates the "next step," and applies the test of values in all social welfare work.

Its purpose is to bring together the hundreds of men and women who are dealing at first hand with the problems of human affliction and distress, so that they may learn how to do their work, instead of working blindly alone. It shows the points of contact and the need of co-operation between private benevolent agencies and public relief officers, and their inter-relation with health officers, truant officers, probation officers, tenement-house inspectors, factory inspectors, doctors, ministers, teachers, and the whole army of people who are trying to prevent evils as well as to remedy them. It traces the final causes of each evil, encourages good work and criticises faulty methods. It stands for efficiency and consecration in dealing with humanity. It emphasizes the value of training in social service, and the necessity of training men, women and children as individuals instead of in the mass.

Anyone can be a member of the conference by signing the attendance roll. There is no membership fee. The proceedings are published by the State Board next fall by the secretary of the conference to all who register. The local committee finances the meeting and the other incidental expenses are met by voluntary contributions. The final program will be ready early in January and will contain particulars as to entertainment and a synopsis of the discussions. Further information will be given by the secretary, Mrs. F. C. Jacobson, 969 Broad street, Newark.

THE MISSES MCCUTCHEON GIVE A BABY PARTY.

Lots of Fun at the Affair: Prizes Won by Mr. McGee and Miss Hooley.

The Misses McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, entertained a company of over fifty young people at a "baby party" at their home, Wednesday. It was a unique affair, all of the grown-ups appearing in the dress of juvenile folks. There was a Buster Brown, Mary Jane, Red Riding Hood, Mary and her lamb, Teddy and the bear, sailor boys, milk-maid and many other characters familiar to children as well as older folks.

Donald McGee, who received the prize for the most original dressed man, appeared as a small child, dressed in baby clothes with a protusion of pink nursing bottle. He took the part exceedingly well, as did also Miss Rae Hooley, who was awarded the prize as the most original dressed woman. Her dress was that of the period of 1860 and was complete in every detail.

Other features during the evening were the playing of games, a peanut hunt, a dance and a Christmas tree. George S. Clay appeared in the guise of Santa Claus, with a pack on his back, and he was generous in his distribution of gifts. Every one received a present as a reminder of the happy occasion. Mr. Clay made a jolly good Santa and made lots of fun for the company. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Buying a Gift Book.

The principal of choice should in general follow the taste or need of the friend for whom you are selecting the book; it is also well now and then to open a new channel of interest by giving a volume outside of your friend's habitual line. We are often thankful to a friend who has drawn us out of our mental sheep tracks. There are a few writers that stand as permanent figures in the modern literary world—writers who have given out seminal ideas that seed and beautify the field of thought. Chief among these men are Shakespeare, Carlyle, Ruskin, Emerson and Victor Hugo. Until a library possesses at least the best writings of these five men it is sadly deficient. You are doing kingly service when you make these men known to any thoughtful mind.—Edwin Markham in Success.

TORN BY HIS OWN DOG

William Holland Badly Bitten By an Enraged Bull Terrier.

RESCUED BY ARMED SON

Aroused Dog Desisted from Attack Only After Load of Buckshot Had Been Poured Into Its Body.

Enraged over his interference in a fight with another dog, a big bull terrion Village farmer, Thursday, and the noise attracted Holland. The dogs were fighting fiercely, and he hurried to separate them to prevent a fatal ending to the battle. Commands and slaps had no effect on the struggling animals, and Holland armed himself with a pitchfork in the farmyard

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Books of Travel and History Recently Added to the Public Library.

Bradley, A. G.—Sketches from old Virginia.

"A series of sketches relating to the period covered by fifty years or so following the late war. The picturesque, humorous and pathetic side of life in the Old Dominion have found expression in the stories here collected."

Browning, Oscar.—Guelphs and Ghibellines: a short history of mediaeval Italy, 1250-1409.

"A very able book."—Westminster gazette.

"A vivid picture of mediaeval Italy." Standard.

Compton, Herbert.—Indian life in town and country. (Our Asiatic neighbors.)

Dawson, Samuel Edward.—St. Lawrence basin and its borderlands.

"Mr. Dawson is not only a painstaking chronicler, but a writer with a true gift of style. In spite of the mass of responsible detail, the interest never flags. . . His style is always clear and picturesque, and the wealth of scientific detail is never allowed to obscure the narrative. Illustrated throughout with excellent maps."—Spectator.

Dickinson, G. Lowes.—Letters from a Chinese official.

"This little book presents an estimate of the Anglo-Saxon from the point of view of a Chinaman, and is calculated to make the American reader wonder whether we have really reached the high social and political organization that we pride ourselves upon having attained." Publisher's notice.

Eggleston, Edward.—New century history of the United States.

"The work of the brother, the final editing of this book being done by the author's brother, Mrs. George Cary Eggleston, who is also well known for his literary work."

Foreman, John.—Philippine Islands. Ed. 3, rev. & enl.

"In addition to presenting a revised, comprehensive, cyclopedic general history of the Philippine Islands, this third edition of Mr. Foreman's work devotes several chapters to an account of our administration there since July 4, 1898, and the later events, civil and military, are carefully and lucidly narrated." New York Times.

Hopkins, Edward Washburn.—Within the purdah.

Huberich, Homer B.—Passing of Korea.

"It is an important and absorbing book covering the whole history of Korea from the earliest times, with an exhaustive account of the manners, customs and personality of the country."

Humphrey, Seth K.—The Indian dispossessed.

"Describes the treatment by the U. S. Government during the last three decades of the Reservation, or peaceful Indian. The book consists principally of extracts from the reports of Indian agents, and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs connected by a thread of narrative." Dial, Jan. 1, '06.

Menpes, Mortimer.—World's children; colored illustrations, with text by Dorothy Menpes.

"One of the most exquisitely illustrated books we can recall. There are one hundred illustrations of typical children of every well-known country of the world."

Moore, John Bassett.—American diplomacy.

"This book is stimulating to one's patriotic ardor; it presents a fine record and it is certainly clearly set forth in sound and straightforward English. It would appear not unreasonable to suppose that such a book, signs as have been noted may have caused the emphasis to be improperly distributed." William G. Dodd in N. Y. Times, Dec. 2, 1905.

Quintard, Charles Todd, Bishop of Tennessee.—Dr. Quintard, Chaplain C. S. A. and leading Bishop of Tennessee: his story of the war (1861-'65).

"Presents the Southern side."

Robinson, James Harvey.—Readings in European history.

"Traces illustrating the progress of culture in western Europe since the German invasions."

Root, E. H., and Connelly, W. E.—Overland stage to California.

Russell, Norman.—Village life in India.

Schafer, J.—History of the Pacific northwest.

"Leaves the impression that it is the work of one who knows his field and whose conclusions may be relied upon. The author evidently believes economy in style and accuracy in statement are virtues to be practiced even when writing primarily for young readers." Publisher's note.

Schillings, C. G.—Highlights in the jungle.

"It is probably no exaggeration to say that this is the most remarkable book of wild animal photography that has ever been printed, but there our praise is inclined to stop. We can commend the laborious efforts of Mr. Schillings in gathering his elaborate scientific data, but we can hardly praise his narrative or descriptive skill." Dial, Ap. 1, 1906.

Scott, R. F.—Voyage of the Discovery. Iv.

"Easily takes rank among the foremost books of travel and discovery which a layman may have a thought out, and it will be read with the same pleasure that both old and young like to associate with the reading of Livingstone and Kane." Nation.

Selder, Denton J.—America's ten years' ar.

Weale, B. L. Putnam.—Re-shaping of the far east. 2v.

"Despite some loose history, exaggerated statements, and rather wild speculations, the work is the best account of twentieth-century China in existence, and affords useful, though far from infallible hints as to the possibilities of the next decade in the Far East." Athenaeum, Feb. 17, 1906.

Zimmern, Alice.—Old tales from Rome.

"Story of Aeneas and other tales founded on the poems of Virgil, Livy, and Ovid. Similar to the author's 'Old tales from Greece.'"

ORIGIN OF GAMES.

Chess, the most ancient and intellectual of games, is generally supposed to have originated with the Hindoos, and its age is about 1,000 years.

Billiards is claimed by some to have originated in the far east, while others declare the game can be traced to the English and that it is a first cousin to the game of bowls. The first person to give form and rule to the game was Henri Honore, who lived in the reign of Charles IX.

Football came into England with the Romans and is older than the English national game of cricket. It is played in many parts of the world, having been one of the most popular games with the Greeks.

Polo has from prehistoric times been a favorite game in the eastern countries, the Persians, Turks and Tartars engaging in the pastime with great zeal. In China and Japan there is a game closely resembling the Persian sport, but going by a different name.

TRIFLES OF INTEREST.

Some form of silk is produced by all moths.

An Illinois preacher has arranged to deliver his own funeral sermon by means of a phonograph.

Immigrants from Italy outnumber those from Ireland four to one.

There are about 16,000 islands between the coast of India and Madagascar. All of them are capable of supporting population, but only 600 are inhabited.

As an inducement for men to marry ugly and crippled women, a prince has offered yearly in the town of Haschmann, Germany. The money was left by a big fiancier, who provided in his will that not less than $80 shall go with the ugliest girl and the cripple shall receive $60.

Silence and Nerves.

A physician who makes a specialty of modern nerves says that an hour of silence should be rigorously imposed on each patient daily. In serious cases it may even be desirable to enforce silence for two hours each day. It may be that a large part of this doctor's patients with "nerves" are women.

—When bathing the eyes add a little salt to the water. A teaspoonful of table salt to a pint of water is about right. The salted water will not smart like unsalted water when it gets into the eyes.

—New iron kettles sometimes have a disagreeable taste, and it is advisable to remove the factory odor by boiling a few pieces of hay in them, repeating it until the taste is removed.

—A woman who is too busy to *take care of her health is like a work*man who is too busy to sharpen his tools.

Miss Terry's Patience.

A dramatic critic, in an interesting account of Miss Ellen Terry, tells of a somewhat self-satisfied, vain, and apparently grumpy actor who complained that the famous actress continually laughed in one of his most important scenes. He had not the courage to tell her his objections, so he wrote her a letter of heartbroken complaint in which he said: "I am extremely sorry to tell you that it is impossible for me to make any effect in such-and-such a scene if you persist in laughing at me on the stage, and so spoiling the situation. May I ask you to change your attitude, as the scene is a most trying one?" Miss Terry's answer was very direct and to the point, for she wrote: "You are quite mistaken. I never laugh at you on the stage. I wait till I get home."—Tit-Bits.

Evening Gowns.

In selecting a gown to be worn in the evening it is advisable to find out if the shade is becoming before purchasing, as frequently colors show an entirely different effect by artificial light. In matching the new colors, too, some care is necessary to make sure that they correspond in daylight, for the degrees in shading are so light that colors matched by electric light are entirely different when exposed to the sun.

Good Luncheon Dish.

To use cold meats, ham or beef, mince it fine, with half the quantity *of ham and a quarter as much bread*crumbs. Season with a small onion (if not objectionable), salt and pepper. Mix this with an egg and any gravy that may have been left from the roast. Put in a baking pan, cover with breadcrumbs and bake for half an hour. This is a good dish for luncheon.

A Russian physician has discovered that warts can be removed by simply concentrating upon them the rage of the sun with a convex lens.

A COMBINATION OF QUALITIES.

Go for the thing you want. You can get anything you ask for providing you make a straightforward appeal.

If you wish to increase the value of your business it can be done by persistent and effective advertising.

Intelligent management of your advertising is the most important branch of your business. Upon it depends your lasting success.

You cannot afford to cease advertising. The moment you do the gap will be filled by your energetic competitor.

Neither can you afford to advertise spasmodically. It is not the fellow who sprints that first twenty yards and then stops for breath, who wins the race; it's the one who keeps "plugging."

The secret of success in advertising is not one thing alone; it is a combination of qualities. First, the idea, means that what you have to offer the public must have actual value.

IDEAS OF HEAVEN.

The Romans believed in the Elysian fields of the Greeks.

The Haitians locate heaven in one of the beautiful valleys of their island.

The Assyrians believe heaven is in the bowels of the earth or far away in the east.

Some natives of the south Pacific think heaven a place where they will be white.

The Greek belief, according to Socrates, was that the pious went to heaven, like prisoners set free, to dwell in unclouded peace.

According to the ancient astronomers, heaven was seven or eight solid spheres, with a planet for the center of each. Some even ran the number up to seventy.

The Egyptians thought heaven to be on many islands at the foot of the the Milky way. Those worthy spent the time harvesting beans and in feasting, singing and playing.

SHORT STORIES.

Last year 883 vessels were lost or condemned, 302 steamers and 501 sailing vessels.

Fine laces are being made in Madagascar to make garments with a kind of spider web.

The land area of the United States is 1,909,947,200 acres. The area of Great Britain and Ireland is 77,671,-319.

Within the three years dating from last November the Canadian government will have to pay off $150,000,-000 maturing bonds.

It is calculated that the actual cost of keeping only a moderately expensive liner at sea is $2,300 a day, and this does not include the insurance.

Many of the Boers who migrated to Argentina have returned to South Africa. Most of those still in Argentina are saving up their money for the purchase of homeward tickets.

NEW YORK CITY.

New York city requires 2,744 bakers to make its supply of daily bread.

Ellis Island, in New York bay, is the great gateway for aliens coming to America, and an average of 2,414 of them pass through it every day in the year.

Police of New York city arrest on an average ninety-five persons each month for the crime of burglary. There is no record of the burglaries for which these are not arrests.

New York, with the longest water line of any city on earth, has the unenviable reputation of having the poorest, most out of repair, rugged, tumbledown and disreputable water front of them all. This condition is served by a scow service at a rest distance at the Battery.—New York Herald.

PITH AND POINT.

Charity and piety are not always on speakin-terms.

Jealousy before marriage means suspicion afterward.

A friend in need is a friend in deed rather than in words.

Sarcasm is a weapon that should be drawn only in self defense.

With some men life is but a bee path leading to the cemetery.

Don't make yourself common. The cold only sits up and takes notice of the uncommon.

About all the pleasure the pessimist gets out of life he steals, and then he acts as if he was afraid of being caught at it.—Chicago News.

It Is to Smile.

To live too fast is also to die too fast.

Prospective heirs are usually glad to wear dead men's shoes.

The worker with the most sand usually is the first to raise the dust.

To lose one's head is often the immediate preface to losing one's feet.

When the poor young man finds a rich "better half," he also is apt to find better quarters.

The song of the nightingales may be so mournful because morning after morning they find their bills all over dew.

They say a woman's aim is poor. It is only natural, after all, that she should find herself at a man's feet when she has thrown herself at his head.—Success Magazine.

Volcanic Utterance.

The report comes from Naples that Vesuvius has been throwing mud. This is the first intimation we have had that a political campaign is in progress in Italy.—Topeka State Journal.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Farmer Orator Martine.

Farmer Orator Martine, who came near being elected to Congress in the Fifth District, last month, frankly says he is not a candidate for Governor. He has no special liking for the office, would not care for the position if it were offered him, as it has been the ambition of his life to go to Washington rather than to Trenton. As for running for office again, he never expects to do it. There is no reason to doubt that Mr. Martine means just what he says, and yet if he were called by the rank and file of the Democratic party to carry their banner, there is hardly a question but that he would take it in hand and make as fierce a fight for it as his strength would permit. He has suffered nothing but defeat, but in no degree has his devotion to Democratic principles and to honest politics abated. He is in no wise responsible for the suggestion that he be nominated for Governor. It came originally from former United States Senator Sibley. Indeed, at the present time the Democratic party hardly knows whether it is entirely free from bossism or not; whether it must look to the "same old gang" for its candidates or select its own. For this reason no one can accurately foretell whether Martine will have a chance to become a candidate or not. Whenever the people have called him he has always responded, but he is not of the kind that is bossed and driven.—Newark Evening News.

Wants A Business-Like Administration.

Mayor-elect Fisk, of Plainfield, talks like a man who is going to give his city a straightforward and business-like administration. He declined to participate in the Common Council session, but took advantage of the opportunity to give the members some valuable advice and suggestions in a series of "Don'ts" which the Plainfield councilmen will do well to heed. Mr. Fisk's most timely advice is that in which he cautioned the councilmen not to permit themselves to be used to pull anybody's chestnuts out of the fire. It is too frequently the case that councilmen allow themselves to be used as catspaws, and do not even give the matter a second thought. They do not even realize it until the other fellows get the chestnuts, and do not even give the councilmen the price of arnica to ease the pain of the bruised fingers. If the Plainfield councilmen shall adhere strictly to the lines laid down by Mayor-elect Fisk, and if they work in harmony with him for the best interests of the city in general and not for individual interests *they will give Plainfield such an ad*ministration as will convince the voters that they made no mistake when they entrusted them with the reins of government. The affairs of a municipality should be conducted strictly along business lines. This is apparently the view taken by Mayor-elect Fisk, and he should have the earnest and enthusiastic backing of the members of City Council.—Elizabeth Journal.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mme. Bernhardt and Signora Duse have a mutual horror of being alone while traveling.

Mrs. Felix Adler is no less active for reform than her husband. As chairman of a special committee of the Woman's Municipal League she is working for cleaner streets in New York.

Mrs. Anna C. Spreckels has filed an application with the San Francisco board of works for a permit to reconstruct the Spreckels mansion at the southwest corner of Clay street and Van Ness avenue at an estimated cost of $200.

Miss Jane Thornewill, sister of Lady Burton, enjoys the distinction not only of being a wonderful bridge player—she is sometimes King Edward's partner—but of having put off being one of the few women in English society who, like Mr. Chamberlain, can wear monocles with distinction.

Mrs. Caroline Bache Barnes, a great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin, is seventy-two years old, but never fails to take a daily spin on her bicycle, sometimes making a twenty mile jaunt. Mrs. Barnes is a professional nurse and is regarded as the youngest old woman in Vineland, N. J., where she resides.

There is living in Norway, Me., the pioneer orange shipper of California, Mrs. Rebecca Warren. Mrs. Warren, who is seventy, went to San Francisco on Vanderbilt's steamer, the North Star, and speculated in oranges. Fifteen years she had $17,-000 at interest. She was the first orange grower to ship fruit by the carload out of the State, beginning with cattle cars, which she has cleaned out and loaded. She later married Capt. Warren, and their brand of oranges was known as the "W. H. W."

"Congo Stories All Lies."

New York, Dec. 28.—"I have no great love for King Leopold," said R. C. Mathot, a consulting engineer, who arrived from Antwerp yesterday on board the steamship Zealand, of the Red Star line, but I believe in the square deal." After a twelve years' residence in the Congo, I know that the stories now being circulated are atrocious falsehoods. There has been no mutilation of natives and no ill treatment of them. The lies that are being circulated about the Congo I believe to be inspired by a clique of British financiers to serve their own ends."

WOMAN, HURT, HELPLESS IN CELLAR FOR AN HOUR

MRS. D. S. CAMPBELL INJURED BY A FALL DOWNSTAIRS.

HUSBAND, BARNS AND OUTBUILDINGS OF DANIEL SCHENCK DESTROYED.

Carrying an armful of wood up the cellar stairway at her home Thursday morning, Mrs. David S. Campbell, wife of the Dunellen recorder, slipped backward and fell to the bottom, injured so badly that she could not make her way upstairs, and being alone in the house, she was compelled to suffer in the cellar until neighbors heard her faint cries for help an hour later.

The accident happened at 10:30 o'clock. The fall wrenched Mrs. Campbell's right hip so severely that she could not stand. She tried to crawl upstairs, but could not find the strength. She called for help, but her cries, faint in themselves, scarcely pierced the walls of the cellar. It was not until 11:30 that a neighbor heard the call, and responded. Mrs. Campbell was found almost exhausted at the bottom of the stairs.

She was carried to her room and Dr. Brakeley was summoned. It was thought at first that the hip was broken, but examination showed that only a severe sprain had resulted from the fall.

BOYS URGED DOG TO BITE WILLIAM TIER, JR.

Canine Imbedded Its Teeth In His Leg Inflicting Severe Laceration.

William Tier, Jr., the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Tier, of East Front street, was bitten by a dog, while he was skating with some companions on Tier's pond Friday morning. The dog which belongs to Charles M. Sigman, of Central avenue, was on the pond with his young son and some other boys. They noticed young Tier skating about and in a spirit of mischief set the dog on him.

The canine instantly attacked the boy. He imbedded his teeth in the fleshy part of the boy's leg above the knee severely lacerating it. The boy screamed with fright and pain and soon there was a big crowd attracted to the spot. Through the combined efforts of several bystanders the boy was rescued and carried to his home, where Dr. Albert Pittis was summoned and gave the customary treatment.

In the meantime the Slocum boy and his dog made their escape. They were followed through Front street, Park avenue and into West Second street, by a crowd of boys, but the lad and his dog disappeared in Second street and could not be found. Patrolman Charles Flynn's attention was called to the trouble and he made a fruitless search. Mr. Tier, father of the injured boy, intends to bring action against the owner of the dog.

READING GIVES ORDER FOR 25 NEW ENGINES.

This With Directions for New Cars Will Tend to Help Out on the Freight Shortage.

The Reading Railway has just placed orders for 25 locomotives and 1,000 steel hopper coal cars of 100,-000 pounds capacity. The order for the locomotives, which is for switching engines, has been placed with the Baldwin works and the car order with the Cambria Steel Company.

That the efforts of the railroads to meet the demands upon them for more cars is sometimes frustrated by the inability of the car builders to turn out the cars promptly is indicated by the statement made by President Baer yesterday, in connection with this latest car order, that nearly 1,000 cars ordered by the company more than a year ago have not yet been delivered. While President Baer declined to name the delinquent car builders, it was ascertained that the cars whose delivery had been delayed were ordered in December, 1905, and consisted of about 900 coal cars and 11 of an original order for 80 passenger coaches.

Locomotive builders, by reason of the great crush of orders, are also behind in their deliveries, and 15 large freight locomotives, which were to be delivered by the Reading during the current month will not be ready for delivery until some time in January.

Little Helps.

Old glove fasteners may be used by sewing on the shirt waist band and skirt for the desired supporter. Wornout hose supporters can be sewed by the side to bottom edge of belt on back of skirt on either side of closing, making a most satisfactory skirt adjuster, which never tears the waist and never bends or slips out of place.

Dinner for Miss Mead.

Mrs. John F. Harman, of West Eighth street, gave a dinner party Wednesday evening at her home in honor of Miss Margaret Mead, one of the season's debutante. The affair was a delightful one and attended by many pleasing features. Covers were laid for sixteen.

Dr. Cadman to Teachers.

Rev. Dr. S. Parks Cadman, who is to speak at the Y. M. C. A. theatre meeting January 12, addressed the State Teachers' Association on Wednesday. Dr. Cadman is noted as an orator.

FARMER'S HOME FIRED WHILE FAMILY'S AWAY

Fire destroyed the house, barn and two outbuildings owned by Daniel Schenck and located on what is known as the Fabrain Boice farm, two miles from South Plainfield, Thursday. Mr. Schenck was away at the time and his wife and several children were visiting neighbors on the Fred Sandtress farm across the road. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Schenck, who arrived before the house was consumed, discovered that the fire started in the west end of the dwelling, but unable to ascertain the cause.

It was between 3 and 4 o'clock when the fire was first discovered, and the farmers in the vicinity turned out to lend assistance, believing that the family was home. By the time the farmers arrived the house was beyond saving and it was only possible to save some of the contents.

Attention was then directed to the barn, where there were several horses, cows and farming implements. These were all rescued from the barn which caught fire soon after the house did. The two outbuildings were also destroyed by the flames. William Norman, of South Plainfield, rendered valuable assistance at the fire. He made the trip to the farm in his automobile, arriving in time to save a number of things from the house and barn.

The house is one of the oldest in Piscataway township, the late Ephraim Boice having lived there for many years. Mr. Schenck, who is a farmer, resided on the farm several years.

POPE PIUS X GIVES NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

The thoughtfulness of Pope Pius X for Christians in all parts of the world is beautifully exemplified in a signed portrait given to the Philadelphia North American as a New Year's greeting to the people of Pennsylvania. The portrait is inscribed in the Pope's own handwriting with the words of the apostolic benediction.

The portrait and inscription have been artistically reproduced in the most expensive engravure process, and a copy of it, 11x15 inches, will be a part of every copy of the Sunday North American for December 30. No handsomer work of art and no more fitting souvenir of a great and good personage has ever been published.

Teh publication of the portrait of His Holiness is made with the consent of His Grace, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

Copies of this artistic work are being displayed by all newsdealers.

SOCIETY GATHERS FOR CHRISTMAS DANCE.

Annual Event at Park Club Attracts Two Hundred People.

Society of the city and borough turned out in large numbers last night at the usual Christmas dance at the Park Club. The clubhouse was lavishly decorated in holiday style with the Christmas greens, holly and mistletoe in evidence. The affair was given under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which *Mrs. Charles A. Reed is the chair*man, and by a number of patronesses. Excellent music was furnished by von Derfelden's orchestra of Newark.

Included among the 200 or more guests, were many young people home from college for the holiday season, and a number of out-of-town people. The evening was given up entirely to dancing, and this was continued until a late hour.

The Yorkshire Hog.

A strong demand is spring up for a hog capable of making the highest quality of bacon, says Farming. For this reason the long bodied rather than the wide type is required. A good representative of this type is the large improved Yorkshire. As now bred, he combines a full body bodied with deep, straight lines and triangular hams, standing well up from the ground; the back arched, ribs well sprung to the edge of the loin, and full flanks. Constitution and vigor are among the points required. Some strains approach the wide back and too fat carcass, but these are to be avoided.

DAUGHTER FINDS FATHER DEAD IN A YARD.

Stricken With Paralysis, William Parsch Dies Suddenly.

William Parsch, an old and well-*known resident of the Prideville sec*tion of the borough, left his home on Harrison avenue at 6:30 to do some work in the yard. A short time later his daughter, Miss Minnie Parsch, had occasion to go outside and she found her father lying on the ground about thirty feet from the rear porch. She secured assistance to get him to the house where it was found that he was dead. He had been stricken with paralysis and had passed away almost immediately.

Mr. Parsch was in his eighty-fourth year and came to the borough from Germank thirty-six years ago. In the old country he was a builder by occupation and followed it to some extent here. He leaves one son, William Parsch, Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. David Allen and Miss Minnie Parsch.

P. S. C. INCREASES WAGES

Motormen and Conductors on All Lines Share in Christmas Present.

3,000 ARE BENEFITED

New Scale Takes Effect January 1—A. H. Stanley Is Made General Manager.

The Public Service Corporation, through its Board of Directors, which met Thursday, unanimously decided to grant an increase in wages to the motormen and conductors employed on all its various lines, the same to take effect January 1, 1907. The increase will benefit 3,000 employes. The action is expected to have a good effect on the service of the men, making it an object for the men to remain in the employ of the company and to attract a better grade of help. The resolution adopted by the board was entirely voluntary.

The scale of wages adopted January 1, 1903, provided a wage of 19 cents a hour for the first and second year, 20 cents from the third to fifth year, 21 cents from the sixth to tenth year and 22 cents for the eleventh year and thereafter. Prior to that time the rate was 17½ cents an hour for the first six months and 18½ cents an hour for the second six months and 20 cents an hour thereafter.

The scale adopted yesterday provides 20 cents an hour for the first year, 21 cents from the second to the fifth year, 22 cents an hour from the sixth to tenth year and 23 cents an hour for the eleventh year and thereafter.

Another important action yesterday was that conferring upon Albert H. Stanley, general superintendent of the northern and central Jersey systems, the title of general manager of all divisions, including the above named, as well as the South Jersey division. Mr. Stanley came to the Public Service Corporation three years ago from Detroit, where he was general superintendent of the trolley system. His recent promotion is made in appreciation of his efficient service while with the Public Service Corporation.

25 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maynard Celebrate Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Maynard, *of North avenue, celebrated the twen*ty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, last night, their home being attended by over one hundred guests from this city, Newark, New York, Long Branch, Philadelphia and Trenton. The couple was showered with best wishes and also received a great many handsome gifts.

Those who received with Mr. and Mrs. Maynard were Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, of this city; Mrs. D. E. Robin*son, of Newark, and Mrs. Sarah E.* Reilly, of New York. The receiving party stood beneath large crayon portraits of the bride and groom and their wedding certificate which also bore their pictures as well as that of the officiating minister. The rooms were attractive in holiday decorations.

Among the gifts were included a silver service from members of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, with a card bearing the names of the donors; a silver candelabra from Alpha Lodge, No. 116, F. and A. M., of Newark, of which Mr. Maynard is a member, and numerous members of the lodge rendered the gift. There was also a silver comb and brush from Mayor James F. Buckle and numerous other gifts.

During the evening there were piano selections by Alfred White and soprano solos by Miss Mary Conroy of New York. Refreshments were served afterward.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard were married at Harlingen, the home of the bride, December 27, 1881, by Rev. H. R. Garner, of Philadelphia, who was then pastor of the Hopewell church. Mrs. Maynard was Miss Alletta J. Holmes. At the time Mr. Maynard was living here and was engaged in the barber business, his shop being located at the Hotel Kensington, then the Hotel Greenleaf. He has been in the same business continuously ever since. Both he and his wife are held in high esteem by a large circle of acquaintances. Among those who attended their wedding twenty-five years ago were Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Garretson and daughter, Miss Anna L. Garretson, of Sherman avenue, and James L. Manning, of Dunellen.

Funeral of Harold Hunter.

With a large gathering of relatives and young friends in attendance, the funeral of Harold Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hunter, of West Fourth street, who died Christmas morning, was held at Hope chapel, Thursday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard, who made a touching address. The Eighth C Class of the Whittier School, of which Harold was a member, contributed a set floral piece and there were others from various friends. *Interment was made in Hillside ceme*tery, six of his playmates acting as pall bearers. They were Allen Snyder, Frank Rimmer, Robert Cussens, *Earl Moran, James Kenney and Don*ald Mortimer.

LEFT $500,000: VANISHES

Peculiar Will Case in Which Three Plainfielders are Directly Interested.

FRAUD CHARGE MADE

Third Cousins Ignored By Stephen M. Wright Will Fight Bequest to Missing Housekeeper.

One million dollars in property, the eccentric idea of its owner to leave half of it to his housekeeper, the sudden disappearance of the housekeeper and the filing Saturday in Lincoln, L. I., of an application for revocation of a will on sensational charges of fraud, have combined to reveal a remarkable story concerning the late Stephen Mott Wright, who resided at Sea Cliff, L. I., and in which three Plainfielders are directly interested.

Stephen S. Dodge and his brother William, both of New York, filed the application and disclosed the strange story of the life of their third cousin Wright.

Wright died in September last, and the executors named were Mrs. Ida Beach Stuart, the housekeeper; Henry Storrs and C. A. Cohen. Surrogate Jackson probated the will last month, and everything seemed proper and legal.

Wright left half of his property to Mrs. Stuart. The remainder was to be distributed among his three cousins, Mary Louise Storrs, Henry J. Storrs and Electa Storrs Craft, all of Kensington avenue, this city.

With the protest made Saturday came the revelation that Wright, a long time before his death, had erected a splendid house at Sea Cliff for his housekeeper, and had furnished it like a palace. With the exception of some jewelry and wearing apparel in the house, everything therein contained, including the structure itself is left to Mrs. Stuart.

A freak part of the will is that if Mrs. Stuart, whom the deceased designated as "friend," chooses to give furniture to the cousins, she may do so, or, if she pleases, may present it to any organization called "The Goats."

The Dodge brothers allege that this will was executed while Wright was under illegal influence, and that he did not make it of his own free will. They also set forth that they were not cited at the time the instrument was drawn up.

Surrogate Jackson, realizing the immense interests concerned, has given the parties time to prepare their cases, and will hear argument January 30.

A search for Mrs. Stuart Saturday was futile. Not a person knew where she was, or any of her plans.

The will was executed last January in the presence of City Engineers, of No. 14 Riverside Drive; Augustus S. Mayer, of No. 53 West Ninety-fourth street, Manhattan, and Roland Taylor, No. 455 Greene avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Craft, who is one of the boys mentioned, was asked about the matter by a Daily Press reporter this morning, and she declared that she knew nothing of any plan to fight the will. She stated that Mrs. Stuart was at Glen Head, L. I., when she had heard from her last and to all intents and purposes was there at the present time. Miss Storrs, Henry J. Storrs and Mrs. Craft are all first cousins of Mr. Wright and are the nearest relatives.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB HAS ENJOYABLE CHASE

Twenty Members Participate in Run From Country Club to Colonia.

Weather conditions permitted an enjoyable chase by twenty members of the Watchung Hunt Club, Saturday afternoon. There were sixteen men and four women in the party and the fact that a course was selected that eliminated all jumps, made it particularly attractive for some of the riders who have not yet learned to take the jumps.

The start was made at the Plainfield Country Club and at Oak Tree there was a check. Many times throughout the chase the riders were very close to the hounds and this furnished plenty of excitement for all. The chase ended about a mile from the clubhouse at Colonia.

Those in the party were Miss Marshall, Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Wellesley and Miss Chamberlain, Lewis E. Ing, C. C. Marshall, W. H. Wilsey, T. H. Wilsey, Harry A. Bourne, Fred Alpers, Charles W. Fisk, W. S. Inscas, Joseph Gatins, H. B. Smith, S. Bellowes, Louis Barker, M. Powers, Miss Ward Wareing, Dr. M. M. Knott and Commins, the whip.

Funeral of Mrs. Varian.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah E. Varian was held at the home of her son, Clarence E. Varian, of East Ninth street, Saturday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. J. S. Zelie in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being four brothers, James K., William E., Charles E. and George W. Arnold, and two sons, Clarence E. and George W. Varian.

MAYOR FISK'S MESSAGE

(Continued from Page 1.)

such officers. I have grave doubt as to whether the courts would allow the city to cast these men aside for any cause except inefficiency or dereliction of duty, after a due trial. My idea is to make a probationer's term of service as short as is compatible with the maintenance of a high standard, and at the end of such term to appoint and train such special policemen as a regular. And at the beginning of his probationary term, it would seem to me desirable that he should enter into a bond, or security, relieving the city from all liability in case his eventual appointment as a regular should not be deemed advisable or expedient.

The more familiar policeman becomes with the geography, the buildings and the residents of his beat, the more efficient officer can he do, and I would therefore ask your Honorable Body to make under advisement the feasibility of establishing rules which will result in assigning patrolmen permanently to the various beats, instead of shifting them frequently from one district to another as is now the practice.

That our city has been comparatively free from crime and disorder is cause for congratulation, but to this happy condition of affairs should by no means fill us into any false sense of security or render us unmindful of the duty imposed on us to make the police department as able and efficient as our increasing area and means will allow.

I recommend that a resolution be passed authorizing the issuance of regular officers by the appointment of nine additional patrolmen. As we have for sometime been employing five special officers who will be an increase of four men which are very much needed. I recommend that the rules be amended creating three classes of special men:

Class A—Janitors of schools, banks and other public buildings, Sextons of churches, etc.

Class B—Men who are assigned from time to time for temporary or special duty, at twenty-five cents per hour.

Class C—Men employed under contract for regular duty, as suggested previously, at a salary of $2.50 per day during the probationary period.

I also recommend a mounter policeman for the business section of the city and residences, particularly in the outlying districts. With one of these call boxes in the house communicating directly with the police station, no better protection could be provided.

Fire and Buildings.

As soon as practical, a fire house should be erected and apparatus installed in the eastern end of our city. This section is rapidly growing and entitled and should have better protection.

The West Second street fire house is in bad condition, and should be remodeled as recommended in the Chief of the Fire Department in his report.

The Building Ordinance needs some amendment, but this matter should be taken up separately and not with the revisions consideration. Before adopting any regulations in regard to cement blocks and re-inforced concrete, the city should have the very best advice that can be obtained on the subject.

Streets.

Several important matters in regard to streets should be taken up and have your early consideration.

First—Providing a more lasting and permanent pavement for the business section. The following streets should be so paved:

Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Second—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Third—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Fourth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Fifth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Sixth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Seventh—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Eighth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Ninth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Tenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Eleventh—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twelfth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Fourteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Fifteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Sixteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Seventeenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Eighteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Nineteenth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twentieth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-first—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-second—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-third—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-fourth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-fifth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-sixth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-seventh—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-eighth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Twenty-ninth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirtieth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-first—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-second—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-third—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-fourth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-fifth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-sixth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-seventh—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-eighth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Thirty-ninth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street, Eighth street, Ninth street, Arlington avenue, Stillman street, Arlington avenue, Madison avenue, Grant avenue, Franklin avenue, Fourth street, Arlington avenue, Washington avenue, Irving avenue, Liberty street, Irving avenue, Monroe avenue, Bryant street, Richmond street, Lincoln avenue, Secand avenue, Berckman street, Maxson street, Watchung avenue, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Central avenue, from Fourth street to Front street; Front street, from Watchung avenue to Central avenue; Somerset street, from Front street to city line; North avenue, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue.

In each case the improvement should be about $40,000 and could be provided for by an issue of street improvement bonds running over a term of years. On all bonds issued for street purposes I recommend that a cash set aside.

Fortieth—Grading, curbing and flagging of Fourth street, Fifth street, Sixth street, Seventh street

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1907. NO. 2.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

UNION RESENTS THREATS

What Might Happen if State Leaders "Punish" our Legislators.

BOOMERANG POSSIBLE

In Interview C. S. Smieck Shows That It Is Not a Case of "the Tail Wagging the Dog."

Attacks made by the State Republican machine on Union county's legislators because they refuse to sanction the return of John F. Dryden to the United States Senate may act as a boomerang and it is declared by men always known to be strong supporters of the organization that in the Dryden campaign has received a severe set-back. Free prediction is made in the county, and particularly in this city, as to what may happen if the bosses carry out their threats to have Union county punished by holding up its measures in the present session.

Three years ago the bosses forced the party voters to name candidates against their will. The effect was instantaneous; Union county, the Republican stronghold of New Jersey, jumped over into the Democratic column, and it was loyal Republicans who did the trick. If "punishment" is to be administered to the county now because its Senator and three Assemblymen cannot be intimidated, it is said the voters may see in their wrath again and administer a stinging rebuke next fall, when Union will be sorely needed by the organization.

In a talk with a reporter for The Daily Press, Charles S. Smieck, a regular and conservative Republican, said:

"A certain insurance company having its headquarters in Newark called attention in a recent advertisement to the immortal words of Lincoln, 'Trust the People.' The legislators of Union county can 'trust the people' who will see that they are not 'punished.' A Trenton despatch in the Herald last Monday stated that the bosses say our standards too much like the tail wagging the dog.' Is it? Union county is the fifth in population, with a valuation of $130,000,000 as compared with Burlington, $28,000,000; Cape May, $20,000,000; Cumberland, $20,000,000; Gloucester, $18,000,000; Hunterdon, $19,000,000, and the other nine counties a total of $105,000,000—Nor Warren, $21,000,000; Sussex, $13,000,000; Somerset, $22,000,000; Ocean, $13,000,000; Morris, $38,000,000, making a total of $167,000,000—or Camden, $62,000,000, and Morris $28,000,000, making a total of $190,000,000. Tail wagging the dog, eh?

"The condition demonstrates: First, That Union county has no boss; second, Independence within party lines, and third, If the tail is wagging the dog, the tail has no collar.

"It is evident that the people are aroused, and that no one has a mortgage on the Senatorship. The vital thing to consider is the effect on the people of the election of a particular candidate. Republican legislators should aim to select a Senator who will be close to the people, unite the Republican party, create confidence and help to continue the prosperity of the country."

Mr. Smieck would not say what the effect would be if the bosses carry out their threat to punish Union county because Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Perkins, Moxon and Tillman cast their ballots for the man whom their constituents demand as Senator; but he did say that should the Legislature reject Mr. Dryden it will be a bad day for the Republican party in Union county.

In Plainfield, the city that gives Union county its Republican majority, and brought about the election of the party's Assembly candidates at the recent election, the sentiment is solid against Dryden.

Rendered Christmas Carols.

On Sunday afternoon Miss Ida I. Spicer, superintendent of the Junior C. E. of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, called with her class at Alexander Titsworth's residence, in West Fifth street, and rendered the carols sung by them at Christmas time, as Mr. Titsworth's health did not permit him to attend the exercises. The carols were finely rendered and the thoughtfulness of Miss Spicer and her class in thus remembering him was greatly appreciated by him. Those who took part were: Hannah Shaw, Hellen Shaw, Mary Hunting, Dorothy Hubbard, Celia Cottrell, Ruth Morris, Laura Stillman, Katherine Shaw, Miriam Shaw, Beatrice Cottrell, John Cottrell, Jr., Harold Spicer. There were present also Rossamond Rogers, Helen Carr and Jack Rogers.

Robert Bogardus, formerly a clerk at the City National Bank, has taken a similar position at the First National Bank.

DR. B. VAN D. HEDGES IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT

BOARD OF HEALTH ORGANIZES FOR THE COMING YEAR.

An organization for the coming year was effected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health, Tuesday afternoon. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Dr. T. S. Davis and Charles H. Dunham, old members and the new appointee, William C. Kinney, who succeeds Mayor Charles J. Fisk on the board, were present. In organizing these officers were chosen: President, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges; secretary, Dr. T. S. Davis; treasurer, Fred W. Dunn.

The reports showed that the sanitary condition of the city remains good. During December the death rate was low. The number of communicable diseases reported was low, there being but three cases of scarlet fever and one of diphtheria.

B. C. Firstbrook, of Grant avenue, and D. E. Coon, of Sterling, were granted permits to sell milk and the plumbers' bond of W. L. Larrabee, of Dunellen, was referred to the corporation counsel. The time of meeting for the board was change from 4 to 5 o'clock on the first Tuesday of each month.

During December there were four marriages, twenty-three births, three still births and fourteen deaths.

JOINT INSTALLATION AT GRAND ARMY POST

VETERANS AND MEMBERS OF RELIEF CORPS PLACED IN OFFICE.

The joint installation of the officers-elect of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps, took place at Post headquarters, last night. The affair was a public one and there was a large attendance of veterans, members of the corps and friends, who enjoyed the exercises.

The officers of the Post were installed first by Past Department Commander William C. Smith, as follows:

Commander, Dr. J. F. Berg; senior vice commander, Andrew Cox; junior vice commander, Fred Wenzel; quartermaster, John R. Naylor; surgeon, Israel Compton; chaplain, N. C. Pennington; officer of the day, S. R. Struthers; officer of the guard, Edward Vanderweg; trustees, William C. Smith, William Hand and M. C. Dobbins; delegates to Department Encampment, Andrew Cox and John R. Naylor; alternates, Job Coddington and James Clarkson.

The officers of the Women's Relief Corps were then installed by Mrs. Sara A. Mattox, past corps president, as follows:

President, Mrs. John Manley; senior vice president, Miss Virginia Devine; junior vice president, Mrs. Andrew Cox; chaplain, Miss May E. Howlett; treasurer, Mrs. Casper Bolstein; conductor, Mrs. Sadie Baglin; assistant conductor, Mrs. Sara A. Mattox; guard, Mrs. John Naylor; assistant guard, Mrs. William Westphal; musician, Miss Ivy Smith. The installation was secretly, into yet announced, will be installed at the next meeting of the corps.

During the evening there were a number of interesting speeches by the officers-elect, together with a program consisting of recitations and music. Those who rendered piano selections were Miss May Smith, Mrs. John Manley and Miss Devine. The new corps president received a handsome bouquet of flowers. The presentation was made by her children and was a surprise. Mrs. Mattox also received a hand-painted plaque.

After the programme refreshments were served under the direction of the executive committee of the corps, of which Mrs. W. C. Smith and Mrs. Sadie Baglin are the head and they were assisted by other members.

Installation Postponed.

Because of the absence of several of the newly elected officers, the installation ceremonies planned for last night by Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., were postponed until January 22. The social session which had been arranged was carried out and the members enjoyed a programme of music and addresses.

Death of B. L. Welch.

Benjamin L. Welch, well-known in this city, died Monday night at his home in East Millstone, following a long illness from a cancer. He was one of the best known truck farmers in that section of New Jersey and disposed of a large portion of his products in this city.

—Neuman Brothers import their own olive oil direct from France; that's why they guarantee it so highly. Special price by the gallon and half-gallon.

MONS. STAFFORD OUT OF SETON HALL COLLEGE

APPOINTED TO PARISH MINISTRY AT HIS OWN REQUEST.

Monsignor John A. Stafford, formerly assistant at St. Mary's R. C. church, under Father Smyth, resigned as president of Seton Hall College, yesterday, and was appointed rector of the Church of St. Paul of the Cross, Jersey City, succeeding the late Rev. Thomas Quinn. With this appointment went that of the Rev. Dr. James P. Mooney, professor of moral theology in Seton Hall Seminary, who becomes head of the college and rector of the seminary. The appointment is temporary until ratified by the board of trustees.

Monsignor Stafford returns to parish work at his own request, made to Bishop O'Connor at the golden jubilee of the college. The Bishop was reluctant to grant the request, but Monsignor Stafford was persistent.

As head of the college, Monsignor Stafford, in the golden jubilee last June, suggested that collections be taken through the parishes to reduce the college debt. As a result, $125,000 of the $65,000 was raised. Monsignor Stafford also started the Bayley Hall preparatory school.

He was ordained in Rome in 1888, and became a curate in St. Mary's, where he remained until 1892, when he was sent on to St. Mary's, Jersey City. He remained there until 1893, when he went to Seton Hall as vice president. He was made president in 1897. He was one of the most popular clergymen in the history of the parish.

COLONEL ACCUSED BY A LIEUTENANT

GUARD SURPRISED AT CLASH BETWEEN COLONEL COLLINS AND LIEUT. BREESE

Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, commanding the Second Regiment, National Guard, has preferred charges of inefficiency against Lieutenant E. Yardee Breese, and the Lieutenant has retaliated by charging the Colonel with conduct unbecoming an officer.

Military circles were surprised by the charges because of the social prominence of both officers and because Lieutenant Breese is a protege of General Gilmore, O.M. Gilmore, brigade commander. Sensations are expected from the trial. As a test Lieutenant Greese has been ordered to drill a battalion here this evening. General Gillmore will be on hand. The Lieutenant is under suspension pending the test.

Bitter feeling between Colonel Collins and Lieutenant Breese has existed for a long time. The Colonel charges that the Lieutenant's work, particularly at regimental drills, reflects discredit on the whole command. He twice ordered him to take military examinations. Once the Lieutenant was passed with high averages. The next time no public report was made.

GOLDEN EAGLES INSTALL.

Supper Follows Installation, and New Borough Recorder Speaks.

The recently elected officers of Freedom Castle, K. G. E., were installed last night, by District Deputy Moore, of New Brunswick, and staff. The officers installed were: Past chief, Edward Schmeyer; noble chief, J. O. Randall; vice chief, P. H. Bennett; high priest, William Gamble; venerable hermit, Caspar Wagelow; master of records, A. R. Vall; collector of exchequer, R. V. Kinney; keeper of exchequer, W. W. F. Randolph; sir herald, Clarence Van Doren; first guardsman, Archibald Hacquer; second guardsman, George Ayers; esquire, William Allen; ensign, Frank Neidig; worthy bard, L. M. Hummer.

Supper was served in the banquet room after the meeting. Borough Recorder Dolliver made the only speech. It was his first visit to the lodge since his elevation to the bench.

A candidate was initiated after the installation.

Anniversary of Day Nursery.

Invitations have been sent out by the Day Nursery Committee to attend the first anniversary of the Day Nursery, Tuesday afternoon, January 15, from 3 to 6 o'clock, at their home, 444 West Third street. Each person is requested to bring a package of groceries for the store room.

Peculiar Children and Their Needs.

The Mothers' Association of Plainfield will meet at the Plainfield High School Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, when Dr. M. P. E. Grossmann, of the Watchung Crest School, will give an address on "Peculiar Children and Their Needs."

LEGISLATURE ORGANIZES

Senate and House Chooses Its Officers For the 131st Session.

SLATES NOT BROKEN

B. A. Vail Confirmed In Senate For Circuit Court Judgeship—Appointments Made.

The Senate of New Jersey was called to order at Trenton by Senator Hillery, of Morris county, at 3:15 Tuesday afternoon. He read the roll of the Senate as certified by Secretary of State Dickinson. Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren county, was chosen temporary chairman, and was escorted to the chair by a committee consisting of Senators Lee, Avis and Hinchliffe. Howard L. Tyler was chosen temporary secretary.

The Senators, elected last fall, were then sworn into office.

Senator Hillery placed in nomination Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland, for president of the Senate. He reviewed the career of Senator Minch. Senator Price, of Sussex, was placed in nomination by Senator Minch. The vote was: For Minch, 15; Price, 6. Senator Minch was escorted to the chair by Senators Hillery, Freilinghuysen and Minturn.

Howard L. Tyler, of Cumberland, was nominated for secretary. He was elected unanimously. He was sworn into office by President Minch. Senators Bradley, Ackerman and Price were named as a committee to inform Governor Stokes that the Senate had organized. The House of Assembly was duly informed.

The following were nominated by Senator Hillery and elected:

Assistant secretary, William H. Albright, Gloucester; journal clerk, John W. Cliff, Union; assistant journal clerk, S. Grant, Ocean; sergeant-at-arms, John F. Lovett, Mercer; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Geo. F. Streker, Burlington; bill clerk, Harry G. Walter, Essex; assistant bill clerk, William N. Conkling, Somerset; supervisor of bills, Charles L. Grubb, Morris; assistant supervisor of bills, Edward A. Sexsmith, Monmouth; clerk to Committee on Printed Bills, Howard Keasby, Salem; doorkeepers, C. Clay Lewis, Atlantic; Edward Lyons, Bergen; J. L. Fisher, Essex; Amos W. Wrench, Somerset.

In esecutive session the Senate received these nominations from the Governor:

Benjamin A. Vail, Circuit Court Judge of Union; Henry S. Scovel, prosecutor of Camden county; John G. Horner, judge of the Common Pleas Court of Burlington county; Frank G. Lloyd, Circuit Court judge; Theodore Sansman and John H. Murray, board of managers of the sanatorium for tubercular diseases; Thos. W. Trenchard, justice of the Supreme Court.

The appointments of Judges Vail and Horner were immediately confirmed, as they are ex-Senators. The others were referred. The Senate adjourned until next Monday morning.

After Parker had called the House to order the Rev. Benjamin F. Buck, of Millville, father of Assemblyman Buck, of Cumberland, offered prayer.

The Democratic leader, Klenert, nominated Edgar E. Lethbridge, of Essex, for speaker.

Mr. Crowther, of Middlesex, named Randolph E. Perkins, of Union. Mr. Lethbridge was chosen by a party vote.

Mr. Lethbridge was escorted to the Speaker's desk by Messrs. Riordan and Perkins, and was sworn in by Mr. Wright.

In naming Minch for the Presidency Mr. Hillery's remarks embodied a comprehensive outline of the policy which the Senate majority will pursue during the session, including the long-looked-for elimination of the theory of "Senatorial courtesy," which has on many occasions proved a barrier to proper legislation. The entire tone was in keeping with the den issued to the Republican leaders at the recent Senatorial caucus. Senator Hillery said in part:

"The vicissitudes of public life are best known to those engaged in the work. The public is not an easy taskmaster; its wants are many and its opinions are variable. There is, however, a judgment borne of consensus which form a true will in reality be administered for the people.

"Customs grow up in legislative bodies which sometimes serve to hinder and impede progress. The people have come to regard that indefinable something known as 'Senatorial courtesy' as an impediment which sometimes chokes the channels of proper legislation. Every piece of legislation that is deemed worthy of introduction by any member of this Legislature and may be entrusted to a committee of this body is entitled to the consideration which its importance warrants, if need be, by all the members of this body."

HUBBARD DECLINES; CANDIDATES FOR JOB

WON'T CONTINUE AS ASSESSOR—TALK OF ABOLISHING BOARD.

Although Mayor Fisk has not yet announced his decision in the case of the resignation of Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard, who has held his official position for over thirty years, it is said that Mr. Hubbard has decided that his resignation shall stand; that he will refuse to continue in office. It is also said that Mayor Fisk is anxious to have Mr. Hubbard continue on the board.

Since it has become known that Assessor Hubbard resigned there are several persons in the Third ward who have been mentioned as his successor. They include Major Paul, former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell and Harry B. McDonald, but no intimation is made as to who the probable successor may be.

It has been rumored that Mayor Fisk favors abolishing the present Board of Assessors and appointing a commission of one, who alone shall be to make all assessments. This change would remove all ward lines so far as the assessing of property is concerned, the commissioners being obliged to work in all parts of the city. This would also mean that instead of one assessor passing upon his own work all three would have to go over the assessments.

It is known that Mr. Fisk is not at all satisfied with the present workings of the equal taxation law and said so in his message. It was his idea that a committee be appointed by President Daniel to handle the matter with a view to obtaining a more equal assessment throughout the county as approved by State Road Commissioner Hutchinson.

Hyman Kline, represented by James L. Griggs, presented his claims in connection with his refusal to abide by the agreement in purchasing the old jail and court house. He stated that because the board failed to turn over the property to him on time he could not sell it as arranged. He asked for a reduction in the purchase price, agreeing if his request is granted, he will remove the buildings and dispose of them as best he can. The board decided to meet on Saturday, January 12, to consider the matter further.

Most of the session was taken up with the discussion of road improvements. The specifications for the construction of the public road from North Branch to the Hunterdon county line, with a spur from North Branch to the New Jersey Central station at North Branch, were presented by County Engineer Doughty. They were approved and Director Baird was authorized to advertise for bids and the freeholders will meet at Somerville, Tuesday, February 5, when the bids will be received and opened. The road is four miles long and must be completed by October 1, 1907. It is a continuation of the macadam road built last summer from Somerville to North Branch.

Freeholder Gibson moved that the road from South Bound Brook to the Middlesex county line, as petitioned to be improved under the State Road Act, and which was authorized to be surveyed by County Engineer Doughty upon the approval of the State Road Commissioner, May 19, 1906, be approved from the river bridge to the east borough line of South Bound Brook when approved by the State Road Commission. The motion was carried.

As a final stroke in the improved road question, Freeholder Codington, of Warren surveyed from a resolution, which provided that the freeholders approve the petitions for the improvement of public roads heretofore certified to the State Commissioner of Roads for his approval.

Miss May Bachelor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bachelor, after spending the winter vacation at her home on West Eighth street, has returned to Wellesley College, where she is a junior.

—Harry Randolph, of West Sixth street, has taken a position in the office department of the Plainfield Cab Company.

WANT SOMERSET CO. BUILDINGS REMOVED

PURCHASER HOWEVER, WON'T CARRY OUT AGREEMENT WITH FREEHOLDERS.

The January meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, held in the chapel of the First Reformed church, Somerville, yesterday, was devoted largely to a discussion of road improvements throughout the county as approved by State Road Commissioner Hutchinson.

Hyman Kline, represented by James L. Griggs, presented his claims in connection with his refusal to abide by the agreement in purchasing the old jail and court house. He stated that because the board failed to turn over the property to him on time he could not sell it as arranged. He asked for a reduction in the purchase price, agreeing if his request is granted, he will remove the buildings and dispose of them as best he can. The board decided to meet on Saturday, January 12, to consider the matter further.

Most of the session was taken up with the discussion of road improvements. The specifications for the construction of the public road from North Branch to the Hunterdon county line, with a spur from North Branch to the New Jersey Central station at North Branch, were presented by County Engineer Doughty. They were approved and Director Baird was authorized to advertise for bids and the freeholders will meet at Somerville, Tuesday, February 5, when the bids will be received and opened. The road is four miles long and must be completed by October 1, 1907. It is a continuation of the macadam road built last summer from Somerville to North Branch.

Freeholder Gibson moved that the road from South Bound Brook to the Middlesex county line, as petitioned to be improved under the State Road Act, and which was authorized to be surveyed by County Engineer Doughty upon the approval of the State Road Commissioner, May 19, 1906, be approved from the river bridge to the east borough line of South Bound Brook when approved by the State Road Commission. The motion was carried.

As a final stroke in the improved road question, Freeholder Codington, of Warren surveyed from a resolution, which provided that the freeholders approve the petitions for the improvement of public roads heretofore certified to the State Commissioner of Roads for his approval.

Miss May Bachelor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bachelor, after spending the winter vacation at her home on West Eighth street, has returned to Wellesley College, where she is a junior.

—Harry Randolph, of West Sixth street, has taken a position in the office department of the Plainfield Cab Company.

ACKERMAN CHAIRMAN OF BEST COMMITTEES

UNION'S SENATOR AND ASSEMBLYMEN FARE WELL IN LEGISLATURE.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman was favored Tuesday in the make-up of the committees of the State Senate. Besides being made chairman of the finance committee and of the ripa-rian rights committee, he was made second member of the committees on municipal corporations and appropriation, and was also one of a committee of three to notify Governor E. C. Stokes that the Legislature had organized and was ready for business. On joint committees Mr. Ackerman was made a member of the committees on State Hospital, Home for Feeble-Minded Women and Sanitarium for Tuberculosis.

In the Assembly the Union county members were also honored. Assemblyman Perkins was named on the Ways and Means, Federal Relations Committees and on joint committees was named on the New Jersey State Reformatory Committee. Assemblyman Tillman was put on the committees for bill revision, militia and on the joint committee for Reform School for Boys. Assemblyman Moxon was given a place on the committees for printed bills and game and fisheries and on joint committees he was named on Soldiers' Home Committee.

ALL CITIZENS ELIGIBLE TO LEAGUE OF MERCY

HOSPITAL INAUGURATES A GENERAL COLLECTION SCHEME.

The finance committee of Muhlenberg Hospital about two months ago organized the "League of Mercy of Muhlenberg Hospital," an association modelled after the well-known "League of Mercy of London," which for the many years has been so successful in raising large sums of money for the hospitals in that city. The committee had divided the city and borough into sixteen districts, placing each in charge of a president. The president of each district has divided his territory into three sub-districts and put in charge of each a vice president. Each vice president has appointed out of his sub-district five members and each of the members undertakes to secure within the year twenty subscriptions of at least twenty-five cents each. There are thus 240 members, each making collections from twenty persons, so that altogether 4,800 persons will be reached. The minimum subscription is twenty-five cents a year corresponding with the shilling subscription in London.

The finance committee is of the opinion that the League of Mercy will prove a systematic and effective method of securing subscriptions from all the people who are willing to give. The extension of the work can also be secured by increasing the number of sub-districts, thus enlarging the number of active members.

It is intended to extend the work of the league so as to include Fanwood, Scotch Plains, Dunellen, New Market and South Plainfield. One or more members in each district will take charge of the penny a day subscriptions, and steps in that direction will undoubtedly be promptly taken. The committee will announce shortly a list of the names of the presidents and vice presidents of the League of Mercy, to enable all the friends of the hospital who are willing to give towards the support of the institution a penny a day to know through whom such subscriptions can be paid. Subscriptions may also be sent direct to J. E. Erickson, the treasurer of the hospital.

LARDER THIEF SENTENCED.

Treat Given Sixty Days On Charge of Disorderly Conduct.

Ernest Treat, the young colored man who rifled W. T. Kaufman's refrigerator a month ago and escaped from Patrolman Payne only to be recaptured Monday afternoon in a West Third street poolroom, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail last night by Judge Runyon. He was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, the police were disinclined to prosecute him in a more serious charge because all his plunder had been food.

Treat denied the theft, but there was no shade of doubt in Payne's identification, and there was plenty of testimony to disprove his assertion that he had not been in town since Thanksgiving Day. Treat's reputation was also against him.

He was photographed and taken to jail this morning. Patrolman Martin guarded him on the journey down.

DEMENTIA CLAIMS THREE

Man and His Wife and Sister-in-Law, All Aged, Found in Pitiable Plight.

THEY LIVED TOGETHER

John McElroy and Eliza Sullivan Sent to Insane Asylum and Mrs. McElroy Taken to Hospital.

Suffering from senile dementia, John McElroy, eighty years old, and Eliza Sullivan, seventy-six years old, his sister-in-law, were removed from their home in Chestnut street, North Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon, to the State Asylum at Morris Plains. McElroy's wife, sister of Mrs. Sullivan, is at St. James Hospital, Newark, to where she was taken on Monday, suffering temporarily from the same affliction. She is seventy-eight years old.

The three aged sufferers were rescued from surroundings that are indescribe. They had managed to keep house without suffering until a few months ago, but suddenly their minds gave way, one after another, under the weight of years, and the home became a pitiable travesty on a place of human habitation. When the borough authorities investigated the case a week ago at the instigation of the Organized Aid Association they found the house in a fearful state of filth, and amid the dirt the white-haired and shaking trio were shivering and starving to death. Neighbors had been sending in supplies, and there was food enough and clothing enough and to spare, but none of the three had mind enough left to eat or seek warm wrappers. There was clothing enough in the house, Borough Physician Dundon reported, to have supplied half the poor in North Plainfield. Moreover, McElroy owns the house in which they lived, and is said to own other property. No money was found in the house.

Mrs. McElroy's condition is believed to be temporary. For that reason she was sent to the Newark institution. Food, warmth and rest, it is expected, will restore her mind. Her husband and sister are said to be hopelessly weak-minded. Mr. McElroy was told of the removal of husband and sister but it is doubtful if she comprehended the information.

The McElroys have lived here for years. If Mrs. McElroy recovers her mind, she will be cared for by friends in this city.

W. C. T. U. MUSICALE.

Affair to Be Held On January 17.

Under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union a fine musicale has been arranged to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Thursday night, January 17, for the benefit of the Union. The affair has been planned under the supervision of a committee of which Mrs. Peter H. Bennett is the chairman. The artists who will present the programme are as follows:

Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano soloist at the First Baptist church; Miss Florence Wohlfert, violin soloist, Westfield; Ladies' Chorus, Seventh-Day Baptist church; Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Jessie Utter, accompanists; H. Warren Rankin, magician, and the Vivo Instrumental Trio, Martin A. Korff, George Spier, violoncello; Edward Spier, violin.

The programme will be as follows: Fantaisie Surtaust, Gounod-Alard, Trio; There's Ever a Song Somewhere, John Hyatt Brewer, Miss Harris; Ale Varie, Miss Wohlfert; Andante Cantabile, from First Symphonie, Beethoven, Trio; The Lost Chord, Sullivan, Ladies' Chorus; Carman, Bizet, Trio; Hungarian Dance, Brahms, Trio; Slumber Song, Tito Mater, Miss Harris; with violin obligato by Miss Wohlfert; Andante Sostenuto, from 9 Sonata, Mozart, Trio; The Day is Done, Carter, Trio; magic, H. Warren Rankin; Gavotte, C. Bohm, Trio.

Investing Company Dinner.

To celebrate the fourth anniversary of the company's incorporation, the stockholders of the Mono Investing Company held a dinner at the Hotel Iroquois last night. Only the stockholders, a number twenty-three, were present. Everybody practised after-dinner oratory. It was said this morning that the dinner had no business significance; it was merely a commercial birthday party.

Colby Hopeful.

Everett Colby, Essex Senator, said yesterday that Senator Ackerman, of Union; Assemblyman Fake, of Bergen, and he would take no part in a caucus if Senator Dryden was a candidate. He said that only one more vote was necessary to secure Dryden's defeat, and he believed that Senator Wakelee, of Bergen, or Assemblyman Perkins, would bolt the caucus if Dryden was a candidate.

UNION'S LEGISLATORS

In Open Letter Senator and Three Assemblymen Pave Way For Harmony.

THEY MAKE AN OFFER

Will Be Bound By Caucus, If He Gets Out—Colby Comes Out For Pitney Today.

Union county's legislators today issued an open letter inviting John F. Dryden, the only avowed candidate for the United States Senate, to withdraw from the race in the interests of harmony. They promise that if he is eliminated that they will go into the party caucuses and be bound by its action. What they will do in the event of his refusal, the legislators do not say. Neither will any one of them say whether he will support Justice Pitney, of Morris county, for the place.

Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Hopkins, Tillman and Mason, whose names are attached to the open letter, met at Elizabeth today for a conference on the situation in Union county. Their letter was the result of this meeting and in it they repeat the well known fact that the great majority of the representatives of Union county are strongly opposed to the re-election of Mr. Dryden.

This is the letter:

"We believe that in order to conserve the best interests of the people of the Legislature of our State at the coming session should elect a Republican to the United States Senate. As regular Republicans we believe in the party organization. Under the conditions that confront the party at this time we think that all Republican members of the Legislature should be placed in a position so that they may enter the caucus and thus insure the election of a Republican United States Senator.

"Representing the people of Union county, it is our duty to respect their wishes. As expressed to us, the sentiment in our county is so strong and overwhelming against the re-election of Mr. Dryden that we believe a Republican other than he should be elected to that office. There is no doubt that there are many able men in our party who could fill the position with satisfaction.

"In order to clear the way to united party action, we suggest the withdrawal of the name of Mr. Dryden as a candidate and if his name be withdrawn we will enter the caucus and be bound by its action.

"RANDOLPH PERKINS,
"PETER HAMAN,
JOHN R. MOXON,
ERNEST R. ACKERMAN."

It is interesting to note in this connection that Senator Everett Colby, of Essex county, came out this morning in favor of Justice Mahlon Pitney. Heretofore the leader of the "New Idea" in the party has refused to commit himself, declaring he had no candidate but would vote for the one he considered the best man. The noteworthy thing about Mr. Colby's action is that he has endorsed the candidate originally brought out by Senator Hillery, of Morris, who has fought for him tooth and nail during the last few weeks. Hillery led Colby in the opposing parties in the celebrated joint debate during the last campaign, the Morris county man defending the party organization and the Essex county man assailing its record. To see them joined hand in hand, shows what strange things occur in politics. Pitney has announced his intention of withdrawing from the bench in April and this makes the situation all the more significant.

RECOGNIZE KINSMAN'S DEVICE.

Interstate Commerce Commission Will Investigate It.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, being credibly informed that automatic devices for preventing railroad collisions have been so far perfected as to justify thorough experimental tests of their practical usefulness, is destined to bring the F. E. Kinsman Company device prominently before the railroad world. Mr. Kinsman, who resides here, has had his device in successful operation on the express tracks of the New York Subway and is considered a complete success.

The commission is of the opinion that such tests should be conducted by officials of the Government, and at its expense. See Kinsman Company advertisement in another column.

These officers-elect of Peace Venture Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., were installed Friday by District Deputy Horace J. Martin, Sr.: Past chancellor commander, John R. Hall; chancellor commander, William Decker; vice chancellor commander, Robert Jahn; prelate, Stephen Perrine; master-at-arms, Harry Keen; inside guard, David Bowden; outside guard, Peter Stram; trustee, A. D. Pope. A social time and refreshments followed the installation.

ASK DRYDEN TO WITHDRAW

TO HELP IN MAKING DESERTS FRUITFUL

HERBERT J. DUBOIS EXPLORING NEW DITCH DIGGER.

Herbert J. Dubois, who went west with his parents a little over a year ago, has gone into business in Riverside, Cal. He is the junior member of the Kerr-Dubois Company, general contractors.

The company will manufacture a newly invented ditch digger, designed by John Thomas Kerr, the senior member of the firm. Mr. Dubois has purchased a half-interest in the invention.

The machine is eulogized by the Riverside papers, its commercial success has been demonstrated, and a big field seems to be open to it. It will move 13,000 yards of dirt in ten hours, and can be operated at different angles. Provision is made for operating it by means of a gas engine, for work across desert country where water for steam purposes could not be obtained. The cutting of irrigation ditches will be one of the principal lines in which it will be used.

In a letter to a friend here, Mr. Dubois says the machines will be supplied to contractors on a royalty basis. He says his firm cannot handle even a small part of the work awaiting the machine.

BOROUGH COUNCIL FAVORS WATCHUNG AVE. EXTENSION.

The Matter Will Be One of the First Improvements to Be Taken Up in 1907.

In the regular order of business at Friday night's Borough Council meeting, Councilman VanArsdale, who is now president of the body, spoke in favor of the extension of Watchung avenue from Codington avenue to Johnson's drive. The other members and Mayor Smalley agreed with him that this should be done and it will probably be one of the first of the big improvements to be taken up in 1907. It will not only take off a lot of the traffic now borne by Somerset street but will give a new entrance to the North Plainfield township roads and open up property now inaccessible.

John McCullough was appointed a member of the fire department as a call man to fill a vacancy and on a resolution from Mr. McGee it was voted to borrow $6,000 for current expenses. It was reported that $1,500 of Somerset street certificates would be due on February 1, with interest, and they were ordered paid.

CAST OF OPERA.

"The Chimes of Normandy" to Be Given February 7.

William Holmes, as director for the Plainfield Iperatic Association, has completed and announced the cast for "The Chimes of Normandy," to be given at the Casino on Thursday night, February 7. It is as follows:.

Serpolette, Miss Hortense Marie Sheldon; Germaine, Miss Ethel Moore; Gertrude, Miss Nora Schenck; Jeanne, Miss Eliza Dufford; Nanette, Miss Elizabeth V. Day; Suzanne, Miss Henrietta Winn; The Marquis, William J. Tallamy; Grenicheux, Elmer D. Cutting; Gaspari, William N. Runyon; The Bailli, Joseph C. Martin; Notary, John V. Todd; Registrar, Warren French; Assessor, J. B. Calder. The chorus will be of the usual excellence.

The performance will be given under the patronage of a large number of people in the city and borough, it being arranged to make all future productions subscription affairs.

Mutual Life Man Rewarded.

Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of D. E. Dudley as manager of the Boston City agency of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, one of the largest and most important branches of the company in the country. Mr. Dudley has been manager of the Baltimore agency and his appointment comes as a reward for the work of organizing the agents campaigner throughout the South during the recent election. Mr. Dudley is a few years ago married Miss Lulu French, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. French, of West Seventh street.

DEFACED DUKE ESTATE.

Two Prisoners Sentenced For Malicious Mischief by Judge Schenck.

In the Somerset County Court at Somerville, Friday, Judge Schenck sentenced some of the offenders who had pleaded guilty.

John Littlejohn and Arthur Jones, charged with assault and battery on George Coombs at Harlingen, were given three months in the county jail.

Barney Black and Tony Pasquale, charged with malicious mischief on the Duke estate, were fined $10 each and placed in charge of the probation officer for one year.

Seven boys, also charged with malicious mischief on the Duke estate and for shooting craps there, were fined from $25 to $10 each. An eighth boy was let off with a severe reprimand.

ECONOMY'S THE SLOGAN

Mayor Smalley So Informs the Borough Council in His Annual Message.

TALKS ON TAX MATTERS

Declares Improvements Asked For Cannot Be Granted Unless Municipality Is Bonded.

Meeting for the first time since reorganization, the borough Council spent the greater part of its session, Friday, in listening to a heart-to-heart talk from Mayor Smalley, regarding North Plainfield's affairs and plans for the coming year. It is the executive's custom to address his fellow-officials direct instead of handing in a written message and then to ask for suggestions from his hearers.

Economy was the key-note of his remarks last night and he took pains to impress upon the Council the fact that the borough is not rolling in wealth and that many needed improvements cannot be granted in a rush. After stating that general affairs in the municipality sometimes caused him a great deal of worry, the mayor continued:

"Our town is not made up like other towns of wealthy inhabitants. Somerville, for instance, with the same population, has a mile of business streets, all taxed on good valuations and the residential sections do not have to pay so heavily in proportion. We are located in a district of homes and farms, almost purely a place of residences, but we are called upon to pay a big tax on our valuation for county purposes, almost as much as is required for all the borough itself. For this county tax we get slight returns.

"For borough purposes last year we appropriated $21,800 and of the amount $3,000 went to the police department. We haven't any too many policemen and we can't add to the force any more than is absolutely necessary. We had $3,000 for the fire department, last year, and the cost exceeded that amount. For street work we appropriated $6,000 and spent a little more than that. In the borough the past year through private individuals more macadam was put down than in any previous year. This is especially true of the East End where a lot of good work has been done at little or no expense to the taxpayers. Mr. Hyde, for instance, deserves a lot of credit for what he has done and I hope the money he has expended will be returned to him through increased valuations. For the water supply in 1906 we paid $1,275. It doesn't seem to me that we used anywhere near that amount of water but I think we need the protection afforded by the hydrant service. For street lighting we expended $4,955 and of an appropriation of $5,000 and the poor account amounted to $1,200.

"I am telling you this," continued the Mayor, "to assert that we cannot make any improvements without issuing notes or bonds. That's why many things believed necessary are not done. Somerset street should be widened, it needs a storm sewer and new macadam and there are other things continually being asked for but I want to impress upon the Council that it means an increased tax rate or a loan to grant them. The borough needs many things but they will have to be secured by degrees and not in a lump.

"Our share, through taxes, we have to pay at once to the county, the amount it specifies for its share. We are compelled by law, also, to pay immediately the State school tax, leaving the borough to depend on the rates of collection for what it needs. As a result, we are often compelled to borrow money in anticipation of receipts, so of the money appropriated we don't get it all. Its to be regretted, but that's a true statement of existing conditions.

"During the coming year I would like to see Watchung avenue opened up from Codington avenue to Johnson's drive. It is an improvement that is needed and one that will relieve Somerset street and other thoroughfares. The matter of sewers is in the hands of a competent committee and I think the question will be answered in the near future. Personally, I believe we will know what we are to have inside of the year. The water question is now being discussed by Plainfield and North Plainfield has been asked to join in, so in a very short time everyone will have an opportunity to say what he thinks about the subject.

"In the conduct of its affairs, North Plainfield cannot be compared with Plainfield or in fact any town of its size in New Jersey. It is not a town but a residential borough and must remain on these lines. I hope the Council will bear this in mind and watch every expenditure so that in a year or more we can be in better financial condition. We are now and I am glad to state, however, that in regard to money matters we are very much better off at present than we were ten years ago. A lot of good time has been lost in the way of improvements. I hope for a change soon and trust that we can do better. What we need more than anything else is economy as the taxes are already high and the valuations have been raised far enough.

"A man in the Council should have a mind of his own and have the courage of his convictions. It has never been the custom of this Council to adjourn to a private room to discuss public matters and then come out and vote without enlightening the by. If you have anything to say, bring it out right here. You represent the people and we should do it to the best of our ability. I am always open to suggestions and will esteem it greatly if any matter you believe should be looked into is brought up in open meeting for a lobby. If you have anything to say, say it."

Following the Mayor's address, the members discussed several of his suggestions, especially the Watchung avenue extension. The new member, Barzilla R. Waldron, occupied his seat, and was an interested participant.

SELECTS INVESTIGATORS

Mayor Fisk Makes the Appointments on Water Committee Public.

ABLE MEN TO SERVE

Committee Will Meet at the Mayor's Office Next Thursday For First Survey of the Problem.

Mayor Fisk announced the makeup of the bi-municipal water investigation committee Saturday. The body is made up as follows, with Mayor Fisk as the fifteenth member: From the Common Council, Messrs. George P. Mellick, William S. Tyler, Ralph I. Tolles; appointed by the Mayor, Messrs. Harry G. Runkle, John B. Dumont, George H. Frost, Henry L. Hall, William A. Codington, Walter Scott, William R. Craig, William Newcomb, from North Plainfield, Mayor Newton B. Smalley, William L. Saunders, Justin H. Cooley.

The appointments are regarded as ideal. The membership includes representative bankers, brokers, business men, lawyers and an investor. The Councilmanic appointees are the members most prominent in the civic body.

They will meet at Mayor Fisk's office next Thursday. The Council will probably be asked for $2500 to pay the committee for its researches. Mayor Fisk suggested that amount in his message. The investigators want money enough to hire engineering experts and special counsel.

STOKES IS OUT OF RACE

Governor Says He Will Not Be a Candidate For United States Senator.

DRYDENITES HOPEFUL

"I Intend, If God Spares My Life, to Finish Out My Term," Says Mr. Stokes.

An interview with Governor Edward C. Stokes by Lathrop Anderson, a member of the Essex County Tax Board and a Colby leader, in which the Governor made a positive declaration that he was not a candidate for the United States Senate, gave some relief to the supporters of Senator Dryden, who have been saying all along that the Governor would not enter the race. Mr. Anderson visited Governor Stokes at Trenton Thursday to talk over taxation matters, and the Governor asked Mr. Anderson what the situation was in Essex.

Mr. Anderson referred to the intention of State Senator Everett Colby not to vote for Mr. Dryden's reelection. Mr. Anderson also dwelt upon the attitude of the New Idea wing of the Republicans in the matter of the senatorial fight, and finally opened up a conversation touching upon the announcements that the Governor was a candidate for the office.

"I should feel honored," Governor Stokes told Mr. Anderson, "to serve the people of New Jersey in the United States Senate, but I have never been, am not now, nor will I be a candidate for the position, and while I am Governor of this State. I was elected Governor of New Jersey, and I intend, if the Lord spares my life, to finish out my term."

Mr. Anderson expressed surprise at the Governor's statement and asked the executive whether he would object to allowing the declaration to be made public. Governor Stokes assured Mr. Anderson that he had no objection.

The Dryden supporters were cheered a little by the positive announcement that the Governor would not be a candidate against the junior Senator. For several weeks friends of the Governor have been endeavoring to have him make a definite statement as to how he stood on the question of the United States Senate, and they have kept things humming doing all they could to make possible the election of their favorite.

Mr. and Mrs. Pettit, of Staten Island, who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Winfield Decker, of West End avenue, have returned home.

BOARD OF TRADE SIGHS

Over Muddy Pavements and Business Men's Lack of Support.

A PAVEMENT PETITION

Charles W. Runyon Suggests One Signed by the Merchants—Secretary Smith Dubious Over the Prospect.

Because of the small attendance the Board of Trade postponed the election and the receipts of reports at its annual meeting Thursday. Only eleven members were present when the session began, and latecomers did not swell the attendance to more than fifteen.

While pensively waiting for symptoms of something new and active, President Woolston wondered out loudly why some action had not been taken by the city on the permanent pavement question.

"There is no sense in having all this mud in the center of town," he said. Brick could be put down as well as not, or anything else that is satisfactory for that matter."

"Did the petition to the Common Council for permanent pavement have any weight?" asked M. C. Van Arsdale.

"Apparently not," said Secretary F. H. Smith, with feeling.

"Several petitions have gone to the Council without any apparent weight," said Charles W. Runyon. "How about a petition from the business section?"

"That might be better," said Mr. Woolston.

"Very few business men would be likely to refuse to sign such petition," said Mr. Runyon.

"You might think so," said Secretary Smith, "but a good many business men don't care enough about the Board of Trade to pay $2 a year to support it and its works. Of the 132 members, not one-half are here with any vital interest in the commercial advancement of the city, and the dues are paid more readily by the commuters than by the merchants. Business men should give their weight to the Board of Trade."

"In Trenton," continued Mr. Smith, "they have decided that a Board of Trade is a detriment. They say the real estate men get jealous when an improvement scheme is afoot, and block things by boosting prices and bickerings."

"Maybe that's what's the matter here," suggested Mr. Runyon.

A discussion of members who had quit paying dues grew out of the jeremiad chorus, and it was voted to drop all delinquents after one more effort by Collector Thorn to get some cash out of them.

Then the Board heard a speech of explanation from one of the publishers of a local almanac, who had asked the body to endorse the book and help in the sales for distribution. The Board passed a resolution of endorsement and authorized the president to purchase not more than 500 copies and as many less as he saw fit. It was understood that the state of the treasury would permit the purchase of 250 copies. They cost 10 cents apiece. The Board said it would buy more if it could.

Letters were received from Congressman Charles N. Fowler and Ira Wood in response to the Board's request that they support the bill to increase the salaries of postal clerks and carriers in cities of the first and second classes. Mr. Wood said he would do all he could to further the message. Mr. Fowler said the matter would receive his "careful consideration and attention."

Jacob Weinberger and Charles Conover were elected to membership. The officers will be elected at the next meeting.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS.

New Members Sworn In—Resolution Prods Court House Purchaser.

The newly elected members of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, from North Plainfield, Montgomery and Warren townships were sworn in at noon on New Year's Day, at Somerville, by Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen. The board is now constituted as follows: Bedminster township, David Philhower; Bernards, John W. Bunn; Branchburg, Henry W. Baird; Bound Brook, Peter H. Smith; Bridgewater, Joseph Fitzgs; Franklin, Thomas E. Gibson; Hillsborough, Richard W. Hoagland; North Plainfield, William Demler; North Plainfield Borough, John W. Emmons; Warren, Joel Codington. The organization remains the same.

A resolution was adopted to the effect that Counsel John A. Frech at once take legal steps to have Hyman Wrack, who purchased the old court house and jail, remove at once. Mr. Kline declared he lost the sale of the material in the buildings because they were not turned over to him in the specified time, and now will not touch them until he has been awarded damages. Some of the new white marble to be used in the construction of the new court house, has arrived.

Mrs. Walter E. Stewart and daughter, Miss Ida Stewart, of West Seventh street, left today for California.

ARMING HIMSELF, BETTMAN DEFIES THE WHITECAPS

GOOD GOVERNMENT CLUB'S ELECTION

WILLIAM J. HAMILTON AGAIN HEAD OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD SOCIETY.

With fifty active members in attendance, the South Plainfield Good Government Club held its annual election of officers Friday. William J. Hamilton was again chosen as president, although he requested to be allowed to withdraw from the head of the organization as he has devoted a good deal of time to its projects and felt that the lead should be taken by someone else for a time, at least. The gathering was insisted, however, and he was elected unanimously by a standing vote. Mr. Hamilton is one of the most popular men in the village and the citizens are certain that with his being at the head of the Good Government Club, improvements needed by the place will be brought about.

The other officers selected were as follows: Vice president, John I. Holly; recording secretary, Harry A. Manning; treasurer, T. A. Linaberry; sergeant-at-arms, Robert Horne. The members discussed plans for raising some money to start on its work to better advantage and it was practically decided to give a minstrel show in February. The details will be worked out within the next week.

The transportation problem between Plainfield and South Plainfield will be given the major portion of the club's attention during the next few months and it has several other improvements in view that will keep the members busy until next summer.

COLUMBIA LODGE OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Public Ceremony Combined With Musical Programme By Vivo Trio.

Past Grand Master Workman Ernest Stahl, of Trenton, assisted by Deputy McGrath, of Newark, conducted a public installation of the officers-elect of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, Ancient Order Workmen, Friday night. In addition there was a fine musical programme by the Vivo Instrumental Trio, of which Martin A. Korff is the leader. During the evening there were speeches by the installing officers and Past Grand Master Workman V. W. Nash, Sr., setting forth the progress of the order during the past year. These officers were installed:

Past master workman, Peter Doeringer; master workman, Stephen H. Schleif; foreman, Joseph D. Moon; overseer, R. V. Kinney; guide, John Calder; financier, Frank Putnam; receiver, Robert Loughlin; inside watchman, John L. Bleckner; outside watchman, Michael Kohler.

After the installation a committee consisting of Stephen H. Schleif, J. W. A. Bauersachs and John G. Bicknell served refreshments and a social time followed.

HARWOOD FROST WILL EDIT NEW MAGAZINE.

"Technical Literature" the Name of Monthly Publication to Appear on January 15.

"Technical Literature," is the name of a new magazine which will make its appearance in New York on January 15. For the present it will be under the editorship and management of Harwood Frost, of Woodland avenue, son of George H. Frost, editor of the Engineering News, of New York.

The magazine will be devoted to the review of all current technical articles in all branches of such knowledge. There are now about 400 English, French and American magazines devoting space to information about twenty-four branches of technical work, and it is the purpose of the new magazine to review the most important under each division, including the work of engineers, machine tool operators, steamfitters, masons, builders, contractors, surveyors and railroad work in general.

Harwood Frost, who will assume the management of the magazine, has for the past few years been in charge of the circulation and book department of the Engineering News Company, of New York, at which place the offices of the new magazine will be located. He was graduated from Lehigh University, Class '03, in the mechanical engineering department. Two years later he received the bachelor science degree at McGill University, Montreal, and during the previous eight years resided in London, Eng., where he continued his studies and was interested in the iron business.

Joint Installation of Officers.

There was a joint installation of the officers-elect of Veteran Corps, Union Veteran Union, and the Women's Relief Corps at the headquarters on East Front street, last Friday. The officers of the command were installed by John Naylor, and those of the auxiliary by Mrs. Sarah Davis, of Jersey City, department president. The installation was public and was largely attended. After the business there were addresses by the officers and refreshments were served. There was also an informal programme of music.

Man Ordered to Leave Fanwood to Post Notices That He Will Defend His Life.

WILL NOT QUIT PLACE

Printed Notice to His Alleged Enemies, States That Mayor Would Refuse Permit, But He Has Authority to Carry Gun.

By the printing of notices in a Perth Amboy establishment, it became known today that C. A. Bettman, of Fanwood, bids open defiance to the "Vigilant Committee of the State of New Jersey," which placarded the borough with warnings for him to leave town under threats of vivisection if he remained. Though many of the residents regarded the action of the "Whitecaps" in the light of a joke, Mr. Bettman has been subjected to such annoyance that he regards it differently and in the answer which he has had prepared he announces that he has taken every means to protect himself and that the members of the committee can go ahead with its plans as soon as it pleases. His letter of defiance, which is evidently to be posted about the borough has was the one to him, reads as follows:

"NOTICE!

"To the Vigilant Committee of the State of New Jersey: I will not absent myself from the Borough of Fanwood as ordered by you, except as circumstances may require. Doubtless some of you being closely associated with the borough officials or government are aware that the Mayor would refuse me a permit to carry a weapon and as His Honor is not the supreme authority to do so I have obtained such permit and am amply prepared to defend myself. Gladly welcome you to execute your threats at the earliest possible moment (if you can) and trust that the exigences of the case will permit you to attempt it soon. I will be in Fanwood as freely and frequently as I may.

"C. A. BETTMAN."

COMPANY K FAIR.

Preparing For the Fourth Annual Event.

Details are rapidly being perfected for the fourth annual fair of Co. K to be held in the armory on West Front street from January 26 to February 2. These fairs have always been successful and the patronage has been liberal. It is planned to have many new features this year to attract the friends of the company. The floor is being generally repaired and put in fine condition for dancing and nothing will be left undone in making the event one of the best in the history of the company.

The general committee in charge consists of Sergeants Charles Peterson, Albert Tranchand; Corporals J. Niles, DeCamp, Sampson; Privates Rothberg, Bembrook, Ford, Hartpence, Morton, Seaman, Weigman, Dayton and Dow.

Boom in the East End.

The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company has acquired ten acres of land located between Leland and Berkley avenue, in the East End of the city, and are planning to build a number of dwellings there in the spring. There is room in the tract for eighty houses, but the company proposes to build as the demand appears. Judging from the present outlook there is considerable activity in real estate and the demand for homes will be large during the year. For the purpose of meeting it, the company is making arrangements to erect a number of houses.

Wedded at St. Mary's.

Edward Richards, of Manson place, and Mrs. Rose McLean, of Netherwood, were quietly married in St. Mary's church at 2 o'clock New Year's afternoon. Father Bogan performed the ceremony and only the necessary witnesses were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Richards are now at Northampton, Mass., on their honeymoon and on their return will reside on Manson place for the winter.

The 57th Physician.

Dr. Harry V. Hubbard, of Barnard, Vt., has located at 110 East Fifth street. He is a graduate of the University of Vermont, medical department, practiced in Vermont eight years, and since then completed a post-graduate course in New York. He is a specialist in ear, eye, nose and throat troubles.

Mr. VanEmburgh Again Appointed.

H. G. VanEmburgh, of this city, received his tenth appointment as engineer of Roselle borough, last night. He was also appointed engineer of Fanwood township at the meeting of the township committee Tuesday afternoon.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Macintyre, of West Front street, has recovered from an illness.

CRYING SHELLS OF CEYLON.

Sounds They Make Like the Notes of an Aeolian Harp.

Sir J. Emerson Tennent, having heard a story about musical sounds issuing from the lake at Batticaloa, in Ceylon, paid a visit to the place, says Chambers' Journal. The fishermen told him that the sounds, which resembled the faint sweet notes of an aeolian harp, were heard only at night and during the dry season, were most distinct when the moon was nearest the full, and proceeded, they believed, not from a fish, but from a shell called the "crying shell."

"In the evening," says Tennent, "when the moon rose, I took a boat and accompanied the fishermen to the spot. We rowed about 200 yards northeast of the jetty by the fort gate; there was not a breath of wind or a ripple except those caused by the dip of our oars. On coming to the point mentioned I distinctly heard the sounds in question. They came up from the water like the gentle thrills of a musical chord, or the faint vibrations of a wineglass when touched by a moistened finger. It was not one sustained note, but a multitude of tiny sounds, each clear and distinct in itself; the sweetest treble mingling with the deepest bass.

"On applying the ear to the woodwork of the boat the vibration was greatly increased in volume. The sounds varied considerably at different points as we moved across the lake, as if the number of the animals from which they proceeded was greatest in particular spots, and occasionally we rowed out of hearing of them altogether, until on returning to the original locality the sounds were at once renewed. This fact seems to indicate that the causes of the sounds, whatever they may be, are stationary at several points, and this agrees with the statement of the natives that they are produced by molluscs and not by fish.

"They came evidently and sensibly from the depth of the lake, and there was nothing in the surrounding circumstances to support the conjecture that they could be the reverberation of noises made by insects on the shore conveyed along the surface of the water, for they were loudest and most distinct at points where the nature of the land and the intervention of the fort and its buildings precluded the possibility of this kind of conduction."

Against Hard Proposition.

Herbert Knox Smith, the brilliant deputy of the bureau of corporations, said in Washington a propos of certain illegal acts: "Those acts are illegal, but they constitute no insult to the law at the perpetrators. I am afraid it can't. For these men are poor, and monetary punishments are the only one the law can take. The law, I am afraid, is in the position of a certain housewife, I heard of the other day.

"This housewife, a strict woman, said to a new maid, 'I forgot to tell you, Maudie, that if you break anything, I'll have to take it out of your wages.'

"But Maude, whose two days had heartily sickened of her berth, replied with a merry laugh: 'Do it, ma'am, do it. I've just broke the hundred-dollar vase in the parlor, and if you can take that out of your wages—for I'm leavin' at the end of the week—why, you'll be mighty clever.'"

Honey Is Nutritious.

"Honey, one of the most nutritious and delicate of foods, should be eaten more than it is," said a cooking expert. "Brought in the comb, it is bound to be unadulterated, and this pure honey will keep its friends free from sore throat and bronchial troubles. I have not had a sore throat for six years and I attribute it to eating honey. My doctor tells me he often recommends honey with excellent results for diseases of the throat. Honey is excellent to use instead of sugar for sweetening cakes. It gives the cakes a most delightful flavor. It is also excellent in place of butter on hot biscuit, on toast and on buckwheat cakes.

"I know a number of women who use honey as a cosmetic. They apply it to the skin, rub it in well, then wash it off with hot water. The result is a finer-textured complexion, a glowing fresh look."

John Doyle's Generosity.

The late William Plummer, of Newburyport, who was a contractor and mason, had in his employ as a tender an Irishman named John Doyle. One day John went to Mr. Plummer and said he was in trouble, as he had lost his account book.

"Why," said Mr. Plummer, "you cannot read or write, and how could you keep an account book?"

"Well," said John, "I had a nail keg in the cellar, and when I worked a whole day I put a potato in the keg, and half a potato for a half-day. My pig got into the cellar and ate the potatoes."

"Very well," said Mr. Plummer, "I have your account, and will look it over." On doing so, he found that John had overdrawn 50 cents. He told John that he had drawn 50 cents more than was due him, when John said: "Well, Mr. Plummer, it's a small amount, and you are welcome to it."

Always One End.

It's easy to name the winner of an argument in which a man's words are pitted against a woman's tears.

The Muck Raker.

The man who contends that the world is growing worse always goes about armed with a muck rake.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A luxury becomes a necessity after you get used to it.

Easy street's sunny side isn't paved with good intentions.

The average woman would rather be married than happy.

Some men get rich because of their ability to separate fools and their coin.

Don't get the ideas into your cranium that women have a monopoly of curiosity.

It is unfortunate that all men are liars—but it is fortunate that all women know it.

Many a man's ability to put on a good front is due to his wife's ability as a washerwoman.

The cost of a thing doesn't worry the man whose conscience will permit him to beg, borrow or steal.

It's an easy matter to size up a man if his dog crawls under the house every time he sees him approaching.

When a man tells you how you ought to run your business just take a look at the way he is running his own.

It sometimes comes to pass that a man and his wife refuse to apply for a divorce because they actually love each other.

A man who has been married three times says it is almost as easy to please a woman during courtship as it is difficult to please her after marriage.—Chicago News.

BY THE GENTLE CYNIC.

The human race is full of "also rans."

Drinking to drown sorrow is merely feeding a fire with alcohol.

Never bluntly call a man a liar. Break the news to him gently.

Adam couldn't have been a poet, because poets are born, not made.

Fame is sometimes a bubble that comes from blowing our own horn.

Some of us never have an opportunity of knowing when we have enough.

A snapshot photograph often demonstrates that truth is stranger than fiction.

Even when a man has taking ways, he might cultivate a few bringing-back ones.

We never admire a man for the enemies he has made if we happen to be among them.

Some people get such swollen heads from their religion that their haloes won't fit them when they get to Heaven.

SIGNS OF DETERIORATION.

When cohomonness doesn't trouble you.

When you are satisfied with mediocrity.

When you begin to think your father is an old fogy.

When you can listen without a protest to indecent stories.

When you do not make a confidant of your mother, as you once did, or are ill at ease with her.

When you can work untroubled in the midst of confused, systemless surroundings which you might remedy.

When your ambition begins to cool, and you no longer demand the same standard of excellence that you once did.

When you begin to associate with people whom you would not think of taking to your home, and whom you would not want the inmebers of your family to know that you know.—O. S. Marden, in Success Magazine.

BY THE WAY.

Women and wine disagree on one point; age improves the latter.

Do not let your hatreds get on your mind, keep them on your hands.

The man who thinks cannot help but grow old, but not always gracefully.

To succeed you must become convinced that your business is the most important thing on earth.

The difference between what you ask and what you get represents the fluctuating value of property.

What use would a woman have for a husband if it were not for the comfort of a quarrel now and then?

Vacations are principally useful because they license the luxury of wearing a dirty shirt once in a while.

For a busy personage commend us to the young man who is not used to cigars and who attempts to smoke one and drive a balky horse at the same time.—Uncle Dick in Madison Journal.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Aletta Hug, of Centerville, is spending a week with Plainfield relatives.

Mrs. W. B. Maxson and daughter, Miss Maxson, are guests at the Hotel Astor, New York.

Miss Lillian Webster, of Royce-field, has returned home after a visit with friends in town.

Mrs. Gilbert Fletcher, of West Seventh street, has recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Miss Mary Smith, of Somerville, has returned home after spending the past week in this city.

Mrs. George Hoagland, of Frankfort, has been visiting the Misses Demarest, of Park avenue.

Mrs. William VanDuyne, of the borough, has returned from a visit with friends at Somerville.

Miss Anna VanFleet, of Somerville, has been visiting friends in Plainfield for several days.

David Sharp, of the borough, who has been visiting relatives at Centerville, has returned home.

Miss Eva Dunavan, of East Second street, who has been detained at home by illness, is convalescing.

Andrew Vanderbeek and son, Roy, of the borough, were recent visitors among relatives on South Branch.

Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, of East Second street, who has been detained at home by illness, is much better.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher, of Dunellen, will soon move to this city, where they will reside in the future.

B. T. Barnes, formerly of this city, but now of New York, has returned after a visit with relatives in town.

City Treasurer W. F. Arnold, who has been detained at home with an attack of the grip, is much improved.

Mrs. Robert McDonald, of Newark, has been the guest of Mrs. F. M. Slater, of Jackson avenue.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, has returned to Cornell University after the Christmas vacation.

Mrs. Fred Ivamy, of West Second street, is at Muhlenberg Hospital, where she underwent an operation.

Rev. and Mrs. George Angleman, of Sussex, have returned after a visit of several days with relatives here.

Mrs. F. M. Ward, formerly of the borough, but now of New York, is visiting friends in town for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woolston, of the borough, have leased an apartment in the Stirling building on Park avenue.

Miss Naomia Staats, of Bound Brook, an operator at the local telephone exchange, is detained at home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. h. Campbell, of Cherryfield, Maine, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. S. Zelie, of Park avenue.

Augustus Moore, of the borough, who has been detained at home with an attack of the grip, as able to be out again.

John Shotwell, a former resident of this city, but now living in Canada, has been visiting relatives and friends here.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, who has been at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., has returned home.

Miss Dorothy Waldo, a student at Mt. Holyoke College, has returned after spending the holiday season at her home on West Eighth street.

Miss Conant, who is a student at Abbott Academy, Andover, Mass., is spending the holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo G. Conant.

The Week of Prayer starts tonight in the Baptist church; services will be held every evening this week. Topic for tonight's meeting will be "The Church of the Living God."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard and Miss Ethel Titsworth, of West Fifth street, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City. Will you tell me how I may prove conclusively its genuineness?' 'Just soak it,' said the scientist, 'for 24 hours in alcohol. If it is genuine, it will disappear.'"

Miss Margaret Kenny, of East Second street, a sutdent at Barnard College, New York, will return to her studies on Monday, after spending the holiday season at home.

Although constantly improving the physician in charge does not think it advisable for Rev. Dr. J. A. Chadwick to occupy his pulpit at the First Baptist church tomorrow.

Miss Ethel Searing, of Park avenue, who has been spending her holiday vacation at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Zimmer, of East Orange, returned home yesterday.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Grace Baker Garretson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Garretson, and George Lewis Welsh, both of East Millstone. The couple has many friends in this city.

Harry Bush, a former member of the fire department, who has been laid up at his home in Orchard place for several months, is now able to go out. Except for a slight weakness in his back, due to the injuries he received while helping to a fire, his condition is much improved.

Among the students from Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., who are spending their vacations at their homes, are Miss King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. King, of Watchung avenue; Miss Hope Ivins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, of Hillside avenue, and Miss Lucy Budlong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Budlong, of Madison avenue.

QUIET STREAM OF ANTIETAM

Pretty Little Brook on Whose Banks Was Fought Most Terrific Battle in American Annals.

But for the most terrific battle in the annals of American wars a pretty little stream that flows through the heart of Maryland would be unknown beyond its immediate locality. Winding sluggishly down from the Pennsylvania hills, it bends romantically in its course, now past the ancient mill, under its quaint bridges, stone-arched, singing on its way through sun and shadow and, like Tennyson's brook, going on forever.

There is no more picturesque part of our country than that through which the Antietam flows. It skirts the most beautiful farms of Maryland, laves the rounded limbs of the kine while they drink, in the shadows of the trees that line its banks, and finally loses itself in the broad Potomac.

Time was, and not very long ago, when the farmers of the Antietam, fording its shallows, dreamed not of the great drama to be enacted there. No tourists from afar sought this entrancing region and the barefoot fisher-boy, also oblivious of its beauties, angled for eel with the patience of the renowned Izaak Walton.—From "Where the Antietam Flows," by Thomas C. Harbaugh, in Four-Track News.

HIS REMARK QUITE UNKIND

Caddy's Comment Failed to Give Satisfaction to Golfer Already Disconsolate.

Walter J. Travis, the golfer, set up his back yard when made a half dozen swishes at the short grass with the driver.

"I am not in good form," he said. "I am playing like a broker we had here last week.

"The broker played once around, making a dreadful exhibition of himself. Of this, though, he was not aware. He was doing pretty well for him.

"The man's caddy was an unusually quiet, stolid lad, a boy with a freckled face quite devoid of expression.

"And since the caddy never once laughed or sneered at his bad play the broker took a fancy to him. And he said at the end of the round, in the hope of getting a compliment:

"'I have been traveling for the last six months. I am quite out of practice. That is why I am in such bad form to-day.'

"The caddy replied calmly:

"'Then ye've played before, have ye, sir?'"

Kindling Wood as Diet.

John Maginn, a well-educated Londoner, has gone Americans one better. Among our list of raw foods and health foods are canes that closely resemble excelsior in taste and food value, but it was left to the above-named crank to discover that wood, ordinary kindling wood, is an excellent food and medicine. Maginn chews bits of wood as any ordinary sane being would chew a delicious bit of tenderloin, and he hypnotizes himself into believing that it is superior to the best brown bread in flavor.

Unfortunately, the doctors stopped the fool, as we are told, that he was slowly committing suicide. It would have been better if he had been allowed to go on, so that his ultimate death might serve as a warning.—Health.

The Scientific Method.

"George Bernard Shaw," said an editor, "likes to poke fun at scientists. He ridicules the high regard in which scientists are held. He says if a clergyman dares to make a startling assertion, he is disbelieved and reviled, whereas the rashest, the most unfounded claims of scientists are accepted reverently by the world as so much gospel. Mr. Shaw once declared to me that the utility of scientists was founded on the fact that was a typical scientist to whom a young man took a superb cigarette holder of clouded amber. 'Some one claims,' said the young man, 'that this amber is imitation, sir. Will you tell me how I may prove conclusively its genuineness?' 'Just soak it,' said the scientist, 'for 24 hours in alcohol. If it is genuine, it will disappear.'"

The Goose That Lays the Pay Check.

The railroad men of this country are good and patriotic citizens; they are representative members of the communities in which they reside; they stand for a class of workingmen who generally think before they act, who weigh both sides of a question before deciding. They are as anxious to cleanse corporate life from graft and favoritism as the most radical modern reformer, but they will resent, and that most strenuously, any course of policy outlined by those who have the destinies of the nation in hand that will tend to "kill the goose that lays the pay check."—Railroad Employee.

Just Possible.

Clara—I wish I could believe what he says, but—

Maude—What does he say?

Clara—Why, he says he loves me, yet he has only known me two days.

Maude—Well, perhaps that's the reason.

One Great Advantage.

"Of what benefit to society will the discovery of the north pole be?"

"Well," answered the scientist, "for one thing, it may put a stop to the loss of life and property among the explorers who want to be the first there."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 12: "Selfishness in Prayer."—Luke xi, 5-7.

By REV. WALTER J. SAYER, D. D.

Passages for reference—Job xxvii, 8-10; Isa. i, 15; Luke xviii, 10-14; xx, 47; James iv, 3.

How much there is that goes under the name of prayer which really has not one element of true prayer in it!

How much there is in real prayer more than most have ever understood!

Is prayer asking for things? This is all that many have ever seen in it, and all the praying which multitudes have done has been in the time of trouble, when they were hard pressed, to ask for help out of the difficulty. We have seen not a few who have been apparently near death and, realizing that their lives had been misspent, have been afraid to die and so have cried hard and long to God to spare them, promising if they could only get well they would lead a far different life. Some of these have been spared and God, if in the great majority of cases there was no change in their lives from the old track. The former companions and practices were resumed, and no amendment took place. Was that prayer? Was it prayer at all? It may have been, and the real difficulty may have been in a different place. But we are increasingly suspicious of the praying which merely asks for things because afraid or selfishly concerned for ourselves and ours.

There is the possibility of such communion with God in prayer that the soul loses all special care and will as to the direction of the affairs of life and has a peaceful indifference which way things go only so that the glory of God be seen.

James is very emphatic in his declaration regarding the asking amiss. Is there not much of such asking in this present time? Is it to be feared if much of the so called praying of the present time was analyzed and reduced to its proper elements it would be found made up of a combination of pride, fear and selfishness.

What, then, shall we never ask for things, shall we not bring all our needs to God and expect help? Most certainly we can and should make all our wants known to Him and trust Him to supply our every need. We should in coming to Him believe that He is constantly supplying us with the desirable things of life. We should recognize His hand as dispensing all our benefits and His fatherly care as over all the works of His own hand and should trust Him, and the greatest strength comes for our daily burden bearing from this same confidence that He knows our needs and will supply them. But with all this our seeking should not be for our comfort, our profit, our pleasure, our advancement and honor, not even for the material things of daily life, as much as for the quiet mind and the coming of the divine kingdom into our hearts and lives.

Have you ever given close study to the Lord's Prayer? If not, it will pay you to study all its parts carefully. It is our model prayer, showing us how to approach God.

There is, first, adoration—"Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name." That is the first thing to desire and to ask. Do you wish this above all things possible besides? Is God's glory more to you than your own pleasure and profit? Then proceed. If it is not the supreme object of your desire, you would well pause here and master this selfishness of yours before you go on to ask anything more, for it is doubtful if you can receive the other things before this point is settled. There are law and rule in spiritual things as truly as in the natural world, and until you are in proper condition of soul to receive nothing can be imparted.

"Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." So go on with the whole prayer. Occasionally examine yourself and your desires in the light of this analysis and see how much of the right spirit you have and how much of the selfishness which defeats all good.

If you have been self seeking, correct it and rest in God for all that He can impart.

Gems in Brief.

Pray for a short memory as to all unkindness.—Spurgeon.

Give what you have. To some it may be better than you dare to think.—Longfellow.

Bind together your spare hours by the cord of some definite purpose.—William M. Taylor.

When God beckons you forward He is always responsible for the transport. —D. L. Moody.

Nothing reveals a man's character more fully than the spirit in which he bears his limitations.—Mabie.

The end of life is to be like God, and the soul following God will be like unto Him.—Socrates.

We are farthest away from God when we cannot perceive Him in our fellow beings.—Lucy Larcom.

When any one has offended me I try to raise my soul so high that the offense cannot reach it.—Descartes.

It's no use talking about the way you bear the cross if you're unduly anxious to get hold of the little end of the log.—Henry F. Cope.

Turn your sorrows outward into currents of sympathy and deeds of kindness, and they will become a stream of blessings.—Cuyler.

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.—Bovee.

Never tell evil of a man if you do not know it for a certainty, and if you know it for a certainty then ask yourself, "Why should I tell it?"—Lavater.

The power of going out of oneself and seeing and appreciating whatever is made and loving to employ it one of God's best gifts.—Thomas Hughes.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 13.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—How God's image is preserved in us or lost.—Gen. i, 26; Col. iii, 1-10. (A temperance topic.)

The dignity of man has been recognized and emphasized from many different standpoints. We look at his physical makeup and we "stand in the wonderfulness of his body; we examine his intellectual attributes and are still more surprised; we behold the workmanship of his hands under the direction of his mind and gaze in wonder and in admiration. Under this spell we feel like exclaiming with the psalmist, "Thou hast made him a little lower than gods and hast crowned him with glory and honor; Thou hast put all things under his feet." But nothing that man can say or think begins to express the majesty of man as it is set forth in the Scriptural assertion that he has been created in the image of God. "And God said, Let us make man in our own image, after our own likeness. * * * So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him." Here we see the highest glory and dignity of man—created in the image of God!

The story of man in his relation to the image of God may be told in three chapters.

1. Man was created in the image of God. This does not refer to his physical appearance. God is a spirit, and man's likeness to Him consists in his possession of the attributes that characterize the spiritual nature of God—His mental, moral and spiritual qualities. God thinks, and man was created with the power to think; God is perfectly holy in all His moral attributes, and man was created in perfect holiness; God is spiritual, and man was created with a spiritual nature as well as a physical one. Under these conditions of perfect likeness God and man lived upon terms of the most familiar character. God walked with man in the garden in which He had placed him. He talked with man, and their intercourse was like that between man and man today. Would that it ever might have remained so and that man might have escaped separation from God, with all its attending woes and sorrows!

2. The image of God in man was disfigured by sin. The perfect man was tempted, and, yielding to the temptation, the image of God in him was grossly marred. He still possesses the same attributes as God, but no longer in the perfection that God possesses them. His thoughts are evil and his imagination vain. He still has a moral nature, but it is corrupted with sin. There is still a spiritual side to his character, but he no longer lives in perfect spiritual communion with God. His spiritual nature is dead with sin and his manhood degraded. And all is the result of sin, yet man persists in sin. There is no picture in life so sad to look upon as the image of God debased and degraded by the practice of sin. And nowhere perhaps is this debasement so perceptible as in the case of drunkenness. To see a man under the influence of intoxicating liquor and to remember that he possesses the image of God should forever make this particular sin loathsome to us and forever guard us against falling a victim to this prevalent, but most degrading vice.

3. The image of God disfigured by sin may be restored in Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Through Adam the image of God in all the human race was marred, but in Christ it may be restored. In Adam all died, in Christ all may be made alive. The blessed news of the gospel is that in Christ we may "be renewed in knowledge after the image of Him who created us." Have we been renewed? Have we received again the perfect image of God in Christ or do we still possess the marred image of God? It should take no time for us to decide that we should accept Christ and His work for us, that we may have the perfect image of our God and once again live in closest fellowship and communion with Him.

BIBLE REFERENCES.

Gen. v, 1; Ps. viii, 1-8; c, 1-3; Acts xvii, 22-32; Rom. vii, 18-25; xiv, 14-23; 1 Cor. xi, 17; Gal. v, 16-26; Eph., iv, 17-24; ii, 10.

Vermont's Seal.

Through the kindness of Miss Grace M. Young, secretary of the Vermont Christian Endeavor union, we are able to show this year the attractive seal used by Vermont state officers upon their envelopes, says the Christian Endeavor World. The seal was designed by the ex-secretary of the union, Miss Helen Graves. It has three divisions grouped about the Christian Endeavor monogram, representing the three great thoughts of Christian Endeavor—consecration, symbolized by the cross; fellowship, symbolized by the church, and service, symbolized by the garnered wheat. The date is that of the formation of the Vermont Christian Endeavor union and the whole is appropriately printed in green, the color of the Green Mountain State.

VERMONT STATE C. E. SEAL.

RUSSIAN SAYINGS.

He who is on horseback no longer knows his own father.

When the ass bears too light a load, he wants to lie down.

Man carries his superiority inside, animals theirs outside.

Where there are no fish even a crayfish calls himself a fish.

The nobleman is always in the right when the peasant sues.

If the thunder is not loud the peasant forgets to cross himself.

When the scabbards are broken we can no longer hide our sabers.

That which is taken in with the milk only goes out with the soul.

One whip is enough for a good horse, for a bad one not a thousand.

When the priest visits you do not be overjoyed; he will soon begin to beg.

No matter how much you feed a wolf he will always return to the forest.

He is a fool who avoids the place where he has aforetime broken his nose.

When you go to law against the emperor God himself should be the judge.

GEMS.

No one is defeated until he gives up.

Hard times has a good many relatives. It is the twin brother of the blues.

That man has failed who has not been able to keep a good opinion of himself.

Self-control will succeed with one talent, where self-indulgence will fail with ten.

What the superior man seeks is in himself; what the small man seeks is in others.

Poverty itself is not so bad as the poverty thought. It is the conviction that we are poor and must remain so that is fatal.

Confidence is the Napoleon in the mental army. It doubles and trebles the power of all the other faculties. The whole mental army waits until confidence leads the way.—Success Magazine.

PASTE JEWELS.

Fortune loves to turn him down who waits for something to turn up.

Money talks—but only to those who have silver ear trumpets.

A truly discreet person knows when not to know anything.

But a rolling stone doesn't often get catalogued with the mossbacks.

The cream of Christianity can only rise from the milk of human kindness.

She that lets her heart go for a song soon realizeth the world's scorn of bargains.

He that looks backward too much gradually gets out of the habit of moving forward.

You don't catch the woman with the new baby wasting any time on the how-to-be-beautiful stunts in the Sunday supplement.—N. O. Picayune.

PUCKERINGS.

Why is it that humorists and monkeys always look so serious?

It is difficult at times to believe that the doctrine of the survival of the fittest applies to politics.

Considering how many millions of microbes there are, the competition among them must be tremendous.

Some people have sense, but more haven't. This is not more true in polite society than elsewhere. The peculiarity of polite society is that there the people who haven't sense set the pace.

The way people keep on marrying and giving in marriage, in the face of all the statistics, shows only too clearly that this matter of a sucker being born every minute is quite in accordance with the laws of heredity.—Puck.

MEMS FOR MOTHERS.

Don't hang heavy curtains at the windows; let the sunshine pour in.

Don't comb a child's hair too much. Brush it carefully with a soft brush.

Don't expect children to be beautiful unless they are healthy, happy and contented.

Don't have any carpets on the bedroom floors; use rugs instead. Have few hangings and fewer ornaments.

Don't think a child can have brightness of eyes, clearness, softness and smoothness of skin without good food, though it should be only of a plain kind.—Chicago American.

The Constitutionalist

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1907

STINGY TREATMENT.

It was a wise recommendation on the part of Mayor Fisk that the Board of Education raise the salaries of Plainfield's school teachers. It is an actual fact that bod-carriers and other laborers are better paid today than are these self-sacrificing, painstaking and energetic men and women. As the Mayor says in his message: "The cost of living has largely increased within a few years, and the business world is giving general recognition to this fact by raising salaries as is shown by the action of the directors of one corporation after another." The teacher ought to receive similar recognition and share in the general prosperity."

In response to our invitation for citizens to express their opinions regarding the various features of the message, a communication has been received bearing on this very point. The correspondent takes exception to the shabby treatment given the teachers, and declares that the earnings of many poor vants are more than those of the average pedagogue.

"Some people divide the teacher's salary by the number of school days," says the writer, "and think the payment is large, but the teacher has to pay board and other living expenses the whole year and the salary should be divided by the number of working days in the year to get its real value. The maximum salary for grade teachers in Plainfield is $650 or about $2 a day and only a part of the teacher's that get as much as this, some getting as low as $1.60.

"The teacher must have a boarding place or a comfortable room where she can study and do her work, and such places charge a high price in Plainfield; then the teacher is required to dress well and to meet many expenses that are not required of workers in other lines of work. It is not an uncommon thing for a new teacher to find at the end of the year that she has no balance left after paying her expenses.

"The servant in many a household has more time for her work at the end of the year than the teacher upon whose faithfulness and efficiency the future of our children depends. Plainfield has an unusually high grade of teachers, who ought to be paid accordingly and it is to be hoped that the Board of Education will follow the Mayor's recommendation. The time is especially opportune, as the Mayor's message shows, because the addition of $1,000,000 to the Legislature last winter has brought into the state school fund about two million dollars from the railroad taxes which make it possible to raise the teachers' salaries without affecting the tax rate."

SITE FOR CITY HALL.

When properly directed economy means wealth, but false economy never did and never will. So long as anyone, whether he be an individual or a corporation, remains a tenant there is false economy pure and simple. Certainly is this true of a municipality. A city is losing money every day it pays rent, for rental-increase as time advances and in the contemplating and building substantial to show for its expenditures.

For that reason, the sooner Plainfield becomes its own landlord the better. Council of Yesterday is not in a position to build a town hall just at the present time, but surely it is able to secure the necessary ground. There are several desirable properties in the heart of the business section, any one of which would make an ideal site. The tendency of the real estate market is the last few years has been decidedly upward. There is every prospect that this upward movement—in palace will be permanent for a strong boom is on in and Plainfield is enjoying an era of prosperity unparalleled in its history.

Considering the existing conditions the best interests of the city would be served by the purchase of a desirable site. Get the lot now and build on it just as soon as the finances of the city will permit.

A FARCE—COMEDY.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley has never been accused of not having the courage of his convictions. The fact is that his frankness of speech has always been his chief characteristic, and it has earned for him esteem from even his bitterest political enemies. He calls a spade a spade and every time he strikes he generally hits the nail on the head. Friday night he left the Plainfield Common Council. Probably he had no intention of doing so, but his remarks were so apropos to existing conditions in this city that he will be given credit for having our Common Council in mind when he said to his own Council:

"A man in the Council should have a mind of his own and have the courage of his convictions. It has never been the custom of this Council to adjourn to a private room to discuss public matters and then come out and vote without enlightening the lobby. If you have anything to say, bring it out right here. You represent the people and we should do it to the best of our ability. I am always open to suggestions and will esteem it greatly if any matter you believe should be looked into is brought up in open meeting for a good, common sense discussion."

Those who have never attended a meeting of the Plainfield Common Council can hardly appreciate how very fitting this rebuke is. When any real business is to be transacted, some member of the body will arise with a very serious expression and solemn voice move that the grave legislators go into executive session for "six minutes." There is a chorus of "ayes," and the men who are legislating for 18,000 people slowly file into a little anteroom which, judging by its furniture, one would say is a grill room of a hotel or a smoking room of a theatre. Half an hour or so later, these eleven men, if it so happens that there is a full Council, march back to their seats and with due process of allowing interested citizens to hear a vote taken, or more often a motion to lay on the table regarding some very important piece of business. The stranger would never imagine that the eleven men were transacting public business. It would be more natural for him to suppose that it was a meeting of the directors of some close corporation, whose deliberations were none of the public's business.

If President Daniel wants to abolish an outrageous custom, he should use his good offices in convincing the Common Council of 1907 that a little side room, with closed doors, is no place to perform the city's business.

TEACHERS' PAY AGAIN.

All over the country more just treatment of the teachers', the moulders of the rising generation, is at last being given. The people have awakened to the fact that the pedagogue is comparatively speaking the poorest paid individual there is to be found in the various walks of life. In the current number of the American Review of Reviews is a most timely article on this subject and it will well repay the members of the Common Council and of the Board of Education to peruse it carefully.

From the article in question we note:

"Never have the schools of this country had so important a part to play in our civilization as at the present time, and nothing else is so important about the schools as the qualification and character of the teachers. Monthly or yearly rates of payment of teacher that seemed ample 15 or 20 years ago are insufficient now. This is true with respect to the public schools, and it also applies to higher institutions, where the salaries of professors ought to be made sufficient to attract and hold a superior class of men. The problem is a very serious one, and it deserves more consideration throughout the country. If there is one reason stronger than another why the taxing power should lay a firmer hand upon the growing wealth of great corporations and upon the income of vast private fortunes, it is because the state must adequately perform its responsible task of education.

"If there is to the compulsory attendance of schools, there must be schools worth the attending, and ample provision for all the children. If there is to be extension of child labor laws and better enforced exclusion of children from factories, mines, and various gainful employments, there must be developed such a system of education as to add immensely to the efficiency of the child when at a later age, he joins the army of the bread winners. Let us repeat, then, that the central fact in the school system is the teacher, and that we cannot expect to have the right sort of schools in the long run without paying them enough to justify them in regarding their profession as a permanent calling rather than a temporary makeshift."

TO MR. TYLER.

The people know that you are "on your job" and that you always have been. As chairman of the public affairs committee of the Common Council your best efforts will be given in solving such important problems as may be presented from time to time. There is work now for your committee. Overhead wires are only a disfigurement to the city streets but a real menace to the inhabitants. Particularly is this so of the big feed wire running through Second street. You can do a public service, Mr. Tyler, by devoting your energies to this matter right away.

AN IDEAL COMMISSION.

The make-up of the water investigating committee can be regarded as nothing short of ideal, and Mayors Smalley and Fisk and President Daniel are to be congratulated on the wisdom of their selections. With the duty instructed to such a body of men, the inhabitants of the city and borough may rest assured that the work will be performed in an aggressive, thorough and most intelligent manner.

SLANDERING A CANDIDATE.

No, Constant Reader, it was not Mr. Dryden who said "I believe that the office should seek the man, and not the man the office."

Iowa man suggests that a policy of life insurance accompany every marriage certificate. What, are all the brides out there such bad cooks?

When a Montreal miser died the other day, $800 was found in his peg leg. Wonder nobody "pulled his leg."

ROUTINE OF CITY FATHERS

Appropriation of $320 For Furniture For Mayor's New Offices.

LIGHTS ARE WANTED

After Long Argument Evergreen Avenue Is Provided For—One of Those Secret Sessions Again.

In his successful efforts to obtain four new electric lights to be located on Evergreen avenue, Chairman Montgomery, of the lights and trees committee, met with considerable opposition at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last Monday. He explained that there are eight new houses in that section of the city and not a single light. He believed that such improvements should be encouraged.

Mr. Buxton wanted to know whether Evergreen avenue had ever been accepted by the city, and it was learned that it had not. But it was explained that lights have been located on other streets not accepted. Mr. Hibbard favored the granting of the petition for the lights as presented by Woolston & Buckle and by residents in that section. President Daniel thought it would be best to first have the street dedicated and then grant the request for lights. Mr. Tolles said that while lights have been put on unaccepted streets, it is not the rule. Mr. Tyler spoke in favor of the petition adding that improvements should not be discouraged when it was within the power of the Common Council to encourage them.

Mr. Daniel said that he knew something of the conditions in the section referred to, adding that an eighty foot boulevard has been laid out on Evergreen avenue and many improvements are planned. He did not think that four lights would be too many. However when the vote was taken he and Mr. Tolles voted against the motion of Mr. Montgomery, while the other seven members voted in favor. The negative votes were cast for technical reasons and not with any objection to locating the lights on Evergreen avenue and many improvements are planned. He did not think that four lights would be too many. However when the vote was taken he and Mr. Tolles voted against the motion of Mr. Montgomery, while the other seven members voted in favor. The negative votes were cast for technical reasons and not with any objection to locating the lights on Evergreen avenue and many improvements are planned. He did not think that four lights would be too many. However when the vote was taken he and Mr. Tolles voted against the motion of Mr. Montgomery, while the other seven members voted in favor. The negative votes were cast for technical reasons and not with any objection to locating the lights on Monroe avenue and West Eighth street, in response to a request from H. H. Aggar and others, was carried.

At this stage in the proceedings Mr. Tolles caused a ripple of laughter to pass around the room, when he moved that a five minute recess be taken. Mr. Daniel said that he thought the member from the Third Ward was the only one who wanted a recess, to which Mr. Tolles replied: "Well, I think he wants company."

When the members returned from a five minute recess which lasted thirty-five minutes by the clock, Mr. Tolles offered a resolution that the Common Council lease rooms Nos. 2 and 3 in the building to be used by the Mayor and for other purposes. His resolution also provided that $30 a month be appropriated for the lease and $30 additional for the decorations and repair of the rooms and $320 for the furnishing of the rooms. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Tooles explained that a similar idea was thought of last year, but when the Whitfield Circle was the owner of the building, it was thought best not to make the change.

Hospital Funds.

The report of Muhlenberg Hospital includes a statement of several changes in the Memorial Funds. Bonds and mortgages for $1,500 were added to the funds through the combination of two sums received, while $1,000 in the Memorial Funds have been formally appropriated to the permanent improvement of the hospital property. From the money received from the Carnival $1,400 has been set aside for permanent investment for the Burlingham Fund. It is announced that Mr. and Mrs. James W. De Graff have given $2,000 more, making a total value of a contagious diseases building.

Will Burn Church Mortgage.

Rev. H. C. Ashley and the members of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church will have special exercises next Sunday, when the mortgage on the church building is to be burned. Pastor Ashley has announced it "high day" and has invited a large number of distinguished clergymen from all parts of the State to attend.

A January Tea.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Charles L. Abbott and her daughter, Mrs. James Robert Baker, for a tea to be given Wednesday, January 16, from 4 until 6 o'clock at their home, 906 Central avenue. The tea is given in honor of Mrs. Charles Wesley Abbott.

Mrs. George Hoagland, of Frankfort, Somerset county, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH ISSUES ITS YEAR BOOK

CONTAINS MUCH INFORMATION COMPILED BY RECTOR WARNER.

Under the supervision of the rector, Rev. George A. Warner, the Church of the Holy Cross has just issued its first year book. It contains a great deal of valuable information not only to the members of the parish, but to all who are interested in this church and the work it is doing. The book is gotten up in convenient size and the contents covers all the activities of the church; also photographs of the church, exterior, interior, the baseball team, "Camp Comfort," Hedges Lake, N. Y., the choir camp, the church choir of men and boys, the rector's class of confirmations, four marriages, twelve burials, 225 communicants, and 156 families or parts of families. In the Sunday-school there are twelve officers and teachers and 115 pupils.

The annual report of the treasurer, Charles L. Nichols, shows that the receipts were $6,408.55 and the disbursements $6,403.47. The available assets on December 1, 1906, were cash in bank, $5.08; dueon subscriptions, $79.66; due on envelope explained that lights have been located on other streets not accepted. Mr. Hibbard favored the granting of the petition for the lights as presented by Woolston & Buckle and by residents in that section. President Daniel thought it would be best to first have the street dedicated and then grant the request for lights. Mr. Tolles said that while lights have been put on unaccepted streets, it is not the rule. Mr. Tyler spoke in favor of the petition adding that improvements should not be discouraged when it was within the power of the Common Council to encourage them.

Mr. Daniel said that he knew something of the conditions in the section referred to, adding that an eighty foot boulevard has been laid out on Evergreen avenue and many improvements are planned. He did not think that four lights would be too many. However when the vote was taken he and Mr. Tolles voted against the motion of Mr. Montgomery, while the other seven members voted in favor. The negative votes were cast for technical reasons and not with any objection to locating the lights on Evergreen avenue and many improvements are planned. He did not think that four lights would be too many. However when the vote was taken he and Mr. Tolles voted against the motion of Mr. Montgomery, while the other seven members voted in favor. The negative votes were cast for technical reasons and not with any objection to locating the lights on Monroe avenue and West Eighth street, in response to a request from H. H. Aggar and others, was carried.

At this stage in the proceedings Mr. Tolles caused a ripple of laughter to pass around the room, when he moved that a five minute recess be taken. Mr. Daniel said that he thought the member from the Third Ward was the only one who wanted a recess, to which Mr. Tolles replied: "Well, I think he wants company."

When the members returned from a five minute recess which lasted thirty-five minutes by the clock, Mr. Tolles offered a resolution that the Common Council lease rooms Nos. 2 and 3 in the building to be used by the Mayor and for other purposes. His resolution also provided that $30 a month be appropriated for the lease and $30 additional for the decorations and repair of the rooms and $320 for the furnishing of the rooms. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Tooles explained that a similar idea was thought of last year, but when the Whitfield Circle was the owner of the building, it was thought best not to make the change.

Hospital Funds.

The report of Muhlenberg Hospital includes a statement of several changes in the Memorial Funds. Bonds and mortgages for $1,500 were added to the funds through the combination of two sums received, while $1,000 in the Memorial Funds have been formally appropriated to the permanent improvement of the hospital property. From the money received from the Carnival $1,400 has been set aside for permanent investment for the Burlingham Fund. It is announced that Mr. and Mrs. James W. De Graff have given $2,000 more, making a total value of a contagious diseases building.

Will Burn Church Mortgage.

Rev. H. C. Ashley and the members of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church will have special exercises next Sunday, when the mortgage on the church building is to be burned. Pastor Ashley has announced it "high day" and has invited a large number of distinguished clergymen from all parts of the State to attend.

A January Tea.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Charles L. Abbott and her daughter, Mrs. James Robert Baker, for a tea to be given Wednesday, January 16, from 4 until 6 o'clock at their home, 906 Central avenue. The tea is given in honor of Mrs. Charles Wesley Abbott.

Mrs. George Hoagland, of Frankfort, Somerset county, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Rev. P. C. Ickehart, Sr., of New York, who has been visiting his son in this city, has returned home.

NEW AUTOMOBILE BILL TO START THE LAW MILL

Senator Frelinghuysen Preparing Some Amendments to Present Bill.

FOR MORE INSPECTORS

No Radical Change Proposed—Statute Has Proven to Be Great Success.

Far famed has been New Jersey in automobile circles since the passage of the Frelinghuysen motor vehicle regulation act by the Legislature at the last session. Automobile journals have picked the measure to pieces, clubs have discussed it and individuals have criticised it. Hardly had the act been in force a month when it was seen to be defective in some parts, and from that day to this it has been a topic of general discussion among automobilists just what changes would be made.

Some few weeks ago it was rumored that Senator Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, whose name the bill bears, though it is by no means the measure that was introduced originally into the Legislature, was planning to advocate this year either an entirely new set of restrictions for the use of motor vehicles or amendments covering certain very important points. The statement was made that Senator Frelinghuysen intended to advocate the doing away with the speed limit and the introduction into the law of a clause prohibiting driving at excessive speed. In order to verify these reports Senator Frelinghuysen was interviewed by a News reporter. The results of this interview may well be taken as indicating the trend of feeling among the lawmakers in the Legislature this term.

To a reporter Senator Frelinghuysen said, when asked whether he was drafting a new automobile law with radically different features: "With reference to automobile legislation, you may say for me that I believe the *bill passed last winter has been bene*ficial in effect. While the law is somewhat in the nature of experimental legislation, yet I believe it has demonstrated its usefulness, the main defect being, in my opinion, inadequate provision for the proper enforcement of the statute.

The Senator continued: "The bill, as originally presented, called for a force of twenty-one inspectors, one for each county in the State. Experience has demonstrated that this force is inadequate, and I am in favor of amending the bill by making an additional force of twenty-five inspectors, appointed to serve without pay. That this plan is feasible is demonstrated by the fact that some of the best inspectors under the old law were appointed from the ranks of the automobilists and served without pay. Already appointments have been received from this class of automobilists who desire a proper observance of the rights of the highway."

Senator Frelinghuysen concluded the interview by remarking: "At present I do not see the necessity for any radical change. I am very much opposed to any change in the speed limit."

It is also understood that Commissioner Smith, of Trenton, who is chief of the department, has some notions regarding automobile legislation that he hopes to be able to have Senator Frelinghuysen draft in any amendments that may be made to the present law.

Sunswick Prize Winners.

The Sunswick Poultry Farm, of South Plainfield, owned by Rufus Delafield, won the following prizes with its Orpingtons at the New York Poultry Show: Black Orpington—First and second specials and silver cup for best Orpington in the show; silver cup for best black mate with cock "Pride of Kent;" first and second specials for black cockerel; second, cockerel; second, pullet; third and fourth, hens; third, pen. Buff Orpingtons, fourth and fifth, pullet. White Orpingtons, fourth, hen, and second prize, pen.

131st Session of Legislature Convenes Tomorrow Afternoon.

A CAUCUS TONIGHT

Governor's Message Will Be Transmitted As Soon As the Lawmakers Organize in Both Houses.

The 131st session of the New Jersey Legislature will convene at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Trenton. The real work of the session will begin tonight. Then the Democratic members of the Assembly will hold another caucus in the Assembly chamber. Two caucuses of the Democratic Assemblymen have already been held, one in Trenton and the second in Newark. These meetings succeeded in selecting a Speaker and a few of the lesser officers. Tomorrow night the clerk and other leading places will be filled. It is believed the Republican Senators will hold their second conference in the senate chamber tonight, when the steering committee, appointed during the Christmas holidays, will announce the names of those allotted to clerkships, doorkeepers and the like.

*Each house will organize tomor*row afternoon in its respective chamber. The Senate, comprising fifteen Republicans and six Democrats, will be organized by the Republicans. Senator Minck, of Cumberland, will be chosen President, and Senator Hillman Morris, will be the leader, as he was a year ago. The House will be organized by the Democrats, who have thirty-one members to twenty-nine Republicans. The Speaker will be Edgar E. Lethbridge, of Essex. There has been a report current for a few days that the Republicans were going to unseat Assemblyman Joseph Firth, the Democratic Representative of Warren, be*cause he pleaded guilty some years* ago to a charge of drunkenness. However, that the crime to which the Warren member pleaded guilty was not one which deprived the convict of his rights of citizenship, and consequently left him undisturbed so far as his vote and his right to hold and act in the Legislature are concerned. If there are any more schemes afloat or in contemplation for ousting any of the members, they are kept beneath the surface.

After the Legislature has been properly organized tomorrow the Governor will send in his message, the committees will probably be announced in the Senate, and then adjournment will be taken for the week.

County of Union, ss:

The State of New Jersey to the sheriff of the county of Union, Greeting: H. S. Pierson, of the City of Elizabeth, owner, and Modiste A. Delbaye, builder, and Anton H. Meyer, mortgagee, of Elizabeth, defendants in an action in lieu for the county of Union at Elizabeth in the said county, on the nineteenth day of January, 1907, that the said Modiste A. Delbaye, builder, must answer unto the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claimant, in an action upon contract, to the claimant's damage, three thousand dollars, as is said, for which the said J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company claims a lien, on certain lands of the said John T. Van Cleve upon which the said Anton H. Meyer holds a mortgage of record, and which are described as follows: Beginning at a point in the west line of building on a lot of curtilage situated in the city of Elizabeth, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the southwest side line of New street, distant in a southeasterly direction one hundred and fifty-five feet from the southeasterly side line of West Fourth street, and from the southwesterly side of New street, south thirty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes east, seventy-three and eighty-five one-hundredths (73.85) feet to a stake; thence south fifty-one degrees and sixteen minutes west, twenty-eight and ninety-five one hundredths (28.95) feet to a stake; thence north forty degrees and forty-two minutes west, seventy-three and seventy-five one hundredths (73.75) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and fifty-four minutes east forty-seven and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to the beginning. Together with the land in front thereof, to the centre of said street.

Witness, Francis J. Swayze, Judge of our said Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, the said county this fifth day of January, nineteen hundred and seven.

JAMES C. CALVERT, Clerk.

WM. M. STILLMAN, Attorney.

1.10 5 caw

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.

In Effect November 26, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.55, 8.05, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 a. m., 12.09, 12.35, 12.42, 1.05, 2.51, 3.44, 4.03, 4.54, 5.04, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.55, 8.05, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 p. m. Sundays—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.55, 8.05, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 p. m.

For Newark—5.36, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.47, 8.11, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 a. m., 1.05, 1.27, 2.51, 3.44, 4.03, 4.54, 5.04, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.55, 8.05, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 p. m. Sundays—5.36, 6.29, 7.05, 7.25, 7.35, 7.47, 8.11, 8.27, 8.40, 9.11, 9.35, 10.05, 10.35, 11.05, 11.35 p. m.

For Elmington—7.11, 11.06 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 6.19 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 5.37 p. m.

For Phillipsburg and Easton—5.25, 8.21, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 1.01, (1.41 Saturday only), 3.02, 5.08, 6.23, 8.47 and 11.25 p. m. except Saturdays, 6.04, 6.19, 6.37, 7.12, 7.29, 8.05, 8.47, 9.30, 11.10 p. m. and (next Monday's) night. Sundays—5.45, 8.47, 9.30, 11.10 p. m. Sundays—5.45 a. m., 2.02, 5.08 p. m.

For Flemington—7.11, 11.06 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 6.19 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 5.37 p. m.

For Somerville—5.19, 7.11, 8.21, 9.37, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 1.01, (1.41 Saturday only), 3.02, 5.08, 6.23, 8.47 and 11.25 p. m. except Saturdays, 6.04, 6.19, 6.37, 7.12, 7.29, 8.05, 8.47, 9.30, 11.10 p. m. and (next Monday's) night. Sundays—5.45, 8.47, 9.30, 11.10 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 2.02, 5.08 p. m.

For Milltown and Jamesburg—9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—5.45 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Perth Amboy Branch and Asbury Park, etc.—5.37, 8.11 (10.55 Saturdays only), a. m., 12.50, 3.50, 5.47, 8.23, 11.25 p. m. Sunday—3.37, 5.52 a. m., 3.50, 8.15 p. m.

For Red Bank—3.37, b. k., 8.11, 9.29, 10.55 a. m., 12.50, 3.50, 5.47, 8.23, 11.25 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 8.01, 8.52 a. m., 3.50, 8.15 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—8.27, 9.29 a. m., (12.42 Atlantic City Express Saturdays only), 3.50, 5.47, 8.23 p. m. (8.23 only), (3.53 p. m., Saturdays only, Lakewood only). Sundays—(8.01 Lakewood only), 8.52 a. m., Sundays—3.50, 8.15 p. m.

For Toms River and Barnegat—3.37, b. k., 1.27, 4.07 p. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Philadelphia—7.15, 7.39, 8.45, 9.19, 10.43 a. m., 12.15, 12.42, 2.45, 4.44, 5.19, 6.12, 6.44, 8.59, 9.46 p. m., 1.17 night. Sundays—8.45, 9.53, 10.39, 11.42 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 4.44 p. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44, 11.25 p. m., 1.17 night.

For Reading and Harrisburg—5.25, 9.55 a. m., (2.45 Reading and Harrisburg express only), 5.47 p. m.

For Pittsburg, Sunbury and Williamsport—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sundays—2.03 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 6.44 p. m. Sundays—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44 p. m.

*Change cars at Bound Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. W. C. HOPE, Gen. Pass. Agt.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect May 13th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD:

7.55 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk.

Rochester, Buffalo, and principal intermediate stations.

10.59 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.

1.47 p. m. daily for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.

4.25 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express" Solid Vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.

9.21 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office open 7 a. m., close 7 p. m. On Saturdays close at 1 p. m. Sunday 9 to 10 a. m.

Arrive—2.50, 8.40, 11.30 a. m.; 2.30, 6.00, 7.45 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.00, 2.30, 6.00, 7.45 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.30, 3.15 and 7.00 p.m.

Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.4s and 4.30 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.30, 6.30 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.00, 2.30 and 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.29, 8.40, 11.30 a. m., 2.30 and 7.09 p. m.

Close—7.15, 7.30, 9.30 a. m., 12.30, 4.30 p. m.

Through mail for West and South close 4.30 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG AND WARRENVILLE MAIL—Rural Delivery.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 1.30 p. m.

Close—Arrive 8.40 p. m. Close 4.30 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.

Mail closes 4.30 p. m.

Novel Method to Raise Debt.

Probably one of the most novel calendars presented this year is the one designed by Rev. A. H. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. It contains a photograph of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and suspended over it by a long rope is a large stone which is designated as "mortgage." At the end of the rope are shown a large number of people referred to as "those people know how to pull together." The pad part of the calendar is made up of twelve envelopes, and at the end of each month the owner is expected to put his contribution in toward the church debt. Each envelope bears a suitable Scripture selection.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, Miss Ethel Titsworth and Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, have returned from a sojourn in Atlantic City, where they stopped at the Chalfonte.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street, has returned to Barnard College, to resume her studies after spending the holiday vacation at home.

PLAINFIELD MAN LEAVES $3,000 TO THE POPE THREE THIEVING VISITS

Fact is Revealed When Michael Heffernan's Will is Filed at the Surrogate's Office.

RELATIVES LEFT OUT

Lived In Miserly Fashion But Refused to Take $211 Coming to Him From His Sister's Estate.

By the filing of his will in the surrogate's office at Elizabeth Saturday, it became known that Michael Heffernan, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital six weeks ago, had left the bulk of his estate to Pope Pius X. Its aggregate value is about $3,000 and the head of the Catholic church is to receive the balance after $500 for Father Federici, of Jersey City, formerly of St. Mary's church, and a contribution for several masses for the repose of his soul, is deducted. Joseph Harris is about 1600 Fourth street, is named as executor.

The case is a peculiar one from the fact that Heffernan lived in almost miserly fashion and it is declared by the neighbors that he frequently went without eating in order to save money. It was thought that he owned nothing much beyond the house in which he lived on East Third street, as he always complained of extreme poverty and was always ready to accept another's hospitality. He dwelt in the house alone and spent most of his time in looking after a cow and chickens that he kept in the back yard. The same neighbors assert that he did not buy himself proper food, and also that he practiced the same rule with the cow and the fowls as they seldom had enough life in them to serve out of anybody's way. He was stricken with paralysis about two months ago and because of his weakened condition he was unable to withstand the shock. He was sixty-five years old.

Heffernan left no wife or children but he left other relatives who are in poor circumstances and they naturally thought that his property would revert to them. When the contents of the will were made known they were greatly surprised but it is not improbable that they will contest it.

The filing of the will has also revealed the fact that Heffernan refused to take $211 left him by a sister several years ago. He had some dispute with her before her death and he informed the executors they could do what they wanted with the money as he didn't care for it. It was placed in the keeping of the surrogate at the time and will now be added to his estate.

WAR-SCARRED VETERAN HEARS FROM OLD FOES.

J. B. Hurlburt Invited to Attend Memorial Reception at Fort Fisher.

J. B. Hurlburt, 50 Lincoln place, has received an invitation in common with all the surviving Northern soldiers and sailors who took part in the battle of Fort Fisher in the Civil War, to attend a big reception to be held at the Fort on January 15 by the survivors of the great fight on the Confederate side. Mr. Hurlburt saw hard fighting in that war, and had a big dose of Southern prisons.

Fort Fisher was the key to the port of Wilmington. It was almost impregnable, and the struggle over its possession became towards the last, a hand to hand conflict with bayonet and clubbed muskets. The Union soldiers held to the struggle with fierce determination, and took the works at a great sacrifice.

Mr. Hurlburt was one of the first to enter the fort in the final assault. He fell as he plunged in, and was trampled on in the rush of combatants, but arose and resumed his place in the ranks. He fought until the fort was taken. The battle has been rated as one of the fiercest of the war.

Fort Fisher was the key to the blockade ordered by the Northern commander, and its capture cut off all Confederate communication. Its loss helped to break the back of the Confederacy.

Mr. Hurlburt's experiences in Southern prisons included Bell Island, Va., and Libby prison, Andersonville, Ga. He is hale and hearty today, and still works as he has for the past thirty-eight years steadily on The Daily Press composing room.

Miss Marion Blair, who was eight years old on Saturday, was given a birthday party in the afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Blair, at their home on Duer street. The afternoon was spent in playing games after which refreshments were served. She received a number of gifts. Those present were the Misses Dorothy Lee, Gladys Lee, Blanche McVoy, Dorothy McVoy, Bessie Case, Mary Anderson, Mareline Blair and Cecil Blair, Everett Case, Earl Kirch, Robert Blair and Miss Margaret Adams, of New York.

CORONER BISHOP SAYS HE DID HIS WHOLE DUTY

ANGERED AT CRITICISM OF HIS ACTION IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD TRAGEDY

Harry Bishop, of Perth Amboy, coroner of Middlesex county, was in conference with Prosecutor Berdine at New Brunswick Saturday regarding the killing of four Newark boys at South Plainfield on last Tuesday night. The coroner was much provoked over the criticism which has been heaped upon him because he did not order an inquest in the case. He declares that he conducted a full investigation of the affair, spending several hours upon it the night of the accident and that an inquest would be an unnecessary and expensive inquiry. Prosecutor Berdine was satisfied with his explanation and no inquest will be held.

Coroner Bishop says that the night of the accident he secured an engine and started up the scene of the accident upon it and at once interviewed all of the witnesses and those interested; learned that the killing of the boys were trespassing when killed. He declares emphatically that there is not the slightest ground for blaming the railroad company for the accident; that the engineer did not have to blow his whistle to warn the boys, as the boys had no business on the tracks.

He says that he has learned that the lives of the road men are made miserable by gangs of boys who ride back and forth on freight trains between Newark and South Plainfield, and that the officials have exhausted every power in their means to get rid of this nuisance.

The coroner prides himself upon the way he has been conducting his office since his election. He declares that he thoroughly investigates every case and where the circumstances warrant it he at once notifies the county physician and prosecutor. He pointed out to the case of the killing of a man at a grade crossing in Perth Amboy last week, where he held an inquest upon the prosecutor being in attendance.

J. A. STAATS IS NO SLOUCH OF A DETECTIVE.

Unmarks Window Smasher Through a Clue Furnished By Drop of Blood.

Frank Jellid and Charles Behavey, one of North Plainfield and the other of New York, were fined $5 apiece in the city court Monday by Judge Runyon, for drunkenness and disorder Saturday night. In addition to raising a disturbance on the street, they broke on the pane of glass in the storm door at the Hotel Kensington.

In connection with the glass-breaking, J. A. Staats, proprietor of the hotel, did a bit of detective work that opened the eyes of Patrolman O'Keefe, who arrested the pair. Mr. Staats reported the smashing of the window, and when O'Keefe nabbed Jellid and Behavey on Park avenue, for disorderly conduct, he thought they might be the ones who pushed in the glass. He took them to Mr. Staats for identification. Mr. Staats hadn't seen the window-smashers, so he couldn't identify, but he saw something like a clue that was just as good. As the two prisoners stood before him, with their hands in their pockets, he noticed a red drop on the floor beside Jellid.

"Let me see your hands," he said to Behavey. The man's hands were all right. Jellid showed his left hand; it was simply dirty.

"Let me see the other one," said Mr. Staats. Jellid reluctantly pulled his right hand from his coat pocket. Mr. Staats said "Ha! ha!" just like Sherlock Holmes. The hand was gashed in half a dozen places. The drop of blood had dripped through his coat pocket. Jellid acknowledged the window-smashing.

Faithful Pupils Rewarded.

Alexander Millar, superintendent of the Congregational church Sunday-school, made several presentations at the session Sunday, rewarding pupils for regularity in contributions to the school, through the envelope system. Two children, Eleanor Bold and Carter L. Goodrich, half perfect records and the former received a music roll and the latter a gold pen. Second prizes, comprising books, were presented to Stanley Bates and Harold Tomlinson. For perfect attendance during the fourth quarter Miss Myra Emmons, Stanley Bates, Harold Miller and Norman Rhoads each received a gold pin. Miss Estelle Winckler's class having the best record for attendance received a flag.

Nature as a Weaver.

As a weaver, Nature produces fine work. Certain tree barks and leaves are finish excellent cloth, as, for instance, the famous tapa cloth used in the South Sea Islands. Nature is a glassmaker, too, according to the Indian Review. By discharging her lightning into beds of quartz sand she forms exquisite little pipes of glass. She makes valuable ropes of various kinds in the shape of tropical vines and creepers, and she is even a lace maker, as witness the lace trees of the West Indies.

PARK AVE. CHURCH S. S. HOLDS ELECTION

GEORGE E. HALL IS RE-ELECTED SUPERINTENDENT.

Officers were elected, reports were presented and considerable business transacted at the annual meeting of the Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Saturday night, at the home of Superintendent Geo. E. Hall, Belvidere avenue. There was a full attendance of officers and teachers.

Secretary Harry F. Cuming reported the present membership to be nine officers, seventeen teachers; 204 pupils, being an increase of forty over last year. The average attendance during 1906 was 115 and during 1905 it was ninety-nine. During the past year fourteen members of the school united with the church.

Treasurer Joseph M. Hawkins reported a balance on January 1, this year of $76.40 in the missionary fund and $44.46 in the general fund, a total of $120.86. The receipts during the year for the missionary fund were $246.86 and $679.80 for the general fund, a total of $825.72. From the missionary fund there was expended $231.97 and $681.81 from the general fund, a total of $913.78, leaving 29 cents in the missionary fund and $42.61 in the general fund, a total of $42.80.

Miss Elmira C. Runyon, superintendent of the primary department, reported the present membership to be 55, in three divisions—beginners, primary and junior classes. The work in this department is very encouraging. The eachers have adopted many plans and suggestions brought out at the Asbury Park Summer School of Methods. There has been an increase of thirteen in the primary department over the previous year.

Year reports were also submitted by E. Frank Vail, librarian; Roland Coles Treadwell, chairman of the music committee; Miss Adelia Runyon, chairman of the missionary committee, and Miss Florence G. Hawkins, chairman of the entertainment committee.

These officers were chosen for the coming year:

Superintendent, George E. Hall; assistant superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; secretary, Henry F. Cuming; assistant secretary, Martin Stutsman; treasurer, Joseph M. Hawkins; librarian, E. Frank Vail; pianist, Miss Mary E. Clark; blackboard artist, Charles VanWinkle; leader of orchestra, G. W. V. Moy; superintendent primary department, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; assistant superintendent, Miss Mary C. Runyon and Miss Charlotte Tennant; superintendent Home Department, Mrs. D. M. Runyon.

Superintendent Hall in accepting for another year the office, heartily thanked the school for its loyal support and co-operation. He spoke of the perfect harmony which exists in the school and the pleasure he has experienced in working with all the members. Several new plans for the development of the school were spoken of and will be carried out in the near future. Following the transaction of business a pleasant social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PUPILS GET ATTENDANCE PRIZES.

Annual and Quarterly Awards Made Sunday at Grace P. E. Church.

Prize awards for regular attendance were made at Grace P. E. church Sunday-school yesterday afternoon. The prizes included prayer book and hymnals and Bibles for yearly records, and buttons for quarterly attendance. The presentations were made in the auditorium, after the lesson hour.

The prizes were given as follows:

Prayer book and hymnals, to Harold Hansen, Joseph Sattels, Viola McGoldrick, for regular attendance for the year 1906. Bibles, to Garret Du Bois, Jane Brower, for regular attendance for two years, 1905 and 1906. Bronze enameled button, for regular attendance for first quarter, to William S. Wheelen. White metal, enameled button, for regular attendance for second quarter, to Ethel Pope. Gold, enameled buttons, for regular attendance for fourth quarter, to Fred McLean, Harold Hansen, Joseph Sattels, Viola McGoldrick, Gwendolyn Stanton, Jane Brower, Norman Finch, Garret Du Bois, Robert McGoldrick, Helen K. Scribner.

Honorable mentions were announced as follows:

Robert McGoldrich, who was present every Sunday for three years excepting one during 1906 on account of sickness, and was only absent three Sundays in four years, twice in 1903 and once in 1905; and was absent from church only two Sundays in 1905 and one in 1906. Those who were absent only one Sunday during 1906: Bessie McGoldrick, William S. Wheelen, Laura Bristol, Gwendolyn Stanton, Norman Finch, Robert Mc Goldrick.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Anna Rose Molloy, formerly of Glenside Park, but now of Newark, to James Walsh, of West Summit, is announced. Both Miss Molloy and Mr. Walsh have many warm friends in this part of the State who will be pleased to learn of their engagement.

PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Mr. Finn Observes Completion of Third Year at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

A SPECIAL SERMON

Large Congregation Hears the Minister Preach On "New Year Remembrances."

Rev. A. E. Finn completed the third year of his pastorate at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday, and in the morning before a large congregation, he delivered his anniversary sermon. His subject was "New Year Recommendations," and his text was taken from Psalm 78:7: "That they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, but keep His Commandments." Mr. Finn spoke as follows:

"The purpose of this text was that future generations might remember what wonderful things God had done for Israel, that this remembrance might inspire hope in Him and that memory and hope might be an impelling force to faithful effort in the present. Let us cast the three thoughts of our text into New Year Recommendations.

"I. Looking backward with thankful remembrance—Memory is helpful when it is linked with God. It yields its best results and bears its most precious fruit when, associated with God, it leads us to regard the past as the field of operation in which God has been leading Himself nearer to us and binding us to Him as has been moulding and shaping everything that has befallen us. As a Church we look back with thankful remembrance. God has given us the joy of seeing our plans ripen and bear fruit for His glory. We remember with thankful heart the success of our self denial effort and the success of our plans to reduce our church debt. We rejoice in the increased offerings to missionary objects and that God has been pleased to use us to bring some souls to a knowledge of His truth.

"II. Looking forward with joyful hope—Memory and hope are closely related, indeed it may be said that the power by which we look backward is the power by which we look forward. A man's attitude toward the future very largely determines his health of soul. We may think of the failures and the mistakes of the past and be impressed with the pathos of living. But if there is something inspiring in tomorrow. Business men take account of stock not only to find out what they have been but to find out what they may be. We look foward with joyful hope because tomorrow presents to us God's chance to improve on yesterday. The hope that is fixed upon God draws back the curtain and lets us see enough of the eternal future to make our lives bright and our hearts calm.

"III. Repeating the present with faithful effort—Memory and hope both yield motives which should impel to faithful effort in the present. Let us confront the New Year resolvedon faithful effort in present duties. Our happiness this year as it has in all other years will depend on what we give to God of money, of service, of effort, of life. With united forces we can present to God the best year of service we have yet given Him."

During the past three years, under the wise leadership of Rev. A. E. Finn, the Park Avenue Baptist church, has continued to grow in membership and increase in spiritual interest, while the financial condition has been a source of encouragement. The membership on January 1, 1904, was 288. Since that time there have been received into membership 33 by leter, 36 by baptism and 5 by experience, a total of 74. There have been 23 dismissions by letter, 12 members have died, 14 erasures and one excluded, a total of 50. The net gain is 24, making the membership 312 on January 1 of this year.

The money raised and the use to which it was put is as follows:

Current expenses, $8,212.38; repairs and improvements, $2,923.54; paid on church debt, $2,582.91; for benevolences, $3,562.91; total amount raised in three years, $18,-312.73.

Those who have died during the past three years include John R. Dunham, Mrs. Henry Bundy, Mrs. Amelia A. Stimson, J. F. Weeks, Roland C. Treadwell, Mrs. Jennie Dayton, Mrs. Charlotte E. Hallock and Mrs. Nina Rider. Those who were received into membership at the communion service yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hadley and Mrs. S. B. George.

The anniversary hymn, which was sung Sunday, was composed by Mrs. A. E. Finn, wife of the pastor. The title is "Our Anniversary Hymn."

Rev. Emmett Miller, colored, pastor of the colored mission at Grace church, has resigned his position and will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday. Mr. Miller, who has been pastor of the local congregation during the past two years, has received and accepted a call to a large colored church at Petersburg, Va., and will enter upon his duties in the south a week from Sunday. His successor here has not yet been chosen.

SHE WAS FORCED TO WED

In Divorce Suit So Declares Orphan Who Married Father's Friend.

IS TWICE HER AGE

Ralph Boardman Is Guardian of Carmela Mariano, Who Wants Marriage Bonds Broken.

Through her guardian, Richard Boardman, of this city, fifteen-year-old Carmela Mariano is trying to have her marriage to Antonio Mariano, nearly twice her age, and a friend of her dead father, set aside, alleging that she was forced into the marriage with no knowledge of the step she was taking.

The child-wife is an orphan, her mother dying in September, 1902, and her father a month later. There was a little property and money left, and the court appointed Boardman as the executor and her guardian.

She met Mariano three years ago, shortly after her father's death, and as a friend of her father his sympathy for her as an orphan appealed to her. She alleges that she had no understanding of the fact that he was suing for her hand in marriage, being only a child. She said she considered him merely as a kind friend, and that last August he told her that he was about to make her his wife. She cried, and it was not until she was frightened by threats, she swears, that she consented to go before Justice of the Peace Harry C. Turner, at the City Hall in Trenton and be married. This, she says, was done without consent of her guardian.

Mariano and his wife lived at No. 22 Carside avenue, Trenton, until three weeks ago, the child-wife becoming embittered against him by frequent quarrels. On one occasion, said she, she was locked out of her home and forced to spend one night in the streets.

1857 The 1907 ATLANTIC MONTHLY

Special features are being planned to make the 50th anniversary year of the Atlantic Monthly one of the most brilliant in its history. They will include a number of special articles by some of the oldest living contributors and ex-editors, constituting not only a history of the Atlantic but also a summary of the vital movements in American literature, politics, science and art, for the last 50 years.

Two Serial Features

THE HELPMATE

by

MAY SINCLAIR.

Author of "The Divine Fire."

This is a powerful story of a most interesting group of people, tracing the development of character through passion and misunderstanding.

THE SPIRIT OF OLD WEST POINT

by

GEN. MORRIS SCHAFF.

A series of delightful reminiscences presenting a lively picture of the life at West Point in the momentous years preceding the Civil War.

Three Issues (October, November and December, 1906) will be mailed without charge to new subscribers for 1907, upon receipt of $4.00. A special trial subscription for three months will be sent to new subscribers upon receipt of 50 cents. . . . . 35 cents a copy . . . $4.00 a year Illustrated prospectus for 1907 sent free upon request.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN & CO., 4 Park St., Boston, Mass.

DIED.

TAPSCOTT—Edmund, beloved husband of Emily Lyddon Tapscott, on January 2, 1907.

OSMUN—On Monday, January 7, 1907, C. Lillian, wife of Alfred F. Osmun and daughter of Mary E. and the late Clarkson R. Hope.

TERRY—At Westfield, N. J., Jan. 1, 1907, Mrs. Melissa Terry, wife of Abel S. Terry, in her 65th year.

RICHARDSON—At Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 3, 1907, Samuel A. Richardson, age 58 years, 5 months, 3 days.

CHAMBERLAIN—On Sunday, Jan. 6, 1907, Ellen C., wife of Tom Chamberlain, aged 44 years.

STRANAHAN—On Sunday, Jan. 6, 1907, Alice E. E., daughter of Samuel and Alice M. Stranahan.

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment of experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 124 E. Lake St., Chicago. c 7 19 18

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace. Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. L. [illegible]

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. A little latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

CARNEY BROS.,

MADISON AVENUE,

Between Front and Second streets.

Tinners, Plumbers and Gas Fitters,

Grates and bricks for all kinds of stoves can be found here at Jobbers prices. Bring your tinware mending to us. The best tinners, the best plumbers, and the best gas-fitters in this section. We use none but the very best of materials, and our work always gives satisfaction. Keys of all kinds are made here. Tinware made to order. Ranges, brick and portable furnaces. Sanitary plumbing.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, Vice-Pres.
Jeremiah Manning, Sec'y and Treas.
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, appointing agents. others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly, extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent, scientific, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS, 23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. K. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master in Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with your name and address and 10c. for sample copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York City

LEFT HUSBAND AT THE VERY ALTAR.

Twelve Hours After Marriage Bride's Love Was Given Way to Distaste for Home.

For some reason not yet explained Mrs. Marie Bookman, wife of Mendel Bookman, of No. 216 York street, Jersey City, left him less than twelve hours after Justice of the Peace Mc-Kenna had made them man and wife.

Bookman, who is a painter and decorator, is suing for divorce, and testimony was taken Saturday by Special Master in Chancery Pierce Cook.

Mrs. Bookman lives in Philadelphia. Just before Christmas she visited Jersey City. Bookman fell in love with her and by ardent wooing won her hand in little over a week. She consented to a hasty marriage, but before the couple reached the Bookman domicile, the bride lost the smile she brought with her from the Justice's office.

She said she had suddenly discovered that she did not love Bookman and was sorry she married him. Her change of heart spoiled an evening of politity that had been arranged in the young couple's honor. The bride scrubbed her suitcase and declared she was going home, and she shortly afterward started on her journey.

Thinking it was a nervous breakdown, Bookman went to Philadelphia next day, but no amount of persuasive eloquence could induce his wife to return to Jersey City with him.

GET MORE THAN THEY ASKED.

Orange Patrolmen Will Receive $2.85 a Day.

An unexpected New Year's present was voted the patrolmen of the Orange police force Thursday night by the Police Committee, when it was decided to pay the men $2.85 a day, an increase of twenty cents over the present salaries. It had been had petitioned for ten cents, but the committee decided to double this amount.

The committee also took action on the petition presented some time ago by the men in the department, from the chief down, asking for a salary increase. The salary of the chief will be raised from $1,260 to $1,500 a year, that of the detective-sergeant from $1,080 to $1,300, and the pay of the desk sergeants and roundsmen from $1,080 to $1,200.

The committee decided to have a new ordinance prepared covering the license fee for theatrical performances. It is probable that a raised amount of $75 a year will be made for theatres.

GOES LONG WAY TO WED.

Trenton Girl Follows Cupid to Philippine Islands.

Trenton, Jan. 7.—Miss Flora Wilkinson Watson, daughter of John Watson, 218 South Warren street, has left Trenton to sail for Lucena, Province of Tayabus, Philippine Islands, to marry First Lieutenant William T. Butler, of Troop F, Sixth United States Cavalry.

Since the announcement of the engagement Miss Watson has received a large number of letters from friends of Lieutenant Butler in the Philippines. Officers, wives and American women of the island have written expressing gratification of her coming, and the Mayor of the city has extended a most kindly welcome.

Child's Death Kills Mother.

New York, Jan. 7.—After remaining unconscious more than thirty-six hours, in a condition which myself doctors tried in vain to ascertain the origin of her trouble, Mrs. Robert F. Mosca, who was found in her apartments at No. 536 Hicks street, Wednesday, with her dead baby clasped to her breast, died Saturday morning. Doctors worked steadily in an effort to revive her, but not once did she show a sign of returning consciousness. In the opinion of Dr. Emil Hartung, physician for Coroner Brewer, the woman's condition was due to a sudden fright. An autopsy on the body of the child showed that its death was due to heart asthma. The fact that the child was nearly twelve pounds above the normal weight of a baby of its age was assigned as the cause of its heart trouble. Mosca refused to accept the origin of her trouble, Mrs. Robert F. Mosca, who was found in her apartments at No. 536 Hicks street, Wednesday, with her dead baby clasped to her breast, died Saturday morning. Doctors worked steadily in an effort to revive her, but not once did she show a sign of returning consciousness. In the opinion of Dr. Emil Hartung, physician for Coroner Brewer, the woman's condition was due to a sudden fright. An autopsy on the body of the child showed that its death was due to heart asthma. The fact that the child was nearly twelve pounds above the normal weight of a baby of its age was assigned as the cause of its heart trouble. Mosca refused to accept the verdict of suicide. It will be recalled that followed the discovery that her child was dead reduced Mrs. Mosca to the state of coma from which the doctors could not revive her.

Carnegie Gives $750,000.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Andrew Carnegie began the New Year with a gift of $750,000 to the Bureau of American Republics for a permanent home. The matter is one which is very close to Secretary Root's hopes, and this gift, which places beyond question the permanency of the institution and guarantees efficient work on its part, is exceedingly gratifying to both the Secretary and President Roosevelt. It will enable Secretary Root to carry out his plans to enlarge the scope of the bureau and at the same time it will provide a home or place wherein the interests of all America can better be discussed.

Changes in Church Choir.

Robert Perry, of Westfield, and George Taylor, of Cranford, who have been members of the First Baptist church choir for several years, have resigned, owing to a pressure of other duties. Efforts are now being made to secure a bass singer with a voice of low range.

EAT BETTER APPLES.

Markets for New Jersey's Products Greatest in the World.

Trenton, Jan. 7.—The State Horticulture Society met in the Assembly rooms of the State House and heard addresses by fruit growers and farmers.

The president, Horace Roberts, of Morristown, made the opening address. He recommended that the society assist in amending the limited franchise law so that it would be possible to build trolley freight roads in country districts. He said that this would be a great advantage to the farmer, giving him much lower rates.

The fruit committees reported that the peculiar season had been fair over the State, the excess humidity shortening fine crops, but bringing good prices.

Many new varieties of cut flowers have been introduced this season, the flower committee reported.

The afternoon session convened at 1:30. State music was furnished by an orchestra from the State Model School. The most important address was by Gamriel Huston, president of the State Horticultural Association, of Pennsylvania. His topic was "Apples." He said that farmers of New Jersey had the best location in the world. Nearer the two greatest markets in the United States, they had unlimited opportunities. "But we must educate the people to eat better apples," said Mr. Huston, "or they will buy elsewhere."

Poor crops throughout the State this season, except in Essex county, was the report of the vegetable committee, but good prices prevailed. Last night an illustrated lecture on "Home Flower Growing," by J. O. Thilow, Philadelphia, was the feature.

RED BANK MAN MISSING.

Relatives of Athletic Clerk Fear He Has Met Foul Play.

Red Bank, Jan. 7.—Harry H. Smock, a local young man, has been missing from his home since Monday morning. For the past eight years he has been employed as a clerk in the Fidelity and Casualty Company in New York city. He was a daily commuter. Mr. Smock left home on Monday and reported at the office at the usual time. At about 4 o'clock he had a few words with friends in the city and left them in hasty goodby, as he said he was in a hurry to catch the 4:45 train for home. He did not reach home and nothing has been heard of him since that time. A general alarm has been sent out for him from New York.

Mr. Smock is twenty-seven years old and has been married two years. He has an infant son. He was a young man of clean habits, and mingled with the best society people here. He was an active member of the Y. M. C. A. and was very popular with the young men. His wife's mother and sister, who lived with him in his beautiful home on Leroy place, are almost frantic with grief. They still entertain hopes of his returning, although it is believed that he has either met with foul play or that he has become temporarily insane.

For some time after his marriage he resided in Orange, where he still owns property. He was formerly pitcher for the Red Bank baseball team. He is an all around athlete, six feet tall and of light complexion.

Bandana Averts Mishap.

Trenton, Jan. 5.—Patrolman Fox, by using a red bandana handkerchief to signal a heavy freight train, yesterday averted what might be accident. Fox was about to pass the Philadelphia and Reading Railway crossing at Olden avenue when he noticed a heavy truck wedged between the railroad ties. It was impossible for the horses to move the load. The driver was sitting on the truck, and in his endeavor to get away he did not notice the approaching train. Fox succeeded in stopping the train within a few feet of the wagon.

Donkey Goes Mad.

New York, Jan. 7.—Going suddenly mad as a result of having been bitten several weeks ago by a mad dog, a small donkey, no bigger than a Newfoundland dog, ran wild in East End avenue at Eighty-first street late Saturday afternoon, trying to bite everyone who came near, managing finally to touch the coat of a thirteen-year-old boy and ripping it from his back. The animal was finally tied to a lamp post and shot by Policeman Grancy, of the East Eighty-sixth street station.

Will Celebrate Tenth Anniversary.

Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, is planning for the tenth anniversary of the forging of the church. The services will be held for one week commencing February 3, and there will be a special programme each evening.

Fence Vault Record.

The contestants in the fence vault event in the Y. M. C. A. championship competition next Thursday night will have a record of 6 feet 5½ inches to go up against. It was made by Frank N. Marclay in 1898.

Verdict In Newark.

A verdict for the plaintiff has been rendered by the Newark District Court in the case of Kate Young against the National Brewing Company, on contract. F. J. Blatz appeared for the plaintiff.

Titus H. Laury, of East Front street, is improved from a severe illness.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Lincoln Square Theatre, New York's newest and most beautiful playhouse, at 65th and Broadway, Walter N. Lawrence Produced on December 31st a three-act face with songs now and then entitled "Matilda." Alfred Hickman heads the cast and is ably supported by Amy Ricard, Maude Fulton, Joseph Tuohy, Katherine Emmett, Hugh Walsh, Ann Thompson and others. To quote the criticisms of the leading New York papers "Matilda" can be described as "the farce of a thousand laughs," a play that begins with a smile and ends with a roar of laughter," the World said it was a fortune winner with the despondent, the blue and forlorn should hasten to the Lincoln Square Theatre and obtain relief by seeing "Matilda." The story of the farce concerns a young woman who has been left a large sum of money on condition that she marry a man she has never seen. This condition is obnoxious to her by reason of her being in love with another man. In order to obtain the fortune and still marry the man of her choice she resorts to a subterfuge which enlists the aid of a friend who has made a hit as a female impersonator in amateur affairs and he poses as her and and therefore disgusts the other claimant to the estate. This masquerade assumed by Alfred Hickman, lasts two hours and a half of delight and hilarity. As a natural sequence to situations and dialogue songs are introduced of a most catchy variety. This marks a new idea in entertainment as the chorus girls of musical comedies are obliterated. "Matilda" will no doubt run far into the summer and should prove a delightful evening to the myriads of theatregoers. The Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be played at the same prices as the evenings when the best seats will sell for one dollar and a half with 500 good seats at a dollar.

Undoubtedly the dramatic event of this season in New York will be the appearance of Blanche Walsh at the Astor Theatre next Monday night when she will present Clyde Fitch's newest play, "The Straight Road," which is the name of the new play that it is something different. It tells the story of the redemption of a woman. It is not the story of a lost woman, but the simple life history of a girl of the slums. Both Miss Walsh and Mr. Fitch are anxious to emphasize the fact that this is not a problem play. It is a play written to entertain, and a play that once seen, spectators will desire to see over and over again. It is just a straightforward story in which one woman works on another in an earnest effort for good, but there is a strong heart interest in it andplenty of dramatic action. It has scenes of low life, and it has scenes placed among society people so that there is practically an even division of atmosphere. Managers Wagenhals & Kemper promise that the production will be a most beautiful one, appealing to the eye and perfectly agreeable with the realistic theme of the play. The company which surrounds Miss Walsh has been especially selected with the idea of creating the characters in the most perfect manner. All members of the company are metropolitan favorites, and it is looked upon as the most brilliant coterie of player that will be seen on Broadway this year. Among others there are Charles Dalton, Dorothy Dorr, Louise Closser, Helen Lowell, Howard Estabrook, Jane Ralph, William Travers and William Wadsworth.

Klaw & Erlanger will present at the New Plainfield theatre on January 15, the Sousa Opera Company in the "March King" last and greatest success entitled "The Free Lance," the book of which is by Harry B. Smith, the author of "Robin Hood." Joseph Cawthorn is the stellar feature of the cast, which with the ensemble numbers more than seventy-five. Included in such well known singers and comedians as Nella Bergen, Albert Hart, George Tallman, Jeanette Lowrie, George Schiller, and many others of like calibre in the principal characters. "The Free Lance" is a real comic opera, written in the best vein of our great American "March King," John Philip Sousa, and brimming over with that rythmic, swinging, stirring, martial music which has made his name so popular throughout the world.

Mr. Harrigan's New Venture.

Joseph Harrigan, the East Fourth street coal and wood dealer, has leased a part of the old oilcloth factory on Jackson street, and will embark in the baled hay business on a wholesale scale. He will use part of the building as a storage house and will ship from here to New York and other places in car load lots. As the business becomes fully established, Mr. Harrigan will also invade the local field in the same way. The business is one that is carried on extensively in other cities, and frequently reaches large proportions.

A Brooklyn Girl's Debut.

Miss Nell Valiant and Miss Virginia Hegeman, of the borough, were among the receiving party at the debut of Miss Elizabeth Spence Weeden, of Brooklyn, at a reception given in the sun parlor of the Hotel Margaret, Columbia Heights.

James Patterson, of the Potter Press Company, is in Canada erecting presses for the company.

PLANS FOR S.S. MEET

Eight Churches at Least Will Be Represented, Maybe More.

A SCHOOL CUP OFFERED

Put Up By C. W. McCutchen—League Committee Chairmen Appointed.

Swiftly the Sunday-school Athletic League moves on its way. The irreverent and overenthusiastic youths who have been under the impression that anything so robust as athletics could not flourish like a green bay tree under the guidance of Sunday-school superintendents and their assistants will find themselves looking on as orderly and well-mannered spirits with a cup, medals and all the things properly touching on and appertaining to a hot hustle for honors and records. Plans for a meet have been all but completed. The date, February 1, has been fixed, and eight Sunday-schools have already begun to make up teams. Yes, the league is flourishing; it is beginning to look like a green bay tree and a tall cedar of Lebanon combined.

The Board of Governors of the league met and talked over the meet Friday. They decided on prizes, and turned over the task of making up a list of events to G. L. Listman, Y. M. C. A. physical directbr. The meet is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

President C. W. McCutchen, of the First Baptist church, has offered a cup, to be known as the president's cup, to be competed for by the teams. The Sunday-school winning it two years in succession will keep it. The school winning the cup this year will have one leg on it, but will have to repeat next year to keep in grip. The individual champion will get a silver medal and the second place man will get one of bronze.

These chairmen of standing committees were appointed: Thack, G. L. Listman; records, James Joy; membership, John McClymot; basketball, John McClymot; baseball, J. W. Gavett; aquatics, Dr. N. H. Probasco; gymnastics, G. L. Listman; press, Rev. E. V. Stevenson.

The eight churches already in the league are the First Baptist, First Methodist Episcopal, Grace Protestant Episcopal, Park Avenue Baptist, Warren chapel, Hope chapel, Congregational and Trinity Reformed. Two or three others are expected to join before the meet. A big entry list is in sight.

John McClymot took the place of Willard Wadsworth on the Board of Governors, for the Congregational church. Mr. Wadsworth could not serve.

Christmas at the Relief.

If all those who sent gifts to the Relief Christmas tree could have been at the rooms the day before Christmas, when the bags, full to the brim with good things, were given out, they would surely have had great satisfaction in the thought that their generosity helped to make December 25, 1906, a particularly merry and joyful day for 483 children in presenting 155 families. Each child received a toy, cap or mittens, and two pairs of stockings, the latter being furnished by the Elks' generous check. 57 trees with boxes of ornaments were sent to the poorest families. Warm garments were given to 21 old people, also to 17 at the Industrial Home, who received from the Silver Cross Circle candy, oranges and fruit. The entertainment given by the Elks at Reform Hall December 24 for 475 children was an added joy to the general happiness. For the many contributions of money, provisions, clothing and furniture for the time given by those who assisted in preparing the tags, the Board or Managers desires to express their appreciation and to thank the king friends whose generosity helped in the Christmas cheer.

COUNTY COMMITTEE ANNUAL.

Frank Smith Will Remain at the Head; New Plainfield Members.

The annual meeting of the Republican County Committee will be held on January 14, at Elizabeth. County Chairman Frank H. Smith and all *the other officers will almost cer*tainly be re-elected. Mr. Smith says he is willing to assume the burden another year.

At that meeting the Colbyites elected last fall will take their places. They are Arthur Murphy and Robert Hall, of the Second ward, and Duncan Taylor, of the Third ward. Mayor Fisk is the fourth new member. He was nominated by both regulars and Colbyites. The other members of the committee from here are former Mayor James P. Buckle, Amos Andrews, of the First ward; Chairman Smith, Herbert Buxton and Andrew McCardell.

Counsel for Fanwood Borough.

George W. V. Moy, Esq., of this city, has been appointed counsel for Fanwood Borough for the coming year.

Mrs. Hugh F. Fox, of Central avenue, will hold a reception at her home this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Miss Anna Luders, of Madison avenue, has been visiting relatives at East Millstone.

LITERARY.

A Happy New Year to everybody in general and to Lippincott's readers in particular. By way of helping to make good this wish the initial number for 1907 is an especially all-around, good, entertaining issue, full from cover to cover of the sort of reading that people want, and this standard will be striven after twelve times during the next twelve months —sometimes it will be surpassed. The opening novelette in January is by Grace MacGowan Cooke; "Love Among Thieves" is a distinctly modern story of love and mystery—social, not professional—and it is written in Mrs. Cooke's most engagingly vivacious style, in which the humorous abounds.

Just now the genius of our people is for the development of the resources of the country. Ten years from now it may be statesmanlike to try to induce our young men to go to sea as sailors and our capitalists to invest, like the Germans of today, in merchant shipping. But at present our young men have more than they can do on land, at better pay and in more congenial work. Alexander, and the land pursuits give them opportunities for mental as well as material progress that are denied the sailor boy. We are simply too prosperous, at present, to be obliged to take to ocean freighting for a livelihood. The disappearance of our former merchant marine was due chiefly to the fact that there was so much money to be made in railroading, agriculture, and manufacturing here at home in the period following the Civil War, that our capital and labor with one accord refused the meager harvests of the sea for the rich and certain returns afforded by the development of the Mississippi Valley and the farther West.—From "The Growth of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for January.

A representative of the Woman's Home Companion, who spent the greater part of ten days with John D. Rockefeller at his Cleveland home, says of Mr. Rockefeller. "It is on exaggeration to say he (Rockefeller) is the most hated, least understood, and most interesting man in America." In estimating the multi-millionaire's wealth, the article, which is graphically illustrated with photographs loaned by Mr. Rockefeller, contains an interesting tastement. Mr. Rockefeller's wealth would be correctly represented by about one quarter of the billion which he has so often been charged with pos*sessing, and more than half of this* has come to the advance in many judicious investments long years ago.

The January issue of The Red Book Magazine, most popular of all the distinctly short-fiction publications, has appeared and sustains the unanimous opinion that the issues for 1907 would surpass in interest all that have gone before. The number opens with twenty-eight art portraits of American actresses whose beauty and talent have won them the highest place in American art, and closes with a timely dramatic article by Louis V. De Foe in which that well known critic tells the stories of the newest plays. Between these two admirable features are grouped a number of the best short and diversified short tales The Red Book Magazine has ever published.

The January American Boy is, in the language of the boys, "a hummer." Its most conspicuous features are its serials by Stratemeyer, Shute, Tomlinson, Alger, and, Sprague, and its four new departments, namely, "Chats with Inventors and Inventors for Young Americans," "How to Become Strong," "Pdactical Furniture Making for Boys," and "Keeping Tab on the World for Wide-Awake American Boys." There are six short stories, about a dozen leading articles, any number of jokes and jingles, and the usual departments relating to boy life, including photography, mechanics, electricity, stamps, coins and curios, puzzles, etc. In the biographical department, Henry Clay is given the place of honor this month. It has a striking two-color cover—a skating scene—and, in addition, seventy-five illustrations. Altogether, it is one of the best numbers of The American Boy ever issued. $1.00 a year. The Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich.

If the January number of the Atlantic Monthly is any indication of what may be expected from "the grand old magazine" during the coming jubilee year, there is a feast in store for its readers. The issue opens very fittingly with a genial and witty discourse from the editorial pen on "Finishing Off Leaves." "Why," asks the writer, "must we always be so anxious to turn the new leaf at New Year's? Is there nothing worth remembering in those closely-written and thumbworn pages of the past?" Certainly the Atlantic has a past to be proud of; and its distinctions is the directness with which it faces the issues of the present day. Nothing, for example, could be more timely than an article by James A. Le Roy upon "Japan and the Philippine Islands," in which, after a resume of past "yellow peril" scares, the author makes some bold prophecies about our future relations with Eastern races.

McClure's for January opens the New Year with an astonishingly good number, distinguished, as usual, by the clean-cut, vigorous tone of its articles, and by action of marked excellence. "Mary Baker G. Eddy, the Story of Her Life, and the History of Christian Science," opens its first instalment in a manner that practically insures the success of the serial with the American public. Its tone is clear, conservative, and incisive, and it presents the remarkable story of Mrs. Eddy's childhood and youth, and the early influences which molded her career in a narrative of absorbing interest. Carl Schurz has an usually strong article describing his first meeting with Lincoln, and the famous Lincoln-Douglas debate at Quincy, Illinois. Eugene Wood writes with irresistible humor of "The Dramatic Our Town."

DIAMOND DUST.

Crawford, Holly, Zimmerman, Murray, Burch, O'Hara, McGlynn, Karger, Malone and Beebe are names that will be found on the St. Louis National list this year. There's an array of young blood for you—men who were unheard of in big league circles two years ago.

Possibly Walter Camp's football genius has obscured the fact that he was a rattling good baseball player when an undergraduate at Yale. Recent explorations into old and musty baseball guides reveal that in the early '80s Camp was a mighty batsman. He had an average of .372 one season. He was a contemporary of Jumping Jack Jones, who, with Billy Murphy, is the only player of note Yale ever has given to major league baseball.

Manager Armour differs from those who say Evers and Huggins are as good second basemen as Lajoie. "Lajoie can get the ball easier and touch out more runners at second base with one hand than Huggins or Evers can with two," he declares. "No other second baseman is in Lajoie's class for a minute." Maybe Armour would have a higher opinion of Huggins and Evers if he had seen them play oftener.

There is a report out that Bob Unglaub, formerly with the New York and Boston Americans and last season with the Tri-State League, has been traded by Boston to Washington for Jake Stahl. Unglaub, it is said, some time ago expressed his willingness to play in Washington if a trade could be made. Unglaub is a good first baseman and a good hitter. His home is in Baltimore.

Storke, the college third baseman, who goes to Pittsburg, is an all around performer. He played every position on the team when at Amherst and has been known to pitch and catch in the same game.

"In point of fact no outfielder of the past or present ever even remotely approached McAleer in batting or ball on getting to it after he had judged it," George Davis is quoted as saying in a recent interview. McAleer was a king of the outer garden all right, but it would be hard to make many old timers believe he had much, if anything, on Curt Welch, Dicky Johnstone or Jimmy Fogarty.

Speaking of all around players, one of the finest in the game is Lew McAllister, who is to succeed Stallings as manager of the Buffalo team.

GOLF.

Special interest centres around the third annual midwinter golf tournament booked for January 17, 18, 19 and 21, owing to the fact that the new Pinehurst system of qualification will then be tested for the first time. Under this system entrants will be grouped according to their association handicaps and will be classified in divisions according to these handicaps, the limit in each division being determined by the committee, the best sixteen scores in each division qualifying, instead of the best sixty-four medal play scores, as is customary.

A test of this method has long been considered by prominent golfers in the hope of overcoming the objectionable features of the usual method, but the local club is the first to take the initiative, and the outcome of the test will be awaited with keen interest.

Four divisions will qualify for the president's, secretary's, treasurer's and captain's cups, a gold medal being offered for the best score in qualification. There will also be sterling cups for the runnerup in each division and the winners of consolation divisions made up of those who lose in the first round of match play.

Even thus early a field of fully 150 players is assured, a number somewhat in excess of last year's big tournament, and it will include many golfers of national prominence and representatives from all sections of the country.

Just preceding the midwinter tournament, on January 14, 15 and 16, the annual frolic of the advertising men will be held and a wealth of trophies will be offered, the whole combining to make a week of golf such as would be possible at no other resort in the world but Pinehurst and which will inaugurate the most important series of tournaments in the history of the local country club.

Marvin Phillips, of Fairview avenue, is at St. Joseph's Convent, Bordentown.

Miss Margaret Ackor is detained at her home on Westervelt avenue by illness.

Mrs. A. H. Martin is detained at her home on Jackson avenue by an attack of the grip.

PLAN UNIVERSITY CLUB

Scheme Will Be Discussed at College Smoker to be Held at Casino.

OVER 300 ACCEPTANCES

There Will Be Plenty to Eat, Drink and Smoke—Fine Entertainment and Good Speakers.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the college smoker to be held at the Casino on the evening of January 24. There is every indication that the attendance will be large, about 300 men being expected, and the affair promises to outshine last year's successful gathering.

Although the committee has made a thorough canvass of college men in Plainfield no doubt a few names have escaped it and it is urged upon every college man who has not yet received an invitation to co-operate with the committee by sending in his name immediately in order that provision may be made for him the night of the smoker.

The committee has just sent second notices to those men who have not yet answered the first postals sent them, urging them to please an*swer immediately whether or not* they expect to be present on January 24, as it is imperative that all replies be in the hands of Owen H. Fleming, 1012 Park avenue, not later than January 15. It is already practically assured that there will be a quartette from both Yale and Princeton. There has also been secured one of the best singing and playing colored quartettes in New York.

The men will sit about round tables, each one holding a jolly crowd of ten to a dozen men. There will be plenty to eat, drink and smoke, plenty of good music and college songs. The ultimate idea of the smoker, of course, is the formation of a University Club in Plainfield. There are more than enough undergraduates and graduates to start a club and keep it going so that a college man might have a place where he could sit, eat and smoke a pipe in peace with others of his kind.

Hence, it is necessary for every man to come to the smoker ready to expects to be present at the smoker and help whoop it up for his old alma mater and express his opinion as to whether or not Plainfield with its 460 college men should or should not have a university club.

HYDROGEN ON IRON.

Series of Interesting Experiments in a German Laboratory.

The influence of hydrogen on iron forms the subject of a series of experiments made in the Charlottenburg technical laboratory by E. Heyn. The gas is allowed to act upon the iron at red heat, and it is found that the latter is considerably affected. In the first experiments the bar of soft iron heated to redness and plunged into an atmosphere of hydrogen, then tempered in water, became brittle, and that this brittleness is especially remarked in the trials of cold bending.

On the other hand, if the iron is again heated at a rather low temperature in a water or oil bath, it becomes much less brittle, or even regains its original state. The same phenomenon is observed if their ends pieces are allowed to remain in the open air at the ordinary temperature. The time required for the iron to come back to the normal state varies with its constitution. For instance, samples of soft iron wire of 5.5 carbon took 15 days to come back. In the case of steel wire one-eighth inch in diameter and very poor in carbon the time was much longer.

Widespread Railroad Demands.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 5.—Railway managers of roads throughout the country are facing fresh demands for an increase in wages and better working conditions that will startle, it is declared, the entire industrial world. A conference of labor leaders representing nearly all classes of railroad labor was in session yesterday in Chicago to initiate the move. A universal eight hour day and a wage increase of from 5 to 20 per cent are the demands that will be brought to the attention of the general managers of not only the twenty-three systems centering in Chicago, but on nearly all the roads in the United States and Canada and Mexico. The committee, representing 150,000 railway employees, is composed of A. B. Garretson, Grand Chief of the Railway Conductors; J. J. Hannahan, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and M. Morrisey, Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. These men arrived in Chicago yesterday and immediately went into executive session.

Miss Mary Marlor, and Frederick Clay Atwater, Jr., of Roselle, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Cooley, of Watchung avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanford, of East Front street, left Saturday for Virginia.

Miss Anna Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, returned to her studies at a convent in Madison, today, after a holiday vacation.

Miss Margaret Lee, of Grove street, is the guest of Philadelphia friends.

DIES BY HIS OWN HAND

When Placed Under Arrest at Mountainside Charles Smith Commits Suicide.

A RAZOR HIS WEAPON

Almost Severed His Head from Body While Constable Was Telephoning Westfield Police.

Made desperate by the thought of having to submit to arrest because of alleged stealing, Charles Smith, fifty years old, supposedly of Newark, committed suicide at Klopt's Mountainside Hotel, Thursday night. While the special officer who had taken him into custody was telephoning to the Westfield police, Smith pulled a razor from his pocket and drew the blade across his throat. He applied all his strength to the effort and as a result his head was almost severed from the body.

The act was committed while the officer was but a few feet away in the bar room and a group of men were standing about. It all occured so quickly that no one could stop him and when he lunged forward and then sank to the floor, several of them fled from the place. A couple of others more nervy and his captor tried to staunch the flow of blood but it was an impossibility. He died within five minutes after applying the blade. County Physician Westcott was notified and he had the body removed to Cole's undertaking rooms in this city where it is being held.

Smith has been working off and on in Westfield but the people there knew little about him. He has been suspected of stealing articles from a stable and also mixing up in some other shady transactions and was under surveillance by the Westfield police. A special officer was detailed to watch him and Thursday found him at Klopt's place with some pieces of harness that he believed to have been stolen. He informed Smith that he was under arrest and then went to call the Westfield police by 'phone of what he had done. The had no more than placed the receiver to his ear than the prisoner applied the weapon.

"INFERNAL MACHINE" FOR UNION'S SHERIFF

AFTER THE EXPLOSION DR. LAWRENCE FINDS IT IS A JOKE.

When Sheriff William H. Lawrence came from Summit on Wednesday and entered his office in the county courthouse in Elizabeth he found a package awaiting him on his desk. He loosened the knot in the pink string, and disclosed within the wrapper a pasteboard box. Inside the box he found a rich looking blue plush-covered case, about six inches long and four inches wide. His eyes bulged, and the attaches of the office gathered about him while he tried to guess the name of the sender, and whether the case contained a gold watch, diamond-studded medal or a set of New Year resolutions. Then he pushed gently at the catch to open the case, but the catch wouldn't work. Becoming impatient, he squeezed the sides of the case. An explosion, with a great amount of smoke, followed. All hands ducked for a moment, but the sheriff hung on until the smoke cleared away. Then he saw that the case contained the regulation clock machinery for infernal machines. There were indications of chilly pedal extremities among the attaches, but the sheriff stood fast, "nor turned he a single hair," while he held the thing infernal, or otherwise, at arm's length. A reporter standing by busied himself recklessly to get at the true inwardness of the machine, the ground that if the thing was intended to hurt anybody it wasn't likely that the explosion was intended for a warning of worse things to come. He held that the real danger had passed. The sheriff concluded the reporter was right, and they examined the plush-covered surprise. They found that the clock-works had been arranged so that when the cover of the case was raised it would release a small hammer arranged on a mouse-trap plan, so that the head of the hammer would strike a number of paper caps such as are used by children on Independence Day. In the bottom of the case a full box of the caps had been placed. When the explosives had been removed everybody enjoyed a prolonged merry haha, and to the uttermost parts of the town. But woe unto the man who sent it if he be discovered.

Accepts Call to Woodbury, N. Y.

Rev. Arthur Cuthbert, who, for twelve years, was pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church, has received and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Woodbury, N. Y., and will assume his new charge in two weeks when he will remove with his family. Woodbury is a thriving village sixty miles north of Albany.

74,000 VOLUMES IN STATE LIBRARY

GOVERNOR RECEIVES ANNUAL REPORT OF LIBRARIAN BUCHANAN.

State Librarian Henry C. Buchanan has presented to Governor Stokes his annual report as to the business during the past year and the present condition of the State Library. It is shown that on October 31, 1905, there were 71,057 books and pamphlets in the library. During the past year additional books and pamphlets to the total of 3,211 have been added, as follows:

From the United States Government, 1,003; from other States and Territories, in exchange, 787; through donations, 228; from custodian of State house, 190; by purchase for law library, 339; by purchase for reference library, 599; daily and weekly newspapers donated, 35. There were returned to the superintendent of documents at Washington 719 duplicates, making a net gain for the year of 2,501 and showing the contents of the library at this time to be 73,558 volumes.

Of the condition of the library State Librarian Buchanan says: "The library is in good condition. In the law department the sets of reports and statutes of other States have been kept up through a system of exchange, and purchases have been made of the new textbooks as they have appeared. In the miscellaneous department many reference books have been added, special attention have been given to the securing of copies or books relating to the history of New Jersey."

In regard to the gift of the most valuable addition made to the library during the past year was a gift of thirty-three volumes of works, procured for use in the settlement of the New Jersey-Delaware boundary dispute, by Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter.

Librarian Buchanan gives a detailed report of the expenditures made by the State during the year for the repair, preservation and purchase of books. This appropriation for this purpose was $3,500, and the amount spent was $3,485.05, as follows: $4,526.79 for books and periodicals to the law library, $1,644.06 for additions to the reference library, $314.20 for the building and repairing of books.

Mr. Buchanan makes this comment, which is deemed important because of its bearing upon the preservation of historical data concerning New Jersey:

"In April last distribution was made of volume 25 of the first series of the New Jersey Archives. Copies of the archives are sent to 856 persons whose names are upon the State library list. Under the act of 1881, 1,000 copies of each volume are received by the commissioners of the State library, and are to be distributed by them among the various State and public libraries of the United States and they may designate and to the various offices and departments of the State and to the officers in charge. This method of distribution proved unsatisfactory in some respects, and the earlier volumes are soon out of print. Finally the disposition of the books was by general consent left with the commissioners of the survey, and distribution is made by a committee, upon written application or the recommendation of the members of the Legislature or State officers. Under this system there is an avoidance of duplication, many complete sets are furnished, the ground that if the thing was intended to hurt anybody it wasn't likely that the explosion was intended for a warning of worse things to come. He held that the real danger had passed. The sheriff concluded the reporter was right, and they examined the plush-covered surprise. They found that the clock-works had been arranged so that when the cover of the case was raised it would release a small hammer arranged on a mouse-trap plan, so that the head of the hammer would strike a number of paper caps such as are used by children on Independence Day. In the bottom of the case a full box of the caps had been placed. When the explosives had been removed everybody enjoyed a prolonged merry haha, and to the uttermost parts of the town. But woe unto the man who sent it if he be discovered.

MRS. F. G. BOHREN AWARDED DAMAGES

JURY ALLOWS HER $400 IN HER ACTION AGAINST MR. MESSERSMITH.

Mrs. Fanny G. Bohren, of the borough, who brough suit against Mrs. Mary E. Messersmith, of East Fifth street, in the Supreme Court, Elizabeth, Thursday, was awarded $400 by the jury.

The suit was upon a covenant of warranty in a deed made by Mary E. Messersmith to Fannie G. Bohren, on April 1, 1903. In the fall of 1905 the borough of North Plainfield extended Fairview avenue, taking a strip of the premises conveyed by said deed three feet in front and 11 feet in the rear, running the full length of the lot. This strip had been laid out thirty years ago by the township authorities when the territory embraced in the borough was a part of the township of Warren, but the street had not been opened. After the opening of the street the plaintiff, Mrs. Bohren called upon the defendant to make good her loss. But the defendant refused to do so and an action was brought to enforce the right under *the covenant in the deed, in the Su*preme Court. The case was one of great difficulty, owing to the fact that many legal questions arose, on which there appeared to be a disagreement of the legal authorities. It was necessary to prove the making of the covenant, the change of municipal government from the township of Warren to the township of North Plainfield and from the township of North Plainfield to the Borough of North Plainfield. The laying out of the road in 1871 by the township authorities, the resolution of the borough Council, and the proceedings taken under it. The correspondence of the description in the road return with the map made by the borough engineer, in opening up the street. The encroachment of the street upon the premises in question and the resulting damages.

The measure of damages was a question of difficulty, but the court held that it was the difference between the market value of the property just prior to the eviction and immediately thereafter. The defendant produced the following real estate men: J. Fred MacDonald, Henry Lietke, John P. Emmons, John Vanderhoef, and L. B. Woolston to show that there were not appreciable damages.

The plaintiff produced Charles H. Hand and William A. Woodruff, who swore that the premises had been seriously damaged as the sidewalks come within a few inches of the plaintiff's porch and prevented the erection of a dwelling house in the rear of the lot to face on the new street, and as it gave the whole premises a bad appearance. The jury found the plaintiff and assessed her damages at $400. The defendant was represented by G. W. V. Moy, and the plaintiff by C. M. Dolliver and S. S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer.

MISS CHARLOTTE V. MYERS MARRIES JOHN CONWAY.

Ceremony Performed by Rev. J. W. Musson At Faith Chapel Wednesday Afternoon.

Miss Charlotte Myers, daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Nicholas Myers, and John Conway, of this city, were married Wednesday afternoon at Faith chapel, by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine, wore a veil and carried a bouquet of pride roses. She was attended by Miss Clara H. Carlson, who wore a gown of creme colored silk and carried pink carnations. The best man was William Jones, of this city. The bride was given away in marriage by her father.

The chapel was decorated with palms, potted plants and flowers, banked about the pulpit platform. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Conway will reside in this city.

VETERAN GROCER RETIRES.

Herman A. Weber Sells Out to L. G. Henry.

Herman A. Weber, one of the oldest grocers in the city, has sold his business at Liberty and West Second streets to L. G. Henry, formerly of West Front street, and he has taken possession. Mr. Weber is planning to move on his farm in South Plainfield and will give up business entirely.

Mr. Weber has been in the grocery business in this city probably longer than any other man. He first engaged in the business twenty-six years ago in the store on Liberty street, owned by the late Charles Graves. He remained there ten years, when he erected the dwelling and store at Liberty and West Second street. He has been in business there continuously for sixteen years. Mr. Weber served the city as councilman for one term, 1891-1902, being elected on the Republican ticket from the Fourth ward. Mr. Henry has been engaged in the grocery business for several years and is thoroughly experienced.

FINANCES OF COUNTY ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

STATEMENT SUBMITTED BY COUNTY COLLECTOR LEAVITT AT LAST MEETING

The Board of Freeholders has held its final meeting for the year. Reports were submitted by the committees and the county collector, and the retiring members were given a eulogistic send-off, to which they made speeches in reply.

County Road Inspector Fink reported that $20,672 had been spent in repairing the county roads. Of this $516.15 was spent on oiling the roads.

After the business of the meeting had been finished, Freeholder Wahl arose to say farewell. He said he had been elected ten years ago, and had served continuously until this *year, when his constituents had de*cided to give him a vacation. Director King replied on County Attorney Codington to speak, and he expressed the regret of the Board that a member were to retire. Freeholders Chandler, Murphy, Westphal and Jensen spoke briefly expressing their pleasure in having served on the Board, and their regret at leaving.

County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt submitted a report of the finances from May 8. It was a comprehensive statement of all the receipts and expenditures of the Board.

The receipts from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906, were $610,547.68. The disbursements from May 8 to December 31 were $212,511.87. The financial condition of the county was reported to be as follows:

Liabilities—County road bonds, $350,000; freshet bonds, due April 1, 1907, $12,000; war bonds, due 1907-1909, $26,000; Sheridan house purchasing bonds, $28,600; new courthouse bonds, $569,000; total, $985,600.

Assets—County lands and buildings, $800,000; funds in hands of sinking fund commissioners, $24,700; amount due sinking fund commissioners, $8,000; total, $832,000

COLLEGE PRESIDENT AT Y. M. C. A. DINNER

DR. A.V. V. RAYMOND, OF UNION, TO SPEAK HERE HERE ON JANUARY 29.

Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College, will be the speaker at the annual dinner of the Y. M. C. A. January 29. His coming and the date of the dinner were announced by the dinner committee, of which James E. Kimball is chairman, at the meeting of the association directors Thursday night.

The plans for the dinner are more elaborate than in past years. The menu will be longer and richer, and the postpandial features will be more impressive. Dr. Raymond is about the biggest lion ever bagged for a Y. M. C. A. dinner. The affair will be held in the large hall at the association building.

At last night's meeting, G. M. Rittenhouse presented the association with an Edison Home phonograph, and 200 records. The instrument will be used not only about the building, but at the shop prayer meetings.

HOWARD R. ELLIOTT WEDS MISS J. L. RANDOLPH.

Happy Event Celebrated at Home of the Bride on New Year's Day.

Miss Josephine L. Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Randolph, of Plainfield avenue, South Plainfield, and Howard B. Elliott, of Samptown, were married Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier Chapel, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Randolph, as maid-of-honor, and the best man was her brother, Arthur Randolph. A twin brother of the bride, C. H. Randolph, gave his sister in marriage. After the ceremony a reception was held. The bride received many useful gifts. The couple will reside at Samptown, where the groom is engaged in business as a mason.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Randolph are active in religious work at Marconnier chapel, Mrs. Randolph being a teacher in the Sunday-school, and her husband being a member of the Young Men's Bible Class. Tuesday night the couple entertained the Young People's Social Club at their home. The evening was spent in dancing and having a general good time.

Local Stock Take Prizes.

The Sunswick Poultry Farm at South Plainfield, of which Rufus Delafield is the owner and George J. May the manager, has had a large exhibit at the poultry show now being held in Madison Square Garden. Yesterday an Orpington black cock from this farm won five ribbons and two silver cups. William Cook and Sons, of Scotch Plains, who introduced the birds in the United States from England, are also showing many high priced winners in the Orpington division.

PROTECTION FOR RABBITS

J. A. Staats Marshalling Sportsman in Support of Proposed Measure.

FAVORS 3-YEAR CHECK

Growing Scarcity of Cottontails, He Says, Makes a Suspension for Hunting For That Period a Necessary.

Sportsmen of the northern and central sections of this State, among whom J. A. Staats, of this city, is prominent, are combining their efforts to have a bill introduced and passed by the incoming legislature that will prohibit the killing of rabbits for three years. The increased scarcity of the cottontails which has been noticeable for the past few hunting seasons is the chief cause for the agitation for the desired measure.

Mr. Staats is one of the best known wing shots in the State, and a former president of the North New Jersey Game Protective Association. He is one of the prime movers in the effort to secure the desired legislation. He is trying to interest the various game protective associations throughout the State, and is urging them to co-operate in the effort to check the slaughter of rabbits. He is confident of ultimate access in the crusade.

Mr. Staats maintains that the question is of prime importance and should interest every sportsman. He says that if the slaughter of rabbits is continued there will practically be no cottontails in the State in a year or so. Mr. Staats also declares that every sportsman in the State should stand by the proposed bill as a matter of self-protection, claiming that most of the rabbits are shot by hunters from New York and Pennsylvania, who invade the State in large numbers at every hunting season.

Who will present the bill, Mr. Staats is not prepared to say. He declares, however, that the bill is now in course of preparation and will surely be introduced.

It is an undeniable fact that rabbits have been getting scarcer in this section every season. Fifteen years ago the Watchung range was filled with choice rabbits, but now it is seldom rabbits are seen in anything like goodly numbers. Of late years, Hunterdon and Warren counties have been the objective points of hunters who wanted a decent chance for sport, but in the last five years the number of rabbits have greatly decreased there also. The Southern part of Morris county was at one time overrun with cottontails, as was the lowlands of Union, Middlesex and Monmouth counties. Sussex county and the northern part of Morris county were never good rabbit hunting territory because of the foxes that abound there.

ROCK AVENUE RESIDENTS RENEW THEIR AGITATION.

Say the Grade Crossing Is as Dangerous as the One at Stelton.

Residents in the vicinity are still actively agitating for the safeguarding of the grade crossing at Park avenue. Architect F. L. Lancaster, who recently built two houses on South Second street at that point, and lives in one of them, said this morning that the crossing was every bit as dangerous, if not more perilous, than the Pennsylvania crossing at Stelton, which the Middlesex county authorities have become aroused.

Mr. Lancaster cited the narrow escape of an automobile party which he witnessed last week, as a sample of the dangers which confront drivers at that point. The chauffeur drove almost directly in the path of a fast train, and brought his car to a stop with the wheels on the rail of the track next to the one in which the train rolled. There is a bell at the crossing, but, according to Mr. Lancaster, its tones are very apt to be drowned by other noises. In the case of the automobile, the clanging of his engine probably prevented the chauffeur from hearing the warning jangle.

It is contended by the residents that the roadbed could be depressed very easily. The subject will be brought to the attention of the Council again with renewed insistence.

FRANKLIN INSTALLS OFFICERS.

Ceremony Followed by Speeches and Serving of Refreshments.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., installed its offices-elect Thursday, and after the business of the evening refreshments were served. It was expected that there would be initiation and that some of the State Council officers would attend. The inclement weather interfered with the plans. These officers were installed:

Past Councilor, Frank Platts; councilor, Arthur Stryker; vice-councilor, Harry Knight; conductor, Frank Whitely; inside sentinel, Steven Millwater; outside sentinel, John Naylor; assistant secretary, Forester Hartpence; trustee, eighteen months, W. J. Hartpence; representatives to State Council, Thos. E. Currie, Jr., and Russell Hazard. Speeches were made by the new officers.

RECORDER DOLLIVER SITS IN BOROUGH COURT

HIS FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE TEMPERED WITH MERCY.

Recorder Charles M. Dolliver held his first session of the borough court, Wednesday, and incidentally started off with a full house. He had nine prisoners before him, eight of whom were giddy Prideville sports who had been caught throwing the bones for a sixty-five cent kitty. The octette was made up of Edwin Gaub, Howard Perry, Fred Perry, George Perry, Charles Bimble, Joseph Neal, Lewis Hansen and Charles Benner.

The magistrate sized up the situation carefully and then gave the culprits a lecture that made them wish they had never started the game. It was a sort of Runyonization mixed with the Smalley atmosphere that prevailed in the court all last year. At its close, the recorder bade the eight hike back to Prideville with the understanding that if they returned while he had the power to do so, a large cash would be cut in their surplus bank roll.

The other prisoner who lined up was not so fortunate. He was Ernest Bothwell, arrested by Special Marshal Kruse for trespassing on W. J. Buttfield's property and giving a lot of back talk when told to vacate. He handed up $3 in preference to going to jail for a few days.

The list of disorderly Dolliver's friends were on hand during the session and they took the opportunity to greet him at the close. His method of dispensing justice is the careful, considerate variety, meant to give a man a fair show instead of trying to make the court a source of income. He has several plans in view to put in effect during his term and one of them may be the holding of morning sessions, as is done on the city side of the brook.

UNION'S FREEHOLDERS ORGANIZE FOR THE YEAR.

Re-election of Officers and Selection of Committees Most Important Business.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met on New Year's Day and organized for the coming year by re-electing Benjamin King director; S. Rusling Ryno clerk; W. R. Codington county attorney, and Nathan R. Leavitt county collector. Director King appointed the following committees:

Public grounds and buildings—Krause, Cady, Woodruff; auditing accounts— Cady, Wilbur, Woodruff; appropriations—Cady, Darby, Fay, Krause, Maurer; publication—Meisel, Doane, Maurer; publication—Robinson, Doane, Jones; discharge of prisoners—Darby, Robinson, Swain; settle with collector—Krause, Cady, Smith; lunacy—Meisel, Smith, Fay; county roads—Krause, Krause, Wilbur, Cladek, Pierson; Elizabeth drawbridge—Pierson, Wilbur, Adams; Rahway drawbridges—Gruener, Perry, Cladek; sinking fund—Cady, Cladek and Director King.

The new members of the board are M. F. Pierson, J. Logan Fay, Robert G. Maurer and John J. Donohue, Democrats, of Elizabeth; Bradford Jones, of New Providence, and J. Hervey Doane, of this city. The board consists of twelve Republicans and eight Democrats. The salaries remain the same as last year.

GAVE RECEPAION AND TEA FOR MRS. F. M. SHEPARD.

Brilliant New Year Function at the Home of Mrs. W. E. Lowe Attended by Society.

For the purpose of giving her many Plainfield friends an opportunity to meet her while visiting here, Mrs. William E. Lowe gave an afternoon tea and reception Wednesday from 4 to 6 o'clock for her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Mead Shepard, of Madison, Wisconsin. During the hours about 150 friends called to extend New Year greetings.

Mrs. Lowe and her daughter were assisted by Mrs. John Doull Miller, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, Mrs. Howard Fleming and Mrs. Josiah Brown. Those assisting in the dining *room were Miss Josephine Lap*sley, Miss Waring, Miss Bushnell, Miss Eva Browne, Miss Maragret Mead and the Misses Fleming. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, the dining room being especially attractive, the chief color being white.

Relief Association Appeal.

The Plainfield Relief Association is in urgent and immediate need of second-hand clothing, shoes, furniture, bedding, anything to have in your houses for which you have no further use. Send a postal or telephone to 544 West Front street and articles will be called for. Yearly contributions of money of any amount are needed for carrying on the work. These should be sent to the treasurer, Miss Lillin C. Moore, 717 Watchung avenue.

—The Lehigh Valley has placed an order for six passenger coaches, and two combination buffet baggage cars for use in the Black Diamond Express, to replace similar equipment now on that train. Delivery of this equipment is promised in May, 1907, and the cars are to be the most modern and comfortable that can be made.

MR. BETTMAN COMPLAINS

Man Served with "White-cap" Notice Asks Scotch Plains Council For Protection.

THE POLICE MAY ACT

His Letter Referred to Chairman of Police Committee—Alleges That People Annoy Him.

Though several papers have asserted that the posting of the warnwood was the joke of college boys ing notices to C. A. Bettman at Fanhome for the holidays, the man directly concerned evidently does not look at it in that light. At last Wednesday's meeting of the Fanwood council, he submitted a communication in which he declared that he and his property had not been afforded proper protection and asked that it be given him. He asserted that he has been annoyed frequently by young men and that if the police did their duty he would not have to resort to the criticism that made him an object of attack.

Wheeler for one of the "vigilance committee" which put up the notices stating that he would be vivisected unless he left Fanwood, were in earnest, he stated that he was entitled to more consideration and asked that it be afforded him in the future. The council discussed his allegations and arrived at the conclusion that he was given all the protection possible and that his property and person received the same consideration as any other resident of the borough. The communication, however, was referred to the chairman of the police committee and he was instructed to consider it at length. The council afterward repudiated any suspicion that it believed its night policeman was not attending to duty by advancing his salary $5 a month.

A New York paper gave prominence to a story this morning that Miss Anna Bettman, a daughter of Mr. Bettman, had come home from Perth Amboy to help her mother locate and punish the members of the committee that had put up the placards. It stated that she had met one of them and had given him a severe pummeling. Mr. Bettman has no daughter named Anna and no one in Fanwood could be found today who had heard of any such occurrence. There is a belief, however, that Mr. Bettman is not laughing at the posters and that he is adopting every measure to prevent any irresponsible youths from bothering him.

MUHLENBERG RECEIVES $4,800 FROM COUNTY

FREEHOLDERS VOTE THAT SUM TO LOCAL HOSPITAL $10,200 FOR ELIZABETH

The Union County Board of Freeholders held its first regular meeting Thursday to consider several matters needing attention at that time. Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur offered a resolution, which was adopted, apportioning the various amounts to the hospitals in the county. Muhlenberg Hospital received $4,800; the Elizabeth General Hospital, $7,700, and the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Elizabeth, $2,700.

Freeholder Cladek, of Rahway, disputed a claim of $113 for lumber and $94 for help presented by the contractor for repairs on a bridge in Rahway. County Engineer Bauer explained that additional work was necessary under the bridge, however, Mr. Cladek did not want to stand for the bill and on his motion the matter was referred to a committee of five, of which S. Hervey Doane is one, for further investigation.

Collector Nathan R. Leavitt's bond was approved by the committee and Director Benjamin King appointed Freeholders Krause, Smith and Pierson as a legislative committee. Freeholders Smith, Meisel and Adams were also appointed as the committee on stationery and printing.

It was voted to raise the price for removing snow from county roads on Sundays to twenty-five cents an hour. The price for such work on other days will remain at 20 cents an hour. The Sunday raise was voted because it is hard to get men to work on Sundays.

Surprise Party.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Taylor, Mrs. Millwater, Mr. Mangam, Miss Lee and Mrs. Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gorman, John Kliner, Miss Carrie Beem tendered a surprise party to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vernum, of Woodbridge, on Wednesday night. The occasion was also the birthday celebration of Mrs. Vernum's mother, Mrs. Deeter, who was ninety-four years old.

New Concern Locates in the Stirling.

The Plainfield Motor Car Company, of which Frank W. Runyon is the president, and J. F. Gillette the manager, has leased the store at 214 Park avenue, the Stirling buildin, and will take possession soon. The store is to be used exclusively as a show room for the various motor cars to be handled by the company.

W. C. T. U. URGES "CURFEW LAW" FOR PLAINFIELD

Committee of Women Confer With Mayor Who Promises to Investigate the Idea.

IN FORCE ELSEWHERE

Mr. Fisk Communicates With Mayors of Trenton and Rahway to See How Scheme Works There.

Representing the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Mrs. H. H. Tomlinson and Mrs. Elizabeth Parse met Mayor Charles Joel Fisk by appointment at his office Monday afternoon to lay before him their claims for a "Curfew Law" for Plainfield. Mrs. Tomlinson is president of the Union county organization of the W. C. T. U. as well as of the Plainfield branch, while Mrs. Parse is vice-president of the latter body. After listening to their views, the Mayor stated that he would give the question his immediate and careful attention and that he would communicate with the W. C. T. U. at an early date.

It was explained by the delegation that more than 100 cities and towns in the United States have a "curfew law" and that satisfactory results have been obtained in every instance. It is the custom in these places to fire a bell or sound an alarm at 9 o'clock at night warning all children under a certain age to get off the streets. If found out of doors after that hour, unaccompanied by parents or guardians, they are taken in custody by the police officer who must see that they get home at once. In some instances they are taken to police headquarters to be reclaimed.

Among the places having such an ordinance at present are Trenton and Rahway, in this State, Titusville, Pa., thirty communities in Minnesota and large cities in the west including Topeka, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Louisville. The scheme was first put into practise in 1893 and has said to work well.

When asked by a reporter for The Daily Press what view he took of the matter, Mayor Fisk said today: "I know nothing about the subject further than what was explained to me by the W. C. T. U.'s delegates. It may be a very good thing, at any rate I am going to investigate it. Already I have written to the mayors of Trenton and Rahway asking for some information on the subject. I want to find how the thing is done and how it works. I have also had a talk with Chief Kiely about it. I can't give any opinion about the matter, however, until I complete my investigations."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN ROSS MARRIED FIFTY YEARS

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY AT HOME OF THEIR SON LAST NIGHT.

Friends and relatives to the number of seventy-five joined with Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, of 329 East Sixth street, in celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday. A reception was held at the home of their son, L. R. Ross, 402 East Seventh street.

The house was handsomely decorated with flowers and plants. A two-piece orchestra played through the evening.

Rev. John Sheridan Zeiss, of the Crescent Avenue church, the aged couple's pastor, spoke and offered prayer for their continued health and happiness. During the prayer, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Benward, of Piscataway, at whose wedding the fiftieth anniversary of which was observed January 2, Mrs. Ross was bridesmaid, stood beside Mr. and Mrs. Ross. The latter attended the Benward celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross received a number of gifts. Their children gave them a purse of gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross were married at the old homestead of Runyon Walker, of Piscataway, the bride's father, by the late Rev. S. J. Page, then pastor of the Stelton Baptist church. They lived in Piscataway until twenty-seven years ago, when they moved here. They lived for many years in the house on East Seventh street opposite the one where their son now lives. They have had five children, four of whom are living—L. R. Ross, Mrs. C. Arthur Bayson, Mrs. Frank L. Runyon and Mrs. George W. Davey. Peter, the first born, died when a young child. There are five grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. St. John, who have been stopping at the Hotel Kensington during the past few weeks, left yesterday for Bath, N. Y., where they will remain for the present. Later they may go to Los Angeles, California.

FIGHTING TUBERCULOSIS

Board of Health Receiving Assistance From Child Society in Its Campaign.

MAYOR FISK'S SCHEME

At His Own Expense, Mayor Is Endeavoring to Have One Patient Cured By Fresh Air Treatment Here.

Following the instructions of the Board of Health, Plainfield's physicians are faithfully reporting any cases of consumption that may come under their care, and an aggressive fight is being waged against that terrible disease, as is shown in the annual report of the Board just submitted to the Common Council.

In dwelling on this subject, Health Officer Thurlow in his annual report says:

"Forty-two cases were reported and twenty-six deaths. The number of cases exceeded those of last year for the reason that physicians are more faithful in reporting this disease, and we feel sure that forty-two represents the actual number of cases which came under the care of physicians during the year.

"Disinfection after deaths or removal of patients suffering from tuberculosis was continued through the year, and also the request was made to give publicity to our anti-spitting ordinance. In addition to the above, a circular containing information for consumptives and those living with them, was issued for distribution among all classes, whether consumptives or not.

"Much activity and interest in this subject was shown in Plainfield this past year. The Plainfield Clinical Society realizing that the most efficient means of stamping out this disease was to show how it could be prevented and cured, appointed a committee of twenty representative men and women of Plainfield; it was the purpose of this committee to hold meetings and exhibits to instruct the people about tuberculosis. A large public meeting was held in March 20th and followed by smaller local meetings in various churches and societies; this coming year the State Tuberculosis exhibit will visit Plainfield. The work done by this committee was excellent and we believe that this coming year it will do more than anything else toward checking the progress of this disease which has always been one of the chief causes of death.

"The following is a very interesting illustration of how tuberculosis may be cared for at home by what is known as the open air and rest treatment. This experiment was made under the direction of and through the generosity of one of our citizens, Charles J. Fisk.

"In August, 1906, the patient, who was in the advanced stages of tuberculosis, was sent to a farm to be under the care of a nurse and kept in bed during the entire twenty-four hours. Forced feeding, consisting mainly of milk and eggs, and general tonic and symptomatic treatment instituted. The tent, situated in the rear of the house in the residental portion of the city, was erected over a wooden platform three feet above the ground and constructed of some strong, waterproof material, the whole being protected from wind and rain by a "fly." The results of this treatment were most astonishing for the patient has shown marked improvement and has gained rapidly in flesh and strength."

To the report, Mr. Thurlow appends the following information for consumptives and those living with them, which has already been published in these columns.

Higher Salaries for Teachers.

Under the method of apportioning State school moneys adopted by the last session of the legislature $400 is assigned to each school district in the State for every high school teacher employed in an approved high school of a four years' course. Hitherto the apportionment for such teachers has been $200. The State Teachers' Association claims that these additional $200 should be added to the salaries of the high school teachers, in the following statement, made at the late meeting in Atlantic City: "Any high school teachers whose salaries were $200 more in 1907 will have to be defrauded by their boards of education, and they should not be slow in making the fact known to the public."

Masonic Anniversary.

Solomon's Lodge, No. 46, F. and A. M., of Somerville, is making preparations for the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, which will take place Thursday evening, January 24, at 8 o'clock. The women of the Second Reformed church are arranging to give a dinner in honor of the event. This will be held in the chapel. Among the speakers will be Vice Chancelor James J. Bergen, of Somerville, representing Solomon's Lodge; Walter Chandler, of Elizabeth, Grand Master of New Jersey; Judge J. R. Dill, of the Court of Errors and Appeals, and Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, of Newark.

Nominations For New Offices in Police Department are Withdrawn.

BACK TO COMMITTEE

Confirmation of Appointments of Additional Patrolmen Is Also Deferred—Some Objections.

Following closely the action of the Common Council of 1906 in creating the offices of captain, sergeant and detective sergeant of the police department by amending the ordinance, Mayor Fisk, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, made appointments for the purpose of filling the new offices. But through a move on the part of Mr. Tyler, the appointments were withdrawn. They will probably come up at a later meeting.

Mayor Fisk nominated Sergeant Christian Frederickson to the office of captain, Roundsman John Flynn to the office of sergeant of police and Patrolman F. S. Marchant to the office of detective sergeant. Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, moved that the appointments be confirmed.

Mr. Tyler rose to a point of order, stating that the rules provide that in the case of such nominations the appointees shall be voted upon separately and not collectively. Mr. Randolph was not particularly anxious to have this done and his motion to withdraw the appointments and have them referred was then made to give publicity to our anti-spitting ordinance. In addition to the above, a circular containing information for consumptives and those living with them, was issued for distribution among all classes, whether consumptives or not.

After the disposition of this matter the appointments of Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Charles H. Dunham, to succeed themselves, and William C. Kinney to succeed Mayor C. J. Fisk, as members of the Board of Health for a term of two years, were confirmed without any objection, in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Tolles.

Later in the evening, following the suggestion made by Mayor Fisk in his message, Mr. Randolph offered a resolution authorizing the Mayor to appoint nine more men as regular policemen, it being understood, of course, that five of that number are now specials doing regular duty, and it would mean the appointment of five extra men and the act of making the five specials regulars. Mr. Randolphs resolution called for a force of twenty-six regular men, instead of seventeen. He explained that the present force allowed two-thirds of a man for every one thousand inhabitants and he considered this to be a small percentage.

Mr. Hibbard considered the increase to be excessively large, and thought the increase should be based on the proportionate growth of the city.

Mr. Tyler wanted to know whether the police board had held a meeting this year. Mr. Randolph replied that no meeting had been held, but that the police board is the same as that of last year, and the matter was considered carefully last fall. He said that the adoption of the resolution would simply give the Mayor the authority to appoint four extra men, but it is hard to get men to serve on the force he doubted whether the appointments would be made at present.

At this point Mr. Tyler stated that while the rules provide that reports of such committees be made in writing and signed by the members of it, it had not been the custom. He then moved that the resolution be referred back to the police board with the understanding that the report of that body be made in writing signed by all the members.

In answer to Mr. Montgomery's question as to whether Mr. Mallick was at the December meeting of the police board, Mr. Randolph replied in the negative.

The vote was then called for on Mr. Tyler's motion and it was carried, Councilmen Ginna, Hibbard, Montgomery, F. Randolph, Tyler and Daniel supporting it and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak and Tolles voting against it.

SICHE COMPANY WON.

Finally Gets Verdict Against W. W. Warnock By Court's Direction.

Two actions of similar nature were the only ones contested in the District Court Tuesday morning. After a string of adjournments the case of the Siche Gas Company against W. W. Warnock was finally fought out to a second time. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. This time Judge Newcorn directed the jury to bring in a verdict in full for the plaintiff. The action was for the collection of $105 due on a gas machine. Mr. Warnock claimed it did not come up to the guarantee accompanying it. W. A. Coddington appeared for the plaintiff.

The Sunlight Gas Machine Company sued Jasper Cadmus in the same way in action and met the same sort of defense. Judge Newcorn reserved decision. H. C. Runyon appeared for the plaintiff, W. A. Coddington for the defendant.

Mrs. Aletta Huff, of Centerville, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

The Borough Commission Requests Information Concerning Terms for Joint Service.

ADDRESS CITY FATHERS

Will Bear Share of Interest On Cost and of Annual Expense of Running Plainfield's Plant.

The urgent need of a sanitary sewer system or some method of disposing of the sewage in North Plainfield was brought to the attention of the Plainfield Common Council at its adjourned meeting, Monday night, through a communication from W. J. Buttfield, secretary of the North Plainfield Sewage Commission. Steps had previously been taken looking to a solution of this question, the Plainfield Council having received a communication last year on the subject. At that time nothing definite resulted.

The North Plainfield officials have been considering the sanitary sewer problem for some time, and as stated in Mr. Buttfield's letter last night two propositions are before the borough—the joint use of Plainfield's system and the installation of an independent system in the borough. Mayor Fisk stated that he had been communicated with about the matter, but preferred that the Common Council should investigate it. The important part of Mr. Buttfield's letter is as follows:

"I am directed to inquire of your honorable body whether or not you would favorably consider a proposition upon the following basis:

"A contract between the city and borough under which the city shall agree to dispose of the borough's sewage—of a maximum amount to be delivered—for a minimum term of ten years. This maximum amount to be revised from year to year in accordance with the growth and consequent requirements of the borough.

"Compensation to the city for such services to be provided by a payment of a proportion of the interest on cost and of the future maintenance of the city's disposal works, such proportion to be arrived at by assessing the borough in accordance with the ratio of the valuations of the ratables of both city and borough.

"Said cost of Plainfield's disposal works to be determined by taking first cost of the land, together with the cost of the buildings now or hereafter actually in use for the purposes under consideration. This estimated cost should not include cost of renewals and repairs incurred before the proposed joint use, neither should it include the cost of unused lands, nor of works heretofore in operation, but now in disuse.

"Any preliminary understanding mutually satisfactory in the main must be subject to legal endorsement, and to any provisions necessary to properly safeguard the interests of both the city and borough.

"If the foregoing suggestions meet with your approval, will you kindly furnish a rough estimate of the cost of the city disposal works as defined above, and in connection of the annual expense of maintaining the same."

Mr. Buttfield concludes his communication with a request for an early reply, owing to the present need of a sewer system by the borough. The matter was referred to the street and sewer committee and will be reported upon at the earliest convenience of that committee.

MR. GILBERT CHAIRMAN OF MERGER COMMISSION

COL. TYLER CHOSEN FIFTH MEMBER OF CONSOLIDATION PROBERS.

The first meeting of the Consolidation Commission was held in the offices of Mayor Charles J. Fisk Monday afternoon and by a unanimous vote Col. Mason W. Tyler, father of Councilman William S. Tyler, was selected by the four others as the fifth member of the body. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association and president of the Market and Fulton Bank of New York, was the unanimous choice for chairman. City Stenographer George B. Wean was appointed secretary.

Arrangements were made to hold meetings on every Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The sessions will be held in the office of the Mayor of Plainfield, and several public meetings in addition will probably take place in the Common Council chamber. Mayors Fisk and Smalley have been invited by the commission to attend all meetings. The body will begin its work as if nothing had ever been done towards the proposed merger of the two municipalities.

Company K Elects Officers.

The yearly meeting of Company K was held last night when Corporal Robert Goldsack was elected secretary, Sergeant O. F. Pearson, financial secretar; Lieut. John M. Lewis, treasurer, and Private William Hartpence, sergeant-at-arms.

HEALTH BOARD'S REPORT

Review of 1906 and Suggestions For 1907 in Annual Statement.

VERY LOW DEATH RATE

Communicable Disease, Ice, Nuisances, Plumbing and Milk Supply Among Chief Topcis.

In the annual report of the Board of Health, filed with the Common Council, Health Officer Leon Thurlow incidently brings out the following facts of interest to the community:

The two great needs of the city from a sanitary standpoint are: First, a proper collection and disposal of the garbage, ashes and rubbish; second, an ordinance prohibiting the burning of leaves, and also one prohibiting bon fires in the crowded sections of the city.

The annoyance caused by the burning of leaves every fall cannot be emphasized too forcibly. Under the laws of the State of New Jersey, this matter does not come within the jurisdiction of a board of health. I would, therefore, strongly recommend that the board request the Common Council to adopt the necessary ordinances to stop this practice. Both of these subjects are discussed in detail later in this report.

Births—There were 298 deaths recorded during 1906, which represents a death rate of 15.60 per thousand population. It will be noticed that 96 or about one-third of the total number were among persons over sixty years of age.

The total number of birth returns made in 1906 was 404. In 1906 there were recorded 155 marriages, 134 of which were white and 21 colored; representing a rate of 8.12 per thousand.

The following is a summary of the returns made to this office during 1906: Marriages, 155; births, 404; still-births, 15; deaths, 298; total, 892.

Communicable Disease.

A remarkably low number of cases of communicable disease occurred throughout the year. There were 32 deaths but 26 of these resulted from tuberculosis.

Ice Supply.

The local sources of supply—Watchung Lake and The Hygeia Ice Plant—from which the ice for Plainfield has been obtained in previous years, were not sufficient for the needs of the city this past year. Owing to the warm winter of 1905-06, very little ice was cut from Watchung Lake, and although this was supplemented by the entire output of the artificial ice plant, which was from 25 to 30 tons daily, it became necessary, during the latter part of the season, for the dealers to purchase ice outside the city.

Watchung Lake.

There has been little change in the watershed of this lake: two or three houses have been built but these are a long distance from the lake. There is only one privy vault in the vicinity and that is cemented and made water-tight. The principal objection to the lake as a source of ice supply is that it receives the surface drainage from the southeast side. On this side the main road from Watchung to Warrenville and also several houses. Formerly a ditch ran along this side which carried the surface water to below the dam, but now the walls of the ditch are broken and open at both ends into the lake. At the time of inspection the water in the ditch was discolored and stagnant. The lake would be greatly improved as a source of ice supply if the walls of the ditch were repaired and the surface water discharged below the dam.

House-to-House Inspection.

The sanitary survey of the city was continued this past summer. Few new properties were inspected however, most of the time being spent in having the 2,500 houses already inspected, thoroughly cleaned up. This work has been greatly delayed on account of the many new sewer connections and new plumbing systems made necessary in order to abolish the vaults and cesspools.

In the past three years we have had a total of 700 vaults and 300 cesspools abolished. This coming year the work will be pushed with all possible energy and we hope to have every vault and cesspool in all but the outlying parts of the city, abolished.

Nuisances.

During the year 253 complaints were received and investigated. 210 of these nuisances were abated; in the remainder the board had no power, or there was no cause for complaint.

As usual, the nuisances caused by accumulations of garbage and refuse head the list. There were fewer complaints of vaults and cesspools this year than last because of the vigorous efforts of the board to rid the city of them. During the past three years more than 700 vaults and 300 cesspools have been abolished.

Another cause for complaint was the burning of papers and rubish in the rear yards. This has been the practice of many of the store-keepers and has been the source of much annoyance to the residents of the apartments over the stores and to the occupants of other stores in the vicinity. The Board of Health has no authority to adopt prohibitive measures against this practice and I would, therefore, suggest that steps be taken to have the Common Council adopt an ordinance prohibiting bonfires in the crowded districts of the city.

Another cause for complaint of similar character was that of burning leaves every fall. While this cannot be absolutely proven to be detrimental to health, it is unquestionably most irritating to the throat and may easily make a person susceptible to the various throat diseases. This practice of burning leaves should also be prohibited.

Both of these causes of complaint would be abolished if a municipal collection of the ashes, garbage and refuse were established. In addition to the regular rubbish wagon, one or two wagons of large capacity could be used temporarily for the collection of the leaves during the few weeks in the fall when this is necessary, and the leaves removed to some place outside the city.

One other source of complaint which was most annoying was the nuisance arising from the lack of proper privy vaults, or, the temporary vaults in connection with buildings under the course of construction.

Plumbing.

The large amount of building in Plainfield this past year, combined with notices to connect properties with the sewer and abolish vaults and cesspools, made a great deal of work for the plumbers. Some trouble was experienced on account of their failure to finish the work promptly.

Milk Supply.

A careful supervision of the milk supply has become one of the most important branches in the work of this board. The system of dairy inspection and milk analysis started five years ago, was continued through this past year. Five hundred and forty-three dairy inspections were made of the 193 dairies supplying Plainfield with milk and forty-one inspections of the stores selling milk. As the sources are constantly changing, it is only by repeated and careful inspections that a high standard can be maintained.

In connection with this work of dairy inspection, a crusade against polluted dairy wells was begun. Fifty samples of water were taken from wells on different dairy premises, particular attention being paid to the wells used for washing milk utensils, bottles, etc. The result of these analyses showed many wells to be badly polluted by barnyard drainage; in each instance these wells were ordered closed. We hope to complete this work during the coming year and will then be sure that every dairy supplying milk in Plainfield is provided with a good, wholesome water, free from contamination.

During the summer months several samples were taken which were exceedingly high in bacteria. An investigation showed in most cases some abnormal condition at the dairy—frequently, the lack of ice. Bacteria in milk are not always an indication of dirt. A high number may be due to careless handling or to improper storing.

APPENDICITIS FATAL TO HERBERT B. BROOKS

DEATH CAME TO HIM EARLY TODAY AFTER ILLNESS OF FOUR WEEKS.

Following an illness of nearly four weeks with appendicitis, death came shortly after 4 Tuesday morning to Herbert Brentnall Brooks, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Brooks, of Rockview avenue. He was operated on by Dr. Endicott three weeks ago Saturday but had been steadily sinking for the past week. The end had been expected for two or three days and the members of his family were at his bedside when the end came.

Mr. Brooks was in his forty-fifth year and had been a resident of Plainfield practically all his life. His disposition was of the whole-souled, democratic kind and he had hosts of acquaintances in every part of Plainfield and throughout the State. In his younger days he travelled as far as Australia several times but in recent years had been connected with his father's firm, the Clarence Brooks Varnish Company, of Newark. Selfishness or criticism were foreign to his make-up and many of those who were numbered among his friends have often felt his kindly sympathy and assistance. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., and also Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E.

Beside his parents, Mr. Brooks is survived by his wife and three sisters, Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, of the borough; Mrs. Ely, wife of Captain Frank Ely, now stationed at Denver, Colorado, and Miss Lillie Brooks. The funeral will be held at the parents' home, Thursday afternoon at 2:45.

Mr. Jackson Purchases Parsonage.

The residential property at 640 Central avenue, owned by Mrs. James Clark, and occupied as a parsonage for the First M. E. church by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, has been purchased by James W. Jackson, presumably for the church. The deal was made through the agency of Liefke & Laing, insurance and real estate brokers of Park avenue.

GARBAGE AS A MENACE

Recommendation For Municipal Collection and Disposal of Refuse.

AND OF ASHES, TOO

The Board of Health Says Present Method Is a Disgrace to City of Plainfield.

Nothing has been done by the Common Council towards the oft-agitated plan for municipal collection and disposal of garbage and ashes. The urgent need for it is clearly explained in the following recommendation of the local Board of Health:

"A proper sanitary method for the collection and disposal of the garbage and ashes of Plainfield is today one of the most important questions with which the city has to deal. This past year we received more complaints of nuisances arising from garbage than any other source. Our house-to-house inspection showed that many of the rear yards are a disgrace to a city that takes such pride in cleanliness as Plainfield. These conditions are due principally to the fact that the prices charged by the collectors are beyond the reach of the poorer people; and under the circumstances, there is little for them to do but to bury the garbage and throw the ashes into the yard.

"At the present time there are thirteen collectors, one of whom is a woman; of the remaing twelve men, four are colored. Their wagons, horses and equipment are unsanitary, unsightly and not of the collective sort. During the summer a great many complaints came to this department of the objectionable odors emanating from the wooden wagons, wooden pails and barrels used by the various collectors. These were seldom properly cleansed and usually contained some portion of the garbage from a previous collection which naturally became most offensive during the hot months. These wagons were driven not only in the residential part of the city, but also into the business section, and allowed to stand for some time. At the present time there is not one modern iron or steel garbage wagon in use in the city of Plainfield.

"A continued stream of complaints of the failure of collectors to remove the garbage of their regular customers came to this department during the summer. But the power of the board is limited in this matter to the extent of the ordinance in which garbage is collected, and is not sufficient to compel a collector to remove the garbage from his customer's house. As a result of this lack of power the board is unable to exercise any authority in such cases the garbage would be left for three or four weeks until a collector could be found who was willing to remove it.

"This state of affairs is a drawback to our city in that it discourages any one contemplating residence here. One of our complainants was a new resident of our city who experienced considerable difficulty in having his garbage removed. He expressed strong surprise that Plainfield should be so behind the times in the method of garbage collection.

"From the sanitary standpoint the ashes are not as important as the garbage, but the present method of ash collection is very expensive and unsightly. The ash wagons are no better in appearance than the others; they are broken down affairs which are constantly spreading ashes over the streets.

"There is but one means of permanent relief from this constant source of complaint and that is for the city of Plainfield to establish a system of municipal garbage and ash collection.

OSGOOD A COMMISSIONER.

Jersey Central's Engineer Member of Water Investigating Body.

Joseph O. Osgood, chief engineer of the New Jersey Central, has been appointed by Mayor Fisk as a member of the bi-municipal public ownership commission, which is empowered to investigate the subject of establishing a water plant to be used jointly by Plainfield and North Plainfield. Mr. Osgood is considered to be the best informed man in the subject in this section and the Mayor says he is exceedingly anxious for him to co-operate in the investigation.

The first meeting of the commission will be held in Mayor Fisk's office on Friday night at 8 o'clock. Notice were sent out last night to all the fifteen members to be in attendance.

Selling Snow in Syria.

A Syrian correspondent describes the method in Asia Minor of providing a substitute for ice; snow is gathered in the adjacent mountains and packed in a conical pit, tamped in tightly and covered with straw and leaves. At the bottom of the pit a well is dug, with a drain connected at the bottom to carry off the water formed from melted snow. As the cost of collecting and storing is very small, the only labor is in delivering to the consumers, which is accomplished by pack horses.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Musson, of West Front street, are visiting relatives in Washington.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1907. NO. 3.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

BUCKLE FAVORS DRYDEN

Former Mayor, City Clerk Mac Murray and L. B. Woolston Endorse Him.

GIVE THEIR REASONS

Charles H. Dunham, of Health Board, Also Speaks On Behalf of the Candidate.

Since The Daily Press interviewed a number of representative citizens on Mr. Dryden's candidacy, others have given decidedly opposite views on the subject.

"I have never met United States Senator John F. Dryden and have I ever had occasion to communicate with him in the way of business," said former Mayor James A. Buckle, "therefore, what I say is absolutely my own opinion, without prejudice or bias due to personal influence. I want Senator Dryden re-elected. He is a man of constructive abilities. He is honest. I have studied his record in Washington, and no one has been able to find that in any official act has he violated his party obligations. Indeed, the strong light that has been thrown on his record has only made it stand out clearer as that of a man with remarkable ability and of a perfect honesty of purpose and unconfirmed.

"There is another thing. I have looked up Mr. Dryden's career since early manhood, and I find him one of the few self-made men. His services to the State before his Senatorial duties were assumed makes him conspicuous of all the men this State has reared. Such a man appeals to me, and I shall do everything in my power to induce our representatives to vote for him."

"I indorse Senator Dryden as a Republican," said T. MacMurray, "and I want him re-elected United States Senator. I indorse him because he is an honest man and an able man. His record as a Senator from New Jersey is an honor to his State.

"Now, I think this is right. When a man is capable and honest and entitled to the honor of re-election, I believe it is only a square deal to give it to him. This is peculiarly so in Senator Dryden's case, and he announced himself a candidate at the last summer, and conducted an active campaign against many unusual and even unfair obstacles, and on the issues raised by his antagonist, Senator Colby, fairly swamped the latter. Certainly it would be anything but an open deal after that to elect another man to his place. It would be dishonorable politics."

"These views I express are the views also of the firm I represent and speak for. Senator Dryden's course in the United States Senate has won and of great material aid to every industry in this State. I am writing today to Senator Ackerman expressing these views and requesting him to withdraw from his present position and cast his vote with his Republican colleagues. I know Senator Ackerman very well. He is a business man and he must recognize that the election of a Senator is a purely business matter. He is president of the Lawrence Cement Company, and as such must have the support of his directors in his administrative acts. His business would be ruined if he decided to act in defiance of his directors. I am quite sure that when Senator Ackerman comes to vote on the question he will do it in harmony with, and not in defiance of, his party."

L. B. Woolston said that he was so strongly convinced of Senator Dryden's fitness for the office over all other men whose names have been mentioned that he had embodied his views for his indorsement of his candidacy in a letter which he sent to Senator Ackerman.

"In that letter," Mr. Woolston added, "I called attention to Senator Dryden's record and his admitted ability as a constructive, business man who had made his own way in life, and said that I thoroughly indorsed Senator Dryden's candidacy, and that I believed his re-election was the only fair and square thing for the party. Finally, I urged upon Senator Ackerman that he reconsider his attitude and endeavor to reconcile his views on the Senatorship with those held by his party colleagues.

"In response to my letter I received a prompt answer from Senator Ackerman acknowledging its receipt and thanking me for letting him have my views. His letter then went on to say that he greatly desired to vote for a candidate who would unite the party, and that every communication sent him helped to form an opinion as to the wishes of the people of Union county."

Charles H. Durham also favors Mr. Dryden.

—Mrs. Morris Kennedy, of Monroe avenue, entertained a party of young friends Sunday night from Raritan and this place.

DAY NURSERY HOLDS ANNIVERSARY RECEPTION.

Children Entertain Guests Who Contribute to the Institution.

The first anniversary of The Day Nursery held at the nursery, 444 West Third street, yesterday afternoon, from 3 to 6 o'clock, was largely attended by members of the City Union, Kings Daughters, under whose auspices it is conducted, and by other friends of the charity. There was a generous contribution of dry groceries but not nearly enough for the needs of the institution. A silver offering was received at the door and a small sum was realized.

Those who poured tea during the afternoon were Mrs. Frederick W. Butler and Mrs. Henry L. Hall, while Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. Anna Most received the guests. Members of the Cup Bearers' Circle, King's Daughters, including Miss Anna Garricques, Miss Lorine Saunders, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Marion Hall and Miss Alice Titus assisted in serving tea. An inspection of the place was made by the guests. A feature of the affair was a programme of songs and recitations given by the children in the nursery for the day. They were trained by Mrs. Bird, the matron, and the efforts of the little ones were remarkable when it is considered that Mrs. Bird only has the children a day at a time. Last year over 2,000 children were cared for, while during the past month over 400 children were at the nursery.

RECEPTION TO RETIRED NEW MARKET PASTOR.

Baptists of the Village Honor Mr. Fletcher and His Wife At Reception.

New Market Baptists honored Rev. Frank Fletcher, their retired pastor, and his wife with a reception last night. Over 100 members of the village church attended.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. Fletcher. The house was decorated with plants and flowers, in green and white.

The evening was passed informally. Mr. Fletcher himself, who refuses to recognize years as a weight on the spirit, spent a good part of the evening with the young people. Mrs. Robert Gliddes sang solos, and the young people sang college songs. Refreshments were served.

The affair was arranged by the women of the congregation. The executive committee was made up of Mrs. R. L. Pierce, Mrs. Foster Sofield and Mrs. Harry Piddington.

MAY BUILD CHAPEL.

Local Endeavorers Planning Work in the West End.

Encouraging reports were presented at the executive committee meeting of the local Christian Endeavor Union, last night. It was stated that the Gospel meetings being held in the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle are largely attended and helpful. A Sunday-school was organized there on Sunday and many children were present. As soon as circumstances and conditions will permit it is proposed to erect a chapel in the West End of the city.

The union is in need of funds to carry on its work and it is hoped that all the local Christian Endeavor societies will do their share in supporting the worthy cause, financially and otherwise. Gospel meetings are held at the Hunter Avenue Tabernacle, Home and Verona avenues, every Thursday night.

Will Build Its Own Wing Walls.

Thus far the Somerset County Board of Freeholders has taken no action on the question of erecting wing walls on the new West End avenue bridge, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Union County Board which appropriated an amount not to exceed $2,600 for the improvement. In case the Somerset county Board fails to act pretty soon, it is likely that the bridge committee from Union county will authorize the erection of wing walls on the city side and the adjoining county to do as it pleases about making the improvement.

Mrs. Ann Kelly's Funeral.

Before a large gathering of relatives and friends, a requiem mass was said over Mrs. Ann Kelly in St. Mary's church this morning. Rev. Father Bogan was the celebrant, Father Delehanty, the deacon, and Father Scioia the sub-deacon. There was a large display of floral tributes. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Patrick Muldoon, Edward Gavin, John Quinn, Hugh McDonnell, David Barry and Patrick Moran.

Petit Jury Discharged.

The petit jury was discharged by the court at Elizabeth yesterday, subject to the call of Sheriff Lawrence. There is so little business on now in the Circuit Court that the services of the jury are not needed every day.

H. R. Brokaw left yesterday for Fort Dodge, Iowa, after a two weeks' vacation spent at his home here.

(Continued on Page 5.)

FORM "PLAINFIELD CLUB"

Association to Have Casino as Home Adopts Constitution and By-Laws.

$8,000 NOW SUBSCRIBED

To Take Over Property and Issue Bonds After Incorporation—Committee's Statement.

It was decided at a meeting of prominent men at the Casino, Tuesday, to organize a club, take over the Casino property and continue it along the lines provided in the constitution and by-laws, drafted by a special committee several weeks ago. The question of selecting trustees was held in abeyance, but it was decided to incorporate, and Saturday night, February 2, was fixed as the time when the next meeting will be held to complete the details of organization. There was a good attendance of men, last night, and much enthusiasm manifested.

The objects of the new club are to be for the promotion of social intercourse, athletics and the general welfare of the city. Men over twenty-one years are eligible to membership. It is also proposed to build two squash courts, make such extensions and improvements as will meet the requirements of the club. Tennis courts will be maintained, and pool, billiards and bowling will continue to be features.

It is further proposed to tear out the present kitchen and install gas grills opening into the pool and billiard rooms. The entrance fee for the first 100 members will be $10 and the dues $50 a year. After the first 100 the entrance fee will be $25, and the dues will continue as $50. The Casino will be continued as a gentlemen's establishment for entertainments, dances and meetings of all kinds as at present.

Among those who signed the petition last night signifying their desire to join such a club, are the following: Samuel T. MacMurray, Charles H. Goddard, Lewis E. Waring, Owen H. Fleming, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, George S. Ring, Crair A. Marsh, S. D. Lounsbery, W. deLaR. Anderson, W. Lester Gillenney, George A. Beaton, A. L. Otterson and T. M. Day.

The special committee to draft constitution and by-la s, of which Craig A. Marsh is the chairman, presented a draft of a constitution and by-laws and it was accepted. Afterwards a committee was appointed providing that a club be formed and incorporated as outlined. The question of selecting nine trustees was held over, because some of those interested in the movement could not attend this meeting. It is also proposed to make a general appeal to Plainfield men to join the club which is to be known as "The Plainfield Club."

In a statement issued by the committee, the following facts are set forth:

"The Casino is so well adapted to concerts, lectures, dances, musical and dramatic entertainments that it is considered by many as a necessity to the community, and, inasmuch as it is the only attraction in this line left for the purposes above mentioned, to have it torn down would undoubtedly be a great loss to the city. If it be torn down, it cannot put be apparent to those familiar with conditions that it will, in all probability, be a long time before anything can be built to replace it, and without it the people of the city will lose many opportunities for pleasure and entertainment which they now have, but which without the Casino would be impossible. It will not, however, be maintained longer along the lines it has been in the past, and, unless definite action be taken at an early day, the community will lose it.

"For some time plans have been under consideration looking to preserving the Casino, and the decision has finally been reached that if financial support therefor can be obtained, to organize a corporation to acquire the Casino and ground and organize a club to maintain it. If sufficient financial support can be obtained to purchase the Casino, it is proposed to make such changes in the building as will render it suitable for club purposes; fit up a gymnasium and squash courts; put the bowling alleys in good repair, and make it suitable, not only for a general club, but for athletic purposes."

It is further stated that the entire property can be purchased for $17,000 and it is estimated that $8,000 will be sufficient to make all needed repairs and improvements. The plan is to pay off the mortgage, make a new mortgage for $25,000, and issue five per cent. bonds to that denomination of $100 each and offer them to the men of Plainfield for purchase. Subscriptions for the bonds will be at par, payable 25 per cent. March 15 and 75 per cent. May 15, from

IS A ROYAL PHILATELIST

Order of King Edward Makes Mr. Ackerman a "F. R. P. S. L."

HE IS A STAMP EXPERT

Only Four Other Americans in Society—The Prince of Wales Is Head of the Society.

With four other prominent stamp collectors of this country, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman can now write "F. R. P. S. L." after his name. It means "Fellow of the Royal Philatelic Society, London," and is a new title just made possible by grant of King Edward of England. The Prince of Wales is a philatelist and is the president of the society. Previous to the King's action, the name of the society was merely the "Philatelic Society, London." The number of members who can be "fellows" of the society is limited to 350. The Americans in the list are W. H. Crocker and Henry C. Crocker, of San Francisco; Henry Duveen and F. F. Bruner, of New York; E. R. Ackerman, of this city.

No man in New Jersey is better grounded in philately than Mr. Ackerman. No more than a score of men in the United States are as well versed in it. When he was yet a small boy he formed the nucleus of his magnificent collection, which today is contained in more than two dozen albums. During his trips around the world he has found much enjoyment in examining famous private collections, attending exhibitions held by philatelic societies, viewing the assortments of dealers and conferring with men who have spent fortunes in gathering stamps.

Mr. Ackerman has received medals and ribbons as prizes for collections he has had at public exhibitions in this country and abroad. His collections of the issues of Norway and Sweden won for him a prize not long since, and he has also received an award for his collection of stamps of the possessions of the United States, which is hard to surpass anywhere. The "den" of Mr. Ackerman's house is papered entirely with the uncancelled stamps of a South American Republic.

HAMILTON KEAN DINES UNION'S ASSEMBLYMEN

PERKINS, TILLMAN, MOXON AND COUNTY CHAIRMAN THERE.

There was much gossip over a little dinner which was given in the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, last Friday night. Hamilton Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean, was the host, and the guests were Assemblymen Randolph Perkins, Peter Tillman and John R. Moxon, of Union, and Frank Smith, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. Senator Ackerman was not invited.

It was alleged that the object of the gathering was to endeavor to bring the Union county members of the Legislature into line for John F. Dryden for United States Senator, but this is denied.

"You can say," said Mr. Perkins when asked about the dinner, "that there is no change in the position of the members of the Legislature from Union county from that they announced in the statement they made some time ago." Mr. Tillman laughingly added that "not much was said about the Senatorial situation."

FIRE PURSUES THEM.

Flames Keep at the Lufburrows' Furniture Until It Disappears.

George Lufburrow, of Matawan, had some furniture left after a fire at his house two months ago, but he hasn't any at all now. Mr. Lufburrow, who has been living with his son, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of West Front street, since the fire, learned this week that another fire had destroyed the place where he stored the remnants of his furnishings, and the remnants with it.

The first fire was stored in a summer cottage. It caught fire Saturday night, and went up like oil soaked paper. Immediately after the first fire Mr. Lufburrow, his wife and two daughters came here to the doctor's house. They are afraid to go back to Matawan for fear they will be caught by fire themselves.

J. J. Kliner, Jr., Marries.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Saturday last of John J. Kliner, Jr., of this city, and Miss Carrie Bein, of Califon, Hunterdon county, which, owing to the recent death of the brides mother, was a quiet affair. The couple will reside in this city.

"MIKE" MULDOWNEY DEAD

End Came This Morning After Long Fight Against Tuberculosis.

HIS CASE WELL-KNOWN

Mayor Fisk Had Sought to Effect a Cure By "Home Treatment" But Disease Had Gone Too Far.

Despite the untiring attention that had been given him and the heroic battle he waged himself, death came at 8:30 yesterday to Michael Muldowney in his hospital tent on the Casino grounds. The ravages of tuberculosis had so far encroached upon his system that he was no longer able to continue his fight for life and began to sink several days ago. It was known early this morning that the end was not far off and his relatives were summoned. He remained conscious until a half hour before his death.

No one knew Michael Mudowney but as "Mike" and because of his almost unlimited acquaintance the city his case has attracted widespread attention. When the pulmonary trouble that brought about his death became manifest more than a year ago, he kept silent about his condition until it became too apparent and was brought to the notice of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, a warm friend, and his employer, Maze Edwards. Mr. Fisk has always held the theory that cases of this nature can be properly overcome by "home treatment" and he decided to have "Mike" receive the best of attention.

At his personal expense, the mayor had a tent made especially for the purpose placed in a spot on the Casino grounds where it could derive the greatest benefit from light and air. It had flaps for closing in bad weather but which were intended to be up almost all the time and was made as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. Trained nurses were secured and all his work and placed on a diet and watched over every moment of the day and night.

When this treatment was commenced "Mike" had already been ill at least six months but at the outset there was a marked improvement. His pulse went down, he gained weight and there were times when the old smile came back to his features. Mr. Fisk visited him day after day and Maze Edwards and other friends spent many hours with him. "Mike" appreciating that everything was done for him and he proved a model patient. He bore everything bravely, even when the treatment called for sever discomfort, and no complaint ever came from him. There were times Mrs. O'Toole felt that he would eventually become himself once again but the trouble had evidently secured too firm a hold upon him and all that loving hands could do was of no avail.

"Mike" was twenty-seven years old and was the son of James Muldowney, of West Third street. When only out of school a short time he entered the employ of Maze Edwards when the latter became manager of Music Hall. He was at first properly made to hold down minor positions in the house staff until he was Mr. Edwards' first assistant. When Music Hall was closed and Mr. Edwards took charge of the Casino, "Mike" went with him. He was faithful and devoted in his work and it was because of his determination to keep up that he refused to admit that he was sick even when his strength was rapidly ebbing away.

Beside his father there are surviving him four brothers and four sisters. They are Thomas, Cormack and Patrick Muldowney, of this city; James, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Thomas Eganey, Mrs. Stephen Murphy, Mrs. Charles Pagliucci and Miss Bessie Mudowney, all local residents.

Editor O'Toole In Kingston?

John L. O'Toole, city editor of the Newark Evening News, sailed last Sunday on the Prinz August Wilhelm from New York for Kingston, Jamaica. He was accompanied by Mrs. O'Toole. There was a large number of American tourists on the ship, which is supposed to have touched at Kingston last Friday night and to have then proceeded to other points. Whether Mr. and Mrs. O'Toole left the ship at Kingston is not known.

Acquitted of Shooting.

In the Somerset County Courts at Somerville yesterday, the only one of the three indictments found by the last grand jury that came to a trial had its inning. Harry Johnson, indicted for attempting to shoot Herbert H. Mount, proprietor of a hotel at Rocky Hill, was tried and acquitted.

—Neuman Brothers are holding a special sale of delicious Indian River grape fruit. Seventy-five boxes just received are to be sold at $4.50 each; all sizes.

NEW ROAD PROPOSED IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

Would Connect Plainfield With Many Residential Towns to the North.

Plans for opening a proposed county road, extending from the end of Somerset street, the borough, through Watchung, the beautiful Washington Valley to Warrenville, thence over the hills to Mt. Bethel and down to Millington, are being developed and the adoption of them is anticipated by many residents of the city and borough.

This road would be one of the finest scenic drives in this part of the State, through beautiful hills and valleys. It would be possible to drive through Bernardsville, Morristown, Madison, Summit, Springfield and Scotch Plains, giving automobile owners a complete circuit of fine roads through an ideal country.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders has passed upon the proposed road and it now rests with State Road Commissioner Hutchinson to give his approval. It is said that the road would be of great value to the people of the city and borough, connecting this section with the residential towns to the north. It is believed that Mr. Hutchinson will approve the plans and thus make possible another attraction to Plainfield and North Plainfield.

THE SCOTCH PLAINS LIBRARY FLOURISHING.

Association Elects Officers and Hears Encouraging Reports.

At its annual meeting in the library rooms, last night, the Scotch Plains Library Association elected the following officers: President, Mrs. A. B. Sykes; vice president, Mrs. Thomas; financial secretary, William Noble; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. M. Paff, Jr.; treasurer, Dr. F. W. Westcott; librarian, Mrs. Thomas; trustees, David P. Hall, T. J. Nichol, Samuel Hollingsworth, Philip Jahn and John G. Hetfield.

Reports for the past three months were submitted showing that the number of volumes exchanged was twice as many as for the corresponding three months in 1905. The attendance has also greatly increased and the officers of the association were greatly pleased to note how the influence of the library is extending. It now has 3,500 volumes and is well equipped with reference books and periodicals. Plans for the coming year were discussed in an informal way.

WORK AMONG IMMIGRANTS.

Miss Melby Tells of Work at Ellis Island.

Miss Melby, who is a Baptist missionary doing work among the immigrants at Ellis Island, addressed the Women's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, telling of her work among the foreigners arriving daily in this country. She gave a graphic description of the thousands of immigrants arriving daily at Ellis Island, of the provisions for their detention until arrangements are made to send them to various parts of the country.

An interesting part of the talk was that devoted to the character of the immigrants and of the progress of the missionaries in their efforts to teach them about Christianity and help to uplift them. Many of them, Miss Melby works among all classes of immigrants. She said that the work was most encouraging and gives promise of great results.

Mrs. Reuben Knox, as president of the society, was in charge and conducted the opening exercises, after which the meeting was given over to Miss Melby's talk.

Freeholder Wilbur On Bridge Work.

Now that William Westphal has retired as a member of the Union County Board of Freeholders, his place will be taken on various committees to be appointed by Freeholder Wilbur. There is some bridge work in this city needing attention and Mr. Wilbur will likely be given supervision of it. Yesterday he gave instructions to Freeholder Mobus, of the Somerset County Board, to make repairs to the Somerset street bridge, which is on the Somerset side. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane will also share in the work at this end of the county.

Old Buildings Removed.

Hyman Kline, the contractor, and original purchaser of the old court house and jail at Somerville, has commenced the work of tearing down the structures and he has been given thirty days in which to complete the job. As Kline's request that the Board of Freeholders let him have the old buildings for $500, a reduction of $320, was refused and he at once commenced the work of demolition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank French and family, of Washington avenue, are making preparations to go to Florida for the rest of the winter. They will probably leave the latter part of the present month.

CASH MADE 'EM NERVOUS

Safe Works Management Upset Over Sudden Disclosure of Bank Funds.

CRACKED A BALKY SAFE

At Works Saturday Night and They Didn't Breath Easy Until Police Moved Big Sum Quietly to Bank.

This is the story of safe-breakers who were disturbed over the large sum of money that confronted them after their operations, and who begged the police to help them put it in a place where they didn't stand in danger of losing it all. They didn't want the responsibility of having so much money in their position, and they breathed a great sigh of relief when a detachment of police took it from them.

The finicky safe-crackers are the experts and management of the Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city. The safe came to them from the First National Bank, of Gallitzin, Cambria county, Pennsylvania, last week. The bank management allowed the time lock to run down and they couldn't get the doors open. Men sent to Gallitzin by the safe company found they could not open the strongbox unless it was sent to the works, and the safe with its bundles of notes and rolls of coin was shipped to the Manganese plant.

The prize experts of the company went at it in the shop, and although it was a tough job—the company is proud of the fact that even its own experts have a hard time getting one of their safes open against its will—the men finally forced the doors apart. That was on Saturday evening.

The opening of the doors disclosed the biggest part of the bank's cash on the day the safe went on strike—not far from $50,000. When the works management saw the money and realized that it was up to them to safeguard it, they grew nervous. They didn't have an old safe handy, and the banks were, of course, all closed.

They called up William F. Arnold, cashier of the City National Bank, at his home, and asked him if he couldn't do something to help them. He said the bank's regular safe was timelocked, but he thought he could find a corner in a vault somewhere. The safe works folks, with hope lightening their hearts, hurriedly arranged to get the money to the City Bank.

They enlisted the assistance of Chief of Police Kiely, and he ordered the patrol wagon out as a treasure express. With two picked policemen, heavily armed, in it, the wagon was sent to the works, and the money was put in it. The shipment was accomplished very secretly. The police didn't want any stray hoboes or yeggmen to hear of the passage of the wagon through the lonely streets of the manufacturing district. Nobody learned of it, and the money passed into the portals of the bank safely. When the safe works management heard of it, they released a concerted gasp of relief and exchanged congratulations.

Mr. Arnold had the money watched through the night, and had it counted on Sunday. After communicating with the Gallitzin bank, he forwarded a draft for the amount of it. The Gallitzin bank has secured specie enough for its every-day purposes from Pittsburg.

AWARDED MANY PRIZES.

Sunswick Farm's Fine Exhibit At Boston a Winner.

Rufus Delafield, owner of the Sunswick Poultry Farm at South Plainfield, received word this morning from his manager, George May, who has charge of Mr. Delafield's exhibit at the Boston Poultry Show, Mechanics' Hall, Boston, that his stock was awarded the following prizes yesterday:

Blacks, first cock, first, second and third hens, first, second and third pullets, first and third cockerels, first, pen and silver cup. Buffs, second cock, first cockerel, first and fourth pullets, first pen. White, first cock, first and fourth hen, third and fouth pullet, first, pen.

As the manager of the farm, Mr. May has raised poultry that has taken prizes at many shows.

People to Control Prudential.

A bill introduced Monday night by Assemblyman Alexander repeals the act of the Legislature which deprived policyholders of the Prudential Company of the right to vote and made the company a stockholders' corporation. The bill was referred to the committee on banking and insurance.

Mrs. Charles Hyde, of East Front street, goes to Atlantic City, tomorrow, where she will be registered at the Marlborough-Blenheim.

THE OUTLOOK IN JERSEY

Newark Manufacturer Thinks That State Has Wonderful Future in Store.

TUNNELS WILL HELP

Estimated That They Will Effect $200,000,000 Increase In Property Values.

"The most confirmed pessimist could not, I believe, find a single thing to grumble at in the prospects of our state for the new year," said one of the leading manufacturers of Newark. "Throughout the entire year just ending everything which has contributed to the advancement of New Jersey as an industrial and commercial state has also improved the outlook of the state for the ensuing year, with the result that the future was never better. In real estate alone there is a certain future increase of not less than $200,000,000 in the value of our properties incident to the building of the tunnels. Probably one-fourth of this amount will be added by the new improved trolley facilities.

"Along line of manufacturing we are certain of advancement which, while it will not equal the total amount of the foregoing figures, will establish a record for the manufacturing states of the country. The aggregate value of our plants standing in New Jersey during the past year was greater than ever before. Already during the present year purchases of land have been made and contracts signed which will insure the removal from other states to New Jersey of industries of a far greater value. One of the most favorable signs in this connection is that manufacturing establishments from other states which began to cross our boundaries a few years ago are now coming in over increasing numbers from the east, west, north and south. Most important of all is the exodus now well under way, of industries from the several boroughs of New York city to our factory lands.

"During the years to come New Jersey began the development of her modern transportation facilities by the building of interurban trolley lines, she saw the solution of the industrial and commercial problem. In that time she has made more than any state in the transportation facilities and in industry and commerce than any of her rival states, and she has been enabled to rise from a comparatively humble place in the ranks to that of second out of 1907 was recorded in the State of New Jersey a much greater advance than that in any other previous year. The intimate extension of her transportation facilities will require an addition of something more than 1,000 miles of trolley lines to our system, which in turn will bring to the state hundreds of new industries and hundreds of thousands of additional residents, who must find homes in the towns and cities of the state. For the purpose of accommodating this flood of immigration, New Jersey's building resources are already taxed to their utmost. The state is now drawing from all of her neighboring states for artisans employed in all of the building trades, and it is to provide shelter for her army of new workmen she must build in the coming year between 20,000 and 30,000 houses in the already populace districts comprised in her five northern counties.

"Thereby New Jersey will have reached a position where she need no longer compete for the world's trade. The concentration of industries in the northern section of New Jersey has brought the consumers of the world knocking at her doors demanding her products. To meet this demand the greatest industrial concerns of the state are compelled to double the capacity of their plants and this fact, independent of the coming of new industries, will add not less than 40 per cent. to the population of the metropolitan belt in the next few years. New Jersey already produces a greater number of manufactured articles in greater amounts than any of her rival states and many industrial states of the south and west find that they will lose to New Jersey within the next year many of the industries which in the past have been the very foundation of their prosperity."

FACTS IN FEW LINES.

The fashionable age now for marriage in the west is seven to thirty-two for women, from thirty to forty-five for men.

The reduction works at Canso, Nova Scotia, handled 1,300 tons of dogfish last year and produced therefrom 9,000 gallons of fish oil, besides 400 tons of fish scrap, which makes a good fertilizer.

Beville Stanier, of Peplow Hall, Shropshire, England, who bought the Hawkins collection of British birds recently, sold the Sheffield specimen of the great auk which it contained for $2,000.

The colonial secretary of the Bahamas states in his report of the islands for 1905-06 that no complaint of error or delay has been received by the telegraph department for fourteen years.

The cultivation of rubber is now being taught in the schools of West Africa. Every village is obliged to plant a certain number of acres in rubber trees. In the Kongo state 12,500,000 rubber trees have been planted.

A farmer at Winburg, Orange River Colony, alleges that in his district alone 24,000 sheep are stolen annually by the natives. On this basis he calculates that 300,000 sheep are stolen throughout the colony every year.

The first secretary of the Chinese legation in St. Petersburg remarked the other day that the Chinese government has a stronger hold on its people than the Russian has on its own and that the Chinese people are less cultivated and more oppressed.

The oldest Christian structure in Ireland is a remarkable building, evidently very ancient, but wonderfully well preserved, at Dingle, in County Kerry. It is known as "the oratory of Gallerus," and is a wood practically uninjured for more than 1,000 years.

Jerusalem now has a summer resort at Ramalah, which is situated several hundred feet higher and commands a view of the Mediterranean. A new hotel has been built there for Europeans by the Society of the work of construction was done by women, whose wages are 11 cents a day.

The public will be surprised to learn that the Englishman apparently hasn't absolute freedom in the choice of the name of his own child. An unfortunate father, registering his baby girl, told the registerar the name was Coralie, and he was astonished when he met a refusal on the ground that there is no such name as Coralie. He was compelled to choose another name.

The youngest lawyer that ever appeared before the supreme court of the United States the other day arrived in Washington to defend the constitutionality of the North Carolina statute prohibiting the running of "bucket shops" in that State. He was Walter Clark, Jr., son of Chief Justice Clark of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, and he just passed his twenty-first birthday.

L. C. Bateman, of Auburn, Me., has just come into possession of an extremely rare and valuable curio for his cabinet. It is an idol from the ruins of Copan, in Central America. It was presented to him by Charles Nason, of Sabatis, the well known gunmaker. Mr. Nason for many years was located in Costa Rica and other points in Central America, purchasing rare curios.

Franz Josef, the emperor of Austria, has a fad for collecting menu cards, and as his stock is contributed to by other monarchs it is a truly wonderful one. His choicest specimen is one which was recently given by the Czar to President Faure. This "card" is a block of of the rarest black marble beautifully painted by a famous French artist, the names of the various dishes being lettered in white ivory.

Although the population of the United Kingdom increased 2,000,000 during the last six years, there has been a decline of nearly 2,500,000 barrels in the consumption of beer, whereas there is a steady decline in the use of spirits. On the other hand, the 155,767,710 pounds of tea imported for home consumption during the first seven months of 1906 mark an increase of 10,000,000.

THE USE OF "MRS."

A Few Hints on the Etiquette of Letter Writing.

There is one little etiquette of letters writing which many women who ought to know better are forever transgressing, and that is the use of "Mrs." in the signature.

A married woman ought never to sign herself other than "Mary Catherwood Pitcoe." This is imperative if she is writing to an acquaintance. If she is a business letter or to one who would not know her position and married title, she writes under this signature "Mrs. William Pitcoe" in parenthesis.

This is a simple enough rule, but the number of ladies who appear to think they must perpetually inform even the best informed of their married state is truly astounding.

One woman had a little shock the other day on receiving a letter from a social leader of the opposite sex, admired hugely at a distance. It was a very nice letter, but it was signed "Mrs. William Pitcoe" and gave its recipient a distinct chill of disappointment.

Numbers of women do it.

Also many misguided unmarried ladies blazon "Miss" before their names when signing letters to acquaintances. The only use of "Miss" in a signature is in brackets before the name in writing to a stranger who will need to know how to address his reply.

These are little things, but they mark the mistress of the gentle art of letter writing by their omission or commission.

NEW FANS.

Very pretty jeweled fans of exquisite workmanship are to be seen in the best houses, and it is difficult to say which is most beautiful among all the new designs, fortunately there are many, so that every taste can be gratified.

The real lace fan is always a thing of beauty and a pride to its possessor. The beautiful designs in Brussels lace which continued sales now enquisite to embroider, but in the lighter lace, Chantilly, for instance, the floral design is outlined in delicate shades of silk, the larger flowers standing out in relief.

The pretty and dainty fan for a young girl is gilt-spangled net in small scroll pattern with mother-of-pearl sticks.

CHURCH 75 YEARS OLD

First M. E. Church Congregation Arranging to Celebrate Anniversary.

OFFICIAL BOARD ACTS

Rev. A. C. McCrea Appointed Chairman of General Committee—History of the Parish.

Rev. A. C. McCrea.

Plans are now under consideration for the celebration of a red letter event in the history of the First Methodist Episcopal church, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of that organization. At an official board meeting held in Vincent chapel, Wednesday, after the prayer-meeting, the event was discussed at considerable length with the result that the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea was appointed the chairman of a committee to be named by him, and he was given full charge to go ahead and arrange the details. He has not selected his committee yet, but it will be a large one, comprising representatives from all the various departments and societies of the church. Although the anniversary occurs this year, the exact time for observing it will be decided later and the date will be set far enough ahead to allow the committee to complete its arrangements. The celebration will probably last for one week and will take in two Sundays. The idea is to make it an elaborate affair. The best speakers throughout the country will be secured, men and women of the greatest prominence and influence in the Methodist church and as many of the former pastors are still living, they will be invited to attend and take some part in the jubilee.

The last celebration of this kind was in commemoration of the completion of the fiftieth year of the church and at that time, Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, a former pastor from 1866-68, and now president emeritus of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, prepared and read a historical sketch of the church. Dr. Whitney will no doubt be asked to add the last twenty-five years' history to that sketch and read it at the coming celebration.

The First M. E. church is the first one of the denomination organized in this city. The first service is said to have been a prayer-meeting held in the dwelling of a family of the name of Gordon, about the year 1823, by a preacher named Hancock. Soon afterward the preacher from the New Providence Circuit found his way here, a society was formed and Plainfield became one of the regular preaching places on that extensive circuit. In 1826 an unsuccessful endeavor was made to erect a church on West Second street (then Barn street). For a time the preaching was held in John Briant's carriage shop.

In 1832 Rev. George F. Brown and Rev. J. N. Crane being then on the circuit, the Methodist church was built in Plainfield was erected. It stood on the site of the present edifice and was a plain, unpainted wooden structure, 30x46 feet, with bare floor and uncushioned benches. The membership at that time was but seventeen. The next year Plainfield was detached from the circuit and constituted a "Station, with Rev. James H. McFarlan for its first appointed pastor. The society numbering some ninety members, the old church was sold and a new brick meeting house, 50x65 feet, was built on its site, at a cost of about $10,000.

This was the first pewed church in the town. From 1850, Rev. W. E. Perry being pastor at that time, a frame dwelling was erected on Madison avenue for a parsonage. The preacher's salary was then $450, the annual benevolent collection $111.69, and the debt $5,400. In 1852 ground for a cemetery was acquired for $800. The great burden of debt embarrassed the little society until after the war. In 1855, through the efforts of Rev. A. M. Palmer, the amount was subscribed and during the ministry of Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, his successor, the last dollar was paid. In April, 1869, during the first pastorate of Rev. William Day, the church was greatly beautified, but on the eve of the Sabbath on which it was to be re-occupied, it took fire and was burned. It was immediately rebuilt on an enlarged and improved plan, substantially as it is today.

The beautifully and commodious Sunday-school room, known as Vincent chapel, was added in 1887. In 1894, the parsonage was sold, and by a united effort the entire mortgage indebtedness upon the church and chapel property was cleared. In 1898 electric light was introduced into the auditorium, city water brought into the building, and the floating debt reduced. In 1900-1901, the remainder of the floating indebtedness was paid, and the building declared entirely free of debt.

In 1887 the official board initiated measures for the extension of Methodism. Lots were purchased on Park place, North Plainfield, and at Monroe avenue and West Fourth street, suitable buildings erected and Sunday-schools organized, and in December, 1896, Monroe Avenue M. E. church, after three years of normal connection with the parent church, was formally separated and organized, and Grace M. E. church was also organized previous to that time on Park place. Both these churches have been singally successful. The Monroe Avenue church will celebrate its tenth anniversary in February.

The list of pastors of the First M. E. church follows:

G. F. Brown and J. N. Crane, 1832-3; H. McFarlan, 1833-4; E. L. Janes, 1834-5; G. S. Wharton, 1835-6; B. Benson, 1836-7; E. Sanders, 1837-8; V. Shepherd, 1838-40; G. F. Brown, 1840-1; A. Gilmore, 1841-2; B. Kelly, 1842-4; R. B. Westbrook, 1844-5; L. R. Dunn, 1845-7; J. O. Rogers, 1847-9; W. E. Perry, 1849-51; T. McCarroll, 1851-2; R. Givin, 1852-4; J. O. Winner, 1854-6; S. W. Hilliard, 1857-8; G. Winsor, 1858-60; J. Atkinson, 1860-2; S. Armstrong, 1862-4; R. B. Westbrook, 1863-4; A. M. Palmer, 1864-6; G. H. Whitney, 1866-8; William Day, 1868-71; J. R. Bryan, 1871-4; J. L. Hurlbut, 1874-7; William Day, 1877-80; T. H. Stockton, 1880-3; A. R. Wells, 1883-6; J. D. VanMeter, 1886-8; C. B. Mitchell, 1888-92; C. R. Barnes, 1892-7; W. C. Snodgrass, 1897-05; A. C. McCrea, 1905-7.

WATER CO TO BUILD A HUGE RESERVOIR

MIDDLESEX CONCERN PURCHASES 184 ACRES NEAR GARWOOD.

The Middlesex Water Company has just bought 184 acres of land near Garwood, in the valley through which flows the Robinson branch of the Rahway river. This stream is soon to be put in harness and the topography of the Clark Township will be greatly altered. The purpose of this change and improvement is the construction of a reservoir.

Engineer Simpson has been busy the last six months surveying and driving stakes, and is so far in his work that the task of changing the valley will be started in a few weeks.

The first piece of property bought by the company was the farm owned by J. Majer. This farm lies half in the city of Rahway and the other half in Clark Township, and comprises forty-five and sixty-six one-hundredths acres. The price paid was $10,500. Through this property runs the Madison Hill road, better known as the Goosetown lane. Here a bridge spans the river, and from this point all surveys and observations begin. The reservoir will be built in the constructed close to the bridge. It will be 310 feet long, with a height of twenty-two feet. Soundings have been made for the foundations, and hard shell-rock has been found at a depth of fourteen feet. This will be the main dam. Its estimated cost will be $1,500,000. From here the company intends to lay its water mains to Carteret and along the Sound, its object being to supply all the large manufacturing along the Sound with soft boiler water.

PHYSICIANS DINE.

Local Doctors Hold Quarterly Meeting.

The quarterly meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Medical Society was held at the Kensington Hotel, Thursday, covers being laid for seventeen. After the physicians enjoyed a fine turkey dinner, they adjourned to the hotel parlors, where Dr. Ellis W. Hedges presented an interesting paper on "The Treatment of Gall Stones." This was followed by a very informal discussion.

The physicians present were Drs. F. C. Ard, Ellis W. Hedges, Marcus L. Clawson, Fred Hughes, C. A. Gesswein, Thomas Blair, W. Kempton Browning, C. B. Lufburrow, N. W. Carruth, J. Spencer, Andrew Mills, P. J. Zeglio, J. Herman Buchanan, J. V. VanHorn, J. T. Fritts, Anthony and Hubbard.

Telephone Company's Removal.

The local officials of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have set July 1 as the date on which they will take possession of the handsome new building on East Fourth street. When completed it will be one of the best equipped and most up-to-date buildings of its kind in the country. At the time the move is made from the present quarters, the telephones in the city will be changed to the common battery system, the style in use in New York, Philadelphia and other large cities.

Miss Sarah Mae Howell, of Myrtle avenue, is detained at home by illness.

Mrs. J. F. Harman, of West Eighth street, has recovered from a recent illness.

Eugene M. Laing, of the firm of Liefke & Laing, is detained at Truell Court, by illness.

MR. FOX MAKES ANSWER

State Child Labor Committee Head Replies to Mrs. Kelly's Attacks.

LECTURER MISTAKEN

Present Child Labor Laws in New Jersey As Good As Those of Any State in the Union.

Some adverse reflections made by Mrs. Florence Kelley, general secretary of the Consumers' League of New York, on New Jersey's child labor law do not meet with the approval of Hugh F. Fox, of this city, chairman of the State Child Labor Committee and probably the best informed man in New Jersey on that subject. Mr. Fox holds the opinion that certain of her remarks before the Monday Afternoon Club were unjust, and in answer to them he has sent the following communication for publication:

"Will you please let me try to correct the unfortunate impression which appears to have been given by the Secretary of the National Consumers League at the recent meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, in regard to Child Labor in New Jersey? Your paper reports the speaker as follows: 'New Jersey's old child labor law was highly approved by the league, even it was enacted the limits placed New Jersey at the head of the white list. When it was repealed, New Jersey was put at the foot of the black list.' While the speaker may have qualified these statements in some way, she certainly seems to have made her audience feel that New Jersey is low down in the list of manufacturing States, from the standpoint of child-labor conditions.

"This impression is not only unfair, but it is extremely mischievous, because it discourages the honest and efficient workers in the Department of Labor, and breeds a spirit of antagonism which reacts on the Child Labor Committee.

"The facts are that New Jersey has as good a law to prevent the employment of children under fourteen in factories, mills and workshops, as any State in the Union. Judging by its results, it will stand the test of comparison with any other State, including even Massachusetts. The method of securing proof of age is the best and most comprehensive that has yet been devised; the system of centralized control of the inspectors, and the almost automatic checks upon their work is thorough and complete; the scheme of co-operation with the school authorities is so nearly perfect, that it may fairly be described as interlocking; and the Commission of Labor is a man of the highest integrity and ability, who is thoroughly in sympathy with the law and its purpose, and has shown a fine spirit of independence and tact in all its execution. He has recently instituted thirty-six suits against manufacturers for breach of the law, which—under our admirable New Jersey system—are prosecuted by the Attorney-General.

"The State of New York has a fine system of Child Labor regulation—on paper. But the laws are very poorly enforced, owing to the fact that the Department of Labor is scandalously undermanned, and constantly cursed. It is a question if it has not been overloaded with too onerous duties.

"The special point upon which New Jersey is open to adverse criticism is the failure to enact a law prohibiting the employment of children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, at night. Many boys under sixteen are employed in the night-shifts in the glass works, and the Child Labor Committee will renew its efforts during the present session, to secure remedial legislation. This is the next step to work for, and we need all the support that public sentiment can give us. But misleading statements about existing conditions do not smooth our way to success."

"In common justice the hands of our officials should be upheld by organizations that are working for children's interests, when the officials are really doing good work.

"Just a word more, as to the old fifty-five hour law which the speaker referred to. In 1892 an act was passed providing that fifty-five hours should constitute a week's work in factories, etc., for males under eighteen and females of all ages, excepting in fruit canning establishments and glass factories. The attempts to enforce it were so unsuccessful that it was a 'dead-letter' from the start. The consensus of legal opinion was that the law was unconstitutional because of the exceptions in its application, as well as for other reasons, and when the present factory and child labor laws were passed—repealing the previous legislation—the fifty-five hour provision was omitted for fear that its inclusion would affect the validity of the entire act. The opinions of the last three attorney-generals of the State, and of the special counsel employed by ex-Governor Murphy and others, may not be final, but with practical people they carry a good deal of weight, and are certainly entitled to respect!

"Yours respectfully,

"HUGH F. FOX,

HONEYMAN TALKS ON JAPAN AND ITS PEOPLE

WELL INFORMED TRAVELER SPEAKS INTERESTINGLY ON FLOWERY KINGDOM

A. V. D. Honeyman gave a most interesting lecture on Japan Thursday to the pupils of the North Plainfield High School. He discussed many facts in the lives of the Japanese, who he said make beautiful articles for sale in America and elsewhere, but have none of them in their own houses; for though they love beautiful things, they are too poor to afford them. Seventeen cents per day, he said, is a good wage, and twenty-nine cents a day is the highest paid to bricklayers, carpenters, and other expert workmen.

Traveling to and fro in the country in Jinrikishas, which are sulkies drawn by men. Only one person can sit in one sulky; and the Jap who draws it will take him sixty miles per day for a number of days without being fatigued. The legal rate for a day's journey is fifty cents. The cherry blossoms in Japan are the finest in the world. No cherries are ever allowed to grow, as that would interfere with the beauty of the blossoms. As it is, the blossoms look like roses, and are thickly clustered on every branch and twig.

Japan, according to Mr. Honeyman, is an excellent place for young people to start housekeeping, for it may be done with no more than a ten-dollar bill. Rents are usually but one and one-half dollars a month; there is no furniture except mats and comfortables, and food costs but fifteen cents per day for a small family. The politeness of the Japanese is encountered on every occasion from all sclosses of people; and their cheerfulness all day long, even under the stress of poverty is noticeable.

"Japan is the land of the rising run. The national flag shows the rising sun in a white field. The Chinese, realizing that their country is very much larger than Japan, adopted as their national flag a dragon swallowing a small rising sun. A few years ago, when the dragon really tried to swallow the sun, it burned its mouth."

PICTURED THE BEAUTIES OF "THE YELLOWSTONE PARK."

Park Club Members Enjoy a Fine Trip Through the Wonders of the National Playground.

The illustrated and moving picture entertainment of the "Yellowstone Park" at the Park Club, Thursday, was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. The lecture was given by E. C. Culver, who for more than twenty years has been connected with the administration of the park, and it should keep their ashes and paper separate, and have them removed by different wagons. He said the people who complained of the ash-cart annoyance made conditions bad themselves by mixing ashes and papers.

He visited every part of the park, and his descriptions of the "National Playground." Perhaps, the most interesting views were those showing the many geysers in action, also the falls, stage coach parties, together with those of deer, elk, bear, mountain goats, as they roam about unmolested.

Mr. Culver's description of the views and the park, was a feature. He related many interesting incidents and added that practically all of the beauties of the old world are to be seen in The Yellowstone Park. Of especial interest were the moving pictures vividly portraying the herds of animals running and jumping over mountains and through valleys and wading through the beautiful streams that are to be found in the park.

COUNTY TAX BOARD HEARS ASSESSMENT APPEALS.

Local Factory Concerns and Other Property Owners Ask For Reductions.

The Union County Board of Equal Taxation met at Elizabeth Thursday for the purpose of receiving appeals from assessments. Among the local property owners who made protests were the Pond Tool Company and Scott Press Company, which asked reductions on their plants; William Palmer Smith, Mary F. Myers, J. Wesley Johnson, Andrew Muir, George F. White and Louis Levine. The appeal in nearly every case was presented by lawyers, John H. Vanwinkle appearing for Mr. Smith, William Stillman for Mrs. Myers, George W. V. Moy for Mr. Muir and J. B. Coward for Mr. White.

The board granted several reductions to others, including the factory appeals, were held in abeyance for one week. Thursday was the last opportunity property owners had of stating their objections to the assessments.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk represented the city in his official capacity.

Explained.

"I saw a burglar get into the house next door last evening."

"Merely! Did you give the alarm?"

"No."

"You didn't?"

"No; he has lived there for some time, and I didn't know he was a burglar until he was arrested this morning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AS TO ASH CART COVERS

Judge Runyon Says Ordinance on Them Should be Strengthened

DOESN'T SPECIFY KIND

In Disposing of Ash Cart Case, Magistrate Declares Council Could Easily Make Wood Covering Required.

Notice was again given by Judge Runyon in the city court Thursday that, working in conjunction with the police, he would do all he could to correct the unsatisfactory conditions surrounding the ash and rubbish cart service in the city. He made a prisoner charged with breaking the ordinance on the cart coverings promise to guard his loads from wind and jolting effectually, and hung a $5 fine over him to compel compliance with the promise. In speaking of the case, the magistrate declared the ordinance did not go far enough in its provisions as to the coverings demanded.

The prisoner was Isaac White, colored. He was arrested on North avenue Wednesday by Chief Kiely. He was loading several barrels of ashes and paper on the wagon, and did not cover the load up between trips to and from the cellar. Papers blew all over the street and into passing carriages, the chief said.

"I thought I had a good cover," said White, "but I'll get a better one if you say so."

"It's my opinion that no cloth cover is a good and sufficient protection," said Chief Kiely.

"I think the cover should be of wood. The ordinance does not say that, however, and the question of covering is left open for discussion. It seems to me an easy matter for the Council to provide specifically as to the kind of cover.

"White, I wish you would make a wagon cover that will be a model for the other men in the business. At any rate, I will hang a $5 fine over you and if your new cover is not satisfactory I will make it $10."

While said the business was not profitable enough for the men engaged in it to warrant their buying wag*ons of a proper type.* The wagons, he said, should be very deep, as in New York and other cities of that size. The householders, he said, should keep their ashes and paper separate, and have them removed by different wagons. He said the people who complained of the ash-cart annoyance made conditions bad themselves by mixing ashes and papers.

HERBERT BROOKS' FUNERAL.

Extremely Simple Service at the Home of His Parents.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Herbert Brooks, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Brooks, of Rockview avenue, Thursday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, and was extremely simple. Members of the Masonic and Elk fraternities, to which he belonged, were present, but there was no concerted action on their part. The floral tributes were numerous and included set pieces from the lodges and the firm with which Mr. Brooks was connected.

Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being lifelong friends. They were Andrew McLean Parker, Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Charles L. Lyman, Peter Mathews, William N. Runyon, Harry McIntosh, of this city, and Charles Moore, of Bayonne.

MISS PARKINSON THE BRIDE OF J. E. STEURWALD.

Marriage Ceremony Performed Last Night in the Presence of a Small Gathering.

In the presence of only a few relatives and intimate friends, Miss Nellie Parkinson, daughter of Mrs. H. Parkinson, of East Second street, and J. E. Steurwald, of New York, were quietly married at 6 o'clock, Thursday. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home by Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, and Miss Minnie Imbierowie, of Ravenswood, L. I., was bridesmand and Richard Johnson, of Columbus, O., a cousin of the groom, was best man. Miss Parkinson wore a pearl gray travelling gown.

Following the ceremony, a brief reception was held and supper was served. Violets predominated in the decorations in both the dining room and parlor, relieved at times by white streamers and smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. Steurwald left last night for a wedding trip as far as Columbus, O., the groom's former home, and on their return will reside in this city. Mr. Steurwald is engaged in the automobile business in New York. The bride presented her attendant with a pearl necklace and the best man received a pearl stick pin from the groom.

Y. M. C. A. Circus.

Tickets for the Y. M. C. A. circus, which is to be held February 11 and 12, have been issued. It was announced last night that Tornello, a well known wire-walker and juggler, would appear.

Governor's Message.

Gentlemen of the Senate and General Assembly:

The last legislature builded for the present and the future and set an example for emulation. It added to the resources of our schools by taxing railroads as individuals are taxed, increased the revenue thereby and dedicated that revenue to the cause of education. Last year the results of this policy were problematical; today they can be determined. The ratables of almost every taxing district in the state have been increased in the increased amount of second class railroad property and the revenues swelled by such increase therefrom. The tax on the basis upon which last year's legislature figured by the state board of assessors at $3,503,529.70 as against $950,000.71 under the former system. Of the amount $2,553,867.35 is to be appropriated directly for the benefit of our schools and remainder of the original tax, which is now in the state treasury, to be appropriated, with such additions as the legislature deems wise, to the same ends. Based upon appropriations equal in amount to those here before made, the following examples illustrate the benefits that will accrue to our municipalities from last session's legislation:

Atlantic City received under old system	$30,540.73
Under the present act it receive	97,622.16
Hammonton received under the old system	5,832.08
Under the present act it will receive	17,985.37
Northampton township, in Burlington county, received under the old system	2,134.76
Under the present act it receive	6,374.09
Camden city received under the old system	25,473.52
Under the present act it will receive	106,430.60
Newark received under the old system	177,627.6
Under the present act it will receive	532,282.40
Montclair received under the old system	11,257.35
Under the present act it will receive	34,011.0
South Orange received under the old system	3,466.8
Under the present act it will receive	10,441.20
Jersey City received under the old system	169,124.52
Under the present act it will receive	528,173.7
North Bergen township, in Hudson county, received under the old system	8,986.62
Under the present act it will receive	24,079.84
Kearny received under the old system	9,014.40
Under the present act it will receive	27,047.4
New Brunswick received under the old system	7,540.32
Under the present act it will receive	22,620.9
Bridgeton received under the old system	4,852.0
Under the present act it will receive	13,149.11
Neptune township, in Monmouth county, received under the old system	6,214.8
Under the present act it will receive	25,644.85
Paterson received under the old system	51,522.9
Under the present act it will receive	154,584.70
Passaic city received under the old system	16,040.27
Under the present act it will receive	48,128.6
Acquackanonk township, in Passaic county, received under the old system	2,865.32
Under the present act it will receive	11,954.76
Raritan township, in Hunterdon county, received under the old system	2,619.20
Under the present act it will receive	7,859.76
Washington, in Warren county, received under the old system	1,914.25
Under the present act it will receive	5,742.75

These illustrations show that the local appropriation for school expenses can be reduced from 50 to 75 per cent.

The Necessity of Equalization.

The investigations of the state board of equalization of taxes disclosed great irregularities in the execution of our tax laws. In no county is property assessed according to the constitutional requirements. It was acknowledged that assessments were made in most cases on an arbitrary basis without regard to the legal tests, with little effort to include personality in the ratables. It is but fair to the assessors to say that this was largely due to a lack of system and to an accepted custom which the individual assessor could not remedy without great personal sacrifice and unpopularity.

Equal taxation depends upon equality of valuation. Equality of valuation, however, is impossible under the administration of 500 different assessors without uniformity of method and with no proper supervision. The necessity of some central equalizing board is indispensable to an honest administration of our tax laws.

A careful if somewhat hasty inquiry throughout the state shows that on a conservative estimate from 60 to 75 per cent of the tax bills for 1906 were lower than the same tax bills for 1905.

In one county 75 to 80 per cent of the tax bills are lower than last year. In nine taxing districts in another county, by actual count, 2,451 tax bills were lower this year than last year, while in the same taxing districts only 271 were higher.

New Jersey's Finances.

A successful government depends upon a financial system that is able to confer the greatest benefits upon the people with the least burden of taxation.

Last year the state disbursed to the local taxing districts out of its treasury and through its collections of the tax on second class railroad property and the franchise tax on public utilities $3,110,000. Not a penny of this came out of the pockets of the taxpayers. To have raised this sum by local taxation would have increased every tax rate in the state twenty-nine points.

Twelve years ago this disbursement was merely nominal in amount. Within this period the state, by wise laws and by judicious husbanding of resources, has been able to add over $3,000,000 to the income of our local taxing districts without any contribution on their part.

The state in addition has been maintaining penal institutions for the good order and safety of society, has supported our state schools, contributed to industrial education, sent worthy boys to college free of tuition, contributed to various libraries, lent an aiding hand to charity, supported the blind and feeble minded and epileptic, provided a home and moral instruction for wayward boys and girls, cared for the old veterans, aided in the development of agriculture, trained the volunteer in military service for the defense of state and country in the hour of danger—all these additional expenditures for administration, for courts of law, for legislation and for miscellaneous benefits and necessities. So worthy a work needs the cordial support and the careful critical oversight of every good citizen. The preservation of our revenues is essential to the continuance of the work the state is performing for the people.

The increase in the number of criminals, the complications of the insane, blind, feeble minded and other state wards is an ever increasing draft upon the state's income. Any thoughtless attack upon this revenue is an attack upon the necessities of good government. And this whether it affect appropriations within the receipts, except in extraordinary emergencies, needs no defense. Under these conditions no appropriations for new institutions nor any additions to old institutions, except where absolutely necessary, should be considered. Heretofore I have been content in raising a voice of warning and in the exercise of persuasion before appropriations were made. This year I shirk not my duty to exercise the veto power in the maintenance of this policy.

Charities and Corrections.

The care of our dependent and wayward wards continues to be the greatest draft upon the state's purse. Over 30 per cent of our expenditures are used for this purpose. How far the state is supporting dependents who should be supported in whole or in part by relatives is a subject of continued investigation and inquiry. Under the department of charities and corrections a method not easy of detection, is being systematically studied and it is expected that in the near future a statement of actual conditions can be authoritatively made. The humane work carried on by this department is a source of the suspicion of being the refuge of those who shirk their responsibilities as parents and kin by accepting the support and charity of the commonwealth.

Child Labor Laws.

The enforcement of proper regulations for the protection of the health and the further protection of employees in manufacturing establishments is a state policy. This state has thrown restrictions around the employment of women and young children in our factories and workshops. It insists that the youngest child in child's life shall be devoted to educational training and physical development. Three years ago the legislature of this state placed no on the statute books a law regulating the employment of children in manufacturing establishments. No consideration has apparently been given to the employment of children in mercantile and other pursuits, a subject worthy of thought.

Our Colored Citizens.

The colored people of our state are subjects for consideration and care, educationally and industrially. These people, through no fault of their own have been given opportunity, enjoyed by the whites. They gave this country 250 years of unrequited toil. But with less than half a century of freedom they have to a race made marvelous progress in savings, in the accumulation of property, in mental development and in adjusting to conditions not altogether enviable.

This race is rapidly increasing in our state. From 1800 to 1900 the white population of New Jersey increased 29.8 per cent, while the colored population increased 46.6 per cent. Prudence and patriotism demand a recognition of this fact. For the present and perhaps for some time to come opportunities to earn a livelihood by the colored people will be limited to such vocations as the farm, the trades and the household. It is important therefore that they should have proper industrial training. The School For Colored Youth at Bordentown was established for this purpose. It is doing excellent work. It could do better work with improved accommodations and facilities. The legislature is important these facilities at that institution as the demands upon it seem to warrant.

Strangers Within Our Gates.

New Jersey is the first state to treat immigration problems in a rational and *systematic way. The commission ap*pointed under authority of the last legislature has made careful investigations into the condition of the immigrants who settle in our state and has made a recommendation that they be taught something of our customs, laws and institutions, so that they may at once become familiar with their rights and privileges.

At the last census there were 431,000 foreign born residents in our state—one-fifth of the population. In the city of Passaic, 50 per cent of the population is foreign born; in Paterson, 37 per cent; in Hoboken, 32; in Jersey City, 28, and in Trenton, 22 to 10 per cent. These people come to us in large cases ignorant of our ways and institutions. Credulous and ... they are likely to be the prey of rogues ... to be cajoled of their savings. In this way they receive a false impression of American character and principles. It is important that they should be promptly brought in touch with our highest ideals and standards.

This can be done through schools in which they may be taught in their own language as soon as possible the obligations and duties of citizenship.

Whether this important work should be carried on by the state board of education, whether it should be under the direction of a specially authorized commission without salary, whether the state should pay the whole expense or whether the various municipalities should share therein are matters of detail for legislative consideration. I earnestly recommend that this matter be carefully considered.

Riparian Grants.

The riparian lands of the state have been twice the subject of recommendation in my annual legislative investigation so admirably conducted will be followed by a report of the investigating committee, with recommendations that will form the basis of consideration on your part. The time has come for a more clearly defined state policy on this subject.

If our riparian lands should all be severed from state control and vested in individual ownership a Chinese wall of private interests would then inclose the docks and landing places of our harbors and rivers of commerce. Whatever policy therefore is adopted as to the remaining riparian lands of the state care should be exercised that either the state or its municipalities should retain control over some of its water fronts.

Insurance Laws.

The report of the committee to investigate the condition of life insurance companies will be laid before you at this session.

Master and Servant.

The report of the commission on master and servant will be presented to you at this session. The law on this subject is largely judge-made and has become a mass of legal subtleties more fruitful of controversy and litigation than capable of doing justice. This condition of affairs requires careful legislative treatment.

Uniform Divorce Laws.

One of the most formidable perils which menace the social order of our country today is the prevalence of easy divorce. In order to combat most effectually this enemy to society an interstate conference was called in February last to consider the advisability of uniform divorce laws among the several states. New Jersey was duly represented. The conference passed resolutions recommending uniformity of legislation concerning divorce throughout the entire Union, and I have requested the New Jersey delegation in the House of Representatives to suggested. Upon the completion of their work, already begun, I will at once submit the act thus prepared to the legislature with a special message thereon.

Delaware River Fisheries.

The fisheries of the Delaware river require immediate action. Shad and sturgeon are diminishing with alarming rapidity. Fewer fish were caught during the entire season of 1906 than were caught a few years ago in a single day. The United States bureau of fisheries, our own fish and game commission and the commissioner of fisheries of Pennsylvania, all concur in the recommendation for uniform legislation for the protection of the shad fisheries, else they think that this great *and valuable food fish will become ex*tinct.

Judiciary Amendments.

At the session of 1905 an act was passed providing for the appointment of a commission to take into consideration and report to the legislature proposed amendments to the constitution relative to the courts of New Jersey. This commission, consisting of ex-Governor Griggs, former Justice Van Syckel, Justice Garrison, Judge Martin and ex-Governor Murphy representing the lay element, after making a thorough examination and careful study of the constitutional provisions and the statutes governing our judicial system, submitted its report to the legislature of 1906 for consideration. The recommendations of the commission were subsequently embodied in the form of a joint resolution providing for the adoption of the proposed amendments, and a bill was prepared for the subsequent adaptation of the structure and practice of the courts to revised judicial methods. Owing to a constitutional inhibition against the submission of any amendment or amendments to the people more oftener than once in five years no action could be taken at the last session. The legislature this year, however, is under no restrictions of this kind, the time limit having expired last year.

Simplicity of system and promptness of legal action are desirable both for the litigant and the ends of justice. Continuous appeals and technicalities in practice prolong controversies in some cases until final decision, confusion and delay make amends to the injured. "Justice delayed is justice denied." Under our present antiquated judicial system these delays and the injustices resulting therefrom are inevitable. Our judicial system was devised to meet the requirements of sixty years ago.

Simplicity of Legislation.

One of the needed reforms in governmental affairs is more careful and less hasty legislation. Despite repeated executive suggestion the phraseology and language of our laws continue obscure and confusing and the number of laws at each session to multiply rather than diminish. Every law should be intelli... to the ordinary mind, and no new ... should be passed unless the public welfare will suffer from the failure of its enactment.

The average number of laws per year for the last decade has been about 280. There are 6000 acts now in force. Such a mass of law is so conflicting and complicated as to be a sealed book to the lay citizen and to the lawyer a mass of intricacy which baffles professional skill and research. We have had no revision of the statutes since that of 1874. The general statutes published, eloding with the acts of 1905, was a mere compilation. The time is ripe for a condensation and revision of our statutes.

Jury Reform.

Reformation of our jury system was at the last session made a subject of legislative enactment. A great step in advance was made by providing that the petit jury lists should be subject to revision in the way of substitution and elimination at the hands of the judge of the court of common pleas.

The method of selecting grand and petit juries should be likewise carefully reviewed and if possible a better method devised and enacted into law.

Civil Service.

Good government demands both *probity and efficiency in public offi*cials. It is difficult to induce the best men to enter public life. Those best can they be induced to do so where position is the plaything of partisanship instead of the sure reward of merit. Patronage is the blight of office. Officeholders whose position depends upon the service they render to the appointing power cannot be free in their allegiance to that power in preference to the people. Public business should be conducted upon the same basis as private business.

A state civil service commission would be necessary to the execution of such a law. I would vest in this commission the power of confirmation over all appointments to the classified service and would make all such appointments subject to trial for a period before they are made permanent.

Corrupt Practices.

The purity of the ballot is the foundation of good government. Corruption begets dishonesty, and a corrupt and fraudulent ballot produces a governor of like character. The legislation of last year for a purer ballot was based upon two principles—a broader definition of what constitutes bribery and more rigorous guard at the polls, so that no fine, however insidious, of debauching the electorate, either by money, promise or hospitality, should be legal, and a better method of securing the conviction of both the bribe taker and the bribe giver. Too severe penalties for these offenses make detection and conviction well nigh impossible. A penalty, such as that prescribed in the act of last year, that merely disfranchises for the first offense and for the second imposes both disfranchisement and imprisonment is more likely to eliminate bribery than severer penalties that can never be enforced. To this was added immunity of the informer for his own offense, so that the bribe giver or the bribe taker is now always in danger of being arrested for the contemplated. This provision makes bribe giving and bribe taking dangerous experiments, as it puts wrongdoers at the mercy of wrongdoers.

Ballots Confined to Polling Places.

The present method of distributing ballots outside of the polling place, while it may serve convenience in some localities, is a menace to honest and bribe taker. I recommend that official ballots hereafter be not allowed outside of the polling place and that laws be enacted to this end.

Voting Machines.

It is not the province of the executive or the legislature to impose upon the people any form of voting which is distasteful or unsatisfactory. It is proper, however, that the merits of every system should be fairly discussed.

There is an apparent opposition in many parts of the state to the voting machine. Generally, this opposition comes from disappointed political ambitions, whether it is due to the careless management of the voting machine by election officers, whether it is due to that conservatism of mind which always opposes innovations whether it has been developed by selfish interests or whether it is well grounded and sincere I shall not attempt to discuss. As a prevention of the corrupt and fraudulent ballot, however, the voting machine has merit. It practically prevents bribery at the polls.

Passaic River Pollution.

In last year's message I stated, "The purification of the Passaic river is still an unsolved problem." It has been handed down to this legislature for adjudication. It was then suggested that any satisfactory solution that was made must meet with the approval of the affected communities; that legislation otherwise enacted would fail in execution and become a worthless legacy to the courts.

In accordance with that recommendation Paterson and Newark agreed in conference either to settle their differences or to permit legislation on the subject to proceed by acquiescence on the part of one of not with the support of both. The details of this settlement were not perfected in time to carry out the expected programme proposed to be executed at a special session to be called for that purpose some time in September last. Paterson and Newark —and I speak of these two municipalities because the difficulty in solving the problem has arisen out of their differences—have been in conference since September in a sincere attempt to agree upon legislation to this end I am now informed that a bill has practically been agreed upon by the representatives of the two mentioned cities and the other affected municipalities and is ready for presentation to you for consideration.

State Sewerage.

The condition of the Passaic valley should prove a warning to other sections against the improper use of the rivers and streams of our state. These natural highways, as Webster called them, were never intended to carry the refuse of civilization to the sea. In many of our waterways incipient pollution has already begun.

Economic and sanitary considerations are arrayed on the side of purification. Every municipality should be glad to divert sewage from all of our streams, especially from those from which numbers of our people obtain their water supply. Cities together with Pennsylvania and New York, through its health officers and other state officials, is endeavoring to devise a plan not only for the prevention of further deposits of sewage into the Delaware, but for the removal of the pollution already occasioned. The passage of an act preventing the further pollution of our streams and the protection of our bathing grounds would appeal to those whose vision extends beyond the present hour.

Forestry Reservations.

The woodlands of our state will become one of its great assets and will under scientific cutting soon begin to return a revenue to the state and even tually show a handsome profit on the investment. They will, moreover, furnish game preserves, pleasure parks, health resorts, forests and picturesque drives which the people at large may enjoy as their own.

Further development of our forestry reservations and the protection of our woodlands from fire is commended to legislative support.

Sources of Water Supply.

In this connection the acquisition of woodlands about the sources of our potable streams and the purchase by the state of our fresh water lakes and ponds, of which there are 108 in New Jersey, with an acreage of about 14,000 acres, was suggested in last year's message. Thereupon the legislature authorized the riparian commission, together with the state geologist, to investigate the whole question of the potable water supply of the state with reference to state control of the same. The report of the commission will be presented in the immediate future.

Potable Water Supply.

Our potable water supply presents the most important problem before the people of the state. There is in the state an ample supply of water for the present and for an indefinite period in the future if the supply be properly conserved and kept pure. The right of the state to do this is unquestioned under the recent interpretation of our courts. "In our potable waters we have a vast natural asset belonging to the people, and any pollution of purity of which is indispensable to their health and well being." The use of this water is so necessary to life that a direct and active control over the diversion thereof for domestic and municipal purposes should be exercised by the state.

The creation of a state water supply commission to control and regulate the diversion of potable waters without interfering with present municipal or vested rights or the vesting of some such power in a state board already in existence would seem to be necessary to save this valuable asset.

Prompt action in this respect would anticipate further acquirement of water rights by private interests.

The rapid growth of our population in the northern section of the state is drawing heavily upon our present available supply. The dry weather flow of the Passaic river, normally 85,000,000 gallons daily, has been reduced to scarcely 35,000,000 gallons by the demands upon it, and this in spite of the large storage facilities already constructed. The daily drafts upon the Hackensack river now exceed the estimated minimum flow in a time of extreme drought. One-half the population of the state depend upon these two rivers and their tributaries. By reason of their geographical location the demands upon them must greatly increase in the future, and if these demands are to be met storage reservoirs must be constructed to conserve the surplus waters.

The erection of water which runs to waste out of the Passaic valley in a week in time of flood would supply the whole upper part of the state for a year. The conservation of the waters in times of flood would provide an available surplus for the dry season.

The erection of reservoirs somewhere in the Passaic valley would serve many economic purposes. The location of a dam for this purpose, whether at Mountain View or Little Falls, is an engineering problem to be solved by experts and not in a legislative message. A reservoir under the control of the state would guarantee a potable water supply for an indefinite period. It is estimated that this project could be carried out in detail, including the construction of the dam, the purchase and condemnation of the flood lands necessary, the conservators, pipe lines, railroads and highways, with a margin of 600 feet around the edge of the lake for public uses, for an expenditure of $7,000,000. It is true that the construction of the state forbids the incurring of indebtedness in excess of $100,000 except by a vote of the people. However, it would not be unwise to submit a proposition of this kind to the people for their approval. Bonds could then be floated at a low rate of interest and the proposition financed in this manner.

Put another method of financing the project is possible. It should be remembered that the Passaic flood commission is now laboring with the problem of flood control. The creation of this commission was due to the destruction of property to an amount estimated at more than $7,000,000, so that if the section threatened by floods should pay one-fourth the expense it would be a wise economy on their part. The expenditure of this sum, however, would not be demanded on the part of the interested community. Bonds secured by mortgage on the reservoir and its appurtenances could be floated at a low rate of interest and money thus provided for the enterprise. I earnestly urge practical consideration of this subject and call your attention to important matters which will later be submitted.

Assembly Districts.

The advisability of changing the method of electing assemblymen by counties to election by districts was considered in my last message. The reasons therein advanced for the change are as good today as then. Representative government demands that the unit of representation shall be clearly defined, so that the representative may have a distinct constituency to which he shall be responsible for his acts. Under our present system the members of the house of assembly in those counties that have more than one member are responsible to no distinct and separate constituency, but rather to a party organization or to a self appointed committee of party leaders. This condition violates the fundamental principle of popular government. It promotes rule by the few rather than government by the many.

United States Senators and the People.

United States senators are elected under the provisions of the United States constitution and United States statutes. The members of legislature are merely the agents of the United States government in choosing these officials. Various methods have been proposed to ascertain to a certainty the popular choice for United States senator and to convey that choice to the members of the legislature. Any provision to this end must harmonize as far as possible with the provisions of the United States constitution and the laws on this subject or it will be void. So long as the members of the legislature are directly responsible to the voters of their own county any provision for the selection of a United States senator by popular choice must be based upon the county as the unit of representation. I recommend legislation to this end.

Separation of State and Municipal Elections.

State and municipal affairs are separately administered. The state and the nation are governed by parties that divide on questions of general policy and administration. Municipal affairs, if any, that require party government. Their chief issues are good government and economic administration. Partisan politics is not necessary to this end. Indeed, it retards rather than promotes it. Where municipal elections do not occur at the same time municipal officials are likely to be selected on partisan grounds. The municipal voter is under the influence of his party ties. Good citizens interested in honest municipal government act together.

A clearer line of distinction should be drawn between state and municipal legislation. The raising of the salaries of municipal officers by the legislature of the state is not commendable in practice or in theory. The responsibility for such increase should be borne by the local authorities themselves.

Municipal ills should be remedied at home, not at Trenton. Municipal reform should be inaugurated at home, not at Trenton.

Division of Profits.

At the last session of the legislature, in compliance with a recommendation in the executive message, a joint resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a commission to consider the question of the advisability of a division of profits between public utility corporations and the municipalities granting their franchises. This commission was appointed, has been diligently at work and will soon submit a report.

Last year an act was passed for a gradual increase in the franchise tax of traction companies up to 5 per cent. The relations between public utility corporations and the municipalities are so interdependent that any considertion of the taxation of franchises must involve questions that affect both the fair treatment of these corporations and the interest of the public. The property of the public utilities, both real and personal, is taxed the same as that of individuals. The only method of taxation upon the valuations fixed by local assessors. The franchise tax in addition to this, no matter how it may be arranged or adjusted, is necessarily paid by the consumers of these public corporations. These are the sources of revenue, and the tax must be paid therefrom. The question of a franchise tax does not more vitally interest the people than does the cheapness and efficiency of service. The safety of operation, quality of light or water furnished, reasonableness in price and universality of service are the elements in which the public are deeply concerned. An honest, fair and strictly business relation between the people and public utility corporations are securing them, under an arrangement by which the former share in the earnings of the latter, will promote these ends and satisfy the sense of fairness.

The relations between corporations and the public should be based upon business and not upon political considerations. EDWARD C. STOKES.

CHAMBERS GETS $6,250

Wins His Suit Against P. S. C. For Damages For Personal Injuries.

JURY OUT 8 HOURS

Accident On Trolley Car On Putnam Avenue a Year Ago—In Supreme Court.

In the Supreme Court case of Newton W. Chambers against the Public Service Corporation, which has been on trial at Elizabeth the last two days, the jury after eight hours deliberation, rendered a verdict Wednesday for $6,250 in favor of the plaintiff. Mr. Chambers was injured on Putnam avenue, Hillside avenue a year ago last month. He was his only witness as to the manner in which the accident happened.

The story told by Chambers was that after the car had stopped at Hillside avenue he was in the act of alighting when the car suddenly moved forward with a jerk so violent as to throw him from the car, and that as he fell, he grasped the hand rail and was dragged a considerable distance, and finally was forced to let go, with the result that he was thrown forward, striking on his face. He was rendered unconscious for a moment, but afterwards told the conductor that he would make no claim against the company, as he thought his injuries would not amount to much. The injuries proved to be very serious, including among the consequences, deafness in both ears. The defendants produced the conductor, the motorman and Mr. Brokaw, who was then employed by the P. S. C., and was riding on the rear platform, and two passengers. The witnesses for the defence stated that the car did not stop at Hillside avenue, and that Mr. Chambers jumped from the car while it was in rapid motion, and that he stated to the conductor that night, and to the company's adjustor the next day, that it was his, Chambers', own fault, as he had no business to jump while the car was moving. The conductor produced his report made to the company the next morning, in corroboration of his testimony. Doctors F. C. Ard and W. K. Browning testified as to the serious character of the plaintiff's injuries, and Dr. Greene testified for the defendants.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mr. Chambers, made a motion, after the evidence was in, to add a new count to the declaration, based on the defendant's evidence so as to set up in the alternative that Mr. Chambers was injured while in the act of alighting from a slowly moving car, by reason of the sudden and unexpected increase of speed. The motion was not resisted.

Alvah Clark, counsel for the Public Service Corporation, insisted that the company was not at fault, and that the evidence clearly showed that Mr. Chambers took the risk of jumping from the car while it was in motion and after he had been warned by the conductor not to jump. He said that Mr. Chambers' own admission to the conductor on the night *of the accident, and to Adjustor Col*lins the next morning, entitled the defendants to a verdict. Mr. Marsh cited legal authorities for the proposition that the jury was not entitled to consider whether Mr. Chambers was in a mental condition to make a responsible statement on the night of the accident, or the next morning, and that if they believed that he was not in such a condition, he was not bound by any admissions made at those times. The court ruled in accordance with these authorities, and left it for the jury to decide what his condition was and to say whether the company was negligent and whether Mr. Chambers was guilty of contributory negligence.

The jury retired at the noon hour, and did not reach its verdict until 8:30 o'clock at night.

KITCHEN HELPS.

When the heat of the oven is slow it may be increased by putting hot stove lids under the pudding or dish which is baking.

If you will always set the dishpan with the handles at the front and back instead of at the sides as you have it you will have fewer nicked tea sets.

If when covering a kitchentable with oilcloth a layer of brown wrapping paper is put on first it will prevent the oilcloth from cracking and make it wear three times as long.

To prevent bright tins from getting blackened by smoke, rub with fat before putting them on the fire. Wash with hot water and soda after using them, and they will be quite bright.

In order to keep the odor of cauliflower, turnips and cabbage from permeating the house, lay a cloth over the top of the pot in which they are boiled and then sprinkle a little salt over the cloth. This is a simple remedy and is said to be effective.

Mrs. Mantz Gets Divorce.

Chancelor Magie, on the recommendation of Vice Chancelor Emery, has granted a decree of absolute divorce to Emma Mantz, of Warren township, from her husband, Andrew Mantz, on the ground of desertion. The parties separated in the year 1888, since which time they have both resided in Warren township.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1907.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

In his admirable message, Governor Stokes wastes few words on high sounding phrases. He takes up in turn, the most pressing affairs of State, particularly those in which immediate legislation is needed, and he handles his subjects in a vigorous fashion. He tells just what ought to be done by the Legislature, and how in his opinion it may be done to the best advantage. There is not a syllable in the whole document that smacks of the ring politician or party boss. It's first rate throughout.

Among the more important topics he takes up is the proposition long ago suggested by him, that the members of the Assembly be chosen from districts and not from the county at large. In his advocacy of a change, he says incidently:

"Under our present system the members of the House of Assembly in those counties which are more than one county are responsible to no distinct and separate constituency, but rather to a party organization or to a self-appointed committee of party leaders.

"This condition violates the fundamental principles of popular government. It promotes rule by the few rather than government by the many. So strongly wedded is public sentiment to the system of Assembly districts that it is the unanimous desire of the larger counties to form primary legislative districts and allot the members to be elected by that county to those districts existing only in the fancy of the nominating convention. The minority party under present conditions, seldom has any representatives from the county in the House of Assembly. In 1905, in the counties of Passaic, Hudson and Essex, the minority party polled forty per cent. of the vote, but did not have in the House of Assembly a single member to speak for it. Most of the large counties embrace both urban and rural populations, and in some sections are communities of commercial interest. Under this system of electing members of the Assembly these different elements may not have proper or adequate representation. Under the district system they could speak for themselves.

"It is always difficult to induce those in power to favor a change. Letting well enough alone blinds the sight to coming changes which may reverse conditions. Political dissatisfaction always eventually, sometimes quickly, brings political ruin. There is only one safe law to follow in politics—the law of right. Then every political party or element has at all times a fair chance, and that is all that should be asked. The Assembly district system accords with the principles of representative and popular government, and gives to each party its political rights."

"In my message last year I suggested that provision for Assembly districts could be made by a constitutional amendment; or if it might be attempted by a legislative act, so drawn as to receive prompt acceptance by the electorate. The latter method was tried by the last Legislature, and the act was declared unconstitutional by the Court of Errors and Appeals. An amendment to the Constitution, as suggested before, is therefore, the only way by which the system of Assembly districts can be restored in this State. I recommend consideration by the Legislature of a constitutional amendment for this purpose."

Speaking briefly of the much needed reference to the message, we have summed up in a few words these are the recommendations.

Increased facilities at the Bordentown School for Colored Youth.

Economy in State appropriations. The Governor says he will exercise the veto power in the maintenance of this policy.

Some plan for the improvement of the condition of the foreign population of the State.

Addition of a two years' teachers' college course to the Normal School to give teachers a higher academic training.

Careful legislative treatment of the relation of master and servant.

That provision be made for a Common secretary to all State licensing boards, with an office in the State House, attached, perhaps, to the office of the Secretary of the State.

Appointment of a commission to take up with Pennsylvania commissioners the work of preserving the Delaware river fisheries.

Legislation submitting to the people constitutional amendments for the reform of the judiciary of the State.

Greater simplicity in legislation, with a condensation and revision of the statutes. The Governor says every law should be intelligible to the ordinary mind.

Further jury reform. The Governor recommends that the method of selecting grand juries be carefully reviewed, and suggests a law providing that the grand jury panels be revised by the judge of the court of common pleas.

Civil service in government except as to those officers elected by the people, whose appointment is confirmed by the Senate; officers of any city or county whose appointment is confirmed by a legislative body, and persons appointed by name by statute. The Governor says patronage is the blight of office.

Further ballot reform. The Governor says the distribution of ballots should be confined to the polling places. He advises careful consideration of the voting machines before they are condemned.

Further development of the forest reservations and the protection of woodlands from fire, in connection with this the message recommends the acquisition by the State of its fresh water lakes with contiguous woodlands for recreation parks.

The erection of a storage reservoir in the Passaic valley to conserve the North Jersey portable water supply. The Governor says this would cost $7,500,000, and thinks the improvement would pay for itself in thirty-five years. He suggests the creation of a State water supply commission.

An amendment to the constitution permitting the election of members of Assembly by districts.

Legislation permitting at the primary election preceding the election of a United States Senator expression by the votes of their choice of candidates for that office.

More home rule in municipal government. The Governor says municipal ills should be remedied at home; not at Trenton.

Equitable division of the profits of public utility corporations between the corporations and the municipalities which they serve.

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT ATTRACTS CULTURED THRONG.

Brilliant Musical Event at the Casino Under Mr. McIntyre's Direction.

The third of the McIntyre chamber music concerts Friday night at the casino caused another high mark of excellence in this delightful series and was greeted by a large audience of Plainfield's cultured and fashionable people. The three members of the trio show the fine qualities that go to make an ensemble that should have the artistic enthusiasm and temperament which are its basis. Their performances in the ever fresh and noble trio of Beethovens was marked by that fine sense of tonal balance and delicate shading which is the chief essential of chamber music.

Mr. McIntyre's playing of the piano part in the work was marked by brilliance, vigor and delicacy.

Mr. Dubinsky, who has been accepted as an old favorite with these audiences, was compelled to respond to an encore to his solo numbers and gave the Traumerei by Schumann. His playing is a never failing delight.

The assisting artist, Julian Walker, New York's great basso, met with a reception that must have been most gratifying even to him who knows enthusiastic success so well. His voice is of great power and of beautiful quality. It is impossible to render him so great an artist are not only his natural endowments of voice and temperament but he stands among the few who possess the intellectual acumen that makes his interpretation of the song production a beautiful satisfaction. He established himself at once in the hearts of the audience.

Supplementary Proceedings.

William Grannatt, Jr., a real estate agent, has instituted supplementary proceedings against Mrs. Bertha Allegar in the District Court. The action is based on a judgment recently obtained by Mr. Grannatt against Mrs. Allegar for commission due on a sale of property. The judgment was for $61. Mr. Grannatt levied on household goods, but could not find property enough to satisfy the claims. The present action is to discover what property Mrs. Allegar does possess and what has become of the money she received for the property. The hearing is set for next Tuesday. Mr. Bunn represents Granatt's counsel; W. J. DeMeza represents Mrs. Allegar.

Hebrew Association Ball.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association has made arrangements to give a first annual ball in the Plainfield Dancing Academy, on the eve of Lincoln's birthday, February 11. The committee appointed to take full charge consists of Max W. Goldstein, chairman; Jacob W. Moledesky, Herman Kahn, Hyman Richard, Meyer D. Moledesky and Samuel Rothberg.

Then known as "Truell Hall."

Miss English Engaged.

Mrs. George W. English, of 224 East Seventh street, gave a luncheon this afternoon to announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edith English, to Hugh Jarvis, of New York. No date has been set for the wedding.

Visited P. H. S.

Principal Wetzel, of the Public Schools, Trenton, and Principal Krebs, of the North Plainfield Public Schools, were visitors at the Plainfield High School, this morning.

A Jealous Jab.

Tess—She takes a very small shoe, doesn't she?

Jess—Oh, yes, indeed.

Tess—What size?

Jess—Two sizes smaller than her foot.—Philadelphia Press.

AMUSEMENTS.

At the Manhattan theatre Wilton Lackaye, in "The Law and the Man," continues the run of his own dramatization of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables." Students of literature find Mr. Lackaye's conception of Jean Valjean an interesting one admirably supported by a strong cast. The production of this powerful drama is one of Mr. Lackaye's greatest achievements in the dramatization of the French classic one of the most difficult ever attempted with success.

The great success of "The Man of the Hour," which enters its seventh week of the Savoy theatre, demonstrates the deep interest of the public in any subject that tends to expose conditions of municipal graft and official corruption. The author, George Broadhurst, has dealt broadly with known conditions of machine politics and boss rule and is generally believed to have daringly used present incumbents of office and political leadership as studies for his stage characters.

Garrick theatre—William Collier and his new farce, "Caught in the Rain," are tremendously popular at the Garrick theatre where the comedian has scored a laughing knockout with this delightful play. It is a jolly whirl of fun through three happy acts and there is not a moment when the laugh, and good healthy one, is not there. "Caught in the Rain" is the greatest farce hit the town has known since the merry reign of "Charley's Aunt."

Wallack's theatre—Sam Bernard is rounding out his third month of triumph in "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" at Wallack's theatre. There never was a better Bernard role than that of the present Piggy Hoggenheimer. It is extremely funny in its every phase. The spectacular features of the show are numerous and there is an abundance of pretty girls, and nearly a score of good catchy songs added to the diversity of the entertainment. The most popular of these songs are "Don't You Want a Paper, Dearie," "Poker Love," "The Bagpipe Serenade," "Little Old America for Me."

Hudson theatre—"The Hypocrites" entered the New Year as popular and as vigorous an attraction as when it began its career in the Hudson theatre in August. During its six months stay it has drawn crowded houses and that is what it is still doing. There is quite unanimous agreement among the people who see "The Hypocrites" that it is the most powerful modern drama presented here in the last ten or twenty years. Henry Arthur Jones has not written a more powerful or more attractive drama. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr. Belasco has given William Furst, the composer, a wider latitude in "The Rose of the Rancho," at the Belasco theatre, for the introduction of incidental music than in any production since "The Darling of the Gods" The music composed for the latter play by Mr. Furst is regarded among the best examples of incidental music ever written, and the play of Spanish California the composer has embodied the spirit of the Castilian dance and song in beautiful form, by drawing freely upon the peculiarly enchanting rhythms of the Mexican and South American dance. Among the musical numbers introduced is a song, "El Corazon dos di Chado," or "The Carless Heart;" another bears the title, "Los Palomeitas," called in English "Little Dove," and there is a guitar accompaniment. A musical feature of interest is the kissing dance in the second act, "Los Canostra des Flores," which, translated, means "The Little Basket of Flowers," and a fan dance by Miss Starr, "El Jarabe," a graceful measure, on the order of an old Mexican dance.

THE CONGREGATIONALISTS.

They started the first foreign missionary society in the country.

They started the first home missionary society in the country.

They started the most effective city missionary society in the country.

They started the greatest Christian young people's movement of this country or any other country.

They started the first college in the country.

They started the first theological seminary in the country.

They started the first religious newspaper in the country.

They published the first hymn book in the country.

They started the town meeting—the initiative and referandum.

They started the first temperance society in the country.

They have given to America the three greatest evangelists it has ever had.—Chicago Advance.

"Farthest North."

Commander Peary, U. S. N., who will give an illustrated lecture at the First M. E. church on Saturday night, January 26, under the auspices of the Brotherhood and Ladies' Aid Society, on the subject of "Farthest North," will tell the story of his daring expedition toward the North Pole. He will show sixty colored views. Tickets can be secured at Armstrong's pharmacy.

Aluminum Plant Cuts Hours.

The Aluminum Plate and Press Co., of Dunellen, has put its force on a forty-hour weekly schedule, a reduction of fourteen hours. The reduction is due to a strike of lithographers throughout the country.

CHILD LABOR IN STORES

Laws Governing Employment of Children to Cover Those in the Shops.

COMMISSION IS ACTIVE

To Keep Up Fight To Prevent Anyone Under Sixteen Working at Night.

The New Jersey Child Labor Commission, at a session in the home of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, decided to continue the work begun by it last year in introducing a bill into the Legislature prohibiting the employment of children under sixteen years of age at night, and also adopted resolutions authorizing the executive committee to introduce measures making the legislation in regard to factory labor apply also to mercantile establishments, and providing for the registry and supervision by the child labor committee of children sent to New Jersey homes and factories from organizations or societies outside the State.

Last year the bill to regulate child labor in factories who favorably reported by the Committee on Labor and Industry, but when brought before the House was vigorously opposed by Assemblymen from the glass-blowing factory localities. The bill was returned to the committee, and eventually squashed. These facts were presented early in the meeting by Owen J. Lovejoy, of the National Child Labor Commission, who told of the child labor campaigning of other States and spoke particularly of the employment of child labor by various glass-blowing concerns.

"The conditions are becoming better in many States," Mr. Lovejoy said, "and the time is very ripe now for decided improvement in the child labor laws. The law up before your Legislature last year for the restriction of child labor met with favor on the part of nearly all the members. The glass-blowers, however, offered a strong opposition. This has been so in many other States, yet now public sentiment has become so strong that the glass-blowers are of their own accord in Ohio and Illinois giving up child labor at night.

"By the installation of machines for the saving of labor, many factories are bettering the situation. These devices in glassblowers' establishments are capable of doing the work of thirty-two children. In this particular great improvement is being made, as these machines are being installed extensively. In relation to the question of applying the same restrictive laws to street trades, the national commission has found that it is better that such provisions should be made by municipal, rather than State laws."

Following the discussion concerning the danger from the conditions existing when children are sent to this State from outside States, Mrs. Williamson offered a resolution that the executive committee be authorized to introduce measures providing that children sent into this State to homes and factories by outside institutions, societies or organizations shall be registered with the committee, and subject to its control and supervision, and that the societies sending the children be required to give security that they be not unlawfully employed. It is in this way intended to make societies sending children in this State responsible for their conduct. This is to be urged independent of the child labor bill.

It was brought out in the discussion relative to this measure that the greatest danger of child labor infringements exists to this State, and in cases where the children so sent may wander away from the control of either home or factory barracks. In the matter of taking action to secure legislation in the prohibition of child labor (under sixteen years of age) in mercantile establishments, a bill which will conform to the one referring to factories, it was decided to support the Consumers' cague, which has already taken steps toward the introduction of such a bill. This latter bill provides that children under sixteen years of age shall not be employed after 7 p. m. hours of 6 at night and 7 in the morning, with the exception of one night a week, when they may be employed until 9 o'clock, and during the Christmas holidays, beginning with December 24 when they may be employed until 10 o'clock.

Mrs. G. W. B. Cushing, of the Consumers' cague, who was present at the meeting, spoke of this measure, referring to the fact that it had the support of Governor Stokes, though the latter was in favor of setting the age limit at five instead of seven years. The committee also indorsed the Beveridge national child labor bill.

Chairman Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield, who presided at the meeting, brought up the matter of the chairmanship of the committee for the coming campaign, and begged to be excused from the duty, as he was "too busy to satisfactorily attend to it. Rev. William R. Hunt, of Orange, was elected chairman, while an executive committee will carry on much of the routine work. Rev. Mr. Hunt was not present at the meeting and his acceptance has not yet been received.

BEQUEST FOR TRINITY MADE BY MRS. CRANE

SHE LEFT $500 TO CHURCH AND LIKE SUM TO MISSION BOARD.

By the terms of the will of Mrs. Sarah A. Crane, for many years a resident of this city, who died in Jersey City on December 3, 1906, Trinity Reformed church, of which she was a member, is one of the beneficiaries. A bequest of $500 is to that church. The sum of $500 is also bequeathed to the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church in America. Mrs. Crane was quite wealthy and in drawing her will she made a great many bequests of this nature.

By another provision of the will Mrs. Crane bequeathed to Mrs. Josephine Crane, wife of Henry A. Crane, the house and lot on East Fourth street, formerly occupied by her. In a codicil she revoked the bequest, substituting the provision that Mrs. Josephine Crane have the use of the property during her life time and upon her death it is to revert to her three children, John, Mary and Alonzo Crane, for use during their life time.

The will was recently filed for probate in the office of Surrogate John T. Egan, in Jersey City, and John H. VanWinkle, Esq., of Duer street, the borough, and William J. Dodd, of Jersey City, are named as the executors.

Mrs. Crane was greatly interested in Trinity Reformed church during her residence here and maintained the same interest after moving to Jersey City. She was a faithful attendant at the services.

UNIVERSITY SMOKE NOW AN ASSURED SUCCESS.

Thus Far 179 College Men Have Signified Their Intention of Attending the Affair.

It is now certain that the university smoker will be an assured success and will outshine in every particular last year's enthusiastic gathering. It is positively necessary, however, that every man who has not answered his invitation as yet, do so immediately. The smoker is only a little over a week off and if adequate provision is to be made for everyone it is imperative that the names of those college men who expect to be present be sent to Owen H. Fleming, 1012 Park avenue, at once.

Every day the attention of the committee is called to the names of college men who have not received invitations and also names of college men who have recently moved to Plainfield. The committee appreciates the efforts of its friends in co-operating with it in this way. The hour of the smoker has been changed from 9 to 8:30 o'clock in order that the speeches may begin promptly at 9 o'clock. This change is made at the request of several men and believes it will be generally approved of, and it is requested that everyone be present promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

The figures regarding attendance to date stand as follows: The committee has sent out 475 invitations, and 179 men have signified their intention of being present. 118 men have sent regrets, principally on account of being out of town or previous engagements, making a total of 297 men who have answered invitations out of the 475 sent out. Hence, it is necessary that those who have not responded do so without delay. The different details of the smoker have all been worked out and it now remains for the college men of Plainfield to make "alma *mater" night on January 24, the en*thusiastic affair that now seems assured.

Tendered a Surprise Party.

William Walsh, of East Third street, was tendered a surprise party by a number of his friends, Friday night. Games were played and various other pastimes enjoyed. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

1 1 10 5 ow

J. DUNBAR WRIGHT CHARMS AUDIENCE

HIS STORY OF TRAVELS IN THE EAST FASTINATES A SOCIETY THRONG.

"From Egypt to Japan" was the subject of an intensely interesting illustrated lecture given at the Casino Saturday night for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, by J. Dunbar Wright. The large auditorium was filled with society people who are interested in the hospital.

The views, all taken by Mr. Wright on his extensive trip, were among the best ever seen here, and a delightful part of the affair was the way in which he held the attention of everyone. In describing the trip from Egypt to Japan he did not omit anything of special importance. The views and the talk gave a comprehensive idea of the various countries, the life and customs of the people. Mr. Wright visited all classes of people from the poorest to the richest and he was especially well fitted to tell of the curious habits and customs of each.

It was not so much a lecture as a friendly personal talk. The uniformly kind reception he received in every land from all classes was undoubtedly due to his cheerfulness and friendliness with everyone he met, especially the children. Mr. Wright's pictures were nearly all perfect as photographs, but they were much more, they were works of art. Not snap shots of excursion tourists, but results of hours and even days of study, giving enough history and general information about the lands and cities he visited to make the lecture instructive as well as delightful.

The Confederate's Lost Opportunity.

Just why the Confederates never followed up their victory after Bull Run has been a question in military circles. Gen. E. P. Alexander in the January Scribner, writing on the subject says: "Jackson's offer to take Washington City the next morning with 5,000 men, had been made to the President as he arrived upon the field, probably about 5 o'clock. It was not sunset until 7:15 and there was a nearly full moon. But the President himself and both generals spent these precious hours in riding over the field where the conflict had taken place.

Mountain Ranges.

The long, undulating folds in which the Appalachians were produced when first thrown up are characteristic of mountain ranges the world over. The Alps, the Pyrenees, the Caucasus, Himalayas, Andes and Rockies are built in just that way. They are enormously thick beds or masses, and they are all ridged up into these folds.

County of Union, ss:

By virtue of the writ to the sheriff of the County of Union directed, Greetings [L. S.] Summon John T. E. Van Derveer, owner, and Modesto A. Dehaye, builder, and Modesto A. Dehaye, mortgagee, to appear before the Circuit Court in and for the county of Union at Elizabeth, on the said county, on the nineteenth day of January, 1907, then and there to show cause why the said Modesto A. Dehaye, builder, may answer unto the said D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claimant in an inquisition, duly executed, to the claimant's damage, three thousand dollars, as to why the lands of the said John T. E. Van Derveer upon which the said Anton H. Meyer holds a mortgage of record, and which are described as follows: The said building is a two story brick dwelling and store, situate and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the southwesterly side of Park avenue, distant 30 feet southeasterly in direction eighty-five (85) feet from the southeasterly side of Second street; thence along said side line of Park avenue south forty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes east, seventy-three and ninety-five one-hundredths (73.95) feet to a stake; thence south forty degrees and nine minutes west, forty-eight and thirty-three one-hundredths (48.33) feet to a stake; thence north forty degrees and forty-five minutes west, seventy-three and seventy-five one hundredths (73.75) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and fifty-four minutes east, forty-eight and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to the beginning. Together with the land in front thereof, to the centre of said street.

Witness, Francis J. Swayze, Judge of our said Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, in said county this fifteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and seven.

JAMES E. CALVERT, Clerk.

WM. M. STILLMAN, Attorney

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.

In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 3.37, 5.36, 8.02, 8.59, 6.57, 7.30, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 3.37, 4.47, 7.31, 8.01, 8.59, 9.30, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m.

For Somerville—5.19, 7.11, 8.21, 9.17, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m. Sunday—2.02, 7.09, 8.49, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m.

For Flemington—5.19, 7.11, 8.21, 9.17, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m. Sunday—2.02, 7.09, 8.49, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 12.00, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.25, 11.40 p. m.

For Phillipsburg and Easton—5.25, 8.31, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 8.27 and 6.31 p. m. Sunday—8.45 a. m., 2.03, 5.47, 7.06 p. m.

For Bethlehem—5.25, 8.31, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sunday—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 7.06 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—9.55 a. m., 5.47 p. m. Sundays—2.45 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Long Branch and Asbury Park, etc.—2.17, 8.02, 8.59, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 6.45, 6.29, 11.25 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 8.01, 8.59, 9.30, 10.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 6.45, 6.29, 11.25 p. m.

For Red Bank—2.17, 8.31, 9.11, 9.29, 10.55 a. m., 12.42, 2.44, 3.50, 4.45, 6.29, 11.25 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 8.01, 8.52 a. m., 3.50, 8.12 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—2.17, 9.29 a. m., 3.50 p. m. Sunday—2.17 (Cross Saturdays only), 1.27, 2.44, (4.07 Lakewood only), (5.0 p. m. Saturdays only, Lakewood only). Sundays—(8.01 Lakewood only), 8.52 a. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Toms River and Barnegat—9.29 a. m., 1.27, 4.07 p. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Philadelphia—7.13, 7.39, 8.45, 9.13, 10.43 a. m., 12.13, 12.42, 1.39, 2.13, 2.45, 3.25, 4.44, 5.23, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46, 10.39, 11.47 p. m. Sunday—8.45, 9.53, 10.39, 11.47 a. m., 12.42, 1.44, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46, 10.39, 11.47 p. m.

For Reading and Harrisburg—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 (6.47 through train). Sundays 5.25, 9.55 a. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sunday—2.02 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 9.53 a. m., 2.45, 6.44 p. m. Sundays—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44 p. m.

Change cars at Bound Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Gen. Mgr. W. C. HOPE, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. Gen. Pass. Agt.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect May 13th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD [illegible]

7.55 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk.

[illegible] Rochester, Buffalo and principal intermediate stations.

1.47 p. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.

4.47 p. m. daily, local for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Wilkesbarre and Shenandoah.

11.5 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express". Solid vestibule train to Wilkesbarre, through Harlem River Tunnel. Pullman cars to Scranton and Carbondale.

8.40 p. m. daily, solid vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.

8.21 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.

FRANK BOWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.

On Saturdays close half hour earlier.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.90, 11.35 a. m.; 2.30, 6.30, 8.30 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.90, 2.30, 4.00, 7.40 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Arrive—10.0 a. m., 1.50, 8.15 and 7.30 p.m.

Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.90, 2.30, 4.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND EASTON.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 2.30, 6.30 p. m.

Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.90, 2.30, 4.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton (Mail Clerk).

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 2.30, 5.40 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.90, 2.30, 4.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.30, 8.40, 11.20 a. m.; 2.30 and 7.03 p. m.

Close—7.15, 7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 12.25, 4.00, 7.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close at 7.15 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.40 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel.)

Arrive—1.20 p. m. Close—6.00 a. m.

Watchung—Arrive—11.47. Close 1.30 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.

Mail closes at 9.15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M

Death of Mrs. Nevius.

Mrs. Catherine V. F. Nevius, well known to many Plainfielders, died at the home of her niece at Readington, Hunterdon county, on Saturday, January 9, following a stroke of apoplexy. She was in the eighty-seventh year of her age. She was born at Readington, where she lived for many years. The funeral services were held on Sunday, and the interment was at the church-yard cemetery, Readington, among many members of her family who had gone before.

Circus Features.

Stellar attractions will be seen at the Y. M. C. A. circus February 11 and 12. It was announced this morning that the Newark Y. M. C. A. gymnastic team, which won the world's championship at the St. Louis fair, will be there. Ray Ewry, holder of six world's records for jumps and kicks, will probably be on the bill.

A boy has arrived at the home of B. Moeller, superintendent of Hillside cemetery.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, has returned from an out-of-town business trip.

CRUSHED BETWEEN CARS

Fifteen-year-Old Charles Jaeger Pinned Fast When Freights Buckled.

HAD ONLY JUST GOT ON

At Risk of His Life, Charles Arnold Pulled Him Clear — Pressure Was Relieved.

In an unmistakable coordination of fate, Charles Jaeger, fifteen-year-old boy who lives with his widowed mother on Spooner avenue, met with severe injuries in a peculiar accident on the New Jersey Central shortly after 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon.

A long freight train was passing east on Liberty street, when Jaeger and several companions noticed it and thought to have some fun by stealing a ride. They climbed up the embankment and Jaeger was the first to catch hold of a car and swing to the step. He had barely reached the bunkers when the engineer of the train discovered a signal set against him and applied the air brakes with full force.

The sudden stoppage caused two of the cars in the middle of the string of freight to buckle. They happened to be the two the young Jaeger was between. Not another one in the entire train was affected in any way. The forward car of the two was driven into the other one so that it was impossible for nearly half its length and the wheels left the track. It was loaded with bags of cement and many of these were ripped open, sending up a cloud of dust.

Charles Arnold, the liberty street butcher, was sitting at the rear window at his home over the store and was attracted by the crash. He looked out to see what caused it and as the cement cloud settled he saw Jaeger pinned between the wreckage, held fast by one arm and a leg but making frantic efforts to get loose. Arnold ran to the scene but it needed only a glance to show him that it was impossible to extricate the boy until the forward part of the train was pulled away. A line was secured and after loosening the couplings, gave the engineer instructions as to how to proceed.

At the risk of personal injury, Arnold crept under the mass of broken timbers and cement bags and held the pressure up until the car ahead of him began to move. The minute the pressure was released from the boy's limbs he pulled him clear, just as a lot of debris tumbled down. There were timbers in it big enough to have crushed the heads of both.

While the work of rescue was going on, Walter Arnold, Mr. Arnold's son, had been busy with the telephone and had summoned physicians and the ambulance. Dr. Dundon was the first to arrive and Jaeger was taken out and removed to Arnold's store. He was given temporary treatment and then removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the right arm and a badly lacerated leg. It was thought at first that both might have to be amputated but after a close examination was conducted the physicians now that they could be saved.

The boy remained unconscious through the entire ordeal and when first taken out of the wreckage begged everyone about him to be sure and not let his mother know of his plight. He has been employed in the blue print room at the Potter Press Works and his wages are a great help to her in supporting the family. He was resting easily today and his chances of complete recovery are very good. The boy is a son of the late Albert Jaeger, who conducted a barber shop in the West End for many years.

The wreckage blocked both east bound tracks and traffic on them was held up for about two hours. The steam crane had to be called to get the demolished car out of the way.

WANT TO BE A COP?

Chances for Four Able-bodied Young Men on the Force.

There is room for four young men on the police force. Applicants will be welcomed by Chief Kiely, who will tell all the things it is necessary for them to know as to examinations and requirements. No young man who has any desire to get on the force need hesitate to apply.

Chief Kiely has the application blanks. The general qualifications required of applicants are that they be able to read and write, have been a resident and a voter in Plainfield one year; never have been convicted of crime; at least 5 feet 8 inches in height and not over 32 years old.

Helping a Worthy Charity.

The Day Nursery has received $12 as the contribution of the First Baptist Church Sunday school to the charity work. It costs on an average $150 a month to maintain the nursery and the King's Daughters, under whose auspices it is conducted are obliged to depend on their own efforts and the help of their friends to continue it. The receipts from the care of the children will meet the milk and coal bill whichever it is decided to pay with the money.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE LEFT ON THE FLOOR AT RAHWAY

RAHWEGIANS SAID TO HAVE DONE THINGS THEY SHOULDN'T HAVE DONE.

Indignant over unsportsmanlike behavior on the part of the home team and convinced that to continue the contest would only lead to greater unpleasantness, Physical Director G. L. Listman called the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team from the floor of the Rahway Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday night, in the early part of the second half of the league game. The action followed a series of disputes and clashes that began almost with the play. Referee Hess, physical director of Rahway, who was an official at the game, appears to have seconded Orr in his questionable tactics.

Rahway started to slug early in the game, and Orr was the chief offender. Mr. Listman, who umpired in the first half, called a foul on him, and he protested. Against the rules of the game and the league, he argued with Mr. Listman, and another foul was called on him. He kept on arguing, and it was not until another foul was called that he decided to go on. Rahway is said to have thrown all the courtesies of the game aside after that. Orr slugged savagely, and was warned by Mr. Listman. He put Loizeaux out of the game for a foul, December 31, and no doubt deterred him from slugging Schoonmaker also a short time afterwards. Mr. Listman instructed his players to make no attempt at reprisals, and the Plainfielders followed orders.

In the second half, Orr introduced a new defiance of the rules in his campaign. He kept shifting from center to forward, regardless of regulations, in order to confuse the Plainfielders. About four minutes after play was resumed, he slugged Schoonmaker again. Mr. Listman, referee in that half and supreme authority, decided that warnings enough had been given. He ordered Orr out of the game. There was a haul from Rahway that cracked the roof. Mr. Hess, who was umpire in that half, really had nothing to do with governing the contest, declared that if Orr went out Schoonmaker would go too. Mr. Listman couldn't see it. Schoonmaker had held Orr's hands down while Orr slugged, and made no effort to interfere in the bolt. When Mr. Hess made his extraordinary demand, Mr. Listman decided that friendly feelings and the spirit of the game would not be helped by a continuance of the contest. He told his men quietly to withdraw.

A protest against the game, which now stands forfeited to Rahway, was mailed to the league protest committee this morning. The Plainfield five is confident the committee will award the game to Plainfield.

Plainfield lined up as follows in the game: Gilmore, Loizeaux, forwards; Collier, center; Schoonmaker, Jacot, guardsmen. The score was 15 to 13 in Rahway's favor at the end of the first half; no points were scored after that. Most of the scoring was done on fouls.

FORM "PLAINFIELD CLUB"

(Continued from Page 1.)

which latter date interest will accrue.

It was reported by the subscription committee last night that $7,000 had been subscribed toward the fund to purchase the Casino property. There seems to be no question but that the balance can be raised before March 1, the time when a final decision must be made.

THIEVES AT THE PLAINS.

Robbed Joseph Perretta's Shop and Then Smashed the Fixtures.

Thieves broke into the barber shop of Joseph Perretta, at South Plains, early Saturday morning, and after taking all the cigars and tobacco at hand, demolished the fixtures. The cases were taken outside and smashed and green paint was daubed over the front doors and windows.

A similar case reported by John Cook and he has asked the aid of the township authorities in running down the gang. Perretta has been bothered in this way on several occasions and a number of young men in the village have been under suspicion. Citizens of the place who have interested themselves in the matter have demanded that steps be taken to afford Perretta and every other resident proper protection and it is possible the township committee will take some decided action.

Quaas Property Sold.

The Quaas premises located on Plainfield avenue, which have been the subject of partition proceedings for a long time in the Court of Chancery were sold by Special Master Nelson Runyon Friday afternoon at the Hotel Iroquois. The property was sold for $4,300 to Jacob Sachar. The complainant in this action was represented by Abe J. David, of Elizabeth, and all of the other heirs by John H. VanWinkle & Son.

SMOTHERING LEGISLATION

Mr. Swackhamer Explains Why Committees Should Report Proposed Laws.

AN ABUSE OF POWER

Former Assemblyman Declares House Rule Permits Will of People to Be Frustrated.

One of the greatest abuses practised by the "machine" followers in the legislature is to kill bills by keeping them in committee until they die a natural death. Time and again this has been done to the detriment of the people's interests, but at last, it is said, the rule permitting such to be indulged in will be abolished. It is realiably reported that the Assembly will discuss a substitute rule at their session tonight. This proposed rule will make it mandatory on any committee to report any particular bill when twenty-five per cent. of the members of the Assembly desire it to be done.

Former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, who knows the ropes at Trenton and had some bitter experience by reason of failure of the committees to promptly report bills, discussed the subject this morning.

"I think the proposed rule would be of the highest value to the State as it would deprive corrupt political manipulators of one-third of their power in a single stroke," said Mr. Swackhamer. "Heretofore a committee of five members, ensconced under the panoply of so-called senatorial courtesy have been enabled to take the most perfect product of a legislator's brain, fill its eyes with the dust from the poppy of oblivion and reduce it into that sleep which knows no awakening. In that silent sepulchre there are legislative children not a span long. If the committee is pliant or corruptible, the powers that be will forecrdain the fate of a bill at the instant of its introduction; and when the decree has once gone forth, though the pulpit may thunder and the press denounce, there is no power that can change it.

"If a bill is introduced in the interest of the people, which is obnoxious to a railroad corporation, it is immediately referred to the committee on railroads and canals; and if that committee is under the dominating influence of corporation it declines to report the bill; and the sheer inertia of the committee smiles at the active forces directed against it.

"The people have elected sixty members to the general assembly to introduce, discuss and approve or reject legislative measures; but the five committeemen, indifferent and secure, practically dictate the laws. The chairman of such a committee has more power than the speaker of the House and many will exclaim in the language of Louis XIV., 'I am the State.' It is apparent that it is easier for a political boss or ring to control five members than it is to control sixty; and such a dangerous power should be promptly removed."

Mr. Owens' Statement.

John P. Owens has made a statement concerning the accident he was in on Wednesday last, in which he was severely injured. Mr. Owens says that Mr. Love was engaged to drive him to Metcuhen in the afternoon as he himself not being accustomed to horses, would not attempt to drive, and after contracting his business there returned to Plainfield, through Park avenue, and as they reached the corner of Fifth street, Mr. Owens claims that his carriage was on the right side of the road, they turned out to pass a carriage ahead of them, at the same time Mr. Green's carriage attempted to pass the one ahead of it, and the collisions was unavoidable. Mr. Owens says he was thrown out and a heavy wagon which was in the mix-up passed over his ankle. Not realizing the extent of his injury Mr. Owens says he got up and walked for a half a block, when he became so faint that he fell, and called to a man passing to call him a carriage in which he was removed to his home. When the doctors found how seriously he was injured he was removed to the hospital where an operation was performed.

ROADS TO NEATNESS.

Neatly kept nails.
Gloves neatly mended.
Smoothly brushed hair.
Absolute cleanliness of the body.
Waist and skirt snugly fastened together.

Entire absence of the odor of perfumes.

The placket fastened firmly and invisibly.

All garments carefully brushed free of dust.

Shoes well polished and heels trimly built up.

Buttons, hooks and trimming securely sewed.

Whiteness of the scalp and freedom from dandruff.

The walking skirt to clear the ground by several inches.

Attention to these details will earn for any woman the description of dainty and well groomed. Every one cannot be beautiful, and every one cannot dress expensively.—New York Press.

DR. CADMAN ON THE PEACE OF RELIGION

SPEAKS ELOQUENTLY AT BIG Y. M. C. A. THEATRE MEETING.

Weather conditions partly agreeable for the first time since the series began, the Y. M. C. A. had a good-sized crowd at its theatre meeting Sunday. Rev. Dr. S. Parks Cadman, of Brooklyn, spoke. The audience filled all the seats in the orchestra.

Dr. Cadman delivered a forceful talk on the peace worn of religion. His eloquence was marked, and its effect made itself evident in the number of responses to his appeal for upraised hands, as a sign of a desire for intercessory prayer. His diction is simple, and his address that of a finisher pulpit orator.

Peace, Dr. Cadman said, was the greatest thing on earth. Love, with its ever-attendant suffering for the mortal heart, was no so great among the sons of men. It was the greatest thing in the universe, but for men on earth peace was the in ost precious thing. Peace was the quest of all men in all ages, and among all orders. Men sought peace with God, peace with themselves and peace with their fellow-men.

Christ gave the great and abiding peace, the speaker continued. Not only by His divine life but by His human practise. Christ was everywhere; in the factory, in the shops, the stores. But to win peace men must not seek for it for self alone. They can only come to peace in helping others. There was no peace in feeding the desires of self; only in ministering to other men; peace came from service.

Peace with God was the only true peace. Other peace there was none, but all others were part of that. Peace between capital and labor, between people and politicians, were trivial searches. When peace with God through righteousness of living obtained, all other forms of peace became facts.

In speaking of capital and labor, Dr. Cadman sharply rebuked the workingmen who sneered at churchgoing unless the sermons were of higher wages and shorter hours. Their concern should be of the higher purer things, through which and by which all other advancement was gained.

The meeting was opened by F. H. Andrews, for the Y. M. C. A. E. D. Cutting, sang, accompanied by Clifford A. Braider.

Y. M. C. A. FIVE LOST TO FAST NEW YORKERS.

But Steady-Going Second Team Wins Another Easy Victory, Defeating High School.

The first team of the Y. M. C. A. basketball squad lost to the St. Christopher Tigers, of New York, last night, and the second team defeated the High School five. The big game score was 40 to 23, the seconds won 42 to 24.

The first team, with its patched places, was not strong enough for the fast Tigers, who were scratched a bit, but they were never threatened with the loss of their meal.

The line-up and summary:

Y. M. C. A.		Tigers.
Collier		Rogge
Schoonmaker	forwards	Schroeder
Scull	center	Runge
Letson	guards	Brand
Jacot		Koehr

Goals from field—Collier, 3; Schoonmaker, Scull, 6; Jacot, Rogge, 5; Schroeder, 7; Runge, 4; Brand, Koehr, 2. Goals from fouls—Jacot, Rogge, 2.

The second team had an easy time with the High School. They toyed with the school boys at every stage.

Line-up and summary:

Y. M. C. A. 2ds.		High School.
Loizeaux		Line
Collier, Gilmore	forwards	Caldwell
Aalholm	center	Gavett, J.
Gavett, T.	guards	Snyder
Hoagland		Bogardus

Goals from field—Gilmore, 3; Collier, 2; Loizeaux, 8; Aalholm, 4; Gavett, T; Hoagland, 3; Line, 2; Caldwell, 5; Gavett, J. 4. Goals from fouls—Collier, 2; Loizeaux, Gavett, 7.

A WOMAN'S PHILOSOPHY.

There is some good, even in those who appear at the worst.

An opinion carries conviction only when expressed with force.

The "shirt" that lasts the longest often has the least in the way of merit.

A bargain seems to grow in importance after it has been allowed to pass.

Sudden wealth is apt to bring trouble to its owner.

Thoughts often are expressed by a glance of the eye without the use of words.

Fault finding eventually results in a disposition toward selfishness.

Affection consists not in the use of carefully prepared utterances.

Reticence has been responsible for many a lamentable failure.

It is hard to form a correct opinion of others on what is said about them.

P.P.A. AFTER THE P.S.C.

Voluminous Report on Electric Light and Gas Considered by Committee.

QUIET INVESTIGATION

Discussion On the Fingings Made by Those Who Have Been Employed In Examining Service Here.

An exhaustive and lengthy report which will tend to show, it is alleged, that neither the city nor private consumers of gas and electric light are getting what they pay for, was considered at a private meeting of the executive committee of the Plainfield Protective Association, at the Casino, Friday night. The entire evening was devoted to a consideration of the report and it was decided to make it known in a few days. The report will be printed for free circulation.

The association has had in its employ for some time an expert who has been quietly engaged in making an extensive investigation into the matter of gas and electricity as furnished here by the Public Service Corporation. This has embraced an examination of the electric light and gas plants, methods and cost of operation, meters, voltage, etc., and the report covers all of these points in detail.

This investigation has been known to the officials of the Public Service Corporation and it is said they have not attempted in any way to prevent the expert from obtaining all the information he desired. The information has been secured at various times and was not intended to cover any special days or nights when the electric or gas light was particularly good or bad. The intention has been to present a report which would represent the average service given.

It is said to be the purpose of the association to have the report published in the Plainfield newspapers and then printed in pamphlet form for the purpose of distribution among the people of the city and vicinity. This report is the result of action taken at an executive committee of the association several months ago, when it was voted to employ an expert for the purpose named.

TAMPERING WITH THE NEWS.

In making up the statistics of the year, the 11,000 who have signed Brander Matthews' petition for easy spelling should not be overlooked.

Last Friday was the shortest day of the year, and as Mr. Rockefeller gets 1,114 every minute in the day it follows that he was a trifle short Dec. 21.

Fishes with two pairs of eyes have been found in the Caribbean sea. This ought to enable them to bite coming and going.

It was quite proper to assign Patrick to the door and sash department at Sing Sing. Working on a way to get out is in Patrick's line.

By the time Congress resumes in January it will find the people of the country ready to adopt any elastic currency legislation that recoup the expenses incurred by ante-holiday purchases.

Housing Stock in Winter.

Horses that are roughing it in winter can take care of themselves if they have a shed to go in when they desire shelter. The work horse should be provided a warm barn or else blanketed. A sweaty horse will not remain sound if put in a cold barn without blanketing.

Poultry, like sheep, can stand a great deal of cold if it is only dry cold. Hens that are given plenty of exercise in a sunny scratching shed that may be entirely open on good days and curtained with cloth on stormy days will be healthy and lay in the coldest weather if fed properly.

The keynote of shelter for stock is a dry place with plenty of sunshine. Give all the liberty possible, and they will seek shelter when they feel the need of it.—Successful Farming.

Hand Crushed By Heavy Door.

George Gray, of South Second street, an employe of the Manganese Safe Company, had a hand badly crushed while at work Saturday. In hanging a safe door, the heavy mass slipped and his hand was caught beneath. A physician found it necessary to amputate one finger and two others were barely saved.

Senators' Apartments.

Senators Hillery, Wakelee, Frelinghuysen and Ackerman will be found quartered in a suite of apartments in the Bloomfield, opposite the State House, at Trenton. Governor Stokes lives in apartments there.

Authorized by Shakespeare.

Shakespeare has "stxt" for "sixth." Doubtless he so pronounced it, for he was credited with having written the three parts of "Henry the Sixt," and he certainly wrote "The Life of Henry the Fift," as the old edition has it. And it is worthy of notice that "fifta" and "sixta" are the Anglo-Saxon forms.—Professor Skeat in National Review.

Judgment Against Mrs. Welling.

Neuman Brothers, grocers, secured a verdict for $59, on contract, against Mrs. Elizabeth Welling, of 915 Madison avenue, in the District Court, this morning, on proof.

MT. ZION CONGREGATION BURNS CHURCH MORTGAGE

AUSPICIOUS EVENT OBSERVED WITH AN ALL-DAY PROGRAMME.

After thirteen years of effort, the Mount Zion A. M. E. church congregation recently succeeded in freeing its house of worship from debt and Sunday was observed as the day on which to burn the mortgage. Special services were held at intervals through the day that were attended by gatherings that filled the edifice to the doors.

In the morning at 10 o'clock, a love feast was conducted by Rev. H. C. Christmas, of Freehold, and at 11 o'clock he delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there was a meeting of great interest and in which several preachers took part. Rev. A. Y. Henry, of Bound Brook, who laid the corner stone of the church in 1894 and who acted as its first pastor, spoke from the text, "Let Mount Zion rejoice and the daughters of Zion be glad." Rev. Mr. Christmas sang, "Stranger, Cast the Rope," and Rev. John W. Cooper, of Rahway, gave a detailed history of the church and the members of the congregation who had worked so hard to place it on a solid foundation.

The day's programme was concluded at night by another interesting service led by Mr. Christmas, who delivered the sermon. Previous to his speaking, communion was observed and seventy-two persons received. The event of the entire observance was the burning of the mortgage and a number of when the sermon was concluded. The match was struck by Theodore Hooper, one of the founders of the church, who handed it to Mrs. Sarah Marsh, a deaconess and original member. She applied it to the mortgage and as the paper began to burn, the entire gathering waved handkerchiefs and sang "Free at Last." The offering for the day reached $85.86.

The church building is on West Fourth street and is a very comfortable and commodious structure. Since its organization, the congregation has grown steadily and it is now one of the most flourishing in the city. Edward B. Maynard, who has been one of its most tireless workers, was an interested spectator at yesterday's meetings, but did not take any part in the programme.

Rapid Progress at "Truell Hall."

The open winter weather permits the large gang of men employed at the Netherwood Hotel to make rapid progress in the extensive improvements underway and it now looks as though the place will be opened in May as arranged. The place will be

New Market Holiday Supper.

The New Market Baptist church will hold a Washington's Birthday supper in Friendship Hall, New Market, on the night of February 22. An entertainment will be given in connection with it.

DIED.

BROOKS—On Tuesday, Jan. 7, 1907, Herbert Brentnall, only son of Thos. B. and Marion Lane Brooks, in his 45th year.

OSMUN—On Monday, Jan. 7, 1907, C. Lillian, wife of Alfred F. Osmun and daughter of Mary E. and the late Clarkson R. Hope.

BEEKMAN—On Thursday, Jan. 10, 1907, Helen Schofield, daughter of William M. and Eliza J. Beekman, aged 7 months, 4 days.

JONES—On Wednesday, January 9, 1907, John Thatcher Jones.

A faithful husband, father, brother
His pleasure was his task
In which he proved faithful to the last.
The grave will now withhold thee
Within its narrow cells.
Fare thee well.

LAING—On Wednesday, January 9, 1907, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. De Pew, 49 Jewell street, Brooklyn, N. Y., Cornelia C., widow of Abel Laing, in her 75th year.

KELLY—In this city, Jan. 13, 1907, Mrs. Ann Kelly.

FULLER—After a lingering illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, 739 West Eighth street, James H. Fuller, in his 81st year.

KELLY—On Saturday, Jan. 12, 1907, Bessie M., wife of William C. Kelly.

KIRBERG—On Sunday, Jan. 13, 1907, Annie, wife of Frederick Kirberg.

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago. c 7 19 18

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics who are non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGN COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsoria line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution, Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, } Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning, }
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary

$900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel appointing agents, others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. B. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with your name and address and 10c. for sample copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York

WITH [illegible] you will give such a [illegible] to use ing effect under the sheerest dresses. Sizes 32 to 48 inches bust measure.

De Beveise

PRICE $1.00 EACH

At all retail [illegible] your dealer's name and we will send you [illegible] Catalogue on request.

Chas. E. De Beveise Co., 241 High St., Newark, N. J.

WATER COMMISSION EFFECTS ORGANIZATION AND AGREES UPON THE SCOPE OF ITS WORK

Exceptionally Good Committees Announced by Chairman Fisk; and the Work Begins.

TO ENGAGE EXPERTS

Counsel, Secretary and Stenographer Chosen—A Preliminary Discussion.

Substantial progress was made at the first meeting of the water investigation commission held at Mayor Fisk's office, Friday night, an organization being effected with a chairman, vice chairman, secretary, stenographer and three committees—engineering, legal and executive. Two of the fifteen members of the committee were in attendance, and in addition, Health Officer Leon R. Thorlow, who was made secretary, and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett, who were invited to attend the meetings. The others present were Mayor Charles J. Fisk, W. S. Coddington, William Newcorn, William L. Saunders, George H. Frost, John B. Dumont, William S. Tyler, Henry Hall, Dr. Junius H. Cooley, Joseph O. Osgood, A. J. Gavett, Leon R. Thurlow and representatives of the press.

Considerable time was saved by the action of Mayor Fisk in having the plan of organization and the objects of the committee all prepared for presentation. They were read by Mr. Fisk and adopted without a dissenting voice. He said at the beginning that while he did not want to take unto himself any more power or authority than rightfully belonged to him, yet he would like to head the committee and direct the investigation. This met with the hearty approval of the members. The organization was then effected as follows:

Chairman, Charles J. Fisk; vice chairman, John B. Dumont; secretary, Leon R. Thurlow; stenographer and copyist, George B. Wean. Then followed the appointment of the three committees as follows:

Engineering—Joseph O. Osgood, George H. Frost, William L. Saunders, Harry G. Runkle, Henry Hall. Legal—William S. Tyler, William Newcorn, William A. Coddington, Wilbur W. Craig, Dr. Junius H. Cooley. Executive—Charles J. Fisk, John B. Dumont, George P. Mellen, R. I. Tulles and Mayor Newton A. Smalley, the latter of the borough.

Upon the recommendation of Mr. Fisk, Corporation Counsel Craig and Mr. Marsh was appointed counsel to the general committee. It was decided that the committee meet on the second Friday in each month, and special meetings may be held at the option of the members.

Mr. Tyler raised the question of expense and remarked that at first the committee has no money with which to conduct the investigation. In reply Mr. Fisk stated that he had explicit faith in the Common Council in providing funds for the investigation, but if it did not see fit to make such an appropriation, he would furnish the funds himself, adding that the investigation must go on until completed and the citizens have an opportunity to decide the important question of water supply. Mr. Fisk also said that not a penny would be left unturned in the investigation; that it would be as thorough as possible.

In the appointment of the committees, Mr. Fisk said that he would give the members the broadest powers and that they would not be limited in any way in their efforts to obtain all the important facts necessary to reach a conclusion.

William Newcorn made a suggestion, which was afterward incorporated in a motion and adopted, to the effect that the committee make an investigation in the various cities throughout the country having municipal water works, especially where the conditions are similar to those to be found here.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Common Council, all of the papers, maps, etc., relating to the contract between the city and the Plainfield Union Water Company and otherwise, were turned over to the committee for their help and guidance. Some of these papers cover the history of the water supply from its installation to the present time. Inspector Commissioner Gavett also turned over a number of valuable papers.

Mr. Saunders wanted to know if it is to be the purpose of the committee to find an independent source of water supply and ascertain the cost. Mr. Fisk said that was exactly his idea. That the investigation is to be continued just as though Plainfield had no water supply and was endeavoring to secure one. This, of course, will be one line of action.

"(C) To consider the question of acquiring the wells, stand pipe, machinery, real estate, buildings, in fact the entire plant and all property, including pipe lines, etc., now owned by the Plainfield-Union Water Company, also all rights and franchises now owned by the Plainfield-Union Water Company and within the limits of said City of Plainfield, either by purchase or condemnation.

"(D) Also to examine into the rights of the Plainfield-Union Water Company under its charter or other legislative acts, to take water from within the limits of the City of Plainfield and to sell the same to any party or parties, except to townships or municipalities immediately adjoining the City of Plainfield, either directly or indirectly through another company formed for that purpose.

"(E) To take up, with the authorities of North Plainfield the question of securing for the borough of North Plainfield like advantage and action jointly with them on this question.

"Committees—The chairman shall appoint three sub-committees as follows: Engineering Committee, Legal Committee, Executive and Finance Committee.

"Each of these sub-committees is to be composed of five members.

"Engineering Committee—The Engineering committee shall take full charge of all engineering problems which may come before the water investigation committee.

"They shall have power to engage such competent engineers as in their judgment may be necessary.

"Legal Committee—The legal committee shall have full charge of all legal matters which may come before the water investigation committee.

"They shall investigate all laws and statutes of the State of New Jersey relating to this subject, particularly such as should be had for the examination into all questions that may arise between the City of Plainfield and the Plainfield Water Supply Company.

"They shall have full power to obtain such legal advice as in their judgment may be necessary.

"Craig A. Marsh, Corporation Counsel of the City of Plainfield, shall be designated as counsel for the water investigation committee and invited to be present at all meetings.

"Executive and Finance Committee—This committee shall have general direction of the investigation and shall outline and decide all questions of general policy and shall have power to act on all questions during the intervals between the meetings of the general committee.

"They shall have charge of all financial questions and pass on all the bills incurred by the committee."

WITHDREW CHARGE AGAINST SERVANT.

S. W. Rushmore's Case Ends Abruptly; Other Side May Now Take Action.

The case of S. W. Rushmore against Mary Connors, the servant he had arrested two weeks ago on a charge of disorderly conduct after a row at the house, came to an abrupt ending Saturday in the city court. Mr. Rushmore withdrew the complaint.

W. S. Angleman, counsel for the defendant, was in court with a number of witnesses, prepared to combat the charge with all vigor. The complaint was withdrawn at last night, but under legal procedure, Mr. Angleman and his client were compelled to appear in court this morning to hear the formal words of dismissal from the bench.

Mr. Angleman said no settlement of the case had been effected. His client asserts things against Mr. Rushmore, and there is said to be a likelihood of action against the complainant. Mr. Angleman would say nothing as to that, except that the *complaint was withdrawn mainly be*cause Mrs. Rushmore, whose testimony is understood to be necessary to a prosecution of the charge, was averse to appearing in court.

Mrs. William Ross Settles Claim.

Mrs. William Ross, of East Second street, has effected a settlement with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the death of her husband, for many years a member of the local fire department. Mr. Ross was fatally injured last October, while en route to New Brunswick on a trolley car to attend a firemen's parade. He either fell or was throw off the car and died a few hours later from the injuries received. Upon the advice of her lawyer, Mrs. Ross finally agreed to accept the company's proposition. The terms of settlement are not known.

Kenneth Shupp Is Engineering.

Kenneth Shupp, who was a member of the dry goods firm of Hill & Shupp, the predecessors of A. E. Force & Co., is visiting friends in this city. Mr. Shupp is now in engineering. He is doing mining work at Charleston, W. Va., where he intends to reside permanently.

Weekly Entertainments.

Entertainments are to be held every Thursday night until Lent, by the St. Stephen's Junior Club, at St. Stephen's church parish house. On January 31, the attraction will be the Plainfield brass band.

William McDowell Coriell, of West Fifth street, is kept at home by an aggravated attack of the grip.

Miss Adelaide Baxter, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, has been visiting friends in town.

WANTS LAWS PUBLISHED

James E. Martine Would Restore Old Order of Things.

NOBODY SEES LAWS NOW

Instead of Appearing in the Papers, As In Former Years, They Are Buried In Obscure Pamphlets.

James E. Martine is working with the other members of the People's Lobby all over the State, for the resumption of publication of all laws passed by the Legislature in the newspapers. The publication of the laws in the papers ceased about four years ago. Mr. Martine says the cessation was not right, not just to the people, and he intends to work hard to have the publication resumed.

Nowadays, the laws passed are printed in pamphlet form, as the legislative machine turns them out, and are supposedly distributed broadcast. They are not distributed, because the man who wants them must write for them, an nobody bothers to do it.

"The people are all supposed to know the laws," said Mr. Martine this morning; "it is a legal fiction. They don't know them; and everything possible should be done to keep them posted. The best means is to publish the laws, as they are enacted, in the newspapers of the State, so that they may go into every home. I m not a worker for newspapers, but for the people. Such publication would be for the education and enlightenment of the people."

A bill will almost certainly be introduced at this session of the Legislature, providing for the newspaper publication of acts. Mr. Martine will speak in its favor before the committee to which it is referred, if the measure is presented. *Samuel Mer*win, R. Henry Depew and Walter Linbarger are interested in the movement.

EXPLORER R. E. PEARY COMING TO PLAINFIELD

WILL LECTURE ON HIS "FARTHEST NORTH" TRIP AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Lieutenant Robert E. Peary, the daring and intrepid explorer, is coming to Plainfield on Saturday evening, January 26, to tell the story of his adventures and hardships, he will appear at the First M. E. church under the auspices of the Young Men's Brotherhood and lecture on his recent dash through the Arctic region on what is now called the "Farthest North" trip. It will be the first time he has been in New Jersey since returning home six weeks ago and will be the fifth time he has related his experiences before an audience.

The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views from the explorer's own photographs, taken where human foot and human eye never reached before. The voyage was made in the "Roosevelt," a ship constructed especially for buffeting ice floes and the fact that it came back with the hull crushed in a dozen places shows the peril to which Peary and his crew were subjected. The vessel is now undergoing repairs and when first put on the stocks expert declared it was a mystery how she staid afloat.

On two previous occasions, the lieutenant attempted to reach the pole but the last trip took him farther north than anyone had ever gotten before. He was out fourteen months and only gave up when he became convinced that his supplies and general conditions prohibited pushing on.

LECTURED ON MUSIC.

C. B. Chilton Addresses High School Pupils.

A lecture and recital on "The Appreciation of Music" was delivered to the pupils of the Plainfield High School Friday by Carroll Brent Chilton, of New York, editor-in-chief of the "New Musical Education."

He referred to music as the most interesting and yet the least understood. He quoted Ruskin as saying that it is the fourth essential to human life.

"It is a language of feeling," continued Mr. Chilton, "a descriptive of the emotions, and the most indefinite form of expression. The vague and inttangible charm created by music," said he, "is a bodily pleasure and a sensuous element. In this, it is untrue that familiarity breeds contempt, for 'repetition is the mother of study.'"

Mr. Chilton said that conditions today demand that people have an intelligent familiarity of music, and know something of the best compositions. He illustrated his lecture with selections.

Dr. A. Wanzer Love, of East Ninth street, has gone to Providence, R. I., where he is practicing medicine.

Frank Boos, of Grant avenue, who recently underwent an operation at the hospital, will return to work next week.

RACE SUICIDE FIGURES IREMONGER IS CHAIRMAN

They Turn Up in Local Birth Statistics For the Past Decade.

NET DROP OF 3 PER CENT.

And the Marriage Rate Goes Up—Death Rate Remains Pretty Much the Same.

Race suicide alarmists may find something on which to hang a sermon in the figures given out by the Board of Health on the yearly number of births in the city since 1897. The birthrate in 1906 was over three per cent. less than in 1897. There was one year in the decade when the drop was nearly seven per cent. It has never, in the nine years since then, gone appreciably closer to the rate of 1897 than up to within three per cent.

The birthrate in 1897 was 24.49; in 1906 it was 21.15. The lowest rate was in 1899, when 17.90 was the figure. Last year the births numbered 404; the poulation was 19,100. In 1897 the number of births was 351, the population being 14,330. In the lowest year, 1899, the figures were 269 births, population 15,020. The number of births, population and rate of the other years of the decade were as follows: In 1898, 277, 14,670, 18.88; in 1900, 330, 15,369, 12.47; in 1901, 316, 15,990, 19.76; in 1902, 324, 16,606, 18.74; in 1903, 347, 17,230, 21.94. In 1904, 338, 17,850, 18.94; in 1905, 357, 18,478, 19.32.

The marriage rate of 1906 was 8.12, that of 1897 was 7.75. The number of marriages last year was 155. The highest marriage rate of the decade was 8.19, in 1899, the year of the lowest birthrate. The effect of the increase in marriages was reflected in the birthrate of the next year, 21.47.

The death rate varied little in the ten years. The highest rate was 15.84, in 1901. Last year's rate was 15.60.

MAJORITY OF CHILDREN IN N. Y. SCHOOLS ABNORMAL.

So Says Dr. Groszmann In Lecture Before Mothers' Association.

Dr. Maximilian P. E. Grossmann, of the Groszmann School, addressed the Plainfield mothers' meeting in the local High School lecture room Friday on the subject of "Atypical Children." He said the people who think that the pupils in his school are insane, criminal and imbecile, are far wide of the mark. *They are atypi*cal, said he; that is, children who differ from the average child. He declared there are far more atypical children than people realize, and in the schools of New York two-thirds of the children vary in some respects from the normal, healthy child.

The atypical child is not always backwards, according to Dr. Groszmann; it is usually a matter of self congratulation to parents when their children are remarkably bright and enter the high school at about five. This, he said, is a mistaken idea, for the child is abnormal or will break down physically, and if any have such children they should not be allowed to go on without an examination.

After the meeting Dr. Groszmann met the members informally to answer questions.

COURT PLAINFIELD INSTALLS.

Foresters' New Officers Inducted; Social Time Follows Installation.

Court Plainfield, No. 1141, I. O. F., installed the following officers Friday night:

Court organizer, Edward J. McCue; court's physicians, Henry H. Lowrie, M. D., Carl A. Grauwein, M. D., A. K. Brennan, M. D.; court deputy, Charles J. McCarthy; junior past chief ranger, Louis Feiring; chief ranger, James T. McCarty; vice ranger, Henry Hansen; recording secretary, James Patterson; financial secretary, Olaf Nelsen; treasurer, Edward McCue; orator, J. E. Elliot; senior woodward, Henry Keane; junior woodword, Alfred Gudgeon; senior beadle, K. Rottberg; junior beadle, T. Fitzgerold; trustees, Louis Feiring, Dr. H. H. Lowrie; finance committee, J. E. Elliot, Henry Hansen.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Court Deputy High Chief Ranger Charles J. McCarthy, assisted by Past Chief Ranger James M. Smith as high marshal. A pleasant time was spend in the good and welfare, with addresses by the new officers and songs by several of the brethren.

Two candidates were initiated and two applications were filed. The annual entertainment and dance of the ccurt will be held at Saengerbund Hall, January 18.

Bids For City Furniture.

In furnishing Mayor Fisk's new offices in the Woolston & Buckle building on North avenue, the Common Council will receive bids, according to the request of Mr. Fisk. He suggested that in all matters of purchase by the city at least three bids be secured.

Mrs. Arthur Stevens, of Truell Court, who underwent an operation at the hospital a few days ago, is seriously ill.

Second Ward Man Succeeds Mr. Fisk as Head Republican City Committee.

McCARDELL IS VICE

Division of Offices Between Organization and "New Idea"—Townsend Picked for Secretary.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk tendered his resignation as chairman of the Republican City Committee, at the meeting held for reorganization at the Casino, Thursday, and E. E. Iremonger, of the Second ward, was chosen in his place. Every member of the committee expressed his regret over Mr. Fisks' action, but owing to his new duties as Mayor and other pressure of business felt compelled to give up the place. The secretary was instructed to commuicate to Mr. Fisk the expressions of regret on the part of the committee. The Mayor promised the committee his hearty support in its work during the year.

In further completing the organization, Andrew McCardell, of the Fourth Ward, was made vice chairman and William R. Townsend was chosen secretary and treasurer pro tem. This action was taken because at the time Mr. Townsend was not a member of the committee. He will probably be elected to membership at the next meeting, Tuesday night, February 5, when he will be continued in the office he now holds.

The vacancy in the First ward caused by the death of Dr. O. L. Jenkins, was filled by the election of Councilman R. I. Tolles. It was decided to allow the vacancy in the Third ward, caused by the resignation of Mayor Fisk, to go over until the next meeting, when some one will be chosen for the place.

As this was the first meeting for the year of the committee there was no new business to come before it and the session was naturally a short one. There was a full attendance of the committee and everyone seemed anxious to take up the work for the year in earnest and conduct it along the same line as last year. Mr. Iremonger, who has been actively identified with the "New Idea" movement, thanked the committee for the honor in electing him chairman and asked for the united support of the members in carrying on the work successfully.

MRS. N. P. ROGERS NAMED FOR PRESIDENT

WOMEN'S METROPOLITAN GOLF ASSOCIATION WANT HER FOR HEAD.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of East Front street, an active member of the Baltusrol Golf Club and the Plainfield Country Club, where she has won many honors in golf, has been nominated for the presidency of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association for the ensuing year, to take the place of Mrs. E. F. Sanford, who has declined to serve another year. Mrs. Sanford has held *the office two years. She is also pres*ident of the Women's Eastern Golf Association. There is apparently no opposition to Mrs. Rogers and her election seems assured.

Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, of the Nassau Country Club, who has served as secretary of the Metropolitan body for several years, is the nominee for vice president, while Mrs. S. F. Lefferts, of the Englewood Golf Club, has been named for treasurer, to succeed Miss Georgianna Bishop. Miss Elsa Hurlbut, of the Morris County Golf Club, has been nominated for secretary, and Mrs. Sanford has consented to remain as the fifth member of the executive committee. As nomination is equivalent to election, this ticket will in all probability be elected at the annual meeting of the organization to be held early in February.

TO AID PACIFIC CITIES.

Somerville Rector Accepts Invitation of Bishop Nichols.

Bishop Nichols, of California, who has been East since the earthquake, raising money to relieve the stricken cities along the Pacific, has invited four ministers to go to California to assist in a mission of revival and help. One of these is the Rev. Chas. Fiske, rector of St. John's church, in Somerville, who has been granted a leave of absence and will start January 21, returning by Ash Wednesday.

Miss Anderson Marries.

Miss Lillian May Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Anderson, of Elizabeth, and well known here among Scotch residents, and Irving Clark, of St. Louis, Mo., were married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents, 518 Jersey street, Elizabeth, by the Rev. F. C. Craft. The couple will reside at Roselle Park, after a southern tour. The groom is employed as an electrician in the U. S. Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Mead Shepard have returned to their home at Madison, Wis., after spending several weeks with relatives here.

HONORS FOR COMPANY K

Regimental Trophy and Collins Medal to be Presented at Annual Review.

LIST OE HONOR MEN

Bond Gets Special Medal As Best Marksman In Regiment—100 Per Cent. Duty Medals For Many.

Company commandants of the Second Regiment of the National Guard of New Jersey have submitted to Regiment Headquarters their lists of members of the respective companies who are this year entitled to long and faithful service medals.

The prizes will be presented sometime within the coming two months at a regimental review which will be given in the Armory at Trenton. It is the desire of the guardsmen that Governor Stokes make the presentations as he did last year and he will likely be invited to do this. In the evept of his acceptance the review of the Second Regiment on the occasion of the presentations in the Armory will be in honor of the Governor. Information as to the date of the review will be announced later through orders from Regimental Headquarters.

The most important trophy for markmanship in the Second Regiment will be the Collins Medal, given by Colonel Dennis F. Collins, commander of the Second Regiment. The trophy for the prize for the year 1906 is Corporal William E. Bond, of Company K.

The medal of the National Rifle Association for marksmanship for 1906 will be presented to Second Lieutenant Charles F. Sylvester, of Company L.

The regimental trophy for markmanship for 1906 will be presented to Company L. Captain Elston H. Bergen, commanding.

The regimental trophy for the highest per cent. of duty for 1906 will be presented to Company K, Captain William B. Martin commanding.

One of the most popular awards to be made will be the twenty years service medal to Regimental Adjutant John M. Rogers, of Trenton.

One hundred per cent. duty medals will be awarded at the review to the following members of Company K—Quartermaster Sergeant Albert I. Littell, Sergeants Oliver R. Pearson, Jr., 2 years; Albert T. Tranchand, 2 years; George L. Apgar, 2 years; Charles A. Peterson, Corporals Leroy Apgar, 2 years; James L. Hales, 2 years; Robert E. Goldsack, *James B. Conkling, Clarence H. Bil*yeu, Lendrum Jennings, 2 years; Privates Eugene F. Gorman, Oliver Ulmer, Jesse A. Dayton, 2 years; Philip E. Winter, Edward Slingland, Percy W. Vail, 2 years; Charles Koffed, 2 years.

SCHEDULE OF S. S. A. L. MEET IS ANNOUNCED.

Fourteen Events, Divided Among Four Classes—Rules of the Competition.

The scheulde of events and the rules governing the Sunday-school Athletic League meet on February 1 were announced last night by Secretary G. L. Listman.

The events are fourteen in number, be divided among four classes. They are as follows:

Boys, 95 pounds—3-legged race, 15 yards dash, potato race; Juniors, 110 pounds—Standing broad jump, sack race, potato race, 6 boys (relay); Intermediate, 120 pounds—Potato race, 6 boys (relay), 2 standing broad jumps, one for seniors, standing broad jump; Seniors, 121 pounds or over—Running high jump, standing broad jump, 12-lb shot, potato race, ¼ mile.

All competitors in Boys', Juniors and Intermediate will be weighed in running costumes before competing. Those who weigh more than is specified for group to which they belong will be debarred from competition. The groups are designed as follows: Boys must not exceed 95 lbs.; juniors must not exceed 110 lbs.; intermediate must not exceed 120 lbs.; seniors are those who weigh 121 lbs. or more.

The prizes are os follows: Silver and bronze medals for each event in Intermediate and Senior. Bronze medal for each event in Boys and Juniors. Individual prizes for members of (relay) teams. Silver cup, presented by C. W. McCutchen, president of S. S. A. L. to Sunday-school winning greates number of points. Sunday-school must win cup twice in succession to become permanent owner.

The rules of S. S. A. L. are to govern. The right to reject any entry is reserved. Spiked shoes will not be allowed.

Walter Clark, of West Front street, is in the west on an extensive business trip.

H. H. MacMurray, of West Seventh street, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

Abram VanCleef, of Elm street, has returned from a visit with friends in Hunterdon county.

Mrs. Rachel Mowery, of Glen Gardner, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

Edwin Dufford, of Middle Valley, has been visiting his brother, Elijah Dufford, of West Front street.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

New Fiction Just Added to the Public Library.

Andrews, Mrs. Mary Raymond Shipman.—Perfect tribute.

"A much talked of story, containing account of Lincoln's Gettysburg address."

Beach, Rex.—The Spoilers.

Burnett, Mrs. Frances Hodgson.—Dawn of a tomorrow.

"Through the companionship of a child of the slums, an Englishman of wealth and title who had planned to take his own life is brought to saner decision and an interest in his fellows."

"The little story is tenderly told, leaving the reader with a softened heart and broader sympathies." N. Y. Times.

Capes, Bernard.—Hemlock; a tale of Italy.

"In its essence as a work of art, the tale is purely imaginative, for its central story, and a creature of the author's own fancy, projected upon the background of renaissance splendor and corruption. . . . Mr. Capes has produced in this moving and opulent work something that comes near to being a masterpiece. He has entered into the almost spirit of the age." Dial, Sept. 1, 1906.

Chambers, Robert.—Fighting chance.

"While the novel may aim at heart no more pessimistic, really speaking, than a tract, it is certainly The House of mirth. It lacks the delicate perception and fine literary shading of that searching analysis." Outlook.

Cholmondeley, Mary.—Prisoners.

"In more ways than one, we are continually reminded of George Eliot; but that there is the faintest trace of imitation, but that Miss Cholmondeley has an equal insight into character and motive, a like power of analysis, a similar gift of pregnant sentences of humor and wisdom." M. Gordon Tryor Rhea in N. Y. Times.

Cutting, Mrs. Mary Stuart.—More stories of married life.

"Wholesome stories, concerning the problems and calamities of every day domesticity and the way in which love instructs here to cope with them."

Doyle, Sir Conan.—Sir Nigel.

"As a narrative pure and simple, Sir Nigel deserves unstinted praise." Bookman.

"As a picture of the times, the book is successful, though the story does not seem as gripping as 'The White company' of which it is a sequel." N. Y. Times.

Frenssen, Gustav.—Hadland.

"The scenes and characters are drawn from among the humble agricultural folk who live on the borders of the German ocean. Their life, love, and sufferings are wonderfully shown and described. . . . Religious thought has a large place in the work, and the conception of divinity working out its hold, startling, original yet inspiring in the highest degree. This phase of the book does not interrupt the flow of the narrative, but justifies it, and is its triumph and crown. The story is full of masterly descriptive bits full of pathos, pretty love, and sorrow, love and passion; its character painting is true to life; the personages, although most of them are peasants and sailors, live and excite the liveliest interest."

Glasing, George.—House of cobwebs.

"The fifteen stories themselves, slight as is their texture, are admirable specimens of Gissing's own genre. They manifest the delicate tenderness of his feeling not for, but with those to whom life has not been kind; his sense, constant and sore, of the wiacing of refined nature under the yoke of poverty; his knowledge, born of experience." N. Y. Times.

Greene, Sarah P. McLean.—Power lot.

"There is comedy of the choicest kind in it. The characters are vividly sketched .... takes hold of the heart and wins sympathy." Philadelphia Record.

"A pleasing return to the humor and freedom of Cape Cod folks." One of the best things she has written, full of the freshness and buoyancy of youth." Chicago Record-Herald.

Harker, Mrs. Lizzie Allen.—Conveying.—Harper and Platt.

"A charming picture of English home life with a group of lively, natural, well-bred children as the foreground."

Howells, William Dean, and Alden, Henry Mills, eds.—Their husbands' wives. (Harper and Platt.

"Six short stories of married life, humorous, emotional, psychological, and entertaining. Appeared in Harper's magazine."

Kipling, Rudyard.—Puck of Peck's Hill.

"Each of the stories is full of life and movement. Taken together however, they have a unity and interest which are marred by separate publication in the magazines. They convey an unconsciously vivid sense of that past which to most of us is dazier than a dream." Nation.

London, Jack.—White fang.

"It is a big story—big in idea and treatment—Superficially it is perhaps the most thrilling and dramatic story of adventure that Mr. London has yet written; in its deeper intention, its application of a rational psychology to the animal mind embodies a daring symbolism."

Richardson, Samuel.—Sir Charles Grandison, selected and arranged with introduction and notes by George Saintsbury.

"This generation should thank Prof. Saintsbury for providing this excellent way of testing the genius of Richardson." Times, London.

Warner, Anne.—Susan Clegg and her neighbors' affairs.

"The inimitable Miss Clegg and her neighbors, including Mrs. Larthrop, are even more irresistible in these new stories than in the first series, which gave the author a reputation of the highest rank among American writers and humorists." Critic.

Waterloo, Stanley.—Story of Ab, a tale of the time of the caveman.

The French People—Books in the Public Library.

The Present Situation.

Church and French politics.—Review of reviews, Jan., 1906.

Church and state in France.—Outlook, Feb. 10; March 10, 30; Aug. 25, 1906.

Church in France.—Quarterly review, July, 1906.

French Protestant church after the separation.—Review of reviews, Oct., 1906.

Holy See and France.—19th century, March, 1906.

Papal attack on France.—19th century, April, 1906.

Religious events in France.—Contemporary review, April and July, 1906.

Separation of church and state in France.—Outlook, Dec. 16, 1905, and Nation, Feb. 8, 1906.

Miscellaneous.

Abbot, Mary.—Woman's Paris; a handbook of every-day living in the French capital.

Blouet, M. P., (Max O'Rell).—Jacques Bonhomme; John Bull on the continent.

Contents: French at school, French at war, French in love, French at work, French at play and at table, French in England, The French and their critics, etc.

Brownell, W. C.—French traits; an essay in comparative criticism.

Child, Theodore of Paris.

Contents: Society in Paris, Life of Paris, Le grand couturier, The Boulevard, The Duellists, The Institute of France, etc.

Craik, Mrs. D. M. M.—Fair France: impressions of a traveller.

Contents: At Paris, In the provinces, A Paris Sunday, Old French town, etc.

De Forest, K.—Paris as it is: an intimate account of its people, its home life, and its places of interest.

Dodd, Anna Bowman.—In and out of three Normandy inns.

Contents: Villerville, Along an old post-road, Dives, Two banquets at Dives, Little journey along the coast, Old Honfleur, etc.

Edwards, M. B.—France of today: a survey comparative and retrospective.

Hamerton, Philip Gilbert.—Round my house: notes of rural life in France in peace and war.

Lynch, Hannah.—French life in town and country.

Contents: French rural and provincial life, Social diversions and distinctions, Secular and religious education, Home life in France, The "Grandes écoles" and the colleges; The "Little people" of Paris, etc.

Marshall, Frederick. — French home life.

Contents: Servants, Children, furniture, Food, Language, Dress, etc.

Johnson, Clifton.—Along French byways.

Contents: Life in the country, Child life, French thrift, An Alpine valley, Hunt for a battle-field, Along the West coast.

Theuriet, Andre.—Rustic life in France.

John Bull's neighbor in her true light: being an answer to some recent French criticisms.

Historical.

Adams, George Burton.—Growth of the French nation.

Lacombe, Paul.—Growth of a people: a short study in French history.

Latimer, Elizabeth Wormeley.—France in the Nineteenth century, 1830-1890.

Sloane, W. M.—French revolution and religious reform; an account or ecclesiastical legislation and its influence on affairs in France from 1879 to 1804.

Taine, H. A.—Ancient regime.

Contents: Structure of society, Nobility and characters, Spirit and the doctrine, Propagation of the doctrine, The People.

Tocqueville, A. de.—Old regime and the Revolution.

French Churches.

Beale, S. S.—Churches of Paris, from Clovis to Charles X.

Freeman, E. A.—Sketches of travel in Normandy and Maine, with descriptions of the churches and cathedrals.

Hamerton, Philip Gilbert.—Paris in old and present time, with chapters on Notre Dame and the Sainte Chapelle, and St. Eustache, St. Etienne du Mont and St. Sulpice.

Larned, W. C.—Churches and castles of mediaeval France.

Wilson, E.—Cathedrals of France: popular studies of the most interesting French cathedrals.

For a savory potato dish slice uncooked potatoes thin, sprinkle them lightly with minced onion, cover with milk, season with salt, and pepper and bake until very tender, adding milk from time to time as it boils away.

FACTS IN A FEW LINES.

A ton of steel makes about 1,400,000 steel pens.

In India the wages paid for coal mining are 22 cents a ton. Women as well as men are employed.

A herring lives the shortest time of any fish when taken out of water; carp and eels the greatest length of time.

Men serve the purpose of wagons in China. They are able to carry two heavy loads hung on the ends of poles.

It is said that wolves slay about 500,000 domestic animals, valued at $6,000,000, every year in the Russian empire.

A man has been doing a good business in London "peddling" bright green American tree frogs" at 65 cents each. When the color wears off they are found to be ordinary English frogs.

The first typewriter to be used in writing Welsh and Hebrew in New England for educational purposes has been made in Worcester for the South Lancaster Academy. There are ninety-two characters, and the carriage and paper run from left to right.

German papers are commenting on the sagacity of a swallow which was being pursued by a hawk and flew through the window of a law court. Flying about the court, it at last rested on the head of a figure of Justice, and there it remained until the hawk went away.

Railroad building in the Namti valley, China, is more destructive to human life than ever was the case with work on the Isthmian canal. Consul Fowler at Nanchang reports that the death rate in that valley in China is 70 per cent. of the total number of men employed.

Falling asleep during a circus performance at Liban, a Russian naval officer was suddenly awakened by the sudden firing of couple of shots, and, thinking an attempt had been made on his life by mutineers, he drew his revolver and fired twice at random, but no one was hurt.

French military observers of the recent German army maneuvers say the old rigid, mechanical, rigorously passive discipline once characteristic of the German army is disappearing, though mention of acts of insubordination is carefully repressed or if very flagrant much minimized. Consul Mahin reports that a surgeon resort at Ramalah, which is situated several hundred feet higher and commands a view of the Mediterranean. A new hotel has been built there for Europeans by an Arab. Most of the work of construction was done by women, whose wages are 11 cents a day.

The navimobile, a new type of boat that has been smashing records on the Mississippi river recently, made the trip from Alton to St. Louis one afternoon in forty-five minutes. The distance is twenty-three miles. The boat is equipped with a forty horsepower engine and has a thirty foot hull.

Between St. Petersburg and Tsarskoe-Selo there is a special line, with a private station at each end, for the exclusive use of the imperial family. Every yard of it is constantly guarded, and the Czar himself often drives the locomotive—of course under the superintendence of the driver proper.

The dahlia, that fine and large flower which adorns our autumn gardens, is reconquering the place which has been usurped for some years by its Japanese sister, the chrysanthemum. The gardener have given to it what it formerly lacked—variety—and its shades now rival those of the most popular flower.

The late Robert R. Hitt had a knowledge of stenography which was of great value to him in debate. He has been known to rise with his hands full of shorthand notes of a speech just delivered to which he was about to reply, and woe to the man who accused Mr. Hitt of misquoting him. He was the patron saint of the stenographers of the house.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Purchasing Supplies In Bulk or In Small Quantities.

The question of whether it is better to buy family supplies in bulk or more according to the "hand to mouth" plan is not to be answered without reservation. Undoubtedly when the family is large and the interests of the household will give attention to the manner in which the supplies are used, considerable may be saved by buying in bulk. But even this means the supposition that there is room enough for the storage. It would be a poor attempt at economy to increase rent merely to gain room for supplies on which the saving must be an accumulation of small amounts.

Unless the mistress of a home has good control over herself and servants in old and present time, with chapters on Notre Dame and the Sainte Chapelle, and St. Eustache, St. Etienne du Mont and St. Sulpice.

Larned, W. C.—Churches and castles of mediaeval France.

Wilson, E.—Cathedrals of France: popular studies of the most interesting French cathedrals.

For a savory potato dish slice uncooked potatoes thin, sprinkle them lightly with minced onion, cover with milk, season with salt, and pepper and bake until very tender, adding milk from time to time as it boils away.

TO LOOK TALL.

Keep Your Figure Slim and Follow These Suggestions.

First—To look tall make your waist as long as you can.

Second—To look tall don't lace tightly, but make your line sloping rather than sharp. Don't accentuate your hips.

Third—To look taller than you really are make your skirts long, the ankles is better.

Fourth—To look tall dress your hair high. Trim it with flowers and make a coiffure. This really lifts you a couple of inches and makes you seem taller than you actually are. Of course don't exaggerate, but lift your coiffure all you can, taking care than you keep it fluffy and youthful.

Fifth—To make yourself look tall be sure to build your shoulders broad, but do not make them too wide. The extreme Gibson shoulder is bad for any woman. Let the shoulders be only moderately built out.

Sixth—to look tall let your neck be bare, which makes the throat seem longer and so lifts your height quite a little.. Don't "chuck" up the throat and there it certainly do so at the expense of your height. And don't forget that you must keep your figure slim if you are going to look really tall.

BUYING A CLOCK.

Select One That Will Harmonize With Its Surroundings.

When you've a clock to buy choose it with an eye to its playing a part, no matter how small that part may be, in the furnishing of the particular room it is for to adorn.

Crystal clocks in one form or another come to suit almost every sort of room—stunning circular ones, with their tiny flors paved with colored enamels in mesaic patterns, for parlor or drawing room; plain as a pipestem kinds, with a world of dignity in their very plainness, for library or music room, and dainty little forms for bedroom or boudoir.

For, sitting rooms the colonial clocks—mahogany cases, left almost plain to show off the beauty of the wood—are particularly good.

Attractive bronze clocks and pretty ones of china, usually Dresden, and a thousand and one others more elaborate in style, indulging profusely, some of them, even in ornament, may seem to suit the particular corner. Only be sure that the one you pick does suit it so well that it is hard to imagine any other clock in its place.

A well chosen clock is as great a relief and pleasure to the eye as a vase or a bit of bric-a-brac.—Exchange.

BEAUTY SPOTS.

The hair needs to be washed only once in two or three weeks. Too frequent bathing exhausts the nutrient elements of the glands.

Don't polish the nails too highly. They should have only a natural gloss. Don't cut the nails in points, but carefully arch.

By resting for half an hour in a dark room and placing over the eyes a bit of old linen which has been saturated with rose water the eyes will be rested and will brighten considerably.

Thin arms should be washed twice a day with a fine lather of soap, rinsed well, dried thoroughly and then rubbed vigorously. This treatment will bring the pores into action and induce a healthy condition of the skin.

Keep a fresh lemon with a hole cut in one end on the washstand. Every time your fingers are stained turn them around in the lemon and the stains will disappear and the skin around the nails will be softened and pressed back.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Leftovers of cold chicken make delicious fritters when mixed with an ordinary fritter batter and fried in deep fat.

Melted butter used for basting is used in the proportion of one tablespoonful of butter melted to one cupful of hot water. Keep hot while using.

Celery salt is nice with fried apples, and so is a bit of onion. Use this dish as a vegetable, relish or appetizer with cold meat and bread and butter. It can be quickly made.

An excellent way to bake codfish, which breaks into flakes so readily, is to cut a piece of white paper, lay the steak on it, butter it, sprinkle it with lemon and onion juices, salt and papper, wrap securely and bake on the rack of the fish pan for half an hour.

Bushed Statue of Africa.

New York, Jan. 11.—What is either a manifestation of race hatred or a piece of vandalism was discovered yesterday in front of the Custom House, where the white marble statue of a woman representing "Africa" had been splashed with red paint. This statue is one of a group of four placed at the main entrance of the Custom House. The other statues, representing America, Europe and Asia, were not molested. The figure symbolical of the "Dark Continent" is that of a woman lightly clad, and her features, strongly suggesting the negro, represent the woman as sleeping. Paint had been smeared over the leg, and there are spots of red on the body and breast which will be very difficult to remove.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 20: "Our Heavenly Father's Consideration."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Luke 11, 9-13; II Chron. xvi, 9; Ps. xxxiv, 15; John xvi, 23, 24; Phil. iv, 19.

"The eyes of Jehovah run to and fro throughout the whole earth to show Himself strong in behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward Him."

Our needs in many directions are constant. Our ability to supply those needs seems at times unequal to the task. Here is an ever present cause of uneasiness. The problem of getting a living for ourselves and those dependent upon us is a most pressing one. It does not grow easier in these days of increasing prosperity and luxury, but often seems heavier than in the days of simple living. The struggle for existence is the ever present burden carried by the great mass of the people. Some few are lifted above it for a time apparently. But the frequent loss of property and the plunge from wealth into poverty are not uncommon among us.

Can any remedy be found for this uncertainty and anxiety? This is a live question with all classes of the people.

The search for the cure has been eager and persistent. Have you found the rest and peace desired so that you live in confidence?

No variety of investments, no form of insurance, no organization for mutual help, no system of charity, no governmental aid, nor all combined have been found sufficient to settle the difficulty and give assurance of health, happiness and adequate means of sustenance for life.

No wonder the people look at each other with hungry eyes and ask in troubled tones what shall we eat, what shall we drink, and wherewithal shall we be clothed?' We need all these things. Whence shall we get them?

But the anxiety of life is deeper than this bread and butter problem. If only there was some chance for justice between man and man we could rest easier. If things seemed to be decided with any regard for rights and equity we could endure more uncomplainingly the lack of some material things.

We crave peace of mind if we may not have comfort of body. But things do not seem to go as they ought. The wrong gets ahead of the right too often, and the bad sits where the good alone ought to sit, and we cannot prevent it.

This is just where the strength of the Christian religion is most manifest. There is no help to be had from men in this struggle. Here is Jacob's struggle. Help has been sought in every power of nature and mind, and every faculty and force conceivable has been elevated to the throne as a deity and homage paid to it, but all to no purpose. Every heathen religion is an attempt to solve the riddle of life, and all have proved to be failures.

But there is a God in heaven and on earth who cares for us and will in His own time and way find the path of life for us and lead us to certain satisfaction. He does rule on this earth and among men, however it may at times seem as if He had forgotten. That confidence comes to us as we look at Jesus Christ. He trusted and made the only success ever achieved by a man on earth. He tells us not to let our hearts be troubled. God knows we need all these things. Seek the truth of God's kingdom, and, getting that, we shall have all these other things added to us.

All other means of peace have been tried and have failed. This has been tried and works. We have a Father, all powerful, all wise, who cares for us. All these are in His hands. This is His world, and it must work His will. We can trust Him and work with Him. Meat and drink we shall have in some measure, but the most important gift of his presence, love and guidance we may also have if we seek them diligently. Peace is on earth now to men of good will, and God is receiving and to receive highest glory through us. This is through our faith and is the victory which overcomes the world.

Never In Debt.

God never leaves us in His debt. He takes care of us very often in entertainment royally and divinely. He sends His prophet to lodge with the widow and provides meal and oil for him and for her for many days.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Why All Will Be Well.

I hold not with the pessimist that all things are ill, nor with the optimist that all things are well. All things are not ill, and all things are not well, but all things shall be well, because this is God's world.—Browning.

Gems In Brief.

So long as you do not quarrel with sin you will never be a truly happy man.—Ryle.

It is to live twice when you can enjoy the recollection of your former life.—Martial.

Only what thou art in thyself determines thy value, not what thou hast.—Auerbach.

The problem of life is not to make life easy, but to make men stronger. —David Starr Jordan.

Between the great things we cannot do and the small things we will not do the danger is that we shall do nothing.—Adolphe Monod.

God gives us always strength enough and sense enough for what He wants us to do. If we either tire ourselves or puzzle ourselves, it is our own fault. —Ruskin.

A man can get nothing good out of his soul when it is the slave of the body and nothing good out of the body unless it be the servant of the soul.—Charles Reevers, D. D.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 20.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"More than conquerors." The victory over temptation. — Gen. iii, 4-6; Matt. xxvi, 41; Rom. viii, 37.

The saddest story to be found on the pages of human history is the one contained in the reference selected from the second chapter of Genesis—the fall of the first man and woman into sin as a result of temptation. Man had been created in the image of God. He was like God in that he was "perfect in knowledge, righteousness and holiness." Physically and spiritually he was a perfect being, like God, and as a result God walked with him and talked with him in the garden of Eden, his home. But, though perfect, man was not immune from temptation and sin. To develop his worth it was necessary for him to be subjected to temptation. In the wisdom of God this must have been wise and even good or else God would have willed it otherwise. And yet the greatest problem in human life is the coming of sin into the world. We cannot solve the problem. It is useless to try. We can only face the fact. Man was tempted and yielded. This is the sad fact. The tempter was shrewd and tactful. He fled to the weakest temptors do. The temptation was a strong one, skillfully presented, and man yielded and thus Brought death into the world and all our woe.

The downfall of Adam not only brought death and ruin to himself, but through him to all the human race, which is descended from him, so that today all men are liable to temptation and to sin. The soul is constantly in the battle ground of sin between truth and error, right and wrong, righteousness and holiness. No human being in all the world is exempt from this struggle. The adversary of the human soul still exists, going "about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." He is still most subtle and skillful in his attacks upon us. He knows our vulnerable points and constantly assails us where we are weak. To conquer sin, to win the victory over temptation, we must realize this fact and be constantly on our guard. As a means of obtaining the victory Christ Himself has given us the command, "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." We must watch, and we must pray and do both together, praying while we watch and watching while we pray. The same God who permitted sin to come into the world has provided us a way of escape from temptation and sin. We should trust Him, pray to Him and be constantly on our guard.

> Ten thousand foes arise,
> And hosts of sin are pressing hard
> To draw thee from the skies.

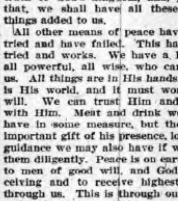
And in our praying and watching we are to depend not upon our own strength, but upon divine strength. Through Christ, the second Adam, we may be "more than conquerors," even over temptation and sin.

BIBLE READINGS.

Josh. i, 1-7; Ps. ii, 1-12; Isa. i, 16-20; John xvi, 32, 33; Rom. v, 18-21; xii, 21; I Cor. xv, 57, 58; Eph. vi, 10-18; Heb. xii, 1-2; II Pet. ii, 9; I John v, 1-5.

A Veritable Pioneer.

Karl Lehmann is doing notable service



KARL LEHMANN.

for Christian Endeavor. He has himself a veritable pioneer for Christian Endeavor.

A Cycle Corps.

The use of the bicycle in Christian Endeavor work is very common in Great Britain and Australia, but far less common in the United States. We notice in the last number of the Christian Endeavor News of South Australia the organization of still another cycle corps, in the Bengess Memorial church of Adelaide. These enthusiastic Endeavorers ride out into the country twelve or fifteen miles to visit some society that needs the good cheer and inspiration they bring with them. After their ride they are in just the right trim for a vigorous business meeting, and the ride back again over the hills is full of delight, with the added joy of duty done. This combination of physical and spiritual exercise should be adopted in the United States.—Christian Endeavor World.

The Difference.

Robert Ingersoll once said, "I would rather be a German peasant sitting by the river Rhine, the evening sun throwing an aureole of glory around my vine clad cottage, my children at my side, my book in my hand, at peace with my fellow men, than to be the greatest Christian that ever lived." I want to change that. I would rather be the humblest Endeavorer in Ohio, sitting in the evening twilight by the side of the plainest girl in the most lonely countryside in our great commonwealth, the evening sun throwing an aureole of God's love and praise about my head, my fellow Endeavorers by my side, my Bible on my knee, at peace with my God and my fellow men, than to be the greatest infidel that ever lived.—C. H. Hubbell.

PLENTY OF CHALK.

A Block That Was Once as Large as the Continent of Europe.

The small piece of chalk which is in constant use in the schoolroom, the lecture room, the billiard room and the workshop has a strange history, the unraveling of which through all its complexities is one of the most difficult problems with which the science of the present day is called upon to deal. This piece is in reality a chip of an immense block of chalk that once filled an area the size of the continent of Europe and of which even yet several gigantic fragments remain, each hundreds of square miles in extent. These patches are scattered over the region lying between Ireland on the west and China on the east and extend in the other direction from Sweden in the north to Portugal in the South.

In the British isles the chalk is found in greatest perfection and continuity in the east and southeast of England. This sheet of chalk more than a thousand feet in thickness underlies all that portion of England which is situated diagonally from the North sea at Flamborough head to the coast on the English channel in Dorsetshire. This enormous sheet of chalk is tilted up slightly on the west, and its depressed eastern portion that dip toward the waters of the North sea are usually buried from sight by means of overlying sands and clays. Where the edges of the chalk come upon the sea the cliff scenery is strikingly grand and beautiful. Any one who has once seen the magnificent rocks of Flamborough head may have the blanched stacks of the Needles or the dizzy mass of Shakespeare's cliff near Dover, can understand why "the white cliffs of Albion" has grown into a stock phrase.

The massive sheet of chalk appears again in France, in many parts of Europe as far east as the Crimea and even in central Asia beyond the sea of Aral. How far it stretched westward into what is now the Atlantic may never be known, but chalk cliffs at Antrim, in Ireland, and less conspicuous formations are found in Scotland, in Argyll and Aberdeen. There can be little question that all these now isolated patches were once connected in a continuous sheet, which must therefore have occupied a superficial area about 3,000 miles long by nearly 1,000 broad, an extent larger than that of the present continent of Europe.

HIS CHART OF CONDUCT.

One of the prominent merchants of New York carried these "rules of conduct" in his pocket book, accompanied by a memorandum to this effect, "read these rules at least once a week:"

Never be idle.

Make few promises.

Always speak the truth.

Never speak ill of anyone.

Keep good company or none.

Live up to your engagements.

Be just before you are generous.

Earn money before you spend it.

Drink no kind of intoxicating drinks.

Good character is above all things else.

Keep your own secrets if you have any.

Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it.

Never play at any kind of games of chance.

Keep your promises if you would be happy.

Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.

When you speak to a person, look him in the face.

Save when you are young, to spend when you are old.

Never run in debt unless you see a way to get out again.

Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.

Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.

Small and steady gains give competency with tranquility of mind.

Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by yourself.

If anyone speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

If your hands cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind.

FOR THE CROUP.

When a doctor cannot be secured promptly in an emergency it is necessary to have a good remedy always on hand when children are inclined to be croupy.

A mother who will provide herself with half a pint of raw linseed oil can fight the worst case of croup she may meet with. It is said to be an unfailing remedy, and for quick results it beats anything else which can be given to check a dread disease.

Half a teaspoonful is a dose unless the child is choking very badly. Then give a teaspoonful.

It acts two ways. In the first stage of croup, where there is not much mucus, it is loosened and carried off through the bowels.

In the second stage it causes vomiting; but, unlike ipecac, it leaves no soreness of the throat as an after difficulty.

It is rarely necessary to give more than one dose, when a child will get relief and go to sleep again.

This simple remedy is one that is within reach of every mother and one that can be kept in the house at all times, and while it is in the house the dread membranous croup need cause no terrors.—Boston Traveler.

PROBING CONSOLIDATION

Corporation Counsel Marsh Discusses Legal Aspects Before Commission.

CHAS. A. REED'S VIEWS

Borough Corporation Counsel Talks On Subject—He Will Appear at Next Week's Meeting.

Further enlightenment as to the measures necessary to secure a union of Plainfield and North Plainfield and as to the condition surrounding the question as it now stands, was obtained by the Joint Consolidation Commission Monday afternoon, when the body held its second meeting in Mayor Fisk's office. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh appeared before the committee to advise it as to the legal aspects of the proposed union.

Chairman Alexander Gilbert called a full committee to order. The session lasted for more than an hour and a half, and the discussion of the major points involved was careful and exhaustive. Mayor Fisk, of Plainfield, and Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, both took prominent parts in the council.

Mr. Marsh outlined the legal steps necessary to bring the two municipalities together, after explaining that the question stood under the law at the present juncture. Five years ago two measures were passed by the Legislature, one authorizing a vote on annexation, and the other referring the question of consolidation to the electorate. The annexation measure is dead, but the consolidation referendum is still in force. Action under it might be taken whenever the municipalities see fit to take advantage of it.

The corporation counsel, it is said, explained the state of affairs, so far as municipal government was concerned, that would be brought about by consolidation. County lines would still hold, and there would be no change in the boundaries of the school districts. That and the other flows in perfect unification of municipal interests attendant on consolidation along.

Measures by which those differences might be straightened out were explained. Annexation is, of course, the speediest and most effective method of corrections. Special legislation might be enacted, saving the county line and Somerset's pride, but constitutional difficulties threaded along that course.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, of the borough, is expected to appear before the committee at its third meeting next Monday afternoon. Mr. Reed spoke frankly on the question yesterday.

"In community of interests," the two Plainfields are identical," said Mr. Reed. "That which benefits one benefits the other, and, conversely, that which injures or retards the growth of one injures and retards the other. That we now have separate municipal governments is owing solely to the fact that Green brook, the county line which originally separated Somerset county from Essex county, and since incorporation in 1857 from Union county, which Plainfield proper is located, runs parallel with the main business thoroughfare of Plainfield and only about two hundred feet away. As Plainfield grew it necessarily spread over the county line, which now divides the community nearly through its centre.

"At the time is was created, about two hundred years ago, when there was but the farmer, the woodsman and the trapper occupied the land, Greenbrook furnished a natural and convenient boundary, easily located and requiring neither survey nor monument to mark its location. That the county line was not long since changed to serve the convenience and promote the welfare of the city, which has come to stand astride this parting stream has been owing largely to two reasons. First, because that is everybody's business is nobody's business. Second, because it is characteristic of human nature to take little thought of the morrow, but to look chiefly at the immediate present. Incidentally the tendency to travel in the old rut is a factor never to be left out of our calculations. There may be said, perhaps, to be a third reason, politics; but if the first two were overcome the third would be powerless to prevent the union.

"The question of the union of the two towns is one that should not be viewed from the standpoint of today, not even of the immediate future. The question is not, 'How will it affect me or my individual means? Will it put a few dollars in my pocket or will it take one a few?' It is not the question nor the point of view which should prevail.

"Broadly stated, the real question is, 'How will it affect the town in the end; what will be the result ten, twenty, fifty years hence? Will it be a good thing for my children and grandchildren and the generations who will live when I am gone and forgotten?' That is the real question as it appears to me.

"Farseeing and unselfish is the spirit in which the question of consolidation of the two Plainfields should be taken up and decided, for the correct solution of this problem is of the utmost importance. Perhaps no single question of such moment will ever again be submitted for solution. That it should be definitely settled once and for all is of the gravest moment, and it must be remembered that nothing is ever settled until it is settled right."

Such settlement is, I hope, about to be accomplished. The commission recently appointed to investigate and report upon this subject is composed of men of the highest standing, character and ability. No better selection could have been made, and beyond doubt their study of the subject will be thorough and exhaustive and their report one which will present the matter to the general public in such a way as to enable every voter to act intelligentaly and with confidence."

F. H. SMITH RE-ELECTED

Registerer of Deeds Succeeds Himself as County Committee Chairman.

HARMONY PREVAILS

County Clerk Continues As Vice Chairman—New Members Take Their Seats.

The Union County Republican Committee held its annual meeting in the Dix building at Elizabeth Monday, the principal item of business being the election of officers. Frank H. Smith, of this city, was again made chairman, James E. C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, vice-chairman; John Warner, of Cranford, secretary; Darwald S. Smith, of Elizabeth, treasurer, and James White, of Elizabeth, sergeant-at-arms. The elections were unanimous. The set committees were not appointed but will be within a short time.

The attendance was large and included two of the new members from Plainfield, Duncan Taylor and Arthur Murphy. Mayor Fisk and the other were not present. They were welcomed by the chairman and informed that they would be expected to give their views on any matter relating to the committee freely and frequently and that any assistance they would be beneficial to all. The newcomers responded with "harmony" speeches.

In the general discussion of affairs, the committee's work for the coming year was touched upon but no definite action was mapped out. The members were urged by Chairman Smith to attend all meetings and to use their best efforts in the interests of the party.

Beside Messrs. Duncan Taylor and Murphy, the Plainfielders who attended the meeting were Former Mayor James F. Buckle, Amos Andrews, Andrew McCardell and Herbert Buxton.

Hamilton F. Kean, former chairman of the County Republican Committee, when interviewed regarding Senator John F. Dryden's prospects of election, said last night after the annual meeting of the committee:

"In my opinion Senator Dryden's chances have improved. The criticisms of the newspapers, many of them decidedly unfair, have caused a reaction in his favor."

When asked whether he or his brother, the Senator, had in any way interested themselves either in behalf of Mr. Dryden or against him Mr. Kean declared that they had absolutely nothing to do with the announcement recently published by the Union County legislators, nor had they in any other respect sought to influence any member of the State Senate or House of Assembly to vote either for or against Mr. Dryden. With reference to the possibility of a deadlock and the postponing of the election until next year Mr. Kean was in the contrary view. He said that he thought the matter would be settled this winter, inasmuch as the leaders would regard it as a risk to wait until next year, when the Democrats might have a majority in joint session.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Elva Force Entertains Company of Friends.

Mrs. Charles L. Force, of Mercer avenue, gave a party Monday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Elva Force, who celebrated the twelfth anniversary of her birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games and one of the features was the donkey game. Miss Flora Krausse won the first prize and Roy Force received the booby prize.

After the games refreshments were served and the young people had a general good time. Miss Force received a number of useful and pretty gifts in remembrance of the occasion. Those present were the Misses Catherine Day, Emma Hynd, Dorothy Martin, Flora Krausse, Edith Richards, Hazel Patrick, Elva and Roy Force.

Incorporate Squab Farm.

The Longmead Squab Farms, capital stock $5,000, was incorporated, names Piscataway township as its place of registered office. J. Dunbar Wright, who lectured at the Casino Saturday night, is one of the incorporators. Henry C. Adams and G. F. Thomson are the others. Mr. Adams is the agent in charge.

JURY COMMISSION BILL

Union County May Have One If Measure Introduced in Legislature Passes.

OTHER IMPORTANT ONES

To Limit Campaign Expenses; Public Utility Commission; Voting Machine; Municipal Water Contracts.

Many important measures were introduced in the Senate and House at Trenton, Monday, some of which affect Union county, particularly the one providing a jury commission of three members in all counties of over 100,000 inhabitants. Following are its provisions and the provisions of other important measures introduced in the Assembly:

H. 14. Mr. Hendrickson. Provides that in all counties having over 100,000 the justice of the supreme court holding the circuit therein shall appoint a jury commission of three residents of the county; term, three years; salaries to be fixed by such justice, not exceeding $500 annually. Each jury commissioner shall keep a jury list of at least 500 persons and shall prepare therefrom a grand jury list of 48 names, from which the said supreme court justice shall strike 24 names and the remaining 24 shall be the grand jury for the coming term. From the same list a petit jury list containing twice the number of names required for service shall be submitted to the supreme court justice who shall strike therefrom one-half the names and the remaining names shall constitute the petit jury for the coming term. In the absence, or at the request of a supreme court justice, the county judge shall select. (Judiciary.)

H. 6. Mr. Alexander. Limits the amount which a candidate for office may expend for campaign purposes to the following amounts: Senator of the United States, representative in congress, or governor, $5,000; presidential elector, mayor of a city and county offices, $1,000; state senator, $500; member of assembly, town, city and borough officers, $250; all other offices, $100. Only a treasurer or political agent named by a candidate shall pay any expenses of an election. The bill designates lawful expenditures and requires publication of the amount expended within twenty days after the election by him with the secretary of state or county clerk. (Judiciary.)

H. 42. Mr. Sullivan. Authorizes cities to establish electric light plants, provides for the issue of bonds to run not less than 20 years nor longer than 30. (Municipal corporations.)

H. 26. Mr. Blohm. Creates a public utility commission to be composed of three members, to be appointed by the governor, for terms of three years. Commission is empowered when complaint is made of more than one rate or charge or subject matter, to order hearings; and when they believe any rate, fare or charge to be unreasonable, or any service inadequate, or the quality of any gas, water or light not what it reasonably should be, it may investigate. Whenever such rate or service found to be inadequate or discriminatory, the commission shall determine and fix a reasonable rate, fare, charge or standard of quality. The commission shall have authority to inquire into the management of the business of all public utility companies, and shall ascertain the amount of money in the construction and equipment of such companies. (Judiciary.)

29. Wr. Wright. Amends the act relative to the purchase of sites for armories, provides the method by which counties may issue bonds to meet such share of expense as shall be necessary for the county to pay. (Militia.)

H. 11. Mr. Hendrickson. Authorizes boroughs to make a contract with any municipality or with any water company for a term of five years or less for a water supply. (Boroughs and borough commissions.)

H. 12. Mr. Hendrickson. Authorizes first class cities to contract to supply water to certain other municipalities in this state. (Municipal corporations.)

H. 1. Mr. Holcombe. Repeals the act for the purchase of voting machines. (Judiciary.)

H. 2. Mr. Holcombe. Empowers the governing bodies of cities to fix the times and dates within which taxes shall be assessed and become due, the date of the collection of the said tax, the date of foreclosure for the return of delinquents. All provisions of law effecting such city so far as they fix such dates shall be suspended. Cities are empowered to assess and collect state, state school and county taxes by the same officers as municipal taxes (Municipal corporations.)

Among the important measures introduced in the Senate were these:

S. 14. By Mr. Robbins. Provides that upon petition of 25 per cent. of the legal voters in any election district where a voting machine is in use, a special election shall be held to determine upon the retention or rejection of such machine a majority vote "against the voting machine" its use shall cease forthwith. (Elections.)

S. 2. By Mr. Hillery. Provides for a constitutional amendment by which in 1909 the counties of the state shall be divided into assembly districts, each containing, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of inhabitants, and shall consist of convenient and contiguous territory, in a compact form; provided that each county shall, at all times, be entitled to at least one member, and the whole number of members to be chosen shall never exceed 60. The court of errors and appeals is invested with power to determine the constitutionality of such division. (Judiciary.)

MR. COLBY GIVES $1,000

Senator and His Wife Endow Hospital Room in Their Daughter's Memory.

BALL NETTED $2,400

Dr. Norman Probasco Takes Place of Dr. W. C. Boone On Medical Staff—Meeting at Casino.

Senator and Mrs. Everett Colby, of Orange, have contributed $1,000 for the endowment fund of Muhlenberg Hospital in the name of Elizabeth Colby, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colby, who died last summer. The sum is given as a memorial and one of the rooms for private patients in the administration building has been named "The Elizabeth Colby Room."

The contribution from Mr. and Mrs. Colby was received at a meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, Monday, and it was by a vote of the members that one of the private rooms was named in memory of Elizabeth Colby. Mrs. Colby was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city, and she has always been interested in the hospital, as well as other charitable enterprises in this city. Mr. Colby has also shown much interest in Plainfield affairs and was one of the contributors toward the fund to purchase a parish house for St. Stephen's church.

One of the most important actions at the meeting last night, was the vote by which Dr. Norman H. Probasco was transferred from the position of pathologist and bacteriologist in the medical board to the place in the medical department of the visiting staff of the board left vacant by the resignation of Dr. W. C. Boone in July of last year.

The treasurer reported that he had received from the committee in charge of the charity ball, $2,400, and that the committee confidently expect to make the total net receipts of the ball $2,500.

A vote of thanks was tendered to J. Dunbar Wright for his illustrated lecture given at the Casino on Saturday night for the benefit of the hospital.

The report of the medical board for December showed patients remaining at last report, 28; admitted, 57; discharged cured, 41; improved, 6; not improved, 1; died, 1. Total number of patients treated, 85; remaining, 33; operations, 49; hospital days, 998; dispensary patients, 49; visits, 165; operations, 14.

ACKERMAN PROTECTS PROPERTY OWNERS

HIS BILL RESTRICTS RIGHT TO DISFIGURE PUBLIC STREETS.

Senator Ackerman introduced two bills in the State Senate Monday. One authorizes the president of the Senate and speaker of the Assembly to appoint annually a lawyer to draft bills, examine and revise proposed bills, and advise as to proposed legislation. The president and speaker will fix the compensation.

The other bill is an act relating to telephone, electric light, heat and power companies. It makes it unlawful to erect poles or string wires without first obtaining permission of the local governing board, and also the consent of the property-owner affected.

Senator Hillery introduced a bill which provides for signifying of preference of candidates for United States Senate by direct vote of the people at primary elections. At the same time Mr. Eppinger introduced a bill in the House which provides that for the purpose of affording the electors of this state full information as to the preferences of party voters for candidates for United States Senator, the names of candidates for the position of United States Senator may be printed upon the official ballots for the respective parties. All candidates for United States Senator shall file a petition with the Secretary of State setting forth such candidacy twenty days before the general election, and the election officers shall include the number of votes cast for such candidates for United States Senator in their return.

Mrs. J. R. Truell, of Central avenue, who has been detained at home by illness, has recovered.

DISREGARD FAMILY TIES

Hugh Fox Reports Great Increase in Abandonment and Desertion Cases.

REPORTS TO GOVERNOR

President of State Board of Children's Guardian Makes Annual Statement.

The State board of children's guardians has presented its annual report to Governor Stokes, and in this document discusses many phases of vital interests in the matter of the care of children who are dependents. One of the most timely of the subjects treated is the disregard of family ties among certain classes. This subject is taken up by Hugh F. Fox, of this city, president of the board, who, under this caption, says:

"It is noted that the cause of commitment in 40 out of 180 cases during the past year is the desertion of parent or parents. We have spared no pains to follow up such cases whenever we have been able to locate the parent. When he steps beyond the State, however, it is a difficult and expensive thing to trace him and bring him back again.

"The police of Jersey City, Newark and Bayonne, and the county authorities in Hudson and Essex, and in some counties of the second class, have co-operated zealously with us, in a number of these desertion cases, but in smaller communities the local authorities are sometimes averse to spending public money and their own time and energy to what they regard as a fruitless quest for a worthless loafer, of whom the community may well be rid.

"If the 22 foundlings of the past year are added to the 40 cases already mentioned it will be seen that more than one-third of all the dependent children who have become public charges during the year have been deserted or abandoned by their parent. The disregard of family ties found to be one of the principal sources of trouble, and it appears to be one the increase.

"There is little doubt that if thorough investigations were made of the family history of all the persons committed to our State and county institutions the same chief cintributing cause would be found throughout.

"Whether it can be in part controlled by legal initiative and authorit depends largely upon local sentiment. When, however, the State has any jurisdiction it ought to take responsibility for action, and should have the means to do it.

"One-third of the children committed (including colored children) are Americans, and most of the others belong to what the immigration restrictions classify as the 'selected races,' namely, the Germans and the Irish. In other words, the so-called 'immigration problem' has not yet presented itself to the State of New Jersey in connection with dependent children."

The report of Frances Day, general agent of the board, shows that the number of commitments of children during the year was 180—38 less than the preceding year. Part of this decrease is due to the fact that overseers of the poor throughout the State were more careful in their investigations of cases where children were concerned.

Miss Day says that an extremely difficult class with which the board has to deal is that of idiots and lunatics. There is no institution in this State for the idiot and lunatic child and the asylums throughout the State have no facilities for caring for insane juveniles. "It seems to me," says Miss Day "that this evil can be easily remedied. A requirement that portions of the State and county asylums be set apart for the care of insane juveniles could be complied with at a very small cost."

Dealing with the abandoned children, Miss Day says: "In two cases we have had persons arrested for abandoning children by throwing them in hallways and in the public highway. We have been unable to have them convicted under the law, because in both cases the abandoning persons were not parents of the children.

"To remedy this defect a law should be enacted, preferably an amendment to the crimes act. Cases such as this should be dealt with by law to be serious crimes and adequate punishment should be provided." Miss Day recommends that some law should be passed which should require parents who are financially able to care for their children who are public dependents simply because of parental abandonment.

The report of Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, as treasurer, shows that the total revenue from the State for the year ending 1907, and that the expenses of the board were $7,555.30, leaving a balance due the board of $11.63.

The report of Robert Stewart, consulting physician of the board, shows he made 286 calls to the homes of sick children and 14 examinations for physical and mental defects. He performed 39 vaccinations.

William McD. Coriell, of West Fifth street, is able to be out again after an attack of the grip.

COLD FACTS!

Chamois Vests

safeguards health against winter blasts.

POWERS' Pharmacy Co.

PRETTY PRESENTS THAT PLEASE PERFECTLY.

Fancy Toilet Articles, Mirrors, Stationery, Caindy, Manicure and Comb and Brush Sets, and Many Other Useful Presents.

Call and Inspect Our Stock.

C. M. NAGLE'S PHARMACY,
Tel. 911-L. Front and Grove Sts.

HOLIDAY GOODS AT N. Y. PRICES.

Perfumes, Cigars, Belle Mead Sweets

Miller's Pharmacy,
Park Ave. and Fourth St.

Hodge's Pharmacy.

Reliable goods in all Departments.
Agency for Belle Mead Sweets.

Tel. 210-J. Y. M. C. A. Building.

HOTELS.

HOTEL WALDORF
EAST FRONT STREET.
HENRY WINDHAM, Prop.

Gottfried Kruger's Extra Beer on draught. Imported Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Hotel accommodations and private Dining-Room.

HOTEL KENSINGTON
(Licensed.)
J. H. STAATS, Prop.
107-109-111 North Avenue.
Everything New and Up-to-date.
An inspection solicited.

HOTEL IROQUOIS
Commercial Headquarters. J. F. LEARY, Proprietor. Plainfield, N. J.
Pabst Milwaukee Beer on draft.
SUNDAY DINNERS
SPECIAL FEATURE

CESSPOOLS AND GARBAGE.

Mrs. John Brown,
Successor to John Burke and Town & Co.
Cesspools and Vaults Cleaned from $3.00 upwards
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
Don't give your order until you consult me.
Estimates Cheerfully Given.
Leave orders at
J. T. Vail's, North avenue, Plainfield, N. J.
Telephone No. 715.
FRANK BURKE, Manager.

NEVADA TRUST COMPANY.
Incorporated 1903.
Deals in mining and other stocks and investments.
Investigates against loss on certain stocks. Information on application.
Advises regarding mining securities and other investments in Goldfield, Tonopah, Rhyolite, Bullfrog, Bayview, Wonder, Buckskin, Cuprite and all other mining sections in Nevada.
Organizes companies under Nevada's favorable laws and acts as resident and transfer agent therefor, and for corporations doing business in Nevada or elsewhere throughout the Union.
Opinions furnished respecting corporate obligations and stockholders' rights and liabilities.
If you would know of the great mining opportunities in "Nevada the Wonderful" and of Reno, the commercial capital of the chief mining state, address:
NEVADA TRUST COMPANY,
140 Virginia St., Reno, Nev. 12 26 1m

William H. Pope,
ELECTRICIAN.
All kinds of electrical work done at reasonable prices.
116 NORTH AVENUE.

J. W. VAN SICKLE
122 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Game in Season. Philadelphia Scrapple.
Orders called for and delivered promptly.
Telephone No. 462-J.

AZIENZA
cures pimples and all inflammation of the skin. Used by people of refinement. Medicinal and toilet—25 and 50 cents.

CREAM.
A Well Dressed Horse.
What a stylish suit of clothes is to a man, a handsome harness is to a horse. We carry a large stock of harness, whips, blankets, carriages and everything needed for the stable.

N. P. Carriage Manufactory,
W. J. CONROY, Prop.
175-177 Somerset St. Tel. 603-L

Warren B. Travell, C. E.
GENERAL CONTRACTING and ENGINEERING
816 Third Place, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 804-J

BIG REDUCTION
in prices of Lumber. I have over two hundred thousand feet of lumber on hand. All hemlock, $15, $16 and $20 per thousand feet. Pine, $15, $18 and $20 per thousand. You can always find me in my yard at any time.
A. KANE.

103 Park Ave.,

calls your attention to his

Rimless Glasses.

They Look Good and You See Good.

We have made arrangements for a larger supply of first class milk and are giving the family trade our special attention. If you are not satisfied with the milk or the services you are getting give us a trial.

Price 8 cents a quart.

Lindsay's Dairy,
965 West Front St.
TEL. 792-J.

UNION NEWS COMPANY.
(F. M. Wagner, Agent.)
The Plainfield Daily Press and New York Morning and Evening Papers. Latest editions of the most popular Magazines. Also complete line of Cigars, Tobacco and Confectionery.

Pure, Dried Fruits.
Have you tried our dried fruits? They are a relish you will enjoy. We have a fresh supply of the finest Dried Apricots, Peaches, Apples, California Prunes, Currants, etc., at moderate prices. Pleased to supply your wants for dried fruits and everything in good groceries.
W. W. DUNN,
The Park Grocer.
Duer St. and Lincoln Place

HOMES ON INSTALLMENTS.
For easy payments come to me. I can furnish you with plans for a home you never have thought of. I have placed people in homes who never thought of owning their own home as it seemed an impossible thing to them. It is only a matter of saving what you have at your hand.
M. F. GANO., 221 Park Ave.

STATIONERY AND TOYS.
HARPER,
411 PARK AVENUE.

Cleaning, Pressing and Dyeing.
Monthly Contracts.
Prompt as called for and delivered.
EVENING DRESSES A SPECIALTY.
Ladies' Waists Cleaned, 25 cents upwards
Gents' Suits Dyed and Cleaned, $1.50.
We do our own work at
M. A. Brown's, 218 West Second St.

STORAGE—Best equipped and oldest storage warehouse in city for storing Furniture, Pianos, etc. Special floor for TRUNKS. Terms reasonable. All work has prompt attention.
"WHEN OUR TEAM PASSES 911-J, "Orders left for moving rans."
C. M. NAGLE,
Front and Grove Sts., Plainfield, N. J.

Kindling and Grate Wood.
Cedar Posts and Bean Poles. Prompt attention to orders received at 69 Somerset St.
JOHN MOBUS,
P. O. Box 329.

New Art Goods
Large assortment of pictures, water color, oil and china, paints and brushes, hand painted pins and buttons.

Pyrographic Goods
Extensive line of designed good outfits from $1.50 up. Burnt leather goods, post-card albums.

Plainfield Art Store.
Y. M. C. A. Building.

Vail
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1907. NO. 4.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

BRIBERY CHARGE REPLY

Dryden Issues Statement Regarding the $10,000 Bait For Ex-Assemblyman.

AN OLD TRICK, HE SAYS

Former Legislator of Ocean County Declares Erie's Lobbyist Offered Him Bribe in 1902.

This affidavit, charging an attempt at bribery in the election of John F. Dryden as United States Senator four years ago, was made public yesterday. It is signed by former Assemblyman George W. Holman, of Ocean county, and declares Thomas Palmer, a lobbyist for the Erie Railroad, was the offerer of the bribe. The affidavit is as follows:

"State of New Jersey,
"Ocean county, ss:

"George W. Holman, Jr., of full age, being duly sworn on his oath, saith that he was a member of the Legislature of New Jersey from Ocean county in 1902; that during said session there was an election for United States Senator and that John F. Dryden, of Newark, was a candidate for said Senatorship.

"And deponent saith that previous to the Republican caucus held for said Senator one Thomas Palmer, who was known as the legislative agent of the Erie Railroad Company, approached this deponent and told him that he would give deponent five thousand dollars ($5,000) if he, deponent, would cast his vote in said caucus for the said John F. Dryden; that deponent laughed at said Palmer and told him that this deponent and the said Palmer could not do business along that line.

"Whereupon the said Palmer said he thought he could get deponent ten thousand ($10,000) if he would vote for the said Dryden for United States Senator; that this deponent told the said Palmer that he, the said Palmer, could not trade with this deponent and the said Palmer left him.

"GEORGE W. HOLMAN.

Sworn to and subscribed this 15th day of January, A. D. 1907, before me.

I. W. CARMICHAEL,
Master in Chancery.

Palmer died four years ago and Holman served only one term in the Legislature.

Senator Dryden issued last night the following statement in refutation of the allegation contained in the affidavit of Holman:

"For several weeks past there have been stories current that my opponents were preparing to make some sort of bribery charge, but it has been strongly intimated that they might even go so far as to have some representative actually offer a bribe to a legislator with a view of injuring my candidacy. I did not think that they would resort to such an old campaign trick as to make a charge so transparently frivolous as that contained in the affidavit purporting to have been made by Mr. Holman.

"The affidavit charges that one Thomas Palmer made an offer to Mr. Holman in my behalf. Since the publication of the affidavit I have been informed that Palmer was a professional legislative agent who died three or four years ago. It was the first time I had ever heard of him. He was not known to me and certainly was not authorized by me or by any of my friends to make a proposal of any kind to any legislator. At the time I was aware that Mr. Holman was pledged to the election of Gov. Griggs, and no one was ever authorized by me to solicit his vote.

"In my campaign for re-election I have emphatically and distinctly made my position clear, and warned my friends that under no circumstances would I countenance any attempt to improperly influence any legislator. As the recognized candidate of my party I made the fight at the primaries and at the polls last fall and won; and I put record as a Republican and a Senator does not warrant my re-election I do not want the office. The majority of the Republicans in the Legislature have decreed in caucus that I shall be elected, and I expect, of course, that the rule of the majority will continue."

Who Holman Is.

Toms River, N. J., Jan. 23.—Former Assemblyman George W. Holman, who represented the county in the House in 1902, and who made an affidavit some time ago which was made public yesterday that he was offered money to vote for Senator Dryden four years ago, is a man of standing and rectitude. He could not be seen last night.

J. P. Owen's Condition.

John P. Owens, who was recently injured in an accident, is slowly improving. It will be a couple of months before he will be around again. His practice is being attended to by Francis J. Blatz.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY THAT OF PLAINFIELDER

SUCH IS THE BELIEF REGARDING NEGRO KILLED ON RAILROAD TRACK.

James Babbitt, of East Front street, has received a letter from Samuel P. Sutphen, of the undertaking firm of Dunster & Sutphen, Somerville, asking him to assist in identifying the body of a negro who was killed on the New Jersey Central tracks at Finderne, Sunday afternoon. The body is now at Dunster & Sutphen's morgue, Somerville, and unless identified by tomorrow afternoon, will be buried.

The undertaking firm gives the following description of the body and clothing:

Age, about twenty-five years; weight, about 165 pounds; height, five feet six inches. The body was clothed in a mixed plaid suit, black outside shirt, white underwear and high top rubber boots. The man also wore a cap size 7¼ and in the pockets were found a small mirror and two programmes of the New Plainfield theatre.

The fact that the theatre programmes were found in the man's pockets gives rise to the belief that he may be known in this city or may have resided here. Mr. Babbitt is now busily engaged in visiting the colored quarters of the city and borough acquainting the colored people with the facts in the hope of ascer*taining who the dead man is.*

DEPARTMENT OFFICERS VISIT LOCAL G. A. R. POST.

Commander Atkinson and Others Speak at Winfield Scott —Post Affair.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., received an official visitation last night from Department Commander Alfred Atkinson, of Elizabeth, and several members of his staff. In addition there were past department officers present and the first part of the evening was largely devoted to speech-making and a general exchange of war reminiscences.

Department Commander Atkinson was accompanied by Senior Vice Commander Joseph Tents, of Paterson; Junior Vice Commander Alfred Winans, of Millville and Past Department Commander James Atwood, of Trenton; William C. Smith, of this city, and Assistant Adjutant General Baldwin, of Elizabeth. Each of the visiting officers had something of interest to say. The local Post was complimented on the excellent showing. Commander Dr. Joseph F. Berg had charge of the programme.

After the Post opened, the members of the Women's Relief Corps were invited to join in the festivities and after the programme, the women served refreshments. Some of the entertainment were vocal and instrumental selections by Miss May Smith and vocal solos by Mrs. John Manley.

FIRE IN LUNCH WAGON.

Fred Meeker's Lunch Emporium Narrowly Escapes Destruction.

A can of gasolene in Fred Meeker's lunch wagon at North and Park avenues, sprung a leak shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The fluid ignited from a lamp and inside of a few seconds the interior of the vehicle was a mass of flames. Meeker tried to extinguish them but without success and was forced to turn in an alarm from box 13.

The department responded quickly and killed the flames in short order. The inside of the wagon was scorched and blackened from end to end and will have to undegor a thorough overhauling. The damage will amount to about $50.

Phonograph Concert a Success.

The phonograph concert at the First Church of Christ, last night, given by Henry C. Brose and Elston Leonard, was attended by a large audience. At the completion of the programme coffee and cake was served by the women of the church. The proceeds were gratifying and will be added to the church fund.

Mrs. J. C. Akerman Surprised.

Mrs. J. C. Akerman, of 230 West Second street, was tendered a birthday surprise party, last night, by a large number of friends from Somerville, Raritan, Round Brook, Neshanic and this city. Dancing was the feature of the evening and refreshments were served at midnight.

Civil War Talk.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chamblis, pastor of the First Baptist church, will speak on "Civil War Memories" at the North Plainfield High School next Friday. Dr. Chamblis was a chaplain in the Confederate army.

—Neuman Brothers are conducting a special sale of the best flours on the market. They quote low prices on Pillsbury's Best, Hecker's Superlative and Washburn & Crosby's Gold Medal by the barrel.

FEUD ENDS IN ASSAULT

Frankfort's Postmaster and His Family Attacked by the Breem Gang.

REVENGE THE MOTIVE

Sourland Hillside Stickler For Etiquette—Slight At a Social Function.

Great excitement has prevailed in the hamlet of Frankfort, near Somerville, yesterday, over the assault of its postmaster, F. M. Cox, by a band of Sourland Mountain desperadoes. Cox was knocked down and dragged out of his store. His wife and sister-in-law, who went to his assistance, were also roughly handled by the gang.

Mrs. Cox had two fingers of her right hand crushed and is a physical wreck today as the result of the assault. After Cox escaped from the band he ran a mile across country to the nearest telegraph office, where he spent the night in sending messages to the police of near-by towns for assistance.

Frankfort is in an isolated spot near the foot of the Sourland Mountains and no officials reached the place until an early hour this morning. When County Detective Totten reached the scene Cox's assailants had fled.

The assault on Cox was the outcome of a feud between the Cox and Breen families of Frankfort. F. M. Cox and Max Breen are rival storekeepers of Frankfort, between whom there has long been bad blood. Cox some time ago caused Breen's arrest by preferring a charge of cruelty to dumb animals.

A little later Cox was held up one dark night on a country road by a man who seized his horse by the head. Cox drew his revolver and was about to shoot the hold-up man, who flashed a lantern on him from under his coat. By the light of the lantern Cox recognized the man as a friend of Breen's. The hold-up man treated the matter as a joke and Cox replaced his gun.

Later Cox was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, preferred by Breen. By a recent law enacted by the New Jersey Legislature the penalty for this offense is a heavy fine and imprisonment. This charge against Cox is still pending. The relations between the rival store*keepers were still further strained* last Friday night when Breen had a house party at which all the countryside except the Cox family was invited.

Breen to make room for the horses of his guests took his own animals from his barn and placed them in Cox's stable just across the way. When Cox discovered the horses in his stable he locked the doors and refused to allow Breen to take out the animals when he called for them Saturday afternoon. Cox kept the animals in his possession until yesterday afternoon when Breen began a legal process to recover them.

The matter was finally adjusted last night by Breen paying Cox $3 for the use of his horses during the time that they had remained in the stable. This act of Cox's was an unpardonable breach of Sourland Mountain etiquette.

Breen told the story to a band of mountaineers who were seated on the cracker barrels around the big cylinder stove in his store last night. The band soon drifted over to Cox's store and one by one inquired for their mail. As Cox shoved the mail through a little window to them they berated him for his inhospitable treatment to his neighbor.

Cox scented trouble, and he stepped from the little post office inclosure to invite the band to leave the store, when he was knocked down and jumped on by members of the band, who took him by the heels and dragged him into the road, where they took turns in dancing upon him.

Mrs. Cox and her sister ran to the rescue. In the fight that followed they were accidentally knocked down and trodden on. The heavy boot of a mountaineer crushed Mrs. Cox's fingers and caused her to faint.

Cox from his position at the bottom of the heap called for his clerk, James Martin, to bring his gun from the store. Martin started on a run to obey the order, and was knocked down and jumped on as he was about to enter the store. Cox and his family finally escaped from the band and took refuge with their neighbors. Cox says he had $19 in his fob pocket of which the crowd relieved him before he escaped.

The men who committed the assault are well known. No arrests were made yesterday, but a general round-up is promised by the authorities today.

Public sentiment over the affair is about evenly divided between the Breen and Cox factions in Frankfort, and more trouble is expected to follow.

MARTINE IS SURPRISED

Didn't Expect any Votes In the Senatorial Balloting.

FEELS MUCH HONORED

He Thinks Dryden Will Be Re-Elected—Regards Him As Wholly Typical of the Republican Party.

Surprise was the chief emotion experienced by James E. Martine when he learned of the nine votes cast for him by Democratic legislators at the joint session for the Senatorial balloting. He had heard his name mentioned for the Democratic nomination early in the preliminary skirmishes, but he didn't expect to get any votes.

"The votes were wholly unexpected," said Mr. Martine to a Daily Press reporter today. "But the compliment is one I appreciate. I feel the honor of those nine votes highly. I enjoy them the more, because I have no room for worriment as to election or defeat. To have been voted for is all any Democrat appears to have any hope for in this legislature, and so my nine friends have given me about as much honor as I could well expect to receive at Trenton this winter."

"How does the Republican situation strike you?" Mr. Martine was asked.

"Oh, Mr. Dryden will be elected," was the unhesitating reply. "One thing the Republicans can say of Dryden—that he is typically Republican. He stands for all the Republican party stands for. Not for what the Colbyites stand for, of course, but what the Republican party, as a party, represents."

Mr. Martine took off his glasses and rubbed them vigorously. He looked through them with a dry twinkle in his eyes.

"Dryden stands for all the pre-emi*nent features of Republicanism. He* stands for high tariff, for favoritism to corporations and for the use of money for campaign purposes. Yes, he stands for them all, and he is as logical a choice for Republicans to make as one can imagine."

REAL NICE FAMILY EXCITES A NEIGHBORHOOD

MADE A GOOD IMPRESSION BUT DUPED BOARDERS AND TRADESMEN.

Residents in the vicinity of Richmond street, near the Scott Press Works, are greatly upset over the sudden departure from their midst of what they supposed was a real nice family that came to their notice a few weeks ago. The members of it were unusually affable and the social atmosphere was warming up like a spring day when they went away as quietly as they came only a heap sight quicker.

It has since been learned that the family, without attracting notice from the neighbors, took in four boarders and, it is said, collected $6 from each one in advance. It is also stated they had piled up some ac*counts with the butcher, the baker* and the grocerman and when they went away they carelessly forgot to square up. The tradesmen and boarders, who came home expecting to find full value for their money, reached the conclusion at the same time that they had been beautifully "stung."

No one knows what became of the family but it has been learned indirectly that the members are extending the glad hand to new neighbors over on Long Island.

CHILD CUT HAND.

Two-Year-Old Crashed Through Thin Glass Case.

Left by herself for the first time in her life, two-year-old Agnes Walker, daughter of Thomas A. Walker, of Clinton avenue, celebrated her freedom Monday afternoon by pushing her hand through a glass case. Her small hand was severely cut.

Mrs. Walker went downstairs for a moment, leaving Agnes apparently asleep on a rug on the floor. Agnes awoke before Mrs. Walker returned and toddled about in search of amusement. On a low stand was a stuffed parrot, protected by a thin glass case. Agnes could just see into the case. She had long been interested in the parrot, and she made up her mind to get it. The only way to reach it was to push through the glass, and Agnes did that without hesitation. The crash and her wail of pain were heard by Mrs. Walker as she was coming upstairs, and she hurried to the tot's assistance. Agnes' hand was cut in several different places, but not seriously enough for medical attendance.

LABOR NOW CONTENTED

Walking Delegates Idle Because of Harmonious Relations With Capital.

PAINTERS WANT RAISE

They Alone Have a Grievance and It is Said That the Contention Will Be Settled Amicably.

According to the opinions of the leading contractors as well as journeymen in all branches of construc*tion work in this city, there never* has been a time when the relations between the bosses and their men have been more harmonious and the prospect for plenty of work so good. There is no apparent trouble in sight, except in the case of painters and tinners, who intend to ask for an increase in pay in the spring.

At present the painters and tinners each receive $3 a day and they want a raise of fifty cents a day, putting them on a basis of other trades of about the same standing. However, it is not believed that there will be any trouble over the request for more money, as an arbitration committee will probably adjust the matter to the satisfaction of the bosses and their men.

In all lines of trade, including carpenter, mason, bricklayers, lathers, painters, tinners and plumbers there is considerable work ahead and no causes for complaint have been heard. So peaceful are the relations at present that the journeymen are thinking seriously of abolishing the office of walking delegate, believing it to be an unnecessary expense. The interests of bosses and journeymen are so well provided for by good committees that they really take the *place of a walking delegate in main*taining harmony. The question of abolishing this office is likely to come up in the near future.

Among the duties required of a walking delegate is that he shall visit weekly all jobs where union men are employed and keep in close personal touch with the work and know that the rules of the union are not being violated. The chief of men in Plainfield is such that such inspection is hardly considered necessary and it is said that a majority of the men favor abolishing the office.

One thing that has had tendency to bring about harmonious relationship is the formation of the Master Mechanics' Association. When any trouble arises among the journeymen or the bosses a conference is called and before any strike is declared every effort is made to settle differences by arbitration. The success of this method was shown in the recent trouble which developed at Dr. A. W. Anderson's new building on Watchung avenue. The Journeymen and the bosses are well organized and their interests are not permitted to suffer.

TOLD OF TRIP ABROAD.

Rev. Mr. Thompson Addresses Men's Club of Monroe Avenue Church.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Bound Brook, gave a delightful lecture before the Men's Club of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, last night. He gave a sketch of his recent trip abroad and described in particular his visits to Germany and Italy. He told in an entertaining way of the curious customs of the people in these countries, which was greatly enjoyed by all. His lecture was interspersed with many amusing incidents.

Following the address a fine musical programme was furnished by Joseph Sattels' orchestra of three pieces. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way, games affording a pleasant diversion.

Refused Hospital Treatment.

A young woman who described herself as Mary Cassidy, 25 years old, a servant, was reported to Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayers, last week, from the house of a colored family on West Second street. Mr. Ayers found her suffering from grip in squalid surroundings, but she objected to attendance. The colored woman in charge of the house wanted her removed, but the young woman refused to leave. Arrangements were made to have her sent to the hospital, but she would not consent to go. She was not sick enough to worry about, and the overseer dropped the case. She appeared averse to investigation. No particular explanation of her presence in a colored family was given.

Mrs. Kelley In Brooklyn.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, secretary of the Consumers' League, who aroused Hugh F. Fox to a defence of New Jersey by strictures on the State child labor laws in an address at the Monday Afternoon Club, will speak on the same subject before the Congregational Club, of Brooklyn, next Monday night. Mrs. Kelley has not replied publicly to Mr. Fox.

THIRTY DAYS IN JAIL FOR STEALING CHICKENS

LUCIUS TAYLOR AMONG THOSE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY.

The Union County Grand Jury finished its labors this morning and returned seventeen indictments to the court, among those indicted being Lucius G. Taylor, colored, who was accused of stealing two chickens from Mulford Cole, of West Front street. Taylor admitted having taken the two chickens but claimed he was justified as Mr. Cole owed him some money. The court sentenced him to thirty days in the county jail.

The Grand Jury to whom was referred the matter of investigating the acts of the Elizabeth Board of Excise, regarding the removal of screens from the windows and doors of saloons in Elizabeth, reported that the board had adopted a resolution calling for the removal of the screens.

The court instructed the Grand Jury to investigate the matter and if it was found that the Board of Excise had not notified the saloonkeepers concerning the provisions of the law, that body was indictable.

F. O. E.'S NEW OFFICERS TAKE THEIR PLACES.

Installation Conducted Last Night by District Deputy R. P. Kampf.

At last night's meeting of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, B. O. E., the following recently elected officers were installed by District Deputy Past Worthy President Rudolph P. Kampf:

Past worthy president, Michael J. Higgins; worthy president, Daniel V. Force; worthy vice presidents, Sylvester Abernest; worthy chaplain, Frank Hart; worthy conductor, Fred Shepherd; worthy inside guardian, John Verdon; worthy outside guardian, J. H. Adams; worthy secretary, H. G. Adams; worthy treasurer, A. G. Adams; worthy physician, Dr. A. H. Dundon; worthy trustees, R. P. Kampf, Thomas Kane and Hugh Reilly. Following the installation, speeches were made by the officers and a social time was enjoyed. On assuming his seat, last night, Worthy President Force begins his third term as the head of the aerie.

In the routine order of business, the committee having plans for the Eagles' ball at Saengerbund Hall on February 8 in charge, reported that the decorations would be a feature and that an attempt would be made to exhibit the latest line that has ever been seen in Plainfield. The advance sale of tickets indicates a record-breaking attendance.

APPOINTED RECEIVER.

J. H. Crane Named to Take Charge of Match Company's Affairs.

Vice Chancellor Bergen, of Trenton, appointed Counsellor J. Henry Crane, of Park avenue, receiver of the Empire Match Company, a concern which operates a match factory at Bound Brook. The suit in which the appointment was made was brought by Counsellor George W. Anderson, deputy surrogate of Somerset county, on behalf of Abraham Gro and others. The company was represented by W. S. Angleman, who stated to the court that the debts of the company amount to nearly $9,000.

Mr. Angleman suggested the appointment of Mr. Crane as receiver, and Mr. Anderson made no objection on behalf of the complainants. Vice Chancellor Bergen in making the appointment fixed the bond to be given by the receiver at $2,000.

Generous Contributions to Charity.

The King's Daughters who are in charge of the Day Nursery at 444 West Third street, appreciate the generous contributions given to the charity at the first anniversary held last week and find that the dry groceries, as well as the money received through the silver offering and several checks will help greatly in carrying on the work. The Day Nursery is finding new friends constantly and much encouragement is given to the workers.

Dog Poisoners at Work.

A dog poisoner has made his ap*pearances on Pearl street and as a* result the pets of four families in that section have been killed. The animals in every instance were valuable and the owners have asked the borough police to help them in finding the miscreant.

Mother Goose Bazaar.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church is planning to hold a Mother Goose Bazaar at the church on February 21 and 22. All the familiar characters of Mother Goose and her large family will be represented in true style.

Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, will install officers on Monday night, January 28, and in connection with this there will be an informal programme.

2 BALLOTS; DEADLOCK!

Dryden Stills Lacks the Five Votes to Secure His Re-election to the U. S. Senate.

LAWMAKERS ADJOURN

No More Balloting Until Next Tuesday—Ackerman and Perkins, of Union, Vote As They Did Yesterday.

United States Senator John F. Dryden is no nearer being re-elected than he was yesterday although two more ballots were cast today in joint session at Trenton. The result was that he lacked five votes of obtaining the necessary majority. He got thirty-six votes in each of the two ballots taken today; the same number as on the two ballots taken yesterday.

The results of the first ballot in joint session shortly after the two bodies convened at noon follow:

John F. Dryden, Republican	36
Mahlon Pitney, Republican	2
John W. Griggs, Republican	6
Woodrow Wilson, Democrat	10
James E. Martine, Democrat	9
Gottfried Krueger, Democrat	5
Edwin L. Stevens, Democrat	16

Total vote, 81; necessary to elect, 41.

A second vote was taken with this result:

John F. Dryden, Republican	36
Mahlon Pitney, Republican	2
John W. Griggs, Republican	6
Woodrow Wilson, Democrat	15
James E. Martine, Democrat	6
Edwin L. Stevens, Democrat	16

Total vote, 81; necessary to elect, 41.

On both ballots Senator Dryden got 12 votes in the Senate and 24 in the House; Griggs 2 in the Senate and 4 in the House and Pitney 1 in the Senate and 1 in the House.

This was the way that the Senators cast their first vote on the ballot; Ackerman for Griggs; Colby for Pitney; Gebhardt for Martine; Hinchcliffe for Stevens; Minturn for Stevens; Price for Wilson; Slizer for Stevens; Wakelee for Griggs; Cornish for Wilson; rest for Dryden.

In the House the vote was the same as yesterday excepting that on the first ballot five Democrats, Bachus, Brenule, Corish, Groel and Brady voted for Krueger. On the second ballot these five turned their votes over to Wilson.

While James E. Martine, the "farmer-orator," did not run as well today as yesterday, something will be sprung probably Tuesday that will boost his vote considerably, it is said.

The Senate and House met in joint session in the House chamber at noon. President of the Senate Minch was chosen as presiding officer by an unanimous vote. The clerk of the Senate was named as clerk and the clerk of the House as his assistant.

It had been agreed in the Senate that no nominating speeches were to be made today, but the House was unaware of this and some trouble ensued. After a short debate, the House readily agreed to the Senate's position but not until after Barber had made a "break" by attempting to make a ringing campaign speech in *seconding the nomination of Mr. Dry*den.

When nominations were in order, State Senator Colby presented the name of James E. Martine of Morris county. Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, named John F. Dryden, and it was at this juncture that Mr. Barber in seconding the nomination launched forth in a laudatory address. He was stopped in short order. James E. Martine was placed in nomination by Senator Gebhardt. Senator Minturn named Edwin L. Stevens and Senator Cornish, Woodrow Wilson.

After the two ballots had been taken and the presiding officer had declared that there had been no election, Senator Hillery, of Morris, made a motion to arise.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman stood by John W. Griggs as he did yesterday, following out his announcement made some months ago that if the position was to go to a North Jersey man, Mr. Griggs would be his choice.

Praising his action in remaining out of the caucus to choose a Republican candidate for the United States Senate Senator Ackerman yesterday

(Continued on Page 5.)

R. E. LEE'S CHAPLAIN LAUDS GREAT GENERAL

Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Who Was With Confederate Leader on Field, Tells of His Virtues.

A CHRISTIAN WARRIOR

Greatest Commander Since Napoleon According to Historian—Lincoln and Lee Were Much Alike.

One of the best talks that has been given in Plainfield for a long time was heard at the Plainfield Public High School Friday morning when Rev. Dr. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke on the character and life of Robert E. Lee, the Commanding General of the Confederate Armies. The lecture was of peculiar interest inasmuch as Dr. Chambliss was the private secretary chaplain of the great military leader and was an intimate personal friend as well. General Lee's 100th birthday anniversary occurs tomorrow and that gave additional interest to the talk of the scholarly divine.

Quoting a distinguished Northern historian, Dr. Chambliss stated Lee was the most conspicuous figure in the Confederacy and moreover the foremost military genius since the Napoleon Bonaparte. To show the character of the man, he recited how grossly insulted the General became at the offer made by a New York insurance company after the war to give him a salary of $50,000 a year to allow it to use his name as president of the concern. He had stated in reply to the offer that his name was not for sale.

Dr. Chambliss began by recalling the fact that the last time he addressed the High School pupils was two years ago next month on the occasion of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln; and now it was Robert E. Lee whose birthday will be observed tomorrow. To his mind there was a happy significance in the fact that the two anniversaries could be thus associated. It meant not only that the bitter animosities of the Civil War were dead and buried, but that the heart of the American people, North and South alike, was after all a great heart, sure in the long run to give honor where honor was due, to admire nobility and heroism wherever they might be found.

"Did I not promise much," said he, "for the future of the country that the names of Lincoln and Lee, in the schools of the South and the schools of the North, should now both be exalted as synonyms of true greatness, and the youth of the whole land should have their minds and hearts cast in so noble a mould—taught to see higher than self, or gain, or party or sectional lines, and fix their eyes on pure and beautiful ideals of character. So it was not as a Southerner by birth and long residence that he could more fitly than any other be invited to speak, but rather as one who had personal knowledge of General Lee.

"I was in his army," said the speaker, "I saw him on the field; I preached to him as he sat among the knapsacks of his soldiers in his old gray uniform and cavalry boots, listening with the meekness of a child to a very simple gospel from the lips of a stripling; and after the war I was in Lexington where he was president of the great college there. You may learn from the books about all that I know of the man, but it may add a little to the interest of the occasion to hear of him from one who was face to face with him sometimes when he was making the history which you study today."

Reference was made to the centennial anniversary of General Lee's birth to be celebrated tomorrow with elaborate ceremonies at Washington and Lee Universities, at Lexington, Virginia, when a number of distinguished Northern men are to be present, and the principal speaker is to be Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, an officer in the army that opposed Lee on many a bloody field, and was colonel of a negro regiment, at whose head he rode into Richmond when that city capitulated. Dr. Chambliss gave a rapid sketch of the life of Lee up to the Civil War. He spoke of Stratford, the name of the manorial home of the Lees, where the future General was born, of his long and noble ancestry; of his marriage to the great-granddaughter of Martha Washington, and of Arlington, their splendid mansion on the heights near Washington. He told of the great struggle that Lee had to leave the army of the United States, and how he wrote to General Scott and others that he would never to draw his sword again unless in defense of his state, his relatives, his children and his home.

No attempt was made to follow the career of General Lee through the Civil War. The speaker introduced an extract from a letter which he wrote from the field forty-two years ago, just before the battle of the Wilderness, describing a grand review of Longstreet's corps by General Lee, and the personal appearance of the great general on that occasion.

"General Lee's hair is quite gray, and his head in front is partly bald," the letter said. "His manner was quiet, graceful, dignified. He rode his famous horse, 'Traveller,' and sat him with perfect elegance. His dress was plain, the only gilt about him being the wreath and stars of his rank on his collar and the buttons on his coat. He wore Confederate gray, of course, his coat buttoned and encircled by a buff sash. His hat was soft black felt, and his boots the uniform Wellington. Generals Longstreet, Hill, Kershaw, Field, Bryant, 'Rany' Lee (his son), and many others kept their stations near him during the review. Fortunately I had a stand on by little sorrel just behind the General where I could plainly see everything. A magnificent spectacle." This was the 29th of April, 1864. Within the next ten days the tremendous battles of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Court House were fought.

The addresses concluded with some reference to the beautiful virtues that marked General Lee throughout his life, his modesty and simplicity, his purity of mind and speech, his unselfishness, his sense of noblesse oblige from childhood, and his sincere, humble Christian faith.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Consolidation—Material for Study in the Public Library.

Gomme, G. Laurence.—Future government of London. (Contemporary rev. 66:746).

Greene, Francis V.—Government of Greater New York. (Scribner 20:416).

Harrison, Frederick.—Amalgamation of London. (Contemporary rev. 66:757).

Harrison, Charles.—City unification commission. (Fortnightly 59:836).

Pryor, James W.—Greater New York charter. (Annals Amer. Academy 10:290).

Shaw, Albert.—Municipal problems and Greater New York. (Atlantic 79:732).

Tyler, George Robert, Lord Mayor of London.—Municipal problems of London. (North American review 189:448).

Notes on Municipal Government. (Annals Amer. Academy 16:482).

Greater New York scheme. (Nature, April 9, 1896, p. 542).

Shaler, Nathaniel Southgate, or Saunders, Mr. Joseph O. Osgood, civil engineer, and Mayor Smalley, May 22, 1902.

Thirty reasons for annexation and consolidation. Issued by the Union Association of North Plainfield, N. J., May, 1902.

Why we oppose annexation at the election of September 16, 1902. Facts for voters by Dr. H. K. Carroll, A. V. D., Honeyman, Rev. W. E. Honeyman and W. W. Howland.

The student is also referred to The Daily Press for further information: May 23 and 28, June 6, 1902; May 23 and 27, June 7, 1902.

FACTS IN FEW LNES.

The fashionable age now for marriage is from twenty-seven to thirty-two for women, from thirty to forty-five for men.

The reduction works at Canso, Nova Scotia, handled 1,300 tons of dogfish last year and produced therefrom 9,000 gallons of fish oil, besides 200 tons of fish scrap, which makes yet good fertilizer.

Deville Stanier, of Peplow Hall, Shropshire, England, who bought the Hawkins collection of British birds recently, sold the Sheffield specimens of the great auk which is contained for $2,000.

The colonial secretary of the Bahamas states in his report of the islands for 1905-06 that no complaint of error or delay has been received by the telegraph department for fourteen years.

The cultivation of rubber is now

John O'Keefe's New Position.

John A. O'Keefe, formerly of this city, who looked up his residence in Buffalo last summer as assistant in charge of the local plant of the Ballentine Brewing Company, has resigned the position to accept one with the Spencer Kellogg Company, one of the largest linseed oil manufacturing companies in the country. The firm has prepared plans for the erection of a plant at Edgewater, N. J., near Fort Lee, and when it is completed Mr. O'Keefe will assume charge. He will probably make his home in Plainfield again as Edgewater is within easy commuting distance.

Stanley's New Location.

Charles L. Stanley, the florist, who has been located on North avenue for the past ten years, is now located at 159 East Front street in the Woodhull and Martin building. His new phone number is 928.

Lent Begins February 13.

Lent begins on Wednesday, February 13, two weeks earlier than last year and Easter Sunday falls on March 31.

HE LECTURES PEDAGOGUES

Dr. Van Ormer Tells Teachers That Children Are Often Unjustly Punished.

CONSIDER THE MOTIVE

Subject "Some Fundamentals In School Management" Proved Highly Interesting to the Audience.

The first of a series of lectures before the teachers of the city and borough schools was given Thursday afternoon in the North Plainfield school by Dr. A. B. VanOrmer, of Norwood, Pa. The doctor is a graduate of New York University, and has done post-graduate work in the University of Pennsylvania. His subject was "Some Fundamentals In School Management" and in part he said:

Dr. VanOrmer said in part: "The management of a school is no easy task. Those who think so have a low ideal of what a school should be. To teach forty different pupils with varied tastes, aptitudes, homes, temperaments, capacities, and to employ such means as will properly develope not only the intellect but also the moral qualities and inculcate good habits, is a task that requires great skill, patience, and tact. The very fact of its difficulty gives encouragement to the teacher; for when she is disheartened by her failure to reach a certain pupil she will remember the complexity of the problem and seek another solution.

"The teacher should have clearly in view the end to be reached. Otherwise she will not attain the end. That end is to make good strong men and women. She who aims to train the intellect only does but a small part of the work.

"The teacher should see everything with her natural eye, but should pay no attention to much of what she sees. Pupils resent the constant criticism of a teacher even if it is deserved.

"Teachers do not often enough consider the motive that actuates pupils. They punish too frequently before they inquire into the circumstances. A teacher once ordered all pupils to raise their right hands. One raised his left. The command was repeated. Again the boy raised his left hand, whereupon the teacher severely punished him for his disobedience, not noticing that the boy's right arm was missing.

"Another told the boy to be home at 6 o'clock. He came in half an hour late, and the mother at once punished him for his disobedience. Had she inquired into the reason for his tardiness, she would have praised him instead of punishing him. Children treated thus unjustly have great damage done to their character, and they lose confidence in parents and teachers who fail to inquire into their motives.

"A teacher needs a big heart, to give sympathy not only to the poor children, but also to the more well-to-do; for the latter often receive less sympathy than the former, and need it just as much."

Dr. VanOrmer will lecture again on Thursday, February 14, on "The Psychology of Shakespeare." The second lecture of the course will be by *Professor Tyler, of Amherst Col*lege, on January 31, subject: "A Study of Grammar School Pupils."

CRESCENT COMPANY ELECTS.

John H. R. Hall Again Made Head of Pythians' Uniformed Rank.

Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R., K. of P., elected the following officers at its annual meeting Thursday: Captain, John H. R. Hall; first lieutenant, Oliver R. Pearson; second lieutenant, Fred Douglas; chaplain, David Bowden; recorder, Robert Jahn; treasurer, Robert Laughlin.

The installation will be held the first Thursday in February. Following the election, the members were addressed by Captain Hall and plans were discussed informally for the coming year.

The company will hold a dance in the Camera Club rooms Thursday night, January 31. The committee to have charge comprises Robert Jahn, chairman; Harry Keen, William Baker, E. D. Cutting and Fred Douglas.

Will Present Pinafore.

The Plainfield Operatic Association, which will give "The Chimes of Normandy," at the Casino on Thursday night, February 7, has decided to present as its second production for the season, "H. M. S. Pinafore," one of *Gilbert & Sullivan's most pop*ular comic operas. It will be given at the Casino on May 2, in its entirety, with full chorus and orchestra. The success of the association in the past assures a fine performance now only for "The Chimes of Normandy," but "Pinafore," as well.

Gift of Gold Watch Charm.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 167, International Association of Machinists, met Thursday night in Past Masters' Workman Joseph Burke presented to Master Workman James M. Smith, on behalf of the members, a gold watch charm, suitably inscribed, as a token of their appreciation of his services to them during the past year. Mr. Smith expressed his thanks after which there was an informal programme of vocal solos and a smoker was enjoyed.

HEALTH HINTS.

The best powders are the talcum and rice powders, yet some very good box powder has no poisonous ingredients and needs to be recommended. The use of peroxide of hydrogen on the face has a cleansing effect and undoubtedly improves a muddy complexion when a little ammonia is used with it and the mixture rubbed into the skin and immediately washed off. It removes blackheads, cures pimples, yet must not touch the eyes or hair. Peroxide is used extensively in a great many of the tooth pastes and produces remarkable results when first applied to the teeth. It is also used as a bleach for finger nails, and should be among the toilet articles, though not used too freely.

In one of the finest sanitariums in Michigan, where they give facial massage and every kind of beauty-*making device is resorted to, the at*tendants will tell you they whiten the skin, cleanse it from all impurities and give you the blush of a pale pink rose with something you keep in your own house all the time, and that is nothing more nor less than salt. The face is washed in very hot suds, then a little fine salt is put in the palms of the hand and massaged into the neck and face, then rinsed in hot water, gradually reducing it to cold. Every other day the patient drinks a glass of cold water in which there is one-half spoonful of salt, and there is no denying the fact that they do make a complexion there which is good and lasting. A cheap cosmetic, and one to be had at home.

A splendid exercise for straightening the shoulders and enlarging the bust is to stand erect, rise slowly on the tip toes, take a long deep breath, hold the arms at full length and stretch them back as far as possible. Begin b practising the exercise six times each morning on arising and finally increasing the number of times to twenty-six.

The accumulation of tartar on the teeth makes them unsightly and is often the cause of a bad breath. If the teeth are properly brushed each day tartar will not have the chance to accumulate, but if has already been allowed to do so it can be removed by a very simple treatment. Moisten the toothbrush in warm water and dip it into magnesia; rub on the teeth and after three applications the tartar will have entirely disappeared.

Inflammation of the throat may sometimes be cured by the steam from a lump of resin over which boiling water has been poured. Place a lump of resin the size of a walnut in an old teapot, pour boiling water over it, cover and place the spout to the mouth.

"Feed a cold and starve a fever," is an adage as old as time itself. A severe cold usually runs its course, though simple treatments at hot lemonade at bed time, or even hot broth, sipped before retiring, is often sufficient to break a cold.

A good preparation to use when one is afflicted with excessive perspiration, which is certain to ruin the clothes, is to make a mixture of equal parts of talcum, soda and cornstarch. The soda acts on the acidity of the perspiration and prevents the unpleasant odor so often noticeable.

Pure olive oil will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, and is a good flesh builder in bodies emaciated by long sickness. It is not unpleasant to take if a little grape or berry juice is placed in the glass with the oil. Delicate babies are often nourished with olive oil, and the bodies should be massaged with it.

For a cold take an eight-ounce bottle half full of sweet oil, put ten cents' worth of camphor gum into it, and then fill the bottle with equal parts of turpentine and kerosene. Shake well and when wanted for use pour some into a small dish and warm. Rub well into the chest and soak flannel with it and apply.

To cure a bunion is a very difficult thing, yet one excellent remedy is known. Cut very thin slices of raw beef and soak in strong vinegar for twelve hours. Some put a cent in the vinegar to get the verdigris, which is also beneficial. The piece of meat should be bound to the foot over the bunion, and another as soon as the first one is dry. It may require several applications, yet this is almost a certain cure.

When bread is given to children under one year and is half cold, it should be sliced very thinly, buttered lightly and given in small quantities.

If troubled with large, or varicose, veins in the lower limbs do not stand much in one position, but move about as often as time whenever opportunity affords it.

A thorough but gentle rubbing with a soft chamois skin will remove dust and dirt from the face, and this practise is better than numerous washings during a day.

As the constant liberal use of ammonia will turn hair white, it is recommended as a bleach for yellow-gray hair. A tablespoonful of ammonia to a basin of water is the proportion to be used.

Polish the nails with the chamois skin buffer to improve the circulation of the parts and make them clear and pink. No paste is needed; in fact it is injurious to the nails to use a polish on them daily.

When doing physical exercise commence gently, continuing until the body is in a glow, then finish as gradually as the exercise was commenced. This will avoid lameness of the back and other joints.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street, continues to improve.

LAST WORDS OF FAMOUS MEN.

Julian (331-363), Roman emperor, "Oh, Galilean, thou hast conquered!"

John Keats (1795-1821), English poet, "I feel the daisies growing over me."

James Lawrence (1781-1813), American naval officer, "Don't give up the ship!"

Louis XIII. of France (1601-1643), "There come to me thoughts that torment me."

William Pitt (1759-1806), English statesman, "Oh, my country, how I love thee!"

Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826), American statesman, "I resign my spirit to God and my daughter to my country."

Sir Walter Raleigh (1552-1618), English courtier and navigater, "Why dost thou not strike? Strike, man!" (To his executioner.)

Hugh Latimer (1472-1555), English reformer, "Be of good cheer, brother. We shall this day kindle such a toreh in England as I trust shall never be extinguished." (To Nicholas Ridley, who was burned with him.)

DRESS AND DIGESTION.

If writers on women's affairs are correct in telling us that the wearing of fine dinner gowns aids nutrition and that in evening dress woman digests her food, even if she doesn't enjoy it more, some of the newest dinner gowns will surely work wonders for their wearers, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

"The most popular dinner dress for winter," says a French modiste, "will be the 'merimaid' gown—so called from its resemblance to the scaly covering ascribed to the fabled beauties of the deep. It is fashioned out of sequins, which overlap one another and give the effect of fish scales. The real merimaid gown is of opal sequins and is a work of art. It owes its charm entirely to a good cut, which is princess, of course, fitting like a glove round the body and spreading out into innumerable frills about the feet.

"There is no trimming; the sleeves are very small, and fit closely to the arm." One large flower in a contrasting shade is the only decoration permissible, and no jewelry should be worn." There are also 'mermaid gowns' of gold, silver, bronze, scarlet and black, she says, if the knee up the sanatoriums may not be able to hold all the overfaxed 'dressers.'"

TO RESTORE VELVET.

Velvet so easily plushes that it is an extravagant article to use.

Grease spots of a stain caused by wear may be removed with turpentine rubbed on briskly with a bit of flannel. Two or three applications may be necessary.

The pile of velvet and velveteen may be raised by stretching it tightly over the top of a basin holding boiling water and stroking it gently in the opposite direction with a soft brush.

Most velveteens will wash, not once but many times, if they are handled properly. Put them through two lathers of warm soapy water, using a moderately stiff brush along the pile as the material lies stretched on the washing board. Rinse in cold, clear water to which has been added salt, and hang dripping wet in a shady place to dry, says Home Chat. Do not squeeze or rub, but if dirty use the brush liberally.

HAVE YOU NOTICED.

How many fur toques are worn this winter?

How pretty the plaid tailor-mades are?

How popular black caracul fur seems to be?

To what convenient shortness the walking skirt has shrunk?

How many tailored coats are made with perfectly plain sleeves like a man's?

How many women carry huge muffs and leave the throat entirely unprotected?

How many thin white blouses are worn on the coldest days, and apparently with comfort?

How many stalwart young women have adopted the wearing of russet walking boots this winter?

How pretty and becoming are the big colored silk and velvet roses worn on the small hats against the pompadour?

THE WOMAN IS NEVER OLD.

Who allows herself to think only of pleasant things.

Who trains her tongue to utter only pleasant words.

Who remembers that frowns are unbecoming and that smiles are better.

Who keeps her nerves well under control and remembers that they are not an interesting subject to any one.

Who enters into the plans, and, as far as possible, into the doings of the young people about her.

Who never allows herself to become slouchy and careless in appearance.

Who treats others as she likes to be cared for herself and never demands too much from her friends.

Will Soon Announce Speakers.

Those in charge of the Junior banquet to be held at the Casino on Thursday, January 31, expect to be able to announce the names of the toastmaster and speakers within a few days. The committee is now waiting to get the acceptances of one or two speakers before giving the list out.

COLD FACTS!

Chamois Vests

Safeguards health against winter blasts.

POWERS' Pharmacy Co.

PRETTY PRESENTS THAT PLEASE PERFECTLY.

Fancy Toilet Articles, Mirrors, Stationery, Candy, Manicure and Comb and Brush Sets, and Many Other Useful Presents.

Call and Inspect Our Stock.

C. M. NAGLE'S PHARMACY.

Tel. 311-L. Front and Grove Sts.

HOLIDAY GOODS AT N. Y. PRICES.

Perfumes, Cigars, Belle Mead Sweets

Miller's Pharmacy,

Park Ave. and Fourth St.

Hodge's Pharmacy.

Reliable goods in all Departments. Agency for Belle Mead Sweets.

Tel. 210-J. Y. M. C. A. Building.

HOTELS

HOTEL WALDORF

EAST FRONT STREET

HENRY WINDHAM, Prop.

Gottfried Kruger's Extra Beer on draught. Imported Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Hotel accommodations and private dining-rooms.

HOTEL KENSINGTON

(Licensed.)

J. H. STAATS, Prop.

107-109-111 North Avenue.

Everything New and Up-to-date. An inspection solicited.

HOTEL IROQUOIS

Commercial Headquarters. J. W. LEARY, Proprietor. Plainfield, N. J.

Pabst Milwaukee Beer on draft.

SUNDAY DINNERS SPECIAL FEATURE

CESSPOOLS AND GARBAGE.

Mrs. John Brown,

successor to John Burke and Jones & Co.

Cesspoos and Vaults Cleaned from $3.00 upwards

Satisfaction Guaranteed or no give Prices cheerfully you consult me.

Estimates Cheerfully Given.

Leave orders at 1, 7 Valle, North avenue, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone No. 78.

FRANK BURKE, Manager.

NEVADA TRUST COMPANY.

Incorporated 1903.

Deals in mining and other stocks and investments.

Insures against loss on certain stocks. Information on application.

Advises respecting mining securities and other investments in Goldfield, Tonopah, Ely, Bullfrog, Fairview, Wonder, Buckskin, Cuprite and all other mining sections in Nevada.

Organizes companies under Nevada's favorable laws and acts as resident and transfer agent therefor, and for corporations doing business in Nevada or elsewhere throughout the Union.

Opinions furnished respecting corporate obligations and stockholders' rights and liabilities.

If you would know of the great mining and other opportunities in "New Nevada" and of Reno, the commercial capital of the chief mining state, address:

NEVADA TRUST COMPANY,

140 Virginia St., Reno, Nev. 12 26 1m

William H. Pope,

ELECTRICIAN.

All kinds of electrical work done a Specialty by Graduate Electrician.

116 NORTH AVENUE.

J. W. VAN SICKLE

128 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Game in Season. Philadelphia Scrapple.

Orders called for and delivered promptly. Telephone No. 453-J.

AZIENZA

cures pimples and all inflammation of the skin. Used by people of refinement. Medicinal and toilet—25 and 50 cents.

CREAM.

TURKISH BATHS!

TRY ONE

Ladies, morning. Gentlemen, afternoons

Take trolley to Sanitarium.

Somerset Street

Warren B. Travell, C. E.

GENERAL CONTRACTING and ENGINEERING WORK

816 Third Place, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 604-J

BIG REDUCTION

in prices of Lumber. I have over two hundred thousand feet of lumber on hand. All bunks, $15, $18 and $20 per thousand feet. Pine, $15, $18 and $20 per thousand. You can always find me in my yard at any time.

A. KANE.

QUALITY!

You'll GET IT AT HOLT'S In DIAMONDS WATCHES JEWELRY and our REPAIR DEPT.

Quality is our uppermost thought, yet with prices and charges only—fair. Try us. You'll find us Trustworthy Jewelers.

Frank Holt & Co.

Diamond Merchants,

31 & 33 Academy St., opp. P. O., Newark.

New Art Goods

Large assortment of pictures, water color, oil and china, paints and brushes, hand painted pins and buttons.

Pyrographic Goods

Extensive line of designed good outfits from $1.50 up. Burnt leather goods, post-card albums.

Plainfield Art Store.

Y. M. C. A. Building.

D. Demolli & Co.,

French Bakers, Caterers and Confectioners.

Wedding parties and receptions. French Ice Cream and Water Ices. Telephone Order Delivered Promptly.

MINCE PIES Made from home-made mincemeat.

331 West Front Street

Tel. 257-J. Plainfield, N. J.

YOU WILL NEVER BUY A HOME WITH MONEY PAID FOR RENT IN THE PAST.

START NOW TO

OWN A HOME

in your home by taking out shares in

THE CENTRAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD

J. F. MacDonald, Sec'y.

Smalley Building, 142 North Ave.

Hoagland's CITY EXPRESS

Furniture Moving, Baggage, Freight, Piano.

OFFICE 236 Park Avenue. Telephone 855-W

Residence Tel. 648-L

Oysters R Good.

Choice Meats, Poultry, Fish and Oysters always on hand. Sugar cured Corned Beef. International Hams and Bacon.

F. Neidig, 94 Somerset St. Telephone 781

JOHN A. KOCH.

Dealer in

Meats, Poultry, Fish, Oysters, etc.

200 Watchung Ave.

Corner Second Street. Telephone 375-J

Orders Called For and Delivered.

GROCER

Staple and Fancy Lines. Best Minneapolis Blended Down town prices duplicated and quality of stock the best. Prompt deliveries a feature with me.

H. A. WEBER.

140 Liberty St. 'Phone 327-W

Tel. Connection 294-L.

JAMES HARPER

PRACTICAL PLUMBER.

Sanitary Plumbing, Heating, Testing. Jobbing a specialty.

149 Manning avenue.

Great Bargains

may be had in Bicycles and Sundries at

Frucht's Bicycle Store,

224 W. Front St.

Kindling and Crate Wood.

Cedar Posts and Bean Poles. Prompt deliveries. Orders received at 69 Somerset St.

JOHN MOBUS,

P. O. Box 128.

NEW BANKING CONCERN

Plainfield Trust Co. Men to Organize People's National Bank at Westfield.

STOCK MOSTLY TAKEN

J. Herbert Case Says Westfield Men Urged Plainfielders to Organize Another Bank There—Field Promising.

The Comptroller of the Currency has approved the application to organize the People's National Bank of Westfield, with a capital of $50,000 and $10,000 surplus. The incorporators are Charles W. McCutcheon, Orville T. Waring, Samuel Townsend, Charles A. Reed and J. Herbert Case, of this city, and Edward T. Perine, Dr. R. R. Sinclair and Herbert L. Abrams, of Westfield.

In an interview with J. Herbert Case, at the Trust Company this morning, he stated that several prominent Westfield men had requested the co-operation of certain ones connected with this company for the purpose of giving additional banking facilities to the people of Westfield. Westfield has been growing very rapidly for the past few years so that it now has a population of about 6,000 inhabitants, with numerous factories of commercial importance at Garwood and in the vicinity and new has but one banking institution.

A large part of the stock has already been subscribed by Westfield people, although it has not been definitely determined as yet who the officers and directors will be.

FATHER BOGAN'S TRIBUTE TO MICHAEL MULDOWNEY.

Departed from Usual Custom During Mass to Speak of His Valiant Struggle.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of Michael Muldowney, who died of cirrhosis of the liver after a long illness, was held Saturday in St. Mary's church. A solemn high mass of requiem was said by Rev. Father Bogan, assisted by Father Dougherty as deacon and Father Sciola as subdeacon.

Father Bogan departed from the usual custom in order to give an address touching on the life of "Mike" Muldowney. He paid full tribute to the young man for the valiant struggle he had made in the face of every difficulty and declared that when the end came it was with perfect resignation and in the full strength of God. Father Bogan also spoke of the great kindness that had been shown "Mike" in his illness by people of opposite faith and class and the extreme sympathy that had been expressed for him at all times.

The floral tributes were numerous and included many set pieces from friends.

Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the pall bearers being Cormack Kenney, John McCann, Arthur McGinley, John Dunn, Thomas Caulfield and William Drake.

COURT PLAINFIELD ENTERTAINS BIG CROWD

ANNUAL VAUDEVILLE SHOW AND DANCE ECLIPSES ALL PREVIOUS AFFAIRS.

Court Plainfield, No. 1184, I. O. F., conducted its annual entertainment and dance in Barnerfield hall, Friday night, both being attended by one of the largest gatherings that has ever been in the building. A point of finances as well as sociability it exceeded any previous effort of the court members.

The entertainment in the first part of the evening was made up of high class vaudeville artists and every one made a distinct and decided hit. It was preceded by an address of welcome by Charles McCarthy, a member of the committee, and a selected overture by Heinemeyer's orchestra. Those appearing were Add Ob Host, black face comedian; Musical Huels, in mirth and music; Mildred Gilmore, singing comedienne; Bert R. Forrest, humorous monologue artist, and Rousseau twins, assisted by Rousseau, Jr., in songs and dances. Selections were given at intervals by the orchestra and Albert Benzler acted as accompanist for the various numbers. With the close of the programme the floor was cleared for dancing and it was kept up until 3 o'clock this morning.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of James T. McCarthy, chairman; Henry Hansen, Charles McCarthy, Edward McCue, James F. Smith, Martin Hansen, Louis Fetring, Thomas Roddy and Frederic B. Wilbee. Louis Feiring acted as floor manager and his assistants were James M. Smith, Joseph McCue, Frederic Wilbee and Charles McCarthy.

Mr. Higgins Entertains.

Michael Higgins, of West Front street, entertained a party of friends at a dinner at the home of Mr. Ryan on Manning avenue, Thursday night. Covers were laid for twenty. The dinner was followed by a social parlod during which music and dancing were enjoyed.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

BEST YEAR IN THE HISTORY OF THE CATHOLIC PARISH.

The financial statement of St. Mary' church, as prepared by the rector, Rev. B. M. Bogan and attested by Dr. M. J. Cronin and Peter Flynn, trustees, which covers the past year, was distributed at the church services Sunday. Including a balance of $1,545.99 on hand at last report, there has been raised during the year $22,476.05, and there is at present a balance of $4,778.22. The balance in the treasury of the Holy Name Society amounts to $164.50. The statement of receipts and disbursements in detail is as follows:

Receipts—Balance from 1905, $1,545.99; Sunday collections, $2,194.17; monthly (eight), $1,767.27; pew rent, $1,431.25; seat collection, $3,258.44; school offerings, $689.74; coal collection, $572.22; diocesan collections, $54.57; cemetery receipts, $1,397; bequest Mr. Carney, $400; poor box, $150; candles and flowers, $67; donations, $17.50; orphans' board, $120; church societies, $100; school play, $592; fair, $3,969.55; Easter offerings, $1,153.18; Christmas offerings, $1,448.75; interest on deposits, $56.62; total, $22,476.05.

Disbursements—Salary of Rev. Rector, $1,000; salary of Rev. Assistants, $1,240; support of twelve Sisters, $2,336; Bishop's Cathedraticum, $100; diocesan assessments, $461.34; sexton's wages, $565; choir expenses, $638.91; sanctuary requisites, $498.99; water, fuel, light, $1,211.72; insurance, $190.25; taxes, $43.80; repairs, $1,264.55; board of orphans, $488.89; Catholic Children's Aid Society, $118; interest, $447.40; telephone, $76; poor box, $150; school expenses, $1,347.40; printing, freight and expressage, $235; cemetery, $1,472.17; cleaning church and school, $372.25; house maintenance, $1,350.70; a donation to Muhlenberg Hospital, $50; debt paid, $950; paid on new property, $1,000; balance on hand, $4,778.22; total, $22,476.05.

CONSOLIDATION IDEA IS TEN YEARS OLD

BOROUGHITES MET TO DISCUSS PLAN ON JAN. 27, 1897.

The movement to consolidate the city and the borough is not very new, or even very recent. Action for active steps toward the accomplishment of consolidation was started ten years ago, January 27, 1897.

After a good deal of quiet work, a meeting for the organization of the consolidation promoters of that time was held at the home of D. B. Woolston on January 26. The following men signed the roster of the consolidation movement: Newton B. Smalley, L. B. Woolston, James McGee, Frank A. Church, John P. Emmons, Richard S. Curtiss, A. E. Kenney, Walter F. Hamilton, John Valiant, H. B. Wells, S. St. J. McCutchen, Benjamin M. Day, W. J. Buttfield, J. H. Howell, H. K. Carroll, Edwin S. Hooley, Walter M. McGee, Frank Curtis, Samuel Townsend, G. T. Donaldson, J. F. Northrop, George P. Dupee, James C. Peck, Martin I. Cooley, George T. Rogers, W. L. Saunders, William J. Roome, W. O. Worth, Robert S. Miller, Elston M. French, A. E. Faber, Jr., Henry A. McGee.

Four plans were proposed to bring the union about — consolidation, without annexation; annexation; putting Plainfield into Somerset county; formation of a new county.

ENGAGEMENT SOCIAL.

Epworth League Plan a Novel Form of Entertainment.

Engagements were announced and broken at a gathering of young people in Vincent chapel last night. It was a novel form of entertainment provided by the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, and proved to be an enjoyable affair. In all sixty engagements were announced in an assemblage of eighty young people. After the announcement the young people enjoyed themselves in various social ways, playing all kinds of games, with vocal and instrumental music. After the entertainment refreshments were served.

Miss Sayre was chairman of the entertainment, and Miss Edna French was chairman of the committee on refreshments. During the evening a silver offering was received for the flower fund of the church and a considerable sum was given.

Getting Read to Build Sewer.

Under the direction of the Councilmanic street committee plans are being selected for the commencement of work on the extension of the southside sanitary sewer in the spring. Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, has the contract for building the sewer, and Warren Travell, the contract for installing the pumping station on Randolph road on property purchased by the city from Clifton & Campbell. Mr. Travell will install the Ingersoll-Rand Company pump.

MINISTERS RAN A PAPER

Dominees Control One For Just a Day in an Ohio Town.

ALL WERE EDITORS

Refused Liquor "Ads" and Boomed Mayor Who Put On Lid—Nine Columns Church News.

Kenton, O., Jan. 19.—A ministerial association has just endeavored to edit a newspaper "in the spirit that the Apostles of Christ would were they here today to publish a paper under modern circumstances."

The pastors of the Kenton churches, regretting their lack of an organ to advertise their great union religious revival here next month under the leadership of Dr. John S. Hamilton, of Cleveland, were offered the absolute control of one day of the editorial and news columns of the News-Republican, a local daily. The ministers accepted and the preachers moved into the newspaper office and the editors moved out.

The ministers organized as follows: The Rev. Henry Kutterjohn, Evangelical, editor in chief, and the Rev. Morgan A. Peters, Reformed; the Rev. O. L. Martin, Baptist; the Rev. Frank Henry Essert and the Rev. D. G. Hall, Methodist; the Rev. John W. Bickett, United Presbyterian; the Rev. Edmond M. Haston, Presbyterian; the Rev. T. W. Pinkerton, Disciple of Christ, and C. F. Magee, Episcopal, assistant editors.

The ministers issued three thousand extra copies and created quite a stir by their "paper as Apostles would edit."

Nine columns were devoted to news, one-third of which was telegraph, the rest local, seven columns to editorials, one column to personals, two to church announcements, five to miscellaneous articles, one to clubs and societies advocating public movements, such as Young Men's Christian Association; seven columns to articles advertising the coming revival and the rest to "clean advertising."

The motto was boarded clear across the top of the first page. The greatest sensation was a big-headed editorial declaring for the renomination and re-election of the present Republican Mayor of Kenton, Clarence M. Cessna, who has put the lid on in this city for the first time in its history.

The ministers refused to take any liquor or poolroom ads, and at the end of the week's work announced special affair this sentence appeared:

"A very pleasant evening was spent, but we sadly regret to report that the affair was chiefly a dancing party."

The Apostolic editors had a five-column headed article urging the moneyed people of the city to build a Young Men's Christian Association building here, saying "The people ought to raise $30,000 for this purpose."

Among other declarations of the "Apostles' newspaper" were:

"The Bible should be taught in the public schools. People of education even are ignorant of its treasures."

"The ministers of Kenton have entered politics only in view of seeing that virtuous, able and law-loving men of either party fare elected to office."

"This is an age of business. The Church is the King's business."

"Some of the biggest sinners in Kenton are some of the biggest church members."

The ministerial members worked in the sanctum in their shirt sleeves, smoking cigars.

Hillery Bill Amended.

The Hillery limited franchise law of last year will have much of its objectionable features—from a Public Service viewpoint—removed, if one of the twenty-one bills now on the Senate calendar should become a law. The bill in question amends the Hillery law, which prohibits the grant of any franchise for the use of the public streets for a longer period than twenty years, except where a period not exceeding forty years may be allowed by popular vote, by exempting from its provisions all municipalities except first and second class cities. The eamendement will not effect Plainfield.

Miss Touse Entertains.

Miss H. C. Touse entertained a large number of friends from this city and out-of-town at her home, 61 Fairview avenue, Thursday night. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed and prizes were awarded as follows: Women, first, Miss A. Lempert; second, Miss D. Hill. Men, first, W. Etzold, of Dunellen; second, E. Mundy. After the entertainment an elaborate supper was served at midnight. Miss Touse was assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. T. A. Tharp, of New York; the Misses A. Muchling and A. Lempert, of Rutherford, and Miss Gertrude Badum, of Dunellen.

William E. MacClymont, organist and choirmaster at Grace church, has fixed upon Thursday night, January 31, as the time when his choir will give Stainer's cantata, "The Daughter of Jairus." Rehearsals are now being held regularly for the musical service.

CROOK SHOT AT FLY-COP

Latter Surprised Him Trying to Work a Second-Story Job.

DIDN'T SHOOT STRAIGHT

Neither Did the Cop, Who Fired Shots at the Crook—Escaped By Way of Hillside Avenue.

Checked in an attempt to rob the house of Edson E. Parvin, 1202 Watchung avenue, and headed off in his first dash to escape, a second-story thief tried to shoot down Detective F. S. McCarthy early Friday evening. He failed in his marksmanship, but succeeded in getting away despite a stream of bullets sent after him by the detective.

McCarthy was sleuthing about Kensington and Watchung avenues, shortly before 7 o'clock, looking for just such chaps. He spotted the crook lounging at Watchung and Kensington avenues, at 6:50 o'clock. The detective walked by the lounger and continued, with the air of one interested in a waiting dinner, for half a block. Then he turned and sleuthed back, in the manner of gumshoe artists, and found that the crook had wasted no time.

The thief was coming from an unfinished building on Kensington avenue with a ladder left there by one of the workingmen. He crossed the street with the worthy stealing carefully behind in the darkness, and headed for the Parvin house, on the corner of Watchung avenue. He turned to look about and saw the detective.

Dropping the ladder, the crook ran into the Parvin yard and around the east side of the house. McCarthy ran around the opposite side to head him off. They met in front of the kitchen door. The fugitive had a revolver in his hand and opened fire at once. He shot twice, missing both times. With his second shot he turned and fled to Watchung avenue. McCarthy chased after him with his revolver spitting lead. He fired five times, but the fugitive ran on and outstripped him. The crook shook off pursuit at Hillside avenue.

When the shooting at the kitchen door began a servant ran out; then she ran back and gasped tidings of riot and murder to police headquarters over the telephone. Capt. Kiely and two policemen hustled to the scene in the patrol wagon, and met McCarthy at Watchung avenue. The four scattered in a renewed search for the crook, but they were unable to pick up his trail.

McCarthy is the crack shot of the department and he is sure he hit the fugitive. There were no blood marks on the snow, however, to bear out that belief, and the man hustled over the ground as if he was whole enough for all practical purposes.

McCarthy describes the crook as of medium build five feet ten inches in height, wearing dark clothes and a slouch hat.

BOYS' SECRETARY OF Y. M. C. A. RESIGNS.

Haydn W. Barrows to Go Into Business; Will Construct Circle Swings.

Haydn W. Barrows, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has resigned his position. The resignation will take effect February 15. Mr. Barrows will enter business.

It is only five months since Mr. Barrows came to the association. He joined the staff September 15, coming from the Twenty-sixth Ward Branch, Brooklyn, where he had been associated with G. L. Listman, the present physical director of the Y. M. C. A. He has been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work about two years.

Mr. Barrows will enter the employ of the American Circle Swing Company, having charge of construction work. The company builds swings for amusement parks and carnivals.

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors have become devoted followers of Mr. Barrows in the short time he has been here, and they are arranging to tender him a farewell reception. No one has been mentioned yet as Mr. Barrows' successor.

Provides a Souse Fund.

If the stories told by his neighbors are true, there is a man in this city who has sold a $2,500 house in order to give himself a fine fund. He is said to have bought a $2,500 house, in order to leave "$1,000 for a good time." His idea of a good time, as he is said to have explained it, is a steady and unchecked guzzling of strong waters. There is, of course, a question as to the man's sincerity. He may be having fun with his neighbors. But they have all heard of his supposed intentions and they believe he means to keep them.

Will Celebrate 10th Anniversary.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church is planning for its tenth anniversary to be held in the church parlor, Friday afternoon, February 1, at 3 o'clock, and invitations will be sent out by the band. There will be an informal programme, including an address by Mrs. J. S. Allen, of New York, secretary of the Women's Board of Domestic Missions, Reformed Church of America.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

In order to replace a lost thumb a young man in eBrlin has had a great toe amputated and grafted on the stump. The operation has proved successful.

Queen Wilhelmina recently shipped soms cows from Holland for her husband's estate in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. But they were stopped at the German frontier under the law forbidding the importation of foreign cattle.

This dramatic criticism appeared in the Mainzer Neueste Nachrichten: "The Maid of Orleans was born in the village of Domremy Jan. 6, 1412. On May 30, 1431, she was burned alive in the market place of Rouen, and on Oct. 23, 1906, she was buried in the theatre of Mayence. Requiescat in peace."

The smokeless condition in Berlin is ascribed to the preponderant use of smokeless fuel in the form of coke and briquets, the skillful, scientific construction of boiler furnaces and chimneys and finally to the high standard of skill taught and enforced among firemen who stoke furnaces with coal for steam and other purposes.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

On an average 26,000 letters are posted without addresses in England every year.

There have been landslips of thirty or forty acres at a time at Lyme Regis, England, whole fields sliding toward the sea.

One million two hundred and fifty thousand Bibles are contained in the new warehouse of the British and Foreign Bible society in Queen Victoria street, London.

A Lowestoft (England) servant, who successfully sued her mistress in lieu of notice, stated that she was dismissed because she got up early one fine Sunday morning and went for a twenty minutes' walk.

A book which once belonged to Ben Jonson and in which he made notes and wrote his signature and motto was sold in London the other day for $500. The handwriting is minute and beautiful. It is a copy of Martial.

WHAT MONEY IS.

Bait for the matrimonial hook.

The most effective substitute for brains.

Money is the most difficult root to cultivate.

That which women look for while men sleep.

Money is the loudest sound in the voice of life.

What the rich don't need and the poor don't get.

A curse to some that h ave it and a curse to all that haven't.

A provider for everything but happiness, a passport to everywhere but heaven.

The one thing that makes crooked things look straight and straight things crooked.

That which speaks a language we can all understand, but in which so few are able to converse.

The Auto Habit.

Some deiver has found in the Bible what he believes to be a hint of automobiles. It is contained in the story of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite, concerning the burden of Nineveh. In the account given by this seer of the military array of the Medes and Babylonians against Nineveh occurs this verse: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against the other in the broad way, they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightning." *If that doesn't de*scribe a street full of motor cars what does? Then, again, a variant of the word "jostle," which the original Hebrew will, it is said, bear even better, is "pass swiftly, without particular purpose, to and fro." Isn't that the automobile habit?"

Put the children to bed early and have an hour's quietness to yourself.

Hot salt water is said to be very good for chilblain; quite often the pain is relieved by applying iodine.

Honey is very nutritious and should be on the bill of fare of the person who is anxious to accumulate flesh.

Severe sore throat is often relieved by sipping sweetened water in which there is a pinch of cayenne pepper.

Witch hazel is excellent for the eyes, though one should be certain the i liquid is absolutely pure before using.

Do not overlook the value of proper and rational exercise. All the muscles of the body must be used to be of value to one.

Homesick Spencer.

When Herbert Spencer was a boy his father sent him away from home to school. The youngster became homesick and, with 2 shillings in his pocket, made his way home, over 120 miles, in three days, walking most of the way. He did forty-eight miles the first day and forty-seven on the second. On the third day a friendly coach driver took him most of the way for nothing.

Washington Monument.

The towering Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a midsummer's day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft, which is rendered perceptible by means of a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water.

STOKES' ADDRESS TO STATE BOARD.

Spoke Friday of Progress of Agriculture Throughout the State in Past Year.

An address by Governor Stokes was the principal feature of the second day's session of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture at the State House, Trenton, Friday.

The Governor spoke of the great progress agriculture had made in the State and of the plans made for the future advancement of the agricultural interests. He highly congratulated the farmers upon their work and said that their earnest efforts were responsible for the great strides made in the agricultural line during the past few years. As a method of illustrating how the farmers of the State were not only making money, but saving it, he pointed out the prosperity of the banks, the number of new banks and particularly the large increase in the farmers' banks, which are supported almost solely by the men who follow the tilling of the soil.

The executive called attention to the short courses given at the State Agricultural college in New Brunswick, and showed how beneficial these were to farmers and their children. The State Board of Education, Governor Stokes said, is greatly interested in the State college and its system, with the idea of having a preliminary agricultural education taught in the public schools. The Governor said he was in sympathy with such movement.

He told of several experiences he had in farming while a boy and closed by wishing the farmers of New Jersey all the prosperity obtainable. The address brought forth a hearty cheer and applause.

RECORD SAYS NOT GUILTY.

He and Justice Higgins Plead to Indictments for Libel.

Corporation Counsel George L. Record and Police Justice Frank J. Higgins, of Jersey City, pleaded not guilty Friday when arraigned on indictments charging them with criminal libel against Col. Samuel D. Dickinson, Hudson county's Republican leader and Secretary of State.

The arraignment did not take place in open court, but in the office of County Clerk John Rotherham. Both were paroled on their own recognizances. Date for the trial was not settled.

The case grew out of utterances at a cart-tail meeting during the last primary campaign which reflected on Col. Dickinson's honesty.

WOMAN GETS $20,000 VERDICT.

Her Health and Strength Wrecked as the Result of a Trolley Accident.

A jury in the Hudson County Branch of the New Jersey Supreme court on Friday rendered a verdict for $20,000 damages against the North Jersey Street Railway Company. This sum was the full amount for which Miss VanEmburg sued the company for injuries sustained on a trolley car accident Sept. 20, 1904.

She was a healthy and robust young woman at the time of the accident. According to the evidence she is at present a complete physical wreck. The company will appeal the case.

Youth (bursting in excitedly)—Permotion, dad, permotion!

Father—How's that?

Youth—Well, you know I was cast to take the part of the hind legs of the donkey at the pantomime.

Father—Yes.

Youth—Well, now I takes the front legs.—Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday.

The Only Way.

"Yes," said Mr. Blankcep, "I simply had to buy this plain gown on account of our cook."

"Really," replied Mrs. McCall, "I don't understand."

"Well, you see, she goes in for gaudy things and I want to have just one dress that she won't copy!"—Philadelphia Press.

Good Friends.

Gretchen (to best friend)—You were wrong, you see, when you said Mr. Smith did not care for me. Yesterday he asked me to marry him and declared he could eat me up!

Thisa—I congratulate you. I had always heard that his favorite dish was roast!—Translated from Transatlantic Tales from Meggendorfer Blatter.

Aluminium Wire for Magnets.

Magnet windings of uninsulated wire are said to have proved feasible by the use of aluminium wire, the natural oxide upon which forms an effective insulation for moderate voltage. For over 200 volts, paper wound over the wire the layers is effective, and for higher potentials, extra oxidization has been secured by dipping in a chemical bath.

Mistook His Destination.

An editor of a western exchange recently began worrying about how he would get his shirt on over his wings after reaching paradise. An envious contemporary sarcastically observed that his difficulty would likely be in finding out how he could get his hat on over his horns.—Gayman (Kan.) Herald.

The Anawanda Club will hold its first bazaar at T. A. B. Hall January 24 to 26. The club is an auxiliary of the T. A. B. Society.

Will Prepare to Enter Naval Academy

BOOMS FOR GENERALSHIP

Collins, Dungan, Gilkyson and Martin Are Mentioned For Gilmore's Place.

COLLINS IS OPPOSED

Governor Stokes Expresses Appreciation of Retiring Officer's Services On Accepting Resignation.

Governor Stokes has accepted the resignation of General Quincy O'M. Gilmore, commanding the 2d Brigade of the New Jersey National Guard. In addition to the general order he directed to be issued accepting the resignation, the Governor wrote a letter to General Gilmore, expressing his personal appreciation of the work he has done in increasing the efficiency of the guard.

There is already a lively fight on over the election of General Gilmore's successor, who is to be chosen by the field officers of the brigade. Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, commanding the 2d Regiment, is senior officer in the line of promotion, but he is opposed by some other officers.

Colonel Collins has figured in several disputes with his officers, and this is assigned as part reason for the hostility to him. Colonel Thomas S. Chambers, assistant adjutant general of the division, will be the candidate of some of the officers of both the 2d and 4th regiments, if he will consent to run. Colonel Chambers, however, has announced that he would not seek the office.

Lieutenant Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville; Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Gilkyson and Major W. B. Martin, of Elizabeth, are also being urged to become candidates.

Mr. Barton a Court Stenographer.

Louis Barton, who has been employed by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, as a stenographer and typewriter for several years, has taken a position as court stenographer and will be located at Elizabeth, to which place he has moved. His new duties will take him in the Circuit Court, Court of Quarter Sessions and Orphans' Court, and will also give him an opportunity to practice law. Mr. and Mrs. Barton will reside on Union street, Elizabeth.

May Install Independent Plant.

Providing there is no prospect of getting good supply of ice by February 1, the Swift Beef Company, of East Third street, will make arrangements to install its own ice plant, one similar to that now in use by Smalley Brothers, the North avenue butchers. Other merchants about the city may do likewise. Last summer many of the merchants were obliged to pay exorbitant prices for ice and they declare that they will not be caught that way again.

Committed to Jail.

Robert N. Moore, of Fanwood, also known as Bertram Moore, was committed to the county jail yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace James P. Kelly, to await the action of the Grand Jury on the charge of having since September 1 last, and almost continually since, violated the excise law by selling without a license. The complaint was made by Detective John Galatian.

Will Describe Trip to the Pole.

An event of unusual interest will be the illustrated lecture to be given by Commander Robert E. Peary at the First M. E. church, Saturday night, January 26, when he will describe his last trip to the North Pole and exhibit sixty fine colored views. Commander Peary's address is filled with thrilling incidents which cannot fail to interest everyone.

$2,500 For Loss of Leg.

The jury at New Brunswick in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Joseph Floersch against William J. Donnell, of Perth Amboy, for damages sustained by Floersch when at work in Donnell's lumber yard, brought in esturday a verdict of $2,500. Floersch had his leg injured by the falling of a pile of lumber. Later it was amputated.

Praise For Company K.

Governor Stokes has just received from Adjutant-General R. Heber Brentnall the annual report on the National Guard of New Jersey. In commenting on the various companies in the State, the following is said of Company K: "Men of good character. They are very zealous and would do very good work in emergencies."

Rector For 13 Years.

Monsignor Charles J. Kelly, D. D., of Hoboken, formerly of Plainfield, spent Thursday in quietly observing the thirteenth anniversary of his rectorate of the Church of Our Lady of Grace and receiving congratulations from his parishioners. Monsignor Kelly has ever since he entered the priesthood been one of the hardest workers in the church.

Elk Show Tickets On Sale.

The tickets for the local Elks' vaudeville show have been placed on sale and Treasurer Clarence Teel reports a good many already disposed of. Members of the lodge are buying them up rapidly and there is no doubt but what a full house will greet the artists.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a-

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1907.

ROOSEVELT AS A DEMOCRAT.

In supporting the President's policy on the Brownsville trouble, Senator Carmack Thursday took occasion to invite him to join the Democratic party, pointing out that whenever Mr. Roosevelt wielded the big stick" the Democrats in Congress held him while his own party went on the warpath. It is a peculiar fact that during the warm debates in the Senate over the dismissal of the negro troops, the Democrats defended the Republican President, great men in the minority party who raised their voices in his behalf were Senators Daniel, Culberson, Mallary, Patterson, Carmack, Clay, Stone and Money. His only defenders, strange as it may seem, among those who "want to go to Washington to uphold the President's hands" were Senators Lodge, Spooner, Knox and Heyburn.

But the Brownsville incident is not the only case in point where the President has had the support of the Democratic Senator Tillman, who flayed him unmercifully the other day. Has Mr. Roosevelt's spokesman on a bill of great importance but a short time ago. According to authentic reports on that occasion, not a single Senator of either of the Republican side would champion the Chief Executive's ideas and it fell to the lot of a Democrat, therefore, to assume the task.

The real fact is that it is getting harder every day to draw any party distinction between the views of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan on the majority of political issues. While the Democratic leader has been expounding as good doctrine for a long time has found a champion lately in the Chief Magistrate of the Nation; there are very few questions, indeed, today, upon which the two seem to hold radically different views and therefore Senator Carmack may rightly ask to which party does Mr. Roosevelt belong.

It is not to the President's discredit in the least to hold opposite views from the majority of the Republican Senators for the G. O. P. is not to be indicted at the bar of public opinion because of the action of the "Millionaires' Club" members. They are not the best authority on party doctrine by a long shot. Too many of them are only nominal Republicans—Republicans when it does not injure the interest of the purse. The President is a Republican when the Republicans are right and a Democrat when the Democrats are right; he is the sincere and aggressive champion of the whole people.

POLES AND THE LAW

When valuable property, such as the Plainfield Trust Company's, is disfigured by unsightly poles and wires erected by a public utility corporation, it might be well for the owners to seek advice of counsel, especially when the City Fathers do not appear to show any inclination to do their duty. There is no excuse whatever for allowing such nuisance and real danger to continue; at least none has been advanced. Consequently, a recourse to the courts might bring about the desired result.

While it may be uncertain how New Jersey justice would decide such a matter, a ruling in New York recently shows how the rights of property owners are respected in that State. It appears that a telephone company obtained a permit from the Council at Bayridge, L. I., for stringing its wires along certain streets. But the public utility people forgot to figure on property owners' rights and that proved to be their undoing. A plucky woman, who did not intend that her property should be disfigured raised objection, although the company went right ahead and raised its wires above her sidewalk. Straightway, the woman in question went to law for redress. The matter came up in the Supreme Court.

In rendering his decision Justice Garrett J. Garretson held that the use of the highway for the support of a line of poles and wires for the purpose of transmitting messages for the general public by electricity was in no sense a proper street use and, that, therefore, notwithstanding the statute and the city permits, the erection and maintenance of those of poles and wires for that purpose without the owner's consent was unauthorized and illegal, and the plaintiff was directed to remove the poles and wires from the street.

LEE'S PLACE IS HISTORY.

That any correct estimate of a public man's real rank in life can only be obtained after a lapse of years from the time he passes into memory is exemplified in the case of Robert Edward Lee. So long as Northerners would wave "the bloody shirt," not even the true worth of this model Christian and soldier could be brought home to his countrymen. Happily sectional feeling has now passed away and the North vies with the South today in paying tribute to the few really great men that took up arms against the union of States. The greatest of these was unquestionably the commanding general of all the Confederate forces, who son of "Lighthorse" Harry Lee, of Revolutionary fame. The centenary celebration of this brilliant officer on Saturday was marked by the remarkable tributes paid him by a galaxy of the foremost historians and military men of the country in addition to those of President Roosevelt, and others whose opinions are really valuable.

The splendid eulogies of General Frederick D. Grant, the son of General U. S. Grant, and Charles Francis Adams, of similar import, who styles himself a "Yankee of the Yankees," were particularly noteworthy. In paying homage to the Confederate chieftain, Adams, the historian, declared "as the result of much patient study and most mature reflection I consider that the highest military genius I would myself have done exactly as Lee did." He was referring, of course, to Lee's action in resigning from the Federal army to side with Virginia, holding that loyalty to his own State should be placed before duty to his country.

The homage paid by Mr. Roosevelt was none the less remarkable. In a letter to the Centenary Committee the President said to Lee:

"His campaigns put him in the foremost ranks of the great captains of all time. But his signal valor and address in war are no more remarkable than the spirit in which he turned to the work of peace once the war was over. The circumstances were such that most men, even of high character, would have bitter and vindictive or depressed and spiritless, but General Lee's heroic temper was not warped nor his great soul cast down. He stood that hardest of all strains, the strain of bearing himself well through the gray evening of failure; and therefore out of what seemed failure he helped to build the wonderful and mighty triumph of our national life, in which all his countrymen, North and South, share."

The Democratic leader has been expounding as good doctrine for a long time has found a champion lately in the Chief Magistrate of the Nation; there are very few questions, indeed, today, upon which the two seem to hold radically different views and therefore Senator Carmack may rightly ask to which party does Mr. Roosevelt belong.

It is not to the President's discredit in the least to hold opposite views from the majority of the Republican Senators for the G. O. P. is not to be indicted at the bar of public opinion because of the action of the "Millionaires' Club" members. They are not the best authority on party doctrine by a long shot. Too many of them are only nominal Republicans—Republicans when it does not injure the interest of the purse. The President is a Republican when the Republicans are right and a Democrat when the Democrats are right; he is the sincere and aggressive champion of the whole people.

POLES AND THE LAW

When valuable property, such as the Plainfield Trust Company's, is disfigured by unsightly poles and wires erected by a public utility corporation, it might be well for the owners to seek advice of counsel, especially when the City Fathers do not appear to show any inclination to do their duty. There is no excuse whatever for allowing such nuisance and real danger to continue; at least none has been advanced. Consequently, a recourse to the courts might bring about the desired result.

While it may be uncertain how New Jersey justice would decide such a matter, a ruling in New York recently shows how the rights of property owners are respected in that State. It appears that a telephone company obtained a permit from the Council at Bayridge, L. I., for stringing its wires along certain streets. But the public utility people forgot to figure on property owners' rights and that proved to be their undoing. A plucky woman, who did not intend that her property should be disfigured raised objection, although the company went right ahead and raised its wires above her sidewalk. Straightway, the woman in question went to law for redress. The matter came up in the Supreme Court.

In rendering his decision Justice Garrett J. Garretson held that the use of the highway for the support of a line of poles and wires for the purpose of transmitting messages for the general public by electricity was in no sense a proper street use and, that, therefore, notwithstanding the statute and the city permits, the erection and maintenance of those of poles and wires for that purpose without the owner's consent was unauthorized and illegal, and the plaintiff was directed to remove the poles and wires from the street.

LEE'S PLACE IS HISTORY.

That any correct estimate of a public man's real rank in life can only be obtained after a lapse of years from the time he passes into memory is exemplified in the case of Robert Edward Lee. So long as Northerners would wave "the bloody shirt," not even the true worth of this model Christian and soldier could be brought home to his countrymen. Happily sectional feeling has now

AMUSEMENTS.

The group of mermaids in "Neptune's Daughter" at the New York Hippodrome has aroused so much interest and caused so much talk that the management has decided to place the names of the mermaids on the programme. In order that all may be promoted to the dignity of becoming principals. This honor of having their names on the programme is also to perpetuate the original Mermaid Octette, which threatens to become as famous as the original Florodora Sextette. So man aliened Florodora girls have laid claim to being members of the original sextette of that famous opera, that the Hippodrome management believes the rights of the original Mermaids should be fully protected, so that future chorus girls at the Hippodrome may not falsely claim to have been members of the original octette. The eight names that go on the programme are Margaret Townsend, chief mermaid; Beryl Hamilton, Carolina Perdina, Juanita Davis, Kitty Watkinson, Marion Pardue, Hattie Dorsell, and Bernice Elser.

Miss Eleanor Robson, who is decmiled for the entire season at the Liberty theatre in New York, will make the first production of a new romance play that has been especially written for her by Paul Armstrong, the author of "The Heir to the Hoorah," and to which has been given the title "Salomy Jane," tonight. The piece, in which extraordinary interest is being taken, is founded upon some of the incidents of Bret Harte's stories of California, "Salomy Jane's Kiss," and the novelty is three fold; first in that it gives Miss Robson an opportunity to essay a straight character part, something she has never yet attempted; second, that the scenic effects will be entirely new to the stage, and third-ly, that the star will be surrounded by a company of extraordinary excellence that has been especially selected for the various types the members of it are to assume. The story is said to be remarkable for its tensity and sympathetic appeal to the emotions, and to be entirely different from anything that has yet been given to the stage. a Miss Robson's support will be found H. B. Warner, Theodore Roberts, Ralph Delmore, Cadbrook Blinn, Earl Browne, Henry Harmon, Stephen Wright, James Seeley, Horace iVnton, Donald Gallagher, Ada Dwyer, Frances Golden Pullet and Ruth Abbott Wells.

As one of the Ipremost New York dramatic critics expresses it: "Musical Reviews may come and Musical Reviews may go, but Bonita and her Merry Woman and Bonita Comedy Company will go on forever." Such is the opinion of all of the press of this city since the initial performance of this artistic aggregation at the New Circle theatre, where they will remain for an indefinite period. The vehicle which presents Bonita and her merry cohorts is called "Going Into Vaudeville," in which all of the most talked of actors and actresses are satirized. The entire entertainment possesses a refinement of wit and humor which forces it into immediate favor and popularity. Miss Bonita possesses all of the necessary attributes of a most successful star. She is unquestionably the handsomest woman on the stage today; is an accomplished singer and an actress of the very highest possible grade. Her work being clean cut and finished to a remarkable degree.

CHANGES FAITH FOR LOVE.

When Henry Finkelstein, an 18-year-old musician, of Newark, appeared at the Elizabeth City Hall Thursday to be married to Gertrude *Bautsch, a 17-year-old girl, of Ro*selle, and asked Mayor Ryan to marry them, he did not tell the Mayor that *they had already been mar*ried by a rabbi on Thursday night. When the Mayor refused to perform the ceremony it was because he had learned the young man did not have the consent of his parents to the wedding.

Rabbi Bernstein, of the Synagogue Holcha Yosher, had made no objections to marrying the couple on the score of age or parental consent *Thursday, but he did object to unit*ing Finkelstein, who is a Jew, to Miss Bautsch, a Gentile. Miss Bautsch, after talking matters over with her lover, said she would become a Jewess.

Doesn't Agree With Day.

The Rev. Charles Stelzle does not agree with Chancellor Day of Syracuse University, whose views workingmen were heard at a dinner of the alumni of the university several evenings ago. The clergyman spoke at the West Side Y. M. C. A. in order to have an afternoon, taking for his subject, "Labor's Champion," and said that Chancellor Day's charge that workingmen worked as little as possible to get as much as possible was untrue.

Those Girls.

Miss X. Acting—Yes, indeed, I shall insist that the man who marries me shall be as unselfish after marriage as before.

Miss Cutting—Are you sure, dear, that his unselfishness will not be exhausted in marrying you?—Pacific Monthly.

Will Stock Waters With Bass.

Game and Fish Warden C. M. Hawkins, of Elizabeth, has received a large consignment of black bass and will distribute them in lakes and ponds throughout the county.

LITERARY.

Gertrude Lynch is the author of a striking novel, "Winds of the World," which opens the February Smart Set, and a story with a more original plot has not recently appeared. Two women reared in the same country town are thrown together in an extraordinary way after many years of separation, the one poor, the other fabulously rich. Following this seemingly old situation is an entirely new and unexpected denouement. Miss Lynch's gift for searching character analysis has never been more in evidence, and this piece of work will, beyond question, give her a lasting place among modern fiction writers.

The January-March Forum, a typical number of this high-class American quarterly review, is just out. In its regular departments are to be noted "Psychological" articles on "American Politics," by Henry Litchfield West; "Foreign Affairs," by A. Maurice Low; "Finance," by Alexander D. Noyes; "The Educational Outlook," by Ossian H. Lang; and "Applied Science," by Cleveland Harrison Suples. Two literary papers of authority and excellence are "A few Books on Shakespeare," by Prof. W. P. Trent, and "Some Recent Guides to Culture," by Prof. William T. Brewster. Henry Tyrrell contributes a long and useful review of the season's drama. "Inexpensive Reciprocity," by Prof. John Bates Clark, is a highly suggestive discussion of the tariff question by a well-known and able specialist. Another special article of striking interest is "The Reawakening of China and the American Intrest in the Orient," by Mohammand Barkatullah.

Even the richest man in the world has a side that is not entirely lined with gold. All the millions owned by John D. Rockefeller cannot de*prive him of certain human attri*butes common to all of us. He must sleep and eat and take relaxation in some form or the poorest devil on earth and perhaps there is an interest in the way he meets his waking hours. The Woman's Home Companion thought so and it sent a representative to see the rich man at home. The result is an article in the February number of the magazine illustrated with photographs supplied by Mr. Rockefeller himself.

TRAIN TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS FOR NURSES.

Dr. Wright Makes Suggestion in His Annual Report—To Use Glen Gardner for Purpose.

In his annual report to Governor Stokes, the Rev. George B. Wight, D. D., *States commissioner of chari*ties and corrections, suggests that in order to make the new tuberculosis sanitarium at Glen Gardner an eminently practical institution, the buildings which are now being erected should be used jointly as a hospital for tuberculosis patients of the indigent class and as a training school in which those affected in a less serious degree with the white plague may be trained as nurses for tuberculosis patients throughout the State. He also suggests the manner in which such nurses might be of the most use. Dr. Wight also urges that the State should not relinquish its right to employ its prisoners upon contract work.

Dr. Wight says the Glen Gardner sanitarium buildings are approaching completion. He cites that this institution, furnished and equipped, will cost $300,000 and will accommodate 198 patients to be selected from the so-called thousands of curable cases of consumption now in the State. "How the selection is to be *made and what number will be as*signed to the respective counties, does not yet appear," comments Dr. Wight who has found by the court to be unfitted for the position. Then only should the person be appointed who can solve the problem. Wight, "but the board of managers common please to be indigent and a physician shall certify to be curable. It follows, therefore, I presume, that when a patient is found to be incurable he must be discharged. The managers report that it will require $8.83 a week for the maintenance of each patient. At present there is no appropriation for maintenance, the *legislature of last winter having re*pealed the previous appropriation and omitting to make one for 1907. The matter will, of course, be presented to the present Legislature."

COURT FROZEN OUT.

Council Chamber Too Cold For District Court Session.

Lack of heat in the Council chambers compelled Judge Newcorn to hold the District Court session in the clerk's room Tuesday. The Council chamber was so cold that the judge found it out of the question to hold court there.

*Only three of the eleven cases list*ed were disposed of. William F. Gaston was awarded $42.51, on contract, against Carmack Coyle; G. W. V. Moy appeared for the plaintiff. T. E. Rauh was given judgment for $91.45 against Harry A. Norton, on proof; Ellery Robbins, of Trenton, was his lawyer. The contract case of A. M. Griffen against M. A. Rose was reported settled.

Junior Endeavor Sale.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold a cake and candy sale in the primary department room of the church Saturday afternoon. The proceeds will be given to missions.

AUTO ABUSES ARE GREATLY REDUCED

NEW JERSEY IN VANGUARD FOR LEGISLATION ON MOTORING.

Notwithstanding the fact that the report of J. R. K. Smith, jr., commissioner of motor vehicles, which has just been presented to Governor Stokes, makes many suggestions for betterment of the Frelinghuysen automobile law, it is shown that the law worked more successfully than was expected by those who desired an act which would secure adequate enforcement of the provisions against abuses by autoists.

Commissioner Smith points out that the abuses have been reduced as much as 75 per cent., and declares that it is not too much to say that New Jersey has taken its place in the vanguard of States for the progressive legislation upon the automobile question. He claims that, with certain changes, New Jersey will have practically a perfect automobile law. It is Mr. Smith's opinion that all future legislation on the subject should be directed only to the elimination of abuses connected with the use of motor vehicles. He suggests a new system of registration and identification, and illustrates how an interstate system of registration would work. He is not only to autoists, but also New Jersey. The report touches to a considerable extent on speed regulation, and says the average justice's court is not the proper place for the trial of those accused of violating the motor vehicle act, and that cases of such cases be brought before the Court of Common Pleas or a special court. The report contains a strong condemnation of selfish autoists.

"While it cannot be said that the Frelinghuysen law is by any means the last legislative word to be spoken on the subject—nor did its framers have any idea that it would be—it is probably true that the law has more nearly fulfilled the expectations of those who have desired a measure which would secure an adequate enforcement of the provisions against abuses of the motor vehicle traffic than any law yet enacted. It was not the purpose of the act unnecessarily to interfere with or retard the development of the motor vehicle, but rather to protect the rights and privileges of those persons who use such vehicles in a lawful and proper manner. To this end the rights and privileges of the motorists were more properly conserved by this law than by any previous legislation on the same subject in this State, in fact, by the laws of most of the other States. The most important features of the act, however, were those providing for the enforcement of the provisions against violations of the law and the rights of others.

"It is not claimed that the law has given absolute security to the rights and privileges of motorists or that it has entirely eradicated the abuses attending the use of motor vehicles, but the best information at our hands leads to the conclusion that there is undoubtedly a much clearer and more charitable understanding of the proper place and function of the motor vehicle, while the reports from the different localities of this State warrant us in believing that the abuses have been reduced in some places as much as 75 per cent. In others a much less percentage of gain has probably been attained. Such results for the first six months of its operation would seem to establish the wisdom of its framers, and it is not too much to say that New Jersey has taken its place in the vanguard of States for progressive legislation upon this subject. With certain changes, as their need becomes apparent, we may confidently hope to have in the near future a practically perfect law.

"The broad principles of equity and of equal rights should underlie all attempts at regulation on this as well as any other subject, and all legislation should only be made with such principles in view. A person is neither more nor less a law abiding citizen because he is in a motor car, and a vehicle is neither more nor less 'a vehicle' because it is propelled by its own power. Any legislative or executive discrimination, either in favor of or against the motor car or its occupant, is a direct violation of the fundamental principles of liberty, and our courts could rightfully nullify such discrimination. The motor vehicles, the beast of burden, the pedestrian, and all other lawful users of the road have equal rights each with the other, and any infringement of these by any user, by legislation, or by a misguided conception of the proper method of the law's enforcement, is wrong.

"All regulation and all legislation on the subject should be directed only to the elimination of abuses connected with the use of motor vehicles. Its recent advent and rapid progress, its great power, its novelty, the many abuses as well as uses of which it is capable, have served to perplex the public, the legislator, the politician and the public alike, and because of this neither should be hastily censured. The great majority of each class is desirous of doing right, but time is necessary to comprehend and clear-ly understand the duties of all. The law abiding motorist is liable to overestimate his rights and the tendency of older users is to resent the trouble caused in making a place for the new arrival, while the defiant and selfish motorist disgusts and annoys all alike.

"The whole question will eventually fit itself to reason and justice, and that desirable end can be hastened or regarded according to the zeal and sincerity with which all persons in *interest endeavor to learn and to ap*ply the principles of right and equity to others as well as to themselves. Statute laws can then be framed which will unerringly set out the rights and privileges, not only of motorists, but of all who use the roads, and will also provide the proper punishment for those who transgress, while the executive officers will understand their duty clearly in protect*ing those rights and in punishing* those who offend against them."

Men to Cook Supper.

The men of Holy Cross church will cook and serve a dinner in the parish house on February 11. Rev. George Warner will be among the "chefs" and has promised to make some famous "Buffy" biscuits. An informal programme is being arranged to be given in connection with the supper.

Fisks Sell Seat.

The Boston Stock Exchange seat of Alexander G. Fisk, of Harvey Fisk & Sons, have been sold to Charles T. Lovering, jr., for $38,500, a new high record. The last previous sale was at $37,500.

Wrenched Ligaments.

Frederick Douglas, of Madison avenue, foreman of a telephone construction gang, has wrenched the ligaments in his right ankle in sliding down a tree. His foot was turned by a gnarled root. The injury will keep him from work for some time.

County of Union, ss:

The State of New Jersey to the sheriff of said County, Greeting:

(L. S.)Summon John T. K. Van Derveer, Anton H. Meyer, Jacob Schaye, builder, and Anton H. Meyer, mortgagee, to appear before the Circuit Court in and for the county of Union, at Elizabeth, in the said county, on the nineteenth day of January, 1907, that the said Mortimer A. Delhaye, builder, may answer unto the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claimant, in an action upon contract, to the claimant's damage, three thousand dollars, as is said, for which the said J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claimant, in an action upon contract, to the claimant's damage, three thousand dollars, as is said, for which the said John T. K. Van Derveer, upon which the said Anton H. Meyer holds a mortgage of record, and which are described as follows: The said building is a two story brick building on a lot of land situated in the city of Plainfield in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the southwest side line of West Fourth street, said point being in direction eighty-five (85) feet from the southeasterly corner of the said West Fourth street; thence along said side line of New-ark street, south, thirty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes east, seventy-three and ninety-five one-hundredths (73.95) feet to a stake; thence south fifty-one degrees and nine minutes west, forty-eight and ninety-eight one-hundredths (48.98) feet to a stake; thence north forty degrees and forty-five minutes west, seventy-three and seventy-five one hundredths (73.75) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and fifty-four minutes east, forty-seven and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to the beginning. Together with the land in front thereof, to the centre of said street.

Witness, Francis J. Swayze, Judge of our said Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, in said county the fifth day of January, nineteen hundred and seven.

JAMES M. SALVERT, Clerk.

WM. M. STILLMAN, Attorney.

1 20 5 cow

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CREST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c. Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.

In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 2.37, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.20, 7.58, 8.10, 8.30, 9.00, 9.30, 10.00, 11.00 a. m., 12.00 noon, 12.10, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 3.30, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.30 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 2.37, 4.47, 7.38, 8.01, 8.30, 9.34, 9.49, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.40, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.30 p. m.

For Newark—2.17, 2.37, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 6.57, 7.20, 7.58, 8.10, 8.30, 8.55, 9.25, 9.55, 10.28, 10.55, 11.30, 12.10, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 3.30, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30, 6.00, 6.30, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.30 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 2.37, 4.47, 7.38, 8.01, 8.30, 9.34, 9.49, 10.30, 11.30 a. m., 12.40, 1.00, 2.00, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.30 p. m.

For Somerville—5.10, 7.11, 8.17, 9.37, 11.00 a. m., 1.09, 1.47 (Saturday only), 2.02, 2.09, 3.49, 4.33, 5.04, 5.28, 5.57 (except Saturdays), 6.04, 6.19, 6.37, 7.29, 9.09, 9.37, 10.33, 11.26 p. m. 12.39 (except Mondays) night. Sunday—5.45, 8.42, 11.13 a. m., 1.09, 2.02, 3.49, 5.37, 7.05, 8.05, 10.15, 11.16, 11.25 p. m.

For Flemington—7.11, 11.00 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 6.37 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 5.37 p. m.

For Phillipsburg and Easton—5.25, 8.21, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 5.47 and 6.31 p. m. Sunday—8.46 a. m., 2.09, 5.47, 7.05 p. m.

For Bethlehem and Intermediate and Main Chunk—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 2.03, 5.47, 7.05 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—9.55 a. m., 5.28, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Long Branch and Asbury Park, etc., 2.17, 11.30 a. m., 2.09, 5.28 p. m. Sundays—12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 4.45, 6.29, 11.28 p. m. Sunday—8.45 a. m., 3.50, 5.47 p. m.

For Red Bank—2.37, 5.36, 6.02, 6.29, 9.30, 10.55 a. m., 12.42, 2.44, 5.28, 5.47, 6.46, 8.29, 11.28 p. m. Sundays—2.37, 8.01, 8.52 a. m., 3.50, 8.13 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—2.37, 9.30, 10.55 a. m., 12.42 (Atlantic City and Cape May Saturdays only), 1.27, 2.44, (4.07 Lakewood only), 5.28, 5.47, 6.46 p. m. (and equity to others as well as to themselves. Statute laws can then be framed which will unerringly set out the rights and privileges, not only of motorists, but of all who use the roads, and will also provide the proper punishment for those who transgress, while the executive officers will understand their duty clearly in protect*ing those rights and in punishing* those who offend against them."

Men to Cook Supper.

The men of Holy Cross church will cook and serve a dinner in the parish house on February 11. Rev. George Warner will be among the "chefs" and has promised to make some famous "Buffy" biscuits. An informal programme is being arranged to be given in connection with the supper.

Fisks Sell Seat.

The Boston Stock Exchange seat of Alexander G. Fisk, of Harvey Fisk & Sons, have been sold to Charles T. Lovering, jr., for $38,500, a new high record. The last previous sale was at $37,500.

Wrenched Ligaments.

Frederick Douglas, of Madison avenue, foreman of a telephone construction gang, has wrenched the ligaments in his right ankle in sliding down a tree. His foot was turned by a gnarled root. The injury will keep him from work for some time.

County of Union, ss:

The State of New Jersey to the sheriff of said County, Greeting:

(L. S.)Summon John T. K. Van Derveer, Anton H. Meyer, Jacob Schaye, builder, and Anton H. Meyer, mortgagee, to appear before the Circuit Court in and for the county of Union, at Elizabeth, in the said county, on the nineteenth day of January, 1907, that the said Mortimer A. Delhaye, builder, may answer unto the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claimant, in an action upon contract, to the claimant's damage, three thousand dollars, as is said, for which the said J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, claims a lien on certain lands of the said John T. K. Van Derveer, upon which the said Anton H. Meyer holds a mortgage of record, and which are described as follows: The said building is a two story brick building on a lot of land situated in the city of Plainfield in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the southwest side line of New-ark street, said point being in direction eighty-five (85) feet from the southeasterly corner of the said West Fourth street; thence along said side line of New-ark street, south, thirty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes east, seventy-three and ninety-five one-hundredths (73.95) feet to a stake; thence south fifty-one degrees and nine minutes west, forty-eight and ninety-eight one-hundredths (48.98) feet to a stake; thence north forty degrees and forty-five minutes west, seventy-three and seventy-five one hundredths (73.75) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and fifty-four minutes east, forty-seven and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to the beginning. Together with the land in front thereof, to the centre of said street.

Witness, Francis J. Swayze, Judge of our said Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, in said county the fifth day of January, nineteen hundred and seven.

JAMES M. SALVERT, Clerk.

WM. M. STILLMAN, Attorney.

1 20 5 cow

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect Nov. 18th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

7.55 a.m. daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk.

8.42 a. m. daily, express to Easton, Wilkesbarre, Rochester, Buffalo, and principal Intermediate stations.

10.46 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.

1.52 p. m. daily, local for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.

3.45 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express" Solid vestibule train to Wilkesbarre through Parlor Car via Delaware, L. & W. R. R. Scranton and Carbondale.

6.46 p. m. daily, solid vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.

6.23 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.

On Saturday open one half hour later.

Arrive—7.20, 8.40, 11.30 a. m.; 2.40, 5.05, 7.44 p. m.

Close—7.30, 8.30 a. m., 1.00, 2.30, 6.00, 7.45 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Arrive—8.00 a. m.; 2.25, 7.00 and 7.30 p.m.

Close—7.40 a. m. and 4.40 p. m.

SOMERVILLE—Arrive—8.40 [illegible] Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.00, 2.30, 6.00 p. m.

FRANKLIN—Arrive—West of Fourth street, 12.25 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.40 p. m.

Close—7.30, 8.30 a. m., 1.00, 2.30 and 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.20, 8.40, 11.25 a. m.; 2.40 and 7.44 p. m.

Close—7.15, 7.40, 9.10 a. m.; 12.25, 4.30, 7.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close 4.30 and 7.15 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel)—

Arrives—8.40 a. m. Close 1.00 p. m.

Watchung—Arrive 8.40 p. m. Close 1.30 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.

Mail closes at 8.15 p. m.

GEO. H. BIRD, P. M

Seat for Every Passenger.

Jersey City's Board of Street and Water Commissioners on Wednesday day an ordinance requiring the Public Service Corporation to improve its trolley service during the morning and evening rush hours. The ordinance calls for additional cars on the line between the Pennsylvania and Erie Railroad stations and requires that every passenger shall be provided with a seat.

Mrs. H. Worthington Paige, of Oneonta, N. Y., is visiting her mother, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of Grove street. Mrs. Paige and her husband, Dr. Paige, recently moved from New York to Oneonta, where he will practice medicine.

Rev. John A. VanNest, of Ridgewood, called on his former college mate, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, yesterday. He also spent a portion of the day with Rev. A. C. McCrea and the night at the home of his friend, Peter Garretson, of Sherman avenue.

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKeiver, of Grandview avenue, are spending a week at Palm Beach, Fla.

Fred Armstrong, who has been quite ill at his home on Duer street, continues to improve.

GUN BURST, BOY DIED PHELPS STOKES' VIEWS 2 BALLOTS; DEADLOCK!

(Continued from Page 1.)

Elven-Year-Old DeWitt Giles Instantly Killed By Fragment.

STRUCK TO HIS HEART

Tragic Ending To Hunt After Sparrows With a Civil War Musket —Man Held Fatal Gun.

Struck by a section of the barrel of a bursting gun, DeWitt Giles, eleven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Giles, of South Plainfield, was killed almost instantly, Monday afternoon, in the front yard of his home. A jagged chunk of metal three inches in diameter pierced his side to the heart.

The gun was in the hands of Thomas Johnson, 27 years old, a neighbor of the Giles family. Johnson and James Giles, fourteen years old, brother of the dead boy, were shooting at sparrows together when the accident occurred. Neither was hurt by the flying fragments.

DeWitt and James had gone into their yard, armed with a double-barrelled gun, to pepper the sparrows flying about, shortly after noontime. A few minutes after the shooting began the boys saw Johnson on his way from his house, to the barn. They called to him to join them, and he did so. He carried himself with an ancient muzzle-loader, that had been used by his uncle in the Civil War.

James had the double-barrelled gun when Johnson joined the boys. Twice the old muzzle-loader was fired safely, DeWitt Giles standing at Johnson's left, watching the old gun go off with boyish interest.

The third time Johnson pulled the trigger the musket roared with a new note, and the barrel burst. DeWitt Giles screamed. He ran two steps and dropped. When the frightened man and his boy companion bent over him, DeWitt was dead; death must have followed his scream instantly.

Coroner Harry Bishop, of Perth Amboy, was notified of the death, and came to South Plainfield at 3 o'clock. After investigation he decided that neither inquest nor arrest were necessary. He gave a burial permit to Undertaker Cole, of this city.

Only the one fatal piece of metal struck the dead boy. He wore two coats, a sweater and two shirts, and drove on until one sharp corner touched the heart.

Johnson is the son of Samuel Johnson, a former resident of Park avenue, beyond the Lehigh tracks. He is known to many Plainfielders. No blame for the fatality attaches to him. The fact that a piece of the barrel, and not part of the charge, struck the boy, removes even the possibility of technical manslaughter.

The Giles family lives on this city on Lake street, until recently.

The boy's funeral will be held at the home of his parents on the Thomas VanNest farm, near the Lehigh Valley's coal storage plant, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

FAILED TO PROVE THAT HE STOLE SPANISH ROOSTER.

Erastus Johnson Brown Ably Defended by W. S. Anderson at Juniors' Mock Trial.

Although it was impossible to convict the defendant at the mock trial held by Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., when accused of stealing a Spanish black rooster, the verdict of the jury was supplemented with a recommendation that, in the future the prisoner exercises care as to the particular color of his chickens.

Charles M. Knowlton impersonating Erastus Johnson Brown, was accused of stealing a Spanish black rooster from George Washington Johnson, who was Henry Hartley, and it was a difficult matter to prove the charge, despite the strong testimony of E. B. Smith, Lee Pennington and A. H. Beck, the latter being the son of the man who lost the rooster.

G. W. V. Moy presided as judge at the trial. H. C. Runyon represented the plaintiff, while W. S. Anderson appeared for the defendant. The following acted as jurors: E. Gibson Smith, Peter H. Bennett, Adam Scott, F. E. Sperling, Daniel J. VanWinkle, George R. Crateley, Samuel H. Crateley, Julius C. Wilhelms, W. H. Fessler and H. H. Webb. P. H. Bennett was court court crier, William Giles the clerk and Peter Wooden was the court officer. The fact that the latter persisted in going to sleep called forth some caustic remarks on the part of the plaintiff's lawyer, which were met with stinging rebukes.

All those participating in the trial were attired in farmer style of dress, presenting a decidedly rural picture. There was no end of fun throughout and as a novel form of amusement was a great success. There was a large attendance of Juniors, the members of Franklin, Somerset and Benevolent Councils, as well as Plainfield councils being largely represented.

Scotch Evangelist Coming.

Alexander Marshall, famous in Scotland as an evangelist of power, will speak at a Y. M. C. A. meeting at the theatre next Sunday afternoon. The biggest audience of the series is expected.

Millionaire Socialist Talks on Society's Responsibility for Individual Poverty.

THE PRESENT DAY ILLS.

Tenements and Unclean Workshops and Their Consequences Pointed Out By Rich East Side Settlement Worker.

Society's responsibility for the hinderances under which individuals suffer was the subject of the talk delivered by James G. Phelps Stokes, millionaire and socialist, before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church Monday night. He interested a good-sized audience. The attendance was swelled by members of other church clubs, which had been invited to be present.

Things like disease, tenements and unclean workshops, Mr. Stokes pointed out, could not be corrected by the individual, and could only be corrected or removed by collective effort. It followed, therefore, that if society failed to remove or correct them society was to blame for the conditions and for the evils that grew from them.

Disease, it had been proved, could be controlled. Smallpox, for instance, typhus, it had been wiped out in civilized communities. Remained, *then, tuberculosis and the other un*conquered diseases, and intelligent, co-operative measures by society were necessary to eradicate them. Disease could be controlled, and it was obviously society's duty to control it.

In introducing the tenement subject, Mr. Stokes touched on poverty in general terms. Poverty was thought by some to be permanent, he said, but the only thing to support that was a misquotation of Jesus' words, "The poor ye have always with you." The Lord had spoken in the present tense and not, as He is generally quoted, in the future. Jesus, Mr. Stokes pointed out with emphasis did not say "The poor ye shall have always with you."

Tenements, the speaker said, were unsanitary, encouraged immorality through the conditions enforced by them, and checked the individual in self-advancement to a terrible degree. The old story of objection to the improvement of tenement property by law from rich families controlling the properties, and the Trinity church, New York, Corporation was told to illustrate the difficulties under which the reformers work. The same objection of the dollar-worshippers arouse whenever improvements of the deadly conditions in some industries were attacked. It was only after year of suffering on the part of operatives that New York had passed a law compelling cloth mills and other industries leading to dusty workrooms to install blowers to clear the air.

Conditions threatening health and morality all over the country, all over the world, are allowed to continue because men preferred to go on making much money to saving lives or souls. That sort of thing prevailed, Mr. Stokes said in closing, to a degree that was appalling.

Mr. Stokes remained a half-hour after the meeting, and met the members informally at a social in the parlors. Refreshments were served.

Gift For Mr. Campbell.

As an evidence of the esteem and good will held for him by his associates, William Campbell, former lieutenant in the borough fire department, was made the recipient of an elaborate silver shaving set, Monday night. The presentation was made at his home on Somerset street by Captain Edward Terry and John Mowry, who explained that it came from the members of the department in which he had served for so long. They declared that his resignation had caused regret among them and they had been waiting a forable opportunity to express themselves toward him in a substantial way. The former lieutenant thanked the donors warmly and assured the representatives that the feeling was reciprocated.

Murdered Man Identified.

The burned body of the murdered man found on the County Park land in North Bergen, opposite the race-track, *January 9, was identified yes*terday by Frank and Joseph Fessin as that of their brother, Charles Fessia, who has been missing from his home in West Twenty-seventh street, Manhattan, since January 3. They said their brother left home to visit a friend, whose name is broken. The police are looking for the Italian.

Presented With Triplets.

Thomas Connolly, of Westfield avenue, Springfield, was presented yesterday with triplets by his wife. The aggregate weight is eighteen pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Connolly have three other children and a strange coincidence is that all of them were born on a Sunday.

Exhibition at Public Library.

An exhibition of young people's books will be held in the reading room of the public library on Friday, January 25, beginning at 3 o'clock, and all day on Saturday, January 26, from 10 in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon.

received a letter from citizens of Plainfield which said "your course delights and fulfills expectations of your many Plainfield admirers."

Talking to a reporter Mr. Ackerman said that he was perfectly satisfied that the people were behind him. Referring to his future course he was not prepared to make any definite statement. When asked if he would cast his vote for a Democrat if it were necessary to do so to defeat Dryden, he replied firmly that he would not vote for a Democrat under and circumstances.

Randolph Perkins also said that he was doing what he believed the people of Union county wanted him to do when he stayed out of the caucus of the majority of his fellow Republican legislators.

Senator Ackerman received a large batch of telegrams and letters today from Union county representatives endorsing the position he had taken.

The Republicans and Democrats of both the Senate and Assembly reached a "gentlemen's agreement" this afternoon, whereby there will be no more joint meetings until Tuesday, January 29, at 12 o'clock noon. At that time another attempt will be made to elect a successor to Senator Dryden.

Immediately after reaching this agreement, both the Senate and House adjourned. The law provides that the members of the Legislature shall remain in session until a choice is reached in the selection of a Senator, but as all parties seemed to have *agreed to remain away, nothing fur*ther can be done at present. The next regular session of the Legislature will be held Monday night, the usual time for taking up legislative matters.

Burning their bridges behind them, the eight Republican legislators who failed to respond to the crack of the bosses' whip by their refusal to par*ticipate in a caucus to nominate John* F. Dryden for United States Senator, assumed a position yesterday that makes it almost morally impossible for them to retreat. When the vote was taken these legislators bolted the party nominee and thereby voiced their unequivocal opposition to the political rule of the Newarker. This stand, if maintained, can have only one result—the defeat of Mr. Dryden. It was freely predicted after the vote had been taken that this would be accomplished and that Dryden would be forced to retire from the race.

In one of his characteristically matter of fact speeches Mr. Barber, who has been leading the fight in the House for Senator Dryden's re-election, gave the reasons underlying the reformers work. The same objection of the dollar-worshippers arouse whenever improvements of the deadly conditions in some industries were attacked. It was only after year of suffering on the part of operatives that New York had passed a law compelling cloth mills and other industries leading to dusty workrooms to install blowers to clear the air.

Conditions threatening health and morality all over the country, all over the world, are allowed to continue because men preferred to go on making much money to saving lives or souls. That sort of thing prevailed, Mr. Stokes said in closing, to a degree that was appalling.

Mr. Stokes remained a half-hour after the meeting, and met the members informally at a social in the parlors. Refreshments were served.

Gift For Mr. Campbell.

As an evidence of the esteem and good will held for him by his associates, William Campbell, former lieutenant in the borough fire department, was made the recipient of an elaborate silver shaving set, Monday night. The presentation was made at his home on Somerset street by Captain Edward Terry and John Mowry, who explained that it came from the members of the department in which he had served for so long. They declared that his resignation had caused regret among them and they had been waiting a forable opportunity to express themselves toward him in a substantial way. The former lieutenant thanked the donors warmly and assured the representatives that the feeling was reciprocated.

Murdered Man Identified.

The burned body of the murdered man found on the County Park land in North Bergen, opposite the race-track, *January 9, was identified yes*terday by Frank and Joseph Fessin as that of their brother, Charles Fessia, who has been missing from his home in West Twenty-seventh street, Manhattan, since January 3. They said their brother left home to visit a friend, whose name is broken. The police are looking for the Italian.

Presented With Triplets.

Thomas Connolly, of Westfield avenue, Springfield, was presented yesterday with triplets by his wife. The aggregate weight is eighteen pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Connolly have three other children and a strange coincidence is that all of them were born on a Sunday.

Exhibition at Public Library.

An exhibition of young people's books will be held in the reading room of the public library on Friday, January 25, beginning at 3 o'clock, and all day on Saturday, January 26, from 10 in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon.

Mrs. J. A. Blatz and her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Cannon, are ill with grip at their home on Somerset street.

PRAISE FOR THE ROADS

In Annual Report of Commissioner Hutchinson to Governor Stokes.

THE AUTO LAW IS O. K.

Application of Oil to Roads a Decided Success—Union Spent $22,790.35.

Trenton, Jan. 22.—Showing the prosperity of road-building in New Jersey during the past year under the act passed last winter by the Legislature, by which all fines for violations of the automobile law should go toward the fund for the repair of county roads, the report of State Road Commissioner Elijah C. Hutchinson, which was handed to Governor *Stokes Friday, also gives an interest*ing account of the flourishing condition of the State roads. Many counties receive much praise for the work done by them in regard to road-building and their proper maintenance, while others are censured for not taking advantage of the opportunities available. Under the new automobile law about $75,000 is to be distributed among the different counties as the State's contribution toward repairs.

In referring to the automobile law, Commissioner Hutchinson says that, it has been operated successfully, but points out one weak spot in the act, and that is the failure to make provision for inspectors enough to properly enforce the law.

In discussing the use of oil or tar for the protection of roads, the commissioner declares, "There has been considerable inquiry in regard to protecting the surface of our roads in general by the use of tar or oil. From what I can learn, the application of an oil containing not less than fifty per cent. of asphaltum has proven a decided success. The great obstacle seems to be its cost. We are following the matter up, and hope to be in a position next year to recommend some application to our roads that will prevent dust and preserve the surface intact.

"The amount spent by Union for road repairs during the year 1906 was $22,790.35."

NEW JERSEY INDIVIDUAL CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNAMENT.

Many Prizes Will Be Offered the Winning Bowlers in This Great Contest.

Tally one for Elizabeth! "Joe" Nolte was elected president of the New Jersey Individual Championship Tournament, complete arrangements for which were completed at a meeting recently held at the Oxford Bowling Academy, Newark. All that is now left for Nolte is to go in and win one of the many prizes that are offered the winners. The prize money will amount to $1,125, and will be distributed as follows:

To the individual winning the most series, $80; to the one finishing second, $60; third, $45; fourth, $35; fifth, $30; sixth, $25; seventh, $22.50; eighth, $20; ninth, $17.50; individual prizes average in the following order: First, $20; second, $15; third, $12; fourth, $10; fifth, $8; sixth, $7; seventh, $5; eighth, $3. The individual high score prize will be $5, and for the best average in any one series, $5.

Each of the members in the competition will meet every other member in a series to consist of the best three in five games. In case of a tie the games will be rolled over, but the handicap will count in the averages. There will be three series rolled each night, the first series beginning promptly at 8:30 o'clock. The alleys will be open for practice at 8:15 o'clock, and between the series there will be ten minutes intermission. The winner of the first series shall have the privilege of continuing in the sec*ond series, or laying off,* with the exception of C. F. Strohmenger, of Hackensack, who shall have the privileges of bowling in the first two series in order to allow him to make train connections. The rule regarding postponements reads as follows:

"There shall be no postponements in this tournament, with the exception of a participant being physically disabled or having death in his family. In this case he must notify the secretary at the earliest possible moment, and the secretary shall get the consent of his two opponents for the night he is scheduled to such postponement, or otherwise his series shall be forfeited. Any member failing to keep his scheduled engagements in the tournament for any other reason than being physically disabled or having death in his family shall forfeit his right to roll in the tournament, and all series previously rolled by him in the tournament shall be thrown out, and be the same as games not rolled."

The first matches will be decided Monday night, January 28, and a complete schedule is to be announced soon.

Mr. Calkins Honored.

At the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association held last Friday in Chicago, Ill., Leighton Calkins, of the Plainfield Country Club, was elected chairman of the executive committee.

WEST END FANS ANGRY

Inter-City Baseball League's Refusal to Take In the Suburban A. C. Nine.

FROZE OUT, SAYS PENNY

New Team Has Good Players and Strong Backing—May Play On Crescent Oval.

The refusal of the Intercity Baseball League to admit into its ranks the Suburban A. C., of the West End, has created no end of dissatisfaction among the fans of that section. It is the general feeling that the new organization is making a big mistake in refusing to include the Suburbans in its circuit.

It has been proven in past years that the major portion of support to baseball in Plainfield comes from the West End. While it is true that that section of the town will be represented by the Clinton Avenue team, it must be considered that the Clintons, while they are good league players and have a good record, they lack one important asset which a ball team must have, and that is a following.

The Suburban team, which has selected James Penny as its manager, will be composed of players from the shops, all of whom have their coterie of friends. Their supporters number some of the best and most substantial fans in that part of the city. And yet, despite all these favorable accompaniments, the Suburban team is barred from the new league, although the organizers of the team were among the first to make applications when steps were taken to formulate the organization.

Manager Penny claims that the league did not treat his club fairly from the start, and in a conversation with a Daily Press reporter Saturday, declared it was simply a case of freeze-out. He said he had put his claims before Secretary Listman, of the league, but that official has repeatedly turned him down and given him the cold shoulder.

In the meantime Mr. Penny is going ahead and getting things in shape for next season. He has in view a location for the grounds, and if he would be a surprise if the Suburbans played their games on Crescent Oval. Mr. Penny has received several offers to play out of town games with well known clubs.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED IN DUNELLEN.

Rooms in Apgar's Hall Open Nightly; Big Smoker to Be Held.

Young men of Dunellen have formed a club, for the purpose of advancing social and athletic interests in the borough. They have rented Apgar's hall and it is open nightly as a club room.

Part of the hall is fixed up as a gymnasium in which is installed athletic apparatus, including basketball *court, quoits, push ball and exer*cisers. They also have culpped a reading room with the latest magazines and good literature. A large number of the young men of the town are already interested and the hall is filled nightly with enthusiasts who are rapidly becoming proficient in the various athletic sports. They expect to form a basketball team and already have many coming players as candidates. Later in the season the club expects to take up all outdoor sports and no doubt will be among the leaders of amateur sports in this vicinity.

The officers are: L. T. Churchill, president; Frank Rhinehart, vice-president; Stephen Kennedy, treasurer; A. S. Coriell, secretary. Any one desiring to join may see one of the officers.

The club expects to hold a rousing smoker on January 28, at which they will have amateur sparring matches, basketball game, songs and comic recitations by artists, a sleight of hand performer, ending with a goodly supply of refreshments.

PRINCIPAL ENTERTAINS.

Mr. Travell the Host of P. H. S. Pupils.

A concert and reception given by Principal W. Travell to the students of the Plainfield High School was held Saturday evening in the High School auditorium. Music was furnished by a talking machine, through the courtesy of Messrs. E. M. Leonard and H. C. Brose, also by Miss Ethel Perry and Samuel B. Howe, Jr., piano. Dancing was enjoyed.

Principal Travell spoke a few words of greeting, after which the birthday cake was cut and passed among the guests. It was the same cake that played a conspicuous part last Thursday in the celebration of Mr. Travell's birthday, when the students presented him with gifts in honor of the occasion. All departed with hearty testimonies of a delightful time.

The Limit.

It was just a plain lying contest, but the prize was to go to the man who told his lie most briefly and casually.

"I came in on a suburban train this morning," said the prize winner, "and as I hastily flung up a car window ——."—January Smart Set.

DR. B. VAN D. HEDGES ON TUBERCULOSIS

HEALTH BOARD PRESIDENT TELLS OF TREATMENT OF "WHITE PLAGUE."

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, president of the Plainfield Board of Health, was one of the principal speakers at a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Elizabeth, Monday, which marked the opening there of the campaign against tuberculosis. The meeting was similar to the one held here a year ago and was very largely attended.

Dr. Hedges spoke on "The Cause and Prevention of Tuberculosis." Among other things he said that the sole danger and cause of contagion in tuberculosis lies in the sputum of a person suffering from the disease, and that the spread of the disease can be prevented by the proper care being exercised in the expectoration. He suggested that persons so afflicted should be educated and taught to expectorate in vessels provided for that purpose and that great care should be taken to see that the sputum is disposed of under sanitary conditions. He dwelt at some length on the practice of people suffering from tuberculosis in spitting in public places and urged that every effort be made to put a stop to such practice, for in this way the germs are quickly spread.

Rev. Dr. Henry Elliott Mott, of Elizabeth, presided at the meeting, and among the other speakers, all physicians of Elizabeth, were Dr. Thomas N. McLean, Dr. Arthur Stern, Dr. Frederick R. Bailey, Dr. Stephen Quinn and Dr. Norton L. Wilson.

Fair at T. A. B. Hall.

The Anawanda Club, an auxiliary of St. Mary's T. A. B. Association, will conduct its first fair on January 24-25-26. On Thursday evening, January 24, the opening night, the fair will continue until 2 a. m. Edward Walsh, of Worcester, Mass., will entertain and the music will be rendered by Prof. Helnemeyer's full orchestra.

Borough In Good Health, Thank You.

The borough is enjoying an unusual "clean bill of health" for this season of the year. Despite the bad weather which prevailed last week very little sickness has been reported and there is not a single case of contagious disease.

DIED.

DE COURCY—In this city, January 14, 1907, Edward Leo, son of Michael and Jane Courcy, in his twenty-fourth year.

WALDEN—In this city, January 19, 1907, Henry J. Walden, in his 54th year.

MOE—On Sunday, Jan. 20, 1907, Experience, wife of Addison Moe, aged 76 years.

STEVENS—In this city, on Saturday morning, January 19, 1907, at Muhlenberg Hospital, Sarah Montague, wife of Arthur Stevens.

ROWE—In North Plainfield, Friday, January 18, 1907, Jennie Rowe, daughter of the late Jeremiah and Kate Rowe, aged 16 years, 2 months and 22 days.

OVERLAND—In this city, Thursday, January 17, 1907, Johannah Overland, aged 26 years, 5 months and 21 days, wife of John Overland.

BOOREAM—On Friday, January 18, 1907, Mary, daughter of the late John Booream.

BEAL—On Thursday, January 17, 1907, Jane M. A. Beal, wife of Albert J. Beal.

STEWART—On Friday, January 18, 1907, James A., son of the late Embley and Harriett Stewart, aged 56 years.

MULDOWNEY—On Wednesday, Jan. 16, 1907, Michael, son of James and the late Mary Muldowney.

REICHERT—On Monday, Jan. 14, 1907, Clara, Reichert, sister of Christina Allen.

MAJOR—At South Plainfield, on Wednesday, January 16, 1907, Milton Major, husband of Mary Teeple, aged 32 years.

BOGARDUS—At his late residence, 1120 Putnam avenue, on Tuesday, January 15, 1907, Egbert H. Bogardus, in his 51st year.

MANGAM—On Monday, January 21, 1907, Stephen D. Mangam, in his 72d year.

*GILES—Suddenly, at South Plain*field, January 21, 1907, DeWitt Clinton Giles, son of John and Mary Giles, aged 11 years, 10 months and 16 days.

CLARK—On Monday, Jan. 21, 1907, Cecilia A., widow of Dr. Charles H. Clark.

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager of business for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago.

c 7 19 18

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnaces
Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing,
Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe for every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, } Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning, }
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel appointing agents, others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Grand chance for earning money. Permanent to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once,

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. H. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park Avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

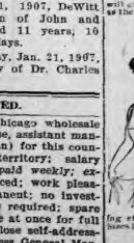
"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this month's magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with 10c. for a copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York

With Princesse elbow-length gloves nothing will give such a beautiful finish to the figure as the

De Bevoise Brassiere



worn in place of a corset. Perfect bust support and most comfortable. Made of fine batiste, lace trimmed and fully boned. It pulls down snugly over the hips, fastens to the corset clasp with a detachable hook, is adjustable, retaining the bust, with its natural contour. Ask your dealer to show you the Princesse Brassiere. If he cannot supply you, send his name and your bust measure, 32 to 46 inches, and we will send you one prepaid.

PRICE $1.00 EACH

The long effect under the sheerest lingerie waists, lines 32 to 46 inches bust measure.

At all retail dry goods stores, or send us your dealer's name and price if you have not been supplied.

Catalogue on request.

Chas. K. De Bevoise Co., 234 High St., Newark, N. J.

LUMBER PRICES KITING

Material Costs So Much Investors Are Afraid to Build.

SCARCITY THE CAUSE

Some Builders, However, Are Not Sure the Scarcity Is Sufficient to Account For the Raise.

Dismay over the rise in the price of lumber has seized investing builders in this vicinity. Pine, hemlock and red cedar, the woods most used in building, are quoted as having practically prohibitive of investment building. With cries for more houses going up on every hand, and with every desire to meet the demand, the men with the money for building find it impossible to erect houses with any chance of getting quoted at 5 per cent returns on the investment.

Since January 1, or shortly before, the price of building lumber has gone up like that of anarities. While pine has advanced almost $5 a thousand, the cheapest grade—barn boards—is up "There's Ever a Song Somewhere." In part second she sang Slumber Song," Tito Mater, with Wolin obligato by Miss Wohlfert, and her third number was an encore, also with violin obligato.

Miss Wahlfert also favored the audience with one of her best selections, Air Varie, by Vieuxtemps, accompanied by Miss Force on the piano. Her playing was of the same excellence so much enjoyed on previous occasions.

A feature was the singing by the Ladies' Chorus. In part first "The Lost Chord" was given and in part second the number "To-Day Is Done," by Carter, with pleasing effect.

The entertainment closed with an exhibition of magic by H. Warren Rankin, of this city. He introduced many new tricks. He is exceedingly clever in sleight-of-hand and was given hearty applause. During his exhibition, Mrs. Rankin accompanied on the piano. The final number Gavotte, by C. Bohm, was given by the Vivo Trio. Those in the Ladies' Chorus were Mrs. J. B. Cottrell, Mrs. David E. Titsworth, Mrs. Charles Rowland, Mrs. William J. Tallamy, Mrs. J. Everett Kimball, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Nan Randolph and Miss Beatrice Miner.

The musicale was arranged by a committee from the W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. Peter H. Bennett was the chairman.

DEEDS AND CONTRACTS.

Many of Local Interest Recorded at County Clerk's Office.

The following local real estate transfers have been recorded at Elizabeth:

Charles A. Reed, et ux. to Henry B. MacDonald, lots 24, 24, 25, block 5, "Map of Plainfield Real Estate Co.," Plainfield, $1.

J. D. Lolzeaux Lumber Co. to Geo. J. Tobin, northwesterly side West Seventh street, 138 feet southwesterly of Monroe avenue, Plainfield, $1.

Charles B. Clifton et ux. to City of Plainfield, southerly side Randolph road, corner John Wierenga, Plainfield, $1,500.

Samuel S. Conover et ux. to John Monaghan, Park avenue, corner Jonathan Clawson, Plainfield, $8,000.

David M. Jones et ux. to Helen A. Homan, southeasterly side West Fifth street, 100 feet northeasterly of Lee place, Plainfield, $3,500.

James C. Manning et ux. to E. Frank Vail, northerly side Putnam avenue, 115 feet westerly of Carlton avenue, Plainfield, $1.

Ronald K. Brown to Myrtle Gaige Simons, part of blocks 10, 11, 13, all of block 12, "Map of Plainfield Real Estate Co.," Plainfield, $1.

These contracts have also been filed:

William H. Chamberlain with Louis F. C. Beck, entire work now buildings, Ravine road, Plainfield, $6,030.

John F. McIntyre et al. with Seaman Williams, mason work new building, Grant avenue, Plainfield, $1,250.

William Chamberlain with Cormick Caulfield, mason work two new buildings, Ravine road, Plainfield, $2,200.

William H. Abbott with Firman H. Gise, mason work new building, Hillside avenue, Plainfield, $850.

Water Commission at Work.

The next meeting of the water investigation commission, which was appointed by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, will be held on Friday night, February 11. It is understood that there will be reports of progress along the lines mapped out at the first meeting last week. It is understood that the committees are losing no time and that they have gone right to work as suggested by Mayor Fisk. The work of the commission will probably take most of the winter.

C. R. R. of N. J. Advances Wages.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has advanced the wages of its engineers as follows: Large engines, road service, $4.40 for ten hours work, an increase of 20 cents a day; small engines, road service, $4 for ten hours, an increase of 15 cents a day; passenger engineers, $3.90 for ten hours or 100 miles; yard service, $3.85 to $4.32 for ten hours.

W. C. T. U. MUSICALE AT THE Y. M. C. A. HALL

VOCAL AND INSTRUMENTAL NUMBERS AS WELL AS LEGERDEMAIN.

Soprano solos by Miss Louella C. Harris, violin selections by Miss Florence Wohlfert, The Vivo Instrumental Trio, the Ladies' Chorus, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and magic by H. Warren Rankin, comprised the musicale held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. an enjoyable affair. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist for Miss Harris, and Miss Jessie Utter accompanied the Ladies' Chorus. Their excellent work was a feature and added to the pleasure of the renditions.

These numbers were given by the Vivo Trio, Martin A. Korff and George Spier, violins, and Edward Spier, piano: Fantaisie Surfaust, Bemmel-Ward: Andante Cantabile, from First Symphony, Beethoven; selection, Carmen, Bizet; Hungarian Dance, Brahms; Andante Sostenuto, from 8 Sonata, Mozart; Gavotte, C. Bohm.

Miss Harris, who is the soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, gave three selections, the first be-

MR. GILBERT CHOSEN S. P. C. A. VICE PREST.

ORGANIZATION ADOPTED CONSTITUTION AND BY LAWS TODAY.

Alexander Gilbert, who has consented to accept the honor, was elected vice-president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at a meeting held in the offices of Reed & Codington in the Stirling building, Friday morning. The meeting was well attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. President L. V. F. Randolph presided.

Other business included the adoption of the constitution and by-laws and the referring of several matters of more or less importance to the executive committee. This committee is not yet complete and until it is the society is not ready to announce the names of members.

According to the constitution it will cost $1 a year to become a member of the society and upon the payment of $10 one can become a life member. The society is composed of many prominent men and women of this city and borough and it proposes to go to work at once. An encouraging report was received this morning when it was stated that as a result of the activity of Plainfield people in forming a society here, a similar society has been formed in Elizabeth. The meeting adjourned to Monday morning, February 11.

SURPRISE SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of St. Faith's Guild, of St. Stephen's church, a surprise package social was held at the parish house, Thursday. The members and their friends all brought packages, the contents of which were not known until after they were bought at auction. Herbert Guise was the auctioneer, and quickly disposed of the packages at good prices. During the evening ice cream was sold and a social time was had.

Mrs. Andrew Aldeman is president of the guild and she has arranged an entertainment for every Thursday night up to Lent. On Thursday, January 24, there will be an old time singing school entertainment, and on Thursday, January 31, the Plainfield Band will give a concert and play for dancing. "The Peake Sisters" will appear on Thursday, Feb. 7.

Dates for Horse Show.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club has fixed the dates for the annual horse show to be held this year. It will be June 6, 7 and 8, which corresponds with last year's dates. It so happens that it comes at the same time of the International Horse Show in London, but it is not believed that it will greatly effect the local show. All of the best horses from the Philadelphia show which will be held May 28, 29, 30, 31 and June 1 have been promised for Plainfield.

John Mobus a Benedict.

John Mobus and Miss Emma Kelm, both of Watchung, were quietly married at the b ride's home, Thursday. A. Doerscher, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Mobus will reside in the pretty residence at Watchung formerly owned by Mrs. Koch and which has been purchased by the groom. Mr. Mobus is engaged in the kindling wood business.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF THE M'ALL AUXILIARY

MINISTER TELLS OF THE WORK BEING DONE BY PLAINFIELD BRANCH ABROAD

The anniversary of the founding of the McAll Auxiliary work in France, was observed Wednesday afternoon by a tea given at the home of Mrs. Frederick Hamlin Andrews, of Central avenue. The affair was largely attended by members and friends of the local auxiliary. Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, president, Mrs. John Gray Foster, treasurer, and Mrs. Augustus V. Heely, secretary, of the Plainfield auxiliary, received with Mrs. Andrews, and they were assisted by a large corps of managers.

Features of the social function were the vocal solos by Miss Mary Hubbell, of Central avenue, and Miss Primroy, of Scranton, Pa., a guest of Mrs. Sidney Williams, of East Ninth street.

The greater part of the afternoon was devoted to an informal talk by Rev. George T. Berry, of Englewood. He is the general secretary of the McAll Auxiliary in America. Last summer he was sent abroad to investigate the work being carried on in France.

Mr. Berry said he found the work to be most satisfactory, particularly among the soldiers and the employees in the chalk factories. He spoke especially of the work being done at Limoges by Mr. and Mrs. De Saint-Vidal, evangelists supported there by the Plainfield Auxiliary. He said that they are both doing a great work with promise of great results. After the talk by Mr. Berry refreshments were served. In connection with the tea, contributions were received amounting to over $100 for the support of the work being carried on in Limoges.

LOUIS MILLIGAN SENT TO RAHWAY REFORMATORY

SENTENCE PASSED UPON HIM BY JUDGE ATWATER YESTERDAY.

Louis Milligan, of this city, arraigned in court at Elizabeth a week ago, on complaint of the probation officer with the object of having him committed to the State Reformatory, was arraigned before Judge Atwater Wednesday and sentenced to that institution. Milligan is twenty-four years of age and has but one leg. On July 19, 1905, he was arrested for an assault and robbery, to which he pleaded guilty. Ten years before he had been committed to the Reform School for Boys for stealing $1,000 from the home of J. B. Cortright. On pleading guilty the last time the court, because of his crippled condition, placed him in the hands of the probation officer instead of inflicting a more severe punishment. For a short time Milligan made reports and then stopped. The stories that reached the probation officer regarding him were far from satisfactory, and early in August last Captain C. W. Irwin met him here and took him into custody. A few days later Milligan succeeded in breaking jail and making his escape. He was only recently recaptured.

PRISONER SHIVERED IN COLD CITY CELL

HIS CHATTERING COLD TEETH WON HIS RELEASE IN CITY COURT.

Saying nothing in words, saying nothing, in fact, John Pecolis, a Pole, arrested Thursday for drunkenness, told a story of hardship in the city jail to Judge Runyon Friday morning that aroused the sympathy of the magistrate and won him quick release.

Percolla cannot speak English well, and he stood silently before the Judge when the charge was read. But the magistrate regarded him attentively for another reason. The man stood huddled in his coat, with chattering teeth and lips pale with cold. The Judge looked back toward the cells, where Percolla had spent the night, with an inquiring air.

"It is pretty cold back there," explained an officer in response to the look.

"Sentence suspended," said the Judge, and the shaking prisoner was set free.

Judge Runyon walked back into the cell room.

"Br-r-r-r-r!" he said as he came out; "it's cold back there all right."

It is said that the heating facilities of the cell room are totally inadequate in sharp weather. Registers are supposed to carry heat to the whole lower floor at headquarters, but they do not work with glittering success. On a night like Thursday the cells must have been like sections of a refrigerator. The fact that the door leading to the jailyard is opened frequently during the night does not help the feeble registers to warm up the cells. There is a door between the cell room and the officers' room.

The heating of the building is not managed by the police department. The furnace is in the basement, and the owner of the building is supposed to keep the floors heated.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss May Anna Keuhn, daughter of Henry Keuhn, of Scotch Plains, and Clarence E. Giles, of East Front street, were married at noon Wednesday, by Rev. Charles E. Herring at his home on Watchung avenue. Miss Estelle M. Eick, of Dunellen, and Edward T. Clarkson, of this city, acted as attendants. Both Miss Keuhn and Miss Eick wore blue travelling suits and lace waists.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Giles left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. On returning they will make their home for the present with the groom's mother on East Front street. Mr. Giles has been in the employ of Harry K. Lister for the past five years and is well known throughout the city and borough.

Court of Pardons Meets.

The Court of Pardons held its quarterly session at Trenton, Thursday, and considered 134 applications for pardon and parole. Out of the lot only thirty were paroled, one of them being James Howard, who was sentenced from Union county in 1901 to seven years for breaking, entering and stealing. The applications of Peter Linzer and William Ross, sentenced from Union county in February, 1906, for two years for criminal assault, were laid over until the March term. Both are residents of Plainfield.

Lutheran Church Meeting.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Peter's Lutheran church was held Wednesday night. Messrs. Debele, Seidentopf and Bormann were elected as additional members of the church council. The financial report presented by Dr. Richard Molenkopf showed the church to be in better condition than at any time since its organization.

GIFTS FOR PRINCIPAL, BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCES

PUPILS GIVE MR. TRAVELL DIAMOND PIN AND BOOK RACK.

Principal Ira W. Travell was completely surprised at the Plainfield High School, Thursday, when the pupils accepted the opportunity to show their regard by presenting him with a diamond-set scarf pin and a table book rack in honor of the anniversary of his birthday, which occurred today.

Thursday morning each class holds assembly exercises in its own room. This morning three pupils talked with Mr. Travell in his office, and when the 8:30 o'clock bell sounded, the classes from all over the building gathered quietly in the auditorium, when the shades were drawn purposely to avoid suspicion. On the platform table could be seen fourteen candles burning brightly from the top of a frosted cake. The candles represented the fourteen years that Mr. Travell has been principal of the High School.

The school orchestra was in readiness and when all the pupils were seated, Mr. Travell was ushered in. All arose, the lights were turned on, the orchestra struck up "The Red and the Blue," and the principal was greeted with the High School song. As the music ceased, Henry de Bigard ascended the platform and presented the gifts in the name of the pupils. Mr. Travell expressed his thanks. The principal recalled his first years at the school and told something of his work at that time.

A phonograph enthusiast had previously asked Mr. Travell if he might give the pupils a concert, and Mr. Travell said that if the cake would keep until Saturday night he would ask the man with the talking machine to give his concert which would be combined with a general reception.

SELLS 100 HOUSES TO WESTERN INVESTORS

D. FOSTER UPDYKE COMPLETE A BIG DEAL AT KENILWORTH.

Through D. Foster Updike, of 211 North avenue, the Baron De Hirsh Fund, of New York, has sold 100 houses at Kenilworth, a district in Cranford, to a syndicate of Omaha, Neb., investors. It is one of the biggest real estate deals of recent times.

Kenilworth is to be developed energetically. The deal is said to have caused $100,000 to change hands, and the Westerners are determined to make the property grow in a way proportionate to the sum invested. Mr. Updike will have full charge of the houses.

Kenilworth is booming. A new trolley and a steam road has been built through it, and now is every indication of continued and steady growth.

Will Issue New Series of Bonds.

The officers of the Park Club are preparing to issue a new series of bonds to provide for extensive improvements made at the clubhouse. The issue, it is said, will amount to $12,000 and arrangements have been made for the sale of the bonds. They will be four per cent. bonds. During the past year the club has expended considerable money in improving the property on Washington avenue and it has attracted an increase in membership. It is now one of the best appointed clubhouses to be found in the State and is very popular with the members and their friends.

ONE YEAR IN PRISON
FOR ATTEMPTING TO KILL.

Colored Man Who Fired at White Man Gets Light Sentence.

In the Somerset County Courts in Somerville Friday Judge Louis H. Schenck sentenced Harry Johnson, the colored man who was convicted of attempting to shoot Herbert H. Mount, proprietor of the Rocky Hill Hotel, to one year in State Prison.

It is now probable that the case of Jacob Flomerfelt, who is awaiting his third trial on a charge of manslaughter for the killing of his brother-in-law, Constable Frank D. Cramer, at North Branch Depot two years ago, will not be tried during the winter term of courts. Flomerfelt is reported dangerously ill, and Prosecutor Reger will not move the case. The Skillman forgery case may be tried next month, as Skillman is reported to be recovering from his recent illness.

Court at Somerville has been adjourned until January 28, when Judge Lloyd, of Camden, will sit there to try the Supreme and Circuit Court causes.

Planning for Annual Horse Show.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club will meet early in Femruary to elect officers and select committees for the fourth annual horse show to be held June 6, 7 and 8, at the show grounds at Woodland avenue and Randolph road. Improvements have been made at the grounds, an addition being built to the stables for the accommodation of more horses.

WHY WHERRY OPPOSES DRYDEN'S CANDIDACY

IN RESPONSE TO SENATOR'S REQUEST HE GIVES HIS REASONS.

In response to a query from Senator Ackerman as to why he opposes the candidacy of United States Senator John F. Dryden for re-election, William M. Wherry, Jr., states it is because there is a widespread public sentiment against the Newarker on account of his record.

This is Mr. Wherry's letter:

"Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman,
"506 West Eighth street,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sir:

"Replying to your favor of January 16th, 1907, asking 'in what particular' I 'most strongly object to the re-election' of 'Hon. J. F. Dryden to the United States Senate,' it seems to me somewhat strange that you—an intelligent participant in public affairs—should be seeking opinions as to the strongest objections to the candidacy of the Honorable Senator. You are undoubtedly aware of his connection with vast private interests, which he maintained during his last term of so-called public service, and of the unsavory illustrations afforded by his public career of the axiomatic truth that one cannot serve two masters—special private interests and the commonwealth. To call your attention specifically to these instances would be a matter of supererogation. The accumulated effect of this record has been a widespread public sentiment against the re-election of the Honorable Senator—one manifestation of which was the petition to which you refer—and his impudent candidacy in the face of this popular disapproval is the strongest possible argument against his re-election.

"The people don't want him. Their reason for this is manifest and cogent. His re-election would be a great injustice to your constituents, an injury to your party and last and least a disgrace to all who aided in it.

Yours truly,
"WM. M. WHERRY, JR."

January 17th, 1907.

The communication which prompted Mr. Wherry's letter follows:

"Mr. W. H. Wherry, Jr.,
"Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sir:

"I recently received a petition in opposition to the return of Hon. J. F. Dryden to the United States Senate, to which your name was attached. The views of citizens and constituents are always solicited and appreciated. I will esteem it therefore a favor if you will kindly state your reasons why Mr. Dryden should not be returned to the United States Senate. In what particular do you most strongly object to his re-election?

"Anticipating an early answer which may be enclosed in the accompanying envelope, I remain, with advance thanks,

"Yours very truly,
"E. R. ACKERMAN."

January 16, 1907.

JOHN BUSHNELL SUSTAINS FRACTURED COLLARBONE.

Slipped On Glass Cover at North Avenue Station As He Alighted From a Train.

Just after he had alighted from a train at the North Avenue station, Thursday, John Bushnell, of Central avenue, slipped on the snow-covered undercasing glass and fell heavily. He landed with great force on his left side and for a moment or so was rendered helpless. He was picked up by station attacues and taken to the waiting room, afterward being removed to his home in a cab.

Dr. Endicott was called and on examination found that Mr. Bushnell had sustained a fractured collar bone and was severely jarred. The injured bone was set and Friday he was reported as resting comfortably. Mr. Bushnell is connected with the Standard Oil Company and has his office at No. 26 Broadway.

Employes of the railroad started to clear the snow from the platforms, yesterday, as soon as the snow ceased falling but the iron and glass covers scattered about remain slippery as long as they are wet. There were numerous other falls reported but none of them with results as serious as Mr. Bushnell's.

Invalid Gifts.

"You must have had faith in my getting well," said the convalescent brightly, "or you'd never have brought me something pretty to wear," and immediately she tried the dainty lace collar on. That set the visitor a-thinking. She had brought that particular sort of gift simply from a desire to take something that was out of the ordinary. But if it really suggested getting well and getting out, why, there was much more subtlety in the choice of gifts that might be taken into account when dealing with invalids.

Wood—Elliott.

A New York wedding of interest to a number of Plainfielders took place on Wednesday in St. Bartholomew's church, when Mrs. Cornelia Underhill Elliott, widow of William L. Elliott, and daughter of the late Abraham S. Underhill, was married to William H. S. Wood, of New York. Mr. Underhill had his country home in this city for a few years when he lived in the house on Central avenue now owned by H. M. Stockton.

HE'S MAJOR MARTIN NOW

Company K's Captain Wins Long Deserved Promotion in National Guard.

DUNGAN IS LIEUT. COL.

Plainfield Company's Chief Has a Notable Career As a Military Officer—New Captain to Be Chosen.

Major Nelson Y. Dungan, of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., of Somerville, was Wednesday unanimously chosen lieutenant-colonel at a meeting of the board of officers of the regiment at Trenton, to succeed Lieutenant-Colonel Clime. After the election of Major Dungan, Captain

Major William B. Martin.

Martin, of Company K, of this city, was elected major to fill the post left vacant by Colonel Dungan's promotion.

Major Dungan was nominted for the post by Major Forman, of Trenton. Major Formna made a long speech, in which he recounted the services of Major Dungan in the national guard for several years, his personality as a man and his popularity as an officer both in the field and in line. There was no opposition to the nomination and the adjutant cast the ballot.

Colonel Dungan addressed the members of the board, thanking them for selecting him lieutenant-colonel of the regiment. He was roundly applauded.

The election of a major was then taken up and Captain McCullough, of Company A, nominated Captain William B. Martin, of Company K. He referred to the captain's efficiency as a commanding officer and his standing both among the officers and men. Captain Park, of Company C, of Elizabeth, nominated Lieutenant Richard A. Cross, of the same company. Captain Park made a short nominating speech, after which the nominations closed and the balloting commenced. It was only necessary to take one ballot, for when the tellers announced their count the vote stood 29 for Martin and 22 for Cross. When this was announced Lieutenant Cross arose and moved that the election be made unanimous, which motion was carried.

Major Martin was a candidate for the post of major in the Second Regiment several years ago and upon his defeat forthwith resigned as an officer and enlisted the following day as a private. Thus he has risen from the ranks twice in his military career, which is an uncommon thing in militarism.

After the election there was a regular business meeting of the board, and when this was done the officers partook of a luncheon in the squad room of the armory.

Captain Martin, the new major, is one of the most popular officers in the Second Regiment. He has had a long and successful military career in the State militia. He enlisted in Company C, of the Third Regiment, in 1884. He has gone through all of the non-commissioned and commissioned offices. He was elected adjutant of the Third Regiment in 1902, and was made captain and inspector of rifle practice of the Second Regiment in 1902. He was elected captain of Company K on November 5, 1902.

The election of Captain Martin leaves a vacancy in Company K. This office will be filled by an election by the company in the near future.

After the election the trophy donated to the Second Regiment by the widow of Sergeant John Rogers Williams, of Company L, of Williams was presented on behalf of the donor by Colonel Collins. It is a handsome silver loving cup and will be contested for by teams of five men each from the various companies. The company team making the best score will be given the prize. Mr. Williams was one of the best shots in the Second Regiment, and the prize is given to further the interest in rifle practice.

A shield was also presented by the Second Regiment for general marksmanship efficiency in the regiment, and will be awarded to the company making the best score for the year.

Musical Union's First Ball.

The local branch of the Musical Union, A. F. and M., will hold its first annual ball in Saengerbund Hall Monday night, January 28. Music for dancing will be provided by an orchestra of twelve pieces and the committee has arranged other features.

"Andy," of No. 3 House, Suffers From Mysterious Illness.

"Andy," one of the big grays that draw the No. 3 hose cart, is rusticating at Charles Brower's place, Park avenue. He is recovering from a mysterious equine malady, which puzzled Dr. Pocock, the veterinary of the department, and all the men at the engine house. He began to fall in health a little over a week ago, and rapidly weakened. Nobody could tell what was the matter with him. He seemed just about ready to give out completely, when he was sent to the Brower place as a last resort.

Almost as mysteriously as he became ill, Andy began to improve. He is getting stronger daily and the men expect him back in harness within a week. A fussy farm horse is substituting in "Andy's" place.

F. B. HARRISON WEDS

MRS. COX IN LONDON

Another Chapter in the Happy Romance of a New York Couple—Newport-to-Be Elopement.

Congressman-elect Francis Burton Harrison, of New York, and Mrs. Mabel Judson Cox, daughter of Henry L. Judson, and divorced wife of Dr. Roland Cox, Jr., of New York, were married Wednesday in All Souls' church, Portland place, London.

Among those present were the bridegroom's mother, his cousin, Lord Fairfax, who was best man; relatives and friends of the bride from New York and Baltimore, and Mr. Carter, the American Chargé d'Affaires.

After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at Claridge's.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Books in the Public Library on Municipal Administration, Part I.

General Works.

Allinson, E. P. and Penrose, Boies.—City government of Philadelphia, 1681-1887.

(In Johns Hopkins University Studies, v. 5.)

Baker, M. N.—Municipal administration and sanitation.

Contents: Ways and means of communication, Municipal supplies, Collection and disposal of wastes, Protection of life, health and property, Administration, finance, and public policy.

Conkling, A. R.—City government in the United States.

Contents: Government of American cities, The Mayor, Boards of Aldermen, Fire department, Police department, Streets, Charitable institutions, Public schools, Finance and taxation, Municipalization, Elections, The remedies, etc.

Eaton, D. B.—Government of municipalities.

Contents: How and why we have reached the present municipal condition, and the problems that must arise to improve it. Free nominations and free voting. City councils and mayors, Election of mayors and their powers and functions, School administration and sanitary administration, Judicial administration in municipalities, etc.

Farlie, J. A.—Municipal administration, municipal history, municipal activities, municipal finances, municipal organization.

Freund, Ernst. Police power, public policy and constitutional rights.

Contents: Nature and general scope of the police power, The public welfare, Fundamental rights under the police power.

Goodhue, W. F.—Municipal improvements: a manual of the methods, utility, and cost of public improvements for the municipal officer.

Goodnow, F. J.—Municipal home rule.

Contents: Public character of American municipal corporations, and the failure of the legislature to set aside a sphere of municipal home rule, The effect of the American system of protecting private rights upon the attitude of the legislature to wards municipal corporations, The means of delimiting the sphere of private action of municipal corporations in the American law, etc.

National Conference of Good City Government. Proceedings. 1894, 1901, 1902.

Robinson, C. M.—Improvement of towns and cities.

Contents: Foundation of civic beauty, Beauty in the street, Aesthetic phase of social and philanthropic effort, Aesthetic phase of education effort, Means to secure civic aesthetics.

Shaw, Albert.—Municipal government in continental Europe.

Contents: Paris, The typical modern city, French municipal system, Systems in Belgium, Holland, Spain, Italian cities, German cities, etc.

Shaw, Albert.—Municipal government in Great Britain.

Contents: Growth and problems of modern cities, Rise of British towns, Study of Glasgow, Birmingham, Government of London, etc.

Whinery, S.—Municipal public works.

Contents: Importance of municipal public work, Municipal organization, Preparations for municipal work, Direct work vs. contract work, Advertising, Opening bids and awarding contracts, The contract, The contractor, Supervision of public work, etc.

Wilcox, D. F.—American city: a problem in democracy.

Contents: Democracy and city life in American, The street, Control of public utilities, Civic co-operation, Local centres of civic life, Popular responsibility, Official responsibility, etc.

Zueblin, G.—American municipal progress.

Contents: Municipal sociology, Transportation, Public works, Sanitation, Public schools, Libraries, Public control, Ownership and Operation.

Note.—All of the above bear on one or more aspects of Municipal Administration.

The Ideal Duster.

The process of dusting as generally carried on would be almost as much honored in the breach as the observance. No good housekeeper should own that pretty abomination known as a feather duster, the gay flirting about of the same merely displacing the dust, which quickly settles elsewhere. A soft chamois skin, not too large, soaked in cold water and then wrung out, is the ideal duster. It can be used over the finest woods, leaving a clear, bright surface. After every piece of furniture has been wiped with the moist chamois the rooms may be considered really dusted.

Later Particulars.

Delilah had cut off Samson's long hair.

"Its a trifle coarse," she said, "but I can use it for a switch."

When it was so late, however, she reflected that she could have utilized Sampson to much better advantage by exhibiting him in a state street shop window as an advertisement of a hair tonic.—Chicago Tribune.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Teachers Underpaid.

While the Journal does not believe that the Congressmen are overpaid and thinks they have the right to look for better compensation, we are of the opinion that there is a profession, the members of which are as much public servants as the Congressmen are and in whose hands there rests, to a great extent, the destiny of the Nation, but who are not being paid in accordance with the amount of work they do and with the responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. They are the ones who stand in need of better salaries before the Congressmen. The Brooklyn Eagle has been making a comparative study of the salaries paid to teachers and to artisans and finds a most unjust condition of affairs. The Eagle says:

"The man who fashions the walls of a house is held to a higher test of skill, and is paid better for his work, than he who molds the mind of a child. Bricklayers in San Francisco get $8 a day; Harriet Jones teaches school in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, for the same sum per week, and is given employment only nine months in the year. Masons in Calgary, Canada, get $5.40 a day, or $140 a month; Lawrence Amos teaches school in East Brandywine township, Pennsylvania, for $40 a month.

"Many teachers are paid less than bodcarriers. College professors are worse off. Columbia, $3,448; Dartmouth, $3,000; Princeton, $2,500; Amherst, $2,400; Yale, $2,250; Harvard, $2,000. The average salary paid for professors in Columbia is $3,746.85, to adjunct professors, men between 30 and 40, with a dozen years of service to their credit, $2,126.92. Such figures are little less than a public scandal.

"No male teacher in any community should be paid less than enough to support decently a wife and five children. In every community the teacher should have a position of dignity and emolument equal to that of the banker and the professional man.

"Schools ought not to be the last refuge for economic dregs not wanted by business. They should attract and keep in their service the best talent. Facts dealing with this condition, both concerning communities where the rate of pay remains scandalously low and where it has been raised, should have wide circulation."

The Journal has frequently noted that in various parts of the State there is a demand for more teachers, and school authorities appear to be unable to account for the shortage. There is no mystery about this. In this material age a man can earn three or four times as much per week at bricklaying as he could hope to get in the noble profession of teaching he is going to choose the former occupation every time. We are no longer living in the sentimental age. There was a time when the village schoolmaster received barely enough to sustain body and soul; but he was the biggest man in the community. Even the parson was secondary to him. He was content to live on glory. Things are different now, however. School teachers are like other people. They like the good things of life, the comforts, the luxuries that can only be obtained by an outlay of the coin of the realm. If their salaries as school teachers are not sufficient to get these they must cast their lines in other channels, and who can blame them for so doing? The same holds true in regard to women teachers. So many business avenues that were a generation ago closed to women are now open to them. They lead to far more remunerative employment than does the teaching profession.

The truth of the matter is if the school authorities went to secure a better class of instructors they must offer many more inducements. Unless they do this the progress which the State and the Nation has made in the line of education will be halted. No one desires to see this. Such a condition would be fraught with grave consequences. Education must not be retarded. It must be encouraged. Its continued progress will be assured when the authorities are brought to a realizing sense of what an important factor in the affairs of the Nation the school teacher is and that his salary should be fixed in accordance with the responsibility that is in his hands.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Secret of Hairdressing.

The reason why the majority of women who have to depend on their own exertions in the matter of dressing their hair becomingly usually obtain such disappointing results, does not, after all, spring so much from a fatal parsimoniousness in the amount they devote to it night and morning. Hair to look well must receive a maximum of attention, and the fact is too often ignored that the necessary time spent on this important matter of the toilet is never wasted. Hairpins as hooks are concerned, the present fashions making more stringent demands than ever on the amateur hairdresser.

To Start Motor Car Line.

Robert Bracher, Walter Reason and Howard L. Pendleton, of Rahway, have organized a motor and transportation company and will run a line of motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt. This company will succeed the East Jersey Motor and Tranportation Company, which in May last organized a company to run motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt.

CURIOUS FACTS.

Only 500 Chicago women voted at the recent election.

Previous to the death of Alexander the Great all images impressed on coins were of deities.

South America has about twice the area of the United States, but has only half the population.

An organ with ten pipes in Solomon's temple is the first mention of the pipe organ made in history.

Japan has but one factory making leather shoes. Most of the shoes worn there are made of straw or wood.

The juice from thoroughly decayed bananas is a bright, clear carmine, and is said to make a first-class indelible ink.

More than 15,000 operatives are employed in the india rubber manufactories of the United States. There are about 120 factories.

The "Society of Assurance for Widows and Orphans" was the first known life insurance company, and was established in London in 1699.

A young man in Berlin is reported to have had the tooth replaced by a great toe, amputated for the purpose. The operation was successful.

Spinach, yolk of egg, beef, apples, lentils, strawberries, white beans, peas, potatoes, wheat and milk all contain iron, lessening in quantity in the order named.

The First Church of Boston erected its first house of worship in 1632, the second in 1640, the third in 1713, the fourth in 1808, and the present place of worship was declared in 1868.

Jerusalem is becoming again a Jewish city. More than one hundred Jewish families are said to arrive in Jerusalem every week. "Most of them are very poor, but manage to make a scanty living.

Glycerine, an aromatic oil, used for flavoring purposes, is being distilled from the green leaves of the celery plant in Germany. One pound os oil is produced from one hundred pounds of leaves.

The Swiss press is agitated and indignant over the sentencing of a 3-year-old child to three and one-half months' imprisonment for theft. In passing a toy store, the little fellow helped himself to two or three articles which were on exhibition outside the store.

Mr. Borden, of Texas, has recently imported to that State a number of the so-called sacred cattle of India. It is said that their hides are impervious to ticks, and their breeding will probably be tested under a careful watch by the United States Department of Agriculture.

On certain fete days in some parts of Brittainy the marriageable girls earn three or four times as much per week at bricklaying as he could hope to get in the noble profession of teaching he is going to choose the former occupation every time. We are no longer living in the sentimental age. There was a time when the village schoolmaster received barely enough to sustain body and soul; but he was the biggest man in the community. Even the parson was secondary to him. He was content to live on glory. Things are different now, however. School teachers are like other people. They like the good things of life, the comforts, the luxuries that can only be obtained by an outlay of the coin of the realm. If their salaries as school teachers are not sufficient to get these they must cast their lines in other channels, and who can blame them for so doing? The same holds true in regard to women teachers. So many business avenues that were a generation ago closed to women are now open to them. They lead to far more remunerative employment than does the teaching profession.

The truth of the matter is if the school authorities went to secure a better class of instructors they must offer many more inducements. Unless they do this the progress which the State and the Nation has made in the line of education will be halted. No one desires to see this. Such a condition would be fraught with grave consequences. Education must not be retarded. It must be encouraged. Its continued progress will be assured when the authorities are brought to a realizing sense of what an important factor in the affairs of the Nation the school teacher is and that his salary should be fixed in accordance with the responsibility that is in his hands.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Secret of Hairdressing.

The reason why the majority of women who have to depend on their own exertions in the matter of dressing their hair becomingly usually obtain such disappointing results, does not, after all, spring so much from a fatal parsimoniousness in the amount they devote to it night and morning. Hair to look well must receive a maximum of attention, and the fact is too often ignored that the necessary time spent on this important matter of the toilet is never wasted. Hairpins as hooks are concerned, the present fashions making more stringent demands than ever on the amateur hairdresser.

To Start Motor Car Line.

Robert Bracher, Walter Reason and Howard L. Pendleton, of Rahway, have organized a motor and transportation company and will run a line of motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt. This company will succeed the East Jersey Motor and Tranportation Company, which in May last organized a company to run motor cars between Rahway and Roosevelt.

Speaker of the House of Representatives six times, and was twice United States Senator, besides holding other high offices.

American skyscrapers, from nine to ten stories high, are to be erected near the pyramids of Ghizen in Egypt. Permission for the erection of homes and hotels in the great plain extending from Eskebich to the Nile, and covered with ancient sphinxes and structures, has been granted by the Egyptian Government. Several associations have been formed for the building of large hotels in this district.

The fashionable quarter of London is now being largely deserted. This is attributed to the introduction of automobiles. Those who have country houses come to town in their automobiles, stop at a hotel and return to their own mansion, so the town house is no longer so necessary as it used to be. Another reason is that London rents and taxes have risen to such a height that people with large houses and moderate means cannot afford to remain in town during the season. The servant questions is another source of trouble; and, taking it altogether, the aristocratic classes have moved to their country mansions and left town altogether.

OLD VIOLINS.

The Best Method of Finding Out Their True Value.

Very often somebody thinks that he or she has a small fortune locked up in a fiddle case. The somebody does not know much about violins, but has heard or read that an old violin is a very valuable thing, and because grandfather happened to leave a violin, to assume duties upon the harp, somebody immediately believes that a grandfather's violin is a treasure. As a matter of fact, ninety-nine times out of a hundred grandfather invested in a ten dollar fiddle and played "Suwanee River" and "Annie Laurie." When he bought it the violin was worth $10, but since then it has been depreciating in value at the rate of about 10 cents a year. From the mere fact that most of the varnish is scratched off and there are several cracks in the instrument it does not follow that it is an "old one."

If a violin is good to start with it will improve with age and good care, but, on the other hand, a poor fiddle is not benefited to any extent if it survives a century or two.

Don't judge a violin by the label inside of it. Anybody can buy a copy an old sample and date and paste it in. If all the violins bearing a Stradivarius label were his, poor old Antonius would be working yet. More than half of the cheap, worthless violins have pictures of his or some other maker's label, and even some real old and good instruments have been passed off as the work of Amati, Guarneri, Magini and other famous makers.

Any one having a violin with the label of a comparatively unknown maker is likely to be the owner of a more valuable instrument that the person whose fiddle is marked "Antonius Stradivarius".

There is only one way to find out whether or not a violin is living up to its name, and that is to get the judgment of a good dealer. If he tells you that your violin is no good, but still offers to buy it, you may be quite certain that you have a good fiddle. But don't sell it. Take it to some other authority and see what he says, but don't make a bargain. You will hear from him if your violin is genuine, for the supply of valuable ones is small and keen rivalry exists among dealers to secure masterpieces.

A great many people have the idea that all the very good instruments are the output of a half dozen old geniuses when the truth is that there are scores of old as well as quite modern makers whose works bring very high prices.—New York Herald.

MAKE THE HOME PLEASANT.

Don't be afraid of a little fun at home.

Don't shut your house lest the sun should fade your carpets and your hearts lest a hearty laugh shake down some musty old cobwebs there.

If you wish to ruin your sons let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left on the threshold without when they come home at night! Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere.

If they do not find it at their own hearthstones it will be sought at other less profitable places.

Therefore make the homestead delightful with all those little arts which parents so perfectly understand.

Don't press the buoyant spirits of your children; half an hour's merriment round the fireside at home blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard they can take with them into the world is the influence of a bright little domestic sanctum.

Bread Cooler.

To make an inexpensive bread and cake cooler, something that no housewife should be without, procure a piece of rather fine meshed heavy wire fencing. Have the hardware man turn down about four inches on each end and bind across with tin. This makes the side pieces for the cooler to stand on, and you have a simple, durable and inexpensive article on which to cool bread, cake and pies or to place the hot stewpan while the sauce cools.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 27: "The Saviour of All." (Miracles.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Isa. xlii, 4, 7; Matt. xv, 22-28; Mark ii, 15-17; Luke ii, 29-32; John iv, 5-26; Acts x, 34, 35.

All men need a Saviour. No people and no individual has been found who is not conscious in some measure of the need of deeper and purer knowledge of God. We need some one who shall guide us to the truth and show us what we ought to do.

But we have not done as well as we knew how to do. We need one who shall give us the power of a better life. Beyond this we have done much we ought not to have done, and we are guilty and cannot rest until the past be so adjusted as to give us peace with that past.

We need absolution or forgiveness for the past sins, power to lead the right life for the future and guidance in the way of truth that we may know what is the right way. This has been the search of all true hearted men in all ages and all lands.

The expectation has been kept alive through long ages and among many different people that some one would at last arise who should be able to tell men the truth of God all need to know and impart power for holy living. There have been many teachers of religion who have given some help and some light on the difficult places of life, but the only one who has come claiming to fully know all the mind of God and to be able to impart all need of help for true pleasing to God is Jesus of Nazareth.

The Christian religion is different from all other religions the world now has or ever had in that it presents a perfect Saviour from sins and claims the universal allegiance of all men. It professes to be adapted to the needs of all men everywhere and under all circumstances. It goes still further and starts its believers out into life with the definite purpose to make men know this Saviour and unite them to Him in fellowship under the terms of this teaching.

It has a unique conception of the world and God and the relation men bear to God, the world and to each other. God is most profoundly a Father to men. Men are essentially brothers in nature and should be so in fact and work out their life under that thought. One man, the God man, has lived the ideal life and called us all to follow in His path. Whoever will commit himself to the Christ receives the impulse of new existence and spiritual uplift to love God and his fellow man. He becomes conscious of forgiveness for the wrongdoing of the past and of power over the power of the evil within and without.

Another peculiarity of this religion lies in the impulse it imparts to all who truly come into its fullness to carry the glad news to all whom they can reach. Indeed, this is one of the insistent demands of the renewed nature. The saved one must tell others of the Saviour and invite them to come and share in the benefits of the great salvation.

The last and abiding command also of the Saviour Himself refers to this very matter and places on every follower of Christ the obligation to carry the tidings to all the world.

The church has been slow to understand her full duty in this regard, and many individual Christians even at the present time but dimly discern their obligation to help evangelize the whole world. But clearer and clearer this blessed work is coming into view as the great work laid upon us by the Master. With increasing zeal our people are rising to the fulfillment of the great commission.

Jesus is the Saviour of all men. It is our work to carry the tidings of salvation to all. Does this press on your heart? Are you helping?

God's Plan and Ours.

There are two different courses open to each of us. One is to choose God's will for us as our own will and to do the work which he plans for us. The other is to reject God's will and to push out upon a course of our own. If we do the latter, then we are again two courses open to us. One is to stifle our moral sense, the voice of God within us, calling us back. The other is to hearken to the discontent of our own hearts and to look back to do the will of God.

"From childhood," writes a young man, "I have felt impressed that my life should be devoted to Christian work, and this fact kept me from becoming a Christian for some time. I felt that if I became a follower of Christ I would have to enter His work. About six months after my conversion there came to me a very definite impression, while studying the Bible, that God had a work for me to do, that there was present in my heart a spirit of rebellion, for I had planned for myself a business career. God has permitted me to carry out my own plans, until I have found out that a business life can never satisfy me. Long for some work that is soul satisfying."

It is a good thing that God does not abandon us; that His patience never wears out; that even when we succeed in escaping from His will and appear quite prosperous in our course He follows us and whispers to us until, if we are wise, we turn back and do what He wills for us. That is the only thing that in the end can satisfy. We cannot possibly plan for ourselves a career so wonderful and successful as God can plan for us.—Forward.

Erect Life.

If we look down, then our shoulders stoop. If our thoughts look down, our characters bend. It is only when we hold our heads up that our bodies become erect. It is only when our thoughts go up that our lives become erect.—A. McKenzie.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 27.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions. The progress of the Indian.—Isa. xliii, 16-21.

There is probably no nation on the face of the earth to which some prophecy of their coming unto God does not apply. In the reference from Isaiah there are several descriptions that are particularly applicable to the American Indian. The Indian of today remembers not the former things nor considers the things of old, but is absorbed with the conditions of his life which God has brought to him. The prophecy, "I will make a way in the wilderness," is also descriptive of them, and of the Indian it may be truly said, "This people have I formed for Myself; they shall show forth My praise." In the bringing about of these changes we can easily trace the progress of the Indian along new spiritual lines.

If we will glance at the condition of the Indian when Columbus discovered America and at his condition today we will be able to see the progress he has made.

The Indian of the past was the original inhabitant of America. Whence he came to this country has never been discovered. When Columbus came to America he was here, with every appearance of having been here from remote antiquity. The character of the Indian has been variously estimated. Some have idealized him, and others have scarcely found language in which to express their opinion of the cruelty and treachery of the Indian character. He had a code of laws for war, and his false and barbarous principles of warfare largely account for the cruelty of his character. His religious life was most marked. His "untutored mind saw God in the clouds and heard Him in the wind." He called his Deity the Great Spirit, but in addition to the Great Spirit he saw "indwelling spirits in everything." He also believed in a future life—his "happy hunting ground" beyond the grave. The medicine man was the prophet and priest of his religion, but in his religious life he was far from the true God, and, like all the nations and races that knew not God except through nature and natural instinct, the Indian was very much in need of the God of revelation, revealed in His inspired word, and especially in His Son Jesus Christ.

The present religious condition of the Indian is in marked contrast to his past religious condition, and this change has been brought about through mission work among these aborigines of America. The Protestant church began its missionary work among the Indians in New England in 1643, and this work has been carried forward so successfully under the blessing of God that the tribes in America today are practically civilized and Christianized. They now worship the true "Great Spirit." Their hope for the future life is based upon faith in Jesus Christ. The pagan rites of their former religion have been abandoned for the true worship of the true God. The missionaries are still at work among them, and especially effective work is done in the Sabbath and day schools for the young. Many races and tribes have been so completely transformed by Christianity as have the Indian races. The American people owe them a great debt, and it can best be paid by giving them the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. iii, 7; I Sam. i, 15; Matt. v, 11, 12; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 1-11; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15; I Cor. iii, 5-10; II Cor. ii, 23-33; Rev. xxii, 17.

From Trinidad.

J. A. Scrimgrown, president of the Trinidad Christian Endeavor union, writes thus enthusiastically about the movement in his part of British West Indies:

"The Christian Endeavor movement in Trinidad, which now comprises sixteen societies with about 700 members, is steadily growing and we believe has a very decided influence in the training of our young people. We have a very cosmopolitan union, as among the most active members are found Indians, both from the Hindu provinces and from Madras; Chinese, negroes, Portuguese, English, Scotch and Canadians, and the present and past executive committees have had members of all or nearly all these races."

Advance, Endeavor!

Oh, brothers, the task is tremendous
To which we have given our hand;
The Master is waiting to send us;
Our part in the struggle is planned;
From some the new service may be hidden,
To others revealed at a glance,
But all who have started are bidden
Advance.

The ruts of unbroken convention
Are deeper and rougher with use,
Though paved with the finest intention
And patched with the best of excuse;
The path to the highest achieving
Lead over the peaks of romance;
The tracks of formality leaving,
Advance.

"Enough" is the knell of Endeavor,
Complacence the end of the wedge
That, finding a crevice, will sever
The bonds in the prayer and the pledge;
"Content" is a signal of warning
And "comfort" a deadly disease;
Press onward, ye sons of the morning—
Advance.

The step that awaits you this moment
May lead you to peril or loss,
Provoke ridicule, unmerited comment
Or add to the pain of your cross;
The comrades of old may misjudge you,
And sorely you the devils may dance,
But count it all joy and be sure you
Advance.

Your arrow the foe may be stronger
Or set a new snare in your way;
Tomorrow the road will seem longer
Unless it is shortened today.
Oh, brothers, of custom so careful,
So careless of missing your chance,
Come, vigilant, earnest and prayerful,
Advance.

—A. W. in Christian Endeavor World, London.

PERSONAL.

The New Orleans Picayne loving cup, an annual award to the citizen who has done the most meritorious service for the city of New Orleans in the preceding year, was presented to Charles Janvier last week.

Herr Johann Hermann, a nephew of the eminent composer, has been sentenced to a week's imprisonment for debt in Viennan. His liabilities are said to amount to $35,000.

Mr. Failleres was until recently believed to be the only President of the French Republic who had no double, but his counterpart has been found. The man who most resembles him physically is a respectable merchant of the Rue Saint Honore, who plays his part with decorum and dignity.

Joseph Latter, of London, England, has a sixteen-foot beard.

Congressman Charles A. Towne, of New York (who has also represented a district in Minnesota in the House and has served as United States Senator by appointment from that State, besides being a nominee for Vice-President), has decided to retire from Congress, because he thinks he can make more money out of office than in.

Apostolos Mawrogenis, the last of the Greek champions of liberty of 1821, has died, at the age of 114.

Queen Victoria had 21 granddaughters, and of this number only four remain single.

Advancing age and infirmity have compelled Francis Joseph to abandon his practice of giving daily private audiences to his subjects, rich and poor alike.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

"I hate," said Mrs. Backbay, "to see mothers humiliate their children by trying to keep them babies. Look at Mrs. Waldo—her little boy is 5 years old and she is strapping fellow, and the silly woman hasn't put him into glasses yet!"—Cleveland Leader.

The society of ladies the school of politeness.—From the Spanish.

"I won't marry him, mother, even if he is a count. All he wants me for is my money, and he's a big fool!" "Hush, my dear, he'd be a bigger fool to want you without a cent!"—Washington Times.

Accurst the king that wants his subjects' purses.—Bulwer.

"How is Bilkin's baby boy getting along?" "Fine. I was up there yesterday and was surprised to learn that he is beginning to talk." "Does he pronounce his words plainly?" "Not very. He talks like a railroad brakeman calling out stations."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Blessing goes with labor.—From the Turkish.

GERMAN GLEANINGS.

In order to replace a lost thumb a young man in Berlin has had a great toe amputated and grafted on the stump. The operation has proved successful.

Queen Wilhelmina recently shipped some cows from Holland for her husband's estate in Mecklenburg-Schwerin. But they were stopped at the German frontier under the law forbidding the importation of foreign cattle.

This dramatic criticism appeared in the Mainzer Neueste Nachrichten: "The Maid of Orleans was born in the village of Domremy Jan. 6, 1412. On May 30, 1431, she was buried alive in the market place of Rouen, and on Oct. 23, 1906, she was buried in the theater of Mayence. Requiescat in pace."

The smokeless condition in Berlin is said to be due to the preponderant use of smokeless fuel in the form of coke and briquets, the skillful, scientific construction of boiler furnaces and chimneys and finally to the high standard of skill taught and enforced among firemen who have charge with coal for steam and other purposes.

FACTS FROM FRANCE.

The sales of absinthe in France have decreased nearly 3 per cent. within a year. The amount drunk last year was, however, still 4,557,529 gallons.

The making of wooden spoons is a handicraft in Brittany and one of considerable importance, for wooden spoons are employed almost universally there for table use. Many an old sailor takes up the carving of these necessary utensils as a means of livelihood.

In Paris, according to the Cris de Paris, they have counted the saloons in the various wards. The ward in the vicinity of the exchange has the record, with a saloon for every forty-seven of its inhabitants. The market district follows, with one for every fifty-two inhabitants, while the Champs Elysees has one for every 162 inhabitants. The quarter near the Military school has a saloon for every 172 people.

Smoking a Pipe.

The Canadian Cigar and Tobacco Journal gives some hints to those who smoke pipes. Everybody thinks he knows how to smoke a pipe, but to do it perfectly is not easy. "Time is a keynote of successful pipe smoking," says the Journal, "and another is gentleness. Take it easy. Don't crowd the pipe bowl to the bowl. Never get a pipe hot. Keep cool, and keep your pipe cool. You can relight a pipe, and if you are an old smoker you will be all the better for it. When you have finished do not refill a heated pipe."

FAVORS CONSOLIDATION

Former Mayor Saunders on Invitation of Commission Addresses That Body.

AN ABLE PRESENTATION

For Two Hours the Father of the Merger Proposition Discusses the Subject Before Investigating Body.

For more than two hours Monday afternoon former Mayor William L. Saunders, father of the movement, discussed the proposed scheme to consolidate Plainfield and North Plainfield at a meeting of the bi-municipal commission in the city Mayor's office. After reviewing the inception and history of the plan, which dates back ten years, Mr. Saunders explained his reasons for believing that it is eminently desirable for the welfare of the two municipalities to bring about the union as speedily as possible.

It was the first time since the commission organized that anyone has long thorough knowledge of the subject had appeared before it to press the claim for a merger. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh having confined the legal aspects of the idea. It is said that Mr. Saunders quoted from a mass of data that he has collected in a decade and volunteered to be of any assistance he could be in the future. He preferred, it is said, to remain in the background, having been the active leader of the movement for so long a period that it was time others led in advocating the plan.

Respectful attention was given Mr. Saunders and he was frequently interrupted by members of the commission to explain points that were not quite clear to them. The arguments he used, it is said, were practically the same as set forth in his pamphlet "Thirty Reasons for Annexation and Consolidation," issued at the time the annexation campaign was on five years ago. He also dwelt on the arguments used in the past by those who disagreed with him, explaining that he gave them full credit for being sincere in their views and basing the best interests of the borough at heart.

It was just ten years ago this Thursday night that former Mayor Saunders launched the consolidation idea at a meeting held at the home of President of the Board of Trade Lemuel B. Woodson in North Plainfield. It was that occasion he made an elaborate address giving ten cardinal reasons why the community should have but one municipal government. Then, as yesterday, his argument was based on a purely business view of the subject, though he incidentally dwelt on the sentimental side of the question.

At the first meeting, a decade ago, Mr. Saunders said during the course of an able presentation of the subject:

"If it is a good thing to consolidate two shops which manufacture the same product; if it is a good thing to join under one head two department stores which sells the same goods and to the same people, then it should be a good thing to consolidate two cities which are joined together by nature and in which are people whose interests are identical. Home rule is not an argument against, but a reason for the union of Plainfield and North Plainfield. We are the same people, mingling one with the other in social, political and religious intercourse. We use the same streets and buy goods at the same stores; we belong to the same churches, lodges and societies; we contribute to the same charities."

At the next meeting of the commission, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, will address the body. Yesterday afternoon the members of the Commission (consisting of were former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, chairman, and School Director Floyd Woodhull, representing Plainfield, and Charles W. McKechnie and Elston M. French, representing North Plainfield, as well as Mayor Fisk, of this city, and Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield.

RAFFLE WAS A FRAUD.

Frank Johnson, accused of selling up a "fake" raffle, was convicted yesterday in Jersey City of obtaining money under false pretenses. Johnson, claiming to own a farm in Somerset county, decided to dispose of it by chance. He issued 10,000 tickets at fifty cents each.

On the strength of the money he expected to realize, he borrowed $200 from Albert Paymer, of Hoboken. The proposed raffle was a failure and Paymer did not get his money. He made an investigation and found that the farm Johnson claimed to own belonged to his wife.

Short Strike of Teamsters.

Fifteen teamsters in the employ of Cleaning Department of Jersey City struck yesterday for an advance of wages. The men had been paid 25 cents an hour for every hour of actual work. They insisted on a regular salary of $15 a week. To make their position stronger the teamsters joined the local Teamsters' Union. After listening to their grievances the Board of Street and Water Commissioners granted the increase. The teamsters will return to work today.

KREBS LAUDS JACKSON

Educator Declares That Lee's "Right Arm" Was a Master Strategy.

Vivid Picture of Famous Confederate General Painted in Words By North Plainfield's School Principal.

An interesting and exhaustive sketch of General Stonewall Jackson and his campaigns during the Mexican and Civil wars was given Monday night by Prof. O. C. Krebs, principal of the North Plainfield Public Schools, before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church. It was the eighty-third birthday anniversary of the sterling Christian warrior.

Prof. Krebs referred to Gen. Jackson as Gen. R. E. Lee's chief lieutenant and his strong right arm. He said that a rather peculiar co-incidence was that four men of prominence in the Civil War—Jefferson Davis, Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant and Gen. Jackson were all born in the Blue Ridge range of mountains, within a short distance of each other. Jackson was born in the backwoods and although he lived a pioneer life, he never lost gentleness and kindness, which was largely due to his mother's influence. He had great ambition, he declared, and his desire was to become a noble man. His uncle was a man of means and young Jackson lived most of the time with him. He was noted for his intelligence, he was considered the most skillful rider of horses in the vicinity in which he lived. At the age of seventeen years he held his first office, that of a county constable, and at the end of two years he learned through a friend of a vacancy in his district at West Point.

He immediately sought the appointment to the Military Academy, going first to the congressman in his district and to the secretary of war. Finally he went to the man by the name, who disagreed with him, explaining that he gave them full credit for being sincere in their views and basing the best interests of the borough at heart.

Jackson was placed in the lowest division of the lowest class and it was said of him that no one could more crazed at the backboard than he. He worked hard, however, always keeping in mind his motto, "I can do whatever I will do." At the end of the first, second and third years he stood low in his class, but at the end of the fourth year he was graduated seventeenth in a class of seventy.

Prof. Krebs then traced young Jackson's career in detail, and telling of his excellent work as an instructor for three years at a famous military institute. He was interested in religious work, started a Sunday-school for colored children and was for years a deacon in a church. He was a quicker thinker and had little patience with those who were dull.

When the Civil War broke out he declared that he would stand by his country, meaning by that the State of Virginia. He was perfectly sincere in his opinions regarding the south, as against the northern invasion. He always carried three books with him, the Bible, Webster's dictionary and Napoleon's Maxims of War.

Prof. Krebs said that Gen. Jackson was always calm in battle and a master of strategy. As a soldier Jackson was stern, but withal kind-hearted. He was devoted and affectionate in his home and always had confidence in God. In conclusion Prof. Krebs described the last days of Jackson and his death as the result of being shot at the Battle of Chancellorsville.

Boy Burglars Caught.

Four boy burglars was sentenced yesterday at New Brunswick to the State Home at Jamesburg. Mrs. Anna Warren reported Sunday to the police that her house on Commercial avenue had been robbed Thursday and $5.48 in money taken. Detective Dwyer soon rounded up John Saults, fifteen years; Harry Collins, fifteen; Thomas Coleman, twelve, and William Keeten, fifteen. They admitted breaking a window catch. They had been tempted by seeing a bank bill protruding from under a dish which had been Mrs. Warren's savings bank.

James Stewart's Funeral.

With a gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of James Stewart was held at his home on Aliment place, Monday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were George Schiereth, Andrew Stiglits, A. D. Pough, Louis Moore, J. B. Higgins and J. S. Miller.

Wedded at St. Joseph's.

Miss Alberta Fisher, of Berkview avenue, and Joseph S. Hand, of Brooklyn, were married in St. Joseph's church Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Miller and was witnessed by a large gathering of friends. The attendants were Patrick J. Hand, of Brooklyn, and Miss Julia Sloyan, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Hand will make their home in Brooklyn.

A HEALTH FORECAST FOR FEB. 12-INDIGESTION

PHYSICIANS PLEASE NOTE DINNER COOKED BY RECTOR AND VESTRY.

Storm signals, presaging heavy weather and steady work, have been sent to all the local doctors, for February 12. That is the day after the night on which the men of Holy Cross church will cook and serve a supper all by themselves.

The supper will be served in the parish house, after a purely male preparation in the new kitchen. Prominent boroughites have been signed for the culinary staff and the serving force. Charles L. Nichols, Edwin S. Hoosey and Samuel Townsend are among the cooks—the heavy cooks. Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, will do the light and artistic with bread and cake. That is, he hopes for lightness. Only those who bite his bread and pastry will know how successful a night cook he is.

W. L. Saunders is head waiter. He has proved, in a small matter of consolidation, that nobody knows how to wait better than he does. The waiters will take all the tips handed to them.

Some of his fellow-workers say that they will not expect Mr. Nichols to act on that account inasmuch, as they explain it, the Standard Oil doesn't believe in graft.

For the benefit of Plainfielders who will make the trip to "Canada" to partake of this cuisine, may it be said that the Plainfield "Deli" on that night will be located in Mercer avenue just off Washington avenue.

P. S.—The hospital may be reached by telephone.

ANNOYED BY CHICKEN COOP.

Wife of Handwriting Expert Kinsley Sued by Neighbor.

The cacking of hens, crowing of roosters and cooing of pigeons on the premises of Mrs. Elvira Rose Kinsley, wife of the handwriting expert, in the exclusive Prospect Heights section of Nutley, has been so annoying to Clarence B. Iliffe and other neighbors that Mr. Iliffe has filed a bill in Chancery, asking that an injunction issue that will put an end to the annoyance from the birds.

Mrs. Kinsley and her husband caused to be erected a chicken-house within forty feet of the dining-room window of the Iliffe house and in the estimation of Mr. Iliffe this is a violation of restrictive deed conveying the property.

AUTOIST WITH A HEART.

Picked Up Child Machine Hurt and Took Her to Doctor.

Beatrice New, seven years old, of No. 66 Burnet street, Newark, was run down and seriously injured yesterday afternoon at Aimes and Eagle streets, by an automobile driven by Raymond S. Joo, of Hedden Terrace. The girl was crossing the street at the time.

The driver of the car took the injured girl in his vehicle and hastened to the residence of Dr. David A. Kraker, in Burnet street, who cared for her injuries and sent her home.

MAN MADE HIS NEW LEGS.

Both Cut Off by Train, He Whittles Artificial Ones.

Bayonne, Jan. 22.—Henry Blare, of 31 Cottage street, Bayonne, who had both legs taken off on the Central Railroad some time ago, has whittled out a pair of wooden legs. Blare is a painter, and yesterday mounted a ladder as well as any one.

"There is no use in buying legs when I can make them out just as well myself," said Blare. Last night the stork brought a ten-pound baby boy to the Blare home.

Sorrow Over Priest's Transfer.

Much sorrow was expressed yesterday by the pupils in St. Peter's College and by the congregation of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, Jersey City, when announcement was made of the transfer of Rev. Father John W. Fox, S. J., to Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass. He will be succeeded by Rev. Edward J. McGrath, S. J. Father Fox had been spiritual president of St. Peter's College and the rector of St. Peter's church.

Study of Pre-Historic Age.

The study of "Primitive Man in America" has been selected for the latter part of the year by the Monday Afternoon Club, and the first paper of the series was given by Mrs. Albert E. Barclay at its meeting at the Casino Monday afternoon. Her subject was "Prehistoric Age" with the subdivisions "Antiquity of Man and Fossil Beds." The theme proved full of interest and elicited earnest discussion. The paper was preceded by the business of the day.

Birthday Surprise.

Miss Mary Baldwin, stenographer in Prosecutor Strieker's office, was tendered a surprise party in honor of her birthday Monday, at her home in Dunellen. Games, music and refreshments were enjoyed. Miss Baldwin received a number of gifts. Among those present were Harry Rush, Fred Miller, Edward Miller, Wade Lapham, Fred Wilcox, Miss Annie Ace, Miss Edna Corlell, Miss Bertha Peck, Miss Ida Humpston, Thomas R. Beck.

MANUFACTURERS DISCUSS TAX ASSESSMENTS

NO ACTION TAKEN BECAUSE OF SMALL ATTENDANCE—MAYOR FISK PRESENT.

The representatives of various manufacturing plants in Plainfield, who are dissatisfied with the tax assessments levied upon their plants by the county board met Monday in Mayor Fisk's office to discuss the advisability of having an expert engaged to place a valuation on the several properties. This action was in compliance with a suggestion made by the County Board in a letter to Mayor Fisk.

David E. Titsworth, of the Potter Press Works, was chosen chairman and David T. Kenney secretary. After an hour's discussion it was decided to defer action until there was a larger attendance. Another meeting will be called by Secretary Kenney.

VARSITY FIVE WON FROM Y. M. C. A. FIVE

HEAVY TALENT TOO MUCH FOR THE LOCAL PLAYERS.

The college team, so-called, of the Columbia University, defeated the Y. M. C. A. basketball five Monday 45 to 17. The visitors were supposed to represent the second five of the Columbia basketball string, but four of the players were members of the 'varsity team, men who played against West Point in the recent game. The local players made a good showing against them, handicapped in the first half by the intercollegiate rules. Had the Y. M. C. A. rules been used all through the game, instead of in the second half only, the tale might easily have been different. But there is no doubt that the visitors were a winning combination. They had the weight to reach enough to overbear any ordinary combination the locals could get together.

The first half, with the dribbling allowable under intercollegiate rules, resulted in a score of 30 to 7. The second half, with the enforcement of the stiffer rules, found the local men, showed only five points' difference in the scoring. The check sustained by the visitors was a significant comment on the slog under which the Plainfielders struggled in the first half. The Yale and Schoonmaker distinguished themselves under the adverse conditions, the former by shooting and the latter by guarding.

The line-up and summary:

Gilmore	Hall
Collier	White forwards
Scull	Spencer center
Loizeaux	Graham
Schoonmaker	Cerussi
guards

Goals from field—Gilmore, 5; Collier, 1; Loizeaux, Hall, 4; White, 9; Spencer, 2; Graham, 2; Cerussi, 4. Goals from fouls—Collier, Loizeaux; one allowed Plainfield.

WILL ISSUE "MESSENGER."

Crescent Avenue Church Club to Handle Monthly Magazine.

Two departments of church work were taken over by the Men's Club of Crescent Avenue church at a meeting Monday. The "Messenger," the church magazine, which has been issued by the session hitherto, will now be controlled by the club, and the ushering, which has been volunteer work at the services, will be arranged by it.

The "Messenger" will still largely be under the direction of W. D. Murray. He has consented to serve as chairman of the committee in charge of the publication. It is anticipated that the "Messenger" will be self-sustaining this year.

It was announced last night that James Kimball had been made president by the executive committee, to succeed H. C. Munger, resigned. Mr. Munger found his other duties too pressing. The club election will be held in April.

HOBOKEN BOY A HERO.

He Is Badly Scorched Trying to Save Bonfire Victim.

Hoboken, Jan. 22.—Although his heroism was unavailing, 12-year-old George Wilson, of 519 Jefferson street, is the idol today of all the boys and girls in his neighborhood, and his bravery yesterday in endeavoring to extinguish the flames which enveloped little Alice Kirk has brought him unstinted praise from all the grown-up folks.

Alice was playing at a bonfire which had been kindled near her home. The wind veered the blaze toward her and ignited her dress. In a moment the flames had enveloped her entire body. She started to run toward her home and young Wilson ran to the rescue. He tried to beat out the flames with his hands and was badly scorched. A neighbor finally procured a blanket, and, rapping Alice in it, succeeded in putting out the flames. The child was severely burned, however, and will probably die. She is 7 years old and lives in the same house as young Wilson.

WOMEN FIGHT FOR A NEWARK PROPERTY.

Sisters Institute Suit Against Their Uncle, R. A. Sherlock.

Trenton, Jan. 22.—In the Court of Chancery Mrs. Sarah S. Gordon, of New York city, and her sister, Mrs. Jane S. Lesoir, of Florida, N. Y., have brought a suit seeking to compel their uncle, Robert A. Sherlock, to surrender to the complainants the premises located at 195 Broad street, Newark. Mrs. Schenck, the mother of the complainants, who died in May last, owned the premises, but before her death she transferred it to her brother, the defendant.

According to the bill of complaint, Mr. Schenck disappeared from his home a long time ago, and after he had gone for a great many years Mrs. Schenck received an order from the Chancellor allowing her to dispose of the property. The same as though her husband had died, he having absented himself for such a long time the court assumed that he was dead—legally dead.

The complainants allege that in December, 1905, Mrs. Schenck executed a deed to her brother for the purpose of holding the property in trust for them, and with a view that it would strengthen the court proceedings if the question arose of the equity of the missing husband. The bill states in full how the course was pursued upon advice of the defendant, who was then doing some legal work for the complainants, who claim that no consideration was given, and that Mr. Sherlock frequently stated in conversation that he held the property only in trust for the sisters.

The defendant did not record the deed given by Mrs. Schenck until five days after her death, and this fact is held as proof that the property was left in trust. The property some time later was conveyed by Sherlock to his wife.

This was done, it is averred, without consideration, and was a part of a plan to deprive them of the rights which the complainants had in the premises.

COLBY MOVEMENT RESTRAINED POPULISM.

So Called by Member of New England Society of Orange.

Orange, Jan. 22.—Following the presentation of the report of a special committee on the revision of corporation laws of New Jersey there was a wordy war at the meeting of the New England Society of Orange Saturday night. One of the severest attacks upon the report was made by Camillus G. Kidder, who is now the moving spirit in the Orange Board of Excise. He called the report "restrained populism."

"The report of the committee is very good," he said, "and very choice in its language, but if it is the report of the professional reformer I do not know that it ought to be entertained by this society. It seems to me that the reformer in the true sense has not been at all considered. I do not think the Colby movement was in its true sense a reform movement."

Mr. Kidder urged the members of the society to be cautious in handling the subject.

Edward K. Sumerwell, who was defeated as a candidate for Mayor on the Citizens' Union or reform ticket, in East Orange, and who is a member of the committee, defended the report, denied it was "restrained populism," and also denied he was a professional reformer.

Absalom P. Backman stood with Mr. Kidder, and the two lawyers on the committee who defended the report were Mr. Summerwell and Albridge C. Smith. Mr. Smith, chairman of the committee, denied the committee was in sympathy with populism or "restrained populism," or hanging on the coattails of "the professional reformer."

BAYONNE ELKS' NEW HOME.

Bayoune, Jan. 22.—The officers of Bayonne Lodge, No. 434, Brotherhood Protective Order of Elks, have completed negotiations for the purchase of the clubhouse on West Thirty-fourth street of the Newark Bay Boat Club. The purchase price is $18,000, and the Elks will take possession on May 1. In the interval the lodge will receive $150 a month rent from the boat club. The latter organization will erect a $50,000 country house facing Newark Bay at West Thirty-fourth, and work is to be started early in the spring.

Although the youngest society in Bayonne, the Elks are the first to acquire a home of their own. The building they have purchased is well adapted to their use. It is completely and handsomely furnished, and contains four regulation bowling alleys, a large hall for entertainments, dances and meetings and billiard room, parlors and committee rooms.

The lodge numbers 260 members, including many prominent citizens. Already plans are under way for the dedication, and lodges within fifty miles of this city will be invited to participate in the ceremonies.

S. S. A. L. Organization.

Trinity church Sunday-school effected a temporary organization of an athletic squad to represent it in the S. S. A. L. There are about twenty-five boys available for the organization. Edgar F. Shepard was made chairman and Arthur Williams secretary. A meeting will be held next Monday to prepare representation at the S. S. A. L. meet at the Y. M. C. A., February 11.

NOT AN EARTHQUAKE, ONLY AN EXPLOSION.

But Rumble and Roar Drove Folk to Streets, Where They Long Remained.

Two terrific explosions alarmed Sunday night Perth Amboy and towns within a radius of five miles of it. They caused many to remain out of doors several hours until they learned the cause of the rumble and roar which shook buildings as though there was an earthquake.

It was found that a carload of molten slag at the C. Pardee Steel Works had been dumped into a pit in which there was some rain water. The side of a large building near by was blown in and one workman injured.

At the Perth Amboy City Hall, more than a mile away, Sergt. James Mulligan thought an attempt was being made to rob the safe in the Collector of Revenue's office.

He promptly surrounded the building before making an investigation in an attempt to prevent the escape of the supposed thieves.

It was several hours before the cause of the explosion was made known.

SUICIDE ENGAGED UNDERTAKER

Told Him to Cremate Him. Went Home and Shot Himself.

Elizabeth, Jan. 22.—Benjamin Rosenstiehl, 64 years old, of 519 First avenue, met Charles J. Jensen, an undertaker, on a street Saturday, told him that he was convinced his end was near, and asked Jensen to take charge of the body and have it cremated. Jensen laughed the matter off and told Rosenstiehl that he was apt to live many years yet.

Rosenstiehl died in the Elizabeth General Hospital this morning from the effects of a bullet wound back of his right ear, inflicted by himself some time late Saturday night or Sunday morning.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Schick, went to his room about 11 a. m. yesterday and found him in bed with a pool of blood around his head. In his right hand he gripped an old-fashioned revolver with which he had shot himself. Nobody in the house had heard the report of the pistol. He had been somewhat crippled for years and it is believed that he had recently become despondent. He is survived only by his daughter.

MRS. WILLIAMSON GETS APPOINTMENT.

She Is Made Probation Officer of Middlesex County.

New Brunswick, Jan. 23.—Judge Theodore B. Booraem yesterday appointed Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, of Elizabeth, the probation officer of Union county probation officer of Middlesex county, at the same time relieving Constable Cornelius Buckelew, who has held the office for years, of further duty. Buckelew was appointed by Judge Strong soon after the passage of the law providing for the appointment of probation officers. Judge Booraem made the following statement regarding the appointment:

"It has been my wish ever since I was made judge and began to be acquainted with the duties of my office, to have the probation system of the county of Middlesex organized upon scientific lines, as suggested by the experience of those engaged in similar work in other parts of the country. The need of such organization has been particularly emphasized to my mind by the increasing number of juvenile offenders who have been brought before me for commitment to the reform schools. These schools are institutions thoroughly well equipped, managed, and are doing excellent work in their own sphere, yet I cannot help feeling that to send a child to either of these institutions in some degree throws upon him the stigma of crime.

"If the young people of this community who have been led into crime can only have their energies turned in the right direction by influences surrounding them in their homes and among their playmates, without being sent to a reformatory institution, I believe it to be far better for society as well as for the children. It is certainly wiser and less expensive to save children than to punish criminals, and, at the best, incarceration of children in a reformatory institution is regarded by the public as in some measure a punishment for crime.

"With these ideas in mind I have availed myself of the opportunity to appoint Mrs. Emily E. Williamson probation officer of the county of Middlesex, she having agreed to accept this position to bring to it all her large and wide experience in reformatory and charitable work. Her labors will not, of course, be limited to the children, but the saving of children is, to my mind, the most important and far-reaching feature of the work that is to be done.

"Mrs. Williamson expects to organize her office on a fairly scientific basis and to keep those paroled in her custody under strict surveillance, so that the court at all times will be able to ascertain what researches are being accomplished in the way of reformation."

Mrs. G. R. Vanderhoef, of West Front street, is detained at home by illness.

Hugh H. MacMurray, of West Seventh street, has recovered from an attack of the grip.

J. H. Staats, of Chatham, has been visiting his son, J. A. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington.

IMPORTANT MEASURES IN THE LEGISLATURE

BILL FOR ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE OF THE PEOPLE.

Senator Gebhardt introduced in the Legislature Monday an application for a constitutional convention to be called by Congress for an amendment to the Federal constitution for the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people.

Other important measures introduced in the Senate included:

S. J. R. 4, By Mr. Gebhardt. Makes application under article 5 of the constitution of the United States for a constitutional convention to be called by Congress for the purpose of submitting to the States for ratification and amendment to the Federal constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. (Judiciary).

S. 33. By Mr. Gebhardt. Fixes railroad passenger fares at not more than two cents per mile for day coaches and not more than two and one-half cents per mile for parlor or sleeping cars. (Railroads and Canals).

S. 34. By Mr. Gebhardt. Makes it unlawful for the State to sell or convey riparian lands in fee; empowers leasing for any term not exceeding 25 years. (Riparian Rights).

S. No. 23. By Mr. Colby. Providing for a civil service commission of three members to be appointed by the Governor, both political parties to be represented. Requires that no officer having the appointment or employment of persons to the civil service, shall appoint any subordinate, except under the provisions of this act. The civil service shall be divided into unclassified and classified service. The unclassified will include all officers subject to Senate's confirmation, all principals and superintendents of public schools, all heads of State government departments, also city and county departments, all persons appointed by name in any statute, and certain unskilled laborers. The classified service shall include all other officers. The commission shall prescribe examinations to be passed for positions in the classified service, and shall make rules for appointments and promotions. The bill covers 20 printed pages, and was introduced last session by Mr. Colby. (Judiciary).

In the House these bills were introduced:

H. 87. Mr. Perkins. Requires every vehicle drawn by a horse or horses from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, and whenever foggy to carry at least two lighted side lights showing white and visible at least 250 feet in both directions. Penalty, $10 for each violation. (Revision of Laws).

H. 88. Mr. Perkins. Amends the act relative to factories and workshops so that no minor under 16 years of age shall work more than 10 hours in a day, 55 hours in a week, nor between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. (Labor and Industries).

H. 76. Mr. Hendrickson. Provides that all principals and teachers after a probationary period not exceeding three years shall be thereafter retained during good behavior and efficiency, and can only be dismissed or have salary reduced after written charges and trial. (Municipal Corporations).

AGRICULTURAL BOARD WANTS BETTER SEED.

The State Board of Agriculture, at its closing session, adopted the resolution introduced Wednesday, petitioning the legislature to amend the limited franchise act to make it applicable only to counties of the first class. At the suggestion of the committee on resolutions there was eliminated from the measure as passed the part of the preamble setting forth that under existing legislation the right to carry freight is subject to such reasonable or unreasonable conditions as any municipality may impose, and stating that it is within the power of one municipality along the line of the proposed railroads of freight facilities by the imposition of unreasonable conditions.

The board also passed a resolution petitioning the New Jersey senators and members of congress to use their influence to direct that the $242,000 to be expended by the United States department of agriculture for free seed distribution, be expended for the distribution of rare and valuable seeds from all parts of the world and for the purchase by the agriculture colleges and experiment stations of the various states.

The board passed the resolution petitioning the legislature to appropriate $100,000 for buildings and equipment at the agriculture experiment station at New Brunswick and $15,000 per year for maintenance.

Mrs. Andrew Cox, of West Second street, is able to be out again after a few days' illness.

Mrs. Alexander Milne, formerly of North Plainfield, is stopping for the winter at Truell Court.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dayton, of Mariners place, are parents of a daughter born to them a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reynolds, who have spent the past month south, have returned to their home on Westervelt avenue.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1907. NO. 5.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

ASK LIGHT AT CROSSING

Rock Avenue Residents and Business Men Prepare a Petition.

TO LESSEN THE DANGER

No Light On the Block As All At Present Time—Another Petition For Grading South Second Street.

Ready to accept any consideration of the dangerous conditions that obtain at the Rock avenue grade crossing, pending the time when the perils there shall be entirely eliminated, the residents and business men of the vicinity have joined in an effort to induce the Common Council to have an electric light placed at that point. A light would do much to lessen the night-time dangers.

At the present time there is not a light on Rock avenue between Front and Second streets. A petition for the light was drawn up yesterday, and it will be presented to the Common Council at the meeting next week. The J. D. Lolzeaux Lumber Company and the Ransome Concrete Machine Company head the signers. The petition in full and the signers, are as follows:

"Your petitioners, freeholders and taxpayers, residing on Rock avenue, West Second street, Third street and Fourth street, and travel across the Central Railroad tracks on Rock avenue, between Front street and Second street, would respectfully petition your honorable body to locate an electric light on the post at the crossing of the above tracks located on the south side of the railroad track at Rock avenue.

"We would respectfully call your attention to the fact that there is not a light located between Front street and Second street in the above territory, and as there is a great deal of traffic at this point, and it is very dark, it is very much needed by the public at large.

"Trusting your honorable body will give this petition favorable action, we remain,"

"Yours respectfully,"

"J. D. Lolzeaux Lumber Company, Ransome Concrete Machine Company, Fred L. Langster, H. S. Crane, Charles K. Kellaway, Henry B. Phillips, Thomas H. Wanamaker, O. Christianson, M. Bowden, Mary E. Stutz, W. E. Pine, J. E. Pine."

Accompanying this petition, which was sent to Councilman Charles C. Randolph today for presentation to the Council, will be one for the grading of South Second street between Clinton and Rock avenues. The residents say the condition of the street holds back necessary improvements. They want the thoroughfare graded so they may learn their curb lines. The residents are ready to assure the Council that as soon as the street is macadamized curbing and sidewalks will be laid immediately.

The roadway is so heavy as it is, the residents say, that the fire department would find it impossible to go through the street with apparatus. they argue that that point alone should be sufficient to insure prompt improvement.

The section affected is rapidly growing as are residences and Houses are springing up all about, and the new concrete machine factory will lead to an increase in them.

Annual Trip of Inspection.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, together with a number of directors of the Lawrence Cement Company, left Plainfield this morning in a special Pullman coach, attached to the 9 o'clock Express for Siegfried, Pa., where the company has a large plant. This is the annual inspection of the plant and the election of directors. The car was well occupied with officials of the company and provisions were made to serve meals en route. Among the other Plainfielders in the party was Edgar F. Shepard, who is employed in Mr. Ackerman's offices.

Going to Panama.

William L. Saunders, of the borough, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, will leave on Sunday for the Isthmus of Panama. He will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss Saunders, and Charles R. Frost, of Watchung avenue. Miss Saunders will go as far as New Orleans, returning home from that place. Mr. Saunders and Mr. Frost will make the rest of the trip together.

District Court.

Wolf, Selsel & Co., of New York, obtained a verdict against Charles Schanz, on contract, in the District Court yesterday. F. J. Blatz appeared for the plaintiff.

Rutgers Singers Coming.

The Rutgers Glee Club will give a concert at the Y. M. C. A. on March 8. The affair will be under the auspices of the association.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Mara, of Rockview avenue, are parents of a son born to them last night.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS ADDRESSED BY DR. HODGES

NEW ENGLAND MINISTER TALKS ON SOCIAL WORK OF A CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Plainfield Clericus, together with ministers of other denominations, who were present as guests, listened to an instructive and highly entertaining talk by Rev. Dr. George Hodges, of Cambridge, Mass., in the parish house of Grace church, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Hodges is dean of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, and he spoke on the subject of "The Social Work of a Christian Parish."

After briefly reviewing the great changes in church work during the past twenty-five years, showing the marked difference between the earlier days and today and the gradual passing away of the more conservative methods for the progressive one, he referred to the great work of Dr. Rainsford at St. George's church, New York, and spoke of the social side of church life.

Dr. Hodges said that it is now recognized that a man's body needs almost as much attention as his mind, and he added that there is a great deal of temporary value in the parish house, where things other than spiritual can be considered. There has always been a theatre, said the speaker, and there always will be one, and it is the duty of the people to make it better and have it represent the very best things.

The speaker said that a parson should not be like one he heard of who was invincible six days of the week and incomprehensible on the seventh day, yet he is not expected to be a caterer, a lecture manager, His defined duty is to be a priest and prophet, with time to say his prayers and read his Bible. If the parish house interferes with that work better let it burn down. It is the spiritual dealing with the souls of men as clergymen has to do and he has no right to let anything interfere with that work.

Dr. Hodges said that the parish house is expensive, and it must not be considered that it is always money that means success in Christian work. It has been said that the church is the strongest in the days of her poverty. He urged honest and straightforward dealing on the part of the minister and his people and that the church and business should be conducted on the same high plane. The accounts of the parish treasurer, he said, should be examined as carefully as those of any large corporation.

He cautioned his brethren not to overwork the sexton. He believed that sometimes he was the hardest individual to convert, because he knows the Christian so well. He then spoke of the tendency some parishioners have of sleeping in church, but he did not believe that it was always due to the preacher of the sermon. He characterized it as a hypnotic sleep in which the sexton has a large part in the arrangements of the various lights in the church and he believed a really good converted sexton a help.

Dr. Hodges said that he was a great believer in the sacrament of the glad hand, the effort to see that everyone is made welcome in church and he added that the Christian Social Parish should be fair, friendly and philanthropic and that every effort should point toward social betterment, a fair and proper conception of the questions of rent and wages on the part of employer and employe. He said that in this Democratic government he was glad to know that public opinion still rules and will have its way, and quoting Gov. Whitthrop, who said, "When you don't know what to do don't do it," he closed his remarks.

At the suggestion of Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, a vote of thanks was given to Dr. Hodges. Prior to the address the ministers enjoyed a lunch prepared and served by women of the parish, including Mrs. H. M. Stockton, Mrs. James R. Martine, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. Hyatt, Miss Tweedy, Miss Titus and several others.

Miss Wilbur Engaged.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Louise Fink Wilbur, daughter of Freeholder and Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, to Blake Broadhead Tatham, of Philadelphia. The wedding will take place next month.

ASSOCIATION MEN DINE

Annual Dinner of the Y. M. C. A. Attended by 150 Members.

SPEECH BY DR. RAYMOND

Union College President Tells of the Debt Men Owe to One Another —C. C. Michner Also Speaks.

Y. M. C. A. men to the number of 150 sat down to the annual dinner of the association in the auditorium last night. The hall was handsomely decorated with flowers. The stage, on which the speakers' table was placed, was banked with palms and ferns. The table was decorated with flowers.

Seated about President Joseph W. Gavett, the toastmaster, on the platform, were Rev. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, president of Union College; C. C. Michner, secretary of the World's People's Forward Missionary Movement; L. E. Hawkins, State secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, and the following former presidents and vice presidents of the association: H. Newman, George Cornwell, C. W. Mutchler, J. D. Spicer and D. E. Titsworth. Dr. Lewis said grace.

The following menu was served, under the direction of Mrs. Lena Hellstrom; the first course was served at 7:15 o'clock:

Blue Points
Celery Saltines Olives
Soup Juliene
Rolls
Roast Turkey, Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes Sweet Potatoes
Peas
Waldorf Salad
Cream Cheese Crackers
Neapolitan Ice Cream Assorted Cakes
Coffee

Music by the Vivo Trio was an accompaniment to the courses.

Dr. Raymond and Mr. Michner were the speakers. Dr. Raymond is a former pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and he was cordially greeted when he arose to speak. His address, on the independence of men, produced a deep impression. In substance, he spoke as follows:

"No man is a Philadelphian tonight (applause). I look around me and see my contemporaries still to the fore, doing the good work yet. There is something about Plainfield that keeps men young. I am glad to be among you again very much."

"A text fits everywhere and one of St. Paul's statements seems to be applicable here. 'I am a debtor,' he said. Paul had something in mind when he made that statement. I have an idea that what we need is the application of a higher principle of obligation.

"Take that idea of debt. Only one idea is fundamental, yet men apply it so differently we can judge a man by the way he applies it. With one the debt has to take the form of exact words, in writing. That is lowest form of commercial honesty. Another man is satisfied with the word of indebtedness. There is still another man who recognizes the fact of debt, and feels his duty to meet the debt whenever he receives a benefit. He recognizes value received. Gratitude, as we know it, is simply that.

"Every divine command must rest on something that is recognized. That idea of Christian stewardship rests on the idea of obligation. Now, Paul doesn't say he is in debt to God. Some things go without saying.

"We hear of self-made men; I am getting very tired of hearing of self-made men. No man lives by himself. We are debtors to every class of men; our lives represent value received from many sources. There is nothing more finding on the conscience of an honest man than the support of all the institutions in his community; no man ought to hesitate in his support of the Y. M. C. A.

"Debt includes the obligation of one to discharge that duty which comes to us as a trust. The man who receives a message for another must deliver the message or be false to his trust. Paul recognized that the message of the Gospel had come to him not for himself alone, but for all the world, and he went about the world paying that debt.

"Money is not the most precious thing we possess. It is the thing that is least strongly yours. It is more easily parted from you than anything else. Your character, your ideals and your stout heart are worth more to you than your money.

"No man is quite so foolish as he who fails to recognize the trust that comes with possession. No race so foolhardy as that which fails to recognize the duty that lies in the recognition of obligation. The idea of mutual interest, of brotherhood, of community of interests, is making the history of the twentieth century. We can't look at the Bible without seeing our duty to all the world writ large. Missions might be written

(Continued on Page 4.)

140 PLAYERS IN PARK CLUB'S ANNUAL EUCHRE

MILITARY IDEA CARRIED OUT IN A NOVEL WAY.

The annual military euchre at the Park Club, last night, was largely attended and a great success. There were thirty-five tables and 140 people engaged in playing the game. The military idea was carried out in a novel way. Each table was made to represent a fort and was decorated with American flags. The players were expected to defend the various forts.

The playing opened with bugle call and drum beats and the changes throughout the game were announced in the same way. There were two sections—A and B. Those winning prizes in section A were as follows:

First—Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lyman. Second—Miss VanDeventer, Miss White, H. K. White, Mrs. G. G. Davidge. Third—Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. French, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. White. In section B the prize winners were as follows: First—Mr. and Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyon. Second—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Abbott. Third—Miss Adelaide Hall, Miss Elsie Brokaw, Rowland Ries and Charles Faber.

The affair was under the auspices of the entertainment committee and the direction of Frank D. Swayney, who arranged the euchre last year. After the play social features were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

GRAND JURY PUTS BAN ON GIFT MAKING CUSTOM

PASSES RESOLUTION ABOLISHING THE PRACTISE IN VOGUE FOR YEARS.

According to a resolution, adopted by the Union County Grand Jury, today, the custom of presenting gifts to the foreman and clerks upon the conclusion of a session of the Grand Jury, is to be abolished. It has always been customary for members of the Grand Jury to make presentations to the foreman and clerk, and in many instances the gifts have been expensive. The practice had reached such a stage it began to be an important financial item to the juries.

When the Grand Jury returned to court this noon, thirty-five indictments were presented, making fifty-two in all during the session. While the body has completed its labors, the members are held subject to the call of the court in cases of emergency.

GOLD MEDAL MINSTRELS GET ANOTHER BIG CROWD.

S. R. O. Sign Out at New Market Where the Local Troupe Played An Engagement Last Night.

Stormy weather proved no barrier to the drawing powers of the Gold Medal minstrel troupe at New Market, last night, and the local black face artists were greeted by an S. R. O. audience when the curtain went up at Friendship Hall. The programme was practically a new one throughout and the artists made individual hits in various numbers. One of the features in the olio was the first appearance with the troupe of George Bennett, of Netherwood, for two seasons cornet soloist with LaBarre Brothers' minstrels. He performed upon the instrument, last night, in a manner that won him hearty applause and established him as a favorite.

The performance was given under the auspices of the New Market school for the benefit of its piano fund and will be repeated for the same purpose in a few weeks at South Plainfield and Lake Bound Brook, both places being in the district presided over by School Superintendent Metz.

A joker in last night's audience let loose a large dose of new pepper preparation, being worked to death in Plainfield at present, and the first part of the programme was interrupted by continued sneezing. The performers got it as bad as the audience and some of the singers could hardly proceed with their numbers.

Lodge of Elks at Rahway.

Plans are about complete for the institution of a lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in Rahway. There are now twenty-one members of the order residents of Rahway who belong to the Elizabeth lodge, and with the institution of the new lodge they will withdraw to affiliate with it.

Word has been received from Stanton, Hunterdon county, telling of the serious illness, with appendicitis, of Mrs. Peter B. Laire, a former resident of Plainfield.

YEAR IN THE Y. M. C. A.

President J. W. Gavett's Review of Association Activities.

MEMBERSHIP GROWTH

Still Short of the 1,000 at Which the Workers Have Been Aiming—

Praise for Physical Director.

The annual review of the years' work in the Y. M. C. A. was presented to the members at the annual dinner last night by President Joseph W. Gavett. His statement included all the departments of activity. It was as follows:

To the members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield.

The work of the past twelve months has been in the main the same character as in former years. We have not accomplished all we desired, but we have been successful in some new ways. Our membership is 505 men, 124 boys, a total of 629.

August 1st we called Mr. G. L. Listman to take charge of our physical department, and under his direction the gymnasium has been put in first class condition. He has advanced the work beyond lines yet attempted, and has all the classes in good running order. In addition to the regular work, he has organized—basketball leagues, and—separate teams giving many more members a chance to play the game. Mr. Listman has also organized an Intercity Baseball League with five teams—Round Brook, Clinton Avenue, Dunellen, Scotch Plains and Y. M. C. A. Each team to play sixteen games; a pennant to be given to the winner.

A new feature inaugurated by him is the Sunday-school Athletic League; eight Sunday-schools have entered, and a meet is to be held in our gymnasium on February 1st. These leagues have been very successful in larger cities, and we believe they will be a help to the Sunday-schools and our Association as well as to the members of the league. Mr. Charles McCutchen is president of the league, and has offered a silver cup to the Sunday-school winning the most points.

We have six classes in our gymnasium with a total average attendance of 106.

The Interscholastic Basketball League has been one of the features of the year's work. We are sure many people that need the exercise do not avail themselves of our well equipped gymnasium, and the scientific instruction given by our physical instructor. In spending of athletics, we cannot but wish we had an athletic field on which we could have all our out-door sports, and also have a place for our Sunday-school Athletic League to have its games.

Our Association has been represented this year at Northfield, Silver Bay, and Lake George. We have contributed both to the State and International work.

A new feature was the automobile class, organized by our secretary, Mr. Robbie. Eighteen men enrolled in the class, and C. B. Brokaw, of New York, a very proficient instructor, had charge. We hope to have this class again this year.

We have assisted about sixty men to boarding houses, and positions of employment, and are increasing our usefulness this way more every year.

The department of religious work has been given a prominent place in the Association's activities during the year, and while results possibly have not been all that could have been wished, yet the labor has not been bestowed in vain.

Various methods have been employed to reach men, and much effort expended to make the meetings attractive and helpful.

There have been several men who have publicly professed Christ, united with the church, and who have been greatly helped in their religious lives.

The meetings have been more varied in character the past year than usual. Several meetings having been held in the New Plainfield theatre at which eminent speakers have addressed the meetings, and we hope with success.

In place of our regular Sunday afternoon meetings in the hall during the summer, we tried holding some open air meetings in Concert Park, and some of which were largely attended by men, women, and children, and they seemed to enjoy them.

Several Sunday afternoon conferences on religious themes were conducted by our general secretary which were helpful.

The Bible class work has not been as well supported as we had hoped, though considerable effort had been made to enlist the interest of our members in this work.

The shop meetings have been one of the most promising fields of the

(Continued on Page 4.)

GRANDSON OF TRUSTEE STRUCK MISS STEELE

UNRULY PUPILS SAID TO HAVE BEEN CONDONED BY PRINCIPAL.

Additional facts relative to the resignation of Miss Margaret Steele, the South Plainfield school teacher who was forced to resign on account of lack of support from the school authorities in her efforts to curb unruly pupils, were made public this morning. Miss Steele's resignation is the culmination of trouble which began last September. Lloyd Harris, grandson of J. F. TenEyck, a trustee, has been especially annoying, and every effort made by Miss Steele to discipline the youngster met with a rebuke from the Board of Trustees and Principal Meskill, it is said. Harris is the boy who is said to have punched the teacher until she sank to the floor weeping.

Other boy pupils followed the example set by Harris, and openly defied their teacher. When the disorderly pupils were sent to Principal Meskill for punishment they were treated kindly, it is alleged, and told to return to their class-room and pay no attention to the teacher. It is charged that a member of the Board of Trustees circulated the report that Miss Steele was unable to keep her pupils, and many parents advised their children to act as they thought best. As a consequence they sneered at their teacher and talked out loud during the school hours. When she rebuked them, they laughed at her.

Mrs. Joseph Harlow, who has three children in the school, declared last night that the conduct of the Board of Trustees and some of the parents who encouraged their children to defy Miss Steele, was outrageous.

"I have known Miss Steele ever since she came to South Plainfield, and I always regarded her as a splendid teacher and an especially nice young woman," Mrs. Harlow said last night to a reporter. "I had no fault to find with the way she handled my children. Some of the trustees say she was cruel, but I know better."

Mrs. Harlow called her son Joseph to testify to the kindness and capability of Miss Steele. Residents of South Plainfield are now talking of making a complaint against the boy to the Board of Trustees. When Trustee Ten Eyck was seen last night he said:

"I cannot see what interest there can be in the resignation of a teacher. She had no reason to resign except that she wanted to go home for a rest."

CHOIR'S LAST MEETING.

Trinity Church Chorus Body Passes Out With Social.

The members of Trinity Reformed church chorus choir, which was given way to a quartette, held its last meeting at the home of Horace J Martin on Watchung avenue last night. The attendance numbered forty in all and the usual features of a social gathering were enjoyed.

During the evening the "last will and testament" of the choir was read and by its terms all the affairs are to be wound up at once. Horace J. Martin and Arthur L. Titsworth were made executors. The will was read by Mrs. Fred J. Huff and it occasioned a great deal of amusement.

Death of Rev. Robert Miller.

Rev. Robert Miller, of Clinton, Iowa, died in the hospital in that place, yesterday. He had been ill with valvular heart trouble for over a year. He leaves a wife and daughter, Grace. The remains will be brought to the family plot in the Rahway cemetery on Friday. Mr. Miller married Miss Louise Johnson, of Duer street, a sister of Miss Grace and Charles W. Johnson and Mrs. Sarah Randolph, who at present reside at 103 Duer street.

Plainfield Ministers Meet.

Following the meeting of the Plainfield Clericus at Grace church parish house, yesterday afternoon, the members of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, including the ministers of all denominations here, held a meeting to discuss matters of more or less importance.

Rev. H. H. Baker's Funeral.

The funeral of Rev. Halsey H. Baker, who died at his home on East Fifth street, Monday night, will be held at the house tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and Rev. George B. Shaw will have charge. Interment will be at Hillside.

—Neuman Brothers' store is headquarters for the celebrated White Label canned goods. The firm recommends the White Label asparagus and fancy Maine corn especially.

—The annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work will be held in Grace church Guild Room, Tuesday, February 5, at 11 a. m. The public is cordially invited to attend.  1 30 2 w s

TALKS OF DRYDEN LETTER

Senator Ackerman Expresses His Opinion Relative to the Candidate's Statement.

"WHY DOES HE PERSIST"

Asks If There Are No Other Deserving Republicans in the State of New Jersey.

Referring to the letter which he received from Senator Dryden, Saturday, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman expressed himself as follows in conversation with a Daily Press reporter this morning:

"Senator Dryden in his letter, admits the force of public opinion and practically concedes that it is not a 'will o' the wisp' thing which one of the papers supporting him says it is —to that extent there is division between them. Senator Dryden grants its power while his followers are indifferent to its existence as shown by the position of some of his supporters.

"Mr. Dryden thinks that the public opinion against his re-election is based upon a misapprehension. He concedes the existence of the opposition but feels that it is in error. Any man is strikingly daring and supremely self-satisfied who will chance the future and the principles of his party on the strength of his individuality, and particularly so when some other gentleman may be selected upon whom we can unite thus bringing harmony of action within party counsels.

"The voters who have endorsed my position are men of character, representing a powerful element of the party and they are not of that type who change with the direction of the wind. Senator Dryden will admit to be true the statement that we can select a Senator other than himself, who will stand with directness and enthusiasm for all the principles and advanced thoughts of Republican Statesmanship. Why then should he insist that our action must narrow down to only his re-election? Are there no other deserving Republicans in the State of New Jersey? Does Mr. Dryden wish to say 'I am Alpha and Omega' of the Republican party?

"If the prosperity of the country is due to the wise Statesmanship of the Republican party, as I think it is, then we all owe in some measure a debt of gratitude to the Republican party and that also includes Mr. Dryden. Does the gentleman take exception? If so, why? Are we under obligation to him or is he under obligation to the Republican party?

"Mr. Dryden is even under greater obligations to the party than the great majority of the people, for while all have benefitted and shared in the general prosperity, his portion, has perhaps, been larger owing to his many and extended interests in the various corporations of the State.

"I am not questioning the legitimacy of his profits, but merely stating a fact. Who will deny that some of the voters cast their ballots at the September primaries who were influenced by local conditions and without any thought of the Senatorship?

"Who will be so bold as to assert, in the absence of a popular vote for United States Senator, that the office belongs to one man and that he must foreclose a mortgage as a personal asset?

"What is public opinion? Do the friends of Mr. Dryden think that it is merely a 'will o' the wisp' thing? In the absence of a vote how are we to gauge it? Perhaps no one can say with authority that the people of a county or a State are unanimously against this or that man or measure, but it does not require a very quick eye or keen insight to see and know that there is an opposition among the people to the election of Mr. Dryden which is both bitter and serious. Mr. Dryden thinks that it is based on a misapprehension. Does Mr. Dryden wish us to go forth among the people and tell them that they are indulging in visions and false notions and misapprehensions? Does he wish to put the Republican party on the defensive?

"Does he think he can make an address which will convince the people and tell them that they are indulging in false notions of thought? The people are not opposed to men of affairs and to men of success—if they were, the future of our great country would be very despairing.

"What the people do object to is the idea of a group of men controlling powerful public corporations, reaching out with the object of political domination, and Mr. Dryden's candidacy seems to personify that thought among them. It appears like a case of vaulting ambition overleaping itself.

"The opposition to Mr. Dryden within Republican ranks, is not of a socialistic character in any of its tendencies.

"It comes from good, true Ameri-

(Continued on Page 4.)

DORSEY HYDE, JR., A FIRE RESCUE HERO

CHEERED AS HE LED SAVING WOMAN AND HER CHILD.

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., of Nethe wood, a student at Rutgers College, distinguished himself in a heroic rescue of a woman and child from a burning building in New Brunswick early Friday morning.

The fire broke out in the Vliet building, at George and Albany streets, shortly after midnight. It was burning stubbornly and threatening to cut off the inmates of the building when discovered. Hyde was one of the first to reach the scene and he realized the danger to the family of Patrick Harding, who lived upstairs.

He dashed into the smoke-filled building, followed by another young man and policeman. With their assistance he took Mrs. Harding and her infant daughter out. The crowd cheered him as he completed the rescue. This helped the fireman in such a way as to win commendation from the chief. His name figured in all the newspaper reports.

THE FISKS' TUNNELS TO COST $60,000,000

BANKERS ARE GIVEN ESTIMATES ON THE WORK TO BE FINISHED MAY, 1908.

Figures have been presented to the management of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, which show that the total cost of the immense undertaking of tunnelling in two different directions under the North river, and establishing terminals in Manhattan and New Jersey equipping the road, &c., will be about $60,000,000. Harvey Fisk & Co., bankers, of which Mayor Charles J. Fisk is a member, who underwrote the bonds, and furnished the money to the construction company, to build the Hudson tunnels, have already sold $40,000,000 of the 4½ per cent fifty year bonds.

These bonds are now owned by the syndicate, on which installments are being made. Data presented by the engineers, which show that they have achieved seven only twelve miles of the railroad, indicate that the total bond issue of the holding company of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company will be about $50,000,000. The proceeds of the sale of these bonds will complete the tunnel enterprise which at once time was popularly known as the McAdoo tunnels. They will be completed in May, 1908.

These facts came out yesterday in connection with a report that the control of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, the parent company of the two North river tunnels, had passed to a syndicate dominated by Thomas F. Ryan and August Belmont. The report was characterized as untrue. It was said that Fisk & Co., who financed the project and shaped it to its present immense proportions, had not disposed of any interest in the scheme. Pliny Fisk, the senior member of the banking house of Harvey Fisk & Sons, and his partner, W. M. Barnum, continue to be the dominating factors.

STORY OF STARVING HORSES VIGOROUSLY DENIED

Member of Applegate Family Says There Is No Truth In Article Printed in Another Paper.

A story printed in another paper in this city Friday to the effect that horses in the Applegate stable on Somerset street had been starved and that it was vigorously denied by a member of the Applegate family today. He declared the animals had been receiving every attention and that competent men were in charge of them.

The newspaper story also incensed Chief Marshal Weiss, who declared today that the matter had had a full investigation and that Dr. Pocock had reported to him three weeks ago that the horses were getting proper care. At the time of Prosecutor Applegate's death, the affairs of the stable had been left in charge of a colored workman who had been negligent in his work and neighbors so informed the chief. He instructed the man to do better and also requested Agent Pangborn, of the S. P. C. A., to see that he did. There is no truth in the statement, he declared, that a mule at the stables died of starvation.

The chief said today that there was no need for Chief Kiely to be asked to look after affairs in the borough as anything in its limits needing attention would be looked after by the borough police.

Men Will Cook and Serve Supper

J. B. Cottrell, as chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the men's annual supper at the Seventh Day Baptist church on Tuesday night, February 12, is planning a novel entertainment in connection with the supper. The men will cook and serve the supper, without the aid of women.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Manning, of this city, have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. David Townsend, of Bound Brook.

OLDEST MASONIC LODGE HAS AN ANNIVERSARY

TRADITION HAS IT THAT WASHINGTON FREQUENTLY VISITED IT.

Solomon's Lodge Free and Accepted Masons celebrated its semi-centennial anniversary at Somerville Thursday night. Many distinguished guests were present at the banquet in the chapel of the Second Reformed church.

While the present charter of the lodge dates back only to 1857, it is the oldest Masonic body in New Jersey. It dates back to 1767, when its founders were granted a warrant by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, there being no Grand Lodge in the province of New Jersey at that time.

The headquarters was at Basking Ridge and twenty-three of its members were present at the convention, which met at New Brunswick in 1786 to form the Grand Lodge of New Jersey. The lodge held its meetings at different places in Somerset county. During the Revolution they were held in the Fisher Hotel at Middlebrook, now a part of the borough of Bound Brook, and tradition says that Washington, while encamped in the vicinity in 1777 and 1778, frequently visited this lodge.

HONOR "BOBBY" BURNS AND "WULLY" GLOAK

THISTLE CLUBBERS COMBINE MEMORIAL AND SURPRISE PARTY.

Members of the former Thistle Club and other Scots in Plainfield held a double celebration at the home of Councilman and Mrs. William L. Gloak, of East Second street, Friday night. It was a surprise to Councilman Gloak and also gave the folk from the land of the heather an opportunity to observe the anniversary of the birth of the immortal Burns. The guests numbered thirty in all and they enjoyed themselves with Scotch ballads, recitations from Burns' best known writings and violin and piano selections. Chief MacDuff acted as master of ceremonies and incidentally paid a glowing tribute to the Scotch poet and his works in an appropriate address.

The guest of honor at the affair was George Rice, known to his associates as "Cronje," who recently came to this country from South America. Mr. Rice lived nearly all his life near Mr. Gloak's brother in the Transvaal and his stories of the Boer uprising and customs in the far off country added to the entertainment.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cowley, Mr. and Mrs. John Calder, Mr. and Mrs. Johnman, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Thorn, Chief MacDuff, Edward Wolverton, Andrew Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Craig, all of Plainfield; James Lindsey, of South Africa; Jack Robertson, of Delaware.

New Market Party.

Miss Sarah Cole and Benjamin Cole were tendered a surprise party at their home at New Market, by a number of their young friends Friday night. Games were played, after which a musical programme was enjoyed. Richard Cook played selections on his phonograph. The Misses Mabel and Kathryn Cole sang duets, Frank Broshart and B. A. Cole rendered several violin selections, accompanied by Miss Mabel Cole. Refreshments were served and dancing and singing were enjoyed until midnight. Among those present were: Miss Gertrude Giles, Miss Eva Voorhees, Miss Marguerite Coriell, Miss Helen Fisher, Miss Lorena Fletcher, Miss Lucy Clawson, Elston Lary, Joseph Fisher, Leo Logan, Frank Coriell, Richard Cook, Harold Voorhees, Frank Fletcher, Frank Broshart.

SENATOR DRYDEN MEETS UNION COUNTY DELEGATION.

Introduced By Assemblyman Moxon He Discusses Improvements For Rahway.

Senator John F. Dryden, who happened to be chatting with County Chairman Frank H. Smith, at the Trenton Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, while he and a number of citizens from Rahway were waiting for the 4:45 train for home, Wednesday afternoon, expressed a wish to meet the Union county men. He was accordingly introduced to him by Assemblyman John R. Moxon.

The improvement of the Rahway river was the subject of conversation, and also the great increase in the number of factories in that city. Senator Dryden showed himself familiar with the question of water-ways improvements.

Mr. Lane's Taffy Pull.

Wesley Lane, of Plainfield avenue, entertained a large gathering of friends with a taffy pull at his home Thursday night. In addition to the pull, music, games and other features were enjoyed. The taffy was made from three gallons of genuine Louisiana molasses brought from New Orleans by Mr. Lane's uncle, Caleb Stephens, who hails from the Crescent City and is here on a visit.

BESSIE CAMPBELL BOBS UP FOR THE 'STEENTH TIME

IS STILL WORKING THE CONCERT GAME IN THE SAME OLD WAY.

Miss Bessie Campbell, who duped Plainfielders a year ago by selling tickets for a concert that was never given and by securing ads for a programme that that was never printed, is still working the same game. She recently extracted quite a few dollars from the pockets of Washington (N. J.) residents and this week made enough the same way at Bangor, Pa., to pay all her bills until spring.

Bessie's plan is to arrange a concert and then announce that it will have to be postponed or else cancelled. In the latter event she states that "the money paid for tickets and advertisements will be returned." She took the last-named course here and returned the money on the faith-cure" principle—that is the recipients held out their palms and imagined they got their money back. What Bess took away, though, was the real stuff.

The young woman's career has been known to the police but not an infraction is recorded where she has been molested in her operations. She worked the concert swindle in a score of New England towns, all through New York State and from one end of Jersey to the other. She always took the name of Campbell and adopts the same plan from being found out but no one gets "wise" to her until it is too late.

TIMBO CLUB'S SMOKER PROVIDED A GOOD TIME

ANNUAL AFFAIR ENJOYED BY A GATHERING OF 150.

The Timbo Social Club's annual smoker and soiree took place in the club rooms on North avenue Friday night and provided a good time for 150 members and guests. Sociability, cigars and refreshments were on tap from 8 o'clock until long after midnight and served as only the Timbo Club knows how to do it.

Angelo and Arthur Minion, the Newark singing instrumentalists, were features of the programme and they doled out a bunch of song hits that earned them rounds of applause. Judge Runyon was grand high mogul at the piano and beside ripping off any quantity of insernmental numbers, gave several of his delightful vocal selections. W. J. Counihan scored with a song and dance and other vocalists who vocalized were Jack Todd, Jack Harr, Horace Martin, Jr., and Harry Roberts, the last named also acting as accompanist. The hit of the evening was made by "Mike" Shannon, who recited "Excuse Me While I Whimper, Boys; She's An Old Sweetheart of Mine." He used the selection several years ago in vaudeville and secured return dates through it.

The affair was arranged by a committee from the club composed of Henry J. Wierenga, Will Bond and Lorenzo Townley. John Gaffney was master of ceremonies.

NEW YORK CITY.

There are fifty-two medical societies in New York city.

Automobiles owned in New York city have cost $70,000,000.

The arrests in New York on charges arraigned in New York city during 1906 was twenty-three years.

New York city claims as waste and disposes of fifty tons of condemned fruit of varying character each day.

If the tenants in leading in New York city during the last year had come at the same time, it would have required a fleet of 1,121 vessels, each on carrying 1,000 passengers.—New York Herald.

The French Seam.

The French seam is always used on fine underwear. To make it the cloth is seamed on the right side, taking a very narrow seam, and then trimmed off as closely as possible. It is then turned and stitched on the wrong side, the first seam being entirely inclosed.

You can make menthol ice by melting two parts of supermaceti with the same quantity of white vaseline in a porcelain dish set in a pan of hot water. Ten parts of powdered menthol are added while the mixture is cooling.

The teething period is the most troublesome and dangerous time of childhood, and it would be well for a reputable dentist to be consulted by all mothers at that period.

The bed should never stand against the wall. It should be pulled out a little on all sides in order that there may be a free circulation of air.

Martine to Speak at Elizabeth.

James E. Martine has been invited by St. Patrick's parish, of Elizabeth, to speak at a bazaar to be given for its benefit in the hall of the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum, January 28 to February 12. The invitation has been accepted and Mr. Martine will address the gathering on Wednesday night next.

HOPE CHAPEL FANS TO GET IN GAME AGAIN

SUBURBANS CONSOLIDATE WITH THE CHAPEL TALENT.

After three seasons of quiet, Hope chapel is again to be a factor in amateur baseball in this city. Plans are afoot for the consolidation of the Suburbans and the baseball talent of the West End chapel, under the Aegis—whatever that is—of the Hope athletics. Whatever the aegis of a place like Hope chapel may be, the fact that Hope's name and following will be those of the remade team is a certainty.

Manager James Penny, who took over the helm of the Suburbans several weeks ago, will handle the managerial star when the combination is affected. He is an old chapelite, and was one of the old teams staunch supportems. He will be seconded and supported by the old baseball guard, including Johnny Cose and Judge Runyon.

An application for membership in the Inter-City League will be filed as soon as consolidation is effected. It is likely to be refused, and the chapelites know it, but the application will be sent in as a matter of form. It can't do any harm, it is figured, and may bear unexpected fruit.

From what was gleaned in a conversation with one of the moguls of the league yesterday, a Hope chapel fan gathered the idea that there was so little chance of admittance to the league that it wasn't worth considering. The schedule has been made up, the general league idea is a close city organization, and everything about the league make-up is unfavorable to the entrance of the chapel team.

Secretary Listman, of the league, would make no comment on the chances of admission yesterday.

"I cannot predict anything as to the disposition of the application," he said. "Personally, I would like to see eight clubs in the league, but I am not the league. The only thing for Hope chapel to do is to file the application."

FORMER PLAINFIELDER WINS RACE AGAINST DEATH

SPEEDS ACROSS CONTINENT TO SEE HIS DYING MOTHER.

In a race from Colorado Springs, Col., to Bound Brook to see his mother who was dying, Ralph Bache, formerly of this city and until a short time ago superintendent of the local electric light plant, won out by a few hours Thursday afternoon.

The mother, Mrs. W. H. Bache, of Hitch street, Bound Brook, was taken ill a week ago with pneumonia and began to sink rapidly. Word was telegraphed to the son, who is now general manager of the Colorado Springs Electrical, Heat, Light and Power Company, and he caught the first train out of the city for the East. Good connections were made all the way through and the journey of over 2,000 miles did not, prove in vain. The mother was still conscious when the son arrived but passed away soon after greeting her son.

Mrs. Bache was president of the Bound Brook Woman's Christian Temperance Union and superintendent of the Kindergarten department of the Methodist Sunday-school. She leaves two other sons, Leigh Stanley Bache and J. Hugh V. Bache, of Beechwood Heights, a suburb of Bound Brook.

Ralph Bache is a member of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks and has a wide acquaintance all through the section because of his local connection with the Public Service Corporation. He will return to Colorado Springs within a short time.

Something New In Spectacles and Eye Glasses.

Commencing Thursday, January 31, The Mills Optical Co., of New York city, will give a three days' demonstration at Frank Rowley's drug store, 219 West Front street, this city, on Jan. 31, Feb. 1-2. This firm, who are manufacturers, dispose of their entire product direct to the wearer, consequently, only one profit from maker to buyer. They are establishing agencies in all the principal towns in the State and to advertise their line are going to make particularly attractive prices, during the above demonstration, which should appeal to all who have trouble with their vision or who need glasses. The Plainfield introductory sale will be under the personal direction of Drs. Mills and Soloman, members of the firm. Their tests and examinations are thorough and as complete in every way as could be had at their New York office. No drops or drugs are used.

Girls Are His Accusers.

William H. Schenck, a negro, forty-four years old and married, of Englewood, N. J., was committed to the county jail at Hackensack yesterday charged with attacking Bessie Loper, eleven years old, and Essie Goodman, ten. Both are negresses. They say Schenck attacked them a week ago, but they feared to tell their parents because of his threats.

WASHINGTON PARK PLAN

The Residents of That Section Working to Have It Incorporated as Separate Borough.

IS STRONGLY OPPOSED

Former Mayor Saunders and Others Firmly Against Any Such Scheme—Discussed at Recent Meeting.

While the bi-municipal consolidation is aggselvely pursuing its investigations of the feasibility and desirability of North Plainfield with Plainfield, a movement is underway in the borough to have its Washington Park section set apart as a separate municipality. The residents of that part of North Plainfield are, mostly of the commuter class and the property is of exceptionally high value. The section itself is to North Plainfield what West Seventh and Eighth and Ninth streets are to Plainfield.

It was just two years ago that a New York broker purchasing large holdings in the Washington Park section advocated among his friends that they work for the separation of that part of the borough from the rest. Since then he has found a number who agree with his views. Only a week ago a meeting was held at the home of former Senator Chas. A. Reed and this subject came up for discussion. At this conference former Mayor W. L. Saunders and others opposed the idea.

The proposed division line of the suggested Washington Park borough, it is said, would be Grove street. All east of that line would remain as North Plainfield borough. The arguments used for such separation is that the interests of the Washington Park section are not those of the ward composed of townspeople and that the former has to pay out the larger part of the revenue for public improvements in the borough.

North Plainfield, in which Mr. Smalley is a third owner, would be included in the new borough.

JEWELLER FIRES AT AN ESCAPING ROBBER.

Stops Man Who Tried to Run Away With Jewels, Making Him Give Them Back.

Levow called up Mrs. Harth and a woman's voice at the telephone said the check was all right. Still Levow would not cash it, but not wishing to lose a customer, the jeweler had his sister take charge of the store and accompanied "Mullin" to New York. Arrived there, the latter said he could get some one to vouch for him. The friend was not in and they returned.

It was decided to go to Newark, and they boarded a trolley car. Levow slipped a revolver into his pocket. Near the Plank road bridge the car collided with a wagon and the passengers got off until the track was cleared. Levow stuck to the stranger, but when the car was ready to start he got on first. The man turned and fled across the frozen meadows.

Finding he could not overtake him Levow fired two shots. The fugitive dropped. Levow feared he was shamming and pounced upon him. A rough and tumble fight ensued. Two drivers came to Levow's aid and the man was overpowered. He gave up the jewelry and Levow still had the check. The man was allowed to go.

President's School Trip.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—President Roosevelt has decided to visit his sons, who are at school at Harvard University and Groton, but before arranging the programme he had it distinctly understood that would go as a private citizen and would not receive any courtesies due his high office. In consequence his trip to Cambridge and Groton will be very quiet and informal. He will be at Harvard and February 23 and at Groton on February 24.

Hold Rockefeller's Wig.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 28.—The new French wig purchased by John D. Rockefeller when he was in Paris last summer is held by the local revenue officers for duty. The wig is a fine affair. The statement of the French wigmaker, Andre Antard, says the wig is worth 5f. This is about $1. The revenue officers say the wig is worth about seventy-five times that amount. Mr. Rockefeller cannot have the wig until he pays duty on the real value.

Mrs. George F. Randolph, formerly of this city, but now of Brooklyn, is visiting Mr. Randolph's mother on East Second street.

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.

In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—6.17, 6.57, 7.45, 8.34, 9.02, 9.57, 11.02, 12.17, 1.57, 3.34, 4.02, 4.29, 5.07, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.57, 8.47, 9.47, 10.55, 11.55 p. m. Sundays—2.17, 3.27, 4.47, 7.33, 8.01, 8.55, 9.34, 10.49, 11.59 p. m.

For Elizabeth—6.17, 6.57, 7.45, 8.34, 9.02, 9.57, 11.02, 12.17, 1.57, 3.34, 4.02, 4.29, 5.07, 6.57, 7.05, 7.25, 7.57, 8.47, 9.47, 10.55, 11.55 p. m. Sundays—2.17, 3.27, 4.47, 7.33, 8.01, 8.55, 9.34, 10.49, 11.59 p. m.

For Somerville—5.19, 7.11, 8.31, 9.17, 9.25, 11.09 a. m., 1.01, 2.41 (Saturday only), 2.02, 2.09, 3.49, 4.33, 5.04, 5.28, 5.57 (except Saturdays), 6.04, 6.47, 7.00 p. m. Saturdays—9.09, 9.52, 10.23, 11.26 p. m., 12.09 (except Monday) night. Sundays—8.42, 11.12 a. m., 1.05, 2.53, 3.40, 5.37, 7.05, 8.20, 10.15, 11.16, 11.26 p. m.

For Flemington.—7.11, 11.06 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 6.19 p. m. Sundays—8.42 a. m., 5.37 p. m.

For Phillipsburg and Easton—5.28, 8.21, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, 4.28, 5.37 and 6.21 p. m. Saturdays—5.28 a. m., 2.02, 5.47, 7.00 p. m. Sundays—8.42, 9.09, 9.52, 10.23, 11.26 p. m., 12.09 (except Monday) night. Sundays—8.42, 11.12 a. m., 1.05, 2.53, 3.40, 5.37, 7.05, 8.20, 10.15, 11.16, 11.26 p. m.

For Long Branch and Asbury Park, etc.—2.37, 8.21, 9.55 a. m. Saturdays only), a. m., 12.42, 3.56, 5.07, 4.45, 6.29, 11.28 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 8.52 a. m., 12.42, 6.18 p. m.

For Red Bank—3.37, 8.52, 8.11, 9.29, 10.55 a. m., 12.42, 2.44, 3.29, 4.45, 6.29, 11.28 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 8.21, 8.52, 10.55 a. m., 8.13 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—2.37, 9.29 a. m., (12.42 Atlantic City Express Saturdays only), 1.27, 2.44, (4.07 Lakewood only), 6.18 p. m. Saturdays only, Lakewood only). Sundays—(8.01 Lakewood only), 8.52 a. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Toms River and Barnegat—2.37, 9.29, a. m., 1.27, 4.07 p. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Philadelphia—7.12, 7.20, 8.45, 9.13, 10.42 a. m., 12.13, 12.42, 1.20, 2.12, 3.45, 5.15, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46 p. m., 12.01 night. Sunday—8.45, 9.53, 10.39, 10.42 a. m., 12.42, 1.20, 2.12, 3.45, 5.15, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46, 11.25 p. m., 1.17 night.

For Trenton—7.12, 8.45, 9.13 a. m., 12.13, 1.20, 3.45, 5.15, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46, 11.25 p. m., 1.17 night. Sunday—8.45, 9.53, 10.39, 11.42 a. m., 12.42, 1.20, 2.12, 3.45, 5.15, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46, 11.25 p. m., 1.17 night.

For Reading and Harrisburg—5.28, 9.55 a. m., 2.09, (5.47 through trains). Sundays—2.02, 5.47 p. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—5.28, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sundays—2.02 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44 p. m. Sunday—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 3.42, 6.44 p. m.

*Change cars at Bound Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Gen. Mgr. W. C. HOPE, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect Nov. 18th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

7.55 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Manchuk.

8.42 a. m. daily, express to Easton, Wilkesbarre, Rochester, Buffalo, and principal intermediate stations.

10.46 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.

4.58 p. m. daily (except Sunday) for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.

6.58 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express" Solid vestibule train, Buffalo through to Chicago. Parlor Car via D. & H. R. R. to Scranton and Carbondale.

6.49 p. m. daily, solid vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.

6.53 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent, 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 312.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., close 7 p. m.

7.00 a. m., 8.30 a. m., 1.00, 2.30, 6.00, 7.45 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Arrive—8.10 a. m., 1.35, 4.15 and 7.50 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m., 1.45 and 4.30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND EASTON

Arrive—8.10 a. m., 1.35 and 7.50 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m., 1.00, 2.30, 4.30 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—Direct.

Arrive—8.45 a. m., 1.45 and 8.00 p. m.
Close—7.30, 9.40 a. m., 12.35, 4.55 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.45 a. m., 1.45 and 8.00 p. m.
Close—7.30, 9.40 a. m., 12.35, 4.55 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—8.45 a. m., 1.45 and 8.00 p. m.
Close—7.30, 9.40 a. m., 12.35, 4.55 p. m.

Fast mail for West and South 1.00 4.55 and 7.15 p. m.

Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel.)

Arrive—9.45 a. m. Close—10 a. m.
Watchung—Arrive 5.45 p. m. Close 5.30 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Close—9.30 to 10.30 a. m.
Close at 5 to 6 p. m.

H. BIRD, P. M.

Advertisements

—FOR—

New York Herald,
World, Times, Sun, Journal,
Telegram, American,
Brooklyn Eagle
—and—
Newark Evening News

Received at

The Daily Press

AT REGULAR OFFICE RATES.

McCULLOUGH'S STEAM MILL,

21 Stelner Place, North Plainfield, N. J.

R. H. McCULLOUGH, Prop.

Sash, Blinds, Doors, Mouldings, Scroll sawing, turning, etc. Estimates cheerfully furnished.

STORAGE. Best equipped and oldest storage warehouse in city for storing Furniture, Pianos, etc. Special floor for THUNKS, Packages, etc. All work has prompt attention.

WRITE OR TELEPHONE 911-J. "Orders left for moving vans."

C. M. NAGLE,
Front and Grove Sts., Plainfield, N. J.

EDUCATIONAL.

PLAINFIELD BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Cor. Park Ave. and E. Front St. Tel. 67-W

Day and Evening Sessions. Superior ENGLISH TRAINING. Fine opportunities for young men.

W. S. MYGRANT

Cornet Soloist and Bandmaster 13th Regiment Brooklyn, will teach Violin, Cornet and all Military Band Instruments. Piano instruction by S. LOUISE MYGRANT.

Music furnished for every occasion, best New York Musicians.

Address W. S. MYGRANT, Pawood, N. J.

All the latest Popular Sheet Music

Vocal and Instrumental at 10c a copy.

CHAS. M. SUHR, 144 E. 42d St.

Not Hard To Get

Good meats if you come here. We serve a great number of customers with choice

ROASTS, CHOPS, STEAKS, ETC.

They must be pleased or we would not be in business today. Our meats are selected with great care, and you will certainly be pleased with what you buy here. We also have a fine lot of poultry.

Fred. Endress,
131-135 WEST FRONT ST.
'PHONE 155.

Vail
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

103 Park Ave.,
calls your attention to his

Rimless Glasses.

They Look Good and

You See Good.

We have made arrangements for a larger supply of first class milk and are giving the family trade our special attention. If you are not satisfied with the milk or the services you are getting give us a trial.

Price 8 cents a quart.

Lindsay's Dairy,
965 West Front St.
TEL. 792-J.

CHOICEST TEAS AND COFFEES.

You have, no doubt, tasted fine Teas and Coffees—but if you've never tried our excellent Ceylon Teas or delicious Mocha and Java Coffees, you've missed a treat. Why not begin them now? Our prices are very reasonable.

W. W. DUNN,
The Park Grocer.
Dyer St. and Lincoln Place.

UNION NEWS COMPANY.

(F. M. Wagner, Agent.)

The Plainfield Daily Press and New York Morning and Evening Papers. Latest editions of the most popular Magazines. Also complete line of Cigars, Tobacco and Confectionery.

STATIONERY AND TOYS.

HARPER,
411 PARK AVENUE.

RENTALS — REAL ESTATE.
GEO. P. BROWN,
Insurance and Real Estate.
Commissioner of Deeds—Rents.
94 Somerset St. 'Phone 160.
REAL ESTATE.

ACQUIRED A PARSONAGE

Park Avenue Baptist Church Gets Pastor's Home on Easy Terms.

UNUSUAL PROVISIONS

Church Is To Pay Mrs. Frances E. Stevens, Aged Philanthropist, Small Annuity Until She Dies.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Frances E. Saunders, of Elmira, N. Y., a former resident of this city, the Park Avenue Baptist church is about to acquire a parsonage. At a meeting of the congregation last week, an offer from Mrs. Saunders to turn over the property at 2 East Ninth street, to the church on easy terms was unanimously accepted. Details of the title transfer will be settled at once.

The house is now occupied by Rev. A. E. Finn, the pastor, and his family. It is a spacious brick structure, admirably situated. It lies almost directly opposite the church.

It was the house in which Mrs. Saunders and her late husband lived for years. Mr. Saunders was wealthy. He came here from New York, when he retired from the hardware business in 1888, buying the property on Ninth street at that time. He died about two years, and shortly afterwards Mrs. Saunders went to Elmira to make her home with a brother. The pastor's family moved into the house in April, 1909.

Mrs. Saunders' terms for the sale of the property are unusual. During her lifetime the church is to pay her a certain sum yearly, practically no more than the present rental, and at her death title to the property will pass to the church corporation. Mrs. Saunders is well-to-do, and the annuity is not, so far as is known, necessary to her support. The proposition is virtually one of gift, for, as Mrs. Saunders herself has said, her life is not likely to go on for more than a few years. She is 76 years old.

The proposition was laid before the meeting last week in the form of a communication from Rev. Frederick son, of Grace Memorial Baptist church, New York, of which Mrs. Saunders is a member. He acted for the aged philanthropist. Although a member of the Judson church, and no longer a resident here, Mrs. Saunders retained her interest in the Park Avenue church, and has been one of its staunchest friends. After the proposition was accepted, a resolution of thanks was passed, and the clerk was instructed to send a copy to Mrs. Saunders.

DAUGHTERS OF REBEKAH INSTALL NEW OFFICERS.

Mrs. W. J. Ford Presented With a Handsome Past Grand Regalia.

Friendship Lodge, No. 4, Daughters of Rebekah, installed the officers-elect Wednesday. Deputy Mrs. Wm. Westphal and staff officiated at the charge. The deputy, Mrs. P. A. VanFleet, on behalf of the lodge, presented to Mrs. William J. Ford, a handsome past grand collar, embroidered and trimmed with gold lace. Mrs. Ford thanked the lodge for the expression of their appreciation.

During the present term sixteen new members have been initiated and several have been elected. After the meeting refreshments were served. The new officers are as follows:

Past grand, Mrs. William J. Ford; noble grand, Mrs. J. B. Higgins; vice grand, Mrs. M. Ludgate; chaplain, Mrs. M. Welsh; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Anne Kettering; financial secretary, William Welsh; right support to noble grand, Mrs. Elizabeth VanFleet; left support to noble grand, Mrs. Jennie Becker; right support to vice grand, Miss Peterson; left support to vice grand, Miss Strucker; warder, Miss Morness; conductor, Mrs. C. Myers; inside guard, Peter VanFleet; outside guard, P. H. Latourette; auditing committee, Mrs. W. J. Ford, Mrs. M. Ludgate, J. B. Higgins; relief and welfare committee, Mrs. W. J. Ford, Mrs. M. Ludgate, J. E. Kettering, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Mathews, J. B. Higgins and Miss Morness.

Patents for Jerseymen.

The following patents were issued yesterday to residents of New Jersey: Edward L. Buschman, Orange, machine for cleaning bags; Charles B. Day, East Orange, thawing apparatus; Julius Dengler, Trenton, centrifugal pump; Robert M. Dixon, East Orange, steam trap; Rene von Eigen, Newark, corner fixture for bag frames; William H. King, Newark, clothes-curling machine; Frank A. Knothe, Rahway, bed; Oscar Martin, Bergenfield, folding stool; Penrose M. Milsted, Newark, lamp; August E. Nienstadt, Newark, explosive; David E. Olds, Newark, railfastener; Harry S. Parker, Trenton, refrigerating device for milk; Eugene Pearl, Passaic, hose supporter and weeder; Armin H. Pfister, Montclair, electromagnetic apparatus; John F. Robinson, Rockaway, horseshoe; John L. Sommer, Newark, shoe buttoner and horn; Charles S. Tuckinson, Plainfield, sheet piling; Oscar Wiederhold, Jersey City, incandescent gas lamp.

Movement is Launched at 'Varsity Smoker to Organize "Universal Club."

AN EVENING OF FUN

Witty Speeches and Plenty of the Other Usual Things Characteristic of a College Men's Gathering.

Two hundred and sixty-five men attended the second annual college smoker held at the Casino, Thursday, when the "official programme," chuck full of fun, prepared by Judge William N. Runyon and Owen H. Hedges, was carried out in detail by "The Care Dispellers," as the gathering was designated. Before midnight had arrived steps had been taken to organize a club and to take over the Casino. The game was called at 8:30 o'clock with Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, the "roast-master," as the umpire, and in his opening remarks he referred particularly to the "57" varieties and there was no mistaking the hearty welcome extended. Some about the tables were not college men but were there as the guests of the committee.

Shortly after the festivities began a surprise was given as Dr. Hedges proposed a toast. All the lights were turned out and at the same time the stage curtain went up and there was displayed a large electric sign bearing the words "Our Alma Mater." This brought forth rounds of cheers.

The speakers of the evening were William B. Tyler, Yale; Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, Union; Rev. George S. Warner, G. T. S.; Harry L. Hall, Columbia; Samuel St. John McCutchen, Yale; Owen H. Fleming, Princeton.

The idea of forming a University Club, which has been fondly nursed by Owen H. Fleming and other college men for the last two years, was presented at the close of the speechmaking by Mr. Fleming. After much discussion Craig A. Marsh offered a resolution, which was adopted, "that it is the sense of the assemblage that it is heartily in sympathy with the ideas as presented by Mr. Fleming and Mr. Fisk, and that a committee of three be appointed to co-operate with the committee appointed by the other men interested in the formation of a man's club," prepare a certificate of incorporation and by-laws and discuss ways and means for the formation of such a club as proposed. It did not favor a man's club exclusively, and gave the "Universal Club" idea promise of his support. Mr. McCutchen, who opposed the idea of forming a men's club, said that he was in favor of the plan as outlined by Mr. Fisk. He thought it should be a place where women would be welcome. During the evening many signed the proposed club's enrollment cards.

The plan is to form a club, the membership of which will be chiefly made up of college men, it being estimated that there are about 500 in the city and borough, and that non-college men be eligible to membership. Such changes as may be found by others interested in a man's club are to be made, and if the plan is carried out it will not be an exclusive club for men, the wives and sisters of the members to be provided for and given the convenience of the club.

Mayor Fisk and George A. Beaton, who were interested in the other movement, spoke concerning the new scheme, and both agreed to lend their assistance. Mr. Fisk stated that the property would be secured for $1,000 and it was estimated that $8,000 would put it in first-class condition as planned.

Mayor Fisk argued that the formation of such a club would result in great good to the city in many ways and he asked that the members as they enrolled the control of the city affairs would be assured. Mr. Beaton

Mr. Tyler, the first speaker of the evening, paid his respects to Old Eli and President Hadley, adding a few amusing stories to impress one with the importance of the seat of learning at New Haven.

"The next witness on the stand" was Corporation Counsel Marsh, who said that at the age of fifteen, when he was graduated from the Plainfield high school, he sought entrance to Princeton College, but was advised to wait another year. In the meantime he was influenced to go to Union College. In a jocular vein he remarked that one man's definition of a lie was "An abomination unto the Lord, but a very present help in trouble." Mr. Marsh then became serious and paid a tribute to the college man. He said that it was not the days of youth, the M. D., the D. D. or the LL. B., that gives a college man the true spirit. He also said when he enters college but after four years of hard knocks he is changed. He then thinks of the good of common humanity, the welfare of the State and society and only after these obligations are fulfilled does he think of self.

Rev. George S. Warner was introduced as the "evening star," and one from whom all might expect to hear the truth. The clergyman remarked that he thought a sky-pilot would be at home at such a gathering and then spoke of the saving grace of humor as well as the saving grace of the clerical profession. Mr. Warner reminded the men that they should remember that there are two kinds of humor, one that is very pleasant and the other like the crackling of thorns under the pot. He recalled a remark made by Gen. Grant when someone arose at a gathering to tell a story. He began by saying "Are there any ladies present," to which Gen. Grant quickly replied, "No, but there are gentlemen present."

*After the toastmaster read a let*ter of regret from William R. Wilder in which he explained his inability to be present, Harry L. Hall was introduced. He said that he represented Columbia College, which was destined to lead the children in the Promised Land. He believed that Columbia represented the true university idea, where a man could go and complete his education in many branches of study. With him it was a case of go to Columbia or to work and as he did not like work he decided upon the former course. Mr. Hall impressed upon all the importance of true kinship among college men and he hoped this would be crystallized and become a permanent thing in this city.

Samuel St. John McCutchen, the next speaker, said that Governor Stokes, who was expected to attend, had gone back on them and so had Wilder, adding that Princeton was likely to do that any time.

The last speaker was Mr. Fleming. Dr. Hedges explaining that he had made a request to be the last and longest speaker. Mr. Fleming thanked the men for the hearty support given to the smoker by their presence. He then proceeded to explain his idea of forming a college man's club or a "Universal Club," which he thought would be better. He suggested a merger with the organization being formed by other men to promote the Casino property, adding that it would be impossible to successfully maintain a strictly all-college men's club. There are many men not college graduates who would be needed in the club. He then outlined the plans for improvements which are similar to those already proposed, such as a grill room, bowling alleys, tennis and squash courts, shower baths, dining room. He proposed an initiation fee of $10 and dues of $20 a year and said that in order to make such a club a success it would have to have the backing of every college man and others who are not.

Much amusement was caused over a proposition made by J. Evarts Tracy, Jr., that he would that every college man present save half of the money he expends for tobacco and give that sum to the Plainfield Public Library for the purchase of books. He offered resolutions to that effect, but they were vigorously voted down. *He explained that figuring on an av*erage daily expenditure of twenty-five cents for tobacco, there would be an expenditure of $22,812.50 a year and one-half of that sum, $11,406.25, would be of great value to the library. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Tracy threw away a cigar which he held in his hand, meaning that he would be the first to start the movement. Harry Hall entered a protest because it would be an attack on tobacco fiends.

One of the features of the evening was the music furnished by the original Eureka Quartette, colored, of New York. Their entertainment consisted of instrumental and vocal music and dancing. The room was appropriately decorated for the occasion with college flags and the Stars and Stripes.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised the following: S. St. John McCutchen, William N. Runyon, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Owen H. Fleming, William L. Saunders, Dr. F. C. Ard, Harry L. Hall, William C. Kinney and Archibald Cox.

The following is the programme prepared by the committee. In accordance with the wishes of Dr. Ard and Mr. Wilder, it was necessary to make some changes, noted elsewhere;

Talkfest Department No. 23—

Hot Air Line. First Train of Thought, 8:30 p. m. Roastmaster in Superintendent of Lemons, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges. 'Tis better to have loved at last, than never loved at all. Laura Jean Libbey.

Lemon Aides—

Dr. Frank C. Ard, University of Maryland—"Dietary of Interstitial Keratitis," (by request.)

"A fine man he is and a pleasant old carrier

Ev'ry girl's wishin' that some day he'll marry her." Brian Boru.

Mr. William B. Tyler, Yale.

"A few bald facts."

"And amidst all the red and the black and tan,

The predominant color was blue." Herodotus.

Mr. Craig A. Marsh, Union.

"'Tis Onions there is strength."

"And may there be no moaning of the Bar.

When I pull out my fee."

Tennyson (slightly bent).

Mr. William R. Wilder, Princeton.

"Messenger."

Rah! Rah! Rah! Siss, Boom, Ah-h! Princeton.

The call of the Wilders.

Mr. Owen H. Fleming, the Main Squeeze of this very svelt and recherche gathering, will preach a sermon from the following text:

"Father, I cannot tell a lie, I done it all." Truthful George.

Between Speeches the Crack Rahway Reformatory Senior Quartette will sing.

Portraits of the speakers will be on sale in the lobby after the performance.

Attention!

The menagerie will be fed promptly at 10:15, more or less.

The fodder has been carefully sterilized and the joy juice filtered under the direction of Mr. Thurlow, so whatever you do, don't worry.

Following is the catalogue of fangteasers and sluice ticklers.

Bouillon and Rolls
Anheuser-Busch
Fried Oysters
Lynnhavens—New Havens
Schlitz
Chicken Salad
Plymouth Rocks—Tough as Gibraltar
Pabst
Ham—Sandwishes—And Piel's
Fire—Crackers—Soda
Bellantine's
Edam—Cheese—Odam
Rising Sun
Coffee
Feigenspan's
Cremos and Sweet Caporals
Krueger's

Guests are requested to leave the unused food on Maze Alexander's desk as they go out.

Please eat as little as possible. We need the money.

Mr. Fisk asks that gents please refrain from scaling crackers on his front lawn.

Anybody desiring to complain of bad treatment, had better not.

*The following colleges were repre*sented:

Yale—A. H. Atterbury, W. M. Alling, Mr. Atwater, P. H. Bailey, Harold S. Browne, Edward V. Cox, Thomas M. Day, George P. Dupee, H. L. DeForest, Dr. A. H. Dunbar, C. B. Eddy, Edwin R. Finch, Charles H. Frost, George H. Fountain, W. S. Hubbell, Samuel Huntington, Lemuel R. Hopton, Francis DeLacey Hyde, Louis Kepler Hyde, Charles Hyde, Arthur Lovell, Harry B. Lovell, Samuel St. John McCutchen, Donald McGee, Clifford W. McGee, Harry L. McGee, Raymond McGee, William D. Murray, F. E. Mygatt, T. Frank Raymond, Daniel Runkle, Carroll Y. Runyon, William N. Runyon, James H. Sharder, Edward A. Stevenson, Evarts Tracy, Howard C. Tracy, J. Evarts Tracy, William B. Tyler, Joseph T. Wadsworth, F. W. Wallace, J. M. Whiton, Louis A. Williams, J. D. Williams.

Princeton—C. B. Andrews, Lucien N. Archer, Dr. P. W. Brakeley, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, J. Whitney Baker, Dr. Thomas D. Blair, C. Ames Brooks, DeWitt C. Brokaw, Irving W. Clark, Henry J. Cochran, Ellsworth Cornwall, Dr. Charles E. DuBois, Owen H. Fleming, Dr. E. W. Hedges, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Langdon Howard, W. T. Kaufman, Philip Langdon, James P. Murray, Dr. W. H. Murray, Harry C. Munger, G. H. O'Donnell, Edward J. Patterson, J. D. Reinhart, Charles W. Reinel, Joseph R. Shellabarger, Frank Simons, Fitzhugh G. Spear, Knox Taylor, O. G. Waring.

Dartmouth—Alston M. Abbott. Otis E. Hovel, William C. Kinney.

Columbia—Dr. A. W. Anderson, Clinton Burke, W. Lester Glenney, Harry L. Hall, Harold Hall, Charles King, C. Powell Karr, William E. MacClymont, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, A. McClean Parker, Rev. E. M. Rodman, Ralph B. Schoonmaker, Dr. P. J. Seglio, Dr. Richard Moldenke.

Pennsylvania—Dr. William Anthony, F. H. Andrews, Dr. P. B. Cregar, G. Herbert Condict, Dr. Fred J. Hughes, F. W. Iredell, Dr. Charles L. Meore, Dr. C. W. Montfort, Ralph Leighton Morrow, J. C. Ogden, A. D. Sullivant, Dr. A. F. VanHorn.

Cornell—Wylie Browne, Morris F. Benton, Allan Cowperwaite, Cyrus Kinsman, Fred S. Overton, C. L. Riley, W. H. Titus.

University of Tennessee—J. L. Brown.

Swarthmore—Louis M. Booth, James L. Dudley.

Hamilton—Lindsey Best, W. K. Collins.

Stevens—Fred O. Ball, Robert E. Hall, Harold A. Millar, Orton Dale.

University of Maryland—Dr. W. K. Brennan.

Jefferson Medical—Dr. G. W. Endicott.

Hahnemann—Dr. W. K. Browning.

Brooklyn Polytechnic—F. W. Butler.

New York University—Dr. N. W. Corrie, Leslie M. Daniel, John R. Evans, H. J. Guinne, Dr. M. O'M. Knott, Israel C. Pierson, Rev. Dr. W. C. Neilson, Dr. F. W. French.

Colgate University—George M. Beal.

Rutgers—Hervey K. Doane, W. C. Hubbard, Robert A. Meeker, Charles A. Reed, W. M. Stillman, Arthur E. Smith, Arthur L. Titsworth, C. M. Titsworth, Maurice J. Thompson, Dr. C. R. Thiers.

Racine College—Rev. Dr. J. H. Egar.

University of London—Howard Fleming.

Bowdoin—Charles A. Clarke.

Amherst—William M. Clark, F. W. Goddard, Stuart Johnson, C. F. Merrill, W. F. Merrill, A. L. Otterson, W. L. Righter, F. D. Warren.

Harvard—Roy Cox, Leighton Calkins, Archibald Cox, C. E. Case, Henry Eaton, H. C. Pierce, R. H. Shepard, F. C. Talmadge, Willard Wadsworth.

Baltimore Physicians and Surgeons—Dr. J. H. Carman.

College City of New York—J. W. Lane.

Williams—E. B. Leland, W. B. Travell, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie.

Rochester—O. B. Leonard.

University of Sweden—Emil Larsson.

Trinity College—W. G. Wright.

University of Colorado—L. H. Weightman.

American School of Osetopathy—Dr. F. F. Wilcox.

Alfred—J. B. Cottrell, Dr. M. L. Clawson, Asa F. Rogers, O. S. Rogers.

Marietta—Leonard Waldo.

Moore.

New York College of Dentistry—Dr. Frank T. Clawson.

Brown—Arthur Chamberlain.

New York Medical College—Dr. F. W. Cornmall.

Kentucky State College—J. I. Lyle.

University of Edinburgh—John D Miller.

Durham University (Eng.)—Arthur Masters.

Renssalaer Polytechnic—J. C. Moor.

Georgetown—Joseph Noonan.

Manhattan—J. W. O'Keefe.

Butler—George A. Beaton.

Michigan—Edward Caldwell; Dr. H. D. Corbusier, W. H. Sherry.

Lehigh—Emil A. Droll, B. J. Drake, G. Harwood Frost, R. E. S. Geare, J. L. Middledith, Arthur Peck, Herbert S. Rogers,

McGill—George H. Frost.

University of Buffalo—Dr. G. H. Hillman, Dr. O. B. Whitford.

Wesleyan—DeWitt Hubbell, A. C. Maclay.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology—H. D. Hibbard, Leon R. Thurlow, C. D. Tompkins, H. R. White, Sidney Williams, Frank J. Hubbard.

University of Vermont—H. V. Hubbard.

St. Stephen's College—Rev. A. S. Peck.

University of West Virginia—George Schoonmaker.

University of Glascow—J. A. Simpson.

Adelphi College—W. B. Uhler.

General Theological Seminary, New York—George A. Wenner.

Union College—Blanchard Fosgate, S. B. Howe, Jr., Craig A. Marsh.

Hobart—Millard Fillmore Elderton.

Belleview Medical—Dr. J. T. Fritts.

University of Toronto—Mr. Grosset, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson.

University of Berlin—R. S. Huse.

Guests—W. de LaR. Anderson, M. S. Ackerman, Ernest R. Ackerman, Max Bessel, W. H. Bull, Henry W. Brower, Howard Beebe, E. T. Barrows, Nigel Campbell, James Dodd, Charles J. Fisk, Elston M. French, Allen B. Laing, J. Hartley Mellick, George S. Ring, Elmer E. Runyon, G. S. Timpson, L. E. Waring, A. Willis West, Walter C. Dobbins.

CONFEDERATE VETERAN PRAISES U. S. GRANT.

Dr. Chambliss in an Address Refers to General's Magnanimity.

Before the pupils of the North Plainfield High School Friday, Rev. Dr. Chambliss, General Lee's army chaplain, on invitation from Superintendent Krebs, spoke on "Civil War Reminiscences." He spoke for half an hour in his interesting way and the pupils paid marked attention to his instructive remarks.

It is impossible for any one of the present generation to realize the intense feeling that existed in the South when Lincoln was elected, said Dr. Chambliss. The Southern people did not feel that slavery in itself was wrong, but they felt differently now. They thought a state might withdraw from the Union whenever they pleased, and so they seceded when Lincoln was elected. Certain fiery leaders through political means overcame the votes of the many who did not believe in secession. The men all felt they must support their States, so they sprang to arms at their call.

Great confidence reigned after the fall of Fort Sumter, and most yet after Bull Run; but after a time the South began to feel the stress of a population of five millions of whites contending with twenty millions of whites; and especially hard was the blockade, which prevented the renewal of machinery and of household conveniences. Then hope of the South was in foreign intervention, which never came.

Dr. Chambliss read some letters written in '63-'65, telling various incidents of the army. He also spoke of how much the Southern people think and appreciate the magnanimity of General Grant at Appomattox, in his generous treatment of the soldiers who surrendered, and the delicacy of his behavior toward General Lee.

There are only two things for which all Southerners are ready to fight again—one is to prevent the reenslavement of the negro; the other is to defend the flag of our country.

Care of Baby's Ears.

Few mothers and fewer nurses notice when they lay a baby down whether the soft little ear is crumpled under or lying close back to the head. They rarely take the trouble when they look to see that its ears are in a natural position, but will hold it for the longest time with the head pressed against their bosom and the ear turned forlard instead of back. As the twig is bent the tree is inclined. There is much or less much force to the physical as to the moral growth of a child.

George Wharton Edwards Honored.

George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, has received high honor in having one of his paintings accepted for exhibition to be held under the auspices of the Contemporary Exhibition of American Artists in Washington on February 5. Out of 800 paintings submitted by New York artists only forty were accepted and one of these was that of Mr. Edwards. This will be one of the most important exhibitions of artists' work of the season.

MANY WOMEN ATTEND A CHURCH LUNCHEON

MUSICALE A FEATURE OF FIRST M. E. CHURCH AFFAIR.

More than one hundred women attended a luncheon and musicale given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church Friday afternoon in Vincent chapel. The affair was a success, socially and financially.

The luncheon was served in the main part of the chapel. The numerous tables were garnished with carnations and asparagus ferns. Mrs. Henry A. McGee was the chairman of the general committee in charge, and two women presided at each table as follows:

Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, Mrs. Judd Stewart, Mrs. Charles E. Horne, Mrs. Harry Gee, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. James W. Jackson, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, Mrs. George H. Whitney, Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull, Miss Sharp, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart. The following served as waitresses: Mrs. G. Harold Whitney, Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Prior, Miss Helen Joy, Miss Agnes Bailey, the Misses Long, Miss Codington, Miss Laura Gelawein, Miss Runyon.

After the luncheon the musicals was enjoyed, the excellent programme being arranged by Mrs. George H. Whitney, as chairman of the entertainment committee. Each number was pleasing and the artists were given a hearty reception. The programme opened with a piano duet, "Cradle Song," Gounod, Miss Beth Martin and Miss Jubilee Rowley. Miss Mary Clark gave two piano selections, "Slumber Song" and "The Chase," and these numbers were followed with three selections by Miss Beth Martin, "Gavotte," from William; "Farewell Dear Home," Hiller, and "Tarantele," Rogers.

Miss Bertha Whitney recited "Her Letter," by Brete Harte, and for an encore she gave an amusing sketch, "Widow Malone." The next number comprised two vocal solos by Miss Helen Whitney, "Beauty's Eyes," and "You'd Better Ask Me," and the programme closed with two soprano solos by Miss Leila Druse, "Twas My Heart," and "Love Me, Prince." Miss May Vincent Whitney was the accompanist and her work assisted largely in making the entertainment a success. A feature of the programme was the selections on a phonograph given under the direction of Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., a number of selections from the grand opera were heard, including solos by the best known singers now appearing in New York. The rest of the afternoon was spent in a social way.

UNCLE SAM JOLTS THE RACE TRACK TIPSTERS.

Former Dunellenite the First to Come Under Ban of Fraud Order.

Uncle Sam has butted in in the horse racing game in New York city, and as a result of his activity hard times are soon ahead for the vendors of "inside information," "one best bet hot off the wire," "sure things," "hog killings," etc. This state of affairs all came about after an investigation conducted by Postoffice Inspector A. R. Butler, in which the Postoffice Department sleuth discovered that one C. R. Fagley, of 304 West Fifteenth street, New York, who formerly lived at Dunellen and is well known here, was doing a big business as a tipster on races, operating under the name of the Insiders' Information Company, 124 East Forty-second street. The postoffice inspector made a thorough investigation of Fagely's methods of doing business, and found that a fraud order has been issued by the Postoffice Department, depriving Fagley the use of the mails.

Fagley's method is an old one, and, like hundreds of others, he was growing prosperous on his little bunk game, which he conducted as a sideline to his grocery supply business, at comparatively little expense. The price and terms for his "inside information" was that the better should send in a check for the winnings of a dollar bet on the horse given." The manner in which he conducted the business was by a simple system, assigning different horses to different people thus insuring Fagley without doubt some winners, as one of the horses was bound to win. Fagley exploited his business by newspaper advertising and received many bets through the mails.

Colonial Super Planned.

A Colonial supper to be held Feb. 19 in the lecture room of the First Baptist church was planned at the meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Barnes, of Mountain avenue. An interesting paper on "Work of Medical Missionaries" by Miss May Shreve and the story of Mrs. Bella Cook, read by Miss Pauline Denten, preceded the business plans.

Reception for Mrs. Tilney.

Mrs. Joseph Webster Sandford, Jr., of West Seventh street, has issued invitations to a reception which she will give on Saturday afternoon, February 19, from 4 to 7, for her sister, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, formerly of Boston, but who is now residing in this city.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A luxury becomes a necessity after you get used to it.

Easy street's sunny side isn't paved with good intentions.

The average woman would rather be married than happy.

Some men get rich because of their ability to separate fools and their coin.

Don't get the idea into your cranium that women have a monopoly of curiosity.

It is unfortunate that all men are liars—but it is fortunate that all women know it.

Many a man's ability to put on a good front is due to his wife's ability as a washerwoman.

The cost of a thing doesn't worry the man whose conscience will permit him to beg, borrow or steal.

It's an easy matter to size up a man if his dog crawls under the house every time he sees him approaching.

When a man tells you how you ought to run your business just take a look at the way he is running his own.

It sometimes comes to pass that a man and his wife refuse to apply for a divorce because they actually love each other

A man who has been married three times says it is almost as easy to please a woman during courtship as it is difficult to please her after marriage.—Chicago News.

BY THE GENTLE CYNIC.

The human race is full of "also rans."

Drinking to drown sorrow is merely feeding a fire with alcohol.

Never bluntly call a man a liar. Break the news to him gently.

Adam couldn't have been a poet, because poets are born, not made.

Fame is sometimes a bubble that comes from blowing our own horn.

Some of us never have an opportunity of knowing when we have enough.

A snapshot photograph often demonstrates that truth is stranger than fiction.

Even when a man has taking ways, he might cultivate a few bringing-back ones.

We never admire a man for the enemies he has made if we happen to be among them.

Some people get such swollen heads from their religion that their haloes won't fit them when they get to Heaven.

SIGNS OF DETERIORATION.

When commonness doesn't trouble you.

When you are satisfied with mediocrity.

When you begin to think your father is an old fogy.

When you can listen without a protest to indecent stories.

When you do not make a confidant of your mother, as you once did, or are ill at ease with her.

When you can work untroubled in the midst of confused, systemless surroundings which you might remedy.

When your ambition begins to cool, and you no longer demand the same standard of excellence that you once did.

When you begin to associate with people whom you would not think of taking to your home, and whom you would not want the members of your family to know that you know.—O. S. Marden, in Success Magazine.

BY THE WAY.

Women and wine disagree on one point; age improves the latter.

Do not let your hatreds get on your mind, keep them on your hands.

The man who thinks cannot help but grow old, but not always gracefully.

To succeed you must become convinced that your business is the most important thing on earth.

The difference between what you ask and what you get represents the fluctuating value of property.

What use would a woman have for a husband if it were not for the comfort of a quarrel now and then?

Vacations are principally useful because they license the luxury of wearing a dirty shirt once in a while.

For a busy personage commend us to the young man who is not used to cigars and who attempts to smoke one and drive a balky horse at the same time.—Uncle Dick in Madison Journal.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

W. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1907.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

If the report be true, it is indeed gratifying to learn that Governor Stokes' ideas regarding the restoration of the old method of electing Assemblymen by districts and not by county at large will be incorporated into the laws during the present session of the Legislature. As it is today, an Assemblyman is not responsible alone to the voters in the vicinity in which he lives but to those of the entire county. The people of his district may or may not favor a certain measure, but at the same time their views may be directly opposite to those of the voters in other section of the county. For instance Union county has three Assemblymen. Under the present law all three may be residents of one community or all three may live in adjoining places. That is, the two could come from Plainfield and such case their ideas might be in harmony with those of the majority of people in this city, but at the same time the people of Elizabeth might hold entirely different views on the given subject. It would be impossible, therefore, for the three to properly represent Union county. If, on the other hand, the legislature came from Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth, or from Plainfield, Rahway, and Summit, respectively, and were accountable only to the voters in the district from which they were chosen, there would be more representative government.

"Representative government," says Governor Stokes in his message, "demands that the unit of representation shall be clearly defined, so that the representative may have a distinct constituency to which he must be responsible for his acts. Under our present system the members of the House of Assembly in those counties that have more than one member are responsible to no district and separate constituency, but rather to a party organization or, to a self-appointed committee of party leaders. This condition violates the foundation principles of popular government. It promotes rule by the few rather than government by the many. So strongly wedded is public sentiment to the system of Assembly Districts that it is the custom in many of the larger counties to fool imaginary legislative districts and for the members to be elected by the county to these districts, existing only in the fancy of the nominating convention. The minority party, under present conditions, seldom has any representatives from the counties in the House of Assembly. In 1905 in the counties of Passaic, Hudson and Essex, the minority party polled forty per cent. of the vote, but did not have in the House of Assembly a single member to speak for it. Most of the large counties embrace both urban and rural populations and in some sections are commonalities of commuters. Under the county system of election members of the Assembly from these different elements may not have proper or adequate representation. Under the district system they could speak for themselves."

GRAFT IN SEEDS.

During the debate in Congress yesterday over an appropriation for free seeds, a member from Kansas argued that the Government might as well give away free lead pencils to the people and jackknives to the boys as to distribute seeds. The point is well taken. There is no more reason why the Government should spend its money buying seeds for Congressmen to use to win favor from their constituents than there is for it to give away eggs or milk bottles. If the Congressman do insist that their friends be provided with seeds, they might spend that $25,000 extra salary they get this year for that purpose.

BOYS ARE WINNING.

Junior Y. M. C. A. Gets Its Sixth Straight Victory.

The Y. M. C. A. junior basketball five won its sixth straight outing Saturday afternoon, defeating the New Brunswick boys on their own floor by a score of 37 to 27. The contest was nip-and-tuck all the way through. Bohan and Conroy did all the Plainfield shooting.

Score and summary:

Sayre,	McElaney,	Hoagland,
Carman,	Smith,
Bohan,	Robbins,	Conroy,
Richardsoh,	Miller.

Goals from field, Samuels 2, McElaney 2, Hoagland 2, Carman 3, Smith, Bohan 8, Conroy 9; goals from fouls, Samuels 3, McElany, Carman 3, Robbins, Conroy, 3.

Sagamore Club Reorganized.

The Sagamore Banjo and Mandolin Club has reorganized for the season and will give a concert at the Casino on Monday night, February 4. The club will be assisted by Miss Aimee Emmons, reader and impersonator.

ASSOCIATION MEN DINE

(Continued from Page 1.)

across every plate, so plain is the injunction.

"Do not let us talk of the difference between the church and the Y. M. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. draws its strength from the churches. Let the churches lose their vigor and the Y. M. C. A. would wither and die. You can't divorce the Y. M. C. A. from the church in any way. The Y. M. C. A. does the work in a practical way. I believe in doing good work in a direct way, without striving always to win communicants to the church. Christ did not feed the hungry just to preach to them afterwards. He fed them because they were hungry. We cannot reach the souls of men through their bodies so let us not be looking too much for spiritual results through physical ministries, but let us keep up our physical ministries because they are of the spirit of Christ, if they are done in Christ's spirit."

Mr. Michner spoke on the work of the Y. M. C. A., in part as follows:

"The story of the Young Men's Christian Association reads like that of great conquest. Every conquest has conflict, and the Y. M. C. A. has not been without it. The workers have had their struggle with the deadly influences that surround them in the cities.

"The methods of this institution are often misunderstood and criticised by men who should be its friends. The work of the organization is that of reaching the unchurched men for the church. It has the most difficult task to be given Christian men.

"There are reasons for the success of the movement. It has succeeded because it is a layman's movement. The young man's point of view has changed in thirty years. Thirty years ago the ideal man was the clergyman, today it is the business man. I wonder if the business men realize the impression they are making on young men.

"This is a movement of young men for young men. The association has been working along scientific lines that produce results. It has had as the center of its work always the city association. It has met the problems of saloons, boss in politics and the other evil influences of the city by the best of the men of presenting because of lack of advancement may be traced to lack of early educational advantages in the city young men. The educational work of the Y. M. C. A. scores and scores of trained men in spiritual life are also doing them to do work in a better way. Our physical departments give them better bodies, a service of high value in the city communities, where physical weakness is so prevalent. Further in this connection it has tried to help the solution of the industrial problem. It has done something to help overcome the awful conditions sometimes found in factory towns. The idea that workingmen do not care to listen to religious talk is not sound. I have found workingmen earnest listeners. The socialists have been putting tons of rot in factory towns. There is no way to counteract those teachings but through the Y. M. C. A.

"I must say just a word about the foreign work. The large majority of the men in the Christian church at home have not seen their duty in the spread of the Gospel throughout the world. The Young Men's Christian Association has seen its duty in that field, and has put as many secretaries there as at home. The Y. M. C. A. believes that Christ gave the Gospel for all the world, and not merely for the United States.

"We have laid emphasis on personal work. Man by man, the faithful men win souls to their Saviour. The association has sought in a quiet way to lead men into a practical belief in the Scriptures. The Scriptures will rise or fall by what they do for the lives of those who apply their teachings, not by what is or is not said about them.

"The church is one of the best promoters of selfishness that exists. Its restfulness is tempting to men who should be working for the advancement of their fellows."

The dinner committee was made up of James E. Kimball, chairman; G. M. Rittenhouse, Curtis M. Thorpe and Duncan W. Taylor.

TALKS OF DRYDEN LETTER

(Continued from Page 1.)

can men of affairs, doctors, lawyers, business men, the farmer, the clergy and the wage earner, and it represents a strength and a political power which the Republican party cannot afford to ignore.

"Is Mr. Dryden seeking a vindication? For what? Certainly not for any of the great measures with which the Republican party is identified. The State government is honest and without scandal. The National administration is doing its duty and is popular. Why then all this persistency? Can it be purely personal? Why should the Republican party be called upon to vindicate any one of its members if a storm of protest arises, not because of public policies but merely from personal affairs for which the Republican party should not be held responsible?"

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison Avenue, is on an extended tour in the West giving lectures relative to woman's suffrage and other topics of the day.

CHILD LABOR A MENACE

Rev. George A. Warner Declares That Employment of Youth is National Peril.

A TERRIBLE SYSTEM

Clergyman Quotes Statistics and Adds That Remedy Must Be Applied at Once.

A powerful presentation of the evils of child labor was made by the Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, in a sermon delivered to his congregation Sunday morning. The clergyman was armed with facts and figures sufficient to convince the most doubting one that the existing condition constitutes a National peril.

"In a letter dated New York, Jan. 15, I was asked to join with others of my brethren of the clergy all over the United States, in bringing to the attention of Christian people the subject of child labor as a National evil and a menace to good citizenship. It was natural with so decided love for children and a wish to aid them and their cause in any way possible that I should try and inform myself as to the precise facts relating to child labor.

"At the outset we must realize that the evil of employing children at a tender age has back of it the greed of modern capitalists who desire cheap labor, and the avariciousness of the needy parent who thinks to increase the family income—without considering the inevitable result. That it is a National problem is found in the fact that two million children under the age of sixteen are engaged in gainful employment. What these two million children will be twenty years from now is a question which is not only a moral concern but a National one as well. Faulty physical bodies; amnemic, worn out, insufficiently nourished, broken down creatures, taken from the ranks of such workers go to make up the suffmerged wretched day laborers—the pitiful people of the slums, who by unfortunate marriages and in wretched environment hand down to their children diseased bodies and enfeebled mental powers and capacities.

"Over industrial processes are such that children are found very handy and quick with machinery and attempts made here in New Jersey to prohibit boys under sixteen from working in glass factories is opposed by the manufacturers on the ground of utility, and that such work is permitted in Pennsylvania. Seven thousand children are engaged in this work. Boys in glass plants usually work in two shifts—one day and one night. When on a night shift they leave the hot atmosphere of the glass furnace at 2:30 to 4:30 a. m. to wend their way through the darkness of the raw night frequently and travel long distances. They are often found sleeping near the furnaces until the day shift comes on, or in summer they sleep on a friendly doorstep or by the wayside rather than take the dark trip home. The boy who has to tie glass stoppers in bottles has three hundred bottles a day as his task. He sits bent over his low stool for ten hours, the hollow chest, bent back, flabby limbs, sallow face, tired eyes and quivering nerves all tell the story of the child being deprived of his life by the greed of low-men. All for the munificent sum of $4.50 a week. Burly men curse their little helpers and leave on them an impress by foul and coarse language that nothing can ever obliterate. One boy had a bottle a day as his glass house all his life said: 'I would rather send my boys straight to hell than send them by way of the glass house.' A young fellow who worked in a factory where there were 175 of these boys said there were only ten at the end of the fire who were not confirmed drinkers of intoxicants. On man who was appealed to do something for the education of the boys replied, 'You can't do anything for them. The little devils are vicious from their birth.' The effects are injurious to the moral as well as the physical well being of the boy. It is a striking commentary that the children of the glass workers themselves are seldom ever allowed by the parents to work in the factory.

"In the coal mining industry it is only another form of labor with the same results. The great coal strike of 1902 led to the unearthing of some interesting facts which have been supplemented by eighteen months' patient investigation by a committee appointed to look into child labor in coal mines. From 6,000 to 12,000 boys under fourteen years of age are employed in the hard coal mines of Pennsylvania alone. This is in violation of the law but falsehood on the part of parent and children lying in respect to their age has made the violation possible. These boys work in considerable numbers in the coal breakers, seated on a board laid across the chute, the little boy regulates the flow of coal, picking out the slate. Where the coal is cleaned dry the dust is so dense, the light cannot penetrate. Here in these regions too he must constantly meet with that which is coarsening and degrading to childhood.

"The children working in the cotton mills of the south number 60,000 from six to sixteen years of age. Physicians in their State conventions are protesting vigorously against the presence of young children with their delicate lungs and organs in an atmosphere of flying lint, pulating out the frequent cases of throat and lung diseases they treat and protesting against physical injury.

"In closing this brief chapter of facts gleaned as to child labor I may refer you to New York and the New York tenements and sweat-shops. Riis' book will make it so terribly plain that one need only to read it to be convinced of the crimes against childhood in the name of labor. A child of three can straighten out the leaves of tobacco, at four make stems for artificial flowers and cover boxes, at six sew on buttons and pull basting threads all day long; a girl of twelve can finish up trousers as well as an adult. These children earn from 50 cents to a dollar and a half a week at the expense of health and education.

"Every child has a right to the development which play brings, a right to good air, proper food, education and that which is commonly associated with childhood. How are we going to see this ideal for them realized? By enacting the proper laws and by watchful enforcement. In a democracy the great engine of compulsion is public opinion, an educated enlightened public opinion which feeds upon facts and is far sighted enough to look into the future. Let us make our representatives in State and National Legislature feel the force of public opinion, let us be consumers of goods with so tender conscience that goods of the sweat-shop and child labor will not be bought by us. Let us familiar ourselves with the school laws and the law which holds parents responsible for the way they treat their children and in any case under our observation invoke the school law to bring the parent to book.

"Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones for I tell you that their angels do always behold the fail of my Father, which is in Heaven.

"What is our share of the guilt?
"The chief priests and rulers cry!

'O Lord and Master, not ours the guilt
We but as our fathers built;
Behold thine images how they stand
Sovereign and sole through all our land.

'Our task is hard—with sword and flame,
To hold thine earth forever the same
And with sharp crooks of steel to keep Still as thou leftest them, thy sheep.

'Then Christ sought out an artisan,
A low-browed, stunted, haggard man,
And a mordeen girl whose fingers thin
Crushed from her faintly want and sin.

'These put he in the midst of them,
And as they drew back their garments' hem
For fear of defilement, 'Lo, here,' said he,
'The images ye have made of me.'"

—Quotation from James Russell Howell.

LOST GLORIOUSLY TO MONTCLAIR FIVE

Y. M. C. A. YOUNGSTERS MADE A SPLENDID SHOWING AGAINST VETERANS

Plainfield went bravely down to defeat, 44 to 17, in the Y. M. C. A. basketball league game at Montclair Saturday night. Not seasoned quite enough to stand the grueling of a full game, the youngsters in the Plainfield five yet made a splendid showing. They won frequent applause by dashing team work, and the promise of an all-conquering gait in days not far off was re plain that Manager Listman took as much satisfaction out of the game as if his colts had won it.

In the first half Plainfield played Montclair to a frazzle in team work and passing, weak in shooting—a ball lighter than regulation had something to do with that—the Plainfielders didn't cash in on all their chances, but the latter were away and beyond those of their opponents. In that half Plainfield held down the score to 16 to 8. In the second half, the youngsters weakened and Montclair players forged ahead.

Line-up and summary:

Montclair—	Rohan,	Goodman, Bunton, Waberalski,
Plainfield —	Gilmore,	Loizeaux, Collier, Aalholm, Gavett.

Goals from field, Rohan 7, Goodman 7, Bunton 4, Waberalskie, Lumis 2, Gilmore 3, Loizeaux 2, Collier 3, Aalholm. Goals from fouls, Rohan 2.

Montclair will play here tonight.

Forty-five Days from the Borough.

John Jeroloman, well known to the police on both sides of the brook, was arrested in the borough, Saturday, for panhandling. Recorder Dolliver heard his case Saturday night and committed him to Somerville for forty-five days.

Mid-Winter Tea.

Invitations have been sent out by Miss McCutchen and Miss Verna McCutchen for a tea to be given in honor of Miss Edith English at their home, "Oakwood," Plainfield avenue, on Wednesday, February 6, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

GRACE M. E. CONGREGATION TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

CHURCH WILL HAVE BEEN ORGANIZED FIFTEEN YEARS ON FEB. 14.

The congregation of Grace M. E. church will celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of its organization on February 10 and in preparation for the event the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, preached an appropriate sermon, yesterday. His text was, "Beginning at Jerusalem" and the idea he expressed was that Christianity had its commencement in Jerusalem and that the Master expected something of everyone to aid in spreading the word. It had its beginning in Plainfield 300 years ago and has a great growth and is now beginning over again.

The anniversary of the foundings of the church in reality falls on February 14 but the previous Sunday has been set as the date. At the morning service, Rev. Herbert Randolph, the first pastor, now of Hoboken, will preach and in the evening Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, who supplied during the first year, is to speak on "Hopes in the Beginning." He will be followed by Dr. Parsons, who will talk on "Hopes for the Present and For the Future."

In connection with the celebration, an effort will be made to clear the last remaining debt on the church, a small amount.

INJURED WHILE COASTING.

Harold Marsh Collides With a Sled and Is Knocked Out.

Harold Marsh, the young son of George W. Marsh, of Maple avenue, the borough, was severely injured Friday afternoon, while coasting near the old Scriber brickyard. Young Marsh was going at a lively clip down the hill, when Peter Ryman, another lad, who was coasting at the same time, placed his sled directly in the path of Marsh. The collision threw the latter fully ten feet and in falling he struck his face, inflicting a deep and painful gash.

Young Marsh was taken home and Dr. VanHorn was summoned. It required a number of stitches to close the wound, and at first it was thought that the lad was injured internally. Unless complications set in the boy will be around again in a few days.

Linden West Marries.

Linden West, of East Fifth street, and Miss Grace Emmons, of Anandale, were married at the latter place Thursday afternoon. The groom is a former resident of Clinton, but for the past two years has been in the employ of Neuman Brothers. The young couple will make their home on East Fifth street.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO MRS. SARAH LINCOLN

STRICKEN WHILE VISITING FRIEND SIMILARLY AFFECTED.

Mrs. R. C. Fisher, of West Fourth street, suffered a stroke of paralysis a few days ago and has since been confined to her bed. Saturday night, Mrs. Sarah Lincoln, who has lived on Arlington avenue, around the corner from her home, for nearly thirty years, decided to visit her friend and came to Mrs. Fisher's house in apparently as good health as ever, despite her advanced age of seventy-nine years. She had barely reached the patient's room when she was stricken with paralysis and sank unconscious.

She was removed to another room and doctors were called but the attack were a severe one and Mrs. Lincoln failed to rally. She remained in a comatose state until a quarter of 8 last night when death ensued.

Mrs. Lincoln had been a resident of Plainfield nearly all her life and was the widow of Felix T. Lincoln. She was the oldest member of the First M. E. church and attended there regularly. At one time she was a prominent worker in the local division of the Sons of Temperance. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Tyrrell, of East Fifth street, and two granddaughters, Miss Mildred Tyrrell and Mrs. Etta Raybert.

The funeral was held at Mrs. Tyrrell's home, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.

Patent May Be Generally Adopted.

F. E. Kinsman, of Sherman avenue, the patentee of the Kinsman safety signal device which has been in successful operation on the express tracks of the New York subway since its installation, has returned from Washington, where he appeared before the railroad commission to explain his invention. He received generous treatment during his stay in Washington and while many other inventions were presented, none of them appeared to meet the exacting requirements as found in his device. He says that the outlook is encouraging for the general adoption of his patent in this country.

Not a Fire Hero.

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., was somewhat surprised on Saturday when he read the story sent out from New Brunswick which pictured him as a fire hero. It was all news to him that he had rushed to the third floor of a burning house, at the peril of his life, to rescue a mother and her babe. Mr. Hyde is of the opinion that there are some practical jokers among his mates at Rutgers.

YEAR IN THE Y. M. C. A.

(Continued from Page 1.)

religious work. Five shops have been opened to us, and the response on the part of the men has been most encouraging. This work seems most nearly like following the Master's great command—"Go yet into all the world and preach the gospel, etc." While it is sometimes difficult to get men to the Sunday meetings there is little difficulty in getting their attendance and interest at the noon hour in the shops.

Interest in the foreign work has been maintained though not advanced as far as we had hoped. Mr. E. T. Colton gave us a Saturday evening address on the subject. It is the desire of the Association to place a secretary of our own in the foreign field as soon as we can possibly do so.

Sunday — Thirty-eight gospel meetings in large hall, Sunday afternoon, total attendance, 3,087; average attendance, 81; five theatre meetings—total attendance, 2,061; average, 412; four open air meetings, total attendance (men, boys and children) over 600; four Sunday afternoon conferences, average attendance about 16; total 5,829; Mr. Murray's Bible class, eight sessions, average attendance about 15; Mr. Manning's Bible class, eight sessions, average attendance about 7½.

A business men's Bible class was organized in the fall, with Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut as teacher. Subject, Outline Studies Old Testiment History. It was hoped that this class would be very attractive but only about fifteen of men have been present at the various sessions though the lessons were extremely interesting and helpful.

The Association is under obligation to our local singers and instrumentalists who have kindly assisted in our meetings.

During a week in April, the Rines Bros., Canadian evangelists, conducted meetings in the hall and at some outside places, which were productive of good though the attendance of men was small.

Special meetings for conference and prayer have been held at various times, having in mind the interest of our work.

Eight men from the Association went to the Northfield Bible study from October 18th. Dr. A. F. Schauffer gave a most helpful talk on Bible study, and the work of prayer was observed by holding the meetings in the parlor.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, numbering 70, during the past years been a great help to us in taking care of part of our building, and arranging our banquets and entertainments.

A very important work we do is the work for boys which embraces nearly all our lines of activity grouped as in his one department. They have in this branch of our work four Bible classes, and have had cross country runs, and outings of many kinds. The summer camp was attended by seventeen boys. Bible training class is also carried on.

Our boys' manual training school has been conducted about the same as last year, teaching carpentry, moldinz, and mechanical drawing.

We have had our regular Star Course that has always furnished clean and attractive entertainment free to our members.

Mr. J. H. Manning, who had been secretary of our Association for nearly twenty years, resigned September 1st, and a reception was given him in October, at which time his numerous friends spoke many words of praise about his long and faithful service.

The treasury has a deficit of $1,525. A total of $8,711.84 was received during the year. The $1,000 note due on our engine amount was paid off this fall. We have had an unusual number of necessary repairs to make, new floors, plumbing, heaters, etc., and expended on these $755.99. Of the deficit $475 has been subscribed, leaving $1,150 unprovided for.

Both Mr. Robbie and Mr. Listman have been energetic, progressive, and have done a great deal of hard work, and what has been accomplished by the Association has been largely due to their fidelity to their occupation.

In addition to the foregoing, the large amount of time devoted to personal work of many kinds by our general secretary and others must not be passed over unnoticed, it goes on regularly 365 days in the year, does not get in the papers, and is known to very few.

We extend a cordial invitation to all the men of Plainfield to frequent our building. It is fitting to recognize here the faithful services of our employes, and to acknowledge the many favors for which we as an Association are indebted to many whose gifts and co-operation have been so encouraged those engaged in this enterprise. We wish there was a general acquaintance with our work, and that more of our supporters would visit our building, and see what we are doing.

The only great need now is for more active Christian workers to help advance our work.

J. W. GAVETT, President.
Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 29, 1907.

Dr. F. C. Herbert, of East Second street, who has been at Mafiboro recuperating from an attack of pneumonia, returned home yesterday. He is much improved.

Mrs. J. B. Dumont, of Stelle avenue, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of New York, sailed last Sunday for Egypt, where they will remain during the rest of the winter.

I SHALL NEVER MAKE THIS OFFER AGAIN:

A $5.00 Pair of Glasses For $1.00.

To Introduce our improved crystal lenses, this offer includes a 12K SOLID GOLD SHELL FRAME WARRANTED FOR 20 YEARS.

ALSO A thorough examination of the eyes by a specialist, no better tests to be had at any price, and GUARANTEE THAT your glasses will fit.

IF YOU HAVE A HEADCHE,

if you squint, if your vision blurs, if after reading a short time you get drowsy, if you have dizzy spells, if you see objects double, if you have been told you have vertigo, nine cases out of ten the trouble is with your eyes, and can be corrected with properly fitted glasses. Agency

Frank Rowley, Druggist, 218 W. Front St., Plainfield, N. J

THIS OFFER IS FOR 4 DAYS ONLY:

Thursday, Jan.31, Friday,Feb. 1, Saturday, Feb.2, Monday, Feb.4

OFFICE HOURS 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

MILLS OPTICAL CO.

MAIN OFFICE AND FACTORY, 110 EAST 23d STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Our entire output from maker to wearer. You get the benefit. Prescriptions and prisms ic lenses at half price. 1 28 6

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c. Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

P.P.A. SCORES P.S.C LIGHTING SERVICE

Investigation Made by Its Expert Reveals a Bad Condition of Affairs.

TO ACT ON THE REPORT

Mr. Spice Makes Recommendations Regarding Electric and Gas Lighting Which Will Be Considered at Once.

The report of Alfred Spice, of New York, the expert employed by the Plainfield Protective Association to investigate the lighting service of the Public Service Corporation in this city, was made public Monday. Mr. Spice has nothing good to say of the street lighting, to which he devoted most of his report. He says there has been gross neglect in renewing worn lamps, that many useless shades have been allowed to remain in place and that very few of the lamps even approximated the 25 candle power ascribed to them. Voltage, he reports, was found to vary much. The gas service is not so strongly criticised. Too much carbonic acid gas is said to be present in the product, and not enough care is used in the preparation. Only three meters were tested, and they were found to be substantially accurate, as far as the limited test permissible could show. The lighting tests were thorough, and Mr. Spice submits tables in support of his report on them. He made the examination between December 26 and January 5.

In connection with the report, H. Henry Depew, president of the Association, submits comments on points to which special attention is deemed necessary. The P. P. A. will consider the report at a meeting to be held at the Casino, Friday night.

Mr. Spice's report is, in part, as follows:

"Walking about Plainfield on the afternoon of December 24th, I noticed that the incandescent lamps used for street lighting were not uniform as to size of globe and varied greatly in the matter of age. Along Front street, near the business section and in North Plainfield, the lamps had the general appearance of being reasonably new and fairly clean. Although there were many lamps apparently in good condition, the great majority showed evidence of neglect in the matter of being kept clean from dust and dirt, and their dark color, from deposited carbon on the inside of the globes, indicated considerable age.

"By far the worst condition observed was on Watchung avenue from the railroad station to Hillside avenue. Nearly all of the lamps were in a deplorable condition, and some were so black that little, if any, light could be expected to come from them. Their general appearance was sufficient evidence of the grossest neglect in renewing deteriorated lamps.

"Many of the enamel shades overhanging the lamps and the purpose of reflecting the light downward were absolutely useless, even for protecting the lamps from rain. A large number of the shades had part of the enameled surface chipped off, and in many cases the enamel was entirely gone, leaving the exposed surface of rusty iron. Several of the shades had large holes in them where the iron had corroded and some had so rusted away as to be left hanging by mere fragments and might be expected to fall at any time. This condition is not general throughout Plainfield and North Plainfield, but the number of defective shades is large enough to be particularly noticeable.

"There is considerable irregularity in the heights of the lamps from the curb, some being 20 feet above the road while others are double that distance. The high lamps are not confined to street corners but exist, in many cases, midway between streets. At some corners there are high lamps while at others there are lamps as low as nine feet.

"At night the relative illumination in the different sections of Plainfield and North Plainfield agrees very closely with the observations noted during daylight as to the conditions of lamps. In general, where clean and apparently new lamps were in use the illumination was best, although this rule was not found to be infallible. In some sections apparently new lamps gave poor illumination. This poor illumination, in the case of clean new lamps, was attributed to too low a voltage being supplied with the requirements of the lamps installed. This theory was borne out by subsequent tests of voltage at the street lamp circuits.

"The candle powers of various street lamps in Plainfield and North Plainfield were determined on the nights of December 28th and 28th. No attempt was made to select only the poorer lamps for examination, but a fair number were tested, including those giving most light and those giving least. The lamps were, in the majority, marked as being 25 candle power lamps, but only in a very few instances was this candle power approximated, and even in the case of the majority of what were considered the brighter lamps the observed candle power was considerably below twenty-five. The term 'brighter' is used here to contra-distinguish from the lamps of very low illuminating power and not as indicating giving illumination."

The report at this point goes on into a tabulated statement of lamps tested, over fifty in number.—The lights at Watchung avenue and Fourth street, where the main line and Fourth street trolley cars converge, was less than four candle power. Many of the lamps were found to give about eight candle power.

The report continues:

"On December 28th a new lamp was purchased at the electric power plant on Second avenue, between Ninth and Seventh streets, and also at the corner of Park avenue and Eighth street. The candle power of the lamp was there determined and compared with the candle power of the original lamps found in the sockets. The observed candle power of the lamp in the different locations agreed approximately with that of the lamps found at those places, and yet at the two poles the lamp gaves widely different results. This can be accounted for only by there being a difference in voltage in the two places. At Park avenue and Eighth street the lamp was shown to be capable of yielding nearly 25 candle power, while at Watchung avenue near Ninth street it showed candle power of 4. At former place the voltage was found to be over 52, while at Watchung avenue the voltage was too low to produce the higher candle power.

"The voltage supplied at several of the lamps in various locations in Plainfield and North Plainfield were determined on the night of January 3rd. In only one instance did the voltage prove to be as high as the stamp on the lamp globe called for. Every lamp examined was marked as requiring a pressure of 52 volts, and the candle power the lamps were marked to give at 52 volts was in every case either 25 to 26.

"The quantity of current used is measured in watts, and in incandescent lamps the normal rate of current consumption is 3.5 watts for each candle power received. A new lamp made for a 52 volt circuit and run on a voltage lower than 52 will give a lower candle power than it would at 52 volts pressure. With the lowering of voltage there is a decrease in candle power, and also a decrease in amount of current used; but the reduction in current consumption and candle power do not go on in the same ratio, the candle power dropping at a greater rate, and so it follows that with a drop in voltage there is an increase in current consumption per candle power received. On the other hand, if a higher voltage is used than is required for a lamp, the current consumption per candle power is less than normal, but the actual effective life of the lamp is so shortened as to render the cost of running and maintenance excessive.

"Another cause, and a very common one, of lowering of candle power in lamps is the deposit of a dark film of finely divided carbon particles on the inside of the globe, thrown off by the carbon filament in the lamp. This largely interferes with the transmission of light and in old lamps it becomes a serious matter. Even though the correct voltage be supplied to an old discolored lamp, the light received is so small that the result to the consumer is the same as having the voltage reduced, since the actual cost per candle power received is increased.

"It is very important in a lighting contract that the mere agreement to supply lamps of a specified candle power, such as 25 candle power lamps, be not accepted. There should be a clause requiring the renewal of lamps after a certain number of hours' use, or one requiring that the lamps should give their maximum candle power at all times.

"Determinations of current consumption of lamps found in houses were made on December 27th, 29th and 30th. Many lamps were pointed out as giving poor illumination and a number of these were examined. All had been used to some extent, although apparently they were not much discolored. In these instances the lamps were tested on a circuit having a voltage agreeing with that called for by the stamp on the lamp, nearly all failed to give the candle power specified on the stamp. The 16 candle power lamps were in general of inferior quality. In trying to arrive at the cause of this deficiency in illuminating power some unused lamps were examined, and in every case where the lamp was known to be new the specified candle power was obtained when the lamps was run on the voltage called for.

"I am of the opinion that much better illumination would be obtained if attention were given by consumers to renewing lamps more frequently. It seems to be not well understood that the discoloration of lamps largely depreciates their efficiency. Not all the cause of poor illumination is to be traced to deteriorated lamps, since in several cases the voltage supplied at house circuits was too low to produce the correct candle power. In some cases the voltage was higher than necessary.

"At some of the above addresses there was a drop of as much as 6 volts when lamps were turned on. In one house with few lights on the voltage was 107, and when all the lamps on each wire were in use the voltage had dropped to 101½. Such reduction as this indicates too small wires for the voltage supplied. To derive the maximum efficiency of the lamps, either the question of wiring should be looked into, or the close voltage increased, or lamps should be supplied to run at such voltage as is found to exist under normal load."

In the forepart of the report on gas, Mr. Spice declares the local plant to be unusually well kept, with close attention to obtaining a uniform illuminating value in the product. His criticisms on the gas are as follows:

"No provision is made for scientifically analyzing the gas produced, to correct generation depending upon the experience and judgment of the men at the producers. The installation of apparatus for this purpose would prove to be a desirable acquisition to the plant and would afford valuable information and be a further safeguard in the matter of controlling composition. Although the determination of illuminating value is very necessary and to be commended a gas might be a very smoky one and still have a sufficient proportion of hydro-carbons present to yield a satisfactory product in so far as an illuminating test would show. The objectionable gases could readily be detected by a comparatively simple analytical apparatus. This would apply as well to the Camden plant as the Plainfield plant.

"The gas at present received from the Camden plant is somewhat lower in illuminating value than the gas as produced at Plainfield. It was stated that a converter for the purpose of enriching the imported gas, is shortly to be installed at the Plainfield plant, which will supply this deficiency. The lower illuminating value of the Camden gas is probably due to the condensation of certain hydrocarbons in the transmissions of the gas over so great a distance. The greatest loss would be in cold weather and there would be little, if any, in warm weather.

"Samples of gas were collected for analysis, but at the time of my visits the Plainfield generators had been in operation, so that the samples collected are a mixture of coal gas and water gas, being partly that supplied from Camden. The determination of their composition, however, suffices to indicate the presence of deteriorating gases which could be better controlled and eliminated were more attention given to systematic analysis and advantage in the information gained thereby.

"It will be noticed from the average composition of the gas collected at Plainfield that there are present higher percentages of Carbon Dioxide and Oxygen than is customary to present in either good water gas or coal gas. The percentage of Carbon Dioxide is somewhat controllable by the method of water gas generation, but seldom entirely eliminated in the process of generation of either water gas or coal gas. It is customary to remove Carbon Dioxide by a system of lime purification. So far as I could ascertain, no provision is made for the removal of this gas at Plainfield. The cost of its removal is small and as its presence largely reduces the illuminating value of a gas the installation of a suitable CO2 purifier should be considerable importance."

Mr. Spice makes the following suggestions:

"1st—Voltage of street lamp circuits should be increased, and lamps kept clean and renewed before discoloring.

"2—Defective shades should be replaced by new ones.

"3—Voltage of house circuits should be made more nearly uniform and either increased or lamps supplied to yield greater efficiency at the present voltage.

"4th—House lamps should be renewed oftener by consumers.

"5th—A purifier for the removal of Carbon Dioxide should be installed at the gas works and apparatus for gas analysis should be provided and used."

President Depew says, in his memorandum in the report:

"The table shows that the poor lights are due not alone to deteriorated lamps, but on many circuits are due also to the fact that the voltage is entirely too low to produce the required 25 C. P. in the lamps used, which shows that gross neglect is general throughout the entire system. The result of this neglect is that not only are our streets very badly lighted, but, if the average shown is a fair average of all lights, and we believe it is, the tax payers of the city and borough appear to be paying together about $7,500 to $10,000 annually in excess of the amount they should pay for street lighting alone.

"To the recommendations of Mr. Spice we would add the following: As we have probably never had lights giving generally 25 C. P., we possibly have not been aware of it, and we would suggest that the Common Council, with the aid of an expert, test the effect of lamps giving 16, 18 or 20 C. P. and make a contract for such as shall be found satisfactory, at a proportionately reduced price. The contract should stipulate, not that certain C. P. lamps should be used, but that the lamps used should at all times give the agreed candle power of light, with a heavy penalty to attach when any lamps are found to be giving less.

"Your committee will take up the question of lamps and voltage with the company, but a careful watch by each consumer will certainly result in better lights, and smaller bills by reducing the number of lights used.

"Also the question of the quality of the gas will be taken up, in view of the assurance given your Executive Committee by President McCarter, that the Camden gas would be above reproach."

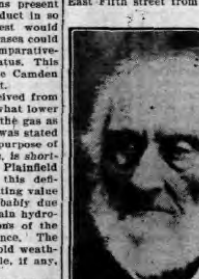
HALSEY H. BAKER DEAD

Teacher-Preacher-Author-Inventor Succumbs at Ripe Age of 94 Years.

ACTIVE TO THE LAST

He Retained All His Faculties and Was a Familiar Figure About Town Despite His Advanced Age.

Halsey H. Baker, considered to be Plainfield's oldest and probably best known citizen, died at his home on East Fifth street from paralysis last



H. H. Baker.

Monday. He was stricken in one side Friday afternoon and sank rapidly, his advanced age aiding in its progress. He was perfectly conscious to the last and the wonderful brain that had accomplished so much remained active until within a few moments before the end. Death came at 7:30, his aged wife, only four years his junior and his companion for seventy years, being at his bedside, together with their only daughter, Mrs. Charles Crawford, of New York.

Halsey H. Baker was born at Schroon, Essex county, N. Y., July 4, 1813, and lived there until he was twenty years old, attending the district school. He then went to Madison county, New York, where he helped to build DeRuyter Institute. A little later he was licensed by the M. E. church to preach. Afterward he located at Alfred, N. Y., where he became interested in starting Alfred University. He also carried a single cake, candy and pop-corn was held in the primary department of school which grew to a successful organization. It was about this time that he identified himself with the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

It was while preaching at Berlin, N. Y., in 1836, he met Miss Cynthia Green, to whom he was married a year later. Soon after he engaged in holding evangelistic meetings in different States. His first pastorate was at Waterford, Conn., where he remained two years. He then returned to Berlin, where he engaged in the wood carving business for several years.

Mr. Baker received a call to the pastorate of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, where he remained for five years, after which he moved to Plainfield. He and Mrs. Baker had resided here ever since, thirty-five years. Before the Civil War he invented a planer that met with much success. The factory was located at Westerly, R. I., and the business was afterward sold to a Southern concern.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Baker devoted much time to literary work, a notable achievement being "The Pearl," a Scripture lithograph sixteen volumes. Last year he wrote a book "The Creation Described," illustrating the first week of time. This book has had a great sale. Mr. Baker was also a regular contributor to The Sabbath Recorder and his scientific articles have attracted widespread attention. He published the Plainfield city directory for many years.

Mr. Baker's wife, who survives him, was born at Berlin, N. Y., in 1817 and on August 22 last, the couple celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their marriage. It was observed in a quiet way but many neighbors and friends brought flowers and spent a little while chatting and of fering congratulations.

WIZARD LOCATES HERE

Frederick Mueller Leaves Singer Factory to Enter Employment of Pond Co.

KNOWN AS "AUTOMATIC"

Inventor of Many Wonderful Devices Used By the Big Sewing Machine Concern.

The Singer Manufacturing Company at Elizabeth received on Saturday the resignation of Frederick Mueller, of that city, better known as "Automatic" Mueller, who has been with the concern for thirty-four years. He leaves in order to become consulting engineer of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company and will be stationed at the plant of the Pond Tool Company in this city. The change took effect today and "Automatic" is now in his new position.

Mr. Muller was head of the construction and drafting departments of the Singer plants. He is better known, however, as the inventor of a large number of tools, so-called, used for making the parts of sewing machines.

He is first man in the world to make a tool that will turn out a part of a machine complete in one operation. His latest invention of this kind is a machine for finishing bed plates which does in one operation what formerly required thirty-eight. Mr. Muller is the inventor of many small machines, the primary characteristic of which is their simplicity. Most of his machines run automatically, which accounts for the sobriquet "Automatic" by which he is known among his associates and even in the technical magazines.

He has the distinction of having never made a machine that did not work satisfactorily. It has frequently been said that when a machine came complete from his hands it could not be improved upon. His work suggests the wizard and he has few equals as an inventor in the world today.

PENNSY BUYING LAND.

Acquiring Property Along Its Line in Middlesex.

Joseph Greer, a real estate dealer of Elizabeth, has been in New Brunswick for the past week searching for the Pennsylvania Railroad along the line where the company intends to build its new road. The company has been buying up property in Middlesex county during the past year. Of late there has been much more buying than usual, and it seems as if the railroad was trying to complete the purchase of a right of way in as short a time as possible. The title department of the Pennsylvania Railroad is doing the searching of titles of property in New Brunswick and the rest of the county.

When Mr. Greer was here searched in Elizabeth it was done for the company by the Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark. At that time a complete copy was taken of the records of Union county and the searching was done in the offices at Newark.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.

Junior Endeavorers Raise Money for Mission Work.

Under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, a successful sale of cake, candy and pop-corn was held in the primary department of the lecture room, Saturday afternoon. The patronage was generous and $14.10 was realized as profit. This will be devoted to missions. Mrs. William C. Tomson, is superintendent of the society, was in charge and Mrs. William Kriney was her assistant.

The room was attractively decorated and there were three tables, cake, candy and pop-corn. Those in charge of the candy table were Edna Oliver, Elsie Tier, Margaret Vanderventer ,Rosamond Rogers. At the cake table were Helen Roberts, Edna Cole, Adelaide Fritts, Madeline Strader, assisted by Lawrence Tomson and Theodore Layton. Katie Layton, Ida VanArsdale and Florence Wilson had charge of the pop-corn table.

Buy Your Own Paper.

A man who was too economical to subscribe for his home paper sent his little boy to borrow the paper taken by his neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a $4 stand of bees and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His irate neighbor had charged off the pop-corn table.

HALSEY H. BAKER DEAD

Teacher-Preacher-Author-Inventor Succumbs at Ripe Age of 94 Years.

ACTIVE TO THE LAST

He Retained All His Faculties and Was a Familiar Figure About Town Despite His Advanced Age.

Halsey H. Baker, considered to be Plainfield's oldest and probably best known citizen, died at his home on East Fifth street from paralysis last

H. H. Baker.

Monday. He was stricken in one side Friday afternoon and sank rapidly, his advanced age aiding in its progress. He was perfectly conscious to the last and the wonderful brain that had accomplished so much remained active until within a few moments before the end. Death came at 7:30, his aged wife, only four years his junior and his companion for seventy years, being at his bedside, together with their only daughter, Mrs. Charles Crawford, of New York.

Halsey H. Baker was born at Schroon, Essex county, N. Y., July 4, 1813, and lived there until he was twenty years old, attending the district school. He then went to Madison county, New York, where he helped to build DeRuyter Institute. A little later he was licensed by the M. E. church to preach. Afterward he located at Alfred, N. Y., where he became interested in starting Alfred University. He also carried a single cake, candy and pop-corn was held in the primary department of school which grew to a successful organization. It was about this time that he identified himself with the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination.

It was while preaching at Berlin, N. Y., in 1836, he met Miss Cynthia Green, to whom he was married a year later. Soon after he engaged in holding evangelistic meetings in different States. His first pastorate was at Waterford, Conn., where he remained two years. He then returned to Berlin, where he engaged in the wood carving business for several years.

Mr. Baker received a call to the pastorate of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, where he remained for five years, after which he moved to Plainfield. He and Mrs. Baker had resided here ever since, thirty-five years. Before the Civil War he invented a planer that met with much success. The factory was located at Westerly, R. I., and the business was afterward sold to a Southern concern.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Baker devoted much time to literary work, a notable achievement being "The Pearl," a Scripture lithograph sixteen volumes. Last year he wrote a book "The Creation Described," illustrating the first week of time. This book has had a great sale. Mr. Baker was also a regular contributor to The Sabbath Recorder and his scientific articles have attracted widespread attention. He published the Plainfield city directory for many years.

Mr. Baker's wife, who survives him, was born at Berlin, N. Y., in 1817 and on August 22 last, the couple celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their marriage. It was observed in a quiet way but many neighbors and friends brought flowers and spent a little while chatting and of fering congratulations.

SEEK HEIR TO FORTUNE

Phillip Weinberger Missing Since October Has Inherited Part of Father's Fortune.

HE WAS IN CHICAGO

Son of Max Weinberger Who Died Recently—Boy Last Heard From When Visiting Uncle.

"Philip Weinberger—Your father is dead. Send me your address. William Newcorn. Plainfield, Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago papers please copy."

The above advertisement appeared in the New York Herald of Sunday, and inquiry disclosed the fact that Phillip Weinberger, who is the son of the late Max Weinberger, for many years engaged in the clothing business on West Front street, left Plainfield last October, with the consent of his father, to visit his uncle in Chicago.

It is known that he remained in Chicago for less than three months, for friends in Plainfield received postal cards and letters from him during that period. The young man, who is about seventeen years old, was pretty well supplied with cash when he left town, and it is now the opinion that he is visiting various places. Max Weinberger left a large estate and the missing boy is one of the principal beneficiaries.

Mrs. Weinberger, who is a stepmother and is own aunt to Phillip Weinberger, his father having married his wife's sister after her death, has heard nothing or the boy since December and is now prostrated over his prolonged absence. The lad has always had a roving disposition and this is not the first time that he has absented himself from home for a length of time. Some of his friends feel no apprehension as to his safety and believe that he will return home when he gets ready.

While the advertisement seeks to inform the lad of his father's death, it is believed that he may have previously learned of it through relatives in Chicago and other parts of the west.

Baby Bureau Drawers.

What is more tiresome than a bureau drawer that balks and sticks and goes in sidewise or refuses to go in altogether? But rub the edges lightly with sandpaper and see how bright the world looks, or rub laundry soap all around the top of the drawer and on little wooden sheff it runs on. Simple "homemade" remedies, both of them, but worth trying.

MARRIED.

HALSEY — WHEELER.— On Wednesday afternoon, January 23, 1907, by Rev. Frank Crowder, D. D., of Staten Island, at Grace Church Chantry, New York, Helen Garthwaite Wheeler, of East Orange, N. J., and John Reboul Halsey, of Astoria, L. I.

DIED.

HOBBS—On Wednesday, January 23, 1907, Anna M. Hobbs.

ROBERTSON (nee stone) — On Thursday, Jan. 24, 1907, at her home, 21 Chester street, Newark, N. J., Annie B., wife of Fredrick H. Robertson.

LINCOLN—On Sunday, Jan. 27, 1907, Sarah, widow of Felix T. Lincoln, in her 80th year.

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 124 E. Lake St., Chicago.

c 7 19 18

County of Union, ss:

The State of New Jersey to the sheriff of the county of Union, Greeting:

(L. S.) Summon John C. Van Derveer, Peter Ivins and Modiste A. Dalrymple, and Anton H. Meyer, mortgagee, to appear before the Circuit Court in and for the county of Union at Elizabeth in the said county, on the nineteenth day of January, 1907, that the said Modiste A. Delmye, builder, may answer unto the J. D. Lozier Lumber Company, claimant, in an action upon contract, to the damage of the plaintiff one thousand dollars, as is said, for which the said J. D. Lozier Lumber Company claims a lien, on certain lands of the said John T. Van Derveer and Peter Ivins, and the said Anton H. Meyer holds a mortgage of record, and which are described as follows: That certain two story frame building on a lot of curtilage situated in the township of Union, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point in the southwest side line of New street, distant in a southeasterly direction along said line from the southeasterly side line of West Fourth street, three hundred and fifty feet; thence south thirty-nine degrees and forty-five minutes west seventy-three and seventy-five one-hundredths (73.75) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and forty-two minutes west forty-seven and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to a stake; thence north fifty degrees and forty-two minutes east forty-seven and sixteen one hundredths (47.16) feet to the beginning. Together with the land in front thereof to the centre of said street.

Witness, Francis J. Swayze, Judge of our said Circuit Court, at Elizabeth, in said county this fifth day of January, nineteen hundred and seven.

JAMES C. CALVERT, Clerk.

WM. M. STILLMAN, Attorney.

1 19 5 caw

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in cases.

D. W. LITTELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsorial line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, } Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning, }
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary

$900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, make local and traveling appointments, others for local work looking after our interests. Good salary a sure object; weekly extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement; permanent established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once,

STANDARD PRESS, Box
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. E. CODINGTON

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD."

Ask your newsdealer for this month's magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with [illegible] name and address and 10c. for [illegible] copy. Regular price $1.00 [illegible] this paper.

Burr Publishing Co.
4 West 22d Street New York

WITH Fifty cents [illegible] will give such a beautiful effect to the figure as the

De Bevoise Brassiere

[illegible] long effect under the shoulder. Elegant models. Sizes 32 to 50 inches bust measure.

PRICE $1.00 EACH

At all retail dry goods stores, or send at your dealer's name and we will supply you direct. Catalogue on request.

Chas. E. De Bevoise Co., 21-27 High St., Newark, N. J.

DEFENDS GEN. R. E. LEE

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss Replies to the Strictures of Isaac L. Miller.

NORTHERNERS' VIEWS

Clergyman Points Out How President Roosevelt and Other Great Men Have Lauded Confederate Commander.

Criticism on the part of Isaac L. Miller regarding the praise given General Robert E. Lee and General "Stonewall" Jackson, respectively in addresses made on their anniversaries by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and Dr. H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough's schools, has prompted the distinguished pastor of the First Baptist church to make a reply. After a brief explanation concerning the timeliness and the lives of the great commander of the Confederacy, Dr. Chambliss declares that even the great historians of the North as well as the recognized military and constitutional authorities of Europe acquit Lee of any wrong-doing for his taking up arms against the Union, and furthermore that the brilliant military officer fully repaid whatever he owed the Union for his education by his thirty years efficient service in the armies of the United States.

To a representative of The Daily Press, Dr. Chambliss, upon request, made this statement:

"Referring to a letter in this column yesterday from one of our honored citizens, I beg to submit the following:

"First. It seems a little unfortunate that the man of Southern birth and early associations who was the speaker at the High School last Friday when General Lee's birthday was commemorated should be also the minister of the church whose Men's Club a few days later heard an address on Stonewall Jackson. If in this circumstance there should be any mind a suggestion of lingering sectional feeling, perhaps such a one will be good enough to consider that the speaker on Lee did not himself choose his place or his theme, and that the address before the church club was provided by the entertainment committee without the knowledge of the minister, though certainly he approved and admired it. It would any other skilfully drawn historic picture. Moreover, the speaker on the stated occasion was by no means born in the South.

"Second. The strongest panegyrics of General Lee ever uttered were when hundreds of Northern men and newspapers sounded his praises were President Roosevelt and Charles Francis Adams, who spoke of his noble and beautiful character in terms as exalted as any Southerner ever used.

"Third. If General Lee was educated at the expense of the United States, it should be remembered that the South was a part of the Union, and in 1825 when Lee entered West Point, was probably richer and paid more taxes for the support of the military academy than the Northern States. Besides, some might judge that Lee had well repaid all that he owed for his education by thirty years of military service previous to the Civil War, and even with his blood at Chapultepec. As to him having been guilty of dishonor in resigning his commission in the United States army and drawing his sword on the other side, it is enough to say that he has not so been judged by the greater writers of the North and of Europe; and that Mr. Adams, a fine old Union soldier, said last Saturday that in Lee's place he would have done as Lee did. Perhaps the writer of yesterday's letter was also an old soldier. If so, he is first of that class I have known to object when the personal character and military genius of Lee and Jackson were held up for admiration."

The letter of Isaac L. Miller, reproduced:

"Is it not about time to call a halt on the panegyrics that are being delivered on General Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson? Conceding that deeply religious natures and minds they were fully satisfied with the rectitude of their conduct, two facts exist, neither of which can be controverted: 1. Both were educated at the expense of the Government of the United States, after taking a solemn oath to support and sustain it. 2. After so doing they employed the knowledge thus acquired, coupled with great natural abilities in a prolonged effort, defeated only by vastly superior arms and treasure to destroy the best government the world ever saw.

"Had their efforts succeeded this country would probably be a series of petty states instead of one in which the whole world looks for encouragement and assistance.

"I submit that such examples are neither to be followed nor extolled.

February Tea.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Leander Newton Lovell and the Misses Lovell for a tea to be given at their home, 112 Crescent avenue, on Thursday afternoon, February 8, from 4 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Borden Lovell, of West Fourth street, will receive with them.

PASTOR'S WIFE BROKE HER LEG ON THE ICE

MRS. CASSELBERRY'S SKATING ON DUNELLEN CLAY PIT ENDS PAINFULLY.

Losing her balance on the glassy surface of the newly-formed ice, Mrs. W. W. Casselberry, wife of the pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, fell and broke her left leg yesterday afternoon, while skating. The fracture is a simple one, and the injury is not regarded as serious.

The accident occurred at an abandoned clay pit in the Dunellen brickyard. The pit, which is always filled with water, has been for years a favorite skating place for Dunellenites who are averse to the mile and a half trip to New Market lake. Mrs. Casselberry went on the ice with her husband at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, intending to remain a few minutes. She is an experienced and expert skater, but it was three years since she had enjoyed the sport and the unevenness of the ice made it difficult for her to regain the old poise. She was skating alone, when she lost control of the runners and fell heavily, her leg bent under her.

Rev. Mr. Casselberry and other skaters carried her to the bank, and Undertaker William Bealaman's grocery wagon, driven by James Vail, into service as an ambulance. She was carried home, where Dr. T. H. Platt attended her. His examination disclosed a clean fracture of both bones of the leg below the knee.

COMMANDERY AUXILIARY'S MUSICAL AND RECEPTION.

Newly-Elected Officers Arrange Enjoyable Programme for Members and Friends.

The newly-elected officers and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., gave a reception and musicale in Masonic Hall, Wednesday afternoon, to the wives and sister of the sir knights, some of whom are not members of the auxiliary. There was a large attendance of ladies and the social features together with the musicale combined to make the event one of great pleasure. Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart, as president of the auxiliary, was in charge of the programme.

There were vocal solos by Miss Helen Whitney and Miss Leila Druse, accompanied on the mandolin by Miss Steele, and recitations by Miss Aimee Emmons. Their selections were Mrs. Ida Reed Satterfield, given a cordial reception by the assemblage of women. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart; vice president, Mrs. James Pray; treasurer, Mrs. R. C. Cudlipp; secretary, Mrs. H. W. Marshall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edward Cooley.

At the next meeting on February 8, the auxiliary expects to have an address by Rev. A. C. McCoy, pastor of the First M. E. church, on "The Crusade."

SALAAM TEMPLE IS GROWING VERY FAST NOW.

One Hundred and Thirteen to Be Initiated Next Tuesday Evening.

If all the candidates who have expressed a desire to be shown the mysteries of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Salaam Temple, in the Oasis of Newark, turn up next Tuesday night, at the Krueger Auditorium, there will be 113, the largest number in the history of the temple. Illustrious nobles will be in attendance and an elaborate ceremonial will take place. First will be a festival of Eed El Kourban, then an entrance into Mecca, followed by a long journey over the desert, touching the circuit of Kaabah, the Black Stone and the Holy Zem Zem. After that will come the traditional banquet.

It will be the twenty-first regular session of Salaam Temple and it has been whispered that gorgeous ceremonies will attend the unregenerated on the desert as they cross the hot sands. The illustrious potentate, with his officers, will be in their stations at 7:30 o'clock, when the large tent of Salaam will be pitched.

On Monday the Arab patrol and their friends will attend a local theatre. They will wear the fez. On Friday, February 15, Salaam will give a ladies' night in the Auditorium. The fez will be worn on that occasion, too, and the Salaam Temple orchestra will discourse music.

Special Sabbath Reform Number.

The American Sabbath Tract Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, whose publication house is located here, is preparing to issue a quarterly number of The Sabbath Recorder, double its usual size, which shall be a special Sabbath Reform number, and will do missionary work along this line. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, as editor of The Sabbath Recorder, will have charge of the special numeb to be issued.

New Clothing Firm Coming.

Thomas & Co., of Somerville, dealers in men's and boys' clothing and furnishings, have about closed the contract for the rental of one of the new stores in the Woodhull & Martin building on East Front street, and expect to take possession April 1.

MASTER BUILDERS DINE

Local Bosses Association with Their Friends Hold Annual Banquet.

STATE OFFICERS THERE

Mayor Smalley, Citizen Martine and Former Mayor Buckle Among the Speakers at the Affair.

Fifty members of the Plainfield branch of the Master Builders' Association, together with a company of guests, gathered in Findlay's Hall for the organization's annual dinner, last Thursday. Representatives from the State body were in attendance and a civic atmosphere was lent by the presence of Mayor N. B. Smalley, former Mayor James F. Buckle and Citizen James E. Martine.

With the completion of the dinner course, cigars were lighted and L. B. Woolston, acting as toastmaster, called for speeches. Mayor Smalley was the first announced and he entertained the guests with a characteristic "Smalley talk." It was replete with his usual witticisms but not to the obliteration of matters that are of interest to builders. He touched on the consolidation question lightly, remarking that Plainfield is growing and that he hoped it would continue to do so until it needed only one mayor.

Former Mayor James F. Buckle followed the borough's executive and being a member of the association, dwelt on the cause of its organization, declared it to be an outcome of unions, as they represented the employes and the association was brought into existence to represent the employers. There were times when both sides needed toning down, he continued, but with the good judgment that has been displayed in the past the future should be replete with harmony. Every man, he concluded, is willing to work for fair pay and so long as he receives an honest compensation discord will be foreign.

Hugh King, of Bloomfield, president of the State Master Builders Association, said a lot of nice things about Plainfield and its officials, and Secretary Alexander Pearson, of Orange, made an appeal for the association's growth as it must continue to advance in order to secure its proper dues.

Greetings to Plainfield from Essex county were brought by former Mayor Henry W. Egner, of Orange, who dwelt on the accomplishments of the master builders, a Bloomfield, a prominent builder, was also present and became a factor in industrial matters.

"I have noticed," said Mr. Egner, "that since the association was formed, the unions have requested that certain concessions be made; they formerly demanded them."

A. J. Crowder, of Newark, was called upon, but excused himself and the way was left clear for James E. Martine. When the "farmer orator" was announced he was greeted with rousing cheers and other evidences that showed he is just as popular with the master builders as he is with the employes. Mr. Martine has any quantity of statistics about Plainfield and he talked at some length on the city's continued healthy growth. He remarked that he was not present for any partisan appeal but declared that if the tariff was removed from lumber, the builders and people generally would be benefitted as the cost of material would be so reduced that five houses could be built for what is now required for one. In the course of his remarks he referred to the vote cast for him in the Senate fight and reiterated his previous statements that it was all a surprise to him and that he considered it a compliment.

At intervals during the evening, selections were rendered by the Musical Stewarts on all manner of odd musical instruments.

The dinner was served by Caterer Timber under the supervision of E. Y. Neighbor, while the committee from the association which arranged the entire affair consisted of Philip Jahn, C. W. Krause and Walter Apgar.

Junction Borough Tax in Litigation.

The payment of taxes on the Central Railroad's coal storage plant at Junction is causing trouble and some weighty litigation is pending. The county board of taxation some time ago added $200,000 to the assessed valuation of the plant and the coal company refused to pay it. The amount involved is $1,362.61 and the Borough of Junction will be held accountable for it. This is evidenced in mandamus proceedings which were ordered started by the Hunterdon County board a few days ago. The question will go up to the courts and is expected to be decided next month, but even then no definite conclusion will be reached because there will undoubtedly be an appeal taken. It is a question of considerable concern in Junction as to who will be the loser in case the borough pays the money and then loses the case against the coal company.

President G. A. R. Committee.

James Atwood, formerly of this city and a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., has been elected president of a G. A. R. subcommittee in Trenton, organized for the purpose of raising funds for the soldiers' and sailors' monument in that city.

ALCOHOLISM WAS FATAL

Lewis A. Coombs Dropped Dead After After "D. T." Attack.

TO CONSOLIDATE SHOPS

Apparently Rallied, Then Reeled, Lifeless, Into Arms of Police Sergeant Who Was Taking Him Home.

Following an attack of delirium tremens in this city, Lewis A. Coombs, forty-two years old, a barrender and bottle washer, dropped dead on the street in Bound Brook shortly after 7:30 Friday morning. He was being taken to his home in that place by Sergeant Frederickson, of the police force, and died in the officer's arms.

Coombs was seized with delirium *in the reading room of the Hotel Iro*quois between 1 and 2 o'clock Friday morning. He came to the hotel Wednesday evening, and registered. He looked badly then. He stayed in his room Thursday until dusk. He made several requests for liquor, but Proprietor J. W. Leary has diagnosed his trouble correctly and refused to supply him. So far as Mr. Leary knows, Coombs got nothing to drink from the time he came to the hotel.

The man was found in convulsions in the reading room at 2 o'clock by a porter. The porter called Mr. Leary, and ran as if he saw things himself. Mr. Leary and some of his aides held Coombs in his chair, and an effort was made to get Dr. Dundon, who was said to have found Coombs' physician to the hotel. There was some mix-up on the telephone, and Coombs quieted down before the physician could be brought to the place. At 5:30 o'clock he was apparently regaining full control of himself. Mr. Leary telephoned to Chief of Police Kiely, and asked him to take charge of the man. The chief called up headquarters, and on his instructions Sergeant Frederickson took Coombs to the station house.

Dr. C. B. Lafburrow, the city physician, examined the man and diagnosed his trouble as alcoholism. He steadied Coombs and the latter said he felt able to go home. Sergeant Frederickson decided that somebody ought to go with him, and took the trip.

Although weak, Coombs seemed to be getting along all right on the train, which reached Bound Brook at 7:24. He leaned on Frederickson as they walked down the street. He reeled suddenly, and Frederickson caught him in his arms. When the officer had steadied himself and looked in Coombs' face, the man was dead.

Frederickson had trouble getting the body cared for. The solitary Bound Brook physician who interested himself in the occurrence, refused to have anything to do with the body. He advised Frederickson to leave it just where it happened to drop until some forms, of which the policeman had only a vague idea, were gone through. He seemed to think some sort of legal divinity that would brook no interference hedged sudden death all about.

Frederickson called up Chief Kiely and asked him what in the world he would do. Leave the body in a morgue, and come back home," said the chief. Which Frederickson did, despite the bated breath and horror-stricken air of the Bound Brook police.

Coombs was employed at Titsworth's hotel, Bound Brook. He was known to a good many people in this city. Fifteen years ago he was a bartender in what was then known as the Hotel Granada. His second wife is living in New York.

WILL MOUNT "CARUSO."

Big New Market Hog's Hide is to Be Stuffed.

The huge hog raised by C. T. Rogers, of New Market, was slaughtered last week for a butcher of the city. The carcass dressed 790 pounds, which means it was very close to the 1,000 pounds on the hoof estimated by Mr. Rogers when making "Caruso" grow more and more corpulent and distinguished.

"Caruso" will not sink into oblivion and pure nothingness. His great hide was obtained by an East Orange taxidermist, who will mount it for exhibition purposes. Few hogs of the common or barnyard variety have been so honored.

Rescue Mission to Move.

The members of the Rescue Mission who have been meeting weekly at the Christian church on Grove street, have decided to leave that place of worship in the near future. Until such time as another meeting place can be secured the members will continue to gather at the Grove street church. This action is the result of a difference of opinion existing between the church and the mission concerning some minor matters *and it has been thought best to sep*erate.

Miss Krom Engaged.

An announcement of much interest in society circles is that of the engagement of Miss M. Stephanie Krom, daughter of Stephen B. Krom, of Truell Court, to Augustus S. Vane, formerly of Philadelphia, but now of Elizabeth. No date for the wedding has been set.

P. S. C. Will Establish Its Repair Plant and Barns at Lincoln.

CHANGE ON FEBRUARY 1

The Yards and Shops at Westfield and Plainfield Are To Be Abandoned For New and Enlarged Quarters.

The paint shop, repair shop and all the cars and other paraphernalia of the Public Service Corporation at the Rahway Junction are to be removed to Lincoln on February 1. The steel car shed has been taken away from the Rahway Junction and re-erected at the new car barns and shops at Lincoln, where the office of Division Superintendent Luhrs is to be located. With the removal of the shops and cars from Westfield will go the fifteen or more men employed at present at the junction. The car barns at Plainfield are also to be closed down.

The abandonment of the Rahway Junction yards and shops means quite a loss to Westfield as they furnished employment for several men. The removal will mean also a reduction in the assessed valuation of the trolley corporation's property here. Last year the property, including the cars, was assessed at $75,000. Westfield will no doubt lose about $50,000 in assessable property or less than $1,000 in taxes.

A day and night man may be retained at the junction but no cars will be stored there except those used on the Rahway line at this end. The new trolley barns and office at Lincoln are the finest along any line of the Public Service in the State. The main building is erected of building blocks and the car sheds are of steel structure. A feature of the new quarters will be a reading or club room for the motormen and conductors where a billiard table, a pool table and reading matter will be placed at the disposal of the men during off hours.

LAST RECITAL PROVED A MUSICAL FEAST.

Miss Beebe and Mons. Dethier Delight Society Audience.

The last of the violin and piano recital series by Miss Beebe and Mons. Dethier was given at the home of A. H. Atterbury in West Seventh street, Wednesday. At this recital the numbers represented the modern composers, containing sonatas by Brahms, Grieg and Richard Strauss.

The work of these artists display a fine conscientiousness and careful preparation, their ensemble evincing a high regard for discriminating detail and scrupulous nicety of execution. The thorough enjoyment of the audience was manifested by warm applause after each number and the artists were forced to add a response number after the regular programme, giving very delightfully the immortal air of Bachs for the G string from the suite in D. It speaks much for the musical appreciation of a community that recitals such as these call forth such generous support.

The programme in full follows:

Brahms, 1833-1897—Sonata in D Minor, I Allegro, II Adagio, III Un Poco Presto E Con Sentimento, IV Presto Agitato; Grieg, 1843—Sonata in G, I Lento Doloroso, Allegro Vivace, II Allegretto Tranquillo, III Allegro Animato; Strauss, 1854—Sonata in E Flat Major, I Allegro, Ma Non Troppo, II Andante Cantabile III, Andante Allegro.

ENTERTAINED FIREMEN.

Members of Borough Department Guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell.

The officers and call men of the borough fire department were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell at their home on Somerset street, Thursday. A dinner was the feature of the affair and at the conclusion general sociability reigned and music and addresses were enjoyed. Mr. Campbell was recently presented with a handsome silver shaving set by the members of the department in order to show the esteem in which he is held and at the conclusion several solos by Miss Helfenstein, an intimate friend of the groom, played the wedding marches. No reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside at the San Remo, Central Park West.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond sunburst brooch, and an attractive adornment of the bride's trousseau was the wedding pin of the groom's mother.

Lecture On China and the Boxers.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, has arranged with Dr. Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, to give his famous illustrated lecture on "China During the Boxer Uprising," before the club on Monday night, February 11. Dr. Corbusier was an army surgeon, serving in China and the Philippines and he was in China during the most exciting times. His views are said to be especially fine.

To Publish "The Creation."

The action of the treasurer of the American Sabbath Tract Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, in placing the bequests of Sarah E. V. Stillman, $3,000 and George S. Greenman of $2,500 at the permanent fund has been sustained by the executive board of the society. The board has voted to publish another edition of 1,000 copies of the tract by Rev. H. M. Baker, entitled "The Crucifixion Described."

Brass Pans.

Brass pans that have stood for some time should be rubbed with vinegar and salt to remove verdigris. Clean with polishing paste or with bath brick dust and water. Then rinse out well with hot water and polish with soft cloths. Treated like this your brass pans will be perfectly safe for any kind of cookery.

PLAINFIELD WOMAN

NAMED IN DIVORCE SUIT

SHE WAS THE CAUSE OF SUIT BROUGHT BY MRS. DE GROFF, OF JERSEY CITY.

A Plainfield woman figured prominently in a suit for divorce which was brought in Jersey City recently and which has been granted in behalf of the petitioner on the advice of Master in Chancery, Charles S. Hartshorne, of Hudson county.

The application was made by Mrs Carrie L. DeGroff against her husband, Frederick R. DeGroff, until recently engineer of a "flier" between Communipaw and Philadelphia. In her testimony Mrs. DeGroff said she found in her husband's pocket a letter addressed to Mrs. Anna Messenger, of 189 North avenue, Plainfield. She had suspected that he was spending most of his spare time in this city and when questioned about the letter, admitted that he knew Mrs. Messenger and it is alleged he said that he thought a great deal of her. For a few weeks, however, he was more attentive to his wife and she took no action.

Eventually DeGroff began abandoning himself from home again and the wife secured the help of relatives to get evidence against him for divorce proceedings. On February 2 last, she came to Plainfield accompanied by her nephew, William T. Latimer, of 63 Claremont avenue, Jersey City, and they asked Detective McCarthy, of the local force, to accompany them to Mrs. Messenger's home. DeGroff and Mrs. Messenger were arrested and it is said the evidence was obtained on which the divorce suit was based.

DeGroff made no contest and the application was granted. The decree carried $60 a month alimony for the wife.

MISS WHEELER NOW MRS. JOHN R. HALSEY

WEDDING CEREMONY IN GRACE CHURCH CHANTRY, NEW YORK.

Grace church chantry, New York, was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday afternoon when Miss Helen Schwatte Wheeler, of Orange, was married to John Reboul Halsey, of Astoria, L. I., in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, including many from this city, where the bride has been spending the winter. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Frank Crowder, of Staten Island.

Mrs. Joseph Davis Phillips, of Netherwood, sister of the groom, was the matron-of-honor, and the best man was Dr. Robert Hurtin Halsey, of New York, brother of the groom. The ushers were Joseph Davis Phillips, of Netherwood, and Duff Green Maynard, of New York city.

The bride was gowned in cream colored gros-grain silk, made in Princess style, trimmed with a real lace collar and medallions. She also wore a tulle veil, caught up with real orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs. The matron-of-honor wore an imported lace gown, trimmed with real lace and her hat was straw color, trimmed with straw colored roses, red roses and meline. She carried American Beauty roses, tied with with green ribbons.

Prior to the ceremony the chimes of Grace church were played and at the conclusion Miss Helfenstein, a friend of the groom, played the wedding marches. No reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside at the San Remo, Central Park West.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond sunburst brooch, and an attractive adornment of the bride's trousseau was the wedding pin of the groom's mother.

Lecture On China and the Boxers.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, has arranged with Dr. Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, to give his famous illustrated lecture on "China During the Boxer Uprising," before the club on Monday night, February 11. Dr. Corbusier was an army surgeon, serving in China and the Philippines and he was in China during the most exciting times. His views are said to be especially fine.

To Publish "The Creation."

The action of the treasurer of the American Sabbath Tract Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, in placing the bequests of Sarah E. V. Stillman, $3,000 and George S. Greenman of $2,500 at the permanent fund has been sustained by the executive board of the society. The board has voted to publish another edition of 1,000 copies of the tract by Rev. H. M. Baker, entitled "The Crucifixion Described."

Brass Pans.

Brass pans that have stood for some time should be rubbed with vinegar and salt to remove verdigris. Clean with polishing paste or with bath brick dust and water. Then rinse out well with hot water and polish with soft cloths. Treated like this your brass pans will be perfectly safe for any kind of cookery.

ALL FOR BOROUGH BILL

"Dory" Strong Swings Around in Favor of Incorporation of South Plainfield.

NEW MARKET WAITING

Has An Idea the Village Might Get Lehigh Coal Storage If Road Disliked New Borough Conditions.

In Piscataway, Trenton and the other quarters interested, the passage of the bill to make South Plainfield a borough is regarded as an assured thing. The Lehigh Valley Railroad and "Dory" Strong, ruler of Middlesex county, who, it is said, saw to it that the borough movement came to nothing last year, are said to be resigned to the creation of the new municipality. Having heard that on sufficient authority, the South Plainfielders are confidently preparing to take over the reins of government.

Mr. Strong is popularly credited with having been the insurmountable obstacle in the way of the borough bill last year. The South Plainfield electorate convicted him of legislative murder immediately after the old bill was smothered to death, and they turned to with a will to encompass his punishment. What happened to Mr. Strong and his favorite son-in-law at the polls in Plainfield in November in a matter of history. Surveying their work and the general result of the election in Middlesex with vast satisfaction, the South Plainfielders calmly reanimated the borough movement and allowed Mr. Strong the pleasure of estimating its strength again.

Mr. Strong blinked and admitted that he had seen a great light. Assemblyman Drake, of Stelton, which is part of Piscataway township, and not very far from South Plainfield's backyard, took the borough bill under his protecting arm. It is now the sentiment for it in South Plainfield, and he told Mr. Strong that row active it was. Mr. Strong is said to have admitted that it was too strong to be overruled, no matter what the fears of the Lehigh Valley Railroad or the rest of Piscataway, including officeholders, were. Those who are in a position to know say he promised unreservedly to "keep his hands off."

The Lehigh management is said to have seconded Mr. Strong's promise. The railroad was naturally afraid, when borough talk began, that the South Plainfielders intended to make the Lehigh coal storage in the proposed borough bear pretty much all the expense of municipal government. They had nightmares of a sudden and shocking increase in taxes. It is said that the prominent men of South Plainfield have given assurances that no tax rampage is contemplated, and the railroad heart is not beating so high with apprehension.

New Market, the chief village of Piscataway, opposed the separation of South Plainfield, and is not now wildly enthusiastic over the prospect of the divorce. The ratables of the township will materially shrink with the withdrawal of South Plainfield. New Market would be glad to have the road to boroughdom has been cleared and smoothed for quick passage, and has resigned itself to the inevitable. It is busy with plans to make the best of the new conditions when they arrive, and has already shown a disposition to be conservative.

It is New Market's hope that things will become too uncomfortable for Lehigh comfort in the proposed borough. If the railroad finds that taxation under a borough government is too expensive for corporate taste, New Market will stand attached to the spacious township territory available for coal storage. There is all the room the Lehigh might desire along the tracks at New Market. It is said that the New Market men who would have the say-so over such a plan have come to the understanding looking to every encouragement of a coal storage removal whenever that might become a possibility.

The borough bill under consideration was drawn by District Judge Newcorn. There is no referendum clause in it, and the passage of the measure, and subsequent signing by Governor Stokes, will create the new borough. The bill is in the hands of the borough and Borough Commission Committee. Judge Newcorn will speak in its favor if a hearing is held. He is using what influence he possesses as a former assemblyman to further the passage of the measure, and that influence is not inconsiderable.

For Reddish Hair.

A shampoo that should give a blond cast of reddish hair is made of one-half ounce of honey, half an ounce of rhubarb stalks and three ounces of white wine. Let these stand together for twenty-four hours, then drain. Wet the hair evenly with the liquid, rub and let it dry. Then wash off in clear water.

Taxes Reduced By $600,000.

In response to the appeal of the Singer Sewing Machine Company at Elizabethport, the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes has taken off $600,000 on the personal assessment of $1,000,000 placed on the company's property.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

(OFFICIAL.)

Meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Monday, December 31, 1906, at 2:30 p. m., and called by the Director of the Board for the transaction of general business.

Roll call showed the following members present:

Director King and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Chandler, Cladek, Gruener, Jensen, Krause, Meisel, Murphy, Perry, Robinson, Smith, Swain, Wahl, Westphal, Wilbur, Woodruff—18.

Absent—Freeholders Darby and Klein—2.

The minutes of the previous meeting (the reading of bills being dispensed) were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the County Road Inspector, as follows:

Westfield, N. J., Dec. 27, 1906.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—The undersigned would respectfully submit to your honorable body the following report of repairs to County and State Aid Roads for the year 1906:

On North Broad Road in Providence, 888 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch of stone, 2,076 feet of gutters cleaned.

On St. Chatham Road, 2,648 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 822 feet top dressed with fine stone, 12,740 feet of gutters cleaned.

On North Broad Road in Union, 5,596 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 14,253 feet of gutters cleaned.

On St. George avenue, 2,231 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 500 feet top dressed with fine stone, 24,962 feet of gutters cleaned.

On North Broad in Linden, 4,384 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch of stone, 8,782 feet of gutters cleaned.

On Morris avenue, 9,276 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 18,746 feet of gutters cleaned.

On Mountain avenue, 2,462 feet of road repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 12,289 feet top dressed with fine stone, 12,792 feet of gutters cleaned.

On Westfield avenue, in Westfield, 580 feet repaired with 1 1-2 inch stone, 2,300 of gutters cleaned on South avenue.

Making a total of 1 3-4 miles of 2-inch work on State Aid roads, 7 3-4 miles of 1 1-2 inch work on County Roads, 3 miles of top dressing, and 22 miles of gutters cleaned.

Total cost of repairs, $3,483.88. Total cost on County Roads, $15,752.41.

In addition to this there were 2,117 feet of road on North Avenue, in Lorraine, top dressed with Tarvia and stone screenings; also on St. George avenue, 3,162 feet of road top dressed with Tarvia and stone screenings, a total of a little less than 1 1-4 miles; total cost of labor, screenings and Tarvia, $919.76.

On mass also Maryland on North avenue 56 9,043 feet of road 11,089 feet offroad on St. George avenue as so received as application of oil, making a total of 3-4 miles treated with oil; total cost of oil and application of same, $516.15.

Total expenditures on State Aid and County Roads for the year 1906, $20,672.

Very respectfully submitted,

JAMES W. FINK, Inspector.

On motion of Freeholder Wahl, received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee on Railway Drawbridges:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Railway Drawbridge would respectfully report, that they have looked after the bridge during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906, and have found necessary repairs made and kept the same in condition for public use. A contract was made with George Ball as bridge tender, for the term of one year from April 1, 1906, at a salary of $720 per annum.

Adolph H. Gruener, George B. Cladek, A. Chandler, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, received and placed on file.

By the Committee to settle with the Sheriff:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with the County Collector would report, that they have examined his books, showing his receipts and disbursements, together with the vouchers, bonds and coupons paid, and bank books, and find the same agree and are correct in every particular.

His total receipts from May 8, 1906, are $10,547.68

Total disbursements 216,511.87

Leaving a balance in banks $298,035.81

Henry Krouse, John N. Cady, Charles Swain, Committee.

By the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholder of the County of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your committee on Public Grounds and Buildings would respectfully report that they have expended during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906, the sum of $9,040.11. This amount has been expended for the purchase of coal for the heating of the public buildings, the salary of the Custodian of the County House building, and the help necessary in maintaining the same for the proper conduct of the public business, for gas and electric lighting, and for all such other purposes as were necessary for the preservation of the grounds and buildings for the public good.

Henry Krouse, John N. Cady, Noah Woodruff, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Stationery.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Stationery would respectfully report that the amount expended during the period from May 8th, 1906, to December 31st, 1906, which was for stationery, books of record and account books, and for such other purposes as were necessary for the proper conduct of the different offices in the court and county officials who are entitled to secure that stationery from this board, was $1,261.15.

S. P. T. Wilbur, Charles A. Smith, Committee.

By the Committee on Publications.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on publications would respectfully report that they have expended during the period from May 8th, 1906, to December 31st, 1906, for publishing the minutes of this board, and for such other work as authorized by the committee the sum of $989.25.

John Robison, Charles A. Smith, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and placed on file.

By the committee to settle with the sheriff:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with the sheriff respectfully report that they have audited bills amounting to the sum of $3,549.85 from May 8th, 1906, to December 31st, 1906.

John Robison, Joseph Perry, C. S. Chandler, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on the Discharge of Prisoners:

Your committee on Discharge of Prisoners beg leave to report that they held regular meetings during the period from May 8, 1906 to December 31, 1906, for the purpose of granting a deduction in the sentence of prisoners for good conduct while under confinement in the jail, upon the recommendation of the warden, and approved by the presiding judge of the Court of Common Pleas, as approved by law, and in each case when the legal allowance was asked for it was granted. The number discharged was 103.

John Wahl, John Robison, C. S. Chandler, Committee.

On motion of Freeholders Adams, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on County Roads.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on county roads would respectfully report that they have carefully looked after the repairs on the county roads during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906, and that they have kept the same in good condition as the funds at their disposal permitted, and have kept within the limit thereon, out of the appropriation allowed by law, the sum of $17,517.87.

S. C. Adams, Henry Krouse, Charles J. Cladek, George B. Cladek, W. H. Swain, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Smith, received and placed on file.

By Committee on Jail Inspection.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the committee on jail inspection held in May 1st, 1906, we appointed Dr. Alonzo Hewitt as jail physician for the ensuing year, and at a salary compensation of $250 per year, each amount to cover all medical services needed to the prisoners of the county jail during the year.

W. A. Westphal, John F. Wahl, D. S. Murphy, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Adams, received and placed on file.

By the committee on legal questions.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on legal questions would respectfully report that nothing of Elizabeth have received due and proper consideration at the hands of your committee during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906; that repairs have been made whenever found necessary, supplies furnished, and the bridges kept in proper and safe condition for public use and travel.

Charles Cladek, D. S. Murphy, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges would respectfully report that the drawbridges in the district of Elizabeth have received due and proper consideration at the hands of your committee during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906; that repairs have been made whenever found necessary, supplies furnished, and the bridges kept in proper and safe condition for public use and travel.

Charles Cladek, D. S. Murphy, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges would respectfully report that the drawbridges in the district of Elizabeth have received due and proper consideration at the hands of your committee during the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906; that repairs have been made whenever found necessary, supplies furnished, and the bridges kept in proper and safe condition for public use and travel.

Charles Cladek, D. S. Murphy, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges:

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 31, 1906.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—I have the honor to herewith submit my report of the moneys received and disbursed by me as County Collector for the period from May 8, 1906, to December 31, 1906:

RECEIPTS.

Balance from last year ...	$ 52,173.56
Special State School Appropriation	53,188.43
State School Tax	98,545.70
Taxes on city, boroughs and townships, including $4,628.54 for interest on County Road Bonds ...	300,905.72
Received from Miscellaneous account	1,734.27
Temporary Loans	105,000.00
Total Receipts	$610,547.68
Total Disbursements ...	312,511.87
Balance on hand	$298,035.81

TAX LEVY, 1906-1907.

State School Tax	$ 98,778.51
County Tax	297,500.00
Interest on Road Bonds.	4,638.54
"	1
Total	$400,917.05

RECAPITULATION.

As shown by the above account, the balance in cash standing to the credit of the County Collector is $298,035.81

As against this amount there is due to the Sheridan House Purchasing Account ..... $ 673.95

To the New Court House account 4,272.88

To cities and towns hips from State appropriation of $1,119,419 8 5 from State School fund 53,188.43

To State of New Jersey for State School Tax 98,778.51

To Sinking Fund Commissioners .. 8,000.00

To three bonds due July 1, 1907 8,000.00.

To Freshet Bonds ... April 1, 1907, ... 13,000.00

184,913.81

Amount applicable for general purposes $113,122.00

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and placed on file.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE COUNTY.

December 31st, 1906.

ASSETS.

County Road Bonds ...	$350,000.00
Freshet Bonds, due April 1st, 1907	12,000.00
War Bonds, due 1907-1909	26,000.00
Sheridan House Purchasing Bonds	28,000.00
New Court House Bonds.	569,000.00
Total	$985,000.00

ASSETS.

County Land and Buildings	$800,000.00
Funds in hands of Sinking Fund Commissioners	24,000.00
Amount due Sinking Fund Commissioners .	8,000.00
Total	$832,000.00

N. R. LEAVITT,
County Collector.

On motion of Freeholder Woodruff, received and placed on file.

By the Committee on Bridges:

The committee on bridges reported that the amount paid to A. P. Stiles for concrete and mason work on the bridge on Elston Road, Town of Westfield, was $450 instead of $490, as authorized at a meeting of December 5th, which report was received.

Freeholder Westphal reported that express notice had been served on the South Front street bridge, Elizabeth, was to be paid one half by Union County and one half by the W. H. Rankin Co., which report was received.

The board was then briefly addressed by County Attorney Codington referring to the services rendered by the retiring members, and expressing regret that they were to sever their relations with the board, to which brief replies were made by Freeholders Westphal, Murphy and Jensen, who thanked the board for courtesies received during their term of office, and also expressing their regret that their official relations with the members of the board were ended.

Freeholder Krouse moved to adjourn, which was carried, and the director thereupon declared the board adjourned sine die.

S. RUSLING RYNO, Clerk.

Meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held in accordance with the provisions of the statute and for the purpose of organization, on Tuesday, January 1st, 1907, at 12 o'clock noon.

The call was read by the Clerk to order by S. Rusling Ryno, clerk of the last board, and who called the roll as follows:

Clark Township—Benjamin King.

Cranford Township—E. K. Adams.

Elizabeth City—Thomas J. Pierson, J. Logan Fay, Robert C. Maurer, John J. Bonahue.

Fanwood Township—John Robison.

Linden Township—Henry Krouse, Moses Dunden—Elston Darby.

New Providence Township—Bradford Jones.

Plainfield City—S. P. T. Wilbur, J. H. Gruener.

Rahway City—George B. Cladek, A. H. Gruener.

Springfield Township—Peter H. Meisel.

Summit City—W. H. Swain, John N. Cady.

Union Township—Noah Woodruff.

Town of Westfield—Charles H. Smith, Joseph Perry.

All members were present.

The clerk stated that the first business was the election of Director and called for nominations.

Freeholder Cady in a few remarks nominated Freeholder Benjamin King, which was seconded by Freeholder Joseph Perry. The motion was escorted to the chair by the tellers and briefly returned his thanks for the honor conferred upon him. He said he had always enjoyed reconciliation to make except to urge economy in expenditures.

By Freeholder Smith: Resolved, That the salary of the clerk of this board be fixed at the sum of six hundred dollars per annum.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution and roll call was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady then nominated S. Rusling Ryno for clerk, which was seconded by Freeholder Cladek. There were no further nominations and it was ordered that the ballot be cast by the director, who thereupon cast the ballot and S. Rusling Ryno was declared elected as clerk for the ensuing year.

He returned his thanks for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Darby: Resolved, That the salary of the County Attorney be fixed at the sum of $300 per annum.

Freeholder Adams moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady nominated W. R. Codington for county attorney, which was seconded by Freeholder Swain. There being no further nominations it was ordered that the ballot be cast by the clerk, who thereupon cast the ballot and W. R. Codington was declared elected as county attorney for the legal term. Mr. Codington returned his thanks in a most pleasing manner for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Robison: Resolved, That the salary of the County Collector be fixed at the sum of $2,500 per annum.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Cady nominated Nathan R. Leavitt for County Collector, which was seconded by Freeholder Woodruff. There being no further nominations the clerk cast the ballot for Nathan R. Leavitt for county collector, and he was thereupon declared elected for the legal term. Mr. Leavitt returned his thanks to the board and said that he regretted that he could not fully express the feeling he felt for the honor conferred upon him.

By Freeholder Krouse: Resolved, That the county collector be authorized to have the annual report printed at a cost not to exceed $100.

Freeholder Gruener moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Adams: Resolved, That the director appoint a committee of three to revise and redraft the rules governing the board and report their recommendations at the next meeting of the board. On motion of Freeholder Woodruff the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Cady, Robinson and Woodruff.

By Freeholder Meisel: Resolved, That when this board adjourns it stands adjourned until Thursday, January 3d, 1907, at 3 p. m. On motion of the clerk the foregoing resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Doane: Resolved, That the director be and is hereby constituted a member of all committees. On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Perry: Resolved, That the regular meetings of the board be held on the first Thursday in each month, except when such meeting shall fall on a holiday, and then the regular monthly meeting shall be held at such time as the board may direct. On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The director then announced appointment of following.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Collector's Bond—Meisel, Doane, Maurer.

Publication — Robison, Doane, Jones.

Discharge of Prisoners—Darby, Robison, Swain.

Settle with Collector—Krouse, Cady, Smith.

Lunacy—Meisel, Smith, Fay.

Public Grounds and Buildings—Krouse, Cady, Woodruff.

Keeping Accounts—Cady, Wilbur, Woodruff.

Jail Inspection—Adams, Gruener, Doane.

Stationery—Smith, Meisel, Swain.

Settle with Sheriff—Robison, Perry, Donahue.

Miscellaneous Accounts and Agreements—Wilbur, Darby, Jones.

Legal Questions—Perry, Gruener, Donahue.

Appropriations — Cady, Krouse, Darby, Fay, Maurer.

County Roads—Adams, Krouse, Wilbur, Cladek, Pierson.

Elizabeth Drawbridges—Pierson, Wilbur, Adams.

Rahway Drawbridge — Gruener, Perry, Cladek.

Special Elizabeth Drawbridge—Krouse, Cady, Robison, Pierson, Swain.

Sinking Fund—Cady, Cladek and the Director.

Freeholder Krouse moved to adjourn, which was carried, and the director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, January 3d, 1907, at 2:30 p. m.

S. RUSLING RYNO, Clerk.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

London's net municipal debt amounts to over £44,000,000.

There are over 30,000 brass bands in England, comprising 250,000 musicians.

At a new mill opened in Radcliffe recently employment has been found for a family of ten sisters. They reside with a widowed mother.

For 30 cents in the house of commons restaurant a number of parliament gets a chop, potatoes, bread and a bottle of ale, all of the best quality.

A monster trumpet which was used to summon the people to church in the early part of the last century is still to be seen at Braybrooke church, England. It is sixty-six inches long.

The bootmakers of Leicester and Nothampton, England, are now cataloguing ladies' sizes up to eights, and one of them says he has a special demand for sevens and eights for girls.

Home cosmetics are all very well, but there are some preparations that the cosmetic muddler should not attempt. Such things as hair dyes, depilatories and face bleaches are beyond her ken. You can purchase depilatories that will remove the growth of hair from the arms, but, of course, the effect is only for the time being. The chances are that the fuzzers will return very soon, and instead of soft, downy hair they will be ugly little bristles. This is because the preparation merely burns the wretched things down to the surface of the skin. Unless the growth is most unsightly it is best not to meddle with it. Others won't notice it as you do yourself.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Sir Charles Wyndham was educted by his father for the ministry and was sent to a Moravian school in Germany for that purpose.

The Duke of Bedford has presented Lord Tavistock, his eldest son, with a silver mounted motor car for his use while at Oxford university.

Lord Cork, who has entered his forty-sixth year, enjoys two earldoms, two viscounticles and three baronies in the peerage of Ireland, but he has no seat in that country and is himself of English descent.

Many hundreds of George Washington, our first President, dwell on and about the original Washington plantation in Westmoreland county, Va. The present occupant of the plantation is named George Washington.

Henry G. Davis, the vice-presi*dential candidate, will build a Pres*byterian church to cost $50,000 at Cassaway, W. Va. The Davis Memorial Presbyterian church at Elkins, W. Va., was built by Mr. Davis for his son, who was drowned off the coast of Africa.

Representative John E. Andrus, of New York, the richest man in Congress, gladdened the hearts of the page boys, doorkeepers and most of the rest of the waiting men about the house by giving them each a brand new two dollar bills as a Christmas gift.

A. A. Thatcher, of Washington, has in his possession the anvil upon which the armor of Captain John Smith, the founder of the ship English settlers in Virginia, was forged. This anvil was also used for forging some of the parts of the first temple built in Nauvoo, Ill. The date on the steel of the anvil is 1794.

Although John D. Rockefeller has been generally considered the richest man in the United States, this is disputed by certain people, who claim to know and give that credit to Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, a recluse, who, they claim, has timber tracts in the northwest worth at least a billion dollars. Weyerhaeuser was born in Germany in 1834 and came to this country as an immigrant.

TO THE POINT.

A prominent New York lawyer says that in his earlier professional days he was glad to expand his slender income by bill-collecting. On one occasion he had a bill against a man who, incidentally, has since achieved fame. He put him beyond the necessity of such an indefinite statement as he made on that occasion. The young lawyer found him with his feet propped upon his desk, while he gazed dreamily at the ceiling through a cloud of tobacco smoke.

"But really, sir, I must insist that you give me some definite idea as to when you will settle," the lawyer said, after having been gently rebuffed.

The author consented to lower his eyes and to wave his pipe languidly.

"Why, certainly, sir—though there seems to me to be a rather unnecessary commotion about this trifle. You may expect to pay the bill as soon as I think of it after receiving the money which a publisher will pay me in case he accepts the novel which I will write and send him just as soon as I feel in an energetic mood after a really good night's rest. Is that plain enough to me?"—Harper's Weekly.

Edward C. Mansfield, late first assistant postmaster of Boston, and secretary of the Republican State Committee, tells this story illustrating one phase of his experience while *secretary of the Soldier's Aid So*ciety during the Spanish war. A large number of colleges responded and the even-increasing number of applicants for aid soon convinced Mr. Mansfield that his chief duty would be in finding really deserving ones among the impostors.

Finally a young Britisher from one of the harbor forts visited the office. He was a fine specimen of physical manhood and despite the easily apparent evidence of intoxication his uniform was spick and span. Of course, his appeal for aid was considered genuine.

But the soldier was persistent, becoming a daily visitor. Finally Mr. Mansfield resolved to get rid of him.

"Attention!" he commanded.

The man stiffened up and saluted.

"About face!"

"Forward, March!"

Without a word the soldier turned, marching out through the door and down the stairway, never to return.—Boston Herald.

The Cherrelyn street car line is famous almost the whole world over as being the only one where one can see the novel sight of a horse taking a street car ride. The line is a short one—only about twl miles long, extending from Englewood, a suburb of Denver, to Cherrelyn, a sleepy hamlet on the plains. From Englewood to the further terminus the grade is all up hill, requiring the strength of a good horse to supply the motive power. On the return trip, however, no motive power is required beyond that supplied by gravity. The horse, therefore, is permitted to mount the rear platform and ride down hill, while the driver gives his undivided attention to the manipulation of the brake.—Kansas City Star.

AMUSEMENTS.

Empire Theatre—Maude Adams and "Peter Pan" continue their po*pular sojourn at the Empire* theatre where they have only three weeks longer to remain. The Barrie fantasy completely won the hearts of theatregoers last season, and Maude Adams as the fairy boy Peter made a conquest for her own that will be memorable in American theatrical annals. The new chapter of the fairy boy's adventures which takes him to the mermaids' lair, Marooner's Rock, where he has a fierce hand to hand combat with the pirate Captain Hook adds new thrills and laughs to the fascinating fantasy. Miss Adams and "Peter Pan" are irresistible. Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Criterion Theatre—The new attraction at the Criterion theatre is Clyde Fitch's new comedy, "The Truth," with Clara Bloodgood. The play was written by Mr. Fitch with Mrs. Bloodgood in view and it will give her an opportunity to appear in a part that is entirely new to the stage. The character in which she will appear is that of a married woman with a weakness for telling lies and who by over indulgence of this habit destroys her own and her husband's happiness for the time being. It is a part that will permit Mrs. Bloodgood to display her comedy powers.

Lulu Glaser will begin her annual New York engagement at the Criterion theatre next Monday evening in Klaw & Erlanger's production of Sydney Rosenfield's new comedy, "The Aero Club." In his latest contribution to the stage, Mr. Rosenfeld has kept pace with the step of popular events, and practically everything and has written a play about balloooning. Incidentally he treats of some very fine points in ethics of aerostatics, which are quite likely to arise in the near future. The latest diversion of the millionaire sportsman attains to any great magnitude, and women, as well as men, indulge in flights above the clouds. Miss Glaser, in this play, makes her first appearance in what may be termed "a straight comedy" role, and, practically, for the first time in the history of the American stage, the humorous side of a comedy is almost entirely sustained by a woman. Heretofore, Miss Glaser has only appeared in distinctively musical productions. The versatile versatility she displays in this performance undoubtedly marks an entirely new departure in her stage career and justifies the confidence her managers manifested in introducing her to the public in a new field of stage work. In the character of Myrtle Webb she plays a high-spirited, self-sacrificing Western girl, who has projected herself into Lenox society through the force of her personality. On the day of the balloon and automobile race at Pittsfield, she learns that Jack Chandler, a young millionaire society sensationalist, has agreed to take her chum, Mrs. Edith Vanderveer, instead of her own thirty years her senior, in his balloon. To save her friend from compromising herself, Myrtle makes Chandler believe she is in love with him and induces him to take her instead.

In "The Law and the Man," which ends its two months' run at the Manhattan theatre Saturday, February 2, Wilton Lackaye, in the role of Cyrus Trenchard, will play the stage a character study as classic as its original. In his dramatization of Victor Hugo's great story, "Les Miserables," Mr. Lackaye has succeeded where others failed in the great task of making a character study containing the salient features and incidents of a tale abounding in virile situations. Artistically a triumph, in character as study, and in human interest intense, with a production one of the most lavish ever made for a play ever staged. "The Law and the Man" after a tour of the principal eastern cities will be made one of the several lasting plays to be a part of Mr. Lackaye's repertoire.

Rachel Crother's four act comedy, "The Three of Us," now playing at the Madison Square theatre, is safely the prize in its position as the dramatic hit of the present season. This fact is evident by the large and pleased audiences that nightly attend this theatre and make manifest their enjoyment of the splendil performances given by the strongest playing company seen in New York for many seasons. Miss Crothers has in this first effort of hers displayed a knowledge of stagecraft that gives promise of her soon becoming one of our best playwrights. It is not difficult to see why "The Three of Us" has so many charming qualities when the character of the comedy is taken into consideration. We all admire the fighting trait especially when it is possessed by a woman and the fight is for her rights and against big odds. In this comedy the heroine is a young girl who battles to conserve the interests of her two young brothers and in doing so is a victim of a circumstance that almost loses her a stern ride. The line is a short one—only about twl miles long, extending from Englewood, a suburb of Denver, to Cherrelyn, a sleepy hamlet on the plains. From Englewood to the further terminus the grade is all up hill, requiring the strength of a good horse to supply the motive power. On the return trip, however, no motive power is required beyond that supplied by gravity. The horse, therefore, is permitted to mount the rear platform and ride down hill, while the driver gives his undivided attention to the manipulation of the brake.—Kansas City Star.

Few theatrical stars—especially when they have scored a hit—have *the patience to wait until the man*agerial astrologers in the wisdom figure out that the signs are auspicious for a Broadway date. But Paula Edwardes, who tried out "Princess Beggar" last spring so satisfactorily that she was immediately offered a summer run in New York, had the good sense not only to dodge that contingency, but also to decline brief Broadway "time" during a doubtful fall season. Now "Princess Beggar" practically opens the new year at the Casino—which was the scene of Miss Edwardes' first success in "The Belle of New York," and also of her stellar debut two seasons ago in "Winsome Winnie." Her latest success, "Princess Beggar," is a "comedy opera" by Edward Paulton, presenting a sort of King Stephenian story in a "Prisoner of Zenda" setting, with some genuine "Yankee Consul"-style music by Alfred Robyn.

"Neptune's Daughter" at the New York Hippodrome is now in its third month. The one hundreth performance of this stupendous production took place yesterday. The mermaids seem to enjoy themselves splashing around in the water, and it is a matter of record that all the chorus girls in the company have filed applica*tions as understudies for the mer*maids in case any of them should resign. The mermaids realize that they are the hit of the show, however, and expect them to keep on mermaiding as long as possible. The "water scene of "Neptune's Daughter" continues to be the most sensational novelty ever shown in a place of amusement. The circus acts in the scene are: Marceline, clowning intervals, and Marceline, the clown, has a new automobile act which arouses laughter from the little ones. "Pioneer Days," the big Indian spectacle which is the opening feature of the programme, is well worth seeing.

HE GAVE BATTLE TO THREE THUGS.

Was Getting Worst of It When Approaching Footsteps Made Them Flee.

Charles Smith had a desperate battle Thursday night with three men near the tracks of the Erie Railroad in the Soho section of Bloomfield. He had made a call at the home of a friend and was on his way along John street when two men stepped from behind a tree. One of them asked him for a light from his cigar. Smith was about to comply when one of the men struck him on the jaw, almost knocking him down. Then the other man pitched in.

The cowardly attack aroused Smith's fighting spirit, and he fought like a demon, with the result that he was soon getting the better of the two. Then a third man joined them and assisted in the attack on Smith. He fought on and delivered blow after blow on the faces and bodies of the three fellows, who evidently meant more than robbery.

Smith's desperate struggle was giving out when the sound of approaching footsteps caused his assailants to cease their attack and flee down the railroad track toward Belleville. Two men found Smith and assisted him back to the home of his friend. He was only half conscious, and he had received terrible punishment. Now he is under the care of a physician.

BRAKEMAN IS BURIED UNDER LOAD OF WOOD.

John Michaels, employed as a brakeman on a freight train on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad, had a narrow escape yesterday from death at the Walnut street siding leading into Charles J. Murray's lumber yard in Bloomfield, N. J.

A car of lumber was about to be unloaded when the heavy planks shifted, and before Michaels could get out of the way he was buried under the mass, his head alone being visible. The crew of the train, workmen in the lumber yard and passengers waiting at the Beech street station hurried to his assistance, and some of them began to take the planks one by one from the top of the lumber. The work was slow, so that plan was abandoned. Then axes were procured, and after nearly an hour's hard work Michaels was chopped out, badly bruised and unconscious. It is feared he is injured internally.

PRINTERS HAVE HEARTS.

Though on Strike, Would Not Injure Ambulance Service.

The union compositors employed in the newspaper offices of the Oranges are on a strike, and the employers in retaliation announced yesterday that hereafter their establishments will be conducted on a strictly non-union basis. The men want an increase of wages, which has been refused.

A concession was granted by the printers to the trustees of the Record Ambulance, of Orange, who maintain an ambulance service. The ambulances are maintained by a series of theatrical performances given every year, and some of them is to be given Saturday. The Orange Journal Publishing Company has the contract for printing the programme, and when the men walked out it looked as if it wouldn't be printed. The ambulance trustees depend on the advertising in the programme for some of their revenue and failure to get the programme printed would mean a heavy loss.

The union leaders got together on hearing of the situation and granted a special dispensation for sufficient of their number to set up the programme.

SEVENTH BALLOT: DEADLOCK CONTINUES

Dryden Gets 35 Votes—No More Balloting Until Next Tuesday.

Three more ballots were taken in joint session of the Legislature Tuesday for U. S. Senator and there was no material change. Mr. Dryden dropped from 36 to 35, on account of the absence of Assemblyman Davidson, of Monmouth, whose wife died last night. John W. Griggs, Republican, got six votes and Justice Mahlon Pitney, Republican, received 2, the same as they had on the four ballots cast last week.

After the third ballot had been cast without result, President Mines announced that the next ballot would be taken on Tuesday next; in the meantime the members from Mercer will meet daily in order to fulfill the requirements of the law. On Monday night, Senator Dryden will be given a hearing by the Republican members in compliance with his request.

The first ballot:

Dryden	36
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	1
Wilson	1
Martine	1

The second ballot:

Dryden	36
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	1
Wilson	1
Martine	1

Third ballot:

Dryden	35
Griggs	6
Pitney	2
Stevens	1
Wilson	1
Martine	1
Krueger	1

After the second ballot had been taken Senator Hillery moved that the joint session arise. The move was lost by a vote of 41 to 39, the Democrats and Independent Republicans voting in the negative. Senator Lee moved that the door be locked and the members keep voting until midnight if necessary. He was told by Senator Hillery that the doors were locked.

After the third ballot had been taken a motion to arise was carried by a vote of 46 to 34.

Senator Ackerman continued to vote for Griggs on each ballot. On the first ballot, Martine, Democrat, made a gain of three votes. Vice Blocken, of Passaic, changed his vote on each ballot. Senator Garnish did not arrive until the second ballot was about to be taken.

Delegations from both Plainfield and North Plainfield are in Trenton today and the big majority of them are shouting against Dryden. Senator Reed, however, will not give his opinion, although Mayor Smalley is quite outspoken in his opposition to the insurance president.

MISS VAIL SURPRISED.

Birthday Party Given in Her Honor Monday Night.

Miss Ethel Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Vail, of Elmwood place, was given a birthday surprise party at her home, Monday. The affair was arranged by Miss Elsie Tier and Russell Vail. The young people met at the home of Miss Cora Gray, on West Front street, and then proceeded to the home of Miss Vail. The party was given in honor of the fourteenth anniversary of Miss Vail's birthday. The evening was spent in dancing, music and games, after which refreshments were served. Miss Vail received a number of gifts.

Assisting those who arranged the affair were Mrs. Edward E. Vail, Mrs. Ira Vail, Mrs. John Tier, Jr., and Mrs. George E. Vail. Those present were the following:

The Misses Cora Gray, Adelia French, Ethel Searing, Elsie Tier, Agnes VanNorden, Beatrice Tier, Gretta Trembley, Helen Ryder, Grace Vail, Theodocia Vail, Anna Vail, and Ralph Vail, Charles Kruger, Arthur Grisley, Harold Blaker, Russell Vail, Ira Vail.

Bank Directors Purchase Property.

The People's Bank, of Westfield, recently organized, has purchased the building at Broad and Elm streets, Westfield, through the agency of Elston M. French, of this city. The building is at present occupied by a grocer and it is the meeting place of the town council. Extensive improvements will be made to the property and it is hoped to have everything in readiness to open the new bank within the coming two months. The directors of the new bank are chiefly Westfield men, and they have sought the aid of The Plainfield Trust Company to get started. There is every indication that Westfield is to have another strong financial institution to meet the growing needs of that place.

Sagamore Entertainment.

The Sagamore Musical Club will hold its annual entertainment at the Casino February 18. A dance will follow the entertainment.

COMPETE WITH P.S.G.?

Hall Signal Company to Build a Huge Power House.

WILL SPEND $1,000,000

Reported to Have Planned Light Service to Garwood and Other Municipalities—Plainfielder Interested in Bond Issue.

The Hall Signal Company, of Garwood, is planning to make extensive improvements to its factory property which will incur an expenditure of $1,000,000. A wealthy Plainfielder will be interested in the financing of the project. Operations will be started in the spring and in addition to enlarging the present plant and equipping it with electrical machinery, a large electric power house will also be erected, for the purpose of supplying power to the machinery in the different buildings occupied by the mechanics.

Considerable importance is attached to the contemplated erection of a power house, as it is the general belief that it is the intention of the company to become a competitor of the Public Service Corporation in supplying light to private parties as well as to the different municipalities in Union county.

This information comes from a reliable source and from a man connected with the company. It is understood that bonds of $1,000,000 will be floated to provide the money for the work. It is reported that the company has assurances from several sources of patronage when the plant is installed and ready for business, which time it is expected will be next fall. It is also understood that Garwood, which is now lighted by the P. S. C., will withdraw its contract from that company when the agreement has expired. It is the general expectations that a rate much lower than the one at present predominating will be established.

The company is now rushed with orders for its patent switch and signal arrangement and gives employment to 300 hands. The company is at the present time working on large contracts for the Pennsylvania and other railroads. When the contemplated improvements are completed it is expected that 200 additional men will be given employment.

BUSINESS MEN TALK OF MUTUAL INSURANCE

CO-OPERATIVE CONCERN SUGGESTED TO AVOID HIGH RATES.

The recent advance in fire insurance rates have set local business men a-thinking. Since the San Francisco earthquake and fire, and even before that calamity, the various companies which underwrite here, have been boosting the rates with apparent total disregard of the fact of this city being equipped with one of the best fire departments in the State. Past records show that the fire loss in this city in past years has been comparatively small, when contrasted with losses in other municipalities in the State, or in the country at large.

In view of these conditions the business men, and citizens generally, of this city, it is reported, may take the matter in hand, and investigate the feasibility of organizing a local fire insurance company and conducting it on co-operative lines. Fred Ivamy, fish dealer, of West Second street, has had out the idea and is organizing such a mutual benefit concern. He declares that such a course is the only solution of the matter, and the only preventative Plainfielders can take from being imposed upon by these grasping corporations.

Mr. Ivamy declares that it is unjust for the companies to assess this city's property owners to help cover the losses in other places, referring especially to the San Francisco disaster, from which the local people afforded by our efficient fire department, Plainfield should be given minimum rates. It is simply a case of robbery and local business men couldn't do a better thing than to get together and organize a home fire insurance company. I for one favor this course as the proper manner to secure justice."

At different times, following advances in rates, there has been desultory threats made by indignant citizens to take some step toward mutual protection, but nothing has ever come from the talk. Now it begins to look that definite steps will be taken to bring about the desired results.

Invitations Recalled.

Mrs. Joseph Webster Sandford, Jr., of West Seventh street, has recalled the invitations to the tea and reception which she planned to give on Wednesday afternoon, February 6, in honor of her sister, Mrs. A. A. Tilyou, owing to the illness of Mrs. James Murray, of New York.

To Build Cottage.

J. B. Guttridge is seeking figures for the erection of a cottage on South avenue, near where he built before. The plans have been drawn by architect F. L. Lancaster.

BOYS FORCE TEACHER OUT

Miss Steele Couldn't Curb Unruly South Plainfield Youngsters.

TRUSTEES DIDN'T HELP

Even After One of the Boys Hit Her the School Authorities Are Said to Have Withheld Support.

Because, it is alleged, she was not supported by the school authorities in her efforts to curb disorderly boys, Miss Steele, a South Plainfield teacher, has resigned. Miss Steele is said to have suffered physical violence at the hands of an unruly pupil without receiving protection against future occurrence of the sort.

Several of the boys in the school, it is said, became possessed of the idea that they and not Miss Steele were in control of the school. Her efforts to have that idea corrected are said to have failed of support from the Board of Trustees, and the boys became more unruly than ever. Matters reached such a state that Miss Steele, as a last resort, called a conference of the boys to talk over the situation. It was her hope that some agreement to make the school more orderly might be obtained from the boys themselves by appeal to their chivalry. The appeal is said to have resulted in an increase of insolence, on the part of one boy at least. This boy is said to have shown his contempt for pedagogic authority in general, and Miss Steele in particular, by striking the latter a half a dozen times on the body. The blows were hard enough to bring tears to Miss Steele's eyes.

The boy was ordered to the principal's room, and went. It is alleged, he was not, as Miss Steele expected him to be, sent home. That was not the first time, it is alleged, incidents of the sort terminated in that way.

Discouraged, and almost ill from her struggle with the pupils, Miss Steele finally gave up and arranged to return to her home in Owego, N. Y. Residents of the village are indignant over the treatment to which Steele is said to have been subjected, and demands are being made that the boys be punished severely. Miss Giles, of South Plainfield, has been placed in charge of the school, pending the appointment of a new schoolma'am.

A NEW CONSTITUTION FOR CITY COMMITTEE

THE PRESENT ONE UNSATISFACTORY—CHAIRMAN NAMES COMMITTEES.

Being convinced that its present constitution is totally unsatisfactory, the Plainfield Republican City Committee at a meeting in the Casino Monday arranged to have it radically amended or a new instrument substituted. With this in view, Chairman Iremonger appointed Messrs. Hanniford, Tracy and Moy to undertake the work. The present constitution makes it mandatory for the chair to name all committees during January, a most unseasonable time. There are countless other defects which must be remedied.

The following were appointed members of the body: First ward, J. T. McMurray, W. L. Gloak, S. P. T. Wilbur and Charles S. Sminck; Second ward, R. Henry Depew, F. L. Holt, R. H. McCready and William R. Townsend; Third ward, George G. Fletcher, Orra S. Rogers, Roberl L. Lee and Duncan W. Taylor, the last named to fill the unexpired term of Mayor Fisk; Fourth ward, J. H. Cook, C. H. Dunham, Frank deW. Randolph, Winfield S. Arellanus, William G. Hunt and Fred H. Firstbrook.

William R. Townsend was chosen secretary and treasurer of the body and then the following committees were announced by the chair: Executive, Messrs. Townsend, Holt and Randolph; finance, Messrs. Tolles, Depew, Taylor and Buxton; legislation, Messrs. Randolph, Holt and Angleman; registration, Messrs. Townsend, Andrews, McCready and Dunham.

Will Observe Tenth Anniversary.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity reformed church, will meet in the church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock and elect officers. It being the tenth anniversary of the band the event will be observed appropriately, and after the election and officers' business there will be an address by Mrs. J. S. Allen, of New York, who will tell of her recent visit among the Mountain Whites of Kentucky. Tea will be served afterward. No admission fee will be charged and everybody will be made welcome.

Up Against a Farmer.

With a capitalist and a college president in the field James E. Martine, of Union, seems to have a small chance for United States Senator in a Democratic caucus. And yet who can say that he is not more deserving.—Unionist-Gazette.

COMMISSION HEARS REED

Borough's Corporation Counsel Tells Probers Why Consolidation is Desirable.

NO LEGAL OBSTACLES

Investigators Get Facts On Borough Saloons — United Plainfield More Populous Than Somerset County.

For over an hour Monday afternoon, former State Senator Chas. A. Reed championed the consolidation of North Plainfield and Plainfield before the bi-municipal merger commission in session in Mayor Fisk's office in the Smalley building here. He produced some startling facts and figures, which, it is said, made a marked impression on former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, the chairman, and the other member of the commission.

"You need not worry about the legal end of any consolidation of the two municipalities," said he. "All you gentlemen have to do is to investigate the desirability of the proposed merger." Mr. Reed stated that in his opinion such a community as the united Plainfields could have the Legislature straighten out any legal entanglements that might arise through the carrying out of the plan and that all that is necessary was for the people of the two municipalities to be convinced that the scheme was for their best interests. "Somerset county," said he, "will have a smaller population than the united Plainfields, strange as it may seem. There will be 40,000 population in the Plainfield that is to be while Somerset without North Plainfield will not be able to show such numerical strength." Consequently, he argued, with such a population, the Legislature ought easily to be convinced that the territory embraced within the borders of North Plainfield should of right be in Union county and would allow a bill to be passed carrying with it a referendum. Mr. Reed spoke long and convincing and when he had finished the commission thanked him for his services.

Figures were produced to show that while North Plainfield has approximately one-third of the population of Plainfield, it has eight barrooms while the city has but twelve. Moreover the retail license fee in the borough is only $700 while in the city it is $1,000. Saloons on this side of the brook close promptly at 11 o'clock although in North Plainfield they are allowed to keep open all night. These figures are interesting, it was alleged, when a comparison is made of what happens when the Plainfield saloons close. Evidence was produced to show that there is a steady stream of habitual drinkers at that hour to the borough resorts and that many of those places are packed after 11 o'clock. Scenes that occur in a few of the drinking places are not such, it was alleged, that speak well for the good name of the borough. These borough saloons are licensed as hotels and as such only pay a fee of half what is paid in this city. Under present conditions, North Plainfield has no control over its drinking places. Were it a part of greater Plainfield it would have absolute say in the jurisdiction of the Somerset county court would be removed.

President of the Plainfield-North Plainfield Board of Trade Woolston was among the interested spectators at the meeting. Like Reed, he favors consolidation, believing that annexation would be a natural result. Mr. Woolston says it is a plain business proposition. He declares that the tendency of the times in business is towards amalgamation, making it possible to get better results from a larger business district. Men from small bodies continually fighting one another.

At the next meeting on Monday afternoon, City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett will appear to explain the sewer end of the scheme. He will be called upon to tell how North Plainfield may be benefitted by the installation of a complete sewage system connected with the Plainfield beds, or otherwise, provided it be decided a part of a greater city as proposed.

NO CHANGES FOR A YEAR.

Lease on D. T. Kenney's New Buildings Good for a Year.

Owing to the fact that the leases on the buildings purchased by him on North avenue, have a year to run, David T. Kenney, of the borough, will not be able to make the extensive improvements planned by him until the expiration of that time. The buildings concerned are now occupied by E. H. Cleverly, as a restaurant, also a dwelling directly back of them on East Second street.

Mr. Kinney proposes to tear down the old buildings and erect an arcade with stores on either side, extending from North avenue to Second street. Elaborate plans have been prepared by Mr. Kenney and with some minor changes they will probably be followed as now drafted. The possibilities of a street being opened from North avenue to Front street are now remote, and it is not believed that the Common Council would look with favor on the improvement.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 2: "Wise and Foolish Building." By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D. Matt. vii, 21-27; Rom. ii, 12; I Cor. iii, 11; II Tim. ii, 19.

"The firm foundation of God standeth, the Lord knoweth them that are His, and let every one that nameth the name of the Lord depart from unrighteousness."

We come into this world an undeveloped piece of humanity, a little bundle of possibilities. We have capacity for the exercise of power. We begin life with a cry. But the fact that we have power to cry indicates that we may grow and acquire ability to put forth greater power.

Around us as a world with fixed forces and things, the materials with which we may work and make other things and at the same time develop our thoughts and characters. This world into which we come has vast physical forces waiting according to unchanging rules. If we will build material structures with stone, brick, wood, iron, we must do so with proper regard to the rules which govern these materials or we shall bring disaster and confusion. We must have adequate foundation, and the wall raised must be plumb, the tensile strength of the material sufficient to carry the burden placed above it, or the building collapses, the bridge fails, the labor is thrown away, and we ourselves may lose life in the ruins.

It is also a world governed according to fixed laws of thought and accurate rules of right and wrong in human conduct. Over these eternal principles we have no power so that we can change them an iota or hinder their inevitable results. All we can do is to act according to their laws and receive all possible benefit or act contrary to their ways and suffer the consequences. These eternal principles let us celebrate this anniversary by a renewed consecration to them and a new dedication of ourselves to "Christ and the church."

1. Christian Endeavor stands for Christian fellowship. "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit," any one who has had any part in the Christian Endeavor movement can have no doubt that there is "fellowship of the Spirit." Christian Endeavor has fostered fellowship from the beginning. Fellowship in the local society under the supervision of the social committee has been one of its chief features. Nor does it cease here, but the unity, union and influence of Christian Endeavor an interdenominational and international Christian fellowship such as the world has never seen before has been developed. Many feared in the early days that Christian Endeavor would loosen or destroy denominational ties. But such was never its aim, and history has proved that it has only strengthened them. We love not our own less because we love others. The very opposite is true. The man with largeness of heart enough to love the world will have all the more affection for his own. No better proof of this fact is needed than the history of Christian Endeavor.

2. Christian Endeavor stands for humility. This passage from Paul's letter to the Philippians is an appeal for the humility exemplified in Christ, and Christian Endeavor has possessed it to an unusual degree. The remarkable how little personal pride and boasting have characterized this movement, in spite of its rapid and wonderful growth. Its development has been so great and marvelous that it might have been expected that many at least who were associated with it would have been filled with pride and boasting. But not so. From Dr. Clark down the hosts of Endeavorers have only seen the hand of God in the movement and have given praise to Him be glory. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name, be the glory," has ever been the Christian Endeavor sentiment in relation to this great movement.

3. Christian Endeavor stands for self denying service. It has ever emphasized work for Christ and the church, which means service for those who are Christ's.

4. Christian Endeavor stands for worldwide missions. It has ever shown as a light in the world, and it is still a bright and shining light, spreading its rays into many heathen lands and doing much to win the world for Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Judg. vii, 15-25, Neh. iv, 1-14; Zech. iv, 6; Matt. xxvii, 19, 20; I Cor. iii, 7-15, xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9, 10; I John iii, 14.

A Society With a History.

The old Mount Vernon Congregational church of Boston had a young people's society as far back as 1850. Among the members of this society were Dwight L. Moody, John R. Gough and Joseph Newton. Owing to the small number of young people that society lapsed, but last fall Rev. A. P. Fitch reorganized it as a Christian Endeavor society, the full name being the Mount Vernon Young People's Association of Christian Endeavor. It has a membership of forty-five, with an average attendance of thirty-two, meeting on week day evenings. The pledge consists of the first sentence of the customary pledge, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, I promise Him to do whatever He would like to have me do." The pastor takes an active part in the meetings and usually is not present, but is in his study in an adjoining room, where the Endeavorers often drop in to see him. Mr. Fitch says that the society has already become helpful in church work, and, in addition they have become responsible for the partial maintenance of a school for coloured people in Christian Fa[illegible]

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 3.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—What Christian Endeavor means to me and to the world.—Phil. ii, 1-13. Christian Endeavor day. Consecration meeting.

On the evening of Feb. 2, 1881, or twenty-six years ago, the first Christian Endeavor society was organized in Williston church, Portland, Me., by the pastor, the Rev. Francis E. Clark. It was simply expected to be an aid to the local church by interesting the young people in the work, but God willed otherwise. There had been hundreds of young people's societies before, but in the providence of God this was the one selected as a model for thousands of other societies and destined to bring about a revolution in the relationship of the young people to the church. No human vision could penetrate the future and reveal what Christian Endeavor was to become to the world, and as we look back over the past twenty-six years and review the marvelous history of this movement we can only say, "It is the Lord's doing and is marvelous in our sight."

The meaning of Christian Endeavor to the individual and to the world is today essentially what it was at the beginning. It stood for certain definite principles of Christian life and service, and while it has always been progressive and added new and attractive features to its foundation principles, yet these fundamental principles made Christian Endeavor what it is and are still today the strength and inspiration. Methods and forms may change, but principles are eternal. This is true of Christianity itself and also true of Christian Endeavor, one of the best products of Christianity. In observing these essential principles let us celebrate this anniversary by a renewed consecration to them and a new dedication of ourselves to "Christ and the church."

1. Christian Endeavor stands for Christian fellowship. "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit," any one who has had any part in the Christian Endeavor movement can have no doubt that there is "fellowship of the Spirit." Christian Endeavor has fostered fellowship from the beginning. Fellowship in the local society under the supervision of the social committee has been one of its chief features. Nor does it cease here, but the unity, union and influence of Christian Endeavor an interdenominational and international Christian fellowship such as the world has never seen before has been developed. Many feared in the early days that Christian Endeavor would loosen or destroy denominational ties. But such was never its aim, and history has proved that it has only strengthened them. We love not our own less because we love others. The very opposite is true. The man with largeness of heart enough to love the world will have all the more affection for his own. No better proof of this fact is needed than the history of Christian Endeavor.

2. Christian Endeavor stands for humility. This passage from Paul's letter to the Philippians is an appeal for the humility exemplified in Christ, and Christian Endeavor has possessed it to an unusual degree. The remarkable how little personal pride and boasting have characterized this movement, in spite of its rapid and wonderful growth. Its development has been so great and marvelous that it might have been expected that many at least who were associated with it would have been filled with pride and boasting. But not so. From Dr. Clark down the hosts of Endeavorers have only seen the hand of God in the movement and have given praise to Him be glory. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name, be the glory," has ever been the Christian Endeavor sentiment in relation to this great movement.

3. Christian Endeavor stands for self denying service. It has ever emphasized work for Christ and the church, which means service for those who are Christ's.

4. Christian Endeavor stands for worldwide missions. It has ever shown as a light in the world, and it is still a bright and shining light, spreading its rays into many heathen lands and doing much to win the world for Christ.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xxxi, 1-8; Judg. vii, 15-25, Neh. iv, 1-14; Zech. iv, 6; Matt. xxvii, 19, 20; I Cor. iii, 7-15, xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9, 10; I John iii, 14.

A Society With a History.

The old Mount Vernon Congregational church of Boston had a young people's society as far back as 1850. Among the members of this society were Dwight L. Moody, John R. Gough and Joseph Newton. Owing to the small number of young people that society lapsed, but last fall Rev. A. P. Fitch reorganized it as a Christian Endeavor society, the full name being the Mount Vernon Young People's Association of Christian Endeavor. It has a membership of forty-five, with an average attendance of thirty-two, meeting on week day evenings. The pledge consists of the first sentence of the customary pledge, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ, I promise Him to do whatever He would like to have me do." The pastor takes an active part in the meetings and usually is not present, but is in his study in an adjoining room, where the Endeavorers often drop in to see him. Mr. Fitch says that the society has already become helpful in church work, and, in addition they have become responsible for the partial maintenance of a school for coloured people in Christian Fa[illegible]

TRUSTEES NOMINATED FOR THE COUNTRY CLUB

AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION TO BE CONSIDERED ON FEB. 5.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club will be held at the Casino Tuesday night, February 5. The nominating committee has selected Stuart H. Patterson, Henry J. Cochran and James P. Murray to be voted upon at that time for trustees. The nominating committee for 1907 consists of Charles W. McCutchen, Charles F. Abbott, Howard W. Beebe.

These amendments will be presented and voted upon:

Section 3, of article five of constitution to be amended as follows: Notice of the annual meeting shall be given to the members entitled to vote, at least thirty days prior thereto. The notice of the annual meeting shall include the names of the candidates nominated by the nominating committee. If independent nominations are made, an addition notice shall be sent out as required by article eight. Special meetings may be held on one week's notice to all members entitled to vote. The notice shall state the purposes for which the special meeting is called and no other business shall be transacted at that time.

Nominations. Nominating committee: There shall be a nominating committee to be composed of five active members of the club. Three members shall be elected at the annual meeting of the club in each year; that is, after two shall be elected by the board of trustees, not later than November in each year, from among the trustees whose terms of office shall not expire at the ensuing annual meeting of the club. Any vacancy occurring among the three members chosen by the trustees shall be filled by the trustees.

The nominating committee shall nominate three candidates for the three vacancies in the board of trustees to be filled at the annual meeting, and three candidates for the next year's nominating committee; and shall report such nominations to the secretary not later than the twentieth day of January in each year. The annual meeting shall contain the names of the candidates thus nominated.

Section 2. Independent nominations: Independent nominations of candidates for election at the annual meeting may be made by a letter, signed by ten active members and delivered to the secretary at least three weeks before the annual meeting.

Section 3. No nominations shall be made at the annual meeting; and no person shall be eligible for election to any office at said meeting unless nominated as provided in this article.

Article nine of the constitution to be amended as follows: The use of alcoholic drinks in the club house or on the grounds of the club is prohibited. All play on the grounds of the club on Sunday is prohibited. The club house shall be closed on Sunday except to members, guests and contestants occupying rooms as boarders at the club."

NEW SOCIAL CLUB.

Organized By Sixteen Young People In the Borough.

The "Arrah Wanna Crokinole Club" was organized at the home of Benjamin Schuck, last night, by sixteen young people. The following officers were elected: President, Benjamin Schuck; secretary, J. Russell Harden; treasurer, John Carney.

The club will meet every two weeks. Members wear gold badges, with the initials A. W. C. C. and an Indian head enamelled on them. The next meeting will be at the home of the Misses Clark, Grandview avenue, February 8.

Instead of Ribbons.

The mother of a small girl whose ability to lose hair ribbons was a source of constant worry solved the problem by using strips of plain or flowered muslin. These she hemmed neatly, making them the width of ordinary hair ribbons. They laundered nicely and always looked fresh and clean, while the loss of one of them did not mean so serious a thing as if a brand new hair ribbon had disappeared. Of course these little muslin ties were used only for the width of occasions, but for ordinary home wear they were inexpensive.—New York Press.

To Grill on Closed Range.

If the bars of a grate are too small or too near together the grilling remove the boiling ring and lift up the hot plate over the fire. Then place the gridiron in a horizontal position over the coals instead of attempting to grill in front of the fire, and the effect is just as good. Great care must be taken that the fire is bright, clear and quite free from smoke before the gridiron is placed over it, otherwise the operation cannot be successful.

Building Continues.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reports that notwithstanding the uncertain weather conditions there is no let-up in the requests for building permits. A majority of them are for dwellings.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIE LD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1907. NO. 6.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities ."—Madison.

COUNTRY CLUB'S ANNUAL

Elliott T. Barrows Elected President to Succeed George P. Mellick.

AMENDMENT CONSTITUTION

Past Year the Most Successful in the History of the Organization.

Reports of the most successful year in the history of the Plainfield Country Club were presented at the annual meeting at the Casino, last night; officers were elected for the coming year, and several amendments were adopted, the most important of which was one providing that "The clubhouse shall be closed on Sunday except to such members, guests and transients as occupy rooms as boarders at the club." This amendment was originally proposed, but was amended slightly by Thomas M. Day and carried by a vote of 17 to 8.

The amendment caused spirited discussion on the part of some, who seemed to think that the wording might be misconstrued and permit an "open Sunday" at the club and eventually lead to Sunday golf. The retiring president, George P. Mellick, declared, however, that the purpose was to permit the classes mentioned in the amendment to remain at the clubhouse over Sunday, when they previously engaged rooms there and were considered boarders, and that its adoption would provide for the serving of meals. At present no one is allowed to remain in the clubhouse over Sunday and it is kept closed from Saturday night until Monday morning.

The other amendments adopted refer to the nominating committee, which shall be composed of five members; the trustees and the manner of election by previous notice, and independent nominations, all of which were published in The Daily Press a few days ago. They were adopted unanimously.

The report of the treasurer, which had previously been circulated among the members, shows receipts for the year of about $15,000 with a small balance in the treasury. There are now about 538 members of all classes. The annual reports of the club events and general comments by President Mellick, as also previously published, was referred to. Copies have been sent to all the members.

Stuart A. Patterson, Henry J. Cochran and James P. Murray were elected trustees, upon the motion of the nominating committee, and Charles W. McCutchen, Charles P. Abbott and Howard W. Beebe were elected a nominating committee for 1908.

In view of the retirement of Mr. Mellick as president and trustee, Elliot T. Barrows took occasion to speak of the appreciation of his long and faithful services, adding that he would be missed by the board of Trustees, of which he has been a member since 1896. He offered a resolution expressing the appreciation of the club for his services and it was ordered spread on the minutes.

Mr. Mellick thanked the members for the kind words spoken. He recalled his association with the club when he first assisted in the organization of the Hillside Tennis Club, which later became the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and then the Plainfield Country Club. It was about in 1889 that the Hillside Tennis Club was organized and used to meet on Watchung avenue. He said that he had always been interested in the success of the club and hoped that its growth would continue.

Leighton Calkins also spoke of the retirement of Mr. Mellick with regret. He referred to his efficiency, tact under many trying circumstances, and took occasion to also speak of the retirement of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman as trustee. He expressed the appreciation of the club for his faithful and conscientious service. Complimentary remarks were also made by John M. Whiton and Thomas M. Day.

After the regular club meeting the board of trustees met to organize. These officers were elected: President, Elliot T. Barrows; vice president, Thomas M. Day; secretary, James P. Murray; treasurer, Joseph M. Shellabarger; chairman of the greens committee, Leighton Calkins; chairman golf committee, Thomas R. VanBoskerck; chairman house committee, Lewis G. Timpson; chairman tennis committee, Henry J. Cochran; chairman building and grounds committee, Stuart A. Patterson. These various chairmen will select their own assistants later. After discussing matters pertaining to the approaching season, the meeting adjourned.

"The Chimes of Normandy," Thursday night at Casino.  2 4 2

COLLEGE ALUMNAE ELECT CLUB MEMBERS

COMPLETE ORGANIZATION AT THE HOME OF THE MISSES GODDARD.

The college alumnae completed the organization of their club yesterday afternoon. Thirty-six graduates of women's colleges met at the home of the Misses Goddard, East Ninth street, and elected the officers of what was decided to call the Plainfield College Club. These are the officers:

President, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Smith; vice president, Miss Harriet Goddard, Wellesly; secretary and treasurer, Miss Elsie Suffern, Vassar. Miss McCutchen presided all through the session.

A complete constitution was adopted. The club is to meet "every little while," but not more than six times a year. The next meeting will be held in April; where, has not yet been decided.

Tea was served after the meeting. Tea will be a concomitant to all the meetings, but no plans have been made for a formal luncheon or dinner of the sort beloved by most college organizations.

CITY UNUSUALLY FREE FROM CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

REPORT OF SANITARY CONDITIONS MADE TO BOARD OF HEALTH.

According to the reports presented at the February meeting of the Board of Health, yesterday afternoon, it was shown that the sanitary condition of the city remains good and unusually free from communicable disease. But three cases of scarlet fever were reported during the past month. Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow reported that he had inspected nineteen dairies and all were found to be in excellent condition. The total number of inspections of all kinds was 153.

Complaints have been received by the board of the unsatisfactory way in which scavengers, licensed by the board, have been cleaning cesspools, it being stated that they did not scrape the bottoms of the cesspools and remove all solid matter. In view of this the board adopted a resolution authorizing the health officer to notify the licensed scavengers to do the work according to the provisions of the ordinance.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, president of the board, appointed the following committees for the year: Finance and supplies, Wm. C. Kinney, Charles H. Dunham; contagious diseases, Dr. T. S. Davis, W. C. Kinney; food and drink, F. W. Dunn, Dr. T. S. Davis; nuisances, Charles H. Dunham, F. W. Dunn.

During the past month there were reported twenty marriages, thirty-five births and thirty-four deaths. Permits were granted to Charles W. Squires and Denckian & Co., to sell milk and to John Giles to collect garbage. The plumbers bond of Daniel W. Hibbits was approved and ordered filed and the bond of Willard L. Larrabee was not approved. It was decided to ask for bids for publishing the annual report of the board for 1906.

Special Lenten Services.

Rev. Charles Fiske, of St. John's church in Somerville, who has been spending several weeks doing mission work in Oakland, Cal., is expected home next week to have charge of the special Lenten services in his church. He has announced the following preachers, one from Plainfield, for these services: Feb. 13, Rev. Charles Fiske; Feb. 20, Rev. J. R. Atkinson, of Elizabeth; Feb. 27, Rev. W. Durton Dale, of New Brunswick; March 6, Rev. E. J. Knight, of Trenton; March 13, Rev. C. S. Wood, of Roselle; March 20, Rev. Sydney Cross, of Westfield; March 27, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Plainfield.

Like An Old Time Ball.

The annual ball of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F/O/ E., at Saengerbund Hall, Friday night, gives every indication of being what the fire companies' balls were to Plainfield twenty years ago. Several hundred dollars have been appropriated for decorations and the grand march will be one of the prettiest ever seen in the city. Visiting delegations will be present from aeries at Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Newark and Jersey City.

K. G. E. Anniversary.

Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., will celebrate its anniversary Tuesday night, March 26. The newly appointed good and welfare committee, the make-up of which was announced at the meeting last night, will have charge of the affair. The committee is as follows: Dr. J. H. Buchanan, chairman; Edward Schmeyer, Raymond Carver, Frank Neldig and Walter Randall.

SMELL DEFENSE FAILS

Couldn't Prove Alleged Odor Was Strong Enough to Break Lease.

VERDICT AGAINST RAE

He Tried to Prove the Health of Family Suffered Through An Aroma From Lighting Plant.

Unable to prove that a dynamo in the cellar gave forth a smell strong enough to break a lease, Marvin D. Rae's defense of the action brought against him by the Ivy Courts Realty Company, of New York, for four months' rent of an apartment at 217 West One Hundred and Seventh street, New York, failed in the District Court yesterday. The case ended yesterday afternoon, after a trial lasting four hours. The verdict for the plaintiff amounted to $240, the apartment having rented for $60 a month.

Mr. Rae moved to this city in 1904, after giving up the apartment in One Hundred and Seventh street. The Realty company sued for the rent due for the four months the apartment was unoccupied. Mr. Rae's defense centered on the odor declared to have come from the electric lighting plant in the cellar of the house. The defense testified that the smell was so strong and so bad that the health of the family suffered. It was declared that a baby born in the apartment was weakened by it, and that a doctor ordered Mr. Rae to move in order to save the child from worse ill health.

The plaintiffs denied that there was anything like the smell complained of. It was admitted that on one day in the week, when the batteries of the plant were charged, an odor might be detected in the hall, but that a strong smell of any sort in the flat was denied unqualifiedly. It was also denied that any vibration from the dynamo, which was also complained of, could be felt on the Rael floor. The agent of the apartment house where Mr. Rae rents also told him, at the time he spoke of moving, that the doctor had ordered him to the country for the benefit of the general health of his wife and child, and not because of the alleged odor.

It was rumored about the court room early in the case yesterday that Mr. Rae would file a claim for recoupment on the ground of damaged health, but no such claim was introduced. Harry C. Runyon conducted the plaintiffs' case.

DEGREE TEAM TO TRAVEL.

Freedom Castle, K. G. E., Initiators Invited to Yonkers.

To demonstrate the full beauty of the degree work when displayed by a well balanced team, the degree experts of Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., will go to Yonkers, N. Y., the night of Washington's birthday, to put on a large class through the three degrees. This is the first time a New Jersey team has been asked to leave the jurisdiction to give an example of the work.

The request for the team was made by Supreme Chief John D. Harger, who is helping on a lodge boom at Yonkers. He was highly impressed with the work of Freedom's team when he visited the castle recently.

Inspection of Schools.

Dr. S. Josephine Baker, of New York, made an interesting address last night on the medical inspection of schools before the Public Education Society in Somerville. She is the personal representative of Dr. Thomas Darlington, Health Commissioner in New York. The work of medical inspection in the Somerville public schools has already been commenced by Dr. McConaughy and will be continued by the physicians of the town in rotation.

Celebrated Silver Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walsh, of McKinley place, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home Monday night. About fifty guests were present to enjoy the festivities and congratulate the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh received a great many handsome gifts. An elaborate collation was served during the evening.

Last McIntyre Concert.

The fourth McIntyre Chamber Concert, and the last of the season's series, will be given at the Casino, Friday night, with Mrs. Viola Waterhouse, soprano, of New York, as assisting artist. Tickets can be had at Armstrong's drug store.

Company K's Annual Banquet.

At the business meeting of Company K on Monday night the entertainment committee was authorized to go ahead and make arrangements for the annual banquet to be held on Monday night, February 25.

COMPLETING PLANS FOR BOARD OF TRADE DINNER

COMMITTEE PREPARED TO ANNOUNCE LIST OF SPEAKERS.

Arrangements are rapidly being completed for the annual banquet of the Board of Trade to be held at the Casino on Tuesday night. The committee on speakers, of which Alexander Gilbert is the chairman, will be prepared to announce the complete list tomorrow. It is expected that several men of State prominence will speak.

Among those from this city who will speak will be Rev. B. M. Bogan, of the Crescent Avenue M. E. church, Rev. Geo. A. Warner, of the Church of the Holy Cross. The committee in charge of the details for the banquet have left nothing undone in providing a fine menu and good music.

The committee hopes to be able to secure the presence of Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation, who will be asked to speak on the toast of "Public Utilities." He has been invited and a favorable answer is expected this week. The tickets for the affair are selling rapidly and those intending to be among the guests should secure them as early as possible.

ASSESSOR WAS TOLD TO MAKE NEILSON LEVY

MR. HAND GIVES OUT A STATEMENT ON THE CLERGYMAN'S CASE.

That the public may know he did not act without consideration in placing a levy against Rev. W. H. Nielson for the personal property of his wife in New York, which assessment Mr. Nielson has succeeded in having cut, as reported in yesterday's Daily Press, Assessor Charles H. Hand, in whose ward Mr. Neilson lives, made a statement regarding the case this morning.

Mr. Hand assessed the property, which was valued at $50,000, under instructions from the County Board of Taxation, and by subsequent legal advice. Before the property was brought within the ken of the local assessors, Mr. Neilson appeared before the State Board of Tax commissioners, and swore off the levy on it, directed against him, on the ground that he was a resident of this State. He is said to have acknowledged before the commissioners that the value of the estate was $50,000. The New York commissioners then wrote a line to the Union County Board of Taxation, informing the body that there was a man in Plainfield with $50,000 worth of personal property in his charge who couldn't be taxed in New York.

When the County Board met the local assessors in the Council Chamber in this city soon after that, the members told Mr. Hand to put Mr. Neilson down for $50,000 worth of personal property. Subsequent to that Mr. Hand sought legal advice, and was told that, in the face of Mr. Neilson's appeal from the New York levy, the property was plainly taxable here. Thereupon Mr. Hand made the assessment.

Mr. Neilson brought his action to set the Plainfield assessment aside on the ground that he was simply trustee for Mrs. Nielson, and that the custody of the property is in the hands of the Supreme Court of New York. Corporation Counsel Marsh advised the Common Council that the city could not collect the tax.

The New York tax commissioners have been advised of the case. They are expected to take up the matter.

Storm Stalled Freeholders.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders were to have had a special meeting in Somerville yesterday to award the contract for macadamizing the public road from North Branch to the Hunterdon county line and from North Branch to North Branch Depot, but some of the county roads were so badly blocked with snow that a quorum of members were not able to reach Somerville, and the special meeting was indefinitely postponed.

Accepts Position as Gen. Manager.

George M. Macintyre, of West Front Street, has taken a position with the Laing Machine-Auto Repair Company, on Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets. He will act as general manager for the company. Mr. Macintyre has had a long experience with the automobile business and is thoroughly acquainted with every detail.

P. H. S. Alumni Annual.

Frank Moss, counsel for the Parkhurst Society for the Prevention of Vice, New York, will speak before the Plainfield High School Alumni Association at its annual meeting February 22. It is probable Mr. Moss' address will be open to the public.

REED FOR BRIGGS' PLACE

North Plainfielder One the Two Prominent Candidates For the Job.

PAYS $6,000 A YEAR

Senator Dryden Said to Have Pledged Support to Daniel Voorhees, of Morristown.

With the U. S. Senatorial fight of their hands the State Legislature will have another important matter to settle, that of the appointment of a State treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation of Frank O. Briggs, the present incumbent, to the United States Senate, succeeding Senator Dryden.

Two candidates have so far loomed up prominently for the job, former Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, and County Clerk Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morristown. Voorhees is said to have the support of Senator Dryden and his friends in the Legislature, this matter being settled at a conference held in the Prudential Building, Newark, one day last week, at which Dryden practically decided to retire from the Senatorial race.

That Mr. Reed is also a candidate for the position is not denied by his friends in this city and borough. A reporter for The Daily Press was unable to see Mr. Reed today owing to his absence from his offices. From that source it is given out that he is in Washington, D. C. From this fact it is to be inferred that Mr. Reed is at the national capital for the purposes of rallying national influences to his support in the contest for the office. Mr. Reed has many friends in the administration at Washington and for this reason it is not at all improbable that he will develop into a strong candidate for the place.

Mr. Reed was a candidate for the office five years ago but was beaten out by Mr. Briggs after one of the biggest fights in New Jersey legislative history. Mr. Reed had the support of the Senate but was unable to muster sufficient strength in the Assembly, hence his defeat by a narrow margin. After retiring from politics Mr. Reed retired from State politics and has since confined his activities to local affairs.

There is no doubt that Senator Reed is well qualified to fill the office and his local friends are anxious to see him win out in the fight. Mr. Voorhees is also known locally, being an uncle of Mrs. James T. MacMurray, of this city.

While the smoke following the battle for the U. S. Senatorship is slowly blowing over there is much discussion over the election of Briggs. While the fact is clear that Dryden was personally defeated for re-election it remains to be seen that his terms of surrender were all arranged in his favor by his chief lieutenant and son-in-law, Colonel Anthony Kuser. When Dryden decided to retire from the race, he personally selected Briggs, and also picked out Voorhees as the man to take Briggs' place in the State treasurer's office.

As Mr. Reed remained in a neutral position during the senatorial fight and did nothing to hamper the chances of Dryden's re-election, it is the general impression that the "tall sycamore of Somerset" may have gone to Washington after the sole purpose of putting his case before Senator Dryden and asking for his support for the treasurership. The job pays $6,000 per annum.

SOMERSET DOCTORS' MEETING.

Kentucky Physician Will Make An Address On Health Matters.

The Somerset County Medical Society, of which the North Plainfield physicians are active members, is arranging to hold a public meeting in the assembly room of the high school in Somerville next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The speaker will be Dr. McCormack, of Bowling Green, Ky., who will deliver an address on "The Things About Doctors Which Doctors and Other People Ought to Know." He will go to Somerville as a representative of the American Medical Society and his address will be anent the relation of the physician to the public, the patent-medicine evil and fake practitioners. He will discuss hygiene, sanitary arrangements, and other health matters.

P. H. S. Seniors' Class Pins.

The seniors of the Plainfield High School are wearing their class pins which arrived today. It is a seal pin, having the high school in relief, bordered with the class colors, red and green.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Bertha Frazee, of Elmwood place, to Lawrence Fahn, Jr., of Somerset street. The wedding will take place in the spring.

ACKERMAN REFUSED TO VOTE FOR BRIGGS

WRITTEN TAX COMPLAINTS REACHED A TOTAL OF 868

COMPILATION OF LIST COMPLETED BY COUNTY BOARD'S SECRETARY.

William R. Townsend, secretary to the Union County Board of Taxation, has just completed the compilation of written complaints and decided by the board up to February 1, and he finds a total of 868. This does not include the hundreds of verbal complaints received. As yet Mr. Townsend is unable to give the number of complaints granted and refused, but a statement of this will be made within a short time.

Elizabeth presented the greatest number of written complaints, a total of 359, and Plainfield was second in order with 154. It is noticeable that no complaints were received from Clark township, Mountainside and New Providence Borough.

The written complaints received in the order of towns, cities, boroughs and townships throughout the county are as follows:

Clark township, 0; Cranford, 94; Elizabeth, 359; Fanwood township, 13; Fanwood borough, 4; Garwood borough, 3; Linden township, 17; Linden borough, 12; Mountainside, 0; New Providence township,, 1; New Providence borough, 0; Plainfield, 154; Rahway, 8; Roselle borough, 41; Roselle Park, 25; Springfield, 15; Summit, 60; Union, 13; Westfield,,59; a total of 868.

WORK PROGRESSING ON MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE

CONTRACTORS EXPECT TO HAVE BUILDING READY FOR ROOF BY APRIL.

Mt. St. Mary's College which has been in course of construction on the picture lands near Mountain avenue, the borough, has reached that point where the work is progressing rapidly and it is the hope that the main building will be ready for the occupancy of pupils by August 1. A large force of men has been working steadily on the large structure and it is expected that by April it will be ready for the roof.

This roof will cover the largest area of any building in this vicinity, it being approximately 2,000 square feet. The architecture of the college is very attractive and when completed will be one of the best equipped of any in the State. The college is being erected on land given for the purpose by David T. Kenney, of North Plainfield.

John Abbott & Son have the general contract for the construction work and the other contracts have just been given out. William H. Bartle has the mason and stone work; Daniel Galbraith that of plumbing and steam-fitting; John H. Cose the roofing, and Philip Jahn's the lead and tin roofing work.

In connection with the general improvements of the property in that section is the building of a fine macadamized road leading from Mountain avenue to the college, and W. H. Bartle, who has the stone and mason contract, has built a private road from Washington Valley to the college over which he carts the stone used in the building.

Father Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, the borough, as well as officials of the college from Bordentown, make frequent visits to the new college to inspect the work and they are much pleased with the progress thus far made. Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, who is the head of the Trenton Diocese, in which the college is located, keeps in close touch with the building of the new structure and many of his suggestions have been incorporated in the plans.

Library Directors Meet.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library was held at the library last night with the following members present: Col. Mason W. Tyler, president; J. Herbert Case, treasurer; W. M. Stillman, secretary; Dr. Leonard Waldo and W. F. Merrill. The treasurer's report for the months of December and January was presented and placed on file, as well as the librarian's report for January. Following the regular routine business and payment of bills the meeting adjourned.

Fanwoodite In Big Company.

Among the concerns incorporated at Albany yesterday was the Barret Palmer Company, of New York, capital $100,000, of which F. J. Palmer, of Fanwood, is a director. The company is to deal in petroleum.

—"The Chimes of Normandy," Thursday night at Casino.  2 5 2

Senator Colby Also Bolted the Caucus and Held Out For Mahlon Pitney.

MAJORITY REDUCED

Successful Candidate for Dryden's Place Got Through Only By Narrow Limit.

The election of Frank O. Briggs as United States Senator to succeed John F. Dryden, as announced in yesterday's Daily Press, came after one of the greatest political struggles in the history of New Jersey.

It was a case of battle until the last moment and the successful candidate got through by a bare majority. Senators Ackerman and Colby bolted to the last ballot and the party majority was cut to narrow limits.

Forty-one Republican votes were recorded for Briggs. Fake, of Bergen, voted for him, although he stood out of the caucus. Buck, of Cumberland, was absent because of illness.

Senator Colby voted for Mahlon Pitney after bolting the Briggs caucus, and Ackerman voted for John W. Griggs. He also remained out of the caucus.

All day long the fight was waged against Briggs, and when the caucus was held Briggs had but 40 votes, not a majority of all the Republicans in the joint meeting, but a majority of the members present.

When the voting commenced in the joint meeting Senator Ackerman, of Union, was understood as voting for Briggs, when he really voted for Griggs. His was the first name on the alphabetical list, and his mistaken vote was applauded to the echo. It was not until the result was announced that it was known that Ackerman really voted for Griggs.

With Ackerman, of Union, and Colby, of Essex, voting away from Briggs, the election seemed to turn on the absence of the two Democrats, Aufderheide and Eppinger, of Hudson. Fake, the Bergen man in consultation with former Assistant Postmaster General William M. Johnson when the balloting was started. Fake was nervous and asked Johnson, "What shall I do?" Johnson replied: "Your duty is to go in the joint meeting and cast your ballot for Frank O. Briggs."

Fake went to his seat, and when his name was called said: "Frank O. Briggs." This vote was received with applause as the enormous audience, which crowded every portion of the Assembly chamber galleries and lobby, realized that Mr. Briggs was to be elected United States Senator by a full Republican majority of the whole membership of the joint meeting.

When Secretary Tyler announced the vote of 41 for Briggs and 35 for James E. Martine and one each for Pitney and Griggs, there was prolonged applause.

This was the Briggs vote:

Avis, Barber, Bradley, Brown, Burk, Buxton, Cattell, Chaplin, Crowther, Davison, Devine, Drake, Elvins, Fake, Frelinghuysen, Gibbs, Haines, Hand, Hillery, Hutchinson, Irick, Jess, Jones, Lee, Lewis, Lilliagore, Manson, Minch, Moxon, Perkins, Plummer, Potter, Ridgeway, Robbins, Shinn, Smalley, Stille, Taylor, Thompson, Tillman, Wakelee. Total, 41.

Ackerman voted for Griggs and Colby for Pitney. The absentees were Buck (Rep.), of Cumberland, and Aufderheide and Eppinger (Dem.), of Hudson.

President Minch, of the Senate, the presiding office of the joint meeting, declared Briggs elected Senator from New Jersey and the joint meeting dissolved, ending the fight.

Interesting as was the election of Briggs, the whole day was full of surprises. The supporters of State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, worked all night in an effort to land enough votes to win him the caucus nomination, and although Assemblyman Buck was in the company of newspaper correspondents until long after midnight, it was announced early in the morning that he had appendicitis and had been taken back home to Cumberland county. Mr. Buck is an ardent supporter of Gov. Stokes. Before 8 o'clock in the morning Senator Avis, of Gloucester, was at the State House looking for votes for Senator Bradley, of Camden, for Senator. It was announced that Baird had withdrawn and thrown his

(Continued on Page 4.)

JUNIORS EXTEND HEARTY WELCOME TO STOKES

State's Chief Executive Guest of Honor at the Annual Banquet at the Casino.

OVER 200 PRESENT

Senatorial Question But Lightly Touched Upon in the Speech-making—S. St. J. McCutchen Toastmaster.

More than two hundred citizens of Plainfield and other parts of the State, together with Governor Edward Casper Stokes, Senators Ernest R. Ackerman and Joseph T. Freilinghuysen, Judge Francis Scott and other dignitaries of the State, gathered at the second annual banquet in the Casino, Thursday, given by Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. The affair was a great success in every detail. The dinner left nothing to be desired and the finest list of speakers proved a delightful part of the evening's programme.

Governor E. C. Stokes.

The spontaneous and hearty welcome extended to Governor Stokes and the other visitors was a pleasing feature of the occasion. Especially was this true, when Mayor Charles J. Fisk, the first speaker of the evening, declared that if the people had their say Governor Stokes would be the next United States Senator. This brought forth a genuine outburst of enthusiastic applause from everyone.

Only in one other instance was the United States Senatorial contest referred to and that was by Governor Stokes in his opening remarks. He said on this question: "I am pleased to visit Union county, a county which has one ex-Governor (meaning Foster M. Voorhees) who has no further troubles, and which is the home of an United States Senator who is perfectly comfortable at this hour. I am also glad to visit Plainfield, the home of a unanimous Mayor, and I was thinking how others would like to feel just as unanimous at this time."

Samuel St. John McCutchen, of North Plainfield, who is a member of the State Board of Education, was the toastmaster, and he filled the position perfectly. After putting the assemblage in good humor by his witticisms, he announced the rules of the game, which were that nobody could speak in honor of the dinner except the toastmaster, and he was asked if James Martine was present, knowing the latter's tendency toward oratory. He said that when a man reaches Congress it is different. There he can take time in the Congressional Record, but if any one present felt inclined to kick over the restrictions they could have their speeches printed in a local weekly.

In introducing the first speaker, Mayor Fisk, he referred to him as a man without a party, and that he really expect one of my age to speak. I extend greetings and congratulations to you all and I herewith present you with the keys of the city, not for tonight but for all time for every good citizen who is ready to fight for the stars and stripes. We as citizens of Plainfield do not appreciate what we have here and others who do not live here don't know what they are missing. This is a typical American city, where the citizens are patriotic, enterprising, progressive and ambitious. This is due to the character of the population. There are not very many rich men in Plainfield, but all work as one man, and it is due to these the government is by the people. We have a population of about 20,000, four banks, forty miles of macadam roads and some day we hope to own our water supply. We have grown so fast that another community has sprung up next door. We want that little girl for we have fallen in love with her. Some day there is going to be a wedding. Plainfield is going to ask her to come over. We are going to ask the Legislature to be at the wedding and we are going to ask one who sits with us tonight, and who, if the people had their voice in the matter, would be the next United States Senator, to sign the wedding certificate."

State Council Secretary William H. Miers was the next speaker, his toast being "Our Order." He reviewed the history of the order from its inception, told of its incalculable benefits and stated that today it numbered 46,000 members in New Jersey. He told of the success of the order in securing the adoption of satisfactory naturalization laws, the maintenance of the flag on every public school-house and of the Bible thereto and quoted a number of statistics showing how the order had been beneficial to hundreds of members and relatives through the sick and funeral benefits. He paid a glowing tribute to the public school system of the State and to Governor Stokes for his interest as a member of the order.

Judge Francis Scott, of Paterson, who is a member of the State Board of Education, was introduced as the next speaker. His topic was "Naturalization and Immigration."

He said that the subject was one very dear to his heart. He had been forced to naturalize those who were not fit to receive such papers. "I come from a foreign city, one person," continued Judge Scott, "a place of unsavory reputation, but unjustly so. In coming here I feel as though I was in another country, but that is no reflection on my own city. The new naturalization law passed last year makes the future secure and it is satisfactory in every respect, and if the Jr. O. U. A. M. had anything to do with its adoption it deserves the gratitude of every citizen. President Roosevelt is also to be praised for his work in behalf of the law.

"I believe in commissions. Governor Stokes believes in commissions and we all believe in Governor Stokes. Steps have been taken through a commission in this State to handle the problem of foreigners who come here. Under the old law anyone could get in, it depending on the conscience of the Judge. It is a common occurence to have an applicant for papers say to the Judge he is opposed to the form of government of the United States, that it is George Washington or Governor Stokes. In the case of the latter it may be prophetic.

"The new law covers in detail nearly all of the errors of the old one. The applicant must swear that he intends to reside here permanently and one of the best features is that he must speak the English language. Governor Stokes deserves great credit for his efforts in helping to eliminate the purchasable vote and to keep out the vast horde of undesirable people that flock to these shores. The immigration laws are not so satisfactory, I am sorry to say. A million immigrants in the year can neither read or write, are coming to this country and three-quarters of them at one port of entry. We have got to handle them and digest them and in this respect Governor Stokes' commission has to solve a perplexing problem. America can take care of herself. I believe that we can handle the negro question, although I think it was one of the mistakes of the century to give the black man a franchise to vote, at a time when he had no other qualification than a black skin. How can the law be administered? Limit the number of immigrants. Suspend immigration for a period if the foreigners are coming in too fast. I don't believe in a literary test. This is not absolutely necessary, but I should insist on a physical test. We want honest, strong immigrants, but not those who are ignorant of the laws of other countries. I believe in the United States of America, a Republic instead of an Empire, in George Washington instead of Napoleon Bonaparte, that today is better than yesterday and that tomorrow will be better than today."

Mr. McCutchen in introducing the next speaker, Senator Joseph T. Freilinghuysen, who spoke on "Citizenship," said that he desired to present the bridal party for the marriage of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The Senator from Somerset said that Mayor Fisk had referred to fair North Plainfield, and while he was not opposed to divorce and believed that compatibility was highly desirable he would take the offer of marriage into consideration.

Continuing Mr. Freilinghuysen said that he felt proud of the principles of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and he congratulated the members of the order. He made a compliment to Governor Stokes, adding that his name should be dear to the hearts of all, for he has given the best years of his life for his State and he knew it to be the prayer of everyone that his life be spared for many years of service. He then referred to the fact that the Somerset county furnished a signer to the Declaration of Independence in the person of Dr. John Witherspoon, at one time president of Princeton College, and he described his spirit of independence in quoting from the "Old Farm," a story by the late Andrew Mellick, of this city. The Senator declared the American to be a distinct type of citizen and he paid tribute to the thousands of adopted sons who have come here and given their lives for the country. New Jersey had taken a step in the education of foreign born and he considered that the State has a duty to perform in preserving the nation, the sanctity of the home and the ballot.

In presenting the last speaker, Governor Stokes, Mr. McCutchen referred to him as a "modest little gentleman." Turning to the chief executive he said, "I am the ruler for this evening and you are the subject." Mr. McCutchen briefly described his association with Governor Stokes, when the two with J. B. Betts formed a commission to revise the school laws, and he said that the willingness of the Governor to admit an error, he considered to be the finest trait and evidences of a great man.

As Governor Stokes arose to speak, the entire assemblage stood up and greeted him with applause. It was at the outset that he said that it was a pleasure to come to Union county, a county the home of an ex-Governor, who has no further troubles, the home of a United States Senator who is perfectly comfortable at this time, and he was glad to visit the home of a unanimous Mayor.

"You have the spirit of growth," continued the Governor, "and now that you have secured Mayor Smalley and the toastmaster of the evening. I am willing to sign the matrimonial papers, although I never signed my own. Still, I think it would be a good way to get my hand in. The United States has grown like the farmer who wanted to annex only the land adjoining his own. You can put England sixty-nine times on the map of the United States, without any danger of her slipping into the sea. However, territory never made a nation. It seems as though God intended the United States to play the important part in the world's history.

"The Panama Canal will bring that point 10,000 miles nearer to Europe. The Senator Beveridge has said that a ship starting for the Orient will be greeted by the American flag in Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. The resources of this country are adequate for the growth of our single days' grainings of the American people will pay for the Panama Canal, and it begins to look as though Gladstone's words that we are becoming the workshop of the world are coming true.

"We brought the world to see American products, American enterprise and we have ships second to none. The American people are a free people, with every opportunity to reach the highest places. We lead in the peace negotiations, being the important factor in the peace tribunal, where forty-seven matters of dispute have been arbritated, notably the Japanese and Russian differences and the Venezuela controversy."

Governor Stokes closed his interesting address by giving a graphic picture of the work of the United States in Cuba, the Philippines. He referred to the fine public school system, a united country of 80,000,000 people and he said that with mighty navies of the land and sea with perfect reliance in Him who rules above, the country could march on with confidence and courage. As the Governor closed his speech, the orchestra began playing the "Star Spangled Banner," the entire audience rising and joining in the chorus. This was followed by an informal reception when all were given an opportunity to meet the Governor and other speakers.

It was announced early in the evening that State Councilor Frank R. Shay, Past Grand Graduon E. Day, who were expected to speak, were detained, the former by illness, and the latter by business. State Vice Councilor J. M. Thompson, of New Egypt, represented the councilor, but did not speak. Between courses the excellent programme of music was given by the Vivo Orchestra, Martin A. Korff, leader.

The committee which arranged the banquet and attended to all details follows: A. D. Honeyman, chairman; Frank Miller, secretary; H. C. Currin, Jr., treasurer; H. C. Runyon, Dr. R. D. Tomlinson, P. H. Bennett, C. F. Platts, A. R. Tranchand, F. L. Soper, Jr., J. A. Dow, J. G. Bicknell and E. Gibson Smith.

The guests:

Mayor C. J. Fisk, Judge Francis Scott, Senator E. R. Ackerman, Governor Edward C. Stokes, S. St. J. McCutchen, Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, William H. Meiers, A. D. Honeyman, James M. Thompson.

A. R. Tranchand, M. F. Elderton, William De Larue, Augustus Smith, Frank Milliken, Jacob Adams, Henry Vosseler, Edward Laing, Horace G. Adams, Arthur J. Spicer, Fred Sebring, John Manley, P. H. Latourette, F. G. Welsh, Earl B. Smith, Fred R. Soper, J. Harry Cook, Frank Shelton, Frank Smith, George Ballentyne, Walter C. Dobbins, Frank Mobus, Harry Coddington, Clifford Compton, Clark Lowrey, Dr. A. H. Dundon, William Townsend, William Trembath, James R. Blair, Alvah Crocker, George Ezel, Augustus Windham, James H. Smith, James Arnold, Jr., Theodore Kurzhals, Joseph E. Plum, John M. Ayres, David Dunavan, William Addis, John G. Bicknell, T. E. Currin, Jr., Edgar Sheppard, Benjamin Peter Tillman, Frank H. Smith, W. R. Codington, George P. Mellick, John W. Murray, Jr., Andrew Gavett, A. R. Parkhurst, S. P. T. Wilbur, Herbert Buxton, Sanford Robinson, D. M. Runyon, Charles C. Burnett, S. S. Swackhamer, C. A. Marsh, Jr., F. MacDonald, H. C. Runyon, H. A. McGee, O. T. Waring, E. P. T. Smith, W. L. Smalley, J. B. Betts, J. L. Watson, M. C. Van Arsdale, George T. Rogers, Herbert L. Rogers, Charles A. Lee, Charles A. Reed, S. Smalley, H. Dolliver, John E. Dunn, H. J. Peddlton, O. G. Waring, Dr. R. D. Tomlinson, Henry Liefke, Charles Hand, H. R. Lamberger, Dr. Hubbard, W. S. Angleman, Charles H. Angleman, Asa F. Randolph, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., J. Henry Crane, V. W. Nash, Jr., Moses Schloss, Frank Linke, Ira L. LaRue, John I. Brokaw, W. A. Woodruff, A. S. Van Denburg, P. H. Bennett, W. H. Barrett, George Vanderhoef, H. Warren Rankin, Charles F. Dayton, Mahlon Dayton, Arthur Murphy, Charles A. Holt, R. H. Depew, H. C. Tracey, Charles Van Winkle, E. F. Vail, G. W. V. Moy, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Julius G. Williams, Julius M. Williams, Walter Walker, Henry Paul, L. C. Sheppard, J. D. Moon, Harry Knight, Alvah B. Dunham, L. C. R. Dunham, David Rockefeller, Theodore VanPelt, Albert Dayton, J. H. Freeman, C. F. Hulick, John W. Goff, Sheriff E. E. Cooper, County Clerk A. G. Anderson, Freeholder Lewis Fonga, of Somerville; E. Gibson Smith, Horace J. Martin, Theodore Martin, T. H. Tomlinson, M. D., O. B. Whitford, D. D. S., Dr. Frank F. Clawson, George White, John G. McLaughlin, William H. Kirch, W. A. Allen, Russell Hazard, George E. Saunders, J. V. F. Dilts.

CHICKEN SUPPER OF W. R. C. A SUCCESS

EXCELLENT COOKERY ENJOYED BY 250 DINERS, IN PLEASANT ATMOSPHERE.

Success to a notable degree marked the chicken supper held by the Women's Relief Corps, the G. A. R. auxiliary, at G. A. R. hall, East Front street, Thursday. Fully 250 suppers were served, and the menu and cookery were such as to send the 250 home, if not exactly "loud in their praises," at least earnest and decided.

Three large tables were attractively laid, and the walls were hung with the national colors. The dinner was informal, and the homelike atmosphere added to the enjoyableness.

The committee in charge was made up of Mrs. Andrew Cox, chairman; Mrs. Sarah Mattox, Mrs. Sarah Baglin, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Virginia Devine, Miss May Howlett, Mrs. Frederick Wenzel, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Mrs. Baglin, Miss Howlett, Miss Smith and Miss Devine presided at the table. Mrs. W. C. Smith assisted the committee in preparing the supper.

PHILIP WEINBERGER RETURNS TO UNCLE'S HOME

FOUND THROUGH NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENT AT BUFFALO.

Philip Weinberger, the seventeen-year-old son of the late Max Weinberger, of this city, who left Plainfield last October to visit his uncle in Chicago, and who was advertised for in last Sunday's New York Herald, has been heard from and this week he rejoined the home of his uncle, Moscowvitz Weinberger, at Summit, where he is at present and where he will remain indefinitely.

Young Weinberger was found employed on one of the steamers sailing on Lake Michigan and he had no thoughts of returning home for some time. The lad heard that he was wanted through the advertisement which was copied in Buffalo papers and decided to get into communication with William Neweorn, who represents the estate of the late Mr. Weinberger, whose son is one of the principal heirs.

Now that the son has been found further steps can be taken toward settling up the estate. The lad has always been a roving disposition and on several occasions has left home for indefinite periods. At one time he worked in his father's clothing store on West Front street, but it is said that he did not like the business, preferring to travel.

CENTRAL OFFICERS HONORED.

Vice President Besler and Gen. Supt. Huntington Presented With Badges.

Badges of honorary membership in the Veteran Employes' Association of the New Jersey Central were recently presented to Vice President and General Manager W. G. Besler and General Superintendent Huntington, as per resolution adopted at the last annual meeting of the association, held at Lake Hopatcong.

The badges are in the form of the official button of the association, suspended from a bar, containing the word "honorary." They are of solid gold and highly finished.

Messrs. Besler and Huntington are the only honorary members of the organization, membership in which is exclusively confined to such employes of the corporation as have been in the continuous employ of the New Jersey Central since 1876, thirty-one years.

The honor conferred upon the officials in question speaks in the most convincing terms of the reciprocal feeling which exists between the rank and file and the management of the Central.

The presentation of the badges was made by Messrs. Haines and Phipps, of the Executive Committee of the association.

REVIEW OF LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Historical Sketch Prepared by J. D. Spicer and Presented to Board of Directors.

COVERS FORTY YEARS

First Meeting Was Held on October 28, 1867, at Home of Alexander Gilbert—List of Presidents.

The following very interesting historical review was prepared by J. D. Spicer, and presented to the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. at their annual meeting January 29.

Mr. Spicer was for many years an officer and active member of the association, and since it has been necessary for him to forego official responsibilities has been one of the most valuable counselors and friends of the association.

The board highly appreciates the interest which has prompted Mr. Spicer in the preparation of so thorough a review, and it will be preserved among the permanent records of the association.

"On the evening of October 28th, 1867, an informal meeting was held at the residence of Alexander Gilbert, corner of Sixth street and Madison avenue. The object of the meeting was stated by Mr. Gilbert. Francis E. Marsh was appointed chairman, and H. Otis Newman, secretary of the meeting. Mr. Gilbert also presented the following preamble:

"'We, the undersigned, actuated by a desire to promote evangelical religion among the young men of Plainfield and vicinity, and impressed with the importance of concentrated effort to aid in accomplishing this object, do hereby form ourselves into an association to be known as 'The Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, New Jersey,' and we hereby agree to labor earnestly and unselfishly together in behalf of the great end proposed, and to be governed by such laws as may hereafter be adopted by the association.'

"There being only eight persons present, it was decided to adjourn for one week, hoping to have a larger attendance at that time.

"On November 4th, the adjourned meeting was held in the same place, at which Mr. Gilbert presented a copy of by-laws and constitution, which was duly considered and adopted. This was signed by the following fifteen persons present:

"Alexander Wiley, Jr., Henry Smith, Francis E. Marsh, H. Otis Newman, Robert E. Brand, Theodore Y. Bainbridge, Elston M. Dunn, Nelson Runyon, Charles H. Horton, M. D., James W. Jackson, Alexander Gilbert, Jr., Morehouse, A. C. Campbell, Randolph M. Stiles, A. T. Shotwell.

"Adjourned for one week.

"Met again on November 11th, Mr. Marsh in the chair, and Mr. Newman secretary. The following board of officers was elected as follows: Alexander Gilbert, F. E. Marsh, Henry Smith, J. W. Jackson, R. E. Brand, A. F. Campbell, H. O. Newman, Nelson Runyon, E. M. Dunn, T. Y. Bainbridge, C. H. Morehouse, Charles H. Horton.

"A meeting of the board of directors was held on November 18th, when the following officers were elected:

"Alexander Gilbert, president; J. W. Jackson, vice-president; H. O. Newman, recording secretary; Nelson Runyon, corresponding secretary; T. Y. Bainbridge, treasurer.

"At that meeting it was deemed advisable to secure suitable rooms for the use of the association, which resulted in the leasing of the second story of the building of Mr. Gilbert, on Cherry street, now 126 Park avenue. The first meeting held there was on February 11th, 1868. In the intervening time the Gazelle Engine Company tendered the use of their room hereafter.

"After that the association occupied rooms in the 'Flagg & Mundy building,' on Front street, in which the Dime Savings Bank has been long located. From there they moved to the 'Vandeventer building,' and from there to the 'Herbert building,' at Park and North avenue, where they remained until their own building was completed at East Front street and Watchung avenue, in 1894.

"The following officers have filled the respective positions during the forty years:

"Presidents — Alexander Gilbert, 1867-8; A. F. Campbell, 1869-70; C. W. McCutchen, 1871-75, 5 years; J. W. Jackson, 1876-77; C. E. Tyler, 1879; H. A. McGee, 1879; H. R. Manger, 1880-84, 5 years; H. O. Newman, 1885; R. M. Miller, 1886; W. S. Murray, 1887-97, 11 years; Stephen Cahoone, 1898-01, 7 years; J. W. Gavett, 1905-06.

"Vice-presidents—J. W. Jackson, 1867; A. F. Campbell, 1868 and 1874; C. W. McCutchen, 1869-70; H. D. Spicer, 1871-73, 3 years; C. E. Tyler, 1875; E. E. Mooney, 1876 and 1894-05, 15 years; M. Lee, 1879; George R. Cornwell, 1880-81; George A. Chapman, 1882-84, 3 years; F. J. Miller, 1885; E. St. John, 1886-87; D. E. Titsworth, 1888-92, 6 years; George M. Rittenhouse, 1906.

"Treasurers — T. Y. Bainbridge 1867; Francis E. Marsh, 1868; H. O. Newman, 1869-84 and 1892-98, 23 years; W. D. Murray, 1885-86; W. M. McGee, 1887; E. St. John, 1888-91, 4 years; C. M. Thorpe, 1899-06, 8 years.

"Recording Secretaries — Nelson Runyon, 1867; J. K. Meyers, 1868; William Raymond, 1869; John J. Perine, 1870; E. St. John, 1871-73, 3 years; S. F. Kimball, 1874-76, 3 years; George R. Cornwell, 1877; E. B. Anthony, 1878-79; W. M. McGee, 1880-82, 3 years; R. S. Mulford, 1883-86, 4 years; J. A. Robinson, 1887-88; T. Rushmore, 1889; James R. Joy, 1890-91; E. L. Walz, Jr., 1892-93; F. W. Yates, 1894; A. B. Beers, 1895-96 and 1899-06, 11 years; Curtis M. Thorpe, 1898.

"Corresponding Secretaries—H. O. Newman, 1867; A. T. Shotwell, 1868; A. F. Campbell, 1874-77, 5 years; J. W. Jackson, 1869 and 1873; T. C. Aldrich, 1870; John J. Perine, 1871; D. E. Davis, 1872; Wm. H. Sampson, 1878-79; R. C. Hoagland, 1880; H. J. Runyon, 1881-84, 4 years; C. E. Tyler, 1885-86; J. B. Drayton, 1881-84, 4 years; James R. Joy, 1888-89; J. A. Robinson, 1890; A. C. La Boytesaux, 1891; R. H. Radford, 1892-94, 3 years; John Valiant, 1895-97, 3 years. None elected since 1897.

"J. H. Manning, general secretary, February 28, 1887, to October 1, 1906, 19 years."

MISS DAISY ANNA DUNN BRIDE OF NEW YORK MAN

WEDDING CEREMONY PERFORMED AT HOME OF HER PARENTS YESTERDAY.

Miss Daisy Anna Dunn, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dunn, of Sandford avenue, and Henry Nicholas Feley, of New York, were married at 5:30 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of about sixty guests from New York, Winsted, Conn.; Newark, Elizabeth, Trenton, Philadelphia and Washington. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a brown chiffon broadcloth travelling gown and carried a bouquet of white fresia. Her sister, Miss Lorraine W. Dunn, who was bridesmaid, was gowned in white silk and carried a bouquet of roses. The groom man was Harry Ash, of New York, and the ushers were Wesley J. Dunn, brother of the bride, and Wilbur R. Dyson, of Winsted, Conn., brother-in-law of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding marches were played on the piano by Charles Suhr.

The decorations throughout the house were especially attractive. In the dining room the prevailing colors were pink and green and white in the ferns and roses. The parlor decorations were most effective, consisting of North Carolina long leaf pines and roses.

After the ceremony and congratulations supper was served and at 7:30 o'clock the bride and groom left for a wedding journey. Upon their return they will reside in New York. A large company of young people followed the couple to the North avenue station, where they showered them with rice. They entered the train and announced to all the passengers that Mr. and Mrs. Feley had just been married.

The bride was the recipient of a large array of valuable gifts, including solid silver, a substantial bank account, cut glass, linen, lace, etc.

The groom was formerly a resident of Winsted, Conn., and is now engaged in the wholesale stationery business in New York. Among the guests were his mother, Mrs. Julius Feley, and his sister from Winsted. The bride is well known here in a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Red Cross Aid for China.

The American National Red Cross is arranging to send 5,000 bushels of wheat for Spring planting to China to help relieve famine conditions there. It hopes to make the shipment at once, via the Pacific coast. This step is being taken at the request of American Consul Rodgers at Shanghai, the acting representative of the Red Cross, who cabled last week that "famine conditions are still worse. Chinese officials sending refugees home; smallpox prevalent. Will wheat for spring planting be sent?" The Red Cross announced this week that $17,000 had been collected for the Chinese famine fund, and that of this $5,000 had been abled to Mr. Rodgers for immediate use.

Trolleys Every Half-Hour.

Many complaints are heard about the new rule adopted for the operation of cars on the Arlington avenue line in the evening. After 9 o'clock the trolleys run every half-hour, which is contrary to the provisions of the franchise. It was understood that when the receipts of that line amounted to so much per day the cars were to be run every fifteen minutes, and this was done. Recently, a change was made to the half-hour schedule and patrons are finding much fault.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Matalie C. Kastner, daughter of F. J. Kastner, of Clinton avenue, Newark, to William B. Henry, of Somerville. Miss Kastner is a frequent local visitor and has many friends in the city and borough.

AUTO STRIKES CARRIAGE

Latter Vehicle Reduced to Kindling Wood But Driver Escapes Unhurt.

THE HORSE CUT LOOSE

Machine Was Driven By Sigfeid Arens and Had To Be Taken to Repair Shop.

Sigfeid Arens, driving his Jackson touring car south on Park avenue, at a lively clip Thursday, ran into Dr. J. H. Carman's rig at the corner of Sixth street. The force of the collision was so great that the rig was carried up on the sidewalk, the coachman, Bert Cuff, colored, was thrown out, and the horse which was cut loose from the carriage, ran away and was caught an hour later in Netherwood. The front of the automobile was greatly damaged and had to be taken to the repair shop. Mr. Arens luckily escaped injury.

Dr. Carman's rig was on its way from Blair's livery stable to his office when the accident occurred. The coachman was driving through Sixth street toward Watchung avenue, and was crossing Park avenue, when the automobile approached. Mr. Arens evidently thought that he would have no trouble in clearing the carriage and did not slacken his speed. The coachman, it is said, was given no warning of the approaching machine and did not see it until he was thrown out in the roadway. Aside from a good shaking up he received no injury.

The carriage was a complete wreck, the wheels and body being reduced to kindling wood and the shafts broken. The horse, a spirited animal, became unmanageable and before he could be caught made a wild dash through Sixth street.

Cuff, the driver of Dr. Carman's rig, claims that he was not responsible for the accident. He says that from his position in the carriage he was unable to look either to his right or left, but that when he started to cross Park avenue the road was clear. The roadway is rather slippery from the rain and it is believed that the automobile may have skidded a little and prevented Mr. Arens from steering clear of the carriage. Mr. Arens was alone in his car and was returning to his home on Rahway road. That neither he or the coachman in the carriage was not seriously injured is considered remarkable.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL PUPILS ENTERTAIN.

Present a Varied Programme Before a Large Audience at the Casino.

An excellent programme of singing, calisthenics and gymnasium work was given at the Casino, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the pupils of the Hartridge School, showing the progress made during the first quarter. The pupils acquitted themselves with much credit and the programme was greatly enjoyed by the large audience present.

The vocal selections were as follows:

"To Thee, O Country;" Eichberg, academic and elementary departments; "On the Wild Rose Tree," E. Smith, academic and elementary departments; "My Playmate," Abt, third, fourth, fifth and sixth elementary; "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" Schubert, academic and third, fourth, fifth and sixth elementary; "Firemen," Nevin; "Morning Glory," Chadwick, first and second elementary; "Gypsy Life," Schumann, seventh elementary and academic; "All Through the Night," Old Welsh, academic and elementary departments.

The calisthenics exercises were as follows: March, second, third, fourth, fifth grade elementary; sixth grade elementary, wand drill; seventh grade elementary, first and second grades academic, Swedish dance; third, fourth and fifth grades academic-Russian Polonaise.

The programme closed with the gymnasium work which included dumb-bells, Indian clubs, dance and heavy work. Each part of the programme was in charge of the several teachers and their careful training was shown to good advantage.

A DOUBLE CELEBRATION.

Mother and Son Observe Birthday Anniversaries at Same Time.

An event of unusual interest occurred at Oak Tree, Thursday, when a double birthday celebration was held at the home of Mrs. Eunice Van Court. Last Sunday Mrs. VanCourt was sixty-seven years old and her son, W. E. VanCourt, celebrated the forty-ninth anniversary of his birthday yesterday. Both anniversaries occurring on the same week. The events were observed at the same and place.

A sumptuous dinner was served, about twenty-five guests being present. After the feast the time was spent in playing parlor games and enjoying excellent music. Both Mrs. VanCourt and her son were the recipients of many handsome gifts from relatives and friends. They have been residents of Oak Tree for many years and are well known in Plainfield.

URGES LEGAL ACTION AGAINST COUNTY BOARD

F. DeL. Hyde Says Somerset's Freeholders Discriminate Against Borough in Spending Money.

QUOTES FIGURES

Asserts That Citizens Should Be Treated Better Even If They Have to Appeal to the Legislature.

Asserting that North Plainfield has been grossly neglected by the Somerset county Board of Freeholders in the expenditure of moneys, Francis De L. Hyde, one of his largest taxpayers, made formal protest to the Borough Council last night. In a lengthy communication based on facts and figures obtained by two men at his personal expense, he declares that legal steps should be taken to bring about a change and that if the citizens cannot secure their rights in any other way, the Legislature should be appealed to in order to have taxes distributed in a fair and proportionate manner.

The communication was in line with what Mayor Smalley said in his annual address to the Council last month and it was the opinion then that something should be done. The executive again commented on the matter Friday night and Mr. Hyde's statement was placed in the hands of the committee on Laws, Ordinance and Taxation with instructions to act.

The communication from Mr. Hyde was as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield:

Gentlemen:

The gross disproportion between the amount of county taxes paid by property owners in this borough and the amount expended by the Board of Freeholders for public improvements within the limits of the borough has long been the cause of indignant protest by our taxpayers, but if such protests have had any effect upon the Board of Freeholders beyond exciting their amusement and confirming their assumption of the attitude of "what are you going to do about it," it has escaped my notice. Perhaps the most striking disparity is to be found with respect to the expenditures by the Board of Freeholders for road improvements. Taking the years from 1897 down to May 10, 1905, the total expenditures by the Board on county roads, as shown by the official reports of the County Collector, amounted to $337,935.73, of which there was expended during those years upon the county roads located within the Township and Borough of North Plainfield only $10,788.91. On the basis of taxes actually paid by the taxpayers of this Borough and Township our share ought to have been more than four times as much; and on the basis of population, our share ought to have been more than five times as much. Hillsborough Township, with less than half the population of the Township and Borough of North Plainfield, has had expended by the Board of Freeholders upon its roads during these years nearly eight times as much as we have, in proportion to tax valuations. Out of the total number of roads and roads built by the expense of the county during these years, namely, approximately seventy-three miles, we had built not exceeding two and one-half miles.

Accompanying this communication, are tables showing the several amounts expended during each of the years referred to in the several political divisions of the county and the percentages which such several expenditures bear to their population and net valuation of taxable property respectively, and a map of the county on which are graphically shown by signal lines in red the location of all the county roads built during said years. These documents speak for themselves and reveal an abuse of the power lodged in the Board of Freeholders so great as to shock every man's sense of justice and equity. If such abuse of power is subject to correction by the courts, your Honorable Body, I respectfully submit, ought in the interests of the public welfare, to initiate such legal proceedings as will be effectual in righting the wrong. If the statute under which the Board of Freeholders has made such an unjust and inequitable apportionments of public moneys among the several political divisions of the county gives the Board power to make such apportionment it sees fit to make without regard to, and in contemptuous defiance of any principle of fair play and the equal rights of our citizens and taxpayers, then the statute which permits such an injustice ought to be changed by the law-making power.

Speaking for myself and on behalf of many other taxpayers who have urged me to communicate with your Honorable Body, I respectfully urge that the whole matter be referred to the counsel for the Borough with instructions to institute legal proceedings to secure our rights, if any such proceedings are available, and if not, then to prepare a bill for presentation to the Legislature now in session by the terms of which Boards of Freeholders shall be commanded to pay some regard to the equal rights of taxpayers and to the principles of fair play in the expenditure of public moneys raised by tax which the constitution and laws of the State require to be assessed upon all property "by uniform rules and according to its true value."

Respectfully submitted,

F. DE L. HYDE,

President of Union County Investment Company, Plainfield, N. J.

Feb. 1, 1907.

BOROUGH FINANCES DETAILED IN REPORT

EXPERTS PRESENT RESULT OF RECENT AUDITING OF BOOKS.

At Friday's meeting of the Borough Council, Suffern & Sons, who recently audited the books of the clerk, car collector and police officials, submitted a complete and concise report of the fiscal year ending December 31, 1906. It went further than is usual under the circumstances and detailed the presumably realizable assets of the municipality and the liabilities. Mayor Smalley had the entire report read for the benefit of the councilmen and it showed them as nothing else has in a long time just where the borough stands in the matter of finances. Part of it will be embodied in the regular report of the clerk prepared for publication.

According to the statement from the experts, the cash balance on hand December 31 was $2,370.76. The total receipts for the year were $81,-756.31 and the expenditures $75,-385.55. The current assets and liabilities are given as follows: Current assets, cash, $2,370.76; unpaid taxes, $13,527.10; total, $16,897.95; current liabilities, Board of Health, $10; special school tax, $13,329.25; notes payable, $1,000; total, $14,339.25.

Referring to the assets and liabilities, the report says: "Through these it will be seen that if the borough were able to collect all the unpaid taxes standing on its books, they would only suffice to offset the interest still due to the Board of Education for the special school tax and the notes payable at the bank. This illustrates the rigid operation of the new school law which requires of the borough to pay a specific proportion for said purposes of all the taxes levied, whether the same be collected or not. The deferred obligations will in the future as in the past be easily met, as their maturity dates makes the burden light."

In the regular business routine, a petition was received from residents of Somerset street asking for the widening of that thoroughfare from Jackson avenue to Johnson's drive. It was signed by Charles Jenser, John Wolff and others owning over a hundred of the property frontage.

Recorder Dolliver reported that fifteen prisoners had been arraigned before him during January and that $11 in fines had been collected. He also informed the board that he had issued 15 warrants under civil system in the conduct of the court. On resolutions offered by Mr. McGee $2,000 was ordered borrowed for general purposes and $2,500 if found necessary for Somerset street certificates and Watchung avenue bonds. Patrick McDonough was appointed a call man in the fire department.

The February Burr McIntosh Monthly.

The color work of this beautiful magazine has always been a source of great admiration and those who have seen it, particularly as the publishers have been able to get some most unique effects by the use of color. The February number, now on the news stands, is unusually strong in this respect. In its pages are reproductions of a collection of photographs are shown of Geraldine Ferrar, Emma Eames, Madam DiChisneros, Madam Jacoby, M. Renaud, M. Delmores and Fernand Sonbeyran, all of the Metropolitan Opera Company. An extremely pretty page illustrates "Madam Butterfly" as presented by the Savage Opera Company. An interesting illustrated article on American opera singers on the German stages will be appreciated by all Americans who are interested in music. Under the always interesting caption People of Note, Professor Stoddard, the author, Charles Klein, the famous playwright, the late Samuel Spencer, of the Southern railroad, Cardinal Gibbons, representing the Church of Rome in America, the late Walter Appleton Clark among the foremost illustrators of the day, and H. H. Rogers, of Standard Oil fame, are prominent. A specially interesting form is printed in the number of purple, illustrating in text and picture the winter exhibition of the National Academy of Design. Altogether this issue is unusually beautiful as well as extremely varied in its contents.

Pension for Plainfielder.

Senator John Kean has introduced a bill to grant an original pension of $12 a month to James Huntington, of this city.

TRINITY MISSION BAND OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

INTERESTING MEETING MARKS COMPLETION OF TENTH YEAR.

The election of officers, the presentation of interesting reports and an address delivered by Mrs. J. S. Allen, secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church in America, combined to make the tenth anniversary meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, an interesting and profitable one, Friday afternoon. There was a large attendance and after the meeting all remained to enjoy a tea served by members of the band.

The meeting marked the retirement of Miss Lillian A. Force as president. She has held the office two years, and an expression of appreciation for her faithful services was given at the close of the meeting. The band met at 2:30 o'clock and elected these officers: President, Miss Mabel Wilson; vice president, Mrs. F. S. Cutter; recording secretary, Miss Edna Cole; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff; treasurer, Miss Cora Miller.

The various committees submitted reports for the year, showing the progress made in home and foreign mission work. The mite boxes were also returned and the amount received will be announced later. At the general meeting held later in the afternoon, Miss Force conducted the opening exercises and presided. In view of it being the tenth anniversary of the band, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, corresponding secretary, submitted a report for the past nine years, while Miss Edna Cole, the recording secretary, gave the report for the tenth year.

Mrs. Woodruff's report showed that the band was organized ten years ago with forty-nine charter members. The late Mrs. E. B. Horton, whose place has been taken by Mrs. J. S. Allen, was present at the first meeting. Mrs. C. P. Leggett, who originated the idea of forming the band, was elected the first president. During the nine years thirteen barrels and boxes of clothing and other useful things were sent to foreign and home mission fields. The band has supported a native girl in India and the total value of the boxes, barrels and contents sent out amounted to $445.

Miss Cole's report for the past year showed that four new members were elected, making the total membership forty-nine, thirty-eight active and eleven honorary.

At this time Mrs. Theodore Mantz and Miss Ida Yeager favored the audience with a duet, accompanied on the piano by Miss Force. Later Miss Mantz sang a soprano solo and Miss Leitheusser gave a piano selection, which were greatly enjoyed.

The report of Miss Cole, treasurer, showed the receipts for the year to be $269,64, including a balance of $210.33 at last report. The present balance in the treasury is $122.20.

This concluded the business of the afternoon and Mrs. Allen was then introduced. She is a delightful speaker and held the close attention of all while she told of the home mission work being carried on. She declared that there is no greater field than that which the band has been and *congratulated the band upon its ac*complishments. She gave an interesting description of the work in Kansas, Iowa and especially among the Mountain Whites of Kentucky where she recently made a visit. Her picture of the scenes and incidents in the lives of the Mountain Whites elicited the warmest enthusiasm for this work. Her words were encouraging to the members of the band and at the close Mrs. Allen was thanked heartily for her talk.

A social hour was then enjoyed and tea was served. Mrs. F. S. Cutter and Mrs. Corra Ryno poured tea and four young women attired in foreign costume, acted as waitresses. Miss Cora Gano represented Africa, Miss Margaret Leggett, India; Miss Helen Smith, China, and Miss Alice Vroom, Japan.

At the next meeting of the band the new president will announce the committees for the coming year.

Water Commission to Meet.

The water investigating commission which is taking up the question of the advisability of Plainfield purchasing its present source of water supply or establish one of its own, will meet in this city Friday night. Charles J. Fisk on Friday night, February 8, when it is expected that reports will be made of the progress made thus far. It is understood that the committee has been losing no time in getting at their work and that a great deal has been accomplished.

Another Grove for Democrats' Fete.

The outing committee of the Elizabeth City Democrat executive committee completed Friday all arrangements for the annual outing of the Union county Democrats. It had been planned to have the affair take place at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, but owing to the recent death of Mr. Donnelly the programme was changed and the Democratic warriors will now go to Wiltzel's Grove, Pointview Island. Thursday, August 22, has been selected for the date of the outing and the iron steamboat Sirius has been chartered for the event.

NO COLBY TICKET IN UNION COUNTY NEXT FALL

THAT IS, IF SENATOR COLBY CAN HAVE HIS WAY.

Elizabeth, Feb. 2.—There will be no Colby ticket this year in the Union county Republican promaries of the Senator from Essex has his way. The fight which Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, have made against the re-election of John F. Dryden to the Senatorship has brought about this result. Mr. Colby has made it known to come of his friends that he will discountenance the placing of a "New Idea" ticket in the field at the Union primaries next fall.

It has just become known to others than those present that at the Republican conference at Trenton Monday of last week Mr. Perkins, explaining the difficult position of Union county's representatives, denounced Senator Everett Colby for his attacks during the campaign, especially in the Hillery debate, for his attacks on men of high character like Senator Ackerman. "We have to fight the Democrats and also the Colbyites. That," said Perkins, "is no way to support the Republican party."

Senator Colby was surprised by the unexpected attack, and, interrupting Mr. Perkins, apologized to Senator Ackerman and others for what had been said in the heat of a bitter campaign.

This did not end the matter, and an agreement has been reached whereby Colby will not only leave Union county alone, but will come over from Essex and help in the campaign to elect a Republican Governor.

Senator Colby, when asked if there would be no Colby party this coming fall, replied that he could not prevent people from putting up tickets at the primaries.

"But," said he, "never forget that we are Republicans and are going to do all we can to build up the party and will work for its success."

HORSEMEN ANXIOUS FOR A BOROUGH SPEEDWAY.

Meeting Will be Held Shortly to Discuss Establishment of One on Brookside Park.

Horsemen of Plainfield and North Plainfield are greatly interested in the establishment of a speedway and a meeting will be held within a short time to take steps in the matter. The owners of property on Greenbrook road, Brookside, Sand and Rock avenues, have dedicated the same to the borough, and it is considered ideal for a speedway.

The thoroughfare in question is eighty feet wide and with the expenditure of a little money could be put in fine condition forspeeding. There are a large number of owners of fast horses in this section who have at various times attempted to establish a speedway, but failed. The prospects now better than ever and there appears to be no obstacles in the way of accomplishing the desided purpose.

As usual, Lippincott's Magazine for February opens with a first-quality complete novel—"Nance," by Robert Adger Bowen. This is a fascinating, rapid-acting tale of modern society in the South. The men and women who figure in its pages are bright and agreeable and well-bred, and not the so-called "smart" people of questionable reputation—though of course there is the inevitable commingling of said smart ones of society with the well-bred ones. The picture of the scenes and incidents in the lives of the Mountain Whites elicited the warmest enthusiasm for this work. Her words were encouraging to the members of the band and at the close Mrs. Allen was thanked heartily for her talk.

A social hour was then enjoyed and tea was served. Mrs. F. S. Cutter and Mrs. Corra Ryno poured tea and four young women attired in foreign costume, acted as waitresses. Miss Cora Gano represented Africa, Miss Margaret Leggett, India; Miss Helen Smith, China, and Miss Alice Vroom, Japan.

At the next meeting of the band the new president will announce the committees for the coming year.

Water Commission to Meet.

The water investigating commission which is taking up the question of the advisability of Plainfield purchasing its present source of water supply or establish one of its own, will meet in this city Friday night. Charles J. Fisk on Friday night, February 8, when it is expected that reports will be made of the progress made thus far. It is understood that the committee has been losing no time in getting at their work and that a great deal has been accomplished.

Another Grove for Democrats' Fete.

The outing committee of the Elizabeth City Democrat executive committee completed Friday all arrangements for the annual outing of the Union county Democrats. It had been planned to have the affair take place at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, but owing to the recent death of Mr. Donnelly the programme was changed and the Democratic warriors will now go to Wiltzel's Grove, Pointview Island. Thursday, August 22, has been selected for the date of the outing and the iron steamboat Sirius has been chartered for the event.

SPLENDID SINGING BY GRACE CHURCH CHOIR

"THE DAUGHTER OF JAIRUS" RENDERED WITH MARKED EXCELLENCE.

Unusual excellence marked the presentation of Stainer's "The Daughter of Jairus," by the choir of Grace Protestant Episcopal church Thursday. The choral work was all that could be desired, and the solos were splendid. A large congregation enjoyed the programme.

The work is short, but it is intensely religious and it was presented with a noteworthy degree of impressiveness last night. Mrs. Theodore Mantz, William Tallamy and Arthur Chamberlain sang the solo parts as the most exacting could have them sung. Mr. Tallamy's singing was especially fine. His enunciation, expression and phrasing were of that high order of merit that calls for the highest words of praise in the critic's vocabulary.

W. E. MacClymont, the organist, directed the singing with his usual *skill. The works that are being pre*sented at Grace are worthy of larger congregations than they have drawn. They are given entirely for the benefit of the music-loving public, and the latter would be but caring for itself by showing that they are appreciated. The music-lovers who failed to hear last night's service missed an evening that would have lingered long in their memories.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MAKE PLANS FOR A JOINT FAIR.

All the City Circles Will Unite to Clear Debt on Day Nursery.

The various circles of King's Daughters of the city which are interested in the plans for a large fair to be held in the spring for the benefit of the Day Nursery were represented at a meeting held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Butler, on East Ninth street. There are now eleven circles and all were represented. Reports were received showing that every circle is willing to assist in carrying out the plans and it was decided to hold a fair at the Casino on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 10, 11 and 12, and the details will be announced later.

The purpose for holding the fair is to raise $1,000, which is now due on the purchase price of the Day Nursery property on West Third street. When the King's Daughters purchased the property for $2,600, $600 was paid down. $1,000 of the $2,000 remaining is now due. At the meeting this morning Mrs. E. F. Pickard was elected treasurer. Another meeting will be held on Wednesday morning, February 20, to complete the details for the fair.

MISS BUCKLEY SURPRISED.

Young Friends Tender Her an Enjoyable Party.

In honor of Miss Florence Buckley a surprise party was given to her at her home on Orchard place Friday night. The affair was arranged by Miss Jennie Quinn and Miss Margaret Townley. A feature of the evening was a flashlight picture taken by Thomas Fay. There was an informal programme of vocal selections by Miss Ida Quinn and Harold Gloak. The home was attractively decorated in pink and green. Following the evening's festivities refreshments were served.

Those present were the Misses Mamie Day, Margaret Townley, Florence Buckley, Sadie Leahy, Marion Hefferan, Margaret Buckley, Marion Higgins, Ida Quinn, Stella Maag, Mary Burns, Madeline Seaman, Nora Callahan, Virginia Buckley, Jeanie Higgins, May Hughes, May Buckley and Joe Carty, Edward O'Loughlin, Bert Miller, Clifford Cole, George Flatly, William Townley, Jr., Harold Gloak, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fay, Mr. and Mrs. Finney, Mr. and Mrs. McClellan and William Jukes, of Frederick City, Md.

ARRANGED HER FUNERAL.

Aged Newark Woman Named People She Wanted at the Service.

Mrs. Annie Kreamer, eighty-two years old, who committd suicide in her rooms at No. 416 Fifteenth avenue, Newark, some time Monday afternoon by swallowing carbolic acid, made full preparation for the funeral which was held yesterday.

Under date of January 23, she made out a list of eighteen persons she wished to have attend her funeral. The note reads:

Mr. George Brueckner: To be interred between her two daughters and two sons, in Woodlawn cemetery. This is Mrs. Anne Kreamer's wish when she passes away from this world. This to be given to Mr. George Brueckner when the time comes. Persons who are to be in the four coaches.

Then follow a list of eighteen of her relatives and friends. Mr. Brueckner is an undertaker.

Cigars and Cigars.

Customer—I want a cigar.

Dealer—Yes, sir. Here's a good cigar. Five cents straight.

Customer—I want a cigar.

Dealer—Beg your pardon, sir. Here's our special fifteen cent straight.—Catholic Standard and Times.

CITY TAX RATE TO FIGURE IN CONSOLIDATION PLANS

RECOMMENDATIONS OF COMMISSION WILL BE BASED UPON INCREASE.

In the opinion of those well informed concerning the investigation into the question of consolidation of the borough and city, which is being conducted by a commission appointed a few weeks ago, the recommendations of the commission either for or against the proposition, will be based solely on the increased expense to the taxpayers of Plainfield. One of the most important questions to be taken up soon will be that of tax rate. Under the consolidation plan there would be undoubtedly an increased rate and the chances are that as Plainfield has the largest population the greatest expense would be upon its taxpayers.

There will also be a consideration of the fact that North Plainfield would have to be supplied with sewers, greater police and fire protection, which would mean a great expense and the question to be decided is would the taxes paid by the residents of the borough be adequate to meet the increase. The question of tax rate will probably be one of the most difficult and it is said that upon that will largely depend the recommendations of the commission. It is said that the tax rate question will be taken up at the next meeting of the commission for consideration.

NO CONTEST OVER WILL OF MR. AND MRS. ISAAC DUNN.

All of Wife's Property Is To Revert to Her Sister, Mrs. Cuming, of This City.

There will be no contest over the disposition of the property of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Campbell Dunn, who were killed at the Stelton crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad on December 18. The will of Mrs. Dunn has been filed with Surrogate Peter Francis Daly at New Brunswick, and its terms make a contest on her property impossible. Letters of administration have been asked by Mr. Dunn's family, there being no will.

At the time of the tragedy it was said that both Mr. and Mrs. Dunn had left wills leaving their property to one another, and that to settle the estates it would be necessary to prove which died first, something eye-witnesses were unable to testify to. Mr. Dunn's will, however, disproves these suppositions. It provides that all her property shall go to her children, if she had any, which she had not, and, failing issue, it was to be divided into five equal parts, two going to her sister, Mrs. Adah M. Cuming, of this city, and three to her husband, he to have the income from his share during his lifetime and to draw on the principal only in case of his exhausting his private means. The husband's will was left to Mrs. Cuming at his death. The Dunns were reputed to have a large amount of property.

MRS. ELIZABETH C. MORRIS.

Passed Away Suddenly at House of Her Nephew, E. M. VanBuren.

Miss Elizabeth Crary Morris, aged 82 years, died suddenly Thursday at the home of her nephew, Edward Morris VanBuren, on Central avenue, from heart failure. She was born in New York and had been a resident of this city about twenty-five years. She lived a quiet retired life, and while not publicly identified with any charities, was a liberal contributor to those in this city, which included the hospital and the missionary societies of the church, of which she was a member.

Prior to moving to Plainfield Miss Morris used to spend some time at the country seat of her father at Bellerville. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. D. T. VanBuren, three newphews, Lewis G. Timpson, Edward M. VanBuren, Laurens H. VanBuren, of this city; two other sisters, Mrs. William Stiger, of New York, and Mrs. Robert Helfenstein, of Elizabeth, and a niece, Mrs. F. R. Lefferts, of New York.

A SCOTCH PLAINS WEDDING.

Miss Minnie Guest Made the Bride of John H. Lewis, of Flemington.

Miss Minnie Guest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Guest, of Scotch Plains, and John H. Lewis, of Flemington, were married at 6 o'clock Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents. There were guests from Westfield, Plainfield, Somerville, Flemington, Middle Valley and Scotch Plains. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James F. Hoffman, of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mattie Hull, of Scotch Plains, and Mr. McAuslen, of Philadelphia, was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony and super was served. After a wedding journey the couple will reside at Flemington. The bride was formerly employ d as a saleswoman at H. A. Bonn's store on West Front street.

State Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The third biennial State convention of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at Elizabeth, February 21 to 24. W. D. Murray, of this city, will be one of the principal speakers. Plainfield Y. M. C. membership will be well represented.

BOARDER WOULD NOT GO

And Landlady Had a Policeman Come to Shoo Him Away.

LAWYER GETS IN CASE

Landlady Says He Made Threats in an Effort to Get Her to Drop Complaint.

On complaint of his landlady, Fred D. Seeley, a dry goods clerk, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning because he raised a ruction at his boarding house yesterday and refused to leave when she ordered him out. The landlady is Mrs. Robert Stiles, of West Front street.

She sent for an officer yesterday afternoon, to have Seeley taken from the house, but would not order his arrest when Patrolman Overbaugh responded to the call. She appeared in court this morning, and said she couldn't stand the racket any more, and wanted Seeley arrested. She said he refused to leave the house, and had had her threatened by a lawyer. Chief Kiely sent Overbaugh after Seeley and had the man arraigned under a charge of disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Stiles told the magistrate that Seeley had drunk heavily yesterday afternoon with another boarder named Johnson, and that he started on a rampage. She says he thrust her from in front of her kitchen table, where she was working, and raised a chair to strike her when she protested. She says he assailed her thirteen-year-old daughter with foul language.

Last night, she said, Attorney Fred J. Huff, came to her house and asked her to promise not to appear against Seeley. She says she refused, and that her refsal was met with threats to make trouble if she persisted. She swore Mr. Huff said that if she appeared against Seeley stories reflecting on her and injurious to her business would be brought out. She said she couldn't remember the lawyer's exact words, but she gathered the impression that things were to be made hot for her if she pressed a complaint. She said Mr. Huff came to her house twice. There was nothing in her life, she testified, or in the lives of her house, that she feared to have made public. Seeley, questioned as to that, said he hadn't a word to say that might reflect on Mrs. Stiles.

He said he knew nothing of the lawyer's moves in the matter until after he came home last night. He said Johnson must have got Mr. Huff into the case. He said the lawyer was a friend of his.

Mrs. Stiles told Judge Runyon that she would be satisfied if Seeley was kept away from her house. Seeley said his trunk was all packed, and the magistrate told him to send for it. He was warned to stay away from *the house, and released under sus*pended sentence. Mrs. Stiles was told to inform the police if Seeley appeared at the place again.

According to the testimony of both of them, Seeley and Mrs. Stiles have known each other for years. He is said to have boarded with the Stiles for five years, and was a friend of Mrs. Stiles' husband, who, according to the complainant, went to California last May. Stiles is a bricklayer, and is said to have been attracted to the Pacific coast by high wages paid in the vicinity of San Francisco after the earthquake.

CONCERT AND DANCE.

Pleasant Affair Held by St. Faith's Guild Last Night.

Under the auspices of St. Faith's Giuld, the Plainfield Brass Band gave a concert at the parish house of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, Thursday. Dancing followed the concert. The attendance was large. The auditorium was handsomely decorated with flowers, and large framed portraits of George Washington.

The band played excellently, under the leadership of David Lawson. Ten numbers were rendered, and all of them were enthusiastically applauded. The band was tendered a testimonial following the concert.

The Guild conducted an ice cream sale in connection with the dance. The whole membership worked as a committee in charge, under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Guinn and Miss Edna Willis.

Party for Emily VanWinkle.

In honor of the sixth anniversary of her birthday, Emily VanWinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson VanWinkle, of West End avenue, entertained a number of her young friends on Monday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Van Winkle. During the afternoon the children played games, after which refreshments were served. A feature was a birthday basket bearing six candles which were lighted during the supper hour. Little Miss VanWinkle received a number of gifts from relatives and friends including a photograph of her mother when she was twelve years old. Those present were Pinnie Ryder, Helen Ryder, Lillian VanWinkle, Adele Bye, Helen Wood, Erma Gordon Dobbins, Emily Van Winkle, "Teddy" Ryder, Nelson VanWinkle, Jr., Herbert Wood.

ANSWERS MR. BUTTFIELD

Council Committee Tells what It Will Cost Borough to Use City Sewage System.

GIVES FLAT RATE

Quotes $25 Per Million Gallons for a Term of Ten Years, Provided It is Legal.

The street committee of the Common Council to which was referred the communication of W. J. Buttfield, secretary of the North Plainfield Sewage Commission, in which he sought information as to conditions, terms, etc., whereby the borough might secure sanitary sewers by connecting with Plainfield's system, reported at the February meeting of the Common Council, Monday night through the chairman, Mr. Ginna. The report was adopted and the city clerk was authorized to communicate the same to Mr. Buttfield. The report follows:

"The committee on streets and sewers would report as follows upon the petition of W. J. Buttfield, secretary of the North Plainfield Sewage Commission.

"Your committee would recommend as a preliminary understanding that in order to accommodate our neighboring borough, the city make a contract, provided it has a legal right to do so, to treat the sewage from the Borough of North Plainfield for a term of ten years at the rate of $25 per million gallons. It should be understood that the proposed sewage system in the borough shall be so constructed as to exclude infiltration of ground water, in order that it may be possible to predict, with reasonable certainty, what amount of sewage may be expected.

"To this end the plans of the proposed system, and the construction material and workmanship of the same shall be subject to approval by an engineer for the city, the expense of such examination and inspection to be paid by the borough, but such examination and inspection not to be construed to relieve the borough from the responsibility of securing tight sewers.

"It is expected that an addition to the contract beds would need to be made in about two years and it is suggested that at the expiration of eight years notice may be given by either party that the agreement shall terminate at the end of the ten years period."

VACANCIES FILLED IN CITY FIRE DEPARTMENT

MAYOR FISK WITHDRAWS HIS RECENT POLICE APPOINTMENTS.

In view of the several vacancies in the call and regular force of the fire department, Mayor Charles J. Fisk made several appointments at the February meeting of the Common Council, Monday, all of which were confirmed. John A. Townley was appointed a member of the regular department in place of Harry Bush, resigned; James H. Compton was appointed a call-man in place of David B. Dunavan, resigned, and Thomas Cavalear was appointed a call-man in place of Theodore J. LaRue, resigned. The Mayor appointed John Neylon a call-man in place of Daniel V. Brown, but as the latter had not resigned, the appointment was withdrawn.

At the request of Mayor Fisk the appointments to fill the offices of captain, sergeant and detective-sergeant in the fire department, were withdrawn and returned to him. The appointments were made at the meeting on January 7, but failed of confirmation because Chairman Frank Randolph, of the police committee, sought to have all three appointees, Christian Frederickson, John Flynn and Florence McCarthy, confirmed at once. The matter will probably come up again later on, when Mr. Randolph recovers from his illness.

The following special policemen, appointed by the Mayor were confirmed:

Frank Day, David F. Stewart, Edwin Dobbs, Nathan Pollard, William Forrestel, John Albert, Jeremiah Cash, Fred Winn, Jacob Krinebo, Americus C. Brancati, Edward Mattis, Charles J. McCarthy, Samuel S. Robinson, Horatio Clark, Jacob Dunham, Rutherford B. Dally, Charles F. Peterson, Alexander D. Ayers, William Addis, W. R. Overland, Frank Sweeney, Tobias W. Nolan, Cornelius McCarthy, Henry Pugh, Charles Hattis, Frank Kelso, Jesse M. Scull, Joseph N. Morrison, Benjamin D. Evans, George A. Broadbent, Henry S. Peterson, T. J. Clarkson, Robert Mc-Cormick, Tucker Johnson, Isaac Kennedy, Edward Maynard, George Dean, Edgar Brokaw, Henry Adams, F. S. Pearce, Thomas Morcom and Daniel McCarthy.

Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, who was very ill for a number of weeks, is much improved and able to be about the house.

Edward Bowman, of West Second street, is confined to his home with an attack of the grip.

LAWSON SYNDICATE ATTACHED BY LOCAL MAN

H. G. RUNKLE ALLEGES MONEY FOR COPPER MINES WAS USED IMPROPERLY

Two orders of attachment of $500,000 each were issued yesterday by Judge Lawson in the Superior Court at Boston in favor of Henry G. Runkle, of this city, on the funds and property of Albert C. Burrage, Thos. W. Lawson, G. H. Burrage, the Eliot National Bank, National Shawmut Bank and the firm of Hayden, Stone and Company, bankers and brokers.

The orders were granted because of the two suits brought about three years ago. The first suit is to recover $386,125 subscribed by persons in 1899 to a syndicate for the purpose of developing copper mines in New Mexico and Arizona. It is alleged that the syndicate did not exercise reasonable care and judgment in the spending of the funds and received profit from the promotion.

The second suit is to recover $20,000 given by Runkle for the same purpose.

The bill of complaint alleges that Lawson Burrage and others organized a $500,000 syndicate to buy copper mines in Mexico and Arizona, and received subscriptions from a number of persons to the amount of $400,000 on representations that were not carried out.

It is alleged that they did not use proper judgment and prudence in the investment of the funds of the syndicate, but devoted them to the purchase of unworked and unprofitable copper mines, received large personal profits for the promotion of the enterprise, and offered the subscriber an unfair and disproportionate amount of the stock of the Arimex Consolidated Copper Company, which acquired the purchased properties.

Runkle declared himself willing to deliver the receipts and certificates of the subscribers represented by him, but wanted the defendants ordered to pay back what the subscribers paid in.

CITY FINDS IT CANNOT COLLECT A PERSONAL TAX

WAS LEVIED AGAINST W. H. NEILSON AS TRUSTEE.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh communicated with the Common Council at the special meeting Monday, regarding the action brought against the city by Rev. W. H. Nielson, of East Ninth street, to have set aside an assessment of $673 on $50,000 worth of personal property in New York. The assessment was made against Mr. Nielson as trustee for Mrs. Anna Nielson, who has never resided in the State and who is now in a sanitarium in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Nielson appeared before the tax commissioners of New York and swore on the tax claiming that he was not a resident of New York, but of New Jersey. Then the local assessor, Charles H. Hand, of the Second Ward, in which Mr. Nielson resides, made the assessment which was confirmed by the Board. Mr. Nelson then brought an action against the city about a month ago to have the assessment set aside, on the grounds that he is a trustee for the property of Mrs. Nielson, and that the custody of the property is in the hands of the Supreme Court, of New York.

Mr. Marsh stated that the city could not collect the tax, that a proper defense could have been made and he asked that the Common Council pass a resolution authorizing him to apply to the Supreme Court, of New York to have the suit terminated. It is understood by both parties that there shall be no expense attached to the city in the matter. Later Mr. Mellick offered a resolution, which was adopted, giving Mr. Marsh the authority he requested.

FOR TABLE DECORATION.

An elaborate and yet easily worked set of plate dollies and a long oblong set for the center of the table were seen recently in an art store. This set was of fine white linen, with pointed inserts of Valenciennes lace and an edge and vine embroidered in several shades of green floss.

The dollies were circular, with four pointed inserts of the lace connected by alhexier edge, so shallow as to scarcely amount to a scallop. This was worked in an open buttonhole stitch about one-sixteenth of an inch apart. Beneath the edge and between the lace points were graceful sprays of maidenhair fern done in satin stich in the natural colors.

The long centerpiece was worked in the same manner, but in addition to the lace inserts on the edges it also had them at intervals through the centre, with maidenhair arranged in loose wreaths around them.

Such a set would be especially effective on a mahogany table with green and white china and a silver fern bowl filled with the real maidenhair ferns.

President Leslie M. Daniel, of the Common Council, who has been detained at home by a slight illness, hopes to be out within a few days.

W. H. Pope, of West Fourth street, has recovered from an illness that detained him at home.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 16.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Lessons from the patriarchs. I. Noah.—Heb. xi, 7; II. Pet. ii, 4-9; I Pet. iii, 17-22.

The history of the Old Testament patriarchs contained in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews is a most remarkable record and one that has been an inspiration to the Christian people of the world. It is the most comprehensive summary in a most brief space of the prominent virtues of many of the world's great men that is to be found in sacred or secular literature. The most remarkable genius is displayed in the vivid and rapid portrayal of the motives and the achievements of some of the world's great souls. In the fewest possible words the lives of men are made to stand in view before us in such a way that at a glance their characters and their whole lives are fully revealed. The study of these lives and the lessons to be drawn from them should be most interesting and inspiring, for—

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

The first one of these heroes to whom our attention is called is Noah, and we may well make this an occasion for studying his entire life, and so with the others, the lessons of whose lives we are to study.

1. The life of Noah teaches us a lesson on faith. Noah lived in an age of unbelief and godlessness. The entire world was steeped in sin. The sins of man were so base and so universal that God determined to destroy the people of the world by a flood. But Noah in all Noah preserved his faith and righteousness and with them the favor of God. No man need lack faith because he lives in an age of unbelief. We should control our environments and not allow them to control us. This is what Noah did, and God amply rewarded him. He told him of His intentions and provided for him a way of escape. Noah did not doubt God's word, and, though the world did not believe for 120 years, his faith was so strong that he labored away on the ark, and when it did come he escaped. Faith in God is the first essential in a true life and absolutely necessary if we are to escape punishment for sin.

2. The life of Noah teaches us a lesson on fear. Noah, "moved with fear," prepared the ark. Believing God, he feared to disobey Him. The element of fear is very much minimized in the religion of to-day. It is given a small place. At one time it was no doubt overemphasized, but today too little emphasis is placed upon it. The mercy of God is given the supreme place, which is eminently proper, and yet mercy is enough not to be construed at the expense of God's justice. God is most merciful to all who come to Christ, but to those who neglect Him "it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." Nor need we expect to escape. The angels who sinned did not. The world in the days of Noah did not. We may well fear God and give fear an important place as an incentive to faith and right living.

3. The life of Noah teaches us a lesson on the forbearance of God. God waited 120 years even after His decision to destroy the world, and what for except that man might be given every opportunity to repent and to escape the doom pronounced upon him? And Noah probably preached righteousness to the people, as did Peter and Christ through Noah preached to them. God is gracious, "slow to anger and plenteous in mercy," but even "His Spirit will not always strive" with us. Let us therefore accept His mercy as revealed to us in Christ and find refuge and safety in Him, who is the ark of our salvation.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. vi, 1-4, 11-22; Josh. i, 1-7; Prov. i, 7; Isa. lv, 1-7; Mark ix, 17-27; Luke xxiii, 39-43; Rom. iv, 1-10; II Cor. ii, 14; Heb. x, 23-31; xi, 23-29; I John v, 1-5; Rev. ii, 10.

Totals For All Europe.

The following interesting summary of Christian Endeavor in Egrope appears in a recent number of European Christian Endeavor, published in London:

	Societies.	Members.
Austria	9	250
Belgium	1	20
Bulgaria	9	269
Denmark	2	27
Finland	2	70
France	140	2,500
Germany	358	7,220
Greece	4	80
Hungary	12	150
Holland
United
Italy	12	170
Norway	21	470
Portugal	7	120
Russia	69	525
Spain	12	1,377
Sweden	274	10,040
Switzerland	24	600
Turkey	18	214
Totals	1,127	21,600
Britain	8,000	240,000
Grand totals	9,127	261,600

Two Boy Lay Preachers.

At Camborne, England, the United Methodist Free church has two lads who sometimes occupy the pulpit and will probably enter the ministry. These boys joined the Junior Christian Endeavor society when only seven years old and have but recently been transferred from the Intermediate to the Young People's society. Already two Endeavorers from this church have become ministers, and two besides these lads are on their way through the schools in preparation for the best of callings. What a magnificent record for one society—the society's motto being, "Look upward." Christian Endeavor World.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 16: "The Blessings of Helpfulness." (Southern Educational Work.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Isa. lviii, 6-12; Ps. cii, 13-22; Luke x, 25-37.

This fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah shows in clearest colors the essential and abiding difference between aesthetical and ethical religion. There is a vast difference in sentiments. Our present application of this lesson of righteousness in religion is to the work of southern education.

One of the prime causes of the civil war was the sentiment of the north against the institution of slavery. This had both its moral and economic sides. The emancipation proclamation gave political liberty to the negro. The fifteenth amendment to the constitution gave him the ballot. All this was to the gain of law and could not change in the slightest degree the nature of either negro or white man.

Four million negroes were at once thrust out into life with the necessity to think and act for themselves. They had to make for themselves a new place in social and political life. They owned not a foot of land, though most of them had no skill for any work but that of cultivating the soil and must now look for employment of that kind of labor for means of subsistence. They owned no shelter over their heads, for the cabins were the property of their masters. They owned no clothes, for these belonged to their masters also. They had no experience in managing for themselves, for they had worked as they had been directed. They had no knowledge of many of the commonest principles of thrift, prudence, economy, health and the simplest and most elementary things which go to make life successful and which are so common among a free people that they never stop to consider that they know them nor whence they derived their knowledge and skill. The negro had everything to get and nothing but his bodily powers and uncultured wit with which to get it.

The white man of the south was almost as poor as he could be. He could give little help except in suggestion and encouragement to the negro. For this same white man, so lately master, was almost the only help and adviser the negro could have.

Here came in the work of the north in the matter of helping both black and white in the south to help themselves. The Methodist Episcopal church was at once in the front rank of friendly helpers. Schools were a necessity. Schools were at once established. Churches and preachers were as much needed as schools and teachers. This book has been the first aimed to give the assistance most needed. Many need the lower branches. Some can fit for teachers, others as preachers, physicians, lawyers and dentists. But the larger part need to be taught the various trades. So the industrial features had prominence in our schools. The boys have been taught the various trades, and the girls have been taught housekeeping, dressmaking, basketry and the work that is most useful to the women.

The results of this work in the forty years since it started have been all that could have been expected, but the negroes have more than doubled in numbers. While many have tried to fit themselves for the duties of free life, many have gone into bad ways, and the south has a mass of vicious men and women, menacing the welfare of the whole nation.

This is not a time for the north to curtail its help. More than ever before it must lead its aid to the solution of the great problem. Something has been done, much remains to be done. The south alone cannot settle the matter. Mutual confidence and assistance are needed at this time. Our schools must be re-enforced and made more efficient. The north must more adequately understand the situation, and the south, as never before, must find the eternal principles of righteousness and follow them or suffer disaster to which all past evils will be small in comparison.

Resignation to Providence.

Peace of heart lies in perfect resignation to the will of God. What you need is true simplicity, certain calmness of spirit which comes from entire surrender to all that God wills, patience and confidence for your neighbor's faults and a certain candor and childlike docility in acknowledging your own faults. The trouble you feel about so many things comes from your not accepting everything which may happen to you with unlimited resignation to God. Put all things, then, in His hand and offer them beforehand to Him in your heart as a sacrifice. From the moment when you cease to want things to be according to your own judgment you will find unspeakably happy whatever He sends you will be free from all your uneasy retrospects and anxieties about your own concern.—Francois de la Mothe Fenelon.

To Keep Pledges.

It is easy to make good resolutions, but a great many people break them almost as soon as they make them. One of the problems of our life is how to keep our pledges. The first thing is actually to resolve to keep them. The secret of the failure of most good resolves is very often the want of real purpose. We want to get more back bone to our good intentions. We need to root it around like a rock in resisting evil.—Forward.

Friendship.

The most I can do for my friend is simply to be his friend. I have no wealth to bestow upon him. If he knows that I am happy in loving him he will want no other reward. Is not friendship divine in this?—Thoreau.

ASSESSOR HUBBARD WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION

INFORMS MAYOR FISK, HOWEVER, HE WILL SERVE ONLY FOR ONE YEAR.

At the earnest solicitation of Mayor Fisk and other friends, Tax Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard has consented to withdraw his resignation, presented the first of the year and to serve the city as assessor from the Third Ward until January 1, 1908. He emphatically tells the Mayor, however, that he will not serve any longer than this year.

Mr. Hubbard in explaining his reasons for wishing to retire as assessor, old Mayor Fisk that he is now seventy-seven years old and that he has held the position long enough. He considers that he earned a rest from official duty. It was only at the urgent request of Mr. Fisk that Mr. Hubbard changed his mind.

In the meantime Mr. Fisk may perfect his plan of having a tax commission of three members, which was suggested the first of the year. It is understood that Mr. Fisk has some pronounced views on the question of assessment and taxation and he believes that a commission is the proper means to secure the best results. This system has been found to work well in other cities.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

List of Children's Picture Books at The Public Library.

One of the most attractive of the tables at the exhibit of children's books recently held at the Public Library, was the picture book table. The books there displayed appeal not only to the children for whom they were primarily intended, but to the large number of older persons who care for really good book illustration.

For the benefit of those interested, a list of those displayed is given. As will be seen the books show the names of some of our best contemporary illustrators.

Later we shall give a list of the fairy books.

Adelborg, Ottilie.—Clean Peter and the children of Grubbylea.

Bannerman, Helen.—Story of little Black Mingo.

Bannerman, Helen.—Story of little Black Quibba.

Bannerman, Helen.—Story of little Black Sambo.

Burgess, Gelett.—Goops and how to be them, illustrated by the author.

Burgess, Gelett.—More goops and how not to be them, illustrated by the author.

Caldecott, Randolph, illustrator.—Hey diddle diddle picture book.

Caldecott, Randolph, illustrator.—Panjandrum picture book.

Caldecott, Randolph, illustrator.—Picture book. 2v.

Cox, Palmer.—Brownie books. 4v.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—Baby's own Aesop.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—Goody Two-shoes picture-book.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—Flora's feast.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—Masque of days.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—This little pig his picture book.

Deming, Edwin W.—Indian child life, illustrated by the author.

Francis, J. G.—Book of cheerful cats.

Greenaway, Kate.—A apple pie, illustrated by the author.

Greenaway, Kate.—Barigold garden, illustrated by the author.

Greenaway, Kate.—Under the window, illustrated by the author.

Herford, Oliver.—Child's premier of nature.

Herford, Oliver.—More animals.

Hoffmann, Heinrich.—Slovenly Peter.

La Bedolliere, E. de.—Story of a cat, illustrated by Hopkins.

La Fontaine, Jean de.—Selected fables adapted for the young, illustrated by B. de Monvel.

Newell, Peter, and Bailey, C. S.—Peter Newell Mother Goose.

Newell, Peter.—Topsys and turvys.

Ostertag, B., illustrator.—Old songs for young America.

Sage, Helen (Mrs. Walter L. Goodwin).—Rhymes of real children, illustrated by Jessie Wilcox Smith.

Saxby, Lewis, illustrator.—Life of a wooden doll.

Smith, Gertrude.—Arabella and Araminta stories.

Upton, Florence K. and B.—Adventures of two Dutch dolls and a golliwogg, illustrated by Florence K. Upton.

$1,000,000 From Mrs. Sage.

Troy, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The gift by Mrs. Russell Sage of $1,000,000 to the Emma Willard School, of this city, was announced yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the institution when the gift was formally accepted. The handsome buildings which are now in the centre of the city, including Russell Sage Hall, are to be taken down and the stone and brick removed a mile and a half to a picturesque spot on one of the hills on the outskirts of the city, where the buildings will be restored as nearly as possible as now. In addition, new buildings will be erected.

CONSOLIDATION MEMBERS HOLD ANOTHER SESSION

QUESTION THE STREET COMMISSIONER ABOUT THE CITY SEWAGE SYSTEM.

Another session of the consolidation committee was held in the office of Mayor Fisk, yesterday afternoon, all the members being present. While no official statements have been given out concerning the matters discussed, it is known that the commission took up the question of sewers, in relation to what would be required in the borough in case of consolidation.

The commission desiring information regarding Plainfield's sewage system, Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett was invited to attend the meeting. He was questioned in detail about the local sanitary sewer, answering only such questions as were put to him by the various members of the commission.

In the line of questioning no intimation was given as to the ideas of the members on the subject of sewers. It is the purpose of the commission to secure every bit of information possible about the subject under consideration, after which it will go over the ground thoroughly and upon that basis will frame its report to be presented to the Common Council.

WANTS CITY TO HAVE A TREE COMMISSION

MATTER BROUGHT BEFORE COMMON BY MR. MONTGOMERY.

Acting in accordance with a suggestion by Mayor Fisk in his annual message, Mr. Montgomery, at the February meeting of the Common Council, Monday, took steps to have the city take advantage of a new State law which gives the Mayor authority to appoint a tree commission to look after the preservation of trees in Plainfield. He explained that it would be necessary to commence early the work of spraying trees if they were to be saved, hence the action at this time.

*In answer to questions by Mr. Mel*lick and other members, Mr. Montgomery explained that the law provides for the appointment of three commissioners, for three, four and five years, as they must be freeholders, and are to serve without compensation. The law further provides that the expenses of the commission and its work shall be raised by a tax which in Plainfield would approximate about $2,000 or $2,200. Mr. Montgomery stated further that the matter had been considered by the light and tree committee and all agreed that such a commission for Plainfield would be a good thing.

The only question that seemed to arise was as to whether a public hearing would not be necessary before the adoption of such a resolution as Mr. Montgomery proposed. The latter stated that he had communicated with Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, and referred especially to the question of a public hearing. Having received no reply concerning it from Mr. Marsh he took it for granted that a public hearing would not be necessary. Mr. Mellick favored the idea, but thought it best to let the resolution lay over a time. Mr. Buxton agreed with him. Mr. Montgomery then withdrew the resolution and it will be presented later.

How a Quorum Was Gotten.

For a time Monday it looked as though it would be impossible to get a quorum for the February meeting of the Common Council, on account of the illness of several members. Among those detained were President Daniel, William L. Glenk, Frank Randolph, W. S. Tyler and Henry D. Hibbard. First Councilmen Charles Randolph and Herbert Buxton arrived. Then Mr. Mellick, who has just returned from the south, put in appearance, followed by Mr. Tolles and Mr. Montgomery. With a number so near a quorum it was decided to get the one necessary member, and a cab was sent to Mr. Ginna's home for him. At first it was decided to meet, pass the bills and adjourn for a week, but when the members got into the business they kept at it until most all of it was cleared up. An adjournment was taken to February 25 to act on the liquor licenses.

AS A BACHELOR GIRL THINKS.

Reform is often only "getting even" under a better-sounding name.

Advice can be taken without pain when it comes from a rich relative.

Its a wonder some of the windows filled with pictures of sunny Southern resorts haven't been smashed to bits by weather-crazed passersby.

Whether a woman is married or not, she can generally contemplate the thought of a second marriage with some pleasure.

You can manage the contrary man with the greatest ease—just appear to want what you don't want.

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, of West Seventh street, who are spending the week out of town, are expected to return home on Friday.

Mrs. William Newcorn, of West Front street, is detained at home by illness.

PLAN A $75,000 SCHOOL

That is What the Darrow Avenue Structure Will Cost.

HURRY CONSTRUCTION

Board of Education Faces Urgent Need For More School Room—New School Will Furnish Margin of Room.

Facing an immediate need for the building, the Board of Education is gathering its energies for as speedy an erection of the proposed new school at Darrow avenue and Essex street as is possible. The necessity for the school is present and urgent, and the structure will be made a fact as rapidly as the preparations, which include designing and contracting, as well as *the actual work on the build*ing itself, can be worked through.

The school is to be a twelve-room structure, most likely of brick, and will cost in the neighborhood of $75,000. The lot has already been purchased at a cost of about $4,500. It will be fireproof from top to bottom, with terra cotta lining between the doors and other features of safety from flames. It will be ready for service by September of next year. No name for the school has been considered.

It is probable that Walter Cook, who advised the Board in its choice of plans for the new high school, will again be employed to perform the same services in connection with the designs for the Darrow avenue school. Whether or not there is to be an architectural competition, as in the case of the high school, has not been decided.

In a statement to a Daily Press reporter Monday, Charles F. Abbott, chairman of the building committee of the Board of Education, said that every school building in the city was now full, and that every schoolroom with the exception of one was crowded. In four or five rooms there are two classes, one going into session as the other ends. The Bryant School is full to overflowing, with certain classes on half time.

With the opening of the new school this condition—which will be aggravated by the time the school is ready—will be relieved completely. At least four rooms will be left over for future growth.

The pupils of the new school will be drawn mainly from the Washington School, at Liberty and Fifth streets, which was recently sold to St. Mary's R. C. church for school purposes. Irving School will contribute a large batch. It is estimated that the congestion everywhere will be relieved by the use of seven rooms in the new building. At the beginning, there will not be, of necessity, an increase in teachers. The teaching staff is always kept up to the size of the enrollment, and the change from the old schools to the new ones will not make it necessary to hire additional teachers.

By the terms of the sale, St. Mary's parish will not take over the Washington School until the Darrow avenue school is ready for the pupils. The day when the Darrow avenue school is declared fit for the reception of pupils will be the day St. Mary's parish will get the Washington building.

WOMEN'S EXCHANGE HAS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

OFFICERS ELECTED AND REPORTS FOR THE YEAR RECEIVED.

Officers were elected for the coming year and reports presented at the *annual meeting of the Women's Ex*change held Monday in the parlors house of Grace church. Owing to the storm many of the members were prevented from attending and in the absence of the president, Mrs. O. T. Waring, the recording secretary, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, called the meeting to order. At her suggestion Mrs. Isaac N. VanSickel was made chairman pro tem.

It was reported that the receipts for the past year were $7,303.10 and out of this sum $4,863.21 was paid to consignors. Some persons have had the idea that consignors were not paid for their work and the officers of the exchange wish to correct the impression. There are 134 consignors at present and 130 subscribers to the exchange, thirty-three more than last year. No entertainments were given during the year, yet the exchange closes the year entirely out of debt and with a good balance in the treasury.

These officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. O. T. Waring; first vice-president, Miss Elizabeth R. Cook; second vice-president, Mrs. S. D. Lounsbery; treasurer, Mrs. William M. Stillman; recording secretary, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Howard C. Tracy; chairman of the house committee, Mrs. Tompkins.

Steady improvement is noticed in the condition of John Bushnell, of Central avenue, who has been kept at home as the result of a fractured collar bone.

REPLIES TO HUGH FOX

Mrs. Kelley Meets the Exceptions Taken to Monday Club Lecture.

NEW JERSEY'S RECORD

How the State Went From a Crusaders' White List To Their Black List—Consumers' League's Aims.

Mrs. Florence Kelley, general secretary of the National Consumers' League and an active advocate of child labor reform, has made a statement in reply to Hugh F. Fox, of this city, president of the State Board of Charities, who took up the cudgel in defense of New Jersey's child labor laws in The Daily Press last month, after Mrs. Kelley's criticism of those laws in an address before the Monday Afternoon Club was published. In a letter to The Daily Press, under date of February 4, Mrs. Kelley says:

"I have just received a copy of the Press of January 8, containing a report of my address to the Monday Afternoon Club on the preceding day. I spoke without notes and rapidly, so that the report quite naturally omits many qualifications and in one case substitutes a different bill for the Beveridge child labor bill. The intent of the report is so obviously fair and friendly that I feel sure you will print my statement as conspicuously as the original report, the more so as we are all alike desirous of having the best conditions for the children in all the States, a thing impossible without a widespread, accurate knowledge of conditions as they actually are.

"My criticism is directed to the statutes of New Jersey, not the enforcement thereof. The child labor and educational statutes of New Jersey are gravely defective in four important respects—as to an educational requirement for children about to begin to work; as to the scope of the child labor law, which applies only to children engaged in manufacture; as to the hours of labor, and as to the appointment of truant officers.

"1. The New Jersey child labor law does not, like the law of New York require that, before beginning to work, a child must have attended a school in which it has received instruction in reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and English grammar, the arithmetic to be up to and including fractions," and the child to be specifically examined as to its ability to read fluently and write simple sentences in the English language. Nor does the New Jersey law require, like the law of Illinois, that the child must be able to read and write (in some language). Nor does the New Jersey law, like that of Massachusetts, require that the child under the age of 16 years must, before beginning to work, be able to read and write in the English language sufficiently to get into the third grade of the public schools. In New Jersey a child under 14 years of age must go to school, but it need not learn anything. Or a child may come to the State between the ages of 14 and 16 years and go to work immediately, although newly arrived from Russia, Syria, Croatia, Italy or any other country, and wholly illiterate. I need prove only its age.

"2. The child labor law of New Jersey applies only to factories and workshops, not to stores or offices. It gives no protection to messenger and telegraph boys, or to shop boys or girls. In this respect it is less effective than similar laws in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Oregon.

"3. The best child labor law is always a compulsory education law requiring the children to be in school throughout the school year and vigorously enforced throughout the State. The compulsory education law of New Jersey leaves each locality free not to appoint a truant officer and some of the glass-manufacturing communities appoint no truant officers, or appoint them for so few weeks in the year that the children are free to go to work, being in the factories until night, factory inspectors discover them.

"4. The saddest chapter is that which deals with the hours of labor. In this respect New Jersey was, for eleven years from 1892 to 1903, in advance of all the States and nations. The law of 1892 prohibited the employment of women for more than ten hours in one week, ten hours in one day, after 6 p. m. on any day, and afternoon on Saturday. There were excepted canneries, fruit preserving establishments and glasswerks. Overtime was prohibited at sweepingly. Although this law was not enforced by numerous prosecutions, and although no case arising under it was carried to the highest court in the State, it was obeyed by many law-abiding employers.

"The International Association for Labor Legislation printed a white list of the States and nations graded according to their legislation prohibiting night work for women. England, Switzerland and New Jersey were the first to be recorded in that honor list, and New Jersey led all the others. But while that International Association white list was being printed, in 1903, New Jersey repealed that beneficient law. Left women wholly unprotected from night work, abolished the 6 p. m. closing hour for minors, and enacted the present non-enforceable statute. Under the present law no suit has been begun. This statute provides that children under 16 years of age shall not work longer than ten hours in one day and 55 hours in one week. They may work by day or night, or partly by day and partly by night, or by day one week and by night the next week. There is no fixed closing hour.

"By this action the State of New Jersey transferred itself from the head of the White List of the International Association for Labor Legislation to the black list of those States which do not prohibit night work for women.

"Meanwhile, fourteen European States have arranged by treaty to prohibit night work in manufacture for women. The United States and Russia are the only nations which are not parties to these humane agreements.

"Finally, the Federal child labor bill which the National Consumers' League strives to get enacted is the Beveridge bill forbidding inter-State commerce in the products of factories and mines employing children under the age of fourteen years."

CHAIRMAN MONTGOMERY HOLDS UP P. S. C. LIGHT BILL.

Wants to Have Conference With Officials About New Contract Before Paying It.

Pending the making of a new contract between the city and the Public Service Corporation for street lighting, Mr. Montgomery, chairman of the light committee of the Common Council, moved that the P. S. C. bill for lighting be held up at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night. This action no doubt was suggested by recommendations adopted by the Plainfield Protective Association at its meeting last week, when it presented a lengthy report of Alfred Spice, the expert, engaged by the association to investigate light conditions in Plainfield.

Mr. Montgomery, who is the new chairman of the light committee, is anxious to secure from the P. S. C. as favorable terms as possible and it is his intention to have a conference with the officials of the company before making any recommendations as to another contract.

FAIR CLOSES.

Company K Will Clear Over $200 From the Bazaar.

Company K's fair closed Saturday night, after a week's successful run. The crowd was the largest of the week, and the floor was filled with dancers at every number.

It is too early to say what the exact figure on the net profits will be, but it is certain that the gain will be over $200. The committee is pleased with the result, and the other members of the company are pleased with the committee. The committee was made up as follows: Capt. W. B. Martin, chairman; Sergeants O. B. Pierson, Alfred Wyckoff, Corporals J. Niles, R. DeCamp, Walter Sampson; Privates Ford, Hartpence, Weigman, Morton, Benbrook, Dayton, Rothberg, Seaman, Dow.

Martin Ptaschinski's Funeral.

The funeral services of Martin Ptaschinski, who died on Thursday, were held Sunday afternoon from the late home on Dver street. Rev. Mr. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The interment was in the Plainfield avenue cemetery and the pall bearers were Frank Schaffa, a son-in-law; Bodi and Otto Ptaschinski, grandchildren; Oscar and George Smith and Otto Hanel. Mr. Ptaschinski was born in Germany in 1824, and in 1848 fought in the Revolution War in Germany. He came to America in 1882 and was a resident of the borough the rest of his life. He leaves a wife, four daughters, one son, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

Glycerine and lemon juice will clear the voice when one has suffered from hoarseness.

Chloroform and oil of cloves will instantly cure toothache. Placed on cotton and inserted in the ear is a speedy relief for earache.

Soda and borax is an excellent dentrifice.

Lemon juice will polish shoes that do not need to be blackened.

Tan goods can be cleaned with a mixture of corn starch and corn meal.

A mixture of beeswax, tallow, lard and camphor made into a plaster is one of the best known remedies for children who have the croup. It is an old recipe, tried and true, one well worth remembering. Make a bib of woolen, put the plaster on warm and relief will be given almost immediately.

Mr. Macintyre Resigns.

George L. Macintyre, of West Front street, has resigned his position as secretary and manager with the Frank L. C. Martin Auto Co. Mr. Macintyre has been with the company for sixteen years, starting during the heyday of the bicycle of which it made a specialty until a short time ago.

Victory and Lunch.

The junior basketball five of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Summit juniors Saturday, 36 to 16, in a hot game. The Summit boys, with Physical Director Frank Barclay, who is an old Plainfielder, were entertained at lunch after the game.

COUNCILMANIC ROUTINE

Many Petitions Presented and Various Improvements Decided Upon.

WORD FROM THE P. P. A.

Secretary Hands In Resolutions Adopted Asking Council's Co-Operation in Gas and Electric Matters.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association, last week, asking that the Common Council co-operate with it in securing better gas and electric service from the Public Service Corporation in accordance with suggestions made in the report of the expert, Alfred Spice, were presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, Monday, by the secretary, H. C. White. They were referred to the light committee for consideration and a report later on.

John Porter and other residents petitioned for electric lights and repairs on Prescott place, between Third and Fourth streets. The petitions were referred.

Mrs. Mary S. Myers, through her attorney, W. M. Stillman, asked for the reduction of $9.25 overpaid taxes for 1906, the Union County Taxation Board having allowed a reduction in her assessment. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

A report was received from the treasurer of the Plainfield Fire Department Pension Fund, showing a balance at last report of $274.20, disbursements of $148.64 and a present balance of $103.53. The report was referred to the fire and building committee.

Theodore J. LaRue resigned as a call member of Hose Company No. 1, and the same was accepted. Residents of Martine avenue asked for the location of two fire hydrants on that thoroghfare and the matter was referred.

Elston M. French, who is interested in the development of the Highland Park Realty Company property in the east end of the city, called the attention of the members to three petitions presented last year asking for sewers, macadamized streets and sidewalks and asked that something be done. Later Mr. Montgomery reported back a previous petition from Mr. French and moved that three electric lights be located in that section, one on East Front street and Sumner avenue, one at East Second street and Emerson avenue and the third at Emerson avenue and George street.

This called forth considerable discussion. Mr. Buxton stated that he thought the Common Council should exercise care in granting lights. He understood that the houses in the section referred to are not occupied and he thought it was time to place lights there when they are.

Mr. Bowling said that the owner of property could hope to sell or lease it unless it had such improvements and he understood that the houses referred to were now occupied. Mr. Mellick agreed with Mr. Montgomery and added that persons who are willing to invest money in improvements should be encouraged. Mr. Montgomery's motion for the three lights was finally adopted.

Petitions received from J. D. Lozeaux and others asking for lights on Rock avenue, between West Second and Third streets, and that South Second street be macadamized and graded were referred to the proper committees.

A communication from the Board of Education notified the Common Council that L. N. Lovell and C. F. Abbott had been appointed to represent the board on the Board of School Estimate. Two members from the Common Council and the Mayor constitute the board.

By way of explanation, Clerk MacMurray said that Clerk Walters, of the New Jersey Senate, had informed him that he would be willing to furnish the city with a double set of all laws passed during the session of the Legislature for $20. Heretofore, the city has paid $25 for one set sent to the office of Corporation Counsel Marsh. Now the city wants to secure extra copies for the clerk's office. The extra $5 would cover postage. Later a resolution was adopted authorizing Clerk MacMurray to make the arrangements.

A petition from the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club and others asked the Common Council to widen Randolph road between Park and Woodland avenue sixty feet and macadamize it sixteen feet. The matter was referred. A petition for a light on Netherwood avenue, between East Front and Second streets, was referred, and the bonds of Constables John Manley and Sires Commissioner Gavett, which were approved by the corporation counsel, were received and filed.

Proposed plans for the remodeling of Bernard Mann's building at 120 West Fourth street, were presented by Blanchard Fosgate, architect, and referred to the fire and building committee. The Board of Health's annual report for last year was referred to the committee on public affairs. Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported receipts of $115.50 for the past month, with a balance of $75.24. Street Commissioner Gavett reported that from December 14 to January 14, twenty sewer permits were granted, and Building Inspector Doane reported the granting of twenty-two permits.

On the recommendation and motion of Mr. Montgomery, an electric light was ordered placed on Rose street, opposite the property of S. A. Mumford & Son, according to a petition.

Mr. Ginna, as chairman of the street committee, presented several resolutions, which were adopted. The first one provided for the laying of crosswalks in certain sections of the city, another provided for the location of a hydrant near the city's disposal beds and a third requested that the Union Water Company be requested to lower a water pipe on Park terrace, to prevent freezing.

Mr. Ginna offered an ordinance providing for the establishment of the proper grade on Elmwood place, Prudence alley, Exchange alley, Cottage place, Denmark road, West End avenue, Arlington place, West Third street, South Second street, and a part of Randolph road. The ordinance was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. A public hearing on the ordinance will be given on Monday night, March 4.

When Mr. Buxton moved, according to a notice previously given, that the rule of the Common Council be adopted as the by-laws, there ensued considerable discussion on the part of Mr. Montgomery, who was anxious to have the matter laid over until the adjourned meeting February 25, when all of the members could attend.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Tolles, Mr. Buxton and Mr. Ginna stated that the finance committee had agreed to recommend that the rules remain as at present, Mr. Montgomery's motion to lay them on the table prevailed, which provide that no official or member of the Common Council shall expend an amount greater than $20 without obtaining bids. It was explained that the rules at present safeguard the city in this respect.

Mr. Montgomery questioned Mr. Buxton's right to present a formal report, one not in writing, but Mr. Tolles explained that it had always been the custom and he ruled against him. The motion to adopt the rules as by-laws was finally adopted, all but Mr. Montgomery voting in favor of it.

Mr. Buxton offered an amendment to an ordinance, which was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised. It provides that the Mayor shall grant licenses to peddlers, hawkers, expressmen, truckmen, hackmen, etc., in so many as he thinks is proper and to those of good moral character, and that the clerk keep a record of the same.

PASSED ANOTHER MILESTONE.

"Uncle Dan" Roberts Rounds Out His Eighty-second Year.

Former Councilman Dan S. Roberts, of Prospect place, observed the eighty-second anniversary of his birthday, Sunday, by entertaining a few friends at dinner. The centre of the table was occupied by a large cake bearing the dates "1825-1907."

"Uncle Dan," as he is known to everyone, was born at Easton, Pa., but spent the greater part of his life at Scranton. In his younger days he was connected in the early years of the Lackawanna railroad and formed a close friendship with President Sam Sloan. He has lived in Plainfield since 1880, retiring from business only a few years ago. He still enjoys good health and has been as active an interest in local affairs as when he was a member of the "Big Six" Common Council.

No Club Meeting Held.

Although Saturday night was the time fixed for the meeting of the various committees appointed to consider the question of forming a club and purchasing the Casino property, Lewis E. Waring was the only person who put in an appearance. It was understood at the last meeting of the men interested in the scheme that *an adjournment was taken to Feb*ruary 2, but inquiry failed to shed any light on the subject. At the college smoker a motion offered by C. A. Marsh and adopted, provided that a committee of three from that body be appointed to meet with the other committees, but this committee has not been appointed as yet. Perhaps the illness of Mayor Fisk caused a postponement of the meeting and another date will have to be fixed.

King's Daughters Will Give a Play.

The City Union, King's Daughters, which is planning for a large fair to be held April 11, 12 and 13, has decided to hold it at the Casino. Already the various committees have had at work on what promises to be one of the most attractive events given by the King's Daughters. The form of entertainment will include a short play, moving pictures, etc., while every circle in the union will be represented by a booth of some kind at which various articles will be sold.

Prof. Krebs to Speak.

Arrangements are being perfected for the annual men's dinner of the First Reformed church in Somerville. It will be held in the church on Tuesday evening, February 12, at 6:30 p. m. Among the speakers will be President Demarest, of Rutgers College, in New Brunswick; Prof. H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, county superintendent of schools of Somerset county; Vice Chancellor James Bergen, of Somerville, and others. A mandolin trio will furnish music.

ACKERMAN NOT FOR BRIGGS

(Continued from Page 1.)

strength to Bradley. The Briggs forces met this with some concern, as a Bradley fight was looked upon as a move of the forces of Gov Stokes. It was known that Stokes did not want an out-and-out South Jerseyman to win the fight for Senator, and some of the Briggs men saw the hand of the Governor attempting to hold the election of a Senator off for another year, when there would not run against him the constitutional inhibition to his election during the Haberman term.

Late in the morning Baird came to the State House and said that there was a mistake; that he was for Briggs, had been for Briggs all the time, and every effort he could put forth would be used for Briggs. Baird went to work and soon the Bradley boom died. Avis was conspicuous in promoting Bradley after he had a long talk with Gov. Stokes.

Colby, who the day before had been declaring that he would vote for Briggs, turned tail yesterday and declared he would have nothing to do with him. He said this so often that Dr. Crowther, Middlesex, attacked him in the caucus which started just before noon, calling him a political jackanapes. Colby left the Republican caucus announcing that he would never enter one again. Then Senator Ackerman also left the caucus, saying he would not vote for Briggs on the rumor that the Briggs boom was fixed before Dryden withdrew.

Mr. Haines, of Monmouth, being missing, telegrams and telephone messages were sent after him, and when he could not be found the regular Republican bolt in both their caucus a little later in the day.

Later it was found that Fake, of Bergen, would not go in, and there was a wait until Haines arrived. Fake said that he was not personally opposed to Briggs, but he wanted to see what the people of his county thought of him, and had not found out, because the caucus followed so quickly the withdrawal of Dryden.

Frank O. Briggs.

Frank Obadiah Briggs was born in New Hampshire in 1850, and was a student at Phillips Exeter Academy in 1866-68. He entered West Point on September 1, 1868, and was graduated in 1872. Lieutenant Briggs served in the Second United States Cavalry as second lieutenant until 1877, when he resigned to enter the employ of the John A. Roebling's Sons Co., Trenton. His services as an engineer were such in demand by the company, but finally he went in the financial department and is now the assistant treasurer. He is also a bank director and an official in the many Roebling companies.

Mr. Briggs was prominent in campaign clubs and political gatherings, and was on April 11, 1899, elected Mayor of Trenton, and served until January 1, 1902.

Governor Voorhees appointed him State Treasurer on January 3, 1902, upon the sudden death of George B. Swain, of Newark, and the appointment was ratified by the legislative election on February 11 following.

He was a prominent figure in the administration of Governor Franklin Murphy and into that of Governor Stokes.

In 1904 Mr. Briggs was elected chairman of the Republican State Committee, and still holds the place. He advised the equal taxation programme of the last Legislative, and when others were weakening because of the most powerful lobby the railroads had ever sent, Mr. Briggs, by virtue of his office as chairman of the Republican State Committee, called together some of the county leaders and told them that their legislators must not weaken, but must put through the equal tax programme. His success in this is well known. He went to the utmost length for a compromise, but Mr. Briggs said that the people demanded that the railroads pay their fair percentage of taxes, and the life of the Republican party was at stake.

Mr. Briggs led the Dryden fight for re-election as the fulfillment of a party pledge.

LICENSE APPLICATIONS.

Usual Number Presented at Last Monday's Council Meeting.

The usual number of applications for liquor licenses were presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, and contrary to the rule not a new applicant appeared. There are now ten retail and two wholesale places in the city and the same number applied Monday night as follows: J. A. Staats, Henry Windham, Henry Haurand, William and Charles Clark, Alex. Findlay, Chris. Gloeckler, John Rafferty, Jacob Hilmm, Eastern Bottling Works, Frank Linke, Michael Watson and Jerome Leary. They will be advertised in the usual way and the Common Council will meet on Monday night, February 25, to act upon the same. It is necessary that this be done as the licenses all expire on March 1. For the first time in many years there were no new applicants and no new complications to meet and the members of the Common Council seemed pleased.

Sunday-school Rally.

The tenth anniversary services will be continued at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, with a Sunday-school rally. The speaker of the evening will be James R. Joy, of the First M. E. church Sunday-school, and there will be special instrumental music by a mandolin club.

SCHOOL BOARD MILDLY SLAPS COLLECTOR'S WRIST

MEMBERS DO NOT LIKE TARDINESS IN RECEIVING MONEY REPORT.

Mildly, but sternly, the official wrist of Collector John W. Murray, Jr., was slapped by the Board of Education, at its monthly meeting, last Monday. The chastisement followed Secretary F. T. Woodhull's announcement that the collector's monthly report on school moneys had not been received.

"That has happened once or twice before, hasn't it?" asked Mr. Woodhull of Clerk F. B. Clark.

"The collector said we could have it tomorrow," reported Mr. Clark. "He said the Council met tonight."

"What has the Council got to do with our money?" asked Mr. Abbott, looking as if he feared a new game was being worked on the board.

"I think the Board ought to take some action," said President Probasco. "This has happened several times lately."

A resolution was passed two months ago, requesting the collector to be prompt," said the clerk.

There was no further comment. The Board tacitly agreed to give the collector another chance.

E. M. Cave was the only absentee from the meeting, in spite of the baby blizzard. The session was brief and but little business was done.

Iron stairways to go under the fire exits on each side of the High School auditorium were voted. The stairways will be about eight feet high. When the wings provided for in the plans are erected the stairways will be rendered unnecessary. Their cost has not been estimated but it will not be large.

Superintendent H. M. Maxson was authorized to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of School Superintendents, at Chicago, February 25, as the representative of the Plainfield schools. It has been customary to send Dr. Maxson to the convention yearly.

The president announced the following committees for 1907: Teachers and Text-Books, Probasco, Lovell, Abbott; fuel, Cave, Lovell, Woodhull; books, stationery and supplies, Woodhull, Cave, Probasco; finance, Lovell, Abbott, Cave; buildings and repairs, Abbott, Woodhull, Cave.

Miss Evelyn Slater, of Somerville, has returned home after spending a few days with the Misses Dunavan, of East Second street.

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace. Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner. Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsoria line.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, } Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning, }
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, appointing agents, others for local work, including leading interests, $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. H. CODINGTON,
Counsellor-at-Law
Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

DIED.

BAKER—On Monday, Jan. 28, 1907, Rev. Halsey H. Baker, dearly beloved husband of Cynthia M. Baker and father of Mrs. Charles G. Crawford.

VOORHEES—Entered into rest, Feb. 1st, at her late residence, 17 Grove street, Martha G., widow of the late Uriah D. Voorhees, and daughter-in-law of the late Sheriff Voorhees.

HOWELL—In New York city, Sunday, Feb. 3, 1907, George D. Howell, of Chester, Pa., in his 63d year.

LELAND—On Saturday, Feb. 2, 1907, Mary, wife of George R. Leland, aged 76 years.

RAFFERTY—On Saturday, February 2, 1907, Thomas A. Rafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rafferty, 22 Sandford avenue.

PTASCHINSKI—On Jan. 31, 1907, Martin Ptaschinski, in his 83d year.

MORRIS—On Thursday, Jan. 31, 1907, Elizabeth Crary Morris, in her 82d year.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with your name and address and 10c. for a sample copy. Regular price 25c. Monthly. This paper

Burr Publishing Co.
4 West 22d Street New York

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and *mail order house, assistant man*ager (man or woman) in this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable. Write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 124 E. Lake St., Chicago.
c 7 19 18

MAGAZINE READERS

SUNSET MAGAZINE beautifully illustrated; good stories and articles about California and all the Far West. $1.50 a year

CAMERA CRAFT devoted each month to the artistic reproduction of the best work of amateur and professional photographers. $1.00 a year

ROAD OF A THOUSAND WONDERS a book of 75 pages, containing 120 colored photographic pictures of scenic spots in California and Oregon. $0.75

Total . . . $3.25

All for $1.50

Address all orders to
SUNSET MAGAZINE
Flood Building San Francisco

WITH pictures of color fidelity never before seen, will give such a faithful exhibit of the figure as the

De Bevoise Brassiere

in place of a corset cover. A perfect support and corset combined. Made of fine batiste, lace trimmed and lightly boned. It pulls down snugly over the figure, fastens to the corset clasp with a patent hook and eye, and is adjustable, combining the freedom of the brassiere with the proper lines. Comes well shaped, with short corset in back, fully boned, and with elastic sides to adjust to any figure. Made in white only. Sizes 32 to 44 bust measure.

Effect under the filmiest fragile waist. Makes all to-day corsets look old-fashioned.

PRICE $1.00 EACH

At all corset departments, or send us your dealer's name and $1.00 and we will send you one direct. Catalogue on request.

Chas. E. De Bevoise Co., 24 Mercer St., Newark, N. J.

URGES COUNCILS TO MAKE NEW LIGHT CONTRACTS

P. P. A. Considering Expert Spice's Report, Charges P. S. C. With Giving Only Half the Light Paid For.

ICE QUESTION DISCUSSED

Dealers Said to Be in the Big Trust, But Safe Because Statutes Are Too Weak—Other Worriments Touched.

Pretty nearly all the ills The Suffering Public is heir to were considered at the special meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association at the Casino, Friday. The meeting was called for a consideration of the report on lighting conditions, but the members held that off until they had brought the dissatisfaction with the ice dealers, the telephone company, short weights, and soft coal smoke up to date. The session was attended by over fifty members, but it had not the liveliness of the first meeting.

The discussion of the lighting report brought out nothing newer than the statement of Alfred Spice, the expert, contained. The consideration of public lighting conditions was passed on to the city and borough council, by resolution. The private lighting conditions were left for further action.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, came into the meeting in time to hear the discussion on street lighting, and he gave the Association assurances of his co-operation in the effort to better the service.

Expert Spice was present, and cleared up the technicalities in the report that were not understood by members. Practically the whole of the report was published early in the week. Mr. Spice explained the effect of voltage not adapted to lamps fed by it, making it quite plain that where the candle power of lamps dropped by reason of lower voltage the consumer lost much more than he appeared to gain by reason of decreased current consumption. Mr. Spice suggested that the variation in voltage might be met by dividing the city into voltage districts, and having lamps fitted for the voltage supplied to the people in the various districts. The voltage variation, Mr. Spice thought, might be beter controlled than at present by attention to the switchboard at the proper time.

The P. S. C. was severely scored in the discussion on public lighting. The report showed that the average candle power furnished the city was 12, just about half of what the municipality was paying for. It was estimated, on a basis of the amount spent for lighting by the city, that Plainfield had been paying the P. S. C. $7,500 a year for light it had not received.

"It is about time public sentiment was aroused to this condition of affairs," said President R. Henry Depew. "It should be met as we would meet similar conditions in our private affairs. If a tradesman were to deliver half the goods he charged us for and we found it out, can you not imagine the heated time that would ensue for that man?"

Mayor Smalley was called upon for a statement by President Depew. The borough executive said he welcomed the investigation, and promised hearty co-operation in remedying the conditions. He had thought the borough was getting pretty good lighting service, and just about what it was paying for, but that would not interfere with his readiness to help in any attempt to better the service. He explained that his satisfaction with the lighting came from recollections of the time when North Plainfield had depended on moonlight or unstable gasolene lamps. He was quite ready to believe that the lights could be improved, and every effort to make them better should be encouraged.

President Depew announced that Mayor Fisk had asked him to bring the result of the investigation before the Council, and he had Secretary H. C. White read the resolution, afterwards adopted, putting the matter up to the municipalities. The resolution authorizes the executive committee to take steps to correct the conditions, and asks the councils of the city and borough to investigate for themselves; offers the co-operation of the association in clearing up the matter; suggests that new contracts with the P. S. C. be drawn, rigidly defining what was to be given in return for the city's money, and incorporating therein a clause providing penalty for non-fulfillment of contract; and suggests further that the Councils confer with the P. P. A. before signing the new contracts.

President Depew explained that the desire to have the contracts shown to the association before signing was not born of officiousness. It was felt that the Association had data and information relative to the lighting conditions that might enable it to be of service in tightening the safeguards against loss to the municipalities.

The president urged the members to help in gathering data on the private lighting. He asked them to read their meters regularly and report, so that the association might tabulate figures and better understand how the P. S. C. worked.

Mr. Depew said the Public Service management had promised to have a representative at the meeting, to speak on the points raised. The only P. S. C. man in the hall was a clerk from the local office, who took notes on the proceedings.

Interesting incidents in the investigation of the so-called ice trust were recounted by Secretary White. He went to the head of the big ice company early in the summer, he said, and started a series of conferences. He was assured that the dealers were getting only a living out of the business, and couldn't afford to sell for a cent under the prices they charged. To prove it, the ice man offered to turn over all the wagons and horses owned by the dealers to the association and let the organization conduct the business, buying ice cheaper they could get it.

The ice captain—Mr. White mentioned no names—declared that there was in no sense a trust. Mr. White inquired if there would be any objection to showing him the contracts with the independent dealers. The ice man said there would be none at all, and promised to bring them to Mr. White's office in the city. Mr. White said he didn't; the captain explained and he left it would be fair to the dealers to give out the details of their business that way. Mr. White said an independent dealer had assured him there would be no objection to that. The captain changed his ground and explained that the attorney left it so, and approved of the action.

It developed from the conversation that the ice company was carefully incorporated, a New York attorney helping in drawing papers and a lawyer in the work. The ice man would not say who the New York attorney was. Mr. White explained that the P. P. A. was not seeking to lay a trap for the ice men, but merely wanted to get at the truth and to arrive at a basis fair to the dealers and the consumers alike. Would not the ice men tell the name of the New York attorney, that Mr. White might talk with him? The ice man wouldn't, and he didn't.

Mr. White declared that he had learned on what he considered good authority that the ice men here were part of the big trust. He had taken legal steps against the alleged combination, he said, because he was informed by an authority that the statutes of New Jersey were not strong enough to work under. Moreover, the committee had felt that in holding the rate to sixty cents a ton, a good work had been accomplished. He was sure that but for the activity of the association, the price would have been raised much higher.

In the discussion that followed Mr. White's report charges were made that the ice men had been offered an ample supply of ice, at rates cheap enough to guarantee a supply to Plainfield at a fair price, before last winter ended, but that the offer had been refused. The ice men denied that when Mr. White taxed them with it, but he told the association he had reason to believe the offer was actually made and turned down. It was charged that the ice dealers compelled the consumers to pay for all the ice that melted on the rounds of their wagons. A. H. Atterbury testified to the detection of short weights at this time, and asserted that the men on the wagon had a trick of selling small pieces for cash on their rounds, and put the weight of such pieces on the accounts of charge customers.

The association instructed the standing committee to watch the ice situation, paying particular attention to the visible supply and the steps taken by the company to garner it. The possibility of erecting a co-operative artificial ice plant was touched on, but no action was taken. Mr. Depew reported that a plant would cost $35,000 to erect. He said a real estate man had tendered him an option on a pond suitable for ice cutting near here, and the question of an ice house by the association was added to the possibilities.

The telephone service was condemned in strong terms by Former Councilman J. M. Whiton. He said the operators were underpaid, and that the staff was changed so often the telephone users never had the benefit of expert service. He said the company did not regard the rights of the people to any degree, and instanced the condition in which it had left the walk before its new building on Fourth street. The walk was blocked for months, he said, and was only made fairly passable after he had complained to the street commissioner and the police.

Mr. Depew said the charges in Plainfield were out of all proportion to what they were in other places. He suggested, on another line, that the association might work for a reduction in the cost of independent wires to something like what was charged for party wires, and have latter, which he said was a source of annoyance, eliminated. Mr. Depew and several others said the service had improved. Mr. Atterbury voiced a strong last word on the telephone company: "It is an unconscionable, extortionate monopoly, and it has us in its power," he said.

Soft coal smoke from the Central engines was briefly touched upon. Mr. Depew said a communication to Mayor Buckle, shortly before he retired, was referred to Chairman Wm. Tyler, of the Public Affairs Committee, and the latter had assured him that the question would be taken up as soon as possible. Mr. Tyler said he had been interested in it for several years, and had been intending to bring it to a head as soon as other important matters were disposed of.

Mr. Depew said there was no report to make on the water question. A municipal committee was investigating it, and he had thought it best to leave it with that body.

CITIZENSHIP BY FRAUD

U. S. District Court Alleges Plainfielder Secured Papers By False Testimony.

PLACED UNDER ARREST

New Law Covering Applications Much Harder Than the Old Way—Requirements Hard to Fill.

County Clerk James G. Calvert received notice Friday morning from Henry L. Stinson, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, that citizenship papers had been withdrawn from Gaetano Picozri, of this city, because of fraudulent testimony in the procurement of the papers. Picozri obtained his papers on June 29, 1904. They were granted by Judge Vail. The witness for Picozri was Giovanni Ignagio, also of this city. It appears that false testimony was given as to the length of residence of Picozri in the country, and on becoming aware of this United States District Attorney Stinson took action.

Picozri was placed under arrest and his papers were taken from him. County Clerk Calvert received them yesterday morning with instructions to expunge them from the records of the county, and no duplicate could be made. Picozri made an affidavit before District Attorney Stinson, admitting that there was fraudulent testimony given at the time he obtained his papers.

It is believed that Picozri was caught in an effort to obtain a passport to Italy. In applying for the passport, and answering questions then, he made statements that conflicted with the records on his citizenship papers. There have been about half a dozen caught in Union county in the same way. After swearing falsely in order to get citizenship papers some years later the men applied for passports. In answering questions they forgot what they had sworn to when they took out papers, and so were tripped up. The offense is punishable by a severe sentence.

Under the new law, which has been in effect since September, it will be much harder to become a citizen by any other than legitimate means. Though the law has been in force since September, it first went into practical effect yesterday, when the regular blanks reached the office of the county clerk from Washington. From September till yesterday no applications for citizenship were received because the old law was no longer in force, and the blanks for the new law had not yet arrived. There were about half a dozen applicants for papers yesterday morning, but none of them could fill the requirements of the new laws. There must be two witnesses for each applicant, and there are any number of questions in detail for which the applicants must be ready. The applicants yesterday morning were not prepared to answer all the questions.

OFF THE WAGON.

Did you hear that
Awful crash?
Resolutions
Gone to smash.
Stopped his paying.
Back in debt;
Water wagon
Clean upset.

Shut up diary
Till next year,
Stopped performing
Habits dear;
Gainst hard smoking
Took down bars,
Bought a lot of Good cigars.

Not too good for
Earth, perhaps,
Found old temper.
Same old row:
Gone back just like
Other days.
Richard is him-
Self again!
—BALTIMORE AMERICAN.

On the Job.

At a recent public meeting of retiring councilors in a certain ward in a country town one of the speakers got a hissing that he could bring an argument to a "p'int" as quick as any other man.

On hearing this one of the audience who was acquainted with the speaker shouted out, "Aye, man, Sandy, and ye can bring a quart tae a pint a guid bit quicker."—London Tit-Bits.

BAPTISTS THE CHAMPIONS

First Church Boys Win the Sunday-School Meet.

LONG LIST OF EVENTS

Medals For the Individual Winners —Main Trophy Must Be Won Thrice to Become School Property.

The first Sunday-school athletic meet held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, Friday night, under the auspices of the Sunday-school Athletic League, of Plainfield, was a success, although the entries were not as large as expected. The Sunday-schools in the league include Park Avenue Baptist, Warren chapel, Trinity Reformed, First Presbyterian, Hope chapel, First Baptist, Congregational, First M. E. and Grace Episcopal.

The First Baptist church had the largest representation, with Warren chapel second, and the former carried off a majority of the honors. The representatives from Warren chapel being handicapped by their size and age. There were fourteen different events and the work of the young athletes was very creditable throughout. In each case the winners were presented with bronze medals and the First Baptist Sunday-school received the silver cup offered by Chas. W. McCutchen, president of the league, its representatives winning the greatest number of points. This cup must be competed for at three different meets.

Great enthusiasm was displayed throughout the evening and the friends of the contestants enlivened the occasion by constant cheering. Mr. McCutchen led the First Baptist church representatives in singing and cheering. The summary follows:

15 Yard Dash—Russell Swift, First Baptist; Russell Sharp, Clarence, Baker, Elmer Johnson, Arthur Horne, Warren chapel; James Lindzey, First M. E. Won by James Lindzey, time, 2 5-10 seconds; Russell Swift second, Russell Sharp third.

Standing Broad Jump—D. R. Miller, H. P. Bailey, James Manning, First Baptist; Russell Sharp, Elmer Johnson, Warren chapel. Won by D. R. Miller, distance 7 9¼; James Manning second, 7 8¼; H. P. Bailey third.

Sack Race (Juniors)—D. R. Miller, G. S. Robins, First Baptist; Elmer Johnson, Herbert Reynolds, Warren chapel. Won by D. R. Miller, time, 2.2 8-10; G. S. Robins second, 2.6 6-10.

Potato Race (Relay)—First Baptist—D. R. Miller, Chester Denton, W. E. Briggs, W. S. Flanders; Warren chapel, Clarence Baker, Kenneth Mair, Charles Holstein, Russell Sharp, Clarence Baker, Elmer Jackson, Frank Reynolds. Won by First Baptist church, Warren chapel second.

Standing Broad Jump (Intermediate)—W. S. Flanders, First Baptist; Kenneth Mair, Warren chapel; Leslie Bond, First Presbyterian. Won by W. S. Flanders, distance 17.3½; Leslie Bond second, 16.5; Kenneth Mair third, 15.11½.

Standing Broad ump (Seniors)—Gideon Fountain, W. P. Banks, W. S. Flanders, Everett Sherwin, First Baptist; Earl B. Smith, Alvin Olson, Warren chapel. Won by W. P. Banks, distance 9.3; Everett Sherwin second, 9.1¼; W. S. Flanders third, 8.10½.

Potato Race (Boys)—G. S. Robins, First Baptist; Clarence Baker, Elmer Johnson, Arthur Horne, Herbert Reynolds and Thomas Deter, Warren chapel; Leslie Bond, First Presbyterian. Won by Leland Manning, time 1.50; Chester Denton second, 1.52.2; Elmer Bohan third, 1.52.3.

Shot Put, 8 pounds—Chester Denton, W. E. Briggs, W. S. Flanders, First Baptist; Charles Holstein, Warren chapel; Leslie Bond, First Presbyterian. Won by W. S. Flanders, distance 30.1½; W. E. Briggs second, 28.3; Chester Denton third, 25.10.

Potato Race (Relay) Juniors—Warren chapel, Clarence Baker, Elmer Johnson, Frank Reynolds, Arthur Horen, Clarence Smalley, Andrew Steiglitz, Herbert Reynolds; First Baptist, D. R. Miller, Russell Swift, James Manning, G. S. Robins. Won by First Baptist, time 1.41.

Running High Jump—Charles H. Lee, Jr., Gideon Fountain, W. P. Banks, James Manning, W. S. Flanders, Leland Manning, Everett Sherwin. Won by Gideon Fountain, distance 4.9; W. P. Banks second, 4.8; Everett Sherwin third, 4.7½.

Shot Put, 12 pounds—W. P. Banks, James Manning, Gideon Fountain, Everett Sherwin, First Baptist; Earl B. Smith, Warren chapel. Won by W. P. Banks, distance 29.11½; Everett Sherwin second, 29.4; James Manning third, 28.10.

The officials in charge of the meet were as follows: Director of games, Charles W. McCutchen, S. S. A. L.; referee, G. L. Listman, Y. M. C. A.; judges, J. W. Gavett, S. S. A. L.; C. B. Morse, Y. M. C. A.; Lindsey Best, B. S. Inspectors and monitors—J. McClymont, Congregational Sunday-school; Dr. Norman H. Probasco, S. S. A. L. Time-keepers —H. W. Barrows, Y. M. C. A.; W. Lester Glenney, Warren chapel; Phil P. Smith, First M. E. Sunday-school. Clerk of course—Harry C. Thompson, Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school. Announcer—F. S. Thompson, First Baptist Sunday-school. Scorer —Kenneth Robbie, Y. M. C. A. Starter—G. L. Listman, Y. M. C. A. Marshal—Harry Gavett.

The officers of the league are as follows: President, C. W. McCutchen; vice-president, J. W. Gavett; secretary, G. L. Listman; treasurer, C. M. Dolliver; governors, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, George E. Hall, Rev. Mr. Vicars Stevenson, William Stevenson, James R. Joy, J. McClymont.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS OF FOREIGN LIFE.

The Hottentots in arms against the Germans in Southwest Africa number only about 150, but, owing to the size and nature of the country, which is mostly bare of supplies, even fodder, the German military authorities consider 8,000 troops the smallest force that *should be kept in the field, with*out exposing the settlers to attack.

The colosseum that is to be erected in London for the Olympic games of next year will provide sitting accommodations for fewer than 367,000 spectators. It will hold four times as many as did the Colosseum at Rome.

In the reduced regiments of the British Army there are now twice as many non-coms and commissioned officers as are needed, and promotion promises to be so slow that a great many of the latter are sending in their papers, rather than waste their years in the service.

A number of doctors have offered their services free to the anti-suicide bureau of the Salvation Army, just opened in London, Birmingham and Bristol.

The public school children of Hull, England, were required recently to write essays on "alcohol." Some striking remarks were made in the course of them, such as: "Senfaring men who are in the habit of drinking are liable to collide with other vessels." "Today many people are in jail for committing suicide while under the influence of drink." "Alcohol is a mockery: at least it biteth like a servant, and stingeth like a hatter."

The Rev. Dr. Hunt, of Burgess Hill, England, remarked to his parishioners in the course of a recent lecture that he advertised many alleged cures for insomnia, but had never seen recommended the surest and cheapest remedy—going to church.

Cornelius O'Sullivan, for forty-four years head brewer of Bass' ales at Burton-on-Trent, England, died on January 8. He was an Irishman, made many scientific discoveries and was a member of the Royal Society.

After having been in use for 159 years an Axminster carpet is in the carpet factory at Wilton, England, having some slight repairs made to it.

According to official statistics France imports annually 170 tons of human hair, twenty-five tons of which come from Italy and 100 tons from China. Apparently the London Gentleman's Magazine is not altogether enamored of Carnegie's favorite game. It says: "Golf is a noble game, but it requires the best part of a county and a beast of a caddie with a load of furniture before you can play it at all."

When the Ameer of Afghanistan arrived the other day at Agra it was raining in torrents. As he rode at a walking pace, between lines of British troops, the General in command, seeing he had no overcoat, expressed regret at his getting wet. The Ameer replied :"I had a greatcoat in the carriage, but, seeing the army—my friends—living the roads without cover, I felt that it would have been unbecoming in me as a soldier to wear one."

The general in command of the 33d Infantry at Arras has ordered a large mirror to be fixed in the barrack yard so that the soldiers may make sure that they are spruce before they pass the gates.

Pin the Ring Case.

A useful case for hatpins, pins and rings is made of a small fancy ribbon with one of soft flannel tacked on to it and the two bound with narrow ribbon. At one end are sewed two or three little pieces of chamois leather, scalloped round the edges. This is to stick the pins into. At the other end a little bag is made, which draws together at the rim and is intended for rings. The hatpins are run into the lining, and the whole case is rolled and tied with ribbon.

Avoiding Trouble.

"Do you have any trouble with your janitor?" asked Mrs. Flatleigh.

"Oh, no. Both my husband and I believe in devoting all our spare moments to the pursuit of pleasure."—Chicago Record Herald.

EDUCATIONAL.

PLAINFIELD BUSINESS COLLEGE.
Cor. Park Ave. and E. Front St. Tel. 475-W
Day and Evening Sessions.
Superior ENGLISH TRAINING.
Fine opportunities for young men.

All the latest Popular Sheet Music
Vocal and Instrumental at 10c a copy.
CHAS. M. SUHR, 144 E. 6th St

Not Hard To Get
Good meats if you come here. We serve a great number of customers with choice
ROASTS, CHOPS, STEAKS, ETC.
They must be pleased or we would not be in business today. Our meats are selected with great care, and you will certainly be pleased with what you buy here. We also have a fine lot of poultry.
Fred. Endress,
181-183 WEST FRONT ST.
'PHONE 155.

Vail
JEWELER AND OPTICIAN
103 Park Ave.,
calls your attention to his
Rimless Glasses.
They Look Good and You See Good.
We have made arrangements for a larger supply of first class milk and are giving the family trade our special attention. If you are not satisfied with the milk or the services you are getting give us a trial.
Price 8 cents a quart.
Lindsay's Dairy,
965 West Front St.
TEL. 792-J.

NEW SOUPS.
It is so easy to serve these prepared Soups, and they are so inviting in appearance, so delicious to the taste, that the old way of making soup has become a thing of the past. Large variety of Soups and Bouillon from which to select.
W. W. DUNN,
The Park Grocer.
Door St. and Lincoln Place.

UNION NEWS COMPANY.
(F. M. Wagner, Agent.)
The Plainfield Daily Press and New York Morning and Evening Papers. Latest editions of the most popular Magazines. Also complete line of Cigars, Tobacco and Confectionery.

STATIONERY AND TOYS.
HARPER,
411 PARK AVENUE.
Try a Box of
DOBBINS' CIGARS.
Clear Havana Nickle Yara or 5c kins that you desire. Manufactured at 120 North avenue, opposite Kensington Hotel, Plainfield, N. J.

RENTALS — REAL ESTATE.
GEO. F. BROWN.
Insurance and Real Estate.
Commissioner of Deeds—Rents.
94 Somerset St. 'Phone 66.
REAL ESTATE.

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R.
In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.22, 6.57, 7.05, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.05, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30, 11.50 a. m., 12.10, 12.30, 12.50, 1.10, 1.30, 1.50, 2.10, 2.30, 2.50, 3.10, 3.30, 3.50, 4.10, 4.30, 4.50, 5.10, 5.30, 5.50, 6.10, 6.30, 6.50, 7.10, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.10, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.22, 6.57, 7.05, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.05, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30, 11.50 a. m., 12.10, 12.30, 12.50, 1.10, 1.30, 1.50, 2.10, 2.30, 2.50, 3.10, 3.30, 3.50, 4.10, 4.30, 4.50, 5.10, 5.30, 5.50, 6.10, 6.30, 6.50, 7.10, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.10, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30 p. m.

For Somerville—5.36, 7.11, 8.31, 9.17, 9.47, 11.00 a. m., 1.01, 1.43 Saturday only, 2.02, 2.09, 3.49, 4.32, 5.04, 5.28, 6.57 except Saturdays, 6.04, 6.19, 6.37, 7.12, 7.29, 7.59, 8.27, 10.27, 11.59 p. m. Sunday—12.29 (except Mondays) night. Sunday—5.45, 8.42, 11.13 a. m., 1.53, 2.03, 3.40, 5.37, 7.05, 8.30, 10.15, 11.35 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Mauch Chunk—2.25, 9.50 a. m., 2.09, 5.28, 8.30 p. m. Sundays—5.45 a. m., 2.03, 5.47, 7.05 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—5.45 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Long Branch and Asbury Park, etc. —2.27, 8.11 (10.55 Saturdays only), a. m., 12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 6.45, 6.57, 11.27 p. m. Sunday—3.27, 8.52 a. m., 3.30, 8.13 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—2.27, 8.11, 10.55 a. m., 12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 6.57 (Lakewood Saturdays only), 1.27, 2.44, (4.07 Lakewood only), 6.45 p. m. (Saturdays only, Lakewood only). Sundays—(8.01 Lakewood only), 8.57 a. m. Sundays—9.01 p. m.

For Philadelphia—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.22, 6.57, 7.05, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.05, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30, 11.50 a. m., 12.10, 12.30, 12.50, 1.10, 1.30, 1.50, 2.10, 2.30, 2.50, 3.10, 3.30, 3.50, 4.10, 4.30, 4.50, 5.10, 5.30, 5.50, 6.10, 6.30, 6.50, 7.10, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.10, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30 p. m. Sunday—2.17, 2.27, 5.36, 6.02, 6.22, 6.57, 7.05, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.05, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30, 11.50 a. m., 12.10, 12.30, 12.50, 1.10, 1.30, 1.50, 2.10, 2.30, 2.50, 3.10, 3.30, 3.50, 4.10, 4.30, 4.50, 5.10, 5.30, 5.50, 6.10, 6.30, 6.50, 7.10, 7.30, 7.50, 8.10, 8.30, 8.50, 9.10, 9.30, 9.50, 10.10, 10.30, 10.50, 11.10, 11.30 p. m.

For Reading and Harrisburg—5.36, 8.55 a. m., 2.09 (5.47 through train). Sundays —2.03, 5.47 p. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—5.36, 8.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sundays—2.03 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 6.44 p. m. Sundays —8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.42, 2.45, 2.42, 6.44 p. m.

*Change cars at Bound Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. W. C. HOPE, Gen. Pass. Agt.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect Nov. 18th, 1906.
LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.
7.35 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Cunk.
8.42 a. m. daily, express to Easton, Wilkesbarre, Rochester, Buffalo, and principal intermediate stations.
10.46 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and Chicago.
1.03 p. m. daily, local for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.
4.58 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express" Solid vestibule train to Wilkesbarre through Parlor Car to D. & H. R. R. to Scranton and Carbondale.
6.40 p. m. daily, solid vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal intermediate stations except Rochester.
6.23 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.
FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent. 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.
Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m.
On Saturdays closes half hour later.
Arrive—7.30 a. m.; 12.00 noon; 5.00 and 8.30 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m.; 12.00 noon; 5.00 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.
Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.20, 7.15 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m.; 12.00 and 5.00 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND EASTON
Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.20, 7.15 and 7.00 p. m.
Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.00, 2.30, 6.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton.
Close—7.30 a. m.

NEWARK—Direct.
Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 2.20, 6.20 p. m.
Close—7.30, 8.30 a. m.; 2.30 and 6.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.
Arrive—7.30, 8.40, 11.30 a. m.; 2.20 and 7.45 p. m.
Close—7.30, 7.30, 8.30 a. m.; 12.35, 4.30 7.45 p. m.
Through fast mail for West and South close at 7.15 a. m.
Through fast mail for East, close 1.00 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel)
Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 2.20, 6.20 p. m.
Watchung p. m. Close 7.30 a. m.; 2.30 p. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.
Office open from 9.30 to 10.30 a. m.
Mail closes at 9.15 p. m.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

Advertisements

—FOR—

New York Herald,
World, Times, Sun, Journal,
Telegram, American,
Brooklyn Eagle
—and—
Newark Evening News
Received at
The Daily Press
AT REGULAR OFFICE RATES.

J. W. VAN SICKLE
... North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Game in Season. Philadelphia Scrapple.
Orders called for and delivered promptly.
Telephone No. 662-J.

McCULLOUGH'S STEAM MILL,
11 Steiner Place, North Plainfield, N. J.
R. H. McCULLOUGH, Prop.
Sash, Blinds, Doors, Mouldings, Scroll Sawing, Turning, etc. Estimates cheerfully furnished.

STORAGE—Best equipped and oldest for storing Furniture, Pianos, etc. Special work has prompt attention. Rates reasonable. All goods insured. TELEPHONE 911-J. Orders left for moving promptly attended to.
C. M. NAGLE,
Front and Grove Sts., Plainfield, N. J.

SECOND-HAND MEN'S CLOTHING bought. Good prices given. Postal or note receives prompt attention.
L. RICHARD, 17 Somerset Street.

DISAGREES WITH P. P. A.

Policy of the Association Not to the Liking of Former Mayor W. L. Saunders.

RESIGNS AS MEMBER

Explains His Action to President Depew and States Reasons for Taking Exception.

Taking exceptions and disagreeing with the Plainfield Protective Association to its adopted policy concerning certain matters, William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, tendered his resignation as a member at the meeting in the Casino, Friday. The resignation was not acted upon in open meeting but as Mr. Saunders insisted upon resigning there will be nothing left to do but accept it.

Mr. Saunders in resigning as a member of the association, explained his reasons to Hl. Henry Depew, the president, as follows:

"Since our conversation yesterday and in view of your statement of the policy of the Protective Association, it is plain that our ideas on this subject differ, and I regret very much that under the circumstances I feel that I must withdraw from membership in the Association.

"I fully realize the difficult position you have been in and I know how hard it must be for an association of this kind to please everybody. To keep it in a healthy condition is a task which always involves difficulties and which creates antagonism, and although during several months past I have not in everything agreed with the position taken by the association, you, as I have been during much of the time incapacitated from active servile and co-operation with you, I have not felt that it was proper for me to make criticisms or to interpose any obstacles in the good work which you started out to perform. I am now, however, brought face to face with a question of principle which seems fundamental. I refer to the action of the executive committee in connection with the report of Mr. Alfred Spice on 'Gas and Electric Lighting Conditions in Plainfield and North Plainfield,' which you confirmed the statement that when this report was laid before the executive committee, the chairman of the committee on lights and trees of the City Council, Mr. Montgomery, was present at the request of the latter, and after being asked to turn over to the committee the contract between the city and the electric light company, he was told that his presence was no longer required and no intimation was given him of the substance of Mr. Spice's report until the matter was brought out in the public press, sometime thereafter.

"I cannot assume that the City Council or that any of his committees are either incompetent or corrupt until they have been tried, or until they have failed to act properly upon complaints when laid before them and I hold it to be the duty of the Protective Association and the duty of all citizens who may have discovered errors to lay the facts before the governing body in the community, before taking any other action, either in the public press or otherwise. As the present Council only came into existence on January the 1st last and as Mr. Montgomery, as chairman of the committee on lights was appointed since the present Council was organized, it seems just that we should give him a fair trial and should work with him, not against him, by frankly taking him into our confidence and if we have any reports of experts or any other information against the business under his charge, we should lay the whole matter before him and ask his committee to take action, offering our services and our full co-operation and interest. I cannot agree with you that the Protective Association is in any sense superior to the governing body, as the association is self-constituted and the governing body represents the people elected at the polls. Your statement that 'the Protective Association is the people' cannot be sustained in view of the fact that the association represents only those who are able to pay the price of admission. As such it can be made a valuable auxiliary but when it attempts to exert supremacy in public affairs it is treading upon dangerous ground.

"Permit me to assure you of my sincere personal regard and my admiration of the zeal and earnest work which you have shown in this organization."

Caruso's Voice to be Heard.

In order to accommodate the public, and in anticipation of a big rush to hear Caruso at the dinner given by the men of Church of the Holy Cross in the gospel hour, Monday night, February 11, tickets have been put on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy. Lovers of grand opera in Plainfield will have an opportunity to hear the celebrated tenor in a way that will be pleasing to all and that the celebrated "Warner Safe Biscuit" which will be a part of the menu, won the first prize at thirteen different State fairs last fall.

William Mack, who has been confined to his home on West Front street for a number of weeks by illness, is now much improved and hopes to go out soon.

WHAT'S THE USE?

What's the use of making trouble when it's with you every day—
What's the use?
What's the use of doing things in the most inconvenient way—
What's the use?
What's the use of hunting worry?
What's the use to fret and stew,
When there's not a ghost of reason
To believe it eases you
What's the use?

What's the use of lamentation when a good thing passes by—
What's the use?
What's the use, when you may laugh and shout, to turn it to a cry—
What's the use?
What's the use of breeding frenzy
And inciting ill to fly,
When the world is not disposed to Listen to your peevish growl?
What's the use?

What's the use of blaming others for the fault that is your own—
What's the use?
What's the use of piling burdens you should carry all alone—
What's the use?
Will it make your burden lighter
If the others you belie?
Weep about the home made troubles
That have made their home with you?
What's the use?

—Denver Times.

How De Musset Bought a Lunch.

One day, says Harper's Weekly, three friends in Paris were taking a walk together.

"I should like to have an exquisite lunch," said one of the three.

"I should be satisfied with a lunch," said the second, "which is a little short of being exquisite."

"And I," remarked the third one, "should feel content with any kind of lunch."

Unfortunately none of them was possessed of the necessary money.

Presently one of the trio was struck by an idea. He led his friends to a music publisher and made him an offer: Words from us a song. This gentleman wrote the text, that one set it to music, and I shall sing it, as I am the only one of use with a good voice."

"Well, sing it for a trial," answered the publisher. The young man complied, and the publisher seemed to be satisfied. He paid fifteen francs for the song, and the friends hastened joyfully to a restaurant.

The author of the text was Alfred de Musset, the musician was Monpor, and the singer Dupre. The song, which was bought and paid for with fifteen francs, "The Andalusian Girl," yielded the publisher 40,000 francs.

Close Questioning.

The Washington Star gives an account of an investigation of election frauds in the lower section of the State. In the course of the proceedings it developed that in a ballot in an important precinct had been sealed after the final count, thereby being exposed to fraudulent practices. The chairman of the investigating committee closely questioned the election judge as to why the prescribed duty of carefully securing the ballots had been neglected.

"Could you not obtain any municipe in the town?"

"No, sir."

"Could you not procure some sealing-wax, someshoemaker's wax, if nothing else?"

"No, sir."

"Well, then, sir why didn't you go out into the woods and get some resin? Do you mean to tell me that there were no pine trees around there shedding tears at your infamous rascality?"

Puritan Book Titles.

The chats about books serve to recall some of the publications of the Puritan age and the queer titles they bore. One runs "The Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soul for Sin, or the Seven Penitential Psalms of the Princely Prophet Judge." Two others are added William Humin's Handful of Honeysuckles, and Divers Godly and Pithy Ditties, Now newly augmented." Another, equally long-winded, was "A Reaping Hook, well tempered for the cutting down of the coming Crop; of Biscuit baked in the Oven of Charity. Carefully conserved for the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation." After these "The Spiritual Mustard Pot to make the Soul Sneeze with Devotion" is quite time!

Steel Dinner Knives.

Steel dinner knives should be cleaned every time they are used. Otherwise they will look black and dull. Bristol brick with soap is the best thing to use. Let the blade of the knife rest flat upon a board and rub well with a bit of soaped cloth dipped in the brick reduced to a powder. Some housekeepers use a small potato for cleaning knives instead of a cloth. If the blades have become rusted cover them with olive oil and quicklime. Put away for two or three days, then rub with brick.

Escaped.

Stranger (at Hayrick farm)—Boy, can you tell me where old Farmer Corndodger lives?

Boy—He's dead.

Stranger—Dead? Why, I've come all the way from Ameriky to visit him.

Boy—He must have been expectin' yer, I guess.—London Tit-Bits.

He Loaned Money to Papa.

She—Have you ever loaned papa any money?

He—Once or twice.

She—That must be the reason he has forbidden me to marry you. He says anybody that parts with his money as easily as you do will end in the poor-house.—Judge.

OVER THE TEACUPS.

"The one thing that most husbands need to make their home life supremely happy is a little well administered 'jolly' now and then at the hands of their wives," declared a matron whose long and happy married career is proof positive that marriage is no failure. "Most men are vain," she continued, "and so susceptible to flattery that the wife, if she only handles him the right way and uses the right judgment, will be able to work wonders with him, even when he is in the mood that suggests a tempest.

"We all know that a man wants his dinner when it is due, and though the heavens fall, dinner comes first, according to his way of thinking. Now, dinners by some uncertain mischance have an inexplainable trick of being late. So when he asks, 'Is dinner read?' it is only a foolish, luckless woman who will blurt out the truth, saying, 'No, it is not ready, nor will it be for a good half hour.' One could hardly blame the man if he would fly in a temper to be compared to the rage of a hungry lion.

"But the woman, wise to her own deceit," continued the experienced matron, "will answer in her sweetest tones, 'It but now awaits the dishing, but tell me dear, what have you been doing today, you look so well and rosy? Who can blame me for being proud of you?' accompanying her remarks, made to give him time to forget his hunger, with a seddctive embrace around the neck and a kiss offered with the proper degree of studied sweetness."

Under such circumstances a man more than likely forget his dinner for a few minutes, to think of the superior creature he is to be able to command such praise and flattery from his little wife, while she, wise woman, goes about serving the belated meal without he being any the wiser. There are more ways than one, as every woman knows, of keeping these men creatures thinking in the right station. They said after all, our best and most paying lot in life.

The "little hat" for the theatre has scored a success in Paris, it is said, and the anti-hat brigade is quite satisfied that it should be so. Very small, cap-like in shape, the tiny hats are, and they do not interfere with the view of the "man behind" any more or quite as much as some of the elaborate hairdressings in vogue. They are distinctly becoming, too, worn as the Paris woman knows how to wear hats, with a due regard for her own peculiar style, and flowers and jewels make them a decorative feature of the audience that is generally admired. They may be seen here in a year or two, though no one is ready yet to assure their coming. We are not yet tired of seeing our women hatless at the theatre.

LAUNDRY LINES.

Colored goods should be ironed on the wrong side.

A little borax in the last rinsing water will make handkerchiefs easier to iron and much softer when dry.

Never pin delicate materials on to the clothes line without placing a piece of clean paper between the fabric and the clothes pin.

When coarse lawns or other cotton fade white a dainty pink color can be given them by using the petals of an old artificial rose in the starch water when laundered.

By putting an ounce of sal ammaniac in the last water in which muslins or cottons are rinsed or a similar quantity of the starch in which they are stiffened they will be rendered uninflammable.

When the water is too muddy to whiten the clothes it can be cleared very quickly by stirring in a little corn meal. The meal will go to the bottom and as soon as it is thorough. ly cold will carry the solid particles with it.

AWARDED $125 IN SUIT AGAINST AUNT'S ESTATE.

Mooney Had Asked for $500 as Compensation for Caring for Her.

The case of the heirs of the estate of the late Miss Agnes A. Stansbury against the executor, Samuel R. Mooney, was heard before Judge Alwater at Elizabeth on Wednesday. The suit was brought by F. S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, to secure a final accounting, and the court allowed the executor $125 instead of $500 as claimed by him.

Mr. Mooney had in a claim against the estate for $500 for services rendered by himself and wife in taking care of his aunt, Miss Stansbury, during her last illness, covering a period as he claimed of two months. The evidence showed that Mr. Mooney had not attended his aunt more than five weeks and the court decided that a remuneration of $25 per week, amounting in all to $125, was all that he was justly entitled to.

Miss Stansbury lived for some years with her sister in Rahway and in the spring of 1895 went to visit relatives on Staten Island. While there she was taken ill. Meanwhile, her nephew, Mr. Mooney, who was afterward named the executor of the estate, took charge of her until her death, and later put in a bill for $500. Mr. Cutter and the other heirs took exception to the claim on the ground that it was excessive. The care of Miss Stansbury was looked upon as a labor of love and that no agreement was made as to compensation.

RUSSELL BROTHERS PELTED WITH EGGS.

Irishmen Try to Prevent Their Appearance in the Orpheum, in Brooklyn.

As John and James Russell appeared on the stage in the Orpheum theatre, Brooklyn, Thursday night to present their sketch "The Irish Servant Girl," they ran into a shower of eggs. Not all the eggs were fresh. The marksmanship was poor and the actors dodged all the eggs, but the back curtain and stage were well spattered and women in the audience complained afterward that their dresses were ruined.

Percy G. Williams, manager of the theatre, had an intimation that trouble was coming, and detectives were scattered through the audience. They at once arrested twenty-two men out of a crowd of 150 which had purchased a block of seats in the left side of the house and who they identified as having thrown the eggs. These men were taken to the Bergen street station, where a hearing of inciting a riot was made against them.

Hisses and catcalls, accompanied the eggs, and women in the audience became frightened at once and started to leave the theatre. The curtain was rung down and Mr. Williams went forward and assured the audience there was no more trouble. He said his mother was born in Ireland, that he had the highest regard for Irishmen and would not permit an act in his theatre that would offend them.

The hisses continued their act. Both said they had no intention to reflect in any way on the Irish race, that they both belonged to Irish societies, and that Mrs. James Russell was working in an Irish fair in Elmhurst, L. I.

Patrol wagons were called from the Bergan street, the Classon avenue and the Adams street stations, and the men arrested were taken to the Bergen street station. They said they represented Irish-American societies which objected to the caricature of their race. The men in the party who were not arrested cheered those who were placed in the patrol wagons, and followed them all the way to the station.

Mr. Williams said a committee of twelve men had called on him Monday, and protested against the Russell Brothers' act. He had promised to cut out the objectionable part, and invited the committee to the matinee. The committee made no objection to any part of the act, except to say it thought the Russells raised their skirts too high in a dance.

Of the twenty-two men arrested, ten gave their residence as Manhattan, and one Long Island City. They will be arraigned in the Myrtle avenue court today. The Russell Brothers have appeared in the New Plainfield theatre several times.

TALES OF THE NURSERY.

Bright Sayings by Some Modern Mites of Humanity.

Sunday-school Teacher — What would happen now if people were struck dead for lying, as they were in ancient times?

Bright Pupil—There wouldn't be anybody left to bury 'em.

Uncle George—Tommy, here's a dollar to buy your mamma a birthday present next week. Have you any idea what she would like?

Small Tommy—No, but I know what I'm going to buy for her.

Uncle George—What?

Small Tommy—A toy drum.

Little Elsie (in the country)—Oh, mamma, look at those Leghorn chickens!

Mamma—Yes, I see them, dear. But how do you know they are Leghorns?

Little Elsie—Why, don't you see those little horns on their legs?

Small Edith was visiting in the country for the first time.

"What do you think of our rural scenery, dear?" asked her grandmother.

"Oh, it isn't so bad," replied Edith. "It looks almost as natural as real theatre scenery."

Little Elmer—Mamma, won't it do just as well if I take a bath Sunday instead of goin' to church?

Mamma—Why, what do you mean, dear?

Little Elmer—Well, takin' a bath is the next thing to goin' to church if cianliness is next to godliness.—Chicago News.

She'd Change It.

"Really, now," said Meekley, "I think I ought to tell you that while my disposition is good enough at times it's rather finicky. That's the worst of it."

"Ah," significantly remarked Miss Strong, his fiancee, "I'll make the best of it."—Philadelphia Press.

Colossal Precaution.

"I suppose you have put something by for a rainy day?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I have several millions put away in gilt-edged securities."

"You must be looking for a deluge."—Washington Star.

Careful of Herself.

Mistress—Mary, why didn't you finish winding the clock? You only gave it a couple of turns.

Mary—You must remember that I'm leavin' you tomorrow, mum, and I'd not be after doin' any of the new girl's work!—Smith's Weekly.

OVER THE TEA CUPS.

The question is often asked, "Can a girl be an artist's model or a chorus girl, and still hold the respect of those about her?" and as often is the answer given, "Why not?" It's all rubbish to assert that because a girl, through force of circumstances, has to earn her living behind the footlights, or in the studio, she is less likely to walk the straight and narrow path than her sister who measures off ribbon in some department store, or takes dictation in an office, eight hours a day.

It isn't what a girl does for a living that makes the difference; it's what she is and how she conducts herself. If a girl is the right sort, she can walk through the world without meeting temptation, and she can be as good as gold, every minute of the time.

On the other hand, the girl who is always looking for adventure could be shut up in a cloister from her infancy, yet she would find temptation in some form or other if she had to break down the heavy doors of the building to find it.

It is a mistaken idea that high-strung, emotional women are the ones who succumb to the temptation, but that is hardly so: it is rather the silly, empty-headed girl, whose bump of vanity is more largely developed than her good sense. This type of girl is not one whit more immune from temptation in the office or salesroom, or even in her own home, than she would be in a position that would keep her in the limelight of the public stage.

If there is any one thing more than another that girls should avoid, it is the use of slang. It is a common thing to hear really cultured girls, made the victims of good education, inject into their conversation, slang phrases that girls with less advantages would scorn to use. Somewhere, someone has said that the girls in the humbler walks of life, the girls employed in stores and factories, cannot engage in ordinary conversation without using slang to a marked degree. While this may be said of some, it must be admitted with credit to the majority of workgirls, made the beds, cleaned the windows, fed the canary bird and cat, finished the ironing, prepared luncheon for the family, scrubbed the front porch, sewed on an apron. The children came home, ate luncheon, and had to be washed and dressed time.

After this noonday repast the woman cleaned chickens for dinner, made a sponge cake, put a new binding on the dress she had been wearing for fifteen years, and set sponge to raise for the next day, cleaned the silver spoons, made a guimpe for the oldest girl's dress, and was making the gravy for supper when the man came in and said:

"Good gracious, isn't supper ready yet? What have you been doing all day?" She was too tired to tell him, so she just scraped the gravy into the bowl and called the unruly brood to dinner.

A VALENTINE SUGGESTION.

It is not too early to begin making some of the little hearts which you will use in February when you have your yearly feast for the little god of Love and your numerous friends. The paper hearts are sold, and candy ones are not all you need, and you haven't the least talent in the world for painting them for place cards. Well, here is a new idea. Get your cards. You want right good sized ones, then cut out little white pasteboard hearts, dip them in melted paraffine which is made blood red with cochineal in the mixture. Lift out the little wax hearts and arrange in artistic style on the place cards. You can embellish the plates and many of the dishes in this manner. It is a very easy manner to scrape them off the dishes after the frolic is over.

To Make the Home Attractive.

The second floor hall is usually a large, unattractive room with no ornamental features to please the eye. If there is sufficient room to have a wide seat at the front, make it cozy and inviting with a bright-colored couch and many pillows in oriental style. Have the woodwork painted white, the walls papered in Japanese paper, and hang Japanese pictures on the wall. A small bamboo stand holding a palm or fern, and a small chair will produce a very pleasing effect in what has heretofore been a plain room.

Dr. W. Kempton Browning, of Park avenue, was a guest at the brilliant military wedding Friday at the Sacred Heart church, New Brunswick, when Miss Josephine Fox, daughter of the late Captain Fox, was married to Dr. William J. Condon, assistant surgeon of the Second Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard.

RUSSELL BROTHERS PELTED WITH EGGS.

Irishmen Try to Prevent Their Appearance in the Orpheum, in Brooklyn.

As John and James Russell appeared on the stage in the Orpheum theatre, Brooklyn, Thursday night to present their sketch "The Irish Servant Girl," they ran into a shower of eggs. Not all the eggs were fresh. The marksmanship was poor and the actors dodged all the eggs, but the back curtain and stage were well spattered and women in the audience complained afterward that their dresses were ruined.

Percy G. Williams, manager of the theatre, had an intimation that trouble was coming, and detectives were scattered through the audience. They at once arrested twenty-two men out of a crowd of 150 which had purchased a block of seats in the left side of the house and who they identified as having thrown the eggs. These men were taken to the Bergen street station, where a hearing of inciting a riot was made against them.

Hisses and catcalls, accompanied the eggs, and women in the audience became frightened at once and started to leave the theatre. The curtain was rung down and Mr. Williams went forward and assured the audience there was no more trouble. He said his mother was born in Ireland, that he had the highest regard for Irishmen and would not permit an act in his theatre that would offend them.

The hisses continued their act. Both said they had no intention to reflect in any way on the Irish race, that they both belonged to Irish societies, and that Mrs. James Russell was working in an Irish fair in Elmhurst, L. I.

Patrol wagons were called from the Bergan street, the Classon avenue and the Adams street stations, and the men arrested were taken to the Bergen street station. They said they represented Irish-American societies which objected to the caricature of their race. The men in the party who were not arrested cheered those who were placed in the patrol wagons, and followed them all the way to the station.

Mr. Williams said a committee of twelve men had called on him Monday, and protested against the Russell Brothers' act. He had promised to cut out the objectionable part, and invited the committee to the matinee. The committee made no objection to any part of the act, except to say it thought the Russells raised their skirts too high in a dance.

Of the twenty-two men arrested, ten gave their residence as Manhattan, and one Long Island City. They will be arraigned in the Myrtle avenue court today. The Russell Brothers have appeared in the New Plainfield theatre several times.

TALES OF THE NURSERY.

Bright Sayings by Some Modern Mites of Humanity.

Sunday-school Teacher — What would happen now if people were struck dead for lying, as they were in ancient times?

Bright Pupil—There wouldn't be anybody left to bury 'em.

Uncle George—Tommy, here's a dollar to buy your mamma a birthday present next week. Have you any idea what she would like?

Small Tommy—No, but I know what I'm going to buy for her.

Uncle George—What?

Small Tommy—A toy drum.

Little Elsie (in the country)—Oh, mamma, look at those Leghorn chickens!

Mamma—Yes, I see them, dear. But how do you know they are Leghorns?

Little Elsie—Why, don't you see those little horns on their legs?

Small Edith was visiting in the country for the first time.

"What do you think of our rural scenery, dear?" asked her grandmother.

"Oh, it isn't so bad," replied Edith. "It looks almost as natural as real theatre scenery."

Little Elmer—Mamma, won't it do just as well if I take a bath Sunday instead of goin' to church?

Mamma—Why, what do you mean, dear?

Little Elmer—Well, takin' a bath is the next thing to goin' to church if cianliness is next to godliness.—Chicago News.

She'd Change It.

"Really, now," said Meekley, "I think I ought to tell you that while my disposition is good enough at times it's rather finicky. That's the worst of it."

"Ah," significantly remarked Miss Strong, his fiancee, "I'll make the best of it."—Philadelphia Press.

Colossal Precaution.

"I suppose you have put something by for a rainy day?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I have several millions put away in gilt-edged securities."

"You must be looking for a deluge."—Washington Star.

Careful of Herself.

Mistress—Mary, why didn't you finish winding the clock? You only gave it a couple of turns.

Mary—You must remember that I'm leavin' you tomorrow, mum, and I'd not be after doin' any of the new girl's work!—Smith's Weekly.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

How to Become a Favorite.

The neighbors in a North Fourth street neighborhood are infatuated with a woman who will not allow her girls to touch the piano after 8 o'clock in the evening. The woman says the girls have all day to play the piano, and when tired people are going to bed she will not allow her piano to bother them.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

A Heartless Jury.

Bob Smalls, the white man who was sentenced to be hung at Darlington today, has had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The jury that tried him done him great injustice—he was poor, ignorant, a stranger, and, with all, was drunk.—Bennettsville (S. C.) Democrat.

Can Sit Up and Taste.

Austin Brothers reached the seventy-first milestone in his life last Saturday. He is still hale and hearty and still has an old-time relish for the feast usually provided for such occasions.—Carrollton (O.) Chronicle.

Homecoming of Horace Littlejohn.

We are glad to see our popular druggist, Mr. Horace Littlejohn, back at his place of business, after his recent illness. His appearance at present, though, seems quite lengthy and structural, but we hope to soon see him as rotund and healthy looking as a washtub.—Leesburg (Va.) Mirror.

Light for the Dominie.

The W. C. T. U. ladies went to Ludlow last Friday with a liberal donation for the minister. They presented him with a copy and a year's subscription to their national paper, the Union Signal.—Carrollton (Mo.) Republican-Record.

Result of Water in Kansas.

Fellows over south who came so near drying up and blowing away early in the season are coming in on the home stretch, having gotten a good rain Thursday afternoon.—Valley Falls (Kan.) New Era.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

Few hands are perfectly formed, yet the greatest change can be made if the nails are given proper attention. Soft nails are not so easily cared for as the thick white ones, and it is going to take time and patience to make beautiful the thin, ugly-shaped nails which break so easily. The hands should be washed in hot soap suds, holding the hands in the water until the skin is soft around the nails and can be pushed back with the paddle-end of the orange stick. When cleaning the underside of the nails, cover the tip of the orange stick with a soft handkerchief, and dip the point in lemon juice or some good nail bleach. Do not use paste on the nails, but scrub them thoroughly with hand sapolio and rub with the nail polisher until they are sufficiently glossy. This is the simple method of caring for the hands. If the nails are very brittle, do not try to give them the oval curve on the top; it is only an aggravation, for they are certain to break, and the short round effect is more pleasing than long broken nails.

THE USE OF LACES.

The craze for laces invades every field. It is an adorable dress accessory, and women cling lovingly to the pretty trimmings. For a time lace was colored to match certain gowns. This was not popular, since anything but the standard colors, white, black and ecru was considered just a trifle superfluous in the eyes of the modistes after a short reign of colored or dipped laces.

A very handsome piece of lace shows a touch of hand-painting, so daintily and delicately blended over the flower designs in the lace as to give it the appearance of net over satin blossoms. When the work is carefully done the effect is very artistic, yet should not be carried to the extreme in decorative effect, or it will meet a similar fate as did the dipped laces.

Lace and chiffon will ever be popular, for nothing so far has been able to supplant the two articles which, when combined in a dress trimming, give lovely results.

Bigamist Gets Three Years.

Jersey City, Feb. 4.—Edward Snyder, the young man who elected to go to trial on a charge of bigamy but later refused, when he saw both wives in court, to call witnesses or testify himself, was sentenced by Judge John A. Blair, in the Court of Generals Sessions Friday afternoon, to three years in State prison.

Councilman and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, are home from their southern trip.

Miss Louise Racine, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting relatives at Watchung avenue, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, of New York, have returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sokol, of Duer street.

Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz, of Somerset street, who has been detained at home with an attack of the grip, has practically recovered.

John H. Snyder, of Manning avenue, who has been detained at his home for several weeks by illness, is able to be out again.

Mrs. G. H. Carperton, of Fire Creek, Va., is spending a few days with her parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

How to Become a Favorite.

The neighbors in a North Fourth street neighborhood are infatuated with a woman who will not allow her girls to touch the piano after 8 o'clock in the evening. The woman says the girls have all day to play the piano, and when tired people are going to bed she will not allow her piano to bother them.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

A Heartless Jury.

Bob Smalls, the white man who was sentenced to be hung at Darlington today, has had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The jury that tried him done him great injustice—he was poor, ignorant, a stranger, and, with all, was drunk.—Bennettsville (S. C.) Democrat.

Can Sit Up and Taste.

Austin Brothers reached the seventy-first milestone in his life last Saturday. He is still hale and hearty and still has an old-time relish for the feast usually provided for such occasions.—Carrollton (O.) Chronicle.

Homecoming of Horace Littlejohn.

We are glad to see our popular druggist, Mr. Horace Littlejohn, back at his place of business, after his recent illness. His appearance at present, though, seems quite lengthy and structural, but we hope to soon see him as rotund and healthy looking as a washtub.—Leesburg (Va.) Mirror.

Light for the Dominie.

The W. C. T. U. ladies went to Ludlow last Friday with a liberal donation for the minister. They presented him with a copy and a year's subscription to their national paper, the Union Signal.—Carrollton (Mo.) Republican-Record.

Result of Water in Kansas.

Fellows over south who came so near drying up and blowing away early in the season are coming in on the home stretch, having gotten a good rain Thursday afternoon.—Valley Falls (Kan.) New Era.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

Few hands are perfectly formed, yet the greatest change can be made if the nails are given proper attention. Soft nails are not so easily cared for as the thick white ones, and it is going to take time and patience to make beautiful the thin, ugly-shaped nails which break so easily. The hands should be washed in hot soap suds, holding the hands in the water until the skin is soft around the nails and can be pushed back with the paddle-end of the orange stick. When cleaning the underside of the nails, cover the tip of the orange stick with a soft handkerchief, and dip the point in lemon juice or some good nail bleach. Do not use paste on the nails, but scrub them thoroughly with hand sapolio and rub with the nail polisher until they are sufficiently glossy. This is the simple method of caring for the hands. If the nails are very brittle, do not try to give them the oval curve on the top; it is only an aggravation, for they are certain to break, and the short round effect is more pleasing than long broken nails.

THE USE OF LACES.

The craze for laces invades every field. It is an adorable dress accessory, and women cling lovingly to the pretty trimmings. For a time lace was colored to match certain gowns. This was not popular, since anything but the standard colors, white, black and ecru was considered just a trifle superfluous in the eyes of the modistes after a short reign of colored or dipped laces.

A very handsome piece of lace shows a touch of hand-painting, so daintily and delicately blended over the flower designs in the lace as to give it the appearance of net over satin blossoms. When the work is carefully done the effect is very artistic, yet should not be carried to the extreme in decorative effect, or it will meet a similar fate as did the dipped laces.

Lace and chiffon will ever be popular, for nothing so far has been able to supplant the two articles which, when combined in a dress trimming, give lovely results.

Bigamist Gets Three Years.

Jersey City, Feb. 4.—Edward Snyder, the young man who elected to go to trial on a charge of bigamy but later refused, when he saw both wives in court, to call witnesses or testify himself, was sentenced by Judge John A. Blair, in the Court of Generals Sessions Friday afternoon, to three years in State prison.

Councilman and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, are home from their southern trip.

Miss Louise Racine, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting relatives at Watchung avenue, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, of New York, have returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Sokol, of Duer street.

Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz, of Somerset street, who has been detained at home with an attack of the grip, has practically recovered.

John H. Snyder, of Manning avenue, who has been detained at his home for several weeks by illness, is able to be out again.

Mrs. G. H. Carperton, of Fire Creek, Va., is spending a few days with her parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue.

SMOKED CIGARETTE WHEN ARRAIGNED IN COURT

MONCHALANT CONDUCT OF "RED TOBIN," THE YOUNG DESPERADO.

Eugene T. Tobin, better known as "Red" Tobin, the Westfield boy desperado, who attacked Charles L. Dean, of this city, the night ticket agent of the Central Railroad, at the Westfield station, Thursday morning, with a view of robbing the ticket office of between $2,000 and $3,000, and who was overpowered by Dean and handed over to the police, was arraigned Saturday before Judge W. B. Toucey and was committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Tobin remained in a cell at police headquarters until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the meantime, Detective Gaffney, of the Central Railroad, got complete details of the assault from Dean. Officer Martin Canfield, who arrested Tobin, led the youthful desperado from the cell. Tobin approached the rail with a cigarette in his mouth.

"Throw that cigarette away," shouted Police Justice W. B. Toucey.

"All right," replied Tobin, as he walked to the other side of the room and deposited the cigarette in the stove. Officer Canfield followed the prisoner closely, fearing he was looking for a chance to escape.

The court then read the charge, saying: "Eugene T. Tobin, you are charged by Charles L. Dean with as*sault and attempt at robbery.*" Tobin immediately pleaded not guilty and asked for bail.

Judge Toucey stated that the offense was too serious for bail.

"All right," said Tobin. "I will get it when I reach Elizabeth."

Detective Gaffney stated that he was not ready to proceed with the case at present. The court set Wednesday, February 13, at 2 p. m. as the time for the hearing. Tobin reached the county jail shortly before 6 p. m.

Tobin's past record is a bad one. Several years ago he figured in a highway robbery at Garwood, and he and his partner, named Hann, were sent to the State Reformatory. Tobin's parole expired last May. Tobin and Hann laid in wait for Alfred Woldt, a grocer, of Garwood, and, after striking him over the head, rifled his pockets of a large sum of money. Woldt was unconscious for nearly a half an hour, and still carries a deep gash in his forehead from the effects of the blow. The borough of Garwood offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of Mr. Woldt's assailants.

Tobin and Hann were found in New York by a Garwood boy. The two had with them a Newark girl, say the police. The Garwood youth went to New York and lived with the trio and enticed Tobin and Hann back to Westfield by planning a highway robbery. Isaac Lambert, a distiller, was to have been their victim. Hann was left at Garwood to await the return of his companions with the spoils. He was arrested while waiting and Tobin was found hiding in the barroom of the Hotel of the Westfield Hotel, which he expected Lambert to pass. When taken into custody at that time Tobin had a long piece of iron pipe, upon the end of which was a bit. This was the weapon to be used on Lambert.

A MAN DOES NOT ADMIRE

A self-opinionated girl. Not that he would object to an opinion exactly, but the ideal woman must at least be willing to be converted when her error is shown her.

A cold girl, or one whose manners give the impression of coldness—for in fact cases are not often to be merely a manner. Sometimes it arises simply from shyness, sometimes from a too whole-hearted desire to be coy. The most beautiful face ceases to be attractive to the would-be lover when the desire for admiration its owner has little else to bestow.

A girl who is the least bit rapid in her manner of speech. He may talk to her, flirt with her perhaps, but in his heart he dislikes her.

A dainty girl. The girl whose buttons are forever coming off, whose hair is always ill-dressed and who habitually wears a half-finished air never finds favor in his sight. A dainty freshness possesses a potent charm over the decorative effect.

He cares little that the gown may be of the year-before-last's fashion, so that it fits perfectly, and all the little details of the toilet, especially boots and gloves, be above reproach.

An affected girl. The girl who is forever pretending to be something she is not. Such a transparent pretense as it invariably is, too, deceives no one.

Scented Stamps.

It is a pretty conceit to scent one's postage stamps. This may be done in an easy way by keeping them in a teakwood box. There are many pretty little boxes of this kind made to hold postage stamps, and it is astonishing how they absorb the dainty odors. Sweet-grass is more odorous than teakwood, yet if one is unable to procure either, the paper packages of wood sachets sold for ten cents will provide not only the stamps but the writing paper with a delightful odor.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Case, of Crale place, have gone to Atlantic City, where Mr. Case will recuperate from an attack of the grip.

The Constitutionalist.
A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.
Published a.
PLAINFIELD, N. J.
Terms: $2.00 per year.
A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1907.

G.S. MOULTON A SUICIDE

Former Local Man, Who Conducted Mountain Park Inn Kills Himself.

ILLNESS THE CAUSE

Was the First Manager of the Hostelry Which Has Since Become the Grossmann School.

Driven to desperation by pain and sleeplessness, G. Sinclair Moulton, part owner of the Manhattan Square Hotel, in West Seventy-seventh street, and who conducted the Mountain Park Inn when it was first opened, committed suicide Saturday night by shooting himself three times. His remarkable vitality, as revealed by an autopsy, amazed the surgeons. He shot himself first in the right temple, then in the right breast, and finally through the heart. A revolver was clutched in his hand when the body was found yesterday noon in a room in the Grand Union Hotel, and on a table beside the bed was a box containing nearly one hundred loaded cartridges.

In the five or six hours preceding death that Mr. Moulton spent in his room he wrote several letters, but their contents were not revealed. One was addressed to his wife, in care of Simeon Ford, owner of the Grand Union Hotel.

Mrs. Moulton was prostrated long before the letter reached her, knowing, she told friends, her husband had done away with himself. He left her before noon on Saturday, asserting that his head "snapped." Early in the day, after saying he had spent a sleepless night and was in constant pain as a result of a stomach ailment, he had, in a half joking way, asked her to end life with him. She had calmed him and thought she had driven all idea of suicide from his mind.

Suggestions that business troubles might have been the cause of Mr. Moulton's suicide were promptly refuted by friends and associates. To a few of them the cause appeared to be a deep mystery, but Mrs. Moulton and a few intimate associates said it was temporary insanity, brought on by continual suffering and resultant sleeplessness. The business was extremely prosperous and his bank account was of good size.

Although only forty-one years old, Mr. Moulton had risen to prominence in the hotel world and in his fifty years experience had been connected with some of the most widely known hotels in the country. Few men were better known to the patrons of summer hotels. Beginning as a check boy in the Parker House in Boston, when eleven years old he made rapid progress. He served as head waiter, steward, head clerk, assistant manager, manager and part owner. For several years he was connected with the Ocean View Hotel, Block Island, and for four years, ending six years ago, with the management of the Laurel in the Pines, in Lakewood.

Last October, after conducting it for six seasons, he gave up the management of the Hotel Ampersand, in the Adirondacks, and came to New York.

The Manhattan Square, a twelve story apartment hotel, was taken over about the first of the year by the Walter Russell Hotel and Realty Company and the plan was to make it part of a big studio building. Mr. Moulton organized the Park Side Hotel Company, of which he was made president, and got a lease on the hotel property. Several persons were associated with him, but it was said yesterday that he was the controlling factor and was reaping a good reward. He made his home in the hotel with his wife, whom he married two years ago and with whom it is said he lived happily. She was his second wife.

Mr. Moulton was the first manager of the Mountain Park Inn and remained there for three years. He met with good success and while in Plainfield he made a large acquaintance. He was well-liked for his genial disposition and many excellent qualities. He identified himself with the management and part ownership of the Manhattan Square Hotel, New York, about two months ago.

Wilson's Pal Disappears.

The pal of James Wilson on William Walters, the bicycle thief, who was taken to Somerville hospital after falling from a train at Round Brook two weeks ago, has disappeared from the ken of the police. He was discharged last Wednesday before Chief Kiely could make inquiries about him. If he is the crook the police think him he will cover his trail carefully.

KITCHELL FOR CAPTAIN

Company K. Members Decide Upon Him at Caucus Held Last Night.

ELECTION COMES LATER

First Lieutenant John M. Lewis Resigns Because of Pressure of Business Matters.

The members of Company K at a caucus held Monday after the drill selected Second Lieutenant Harry Kitchell, of Westfield, for the position of captain to succeed Captain Martin, recently elected major of the Second Regiment, succeeding Major Dungan, who was likewise promoted to the position of colonel, taking the place of Col. Collins, successor of Brig.-Gen. Gillmore. First Sergeant Charles Peterson was the choice of the company for the position of first lieutenant to succeed John M. Lewis, resigned, and Quartermaster Sergeant A. I. Littell was the choice for the position of second lieutenant to succeed Harry Kitchell. It is not known at present when the election will be held, but the date will be announced by the regimental officials.

There is deep regret over the resignation of First Lieutenant John M. Lewis, who has been acting captain since the promotion of Captain Martin. He is a charter member of the company and has always taken great interest in all the affairs of the organization, working hard for its success in drills and marksmanship. Resolutions expressing the appreciation of the entire company for faithful services performed by Lieut. Lewis were adopted and a copy of them engrossed will be presented to him. Mr. Lewis resigns from the company for business reasons, finding that he has not time to devote to its many duties.

In the selection of Harry Kitchell for the position of captain, the members believe that the next high standard of efficiency will be maintained in the future as in the past under Captain Martin. He is also a charter member of the company and from the first has been closely identified with the organization and its successes. It is believed that he will enjoy the respect and confidence of every member of the company.

FOR THE YOUNG HOUSEWIFE.

You have very little knowledge of taking up the work in your own household, for this responsibility was never your portion at home. You want to do your own cooking and serving in that new little home, yet dread it with all your heart, because you know so little about the art of cooking. Let daintiness be the keynote of all you do when preparing and serving a meal. Do not begin trying French recipes with their fancy frills beore you learn the simple art of cooking. The one essential feature in cooking is to take time for it. A woman who rushes the cooking is never going to excel in that line of work. Do not try to make bread until you have mastered the art of cooking vegetables and meats. Then will it be time to learn how to make pastry.

In cooking meat never put the meat in a skillet with cold grease, or burning fat; the best results are obtained by slow cooking, keeping a lid on the skillet and occasionally dropping in a very little water to prevent burning, when you have the quickest way to cook anything. In boiling meats place in the boiling water, or first place the meat in a dripping pan, partially cook it like a roast, then add enough water to cook it, but not enough to dry out, leaving enough liquor in which to cook vegetables. The secret of cooking vegetables is to use only enough water to cook them thoroughly done, and not long enough to drain them in the water. The instinct is natural, and a little care and judgment will serve you in the perplexing problems. Don't be ashamed to ask experienced persons hod to do a thing, and first begin with the simple, palatable meals.

Broke Jail for Fun of It.

Wooster, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Simply to show that they could, Allen Meller, Harry White and William Berhart, youths in jail here under indictment for murder in the first degree, made their escape yesterday morning by cutting the bars. The three got out of the steel cage and went down into another part of the building and gave themselves up. They escaped from jail a month ago and were recaptured in a few hours.

Was Quartermaster-Sergeant.

Emmett Wortman, who was arrested at Somerville, Saturday, on a charge of non-support and desertion preferred by his wife, was quartermaster-sergeant of Co. M, Somerville, and not Lieutenant, as reported. He was employed at the Manganese Steel Safe Works and was two months ago in this city.

Euchre Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Johnson entertained a party of friends at a euchre party at their home, West Fourth street and Grant avenue, Saturday night. Refreshments were served after the playing.

Miss Carrie Dubois, of Easton, Pa., who has been visiting friends in town, has returned home.

GESANG AND TURN VEREIN HOLDS "KNACKER" NIGHT

MEMBERS OF THE SOCIETY HARD HIT BY "HAMMERFEST."

The man who can't stand to have his particular failings exposed to caustic comment and criticism had no reason to be at Saengerbund Hall, Sunday night, when the Gesang and Turn Verein held its annual "knacker" night. It is the one occasion when the members of the society "knock" each other good and proper and there is no possible chance of escape for the unlucky individual who happens to have been foolish or made mistakes during the year.

The society and its friends gathered at 8 o'clock and from then on until midnight the game was on, interspersed only at times by songs and other features, provided of course, the audience could stand for the untempered criticisms of their acts. Otto Keller was chairman and the climax in the fun was reached when William Claassen handed a "knock" out to him that "brought down the house." With much detail and an occasion when they turned dog catchers at Dunellen and landed a mongrel, only to be put off three successive trolley cars in the attempt to get home. "Bill" Claassen got a dozen good-sized stitches and Anton Stennenberger, Rudolph Spiegel, Charles Kreutzfeldt and Mat Menzenbach were others who squirmed under the verbal lash. A German paper distributed about contained knocks for nearly every member of the society.

In the set programme, the feature was a one act comedy, "The School," in which the parts were taken by Otto Keller, as teacher, and Bernard Baumann, Charles Stursinger and Herman Caspar, as pupils. Songs were given by Paul Nachtway, Charles Dresselt and Professor Hermann Eichhorn and the Singing Section contributed several appropriate numbers.

Those in charge of the affair were the following: General committee, Otto Keiler, chairman; John Retzer, secretary; Fritz Schmidt, Herman Caspar and Bernard Baumann; refreshments, Anton Stenzenberger, Jacob Schlick and Charles Kreutzfeldt; reception, John Wirth and Henry Bergen.

LITERARY.

The railroads are no longer able to get their freight cars in and out of the yards and terminals of the larger cities. They cannot get their cars loaded and unloaded or returned to the place where they belong. The business of the country has been to a great extent paralyzed for weeks past on account of what is called the "freight-car famine." Yet freight cars by the hundreds of thousands are standing on side tracks and packed into freight yards, all in one wavering chaos of hopeless mismanagement. We have simply reached the climax of a situation that has been coming on for years, and that could have been met without very serious difficulty. The situation cannot be justified by any honest answer from the business standpoint to the question why railroad facilities should not have kept pace with the growth of other business enterprises. Lack of capital is hard to excuse.—From "The Fairness of the World," in the American Monthly Reviews of Reviews for February.

It is safe to say that the February Atlantic will make its first claim upon the reader's attention because of its unusually effective array of serial features. Mary Sinclair's novel, "The Helpmate," which opens this month into its second installment, has already proved its right to be counted among the "big" novels of the year, evincing, as it does, a remarkable insight into one of the most dramatic and vital situations of modern life. Edith Wharton's "Motor Flight Through France" comes to its end—all too soon for the reader's satisfaction. Lastly, "The Spirit of Old West Point," by General Morris Schaff, begins its publication this month; and if one may judge from the opening chapters, we are to have in this series the most graphic, spirited, and sympathetic account which has yet appeared of life at the great Military Academy during the momentous February contains the following articles: "Glacial Erosion in Alaska," by years jus preceding the Civil War.

The Popular Science Monthly for Professor Ralph S. Tarr; "The Relation of School Organization to Instruction," by Professor Wilbur H. Jackson; "In Search of Truth," by President David Starr Jordan; "Is Man An Automaton?" by Professor George Stuart Fullerton; "A Vocabulary Test," by Professor E. A. Kirkpatrick; "Magical Medical Practice in South Carolina," by John Hawkins; "The Value of Science," by M. H. Poincare; The Convocation Week Meeting; The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; The Sanddunes of the Desert of Islay.

PLAINFIELDER TOLD OF BANKING IN THE SIXTIES

FORMER MAYOR GILBERT GAVE INTERESTING ACCOUNT AT BANKERS' DINNER

At the annual dinner of the New York State Bankers' Association in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, President Alexander Gilbert, of the New York Clearing House, of this city, portrayed the happy existence of the banker of the '60s.

Chairman Stephen Baker, in introducing Mr. Gilbert, said that he had started in business in 1844 as cashier of the old Market Bank.

"I am also told," said Mr. Baker, "that my good friend, Mr. Morgan went in business that year; so it was a memorable year."

"I suppose you will take no exception to the statement," said Mr. Gilbert when he arose, "when I say that if Mr. Morgan started in 1864, the same year as I did, he has left me far behind him in the race."

Mr. Gilbert went on to say that it was a fitting thing that the second toast at a bankers' dinner should be the New York Clearing House.

"It is," said he, "the tie that binds us together, that holds us in with gentle strength, that creates the standard by which is made possible conservative banking in the city of New York and in times of danger rallies us all together in defense of the credit of this country. We must not forget that long after we pass away it will live and its power increase until it will become the greatest financial power in the civilized world."

Mr. Gilbert spoke of the wonderful changes in business life in the last four or five years and said that it had been forging ahead by leaps and bounds, the progress being something too marvelous to grasp.

"We find ourselves," he said, "surrounded by forces which are pushing us along at too fast a pace, and it is to the New York Clearing House that the people are looking to maintain in a good degree conservative banking. The magazine writers tell us that we are living in an age of hazardous enterprise, of high finance and overcapitalization, the age that shuts the sunlight out of our streets and a good deal of it out of the hearts—an age for gain.

"Well, this may be true. Some of us believe that it is true. But what are we going to do about it? We can't get off this planet. Let us hope that these things are nothing more than the natural expansion of the restless energy of our people. But let us remember as bankers that the business prosperity of the country today and for all time to come must rest on the conservation of the banking power of the land.

Mr. Gilbert said that he could remember when banking in New York was delightful, when the rate of interest was 7 per cent. the year round and when there was no competition.

"Today," he said, "the banker feels that he must stand on guard all day to prevent the other fellow from encroaching on his reserve. Then bank presidents were elected because they had gray hairs and had nothing to do but look wise. Every applicant for a loan was met on the discount box and go before the board. Those were the days when the directors earned their fees, although we didn't pay them anything. Gentlemen, you may not believe it, but it seemed an honest life were all happy. We all made money.

"If the bankers of New York today would just stand shoulder to shoulder and work to maintain conservative banking instead of reaching out to get everything in sight we would have more happiness in our business lives."

Mr. Gilbert said that in those days no one had thought of "elastic currency." He said that the bankers of that time had reached the conclusion that the best basis for financial activity and Wall street speculation at the same time.

"Now," said he, "we have several great speculative movements at the same time, the result being high interest and abnormal business conditions. I don't know why the banker should not meet his obligations at maturity. In those days the comptroller used to compliment our system. I never heard then that it was a shrewd scheme of the Government to sell its bonds. You did hear, though, that it was the best help this Government preserve its life and at the same time give the country safe currency in lieu of wildcat money.

"That system has served the country well for forty years, and you find no one who can question its soundness. Its notes pass for par in every part of the civilized world."

YE OLDE CHOIR.

The revival of social activity among the young men of the Hope chapel Y. M. A. will be marked on the evening of February 22 by an entertainment on Park place. As has even been characteristic of Y. M. A. affairs, novelty will be in the ascendant.

The entertainment is to include the appearance of "ye olde village choir." Judge Runyon will be the choirmaster, and the members expect him to get more out of the choir than any other choirmaster ever dreamed of finding in his choristers. Choirmaster and singers will be in costume.

CHOKED BY BIG THIEF

Royle Phillips Has an Encounter With a Muscular Crook.

TOSSED UNDER THE BED

Interrupted Nervy Criminal at Work in His Room—Intruder Escaped After Speezing Young Man's Wind Out.

Leaving a family circle that was seated before the fire in the dining room listening to a phonograph, Royle T. Phillips, son of Percy F. Phillips, of Madison avenue, went upstairs at 10 o'clock Sunday night to change his coat. Then he stepped into his bedroom a big man sprang on him from the darkness, and clutched him by the throat. The man threw him down, shook him to emphasize his helplessness, and flung him under the bed. Then the big man ran out through double doors that lead to a balcony above the Phillips' porch.

Phillips got his wind and yelled as the man disappeared. His father and a younger brother, Kenneth, came up on the run. They found Royle with his collar torn off, slowly readjusting himself to normal conditions. His appearance indicated that the intruder had choked half the wind out of him.

"No sign of the big man was to be seen outside, but two small dogs in the kitchen, which lies near one of the posts of the porch, started barking wildly just as Mr. Phillips and Kenneth reached the bedroom, and it is deduced that Royle's assailant escaped down that post.

Two gold studs and a gold collar button went with the big man. There was no sign of forcible entrance anywhere, and it is supposed the crook slipped in through the front door. Royle's room lies directly at the head of the stairs. The shades of the sitting room were up, and it is supposed the man saw the family listening to the phonograph, decided that everybody was downstairs listening to it, and seized the chance for sneak-work that presented itself.

Royle Phillips could not describe the thief, except as a big man. The room was pitch dark, although the thief had opportunity to prepare for Phillips' coming by the aid of a light in the hall, and things happened too quickly for the young man to get any kind of a look at his assailant. Royle said he started to call as soon as the man grasped him, but the family heard nothing until the cry that brought Mr. Phillips and Kenneth. It is believed the crook had a tight grip on the young man's throat the latter couldn't cry out until the grasp was released. There is no doubt that the chief was pretty big. Royle is an athlete and an exquarterback of note, and the way in which he threw him and then flung the book after him indicates that the thief is a well set-up citizen.

The police were notified by telephone right after the occurrence, and an investigation was begun. The officers found the usual dearth of clues. What they did find was ground for wonderment over the house the crook picked out. The family is a large one, and an ordinary crook would never expect to find clear sailing for sneak-work between supper-time and bedtime. There are no less than eight dogs on the place.

Montclair Will Meet Plainfield.

The management of the Montclair High School is out early with its schedule of baseball games for the coming season. Captain Wilson has issued a call for the candidates to report a week from today for practice. The school promises to have the strongest team in its history. Games have been scheduled with Plainfield High School, Peddie Institute, De-Witt Clinton, East Orange, Newark Academy, Newark High School, Stevens Prep. The game with Plainfield High School is scheduled to be played in this city May 11.

TALK OF SECOND LEAGUE

Part of the General "Fanning" as to West End Nines.

A. T. A. B. NINE LIKELY

Would Draw Support of St. Mary's Followers and Lead to Rivalry of the Glad Days of Yore.

Plans have practically been completed for the consolidation of the Suburban baseball nine with the Hope chapel Y. M. A. team, under the latter's name. Most of the Suburbans are chapelites and the transition will seem quite natural to them.

In connection with the strengthening of the Suburbans report of the prospective rising of other new stars among the amateur nines are heard. It is said that the T. A. B. Society, which has revived its youth and has started forth on lines of renewed activity, is planning to put a team in the field. A T. A. B. team will offer a great vista of hot games to the Y. M. A. The following of a T. A. B. team would be largely that of the old St. Mary's team, and the return of the sterling rivalry of the halcyon days of West End baseball would attend the coming of the new team.

It is a settled thing that the Y. M. A. team will apply for a franchise to the Intercity League. It is pretty nearly as settled a thing that the application will be refused, but the Y. M. A. will go through the motions of knocking at the door and put the whole matter right up to the league. The Y. M. A. supporters appreciate the difficulty under which the league will be regarding the enlargement of membership, but it is felt that the league should have the chance of refusing the team after careful consideration and not on a snap decision. As like as not, the T. A. B. team, if shaped up in time, would also ask for a franchise. If the league had a chance to take in a A. T. B. team and a Y. M. A. team and did it, the "magnates" could be very certain that record-breaking attendance at West End games was assured.

One of the side lines of talk run out from the central batch of gossip deals with the possibility of a second league. With the making of a team and an ambition to shine in the baseball world, and Somerville yearns a bit that way also. The second league might make as swift a run as could be desired by the teams and their followers, but it is to be confessed by all concerned at this stage that the project is not what might be called exactly well defined.

ENDEAVOR ANNIVERSARY.

Sermon to the Endeavorers of Trinity Reformed Church.

The service at Trinity Reformed church Sunday night marked the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor movement. It was largely attended.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, who has been filling the pulpit since Dr. Schenck's illness, preached a sermon to the Endeavorers, on self-help. He took his text from Timothy 1:4-14, "Neglect not the gift that is in thee." His theme was the sins of neglect.

The music was a special feature of the service. E. D. Young played a cornet solo. Horace J. Martin led the singing.

Shepard—Kay.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Kay to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Winifred Prentiss, to Rurtherford Mead Shepard, on Saturday, February 23, at the Arlington Street church, Boston, Mass. Mr. Shepard is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood.

Harris—Solleder.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob John Solleder, of 38 Montgomery street, Jersey City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Edythe Solleder, to Stanley C. Harris, of West Front street, this city.

REPLIES TO THE P. P. A.

Manager Wilson, of Natural Ice Co., Takes Exception to Way He Was Assailed.

TREATMENT NOT FAIR

Declares Members Went Beyond Their Jurisdiction in Prying Into the Affairs of a Private Concern.

Andrew Wilson, who is manager for the Natural Ice Company, which was attacked by the Plainfield Protective Association at its meeting in the Casino Friday night, was seen today by a representative of The Daily Press and questioned about the matter.

Mr. Wilson took exception to the way in which his company had been assailed by the association. He said that the company had no objections to giving out all the information necessary to aid the members in their laudable efforts to correct what it believed to be an evil, but when the association sought to pry into the private affairs of the company, he thought it was time to call a halt.

He said that the association wanted to ascertain the receipts and expenditures of the company, what it was paying its employes, how much it was paying for ice purchased out of town and many other facts which were considered extremely pertinent and he could see no reason why the company should give the information. He thought it was right for the association to get after the Public Service Corporation or any other corporation that happened to be operating under a franchise or right granted by the city, but to attack a private business concern was out of its jurisdiction.

Mr. Wilson said further that the Natural Ice Company does not hold an exclusive franchise or right to sell ice in Plainfield and North Plainfield. Any individual or company has the perfect right to engage in the ice business wherever and whenever they please, sell it for whatever price they please, or they can erect a plant and manufacture ice if they so desire and no one will stop them.

The manager of the company added that the examination of its books would prove beyond doubt that it was not making a fortune, in fact was only receiving a reasonable and legitimate profit on the money invested in the ice business and that he had had a conference with a representative of the Plainfield Protective Association and he did not consider the treatment accorded to be fair. The company was accused of being unfair, and withholding facts which would in part would tend to clear up certain matters.

HEIGHTS TO BE DEVELOPED.

William Jeffrey to Devote All His Time to Enterprise.

William Jeffery, the well-known real estate broker, has decided to give his entire time to the development of the Berkeley Heights property, and the property of the Berkeley Heights Association in Plainfield. He will retain an office in the Jeffery building on Park avenue, but will probably lease the store on the first floor for a commercial line.

Mr. Jeffery, who altered the building on Park avenue, occupied by him, for his own business, has been engaged in developing land on the Lackawanna Railroad in addition to his Plainfield real estate business. The new ferry service of the Lackawanna Railroad, and the additional facilities which the McAdoo Tunnel, together with the McAdoo Tunnel, are creating such a demand for property at Berkeley Heights and the immediate neighborhood, that Mr. Jeffrey has arranged to give all of his time to the property. He is now building a picturesque office building opposite the station at Berkeley Heights and near the bungalow residence that he recently built and the coming season promises to be a busy and successful one.

LIQUOR MEN MAY PROTEST.

Grand Jury's Action Likely to Affect Their Business.

The liquor dealers throughout the county have learned that the results of the investigation into excise matters by the Grand Jury is likely to have a serious effect on their business in the matter of the enforcement of the screen clause, and there are rumors of a protest from them because of stories they have heard of the lax manner in which the provisions of the law have been carried out in Elizabeth.

It is said the Grand Jury passed a resolution calling for the notification of all liquor dealers and keepers of some so-called inns and taverns that the law must be obeyed, with the intimation that any violations discovered would result in the speedy prosecution of the delinquents. The screen law has always been rigorously observed in this city and the dealers would be in no way affected by the Grand Jury's actions.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Vreeland, of Prospect street, East Orange, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Louise, to Chauncey B. Koons, of Sandford avenue, this city.

Radium Radia
Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be
THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.
IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE
Hundreds have been cured with one Application
Recommended by Eminent Physicians
APPLIED EXTERNALLY
Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City
PRICE $1.00 and 50c. Write for Booklet
MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1907. NO. 7.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities ."—Madison.

PRESIDENT M'CARTER DEFENDS THE P. S. C.

Head of Great Public Utility Concern Tells of the Difficulties It Encounters.

HE EXPLAINS ITS AIMS

Thomas N. McCarter in Speech Before Board of Trade Issues Warning Against Municipal Ownership.

The able speech made by President Thomas N. McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation, on that public

Thomas N. McCarter.

utilities' concern's aims, at the annual banquet of the Board of Trade last night, follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of Plainfield:

For the past two years, during the peak—as we say in the electrical business—of the public feeling against corporations in general, and quasi public corporations in particular, I have conceived it to be wise, in the performance of my duty as President of Public Service, to refrain from speech-making, and devote my entire energy to the routine and arduous duties of my position. The public, rightly or wrongly, has not been in a receptive frame of mind, and anything that I, or one similarly situated might have said would have had little, if any, effect. The pendulum has swung so far, however, that the thinking men of the country are beginning to appreciate the gravity of the situation, and therefore it seemed to me, when I received the courteous invitation of my friend, your Mayor, to come here tonight and speak on this subject, that perhaps the time was ripe for me to frankly discuss before an intelligent audience of this character, the problems which confront me as head of the large corporation over which I preside, and affect us all as citizens of the Commonwealth of New Jersey.

To begin with, at the risk of wearying you, I am going to give you a bit of my personal history, in order that you may appreciate the viewpoint from which I approach my present duties, and I am also going to tell you something of the history of Public Service, for any discussion of public utilities in New Jersey is necessarily, for the most part, a discussion of the affairs of that corporation.

I was educated as a lawyer, and I pursued my profession until the formation of Public Service and my election to its Presidency in 1903. The few years prior to 1903 had been formative or constructive years of the underlying companies now in the Public Service, and in my professional work I had been considerably employed in doing the legal work involved. In several instances I invested money in the enterprises which I was conducting legally, out of one of two of which I made money, our of others not. My point is, that I was not one of the gentlemen concerned in the original exploitation of these various enterprises. Not that I am casting any reflection upon those who were; that work was done by some of the strongest men this State has produced. It was a strenuous undertaking, and undoubtedly shortened the lives of Vice President Hobart and the late B. M. Shanley, of Newark. There is much to admire in the work of these gentlemen and their associates. They quickened the growth and development of our State, they gave employment to thousands of people, and they made living more comfortable. But from the present standpoint it is clear that they made mistakes too, in that they over-discounted the future, and over-capitalized some of the great properties they constructed. This

(Continued on Page 5.)

TRIBUTES TO LINCOLN

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and Former Assemblyman Swackhamer Recite His Virtues.

NOBILITY OF CHARACTER

"If Lincoln Had Lived We Should Not Have Had to Wait So Long For Reunited Country," Says Divine.

The Men's Club, of the First Presbyterian church, appropriately observed the anniversary of Lincoln's Birthday, at a dinner given in the chapel last night. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the club and so successful was the affair that it is proposed to make it an annual one. The dinner was served at a number of tables and after enjoying an excellent menu which was served under the direction of several women of the church, the assemblage listened to two fine addresses, one by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, and the other by S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, both speaking on Lincoln. S. W. Dunning, as president of the club, presided, and first introduced Dr. Chambliss, who was General Robert E. Lee's army chaplain. Dr. Chambliss said:

"I was one of thousands of young men, and older men, who thought that they were hard hit by Providence when, in 1860 Lincoln was elected President. The men of today could never know how the men of the South felt in those days—how wild they were with what they believed to be patriotic fire, kindling and blazing at the thought that they were about to be robbed of what they had been taught to regard their constitutional rights. The spirit of secession was not universal, but so nearly so that it seemed as if man, woman and child were ready to die rather than submit to the political doctrine which triumphed in the election of Lincoln. Courage, at least did not seem to be lacking.

"True it had not been tried, but the day soon came when it was tried, and the day lengthened into months, and into weary suffering years for both sides, until at last them, indeed, beat the victory to one side and left the other only a 'Lost Cause.' How far apart then were North and South. It seemed that nothing less than the compasses of eternity could span the chasm. But it has been spanned, bridged, filled up. And no intelligent man doubts that the awful chasm would far more quickly have been closed but for the accursed stroke of the assassin's hand which five days after the surrender fell upon that generous, broad-minded, great-souled, sweet-hearted man, whose memory we cherish this evening.

*"Such sentiments concerning Lin*coln were not even then uncommon in the South. He had won them. Indeed, been accorded the lofty place which he has since attained in that latitude as in this as to all the elements that go to make a great man. But his kindness, his sympathy, his goodness, his honesty, his incorruptible purity of motive and purpose no honorable man questioned, and the cruel, monstrous blow which struck out that great light in the temple of freedom thrilled with horror every brave heart in the South as it did in the North.

"If Lincoln had lived, we should not have had to wait so long as we did for a re-united country. The miracle of the ages is presented in this country today. I would venture to say that never before since history began has anything appeared comparable to the union, peace, oneness of national spirit now witnessed in this land within scarcely more than a single generation after a war, the most terrible and most tremendous in cost of blood and treasure of modern times. I wonder what Lincoln would say—with what amazed, bewildered eyes he would look upon this land, if he could now awake from his sleep at Springfield and look about him—the country which was torn and bleeding at every pore, when he lay down to sleep, now lying in the calm, sweet sunshine of peace and prosperity more perfectly the home of a united people than ever before. And he would wonder to see an old Confederate chaplain at a Lincoln birthday dinner, speaking the praises of Lincoln with a heart full of reverence and love."

The genuine applause that was given throughout and at the end of the talk by Dr. Chambliss was only equalled by that accorded Mr. Swackhamer, who spoke as follows:

"Thomas Carlyle has said: 'Great men are the fire pillars in this dark pilgrimage of mankind; they stand as heavenly signs, ever living witnesses of what has been, prophetic tokens of what may yet be, the revealed, embodied possibilities of human nature.' To me one of the most charming, absorbing, fascinating themes in literature is biography. "It

(Continued on Page 5.)

BRIGGS A ROOSEVELTIAN

United States Senator-Elect Defines His Views on Matters of National Interest.

ADMIRES PRESIDENT

He Will Stand Pat On the Constitution, Believing It To Be the Safest Guide—Favors the Panama Canal.

When Senator-elect Briggs goes to Washington he will be a Roosevelt Republican in practically everything excepting the Brownsville troop muddle. He will stand hard by the constitution as a guide for his political course, and will strive to do his governmental work on a strictly business basis. This was the substance of an interview had with him today.

"I am inclined to be a trifle old fashioned in my political notions," Mr. Briggs said, "and I think we have yet to find a better guide in our governmental affairs than the Constitution of the United States. It is true, of course, that new industrial and social questions have arisen and press for solution, but they are no greater nor more difficult than those which confronted the framers of the constitution."

On specific matters now pending before Congress Mr. Briggs declined to express himself, taking the position that it is not for a new man, without experience, to criticise the men who are endeavoring to solve the pending problems.

"As a business man I appreciate the very great importance that the Panama Canal is going to be to this country and I believe that work should be carried on in a business like manner, without any regard to politics. I do not believe that anywhere in the land is the importance of a protective tariff more thoroughly appreciated than in New Jersey. It is my firm belief that all tariffs should be rigidly enforced. If the Sherman anti-trust law is a good one to keep on the statute book it should be enforced."

"I have naturally had the interest of an active business man in all matters of national import and have formed many opinions of my own. I shall go to Washington predisposed not only in favor of the policies and work of President Roosevelt, but a warm admirer of such men as Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock, Secretary Taft and Attorney-General Bonaparte, whose work has excited my interest. My situation with regard to legislative matters is not changed. As the representative of the people of New Jersey it will be my duty in the future to thoroughly investigate all phases of questions that are to be passed upon by Congress in order that I may intelligently act for the best interests of both State and nation. This I propose to do.

As a West Pointer and former army officer, Mr. Briggs has taken an especial interest in matters affecting the army, and heartily indorses the President's ideas of maintaining an efficient army and strengthening the navy.

"On these matters," said Mr. Briggs, "I am in entire accord with President Roosevelt. We should, as the President says, do everything in our power at all times for the cause of honorable peace and there is no surer guarantee of peace than having a navy of sufficient size to make warlike nations hesitate."

"The army and navy should be kept up to their present strength, and this can only be done in the case of the navy by constantly replacing the worn-out and obsolete ships by good ones."

When asked as to his opinion on the Brownsville incident, Mr. Briggs replied:

"Well, that is a point upon which with my present information I am inclined to disagree with the President. I think a proper course there would have been a court-martial. If the commanding officer was unable to maintain proper discipline, he should have been court-martialed."

Shriners Will Entertain.

The Plainfield members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, and their wives, will leave this city Friday night on the 6:18 train from the North Avenue station for Newark, where they will attend the "ladies' night" entertainment to be given by the Shriners in Krueger's Auditorium. This will consist of a vaudeville show, supper and dance. The Plainfielders will return home in a special trolley car.

Prof. Krebs Speaks at Somerville.

Prof. H. Krebs, of the North Plainfield Public Schools, and Rev. Dr. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, were speakers at the Lincoln dinner given by the Men's Club of the First Reformed church, Somerville, last night. Prof. Krebs spoke on "The Obscure Hero," and Dr. Demarest's subject was "Reminiscences of Old Rutgers."

MISS NEILSON DIES FROM EFFECTS OF BURNS

PASSED AWAY IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL AT 5:30 YESTERDAY.

Miss Hannah Neilson, the servant at R. H. McCutcheon's home who was terribly burned through her clothing catching fire from a range, Monday night, died in Muhlenberg Hospital at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. The woman was beyond hope when received at the institution and all that could be done for her was to alleviate her sufferings. The flames had left their effects on nearly every part of her body, the face and head alone escaping.

Although Miss Neilson had been in Mr. McCutcheon's employ for over a year, the family or the other servants did not know much about her. She came to this country from Sweden and it is thought all her relatives are there. Mr. McCutcheon is making a determined effort to locate them and pending the result the body is being held at Undertaker Casey.

William McDonough, who made a vain attempt to save Miss Neilson and who received bad burns himself in consequence, is doing very nicely. His arms were blistered from the hands to the shoulders and he will be kept from work for several weeks.

CROWTHER FOR JACKSON.

Middlesex Assemblyman Wants Defeated Senator for Treasurer.

Assemblyman Frank Crowther, of Perth Amboy, one of the speakers at the Board of Trade banquet last night, remained in the city until this morning. Before leaving for Trenton he was seen by a representative of The Daily Press and questioned concerning his opinion regarding the contest for State Treasurer.

"I don't know any more about that question than you do," replied Dr. Crowther. I am for Former Senator W. H. Jackson, of Middlesex county. You know every representative has a favorite son and I would vote for him on the first ballot. If I then learned that he did not have enough votes to elect him, I would stand by the decision of my party caucus, believing their choice to be for the best interest of all."

SECRETLY MARRIED.

Marriage Announcement of Miss Van Winkle and Ellis Emery Surprises Friends.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage of Miss Violet Van Winkle and Ellis H. Emery. The young people were wedded secretly on December 23, at Westfield, by Rev. C. J. Greenwood.

The families knew of the marriage several weeks ago, but announcement cards, sent out yesterday, gave their friends the first intimation of it. The couple had been formally engaged, and there was no opposition to the match. They simply took into their heads to wed quietly, it was said by the bride's family this morning. Mrs. Emery has been living with her brother, Frank Van Winkle.

Elizabeth Post Office Site.

Final selection of a site for the new post office building in Elizabeth will be made on March 13, according to a notice received this morning by Postmaster Charlock from the Post-office Department at Washington. The communication is signed by Secretry L. M. Shaw. One of the government agents was notified a short time ago looking over the proposed sites. His selection will doubtless be one of three: Morris avenue, near the Central Railroad station; East Grand street, near Broad, and corner of Broad and Caldwell place.

Silk Company Directors Elect.

At a meeting of the directors of the Watchung Silk Company, yesterday, the following were elected for the following year: President, J. Fred MacDonald; vice-president, E. M. Laing; secretary, Henry Fitke; treasurer, W. R. Codington. All had been serving with the exception of Mr. Lietke, who succeeds Allen R. Laing.

Finest P. O. in the District.

E. M. Norris, assistant inspector of salary and allowance division of the postal department, was in Plainfield yesterday inspecting the local post office, which includes the new quarters recently acquired. Mr. Norris said he was pleased with the office and its equipment, declaring it to be the finest one in his district.

—The next meeting of the Sesame Club will be held tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. M. A. Zook, 126 East Sixth street.

—Lovers of fresh fruits and vegetables should see the large display at Neuman Brothers store. Indian River oranges and grape fruit, fancy apples, Boston head lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers are included in the list.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Guinn entertained a few friends at their home last evening.

SENATOR REED HOPEFUL

In the Race For Treasurership Provided No Deal Has Been Made.

VOORHEES WILD CLAIMS

Somerset County Leader for the First Time Explains How He Was Made a Victim for Newspaper Criticism.

After repeated efforts a representative of The Daily Press pursuaded former State Senator Reed today to break his silence and tell whether he is a candidate for the State treasurership. That he will make an effort to land the prize provided the State leaders have not stacked the political deck, he admitted, adding that he could not believe that the great majority of the legislators would allow the office to be turned over to a favorite of the State machine as a part of a deal. His defeat for the same office five years ago by a single vote he credits to newspapermen he had unintentionally antagonized at that time.

"Your name, Senator," said the reporter, "has been prominently mentioned recently in connection with the office of State Treasurer, but there seems to be considerable doubt as to whether or not you are a candidate."

"When it was recently announced that Senator Dryden had withdrawn," said Mr. Reed, "and Senator Briggs became a candidate several of my friends from different parts of the State at once urged me to become again a candidate for the office of State Treasurer. They recalled that five years ago I had been defeated by only one vote, the tally standing thirty to thirty-one, and said they thought that I ought to try again. They promised me their hearty support."

"Did you agree to become a candidate?"

"Well, it was like this. A story was persistently circulated that a conference of four or five gentlemen had decided that after Treasurer Briggs was chosen United States Senator, Mr. Daniel Voorhees, of Morris county, should be elected State Treasurer. It was also asserted that the Governor strongly urged that this agreement should be carried out and that he would help in any way which he could. It was also said that Senator *Ackerman would support Mr. Voor*hees. Of course if all these stories are true, and all these forces united, there is very little encouragement to any one opposing Mr. Voorhees. However these stories have been denied and repeated and denied again. I do not know whether they are true or not, but will be able to determine by the events of the next few days. If I find that the cards have been dealt and the result is certain I shall not pursue the matter further. My own belief, however, is that but few members of the Senate and House of Assembly will be bound by any deal made in advance and without their knowledge.

"In this belief I am strengthened by the fact that I have already received several assurances at support and my information convinces me that Mr. Voorhees is very much overestimating his strength. It is certain that he has nothing like the number of pledges claimed for him. There are several other candidates for the office and my name will be submitted to the Legislature with the rest, and I will highly appreciate any support which I may receive."

"How was it that you were defeated five years ago for this office when you were a member of the Senate?" asked The Daily Press man.

"Of course it was because the other fellow got the most votes," said the Senator. "As a side light upon that however it is perhaps fair to say that I had been so unfortunate as to antagonize the large crop of legislative correspondents who represent the newspapers at the State House during the session. The election of State Treasurer followed soon after the choice of John F. Dryden for United States Senator. In that contest I was with those who opposed his election. The newspaper men asked that they be admitted to the Republican caucus at which the choice for Senator was to be made. Such caucuses had always been secret and most of those opposing Mr. Dryden were apposed to having the caucus open to reporters. I was unfortunately, for me, put forward to voice this opposition and did so. Very naturally many of the newspaper men, who had always treated me well, resented my opposing them in this respect. Most of them in turn opposed my election as State Treasurer. It has always been claimed that they brought about my defeat and I believe they did. At any rate I lost by the narrow margin of one vote and I am sure that if they had been with me I would have won easily."

William Staats, of Newark, has been spending several days in town with friends.

TRADE SCHOOL AND MUNICIPAL CELEBRATION BROACHED THE BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

ALBERT STEINER BADLY HURT WHILE COASTING

COLLIDES WITH A SLED AND IS GASHED ABOUT HEAD AND BRUISED.

Speeding down Hyde's hill, near the Park Golf Club, yesterday, on a bob sled in company with several young people, Albert Steiner, teller at the Plainfield Trust Company, who was steering it, ran into another sled near the bottom of the grade. He was thrown off and received several deep cuts about the head and bruises about the body. The other occupants of the bob were also thrown off into a snow bank but escaped injury.

Mr. Steiner being on the front of the bob received the full blow of the collision, his head striking the other sled, inflicting several gashes and almost closing his eye. His companions ran to his assistance and gave temporary aid until the injured man could be removed to his home. A physician was obliged to take eleven stitches to close up the cuts. It is not believed that the eye was seriously injured.

Those who witnessed the accident declare that Mr. Steiner's escape from probable fatal injury was remarkable. Charles Lee, Jr., of Grove street, had preceded Mr. Steiner and his party down the hill on his bob. Thoughtlessly, it is said, he left his sled directly in the path of the coasters, and Mr. Steiner was unable to steer clear of the obstruction in time to prevent the collison.

SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE OVER HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Double Obsequies of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong Attended By Large Gathering.

The double funeral of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong, who were taken ill on the same day and died within a few hours of each other, was held at their late home on Prospect place, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The service was extremely simple.

The floral tributes extended included a large wreath from Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and a set piece from Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., Mr. Armstrong being a member of both.

Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery, the pall bearers being Asa D. Pope, Robert Jahn, William Baker, Harry L. Keen, Thomas M. Muir and Benjamin A. Moore, all members of Perseverance Lodge.

Somerset County Teachers to Meet.

The mid-winter meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association will be held at the North Plainfield High School on Saturday morning, February 16, commencing at 10:30 o'clock with opening exercises. The programme will include an address by W. A. Ackerman, supervising principal of the Somerville Public Schools, and a paper on "Art" being reading by Miss Cora P. Lyndon, of North Plainfield; "The Making of a Teacher," John Enright, county superintendent of schools of Monmouth county. Luncheon will be served at the close of the programme. C. C. Horner, president of the association, will preside, and Miss Rita S. Dalley, secretary, will act in her position.

Jersey Central Brakeman Killed.

Frank C. Thompson, aged 38 years, of Bound Brook, employed as a brakeman on the New Jersey Central, was killed in the Jersey City yards Monday night. He had just coupled cars on his train when he stepped backward onto passenger train in the path of an on-coming train. Thompson's brother, John Thompson, also an employe of the railroad, witnessed the fatality.

First of Three "At Homes."

Mrs. J. Edgar Corlies, of Road Ending, gave the first of a series of three "at homes" yesterday afternoon, when a large number of friends called during the appointed hours. Mrs. Corlies was assisted in receiving by her two daughter, Mrs. H. C. Adams and Mrs. W. C. DeLanoy. The second "at home" will be held Tuesday, February 19, and the third one on Tuesday, February 26.

Matinee Entertainment.

Miss May Colyer, of New York, an impersonator, and Mr. W. Rankin, a magician, entertained a large audience at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. W. W. Rowley, of Linden avenue, is entertaining her cousin, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. Lincoln Moore, of New York city.

CITY'S 40th BIRTHDAY

Mayor Fisk Suggests Observance of the Completion of Plainfield's Fourth Decade as a Corporate City in 1909.

Rev. George A. Warner Pleads For a Place Where Boys May Be Trained.

Business and professional men, political lights and prominent workers in the community to the number of 150 gathered at the Board of Trade banquet at the Casino, last night. The dinner was noteworthy by reason of a carefully prepared explanation of the conditions confronting the P. S. C. by President Thomas N. McCarter, who made the chief address.

United States Senator-elect Briggs, who was expected, sent his regrets. In a special delivery letter, which the toastmaster read, he said a pressing business matter prevented his appearance.

Besides Mr. McCarter, the speakers were Assemblyman Frank Crowther, of Perth Amboy; Rev. B. M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's R. C. church; Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross Protestant Episcopal church; and H. I. Bowne, of East Orange. Mayor Fisk was toastmaster.

Hung profusely with shields and rosettes of red, white and blue, and broad streamers, with palms ranged at the front of the stage, the Casino auditorium was as handsome a banquet hall as might be desired. A big picture of Lincoln, with flags on either side, hung over the front of the stage. The order of the tables was the opposite to that of past dinners. The speakers' table was placed before the fireplace, instead of at the other end of the hall. A long table ran down the center of the hall, another before the stage, and three smaller ones flanked the center board on either side. At the speakers' table besides the toastmaster and the orators were Mayor S. B. Smalley, Alexander Gilbert, Charles W. McCutchen, and L. B. Woolston, president of the Board.

The dinner began late. It was set for 6:30 o'clock, but 8 o'clock was not far off when the first course came on. The menu was elaborate. The menu cards were handsome, decorated in red and black. They were designed by Miss May Berkhan and David J. Carney. During the dinner the Eureka Quartette, which has become more or less of a regular feature at Casino affairs, sang and played.

Mayor Fisk spoke briefly in starting the oratorical ball arolling. He was greeted with sustained applause, and three cheers, led by E. E. Ironmonger, chairman of the Republican City Committee. At Mr. Fisk's suggestion, a silent toast was drunk to the memory of Lincoln.

Mr. Fisk said, among other things:

"The Board of Trade stands for progress and for the right; and against the wrong. A body of men of this kind, composed of our best business and professional men of the community, always carries through what it conceives to be its duty to do. Its aim is to find out what is good for the city and then to find out how to get it.

"The thing they are now pushing is the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield (applause). This matter originated with them in its newest phase, and through their efforts a commission for the investigation of the subject is now at work. We may hope to hear something from that commission soon. It is not well to speak of the work of the commission at this time, but I will say that, as far as Plainfield is concerned, we have learned to love that little girl on the other side of the brook, and we are going to keep at her until we get her." (Applause.)

President McCarter was the first speaker. He spoke on "Public Utilities," and recounted the difficulties under which the P. S. C. worked. He won warm applause by promising to investigate the conditions complained of by the Plainfield Protective Association in street lighting, to discipline everybody found guilty of misconduct. Mr. McCarter was cheered after his speech. His remarks will be found in another column.

Mayor Fisk in commenting on Mr. McCarter's speech, said that Plainfield was well cared-for so far as its franchises were concerned. He pointed out that the streets were kept in condition and sprinkled by the P. S.

(Continued on Page 5.)

CHANGE TO DISTRICTS

Both Parties Said to Favor New Way of Electing Assemblymen.

WANT UNITED ACTION

Suggestion that State Convention Condemn in Their Platform Representation By Counties.

As the people of New Jersey are becoming enlightened as to the purpose of the proposed amendment to Section 3 of Article 4 of the State Constitution, the movement to wipe out the present method of electing members of the General Assembly is attracting supporters in all parts of the State and in all political parties.

Prominent leaders in both the Democratic and Republican ranks expressed yesterday the belief—as will other resolution similar to that now in the Legislature will have to be passed next year in order that the final test of the referendum may be made—that in the platforms of the respective State conventions which will meet to nominate candidates for Governor this spring there should be planks committing the parties to the policy of restoring Assembly districts and of electing the members of the lower branch of the Legislature directly by their respective constituents, instead of massing the candidates on the several county tickets.

"I believe all the Democratic members of the Legislature will vote for the proposed constitutional amendment, and I am also of the opinion that the coming State convention will declare emphatically for a return to the Assembly district method," said yesterday Assemblyman Simon Hahn, leader of the Essex county delegation in the lower house.

"We already are committed to this method. A constitutional convention does not seem possible under present conditions, and as the great majority of the voters of the State are undoubtedly in favor of doing away with the obnoxious system of electing by counties, the means proposed, that of passing an amendment to the Constitution, is the only way in which the people may obtain what they are clamoring for. The Democratic members will vote for the amendment because our platforms have continually declared for it. The Republicans seem to have come over to our way of thinking on this question, and they are strongly advocating the same thing under the leadership of Governor Stokes. These being the conditions, I cannot see any other result than that the fight will be successful.

"There has never been a real, worthy argument to sustain the overthrow of the system of electing members of the Assembly by districts except that it was in violation of the Constitution. Many able lawyers have held that the third section of the fourth article of our fundamental law is capable of a construction that permits of Assembly districts. The courts have ruled otherwise, however, and we hold our judiciary too sacred to question its rulings. But the courts have pointed the way to reform the obnoxious system. The people are ready, I believe, to indorse that reform, and it is the duty of the law-making body to adopt it.

"The district plan is in accord with the principles of government by the people. The whole scheme of dividing the Legislature into two branches is in line with the thought of representative government. The popular branch is the House of Assembly, and the closer and nearer we bring that branch to the electorate the safer we shall be."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS.

John Winzenreid, the genial trucker of Lee place, is always prepared to attend to all orders left in his charge.

Brokaw's creamery is headquarters for milk, cream, butter and eggs, the finest products to the dairy, absolutely pure and at right prices.

When A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber on Watchung avenue, does your work, you can rest assured that it will be satisfactory in every detail.

When you buy coal you want the best, the kind that Boice, Runyon & Co., of Park avenue, sell. This is the best to be had and the prices are right.

Have you inspected the fine line of goods at "The White Store," on West Front street? If not you have no idea of the great bargains to be had there. The store is just filled with new goods in every department from men's furnishings to everything for women. The military department is also a feature not to be overlooked.

Pays $6,000 Anonymously.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 11.—Some conscience stricken person has paid to the city of New Haven $6,000. Why he did it cannot be ascertained, and the money has been added to the city's sinking fund, making it $130,000. Leonard M. Daggett, Corporation Counsel, today said an intermediary recently handed him the $6,000 in bank notes and declined to tell for whom he was acting.

A thanksgiving and praise service, to mark the wiping out of all debts in the church was held by the Methodists yesterday morning.

RIDGWAY'S NO MORE.

The Weekly Stops Publication and Its Owner Tells Why.

Ridgway's Weekly is no more. Yesterday's issue contains its valedictory. In it the editor tells frankly why he stops the publication. The substance of the explanation is that he found it impossible to get out fourteen magazines in as many cities on a newspaper basis.

Mr. Ridgway began his venture nineteen weeks ago by publishing a weekly simultaneously in fourteen of the largest cities in the country. After two months he stopped all of them but four. Later he got out only the New York edition.

He says that the people wouldn't buy a poorly printed magazine—and Ridgway's, being printed very quickly to be right up to the minute, didn't have the gloss and brilliance of color that people were accustomed to in magazines.

On the first page of yesterday's issue the announcement is made thus: "Ridgway's stops publication—for the present."

LITERALLY GROUND TO PIECES.

Horrible Mutilated Body of Unidentified Man Found at Rahway.

Rahway, Feb. 11.—The body of an unidentified man, literally ground to pieces, was found at the Pennsylvania Railroad Junction, below Rahway, Thursday night, at about 10 o'clock, and brought to this city, where it now is at Ryne & High's undertaking rooms.

The man, who was well dressed, was apparently about forty years of age, and had light brown hair and a mustache. On his right arm was tattooed a five-pointed star, on the left an American eagle, with the national coat of arms. In his possession were found a Lehigh Valley Railroad Duplex ticket, H 64,326, with no name of station, also a duplex ticket, R 95,626, P. R. R., Elizabeth to Rahway. Lying by his side was $126 in cash. No other marks or papers were found to aid identification.

For Peace in Central America.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—If the good offices of the United States and Mexico can prevent war in Central America over boundary troubles there will be no war; for each country has ordered its representatives to exert their influence to that end and to represent to the countries involved that they are expected to observe to the letter the treaties recently signed, which provide for the settlement by arbitration of all such difficulties. Just the exact cause of the difficulty is not known at the State Department, but there is no question that the feeling between Honduras and Nicaragua is bitter and strong and is likely to result in hostilities. The boundary question is one which has been running for many years, and involves the question whether or not any of the countries may mass troops near the line which divides it from another. This measure is regarded as one which is taken as a precaution against activity on the part of one country when its neighbor is in the throes of revolution and the forwarding of filibustering parties across the line.

Press Agent Spits Family.

New York, Feb. 11.—No one can tell how many family quarrels the press agent of a Broadway show has caused by sending out postal cards as if they were personal communications and telling what a good show it is, but he is indirectly responsible for a divorce action which John Fitz, a hotel proprietor in Maspeth, L. I., has brought against Mary Fitz. Mrs. Fitz was away from home on January 17 when a postal card arrived, signed "Frank," saying that he was leaving New York and how he wished she could see this particular show. Mr. Fitz saw this card, and when his wife returned the next day demanded an explanation. The one she gave was not satisfactory, although she denied being in New York, and he started an investigation. This resulted in his divorce action.

Trust Evidence Disappears.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Practically all of the State's evidence in its suit against the American Ice Trust has disappeared from the Attorney General's office. The evidence, in the form of copies of books, contracts, &c., in the office of the trust, was enough to fill a good sized truck. How it ever got out of the Attorney General's office is a mystery, but one supposition is that it was carried away piecemeal. Another theory is that most of the papers never reached the Albany office of the Attorney General, but disappeared either from the New York city office or while in transit between those two offices. The disappearance of the papers occurred during the administration of Julius M. Mayer as Attorney General, according to statements made at Attorney General Jackson's office.

Henpecked Man Lies in a Coop.

Meridan, Conn., Feb. 11.—Ordered by his wife to leave the home of her parents, where they were living, Peter St. Martin, of South Manchester, took up his abode in a chicken coop. There he lived undisturbed for weeks until yesterday, when he was arrested on suspicion of having stolen tableware from his father-in-law.

Five Killed at Crossing.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 11.—Five persons are reported killed and many injured by a train which ran into a crowded East Lake trolley car at seven o'clock last evening.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will give a dinner at the church tomorrow night.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church began the rehearsal of Easter carols yesterday. Charles L. Lewis is in charge.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a colonial supper at the church on Tuesday, February 19.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and S. S. Swackhamer will be the speakers at the dinner to be given by the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

The entertainment committee of the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school has decided to hold Easter exercises on Sunday night, March 31, in the church auditorium.

The annual reception of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Finn will be given by the members of the Park Avenue Baptist church on Thursday night. An attractive programme has been prepared.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. T. Ostrom, on Carlton avenue, to transact important business.

"A Cherry Tree Social" will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Thursday night, February 21, under the auspices of the Bible classes taught by Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Finn.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. This is the meeting postponed from last week. Mrs. M. B. Whitney and Miss Ella Serrell will present the programme.

Dr. Harold Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, will give his illustrated lecture on "China and the Boxer Uprising," before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church tonight. Lantern slides from photos taken by Dr. Corbusier will be shown. There will also be phonograph selections. The women of the church are invited.

PERSONAL.

Captain Stuart, of Grove street, is detained at home by illness.

W. E. Bartle, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Somerville.

Walter Clark, of West Front street, has returned from a western business trip.

John Peeke Reynolds, of Westervelt avenue, who has been quite ill, has about recovered.

Mrs. Harry Auten, of Somerville, has been visiting relatives in Plainfield for several days.

Mrs. Henry C. VanName, of Madison avenue, has been visiting relatives on Staten Island.

President of the Common Council Leslie M. Daniel has about recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. William VanWinkle, of Martinsville, is visiting her brother, Martin Way, of Stone street.

R. W. Smith, of this city, who has been visiting T. L. Abbott, of Martinsville, has returned home.

Mrs. Kirk Wiggins, of this city, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Staats, of Bound Brook.

H. H. Shepard, of Bound Brook, has been spending several days with his brother, B. H. Shepard, of this city.

Henry Talford, formerly proprietor of The Evening Star, but late of Bridgeport, Conn., has been visiting in town.

Howard Willett, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Willett, of Craig place, has entirely recovered from a recent operation.

Councilman William L. Gloak, of East Second street, is much improved from a recent illness and is able to be out again.

Councilman Frank Randolph, of West Front street, has recovered from a recent illness and is able to be out again.

William F. Richards, of East Third street, who has been detained at home with an attack of pneumonia, has recovered.

Mrs. George Zimmerman and Mrs. John Zimmerman, of Martinsville, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William E. Bartle, of the borough.

Mrs. James Murray, of New York, sister-in-law of Mrs. Joseph Webster Sandford, of West Seventh street, is greatly improved from a severe illness.

James Mayburv, of Passaic, has been spending a few days in town. He formerly held a contract for the building of an extension to the sewer system.

—The Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital will hold the February meeting at the Casino tonight.

—A bachelor's dance will be held at the Casino tonight under the patronage of a number of well-known society people.

—Miss Alice May Ross, of 403 East Seventh street, gave an informal dance to about fifty friends at her home on Friday night last. The affair was a highly enjoyable one. Refreshments were served by Day, of Newark.

—On account of the bachelors' ball to be given at the Casino tonight it will be impossible for the Plainfield Operatic Association to meet at that time. Rehearsals for "Pinafore" will probably commence on Monday night, February 18.

BRIGGS TENDERS THANKS

U. S Senator Elect Writes to Members of Legislature Expressing Gratitude.

THAT DEMOCRATIC PLOT

Little Credence Placed in Report That Minority Will Seek to Involve Senatorial Situation.

Frank O. Briggs, State Treasurer, Friday forwarded members of the Legislature who voted for him on Tuesday when he was elected to the office of United States Senator. He will resign as State Treasurer at an early date, possibly some time next week; and then it is expected a joint session will be called to elect his successor. It is the desire of the treasurer to retire February 28.

Considerable comment has been created by rumors that the Democratic minority of the Legislature would refuse to meet with the Republican majority in joint session to accept the resignation of the treasurer and to elect his successor, thereby tieing up the treasury department and involving the Senatorship. It is not believed, however, that any move like this will be made, for the uselessness of it is apparent.

While the law of the State requires that the treasurer shall resign to a joint session of the Legislature, because he is elected by this body, there is no law that can compel a man to stay in office when he wants to get out and no law that can override the United States Constitution which prescribes the election of United States Senators. At the same time the oaths taken by the Democratic members of the Legislature requires of them that they fulfill all of their legislative duties, and the meeting in joint session in this matter is as clearly a duty as was the meeting in joint session for the election of a Senator.

On the other hand the Democrats could make no material gain this year by blocking the election of a treasurer. The latter could resign to the Governor and the appointment of the Legislature and the Governor could then appoint an ad interim treasurer. The only result in that case would be to tie up the treasury department during the balance of the Legislature's session and this would inconvenience the Democrats as much as the Republicans.

The only possible reason the Democrats could have in delaying an election of a treasurer would be to compel the Governor to make an ad interim appointment, in which event the next Legislature would elect for the regular term. Some of the Democratic leaders hope to control the Legislature on joint ballot next year.

There will probably be enough hold-over Republicans to make the Senate majority of that political faith and if the Democrats refuse this winter to go into joint session the Republicans could do the same next winter and the ad interim appointee of a Republican Governor would continue to serve.

Mrs. Frank Wynkoop has recovered from an attack of rheumatism.

The Sunshine Guild will hold a business meeting Thursday night.

John Fleming has bought the David Frazee place of Isaac J. Stites.

ATLANTIC CITY.

CHALFONTE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

On the Beach. Fireproof. Always Open.

THE LEEDS COMPANY.

11 2 m-tu-th-f 9t-5

NOW OPEN.

Baths! Baths!

HOT AND COLD.

207 Park Avenue.

WM. CLAASSEN.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SETTLEMENT—Notice is hereby given, That the subscriber, administrator of John C. Meeker, deceased, of Plainfield, has settled with the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphan's Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday, the thirteenth day of March next. Dated, February 6th, 1903.

ROBERT A. MEEKER, Administrator.

2 5 5 tu

JOHN A. KOCH.

Dealer in

Meats, Poultry, Fish, Oysters, etc.

200 Watchung Ave.

Corner Second Street. Telephone 573-J

Orders Called For and Delivered.

REMOVAL NOTICE.

STANLEY, Florist

is now located at

159 EAST FRONT STREET.

Woodhull & Martin Building.

TELEPHONE 928.

GROCER

Staple and Fancy Lines. Best Minnesota Flours. Down town prices duplicated and quality of stock the best. Prompt deliveries a feature with us.

H. A. WEBER.

140 Liberty St. 'Phone 347-W

COAL DEALERS.

Difference In Coal.

All coals may look alike to some people, but compare our "Lehigh" Coal with the Coal you bought somewhere else and you will see a difference.

You will notice that our Coal Burns Brighter, Gives More Heat, and Lasts Longer than any other Coal you ever bought before.

Boice, Runyon & Co.,

Coal, Lumber and Masons' Materials.

Park Ave., opp. North Ave., Plainfield N. J.

Coal Down 25 cents

SEE NASH'S OFFER

In Cent-a-Word Column Every Saturday.

Yard and Office, 616 South Second St. Central Office, 211 Park Avenue. Two 'Phones: 495-L; 357-W.

TenEyck & Harris,

—DEALERS IN—

LEHIGH VALLEY COAL.

Office: Rowley's Drug Store, 218 West Front Street. Telephone 23-L.

JOHN JOHNSTON

All the best grades of

COAL.

929 South Ave 'Phone 193

Coal I have on hand some very fine Hard and Medium Coal, All kept under sheds. Pea Coal, 25 cents a ton reduction on cash orders.

L. A. RHEAUME,

146 East Fourth St. Telephone 440-W.

Yard, 674 South Second St. Telephone 221

GORGE O. STEVENS

747 West Front St.

R. L. CLINE

(Successor to C. H. Rugg & Co.)

Best Quality Lehigh Coal

Yard and office 43 West Third St. Tel. 43

JOS. HARRIGAN

OLD COMPANY'S LEHIGH COAL.

Tel. 497-L. 4th and Richmond Sts.

PAINTERS AND DECORATORS.

We call your attention to our fine display of

New Wall Papers.

We can't describe the patterns, but they are new, striking and effective, and with our large assortment we are sure to please

Paints, Oils and Varnishes.

Woolston & Buckle,

145 North Avenue.

Don't Wait Till Spring

before giving me the order to paint your house. Let me give you an estimate now and do the work at the first favorable weather. Then I don't have to disappoint you when the rush season comes.

JAMES C. HANSEN,

DECORATOR and PAINTER.

Dealer in Wallpaper, Paints, Oils, Glass, Etc.

141 East Front St.

1907 Wall Papers.

IMPORTED & AMERICAN GOODS.

C. CONOVER & CO.

Decorators, Painters and Paperhangers

Window and Plate Glass.

115 Elmwood Pl. Tel. 226-J

W. S. CHEEVER

1326 Park Ave.

Painting and INTERIOR DECORATING. WALL PAPER of every description at the Lowest Prices.

'Phone No. 538-J.

GREAT BARGAIN SALE

of Nursery stock. We are not going out of business but have some bargains left over from last fall's sale. Don't wait until you need your stock; order now and get your choice of Evergreens, Roses, Shade Trees, Hedge Plants, Flowering Shrubs and Vines.

BELLEVIEW AVENUE NURSERY CO, Of Park Avenue, near Hillside Avenue

New Jersey Central

Passenger Stations in New York—West 23d St., N. R., Foot Liberty St., N. R. In Effect November 25, 1906.

For New York—2.17, 2.37, 3.26, 4.02, 4.29, 6.07, 7.05, 7.25, 7.55, 8.15, 9.05, 9.52, 10.22, 11.13, 11.30, 11.46, 12.00, 12.19, 12.42, 1.09, 2.37, 2.31, 2.44, 3.09, 3.26, 3.39, 4.02, 4.29, 5.07, 5.53, 6.48, 7.09, 7.37, 8.27, 9.27, 9.31, 10.17, 11.28 p. m. Sundays, 12, 2.37, 4.47, 7.36, 8.01, 8.52, 9.26, 9.45, 10.02, 10.37 a. m., 12.49, 1.09, 1.45, 2.46, 3.09, 3.39, 4.23, 5.41, 6.30, 6.48, 8.13, 9.52, 10.12, 10.41 p. m.

For Newark—2.36, 4.29, 6.37, 7.05, 7.25, 7.55, 8.47, 9.52, 10.22, 11.13, 11.30, 11.46, 12.00, 12.19, 12.42, 1.09, 1.27, 2.31, 2.44, 3.09, 3.42, 4.07, 4.46, 5.53, 6.29, 7.09, 7.37, 8.27, 9.11 p. m. Sunday—7.36, 8.52, 9.34, 9.45, 10.02 a. m., 12.49, 1.09, 1.45, 2.40, 3.09, 3.30, 4.29, 5.41, 6.48, 8.13, 8.35, 9.42, 10.12 p. m.

For Somerville—5.19, 7.11, 8.21, 9.17, 9.55, 11.00 a. m., 1.01, (1.43 Saturday only), 2.42, 3.09, 4.23, 5.41, 6.30, 8.51 (except Saturdays, 6.04, 6.19, 6.37, 7.12, 7.29, 8.00 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m. (except Mondays) night. Sunday—8.45, 9.42, 11.12 a. m., 1.06, 2.03, 3.40, 5.37, 7.05, 8.30, 10.15, 11.16, 11.25 p. m.

For Bethlehem, Allentown and Mauch Chunk—6.29, 8.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.25, 8.47 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 2.09, 5.47, 7.05 p. m.

For Wilkesbarre and Scranton—9.55 a. m., 2.09, 5.47 p. m. Sundays—8.45 a. m., 5.47 p. m.

For Long Branch and Asbury Park, etc.—3.37, 8.11 (10.55 Saturdays only), a. m., 12.42, 3.50, 5.07, 6.45, 8.23, 10.30 p. m. Sundays—3.37, 8.57 a. m., 5.30, 8.13 p. m.

For Lakewood and Atlantic City—8.37, 9.29 a. m., 12.42, 3.50 p. m. Sundays—Only Express (Saturdays only), 1.27, 2.44 (4.07 Lakewood only), (8.53 p. m., Saturdays only, Lakewood only). 8.37 a. m., Sundays—Lakewood only), 8.52 a. m. Sundays—8.01 a. m.

For Philadelphia—7.13, 7.39, 8.45, 9.13, 10.43 a. m., 12.12, 1.39, 2.13, 3.45, 4.13, 6.12, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46 p. m., 1.17 night. Sundays—3.45, 7.39, 10.30, 10.43, 11.45 a. m., 12.42, 1.44, 2.45, 3.42, 4.55, 9.39, 6.44, 8.50, 9.46 p. m., 1.25, 1.40 night. Sundays—Express, Harrisburg—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 (5.47 through train). Sundays 5.47, 8.47 p. m.

For Pottsville, Sunbury and Williamsport—5.25, 9.55 a. m., 2.09 p. m. Sundays—5.47 p. m.

For Baltimore and Washington—8.45, 10.43 a. m., 12.12, 2.45, 6.44 p. m. Sundays—8.45, 10.43, 12.12, 2.45, 6.44 p. m.

Change cars at Round Brook.

W. G. BESLER, Vice Pres. & Gen. Mgr. W. C. HOPE, Gen. Pass. Agt.

Lehigh Valley Railroad

Time table in Effect Nov. 18th, 1906.

LEAVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N. J.

7.55 a. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Mauch Chunk.

8.42 a. m. daily, express to Easton, Wilkesbarre, Rochester (Buffalo), and principal intermediate stations.

10.46 a. m. daily for Easton, Wilkesbarre, Ithaca, Buffalo and principal points.

1.52 p. m. daily, local for Easton, Mauch Chunk, Hazleton, Pottsville and Shenandoah.

4.58 p. m. daily (except Sunday) "Wilkesbarre and Scranton Express." Solid vestibule train to Wilkesbarre through Parlor Car via D. & H. R. R. to Scranton and Carbondale.

6.40 p. m. daily, solid vestibule train to Buffalo, Toronto and Chicago and principal points on all stations except Rochester.

6.22 p. m. daily (except Sunday) local to Easton.

FRANK ROWLEY, City Ticket Agent. 218 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J. Telephone 112.

Arrival and Departure of Mails.

PLAINFIELD POSTOFFICE.

Office opens 7 a. m., closes 7 p. m. On Sundays, 9 to 10 a. m. and 5 to 6 p. m. hour later.

Arrive—7.30, 8.48, 11.30 a. m.; 2.30, 6.00, 8.40 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.00, 2.30, 6.00, 7.45 p. m.

ELIZABETH—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 1.30, 2.15 and 7.00 p.m

Close—7.30 a. m.; 1.4s and 4.30 p. m.

SOMERVILLE AND BRIDGETON.

Arrive—8.40 a. m.; 2.30 and 6.30 p. m.

Close—9.30 a. m.; 1.00, 3.30, 6.00 p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA—West of Easton.

Close 12.35 p. m.

NEWARK—Direct.

Arrive—8.40 a. m., 2.30, 6.30 p. m.

Close—7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 1.00, 3.30 and 8.00 p. m.

PHILADELPHIA—Direct.

Arrive—7.30, 8.40, 11.30 a. m.; 2.30 and 7.00 p. m.

Close—7.15, 7.30, 9.30 a. m.; 12.35, 4.30, 7.45 p. m.

Through fast mail for West and South close 4.30 and 7.15 p. m.

Through fast mail for Eas., close 1.00 and 7.15 p. m.

WATCHUNG, WARRENVILLE AND GALLIA (Mt. Bethel.)

Arrive—1.30 p. m. Close—2.00 p. m.

Watchung—Arrive 8.40 p. m. Close 9.30 a. m.

SUNDAY MAILS.

Office open 9 to 10 a. m. and 5 to 10.45 a. m. Mail closes at 9.15 p. m.

W. H. HIRD, P. M.

Advertisements

—FOR—

New York Herald,

World, Times, Sun, Journal, Telegram, American, Brooklyn Eagle

—and—

Newark Evening News

Received at

The Daily Press

AT REGULAR OFFICE RATES.

J. W. VAN SICKLE

128 North Ave., Plainfield, N. J.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Game in Season. Philadelphia Scrapple. Orders called for and delivered promptly. Telephone No. 468-J.

McCULLOUGH'S STEAM MILL,

E. Steiner Place, North Plainfield, N. J.

R. H. McCULLOUGH, Prop.

Sash, Blinds, Doors, Mouldings, Scroll-sawing, Turning, etc. Estimates cheerfully furnished.

STORAGE—Best equipped and oldest for storing Furniture, Pianos, etc. Special floor for TRUNKS. Terms reasonable. All work has prompt attention.

WRITE OR TELEPHONE 911-L.

"Orders left for moving vans."

C. M. NAGLE.

Front and Grove Sts., Plainfield, N. J.

SECOND-HAND MEN'S CLOTHING bought. Good prices given. Postal or note receives prompt attention.

I. RICHARD, 17 Somerset Street.

EDUCATIONAL.

PLAINFIELD BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Cor. Park Ave. and E. Front St. Tel 471-W

Day and Evening Sessions. Superior ENGLISH TRAINING. Fine opportunities for young men.

All the latest Popular Sheet Music. Vocal and Instrumental at 10c a copy.

CHAS. M. SUHR, 144 E. 4th St

Not Hard To Get

Good meats if you come here. We serve a great number of customers with choice

ROASTS, CHOPS, STEAKS, ETC.

They must be pleased or we would not be in business today. Our meats are selected with great care, and you will certainly be pleased with what you buy here. We also have a fine lot of poultry.

Fred. Endress,

131-135 WEST FRONT ST.

'PHONE 155.

Vail JEWELER AND OPTICIAN

103 Park Ave.,

calls your attention to his

Rimless Glasses.

They Look Good and You See Good.

We have made arrangements for a larger supply of first class milk and are giving the family trade our special attention. If you are not satisfied with the milk or the services you are getting give us a trial.

Price 8 cents a quart.

Lindsay's Dairy,

965 West Front St.

TEL. 792-J.

Delicious Canned Fruits.

Our Canned Fruits are put up in rich heavy syrup and are natural. In flavor as when picked from the tree, and as appetizing as can be.

We solicit your orders for these Delicious Canned Fruits, also for our Preserves, Jams and Jellies.

W. W. DUNN,

The Park Grocer.

Duer St. and Lincoln Place.

UNION NEWS COMPANY.

(F. M. Wagner, Agent.)

The Plainfield Daily Press and New York Morning and Evening Papers. Latest editions of the most popular Magazines. Also complete line of Cigars, Tobacco and Confectionery.

STATIONERY AND TOYS.

HARPER,

411 PARK AVENUE:

Try a Box of

DOBBINS' CIGARS.

Clear Havana Nickle Yara or any kind that you desire. Manufactured at 129 North avenue, opposite Kensington Hotel, Plainfield, N. J.

RENTALS — REAL ESTATE.

GEO. F. BROWN.

Insurance and Real Estate.

Commissioner of Deeds—Rents.

94 Somerset St. 'Phone 160.

REAL ESTATE.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 17: "Studies in Christian Experience." (The Divine Purpose For Us.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Eph. iv. 11-16; Acts xx. 28-32; Rom. xii, 1, 2; Eph. v. 25, 27.

"Till we all attain * * * unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

That He might present the church to Himself, a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle or any such thing." Christian experience, what does it mean? What do you mean by experience of any sort? Sit down by yourself awhile and think back and see what you have passed through and what you have brought out of all the past. What have you today? What are you now? Different from what you were, to be sure. Have you an idea of what you might have been, different from what you are? Have you any deep wish that you might be sometime and somehow different from what you have been and other than what you now know yourself to be?

How deep that craving after personal betterment does go within when we allow yourselves to get free from all the false values of life and let the deep and true tones of life sound their notes through the whole being. How deeply we wish we might see some one who was just what we think a true man should be. Oh, yes, we have seen many fine specimens, but none just what we would like. Every one we have met has his limitations, his breaking point, his weaknesses. We have ours. What we want is some one who has none—the true nobleman. He should be our hero, our leader. We would follow him and become like him. We would be noble ourselves if only one were here who was himself all that we would like him to be and he would teach us how to be like himself.

Something of this desire is deep down in every soul if only it could be aroused to active power.

The Master has come. He calleth for thee.

Study the Christ life and character until you can see if they do not meet all your requirements. How would it be if you were like Him?

Then there is a plan of God—ideal, to be sure, but all the more real—of what the whole company of us might be together if bringing our society ideal this is glimpsed in that letter to the Ephesians. What a company we would be if each of us were of the height of Jesus Christ! If we had come up to the full measurements of his life, what a race we would be, what a sight for angels and all heavenly existences!

Well, we can do it. God intends we shall do it. What do you intend? Perhaps you never thought of it before. Better begin now to do something about it. It is really worth your while. Nothing else is worth while until you have done just this thing.

Estimate your own size morally and spiritually. What do you stand for in this God's world, anyhow? What force have you for good and right? What have you ever amounted to? What do you now amount to? Power you have certainly and are using it too. What is its force, and in what direction, and what ten?

Do you want to be somebody worth while? Then go to school to Jesus Christ. Let Him train you until you find yourself daily growing as do and be and to look like Him; stretching up and expanding into the fullness of His fullness; from within, getting bigger in conceptions and intentions and in accomplishment; getting into God's great world purposes and getting them into you.

Ah, that is experience worth having, work worth doing! You can think God's thoughts and join in His purposes and share His blessedness and final joy.

Is it not worth while? Better begin. Best keep on to the end.

Can't Work by Two Lights.

It is said to be almost axiomatic with artists that you "can't work by two lights." If one expects to have the proper effect and shadow, he must have one definite, clear, strong light. Said an artist to me in his studio recently: "My studio is a northern exposure, the northern light always being the softest. I always work by one light." He sets his easel so that the light from the throne of God will be thrown upon his work. He paints the image of Christ on all that he does. If he cannot see the image he is miserable. He sees his profession reflected in everything. We may insert light to others in such a way that we will not have less light, but more light, for we may walk by two lights in place of one. God's first work of creation was to give light to the senses. His last was to enlighten the reason, and His continuous work today is to enlighten the spiritual nature. We must do his work either in the light of God or in the artificial light of Satan. He cannot work by the natural and artificial light combined. The one hinders or eclipses the other. You cannot work by two lights any more than you can serve both God and Mammon. Are you working by the light which gives life or by the light that lures to destruction?—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Money and the Christian.

The proper gain and use of money is a part of the normal Christian's life. He must have some rules about it; otherwise he will blunder ahead acquiring and spending blindly to no especial purpose except personal ambition. Wesley's motto lays down three straight tracks toward a right goal:

Make all you can honestly.
Save all you can possibly.
Give all you can possibly.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 17.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—An easy life versus a hard one. —II Tim. ii. 1-6.

No human life is wholly one of ease, nor is there one perhaps that is entirely characterized by hardness. In the easiest life there are some hardships, and in the hardest one there is some silver lining to the cloud. But in some lives ease predominates, and in others hardness has the supreme place. These principles also apply to the Christian life, of which the apostle writes to Timothy. To some Christians life is easy, or, at least, they take it easy. Their only anxiety seems to be to get into heaven, and they shun as far as possible the difficult places in the Christian's pathway. Their supreme aim is to be—

Carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease,
While others fight to win the prize
And sail through bloody seas.

But while to many the easy life may seem the more desirable, yet it is really not so. Ease is not conducive to strength or even to happiness. The men of the world who have made this greatest success of life have usually been those to whom life has been a struggle, a battle, and in their toils and conflicts they have not only won success, but have experienced the greatest joy and happiness in the joys of ease are not to be compared to the joy of victory in battle, success against odds and notable achievement even in the face of adversity. Ease weakens, hardness strengthens; ease is unprotective, hardness produces the best results; ease is selfish, hardness is self denying, and the Christian, above all others, should possess the qualities of hardness rather than those of ease.

To live a consistent, conscientious Christian life is not easy. It is easy to become a Christian, but most difficult to live a Christian life. No one should make the mistake of thinking that a life in Christ and for Christ will be an easy life. True Christian life and life are to be met and overcome. The enemies *and foes of Christianity are to be with*stood. The Christian life is indeed a warfare, and not even a warfare against flesh and blood, but against evil *spiritual agencies, Satan and his emis*saries. But it is such a life that develops true Christian character and that best exemplifies the life of our Lord and Master Jesus Christ. He knew no ease in His life. He was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." Constant conflict was his lot. Satan used all his power to overcome Him. Man opposed Him even to the end of accomplishing His death. Sacrifice, self denial, hardship, persecution and bitterest soul agonies were His portion on earth. The servant cannot expect to be better than his Lord nor the disciple than his Master.

Let us not, therefore, sigh for a life of ease, but lay to in the fact that we also must endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ." And in our struggles and conflicts let us be strong, not in our own strength, but "be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus." And when the way seems very hard let us be encouraged by remembering that, having suffered with Christ, we shall also reign with Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Josh. i, 1-7; Matt. x, 38-42; Mark viii, 34-38; Luke ix, 23; John vi, 19-25; Acts xv, 25, 26; II Cor. xi, 24-33; Eph. vi, 10-18; Phil. iii, 7-14; I John v, 1-5.

Ideals Should Be High.

Dissatisfaction with low ideals in your Endeavor society does not mean a contest for supremacy above the so*cieties of your town or city;* not a struggle for members and social influence; not a contest for the greatest number of testimonies in the same time, or a banner in a Christian Endeavor rally, or even the greatest enthusiasm in committee work as the sole object of our endeavor. No. God so loved the world that he sent forth raised your Endeavor society and put it into a community where human need extends its withered hand for help and you pass on singing,

Onward, Christian soldier,
Marching as to war, and heed not the skeleton fingers clutching at your saintly robes, begging for the bread of life?

A high ideal with main means some lonely, lofty position toward which the struggles and climbs and finally attains only when he has pulled down and dragged his last proud opponent in the race. Men look down upon the masses. God dwells with them, suffers with them, leads them one by one to victory. We are too willing to worship in a temple made with hands, its gleaming marble chilled with our vain theories. When the veil of this temple is rent in twain we stand face to face with God's ideal, and then we realize our individual responsibility. —Herbert R. Chapman.

New Hosts For Noted Endeavorer.

John Willis Baer, for long years the general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, known and loved the world over, was inaugurated president of Occidental college, Los Angeles, Cal., under most auspicious circumstances the other day. He is now President Baer, LL. D., and the whole Christian Endeavor world rejoices in the new and deserved honors that have come to a consecrated, hardworking, consistent member of the movement.

New Life and Zeal.

Dr. Alexander Whyte, the distinguished Edinburgh preacher and author, returning from a tour among the highland communities driven from their churches by the "Wee Frees," reports that he found not despair, but a new life, and he especially speaks of the zeal of the young people in forming Christian Endeavor societies.

GIVE THE EYES DAILY CARE.

"Don't be careless of the eyes during cold weather. Bathe them frequently. Protect them both from wind and dust, particularly the latter, which I believe causes most of the inflamed eyeballs and swollen lids that are now so prevalent," says Dr. George Houston Bell, prominent oculist.

"If the simple preventions that may be employed to guard the eyes against soreness were understood, I feel certain that every one would adopt them, especially women who will stop at nothing to cure inflammation and redness of the eyeballs that is so disfiguring while it lasts.

"To women who are not compelled to go out of doors daily I would suggest that the easiest way for them to avoid any injury from dust would be to stay in the house until whirlwinds of fine dirt do not fill the air. A shopping trip, a call or even theatre engagement had better be postponed unless a carriage can be called to their door or a car stoped in front of one's home.

"If it is necessary to go out when the air is full of dust—as with so many thousand working women in the city—I want to advise them to take all possible precautions and, for their own comfort, to remember these don'ts:

"Don't keep the eyes open when passing through a cloud of dust. If it is not possible to shut the lids, then turn the back or side of the head so that the particles will not fly directly into the eyes; or, if in a crowd, where there would be danger in closing the eyes, place the hand, a paper or some guard a few inches from the optics to shield them and keep out the dirt.

"Don't rub the eyes after going through a cloud of dust for this action has a tendency to irritate the eyeball by working fine pieces of metal, dirt, etc., into the cornea. If particles in the eyes cause discomfort or pain, close the lid and let the water that constantly bathes the eyeballs have a chance to wash out the foreign matter.

"If after several minutes the substance is not dissolved, have a druggist take the dirt with a fine camel's hair brush, or wash out the eye with a saturated solution of boric acid, which is a soothing antiseptic that will help to clear away any redness of the eyeball that usually follows the irritation caused when dirt sticks to the cornea. It boric acid is not to be had, use salt.

"Either the acid or water may be dropped into the eye from a spoon, but the best plan to give the eyeball a thorough washing is to use a regulation glass that fits tightly over the lids and makes possible a com*plete bath.*"

A WORD ABOUT VEILS.

Time was when veils were worn for their comfort during the blustery season when King Frost is no respecter of persons, and chisels little furrows into the softest and daintiest complexions, but the veil we see is just a little cloud of beauty, and really serves no purpose except to *give stouch of daintiness to one's ap*pearance. In Paris they are wearing the loudest veils, large blue affairs, yards and yards of pink cobwebs, all fastened with monstrous gold and jeweled pins. True, they are ruined by the elements, and they are just as expensive as they dare be, but just the same they are too beautiful to cast aside, and women are wearing them with heavy plumaged hats, furs and other winter trappings. Just as pretty are colored veils (but by no means expensive ones) are being worn by the fashion followers on this side, and it is often one sees a purple veil worn with a blue hat, a blue with a black hat, and some dainty little affairs in the same nature hats. The soft crepe scarf comes in line with *the veils, and is really the most ser*viceable one to be seen. It covers the ears, gracefully entwines around the neck and ties in a neat bow beneath the chin. Some women wear them gracefully; others have yet to learn how they should be artistically arranged to give the best effect.

TO HOLD LUCK CHARMS.

Among other charming novelties which have found their way to the city as a result of the Christmas selling are little Oriental bags made of red brocade and fastened by ivory bars that are drawn together with silk cords. These trifles, for such they are—which incidentally are fit for a Chinese mandarin to give away as souvenirs—are not destined for wicked gamblers at bridge, nor can they be used for innocent candies they serve the graceful purpose of holding a charm for a lucky new year. It may be a little black pig made of bog oak from Ireland, with jeweled eyes which keep one from going "broke," or it may be a tiny white ivory elephant, a lucky coin or whatever one happens to choose as a mascot.

A Toad in a Hole.

Six ounces of flour, one pint of milk, three eggs, butter, a few slices of cold mutton, pepper and salt and one-half pound of kidney. Make a smooth batter of flour, milk and eggs in the above proportion. Butter a baking dish and pour in the batter. Into this place a few slices of cold mutton previously well seasoned and the kidney cut into very small pieces. Bake about an hour or rather longer and send it to the table in the dish it was baked in.

The Girl and the Governor.

The Jefferson De Angelis Opera Company, under Frank McKee's direction, opens at the Manhattan theatre Monday night in "The Girl and the Governor," which has achieved out of town success for the past three months. This house has not offered a musical show since the famous all season run of Anna Held in "Papa's Wife." Julian Edwards is the composer and in the libretto the librettist of "The Girl and the Governor," which is a return to the legitimate and wholesome comic opera style, elbowed aside by flippant musical comedy frivolity. The period is the six*teenth century and the story that of* a foppish Spanish governor at a South American port, who is eluded by the clever, quick witted English girl whom he has taken captive and wishes to marry. He employs as her guard a handsome young sweetheart, a dashing sailor of her own country and is fooled by the pair after no end of comic complication. Among the twenty odd song hits are a droll serenade by seven sighing lovers who have governor's veils accidentally; De Angelis' topical songs "In the Land of the Free" and "Did You Ever Hear It Told That Way Before?" "The Amorous Pigeon," and a quaint ditty "The Musical Bullfrog," which is a take off on medicine*man and his tribal followers.* The company has been selected with a view to singing strength. There are seventy people, including Estelle Wentworth, Anna Boyd, Lillian Rhoades, Richie King, Roland Carter, Arthur Barry, Andrew Bryant and the buffo-basso J. C. Miron, who personates Tamanee, the Indian fakir. The scenes show a part overlooking the harbor of La Guayra, Donodo Emilia's home and a ban*quet room in the governor's palace.*

The Great Divide.

"The Great Divide," a remarkable success at the Princes theatre, New York, with Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller as joint stars, continues unabated. No other drama in years has been hailed with such acclaim as that with which this stirring play by William Vaugh Moody has met. The mere fact that it will last this entire season, and probably all of next, in New York, is not the real proof of its qualities. "The Great Divide" presents that curious phenomenon—a big popular success that is at the same time an artistic success. The two do not usually go together. It not only has all the features of absorbing entertainment, but it also possesses an inherent merit which pronounces it the best drama which has met the more American drama" is the way in which the New York Sun speaks of it, while the New York Evening Mail declares that it is the "long awaited 'Great American Play.'" The Evening Telegram's focussed public and critical opinion when it said, "In 'The Great Divide' the little Princess theatre is holding one of the biggest plays in years." Miss Anglin again proves her right to be ranked as the leading American emotional actress, and Mr. Miller has, in this play, definitely entrenched himself in the forefront of American actors. Mr. Miller has won a double triumph in "The Great Divide," for, besides acting in the play, he is also its producer and manager. Seats for the Princes theatre may be reserved by mail eight weeks in advance. Tickets for four weeks are constantly on sale at the box office. An extra matinee is announced for Lincoln's Birthday.

IN CASE OF CROUP.

When a doctor cannot be secured promptly in an emergency it is necessary to have a good remedy always on hand when children are inclined to be croupy.

A mother who will provide herself with a small pint of rye whiskey can fight the worst case of croup she may meet with.

It is said to be an unfailing remedy, and for quick results it beats anything else which can be given for that dreaded disease.

Half a teaspoonful is a dose, unless the child is choking very badly; then give a teaspoonful.

It acts two ways. In the first stage of croup, where there is not much mucus, it is loosened and carried off the bowels.

In the second stage it causes vomiting; but, unlike ipecac, it leaves no soreness of the throat as an after difficulty.

"It is rarely necessary to give more than one dose, when the child will get relief and go to sleep again.

This simple remedy is one that is within the reach of every mother and one that can be kept on hand at all times, and it is in the house the dread membranous croup need cause no terrors.

Louis Klopsch Elopes.

South Norwalk, Conn., Feb. 11.—Louis Klopsch, son of Louis Klopsch, editor of the Christian Herald, and Miss Hattie DeKlyn, one of the prettiest society women of Norwalk, eloped yesterday and were married in Port Chester, N. Y. The bride was seventeen years of age and his bride is considerably older. Young Klopsch was a student at the Harrison School, in Norwalk. He had given up his studies with the intention of entering business and supporting his wife.

Several parties have been planned for Thursday night by borough young people.

Miss Loretta Thornton has returned home from a visit to relatives in Caldwell.

J. Y. Ruppel is about as usual; very little of the effects of his illness remains.

WINTER PLANTS AND THEIR CARE.

Be sure that plants in hanging pots and baskets get all the water they need. Because they are near the ceiling, where the temperature is much higher than at the window sill, they will dry out much more rapidly than ordinary plants. They are also exposed on all sides, and this accelerates evaporation. The best method of keeping these plants well watered which works well. I take a small can or cup and punch holes in the bottom of it. Make these small at first, until you know just how much water is needed. Fill these vessels and place them on the surface of the soil. Vines can be so trained as to hide them. Observe the effect carefully. If not enough water passes through to keep the soil moist, you will know that larger holes are necessary. This matter can be regulated to a nicety, with a little experimenting. Fill the cup each morning. A treatment of this kind will enable any one to grow fine hanging plants.

Do not overwater plants at this season of the year. Give just enough to keep the soil moist throughout. Let the surface take on a dry look before more water is applied. Evaporation is very slow in winter, and plants are growing actively enough to make use of a great deal of water. An oversupply has a tendency to sour the soil, thus bringing about a dis*eased condition of the roots.*

Be very careful about the use of fertilizers. If a plant is not growing, it needs no fertilizer, because it is not in a condition to make use of it. Make this a rule and never vary from it. Fertilize only plants which are already in a healthy, growing condition. To feed a dormant plant strong, rich food is to injure it just as surely as food of that sort will injure a stomach whose digestive or*gans are not in proper shape to as*similate it.

If a plant has begun to grow, a weak application is in order. Let it *increase in strength as the plant de*velops. Never use enough to force a rapid growth, for that means weakness from which there is almost sure to be a reaction sooner or later.

Do not let the plants in the window-garden become one-sided by being drawn toward the light. Turn them about, at least once a week, that all may have the same light and equal chance at the sunshine. It is a good plan to arrange the smaller ones at the sides and rear. This enables all of them to get the benefit of the light, as they would not if the larger ones were in front. These can be hung with the smaller ones tucked into the shady places between.—Exchange.

TO TRIM THE NEW BLOUSE.

When white blouses are worn with colored skirts, bretelles like the skirt continue in high vogue. Even a girl in her high school skirt, wears bretelles are of the plaid with quite deep and full sleeve caps of the wool falling over the tops of the arms. Two tailory straps ended with buttons connect the bretelles across the front of the girl, but the girdle is shaped and has buttons at the front. Plaid ribbons make up similar arrangements.

A black bretelle girdle has three straps of two-and-a-half-inch ribbon, the first two nearest the front being connected at intervals of two inches by narrow velvet straps and tapering in together at the waist line. The third strap comes over the armhole and stops there. There is joined by the same little straps to the band next to it. The girdle closes at the front with a cut steele buckle and ends in short tabs made up of double loops of unequal lengths.

17,000 DEATHS YEARLY.

"In New York city occur ten violent deaths a day, as a direct result of daily activities," is the statement of Arthur B. Reeve in his article on "Our Industrial Juggernaut" in the February Everybody's. In Chicago the number falls to six a day, according to Dr. Thomas Grant Allen. But the storm-centre of the country is Allegheny County, Pa., in which the city of Pittsburg is situated, combining steel, iron, and coal industries, mills, mines, railroads, and buildings operations. Over 17,000 deaths and injuries a year in all industries is the record for this single county.

"Conditions are such that the life of a foreigner employed in the mills is given less consideration than is the life of an average mule," says the owner of Allegheny county. "During my first month in office I was astounded to find that within the thirty days twelve men were killed in one plant alone of the United States Steel Corporation." Even the present child labor law enforced," the Hungarian Consul has protested, "conditions would not be so bad."

Mayor Shakes Up Railroad.

Vineland, Feb. 11.—Mayor Sawyer shook up the Jersey Central Railroad Thursday afternoon by arresting W. H. Warner, conductor, and the crew of his freight train, on the charge of obstructing street crossings longer than the five minutes allowed by the borough ordinance. The hearing was set for this morning, before Justice of the Peace Browne. It is said the railroad will be in court with an array of the best counsel to fight the ordinance.

The Epworth League held a song service at the Methodist Episcopal church last evening.

Mayor Wyckoff is still acting as borough recorder.

LENTEN RULES TO BE OBSERVED BY THE DIOCESE

SPECIAL INDULT HAS BEEN EXTENDED BY THE POPE.

In the regulations for the Lenten season to be observed in the Catholic Diocese, which includes Plainfield, this year the special indult granted by the late Pope Leo XIII. for ten years has been extended by Pope Pius X., and bishops are empowered to vary from the common law of abstinence when they *judge expedi*ent. Bishop O'Connor, therefore, permits working people who cannot easily abstain from flesh meat to use it once a day on all abstinence days with exceptions as shown in rule eight of the regulations as follows:

"All the week days of Lent from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday are fast days of precept on one meal, with the allowance of a moderate collation in the evening.

"The *church excuses from the ob*ligation of fasting, but not of abstinence from flesh meat, except in special cases of sickness, the infirm, those who are attaining their growth, those whose duties are of an exhausting or laborious character, women nursing children or sick nurses, and those who are enfeebled by old age.

"The following dispensations are granted for this diocese:

"The use of flesh is permitted at every meal on the Sundays of Lent, and at the principal meal on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, with the exception of Ember Saturday and Holy Saturday.

"The use of eggs and milk, butter, cheese and the like is allowed every day at the principal meal, and at the evening collation.

"A small piece of bread with a cup of coffee, tea, chocolate, or similar drink, may be taken in the morning.

"When it is not convenient to take the principal meal at noon, it is lawful to invert the order, and take the collation in the morning and the dinner in the evening.

"Dripping and lard may be used in the preparation of food.

"On Sundays there is neither fast nor abstinence, but it is not allowed to eat fish and flesh meat at the same meal on any day during Lent.

"Those who are not obliged to fast may partake of flesh meat at every meal on a fast day. Also, for special indult, flesh meat is permitted at the principal meal.

"Working people who cannot easily abstain from flesh meat are permitted to use it on all days of abstinence days throughout the year, with the exception, however, of all Fridays, *Ash Wednesday, Wednesday and Sa*turday of Holy Week, and the vigil of Christmas.

"This dispensation is granted to working people, and the members of their families share in it, but it does not exempt from fasting where such an obligation exists, nor does it permit the use of fish and flesh meat at the same meal.

"When the faithful avail themselves of this indult they should perform some penitential work as a substitute for the dispensation enjoyed. A most useful and commendable custom is that of hearing mass, especially during Lent, from stimulants, in honor of the sacred thirst of our Divine Saviour.

"All priests exercising the faculties of this diocese are empowered to grant dispensation from the precept of fast and abstinence in particular cases and for sufficient cause.

"A plenary indulgence has been conceded by the Holy See to all the faithful of this diocese, who, on the feast of St. Patrick, or within the octave, receive with proper dispositions the sacrement of penance and the blessed eucharist, and visiting a church or chapel, offer prayers to God according to the intention of the holy father and for the propagation of the faith.

"The holy oils will be consecrated at the cathedral on Holy Thursday, March 28, at 10 a. m., and distributed at 3 p. m.

"In accordance with the direction of the third plenary council of Baltimore, a collation will be taken up in all the churches of this diocese on the first Sunday in Lent in aid of the propagation of the faith and of the Indian and colored missions.

"With the view to encouraging this salutary work of mercy, and of animating the Christian zeal of the faithful for the salvation of perishing souls, our holy father has benignly granted a plenary indulgence to all who having contritely confessed and worthily received holy communion on that day, devoutly visit a church in which the collection is made, assist at the sermon and the other observances of divine worship that may be celebrated on that occasion, and offer prayers for the propagation of the faith and the intention of the sovereign pontiff."

Barbers' Union Passes Resolutions.

At a meeting of the local Barbers' Union, Thursday night, resolutions were passed condemning the action of the Governor of Idaho and the Supreme Court in the matter of arrest, extradition and imprisonment of Secretary William Haywood and George Pettibone, of the Western Federation of Miners. The same action is being taken by unions of all kinds throughout the country. Copies of the resolution will be forwarded by President Donato DiLonardo and Secretary Cantucey to the governor of Idaho and the judges of the Supreme Court.

"SILENT" SMITH HONORED

County Chairman and "Bob" Kirkland Receive Handsome Masonic Jewels.

GIFT OF POLITICIANS

Plainfield Well Represented at G. O. P. Gathering When Two Leaders Are Agreably Surprised.

All the politicians of the county whose names crop up prominently at election time, gathered at Gebhardt's place in Elizabeth, Friday, for the purpose of springing a "surprise" on one of their number. At least that's what they were all told and secrecy was maintained to such an extent that no one knew who it was until almost the last moment and then it was announced by County Registrar Frank H. Smith, who was a member of the committee on arrangements, that it was Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth.

But "Silent" Smith had another guess coming. While he and his committee had been busy in one direction, another committee had been working on parallel lines and he was picked out as a second "victim." He was absolutely in the dark as to the surprise prepared for him, as was Kirkland also, the latter having been led to believe that Smith was the man for whom the event was "prepared. The climax came when both men were instructed to stand up and they were presented with thirty-second degree Masonic jewels, having recently reached that degree in Masonry.

The presentation to Kirkland was made by Abe J. David and to Smith by Judget William Newcorn. The uprised ones were badly rattled for a moment or so but quickly regained their composure and responded fittingly. Other speeches were made by Judge William R. Codingtond and Judge C. Addison Swift. The banquet served in connection with the affair was voted "A1" by the eighty odd men around the tables and it was a treat indeed to behold.

The Plainfielders who were present included Amos Andrews, Councilman Herbert Buxton, former Mayor James F. Buckle, Judge W. T. Codington, former Sheriff B. Frank Cobleigh, Assemblyman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Judge William Newcorn and Frank H. Smith, Hamilton F. Kean, Assemblyman Tillman, Perkins and Moxon and County Clerk James C. Calvert were among the other attendants.

THE DAINTY GIRL AND HER SURROUNDINGS.

So delicate and elusive a quality as daintiness cannot be taught with the alphabet and rule of three, yet it should be lived. It is claimed that *daintiness is a woman's most dan*gerous attraction, and that the dainty maiden with clean hands and pure hearts where careless beauty fails. Why, then, does not girlhood oftener cultivate this altogether desirable charm, instead of sighing over a Roman nose that should be Grecian?

Look around you as you ride in the street cars; is the girl in fifty dainty? Not one in a hundred; not one in fifty is perfectly neat, and but a small number are even clean and wholesome looking. To be clean is not to be dainty; buttons off, placket gaping, skirt and waist divorced—that absolute cleanliness does not atone for these.

Neatness is not daintiness. Then is daintiness equivalent to taste? Hardly; daintiness is none of these, and yet embraces them all—taste—neatness—cleanliness.

The girl who would be dainty per*haps had better take a peep into her* room. Are your shoes peeping from under a carelessly made bed? Are the curtains white and fresh-looking? Is your dressing scarf tumbled and littered? Are the drawers partly open, revealing confusion within, and are there any little matters of habit attached to the carpet or floor cover*ing?* Perhaps not the whole list, but a few or one.

Don't worry everything to rights in a sudden resolution. Leave things just as you find them. It will not last—wholesale resolutions never do.

Leave the room alone, then, as a room, but turn your attention to the top of your dresser. Remove the cloth if it be soiled or crumpled. If you haven't a dainty one—make it. Make two or three, and watch them as a miser watches over his gold. If a tiny smut appears, send them to the washtub. But leave everything else alone—strictly alone.

You have heard the story of the washerwoman who was given the pot of hyachinth? She set it in the window and immediately noticed that the glass was dirty. She washed the glass and still looked doubly grimly; the sill washed, the floor was offensive; and so on until the sloven window became a model of neatness.

Boil three or four medium-sized sweet potatoes, pare and cut in pieces and slice a large onion. Put in frying pan one-half cup brown sugar and one-quarter cup butter. Cook the potatoes in this mixture on the back of the stove till the whole is soft. Cook very slowly, shaking the spider occasionally to keep from burning. These potatoes are rich, but delicious, especially with roast pork or poultry.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published at

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1907.

MARTINE FOR GOVERNOR.

The fair and frank press of New Jersey, regardless of political leanings, is paying handsome tributes to these days to James E. Martine in connection with his boom for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Martine, himself, says he doesn't want the nomination, declaring that his sole ambition has been to go to the National Legislature, the "farmer orator" has said those things before and his friends count on again pursuading him to become a candidate. The marvellous run he made against Charles N. Fowler for Congress coupled with the united support given him by the Democracy in the State Legislature for the United States Senatorship brings him to the fore as the most likely one for gubernatorial honors.

Among the countless tributes paid to him during the last week or so the one published in Sunday's "News-Call is a good sample. The Call says:

"The nomination of James E. Martine, the 'farmer orator,' for United States Senator by the Democratic caucus last week, is supposed to dedicate his candidacy for Governor next fall. Mr. Martine seems to be one of those plain people who often succeed very well in politics and who do very fair service to the public as well. His ability, indeed, would certainly be better than those of any Democratic nominee for the last dozen years. The Republicans have worked pretty hard to throw away their big majority in this State, and they will have to present candidates who will have support more than local to retain their control. The machine has been a failure. It is bad enough to be wrong, but even the machinist in politics despises a blunderer."

MR. REED'S CANDIDACY.

The logical candidate for State Treasurer is Charles Arthur Reed, although it is rather doubtful whether the honor will come to him. Politics is a funny thing. Not infrequently the most deserving and well qualified are stood aside to reward those of markedly inferior ability. Were it otherwise, Frank O. Briggs would not have been elected United States Senator. Nor would the idea of placing him in the same class with such brilliantmen as John W. Griggs, Mahlon Pitney and Edward C. Stokes.

In the present contest that Mr. Reed would be the choice of the "Uncle Dan" Voorhees, known to fame as the boss of Morris county, can hardly be gainsaid. The former Senator from Somerset county has had much experience in State affairs. As president of the Senate he proved himself to be a man of exceptional ability. He is a lawyer of high rank and is altogether a broad, level-headed and intellectual personage. Five years ago he came within one vote of being chosen to the unexpired term for the treasurership, the honor at that time going to Mr. Briggs. His services to the party have been valuable and today he is still without doubt the strongest figure in the Republican party in Somerset county. Mr. Reed is the man for the place.

FREE HEALTH.

In his address "The Safety, Honor and Welfare of the People," Hugh C. Fox, at the Charities Conference, discussed the free health idea. He said he referred to as a new idea. By this is meant the right of every child to nourishment, decency, education, play and the development of the body, mind and soul. The Plainfield orator said the subject is justly important from a civic standpoint as a free education and very rightly says "to insure the physical fitness of these future citizens it requires the careful and constant medical inspection of all school children. It implies the prohibition of child labor, improving housing conditions among the poor; and the abolition of sweatshops; the establishment of public playgrounds and recreation centers, and, of course, pure food, pure milk, pure water and proper drainage."

The subject, "free health" is certainly one that requires careful and mature consideration and action on the part of the State authorities and Mr. Fox is doing a noble work in associating it in such an intelligent manner.

An exchange says that John F. Dryden will enter the lists with John Kean for the Senatorial plum when the latter's term expires. Little early to discuss the subject; probably neither one will be in the running when the time comes.

Will Consider License Applications.

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting on Monday night, February 25, to act on the applications for liquor licenses presented at the regular February meeting. There are twelve applicants, two wholesale and ten retail, and will probably be granted.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Blow to Newspapers.

"The new code prepared by the Postal Commission, which is being pressed to passage as a rider upon the general appropriation bill, is a blow at the newspapers in general and at the most liberal and successful of them in particular. Under the proposed new rules fiction is barred, because it does not involve news policy. Advertising is restricted to fifty per cent. of the superficial area of the paper. Supplements of publications cannot contain any advertising, and must not be printed on anything but paper. Sections of newspapers must conform in size, form and weight of paper; clubbing arrangements and premium offers are forbidden. Not more than ten per cent. of the actual paid subscriptions can be sent out a specimen copies by mail.

"These are samples of the changes proposed in the new code; others refer to the rates of postage, manner of folding, wrapping, registering, etc. There are fifty-two sections to the code and about 7,000 words, and practically all of them are to the positive disadvantage of the newspaper and periodical readers. Nearly, if not quite, 30,000 papers, magazines, etc., will be adversely affected by the recommendations of the Postal Commission if they are adopted by Congress.

"The Sunday papers, which publish an immense amount of fiction, will be barred from the mails at the usual newspaper rates, and if no more advertising than fifty per cent. of the superficial area of the periodical is allowed, then all such papers as the Evening News and the most popular magazines and all trade publications will have to pay exorbitant rates or be deprived of mail privileges.

"This latter provision is a blow at successful newspapers everywhere. It is more; it is an unwarranted interference with the mail privileges of all citizens who may wish to advertise in papers that are valuable to them. If the papers of their choice, the papers that bring them the best returns for their money, have already fifty per cent. of space devoted to advertising, not another line can be taken without increasing the mail rates or abandoning altogether this method of distributing papers.

"To is a ban on legitimate newspaper enterprise and a boon to publisher works hard, makes his paper valuable, secures for it a large circulation, and thus commands a heavy advertising business, is penalized by having his business restricted within certain limits. It is doubtful if such a rule would stand the test if carried into the United States courts. It is a regulation in restraint of legitimate trade.

"The proposed changes are burdensome, harassing and hostile to the development and extension of newspapers and other periodicals. They undertake to curb newspaper expansion by dictating what and how much shall be printed, and by refusing the privileges of the mails to those that cannot meet the rights and wishes. That the postal privileges have at times been abused is certainly true, but this is no reason why honest newspapers should suffer or their readers be deprived of the daily news. The proposed new code not only revising more than did the old one, for it is more arbitrary, inquisitorial, dogmatic and unjust."—Newark News.

SMOLDERING BLAZE

CAUSES DAMAGE OF $200.

Discovered By Occupants in Time to Prevent a Serious Fire.

Fire headquarters was telephoned at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Jacob Vandeventer of Woodland avenue, who informed the department that her residence was filled with smoke. Chief Doane went out in advance of a hose wagon and on his arrival discovered what promised to be a healthy blaze. A partition back of a defective chimney in the dining room had caught fire and was eating its way along to a point where it would have made a whole lot of trouble.

The chief phoned back for the chemical engine and on its arrival the fire of the smoldering mass quickly reached. The men had to do some tearing out but the damage in this way was trifling. It is possible, however, that the loss may be as high as $200.

When the fire apparatus reached the house, Mr. Vandeventer's ten-year-old son, Philip, thought there was no hope for the place and set about saving his most cherished possession. It happened to be a small dog and with the animal held fast under his arm he hustled down Woodland avenue so fast he only touched the high places. He ended up at a neighbor's house and remained there until fully convinced that his own home was still standing.

Nicholas Gates Injured at Scott's.

Nicholas Gates, a machinist employed at the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, caught his arm in a wheel at the works on Saturday, receiving an extended and very painful flesh wound. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found necessary to take several stitches to close the wound. After the dressing of the arm Gates returned to his home.

Milkmen Organize.

The Milkmen's Protective Association of Union county was recently organized in Elizabeth, and now has a membership of thirty-two.

M'CARTER DEFENDS P. S. C

—continued from Page 1.)

was all done, however, in the open, under due forms of law, and without public hostility at the time; in fact those who were given an opportunity to "come in" were regarded as highly fortunate. In the course of a short period these securities became widely scattered for value, in the hands of the investing public. It is not too much to say that they passed into the possession of the rich and the poor, the corporation and the individual, the husband and the widow. While we all, I think, disapprove now of the extent to which this overcapitalization was carried on, we must remember that the theory on which it was based was justified at the time, both by law and public sentiment, and that without the expectation on the part of the promoters of some profit above the ordinary interest expectations, the street railroads did not. By the winter of 1902-1903 it was evident to those at all in touch with the situation, that without new capital for necessary improvements, and for the extensions which public demand, the railroads could not go on. Just at this time a horrible catastrophe occurred. A carload full of school children collided at a dangerous crossing in Newark, with a Lackawanna train, resulting in much loss of life, many personal injury, and filling the whole country with consternation. This was the last straw which, it was quickly seen, would break the camel's back. Something had to be done, and that quickly, or a great financial panic stared New Jersey in the face. The railroads could not meet their accruing obligations. This was becoming generally known, and I knew it professionally, as well as a matter of general information. While the securities were held intact, the policy of the constituent companies was shaped by a comparatively small number of men. To these gentlemen I suggested, as the solution of the problem, the formation of a new company, with a term of life, and a personality to acquire, upon fair terms, all the constituent properties, good and bad, represented by them, the theory being that during the critical period the strong and prosperous should carry the financially and physically weak properties.

Thus Public Service was formed, with a cash capital of $10,000,000 fully paid up, without one dollar of water. It shortly acquired all of its gas, and many of its electric properties by lease, including the financially embarrassed railroads, and of the United Electric Company of New Jersey, which served Essex, Hudson and a part of Union counties electrically, and which was also in a struggling condition to meet exchange and the obligations—not the cash—of the new company, but in the doing of it approximately $60,000,000 of stock obligation was transformed into approximately $20,000,000 of new obligation. This transaction was certainly free from the injection of water.

At this juncture the gentlemen put up to me, as the suggestor of the enterprise, its successful consummation as a going concern, and I withdrew from my profession to accept its presidency, but only after much importance as showing the untrammelled point of view with which I approached my duties. At the commencement of my administration I had, and I still have, three and only three objects in view.

1st. The making good of every dollar of all these under-lying bonds and securities by whomsoever held, and the prevention of the financial panic that would have ensued, and the prevention of the financial panic that would have ensued, and the prevention of the financial panic that would have ensued

CHURCH TEN YEARS OLD

Monroe Ave. Methodists Celebrate Decade of United Christian Effort.

A PROSPEROUS FLOCK

Review of Work of Sunday-school and Various Church Auxiliaries —Sermon By the Pastor.

The tenth anniversary services of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church were concluded Sunday, with special meetings in the morning and evening. It was expected that Rev. Dr. John Hamilton Howard of the Summerfield M. E. church, Staten Island, would preach the anniversary sermon in the morning, but he was unable to do so, and the pastor, Rev. E. E. Roberson, delivered the sermon. It was an interesting and impressive discourse, in which he reviewed briefly important features of the work performed by the church.

N. Mansfield Smith, secretary to the Board of Trustees, at the evening service presented an extended historical sketch of the church covering the past ten years. The report notes an increase in the membership of the Sunday-school under the direction of Superintendent Walter M. McGee. The total enrollment for the year was 267, with an average attendance of 192, divided as follows: Main school, 183; primary, 65; kindergarten, 59; home department, 10; cradle roll, 20. Largest attendance, Children's Day, June 10, 232; smallest attendance, October 21, 73. Total receipts for the year, $435.73; disbursements, $435.26.

The work of the Ladies' Aid Society shows an increase in membership and much good accomplished. Socials and entertainments have been well attended. The principal item in the disbursements was the donation of $100 to the church. The receipts for the year were $206.53 and disbursements $194.22, leaving a balance of $12.31.

The Epworth League was reported to be in good condition, spiritually and otherwise. The receipts for the year were $106.47, disbursements, $82.71, leaving a balance of $23.76. The work of the North Household Library continues to progress, having now over 1,700 volumes and during the year a new catalogue was issued. A feature of the work of the Junior Epworth League has been the study of the catechism and regular attendance of children.

The Men's Association, an important factor in the church work, has accomplished much work. Receipts for the year were $58.06, disbursements, $41.69, leaving a balance of $16.37. The Mercy and Help Society reported receipts of $27.95, disbursements of $22.75 and a balance of $4.31.

Considerable space is devoted in the sketch to the work of the missionary societies of the church, consisting of home, foreign and Standard Bearers. The Women's Home Auxiliary reported receipts of membership dues at $18.92, contingent fund $1.60, from entertainment, $18.50; silver offering contributions by members, $42.66, a total of $81.69.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society has sixteen members in good standing and its receipts for the year were $17.50, in addition to clothing for the schooling of a girl in India. The Standard Bearers reported receipts of $17.15. The total receipts of the church were reported to be $2,511.46, disbursements $2,471.42, with a balance on December 31, 1906, of $40.04.

The sketch also pays deserving tribute to the earnest work of Rev. E. E. Roberson, the present pastor, who succeeded Rev. George Mooney, and states that under his pastorate many new members have been received during the past year as the result of special efforts.

Following the historical sketch, an excellent address was delivered by Rev. Frank Fletcher, formerly pastor of the Baptist church at New Market. Mr. Fletch congratulated the church on its substantial growth and increasing interest and then made remarks of a general character bearing on Christian work, which were of great help and encouragement. This closed the series of anniversary services held during the week and which were fruitful of many blessings.

Charles Dana Gibson Again.

This time the great American artist appears before the public as the creator of the beautiful and exclusive set of stationery that is being given away with the New York Sunday World. It is remarkable how such a thing can be done. The extra cost of art paper, fine printing, &c., is as nothing compared to the great price that artists is known to charge for his work. But this has not stopped The World. The pictures are beautiful, and are being given away with every Sunday's paper.

Brick Flats Sold.

M. Abrams and Abram Kunzman acquired possession of the row of brick flats on Central avenue at Second street, yesterday, by purchase from James C. Manning. The consideration is not mentioned in the contract that passed. Neither Mr. Abrams nor Mr. Kunzman could be seen this morning.

GREET MRS. R.S. ROWLAND

Reception and Tea Given in Her Honor by Mrs. D. H. Rowland.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

Many Friends From New York, Pittsburg, Brooklyn, Orange, Bergent Point and St. Louis Attend the Affair.

Without doubt the most brilliant society function of the season was the reception and tea given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. David Hill Rowland, of West Seventh street, in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Rufus Story Rowland, for the purpose of introducing her to the society people of Plainfield and North Plainfield. During the hours from four to seven o'clock, more than four hundred guests called and enjoyed the delightful features. There were guests from New York, Pittsburg, Brooklyn, Orange, Bergen Point, St. Louis, and this city, the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland, presenting an attractive picture thronged with handsomely gowned women.

Mrs. David Hill Rowland and Mrs. Rufus Story Rowland were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles C. Marshall, of New York, and Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, of this city. Mrs. David Hill Rowland was gowned in hellotrope satin, while her daughter-in-law wore her wedding gown of white satin, trimmed with point lace and orange blossoms. Mrs. Marshall's gown was of red velvet, and that of Mrs. Mead was black velvet.

Those in the dining room who poured were Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, Mrs. Thomas Mills Day, Mrs. Edward A. Stewason, Mrs. William M. Wherry, Jr., Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor and Mrs. Edward Vermeiye Cox, all of this city.

The young women who assisted were Miss Matie Wadsworth, Miss Georgianna Smith, Miss Valiant, the Misses Harman, Miss Grace Kaufman, Miss Margaret McCutchen, Miss Margaret Mead, of this city; Miss Painter, of Pittsburg, who was a bridesmaid at Mrs. Rowland's wedding, and Miss Lackland, of St. Louis.

The home was lavishly decorated with palms, ferns, southern smilax and flowers. In the reception room pink roses were used almost exclusively, while in the library yellow jonquils made a most effective arrangement. Decorations in the dining room were all white and there was a profusion of roses of that color to garnish the table. Throughout the smilax combined to make the general decoration a pleasing one.

A feature that added to the brilliancy of the affair was the music by Austin's stringed orchestra. The programme was a delightful one. Following the reception which lasted until 7 o'clock, an informal supper was given for relatives and intimate friends of the young couple. In addition to Miss Painter, of Pittsburg, Miss Dorthy Morgan, of New Haven; Mortimer Adams, of New York, and J. Whitney Baker, of this city, the last two named ushers, members of the bridal party present.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Story Rowland were married in Pittsburg several weeks ago, and recently returned from their honeymoon. Mrs. Rowland and Miss Margarita Frew, daughter of William N. Frew, of Pittsburg, the personal representative of Andrew Carnegie, in that city. She was socially prominent in Pittsburg, being a leader among the younger set. Mr. Rowland is equally prominent in social circles both here and in New York. He is engaged in the banking business in New York with his father. He was graduated from Yale last year.

There is now in course of construction and almost completed a handsome dwelling on Stelle avenue, where Mr. and Mrs. Rowland will reside. They expect to occupy their home about March 1.

MARTINE FOR GOVERNOR.

Democrats View Him as Logical Candidate.

The Democrats believe that a Democratic Governor may be the outcome of these contentions on the other side, and are looking about carefully for their most available man. The friends of James F. Martine, of Union county, who received the minority caucus nomination for the Senatorship against Briggs, believe that he has thus been put in line for the nomination; and there are others who think that his title of "Farmer-Senator" will go a long way toward making him popular in the rural districts of the State. Charles C. Black and Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, of Hudson, also have hopes in that direction; but both are regarded as impossibilities, as the land lieg today. —New York Times.

Entertained at East Orange.

Society notes of the Oranges recorded a dinner given last Thursday night by Misses Emma, Helen and Susan Dill, daughters of Judge and Mrs. James A. Dill, of East Orange, to Miss Otialie H. Lohrke, of East Orange, and her fiance, the Rev. George H. Warner, rector of Holy Cross Episcopal church, of this city. The dinner was given at the Essex County Country Club and covers were laid for twenty.

ADVOCATES FREE HEALTH

Hugh F. Fox Addresses State Charities Conference on Standard of Living.

IMMIGRANTS NEEDED

Room For All Foreigners Says Plainfielder Who Talks On "Safety, Honor and Welfare of the People."

An audience that filled the Lyceum theatre at Paterson Sunday afternoon took part in the opening meeting of the State Conference of Charities and Corrections. From all over the State came men and women prominent in the movement to improve the social conditions in this State. Hugh F. Fox, of this city, acted as president of the conference.

Mr. Fox spoke on "The Safety, Honor and Welfare of the People."

"We cannot establish a high standard of citizenship unless we secure to every child the right to nourishment, decency, to education, to play and to develop its body, mind and soul freely and naturally," he said. "If necessary, the State must interfere with an invade the family to secure these rights for the child. This means a clean and healthful standard of living; it means adequate facilities for an all round education and the rigid enforcement of truancy laws.

"To insure the physical fitness of these future citizens it requires the careful and constant medical inspection of all school children. It implies the prohibition of child labor, improving housing conditions among the poor, and the abolition of sweatshops; the establishment of public play-grounds and recreation centres, and, of course, pure food, pure milk, pure water and proper drainage.

"Free health is a new idea to us, though it is just as important from the civic standpoint as free education. The people are beginning to demand that this part of our system of government be taken out of politics."

Referring to the corrective institutions of the State, Mr. Fox contended that all of them should be taken out of politics.

"But what can we say of our common jails?" he continued. "Could any devil's factory for wickedness be more ingeniously contrived than the jails of these United States? We send men there to loaf in idleness, allowing them to gather together during their leisure hours in the cells which surround their cells. There is often little or no discipline. The moral atmosphere of the jail is incitement to crime and a procreation to vice. We have talked about it long enough. Let us see if we cannot find a remedy."

Mr. Fox has introduced the subject of immigration for the first time into the conference. On this subject he remarked: "I have yet to learn of the force of facts which justify the conclusion that any class or race of white men are a menace to our civilization. On the contrary, I believe that practically every able-bodied European immigrant is a national asset, and that the demand is even greater than the supply."

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson discussed the subject of "Probation in New Jersey." She told of the efforts to establish juvenile courts in this State and asserted that the New Jersey Probation Juvenile Court law is the best in the world. She cited the benefits that had come from the law among the people in Union county and other counties.

"Child Labor in the Glass Factories of the United States" was discussed by Owen Lovejoy, assistant secretary of the National Child Labor Committee. He advanced the passage of a law prohibiting the em*ployment in factories at night of* children under sixteen years old.

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, of New York, spoke on "Our Social Salvation."

The conference will end tomorrow afternoon.

DAAB'S TEAM.

Mike Leonard Will Be Captain Again; Old Field Retained.

Phil Daab, manager and statesman, will show his Hoboken athletes on the St. George Cricket Grounds as of yore next season. Part of the Cricket grounds will be cut off for a park, but the field, although shortened appreciably, will be long enough for the home-run swatters to show their prowess.

Daab has not allowed his highbrow job in the halls of legislation—Trenton, you know—to turn his head making him popular in the rural districts of the State. Charles C. Black and Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, of Hudson, also have hopes in that direction; but both are regarded as impossibilities, as the land lieg today. —New York Times.

S. P. C. A. STARTS OFF

Gets Charter and Begins Planning Benefits For Dumb Beasts.

FOUNTAINS SUGGESTED

Dr. Knott Warns Against Old Fashioned Horse Trough and Advocates Bucket Service As More Sanitary.

Active work was outlined by the newly-organized S. P. C. A. at a meeting in Judge W. A. Coddington's office Monday morning. The society's charter was received in due form, and plans were considered for immediate unlimbering of all the ordinance with the which the society is armed for the rescue of suffering beasts. It is hoped to extend the work to North Plainfield, South Plainfield, Dunellen, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Westfield. Steps have been taken to conduct the crusade in conjunction with the society at Somerville.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons.

President L. V. F. Randolph was in the chair this morning. Dr. M. O'M. Knott, a veterinary well known among the owners of thoroughbred dogs and horses here, attended the meeting and spoke on the necessity of furnishing protection for dogs. Bonus method of saving dogs from quick condemnation to death, under suspicion of rabies, should be devised, he said. Dogs suffering only from acute indigestion were often called mad and hunted to death.

The subject of a drinking fountain for horses and dogs in the centre of the city was discussed. Dr. Knott warned the members against a fountain, as unsanitary. A bucket stand would be better, he said. The need of a drinking place for dogs was said to be urgent as humane societies look on such things. Dogs are thirsty animals and suffer much from lack of water.

Several letters were received asking if the statutes made no provision for putting dogs or cats to death on request by citizens. The society knew of no such law; the householder was expected to act as his own executioner. As a matter of fact, the police of this city have, for years, gone after and shot any animal condemned to death by its owner, arranging for the removal of the carcass by a knacker after the execution.

The society hopes to reach a membership of 300 shortly. The memberships are of two sorts—life, costing $10; and annual, costing $1 a year. It is hoped to get 100 life members and 200 of the others. Subscriptions may be sent to Mrs. G. W. Bunnell, Berkeley avenue, the treasurer, who will forward membership cards promptly in return.

The executive committee of the society is made up of L. V. F. Randolph, Mrs. Knox Taylor, Mrs. D. Rapalje, Miss Edith Smalley and Dr. T. S. Davis.

CHURCH COMEDY CLUB GIVES VAUDEVILLE SHOW.

The Comedy Club of St. Stephen's church held a successful amateur vaudeville show Monday. The programme was much enjoyed by a large audience.

The programme was as follows:

Piano solo, selected, song, "The Wolf," Shield, L. J. Geary; La Vie De Boheme, Dupuy, Dr. George H. Dupuy; song, "Farewell to Summer," Noel Johnson, Miss Marion Rummler; a few illustions, R. H. McCready; trio, "Hail Smiling Morn," Spofford, Miss Marion Rummler, Miss Martha MacMurray, L. J. Geary; songs, "Daddy," A. H. Behrend, "Sing Me to Sleep," Edwin Greene, F. J. Pope; stories in character, J. Campbell Haywood; songs, "A Little While," Salter, "My Native Land," Hugo Haun, Miss Marion Rummler; song, "The Two Grenadiers," Schumann, L. J. Geary; piano solo, selected.

Mr. McCready's humor was rare and racy. The singing of Mr. Pope and of Miss Rummler and the stories of J. Campbell Haywood were particularly enjoyed.

GRACE M.E. ANNIVERSARY

Congregation Holds Special Services to Celebrate Completion of 15th Year.

CLEARED CHURCH DEBT

Ready Response to Dr. Parsons' Appeal and $1,800 Is Pledged By the Members.

With a long standing debt of $1,700 removed and a substantial amount added to the treasury, the members of Grace M. E. church ended their fifteenth anniversary celebration in a happy frame of mind, Sunday night. It was one of the most eventful days in the history of the congregation and the members displayed an enthusiasm that had in no wise been anticipated. The money needed to free the church from its financial obligation within a few dollars was pledged at the first service held in the morning, and more than enough was secured at night. Dr. Parsons was most agreeably surprised and there is no one connected with the church who appreciated the result to any greater degree.

The first service of the day was held at the usual hour in the morning and was in charge of the pastor. Rev. Herbert H. Randolph, of Hoboken, who was the first pastor of the church, having been appointed by the elder until the conference acted, was an interested spectator.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school held special exercises in connection with the anniversary and the attendance was very large. A feature of the programme was the reading of a historical sketch of the department by Superintendent W. J. Conroy, while Miss Nellie Beesley, who has been prominent in State Sunday-school work, gave an address on "Our Sunday-school." A debt of $100 in the department account was pledged during the session.

The final service of the day was held at night with an attendance larger than was noted either morning or afternoon. There were several speakers announced by Dr. Parsons, the first of whom was Dr. Carroll. He related in a concise manner "The Birth of the Enterprise," telling how the plans to establish the North Plainfield branch of the M. E. church had been formulated and how it had quickly grown into a reality and then became an independent organization. Former Assemblyman A. S. Schoonhamer followed with an address, "The Value of the Church of Christ in the Community," and Dr. G. H. Whitney, president emeritus of the *Centenary Institute, gave a reminis*cences address, in which Dr. Parsons spoke briefly on "The Outlook and Hope for the Future." An additional $100 was secured for the church fund at this service, putting the total amount for the day well over $1,800.

The musical features of the services was excellent and formed no small part of the programmes. E. C. Martin was solist morning and evening and rendered several selections.

Medical Board Report.

Nothing but routine business was transacted at the February meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, last Monday. The medical board reported the number of patients for January as follows: Patients in the hospital at date of last report, 23; admitted, 59; discharged cured, 33; improved, 6; not improved, 2; died, 5; total number of patients treated, 82; remaining, 36; hospitals days, 1,034; operations, 57. In the dispensary: Patients, 42; visits of patients, 132; operations, 10.

STRICKEN ON SAME DAY; DEATH BUT LITTLE APART

UNUSUAL CIRCUMSTANCES IN DENISE OF MR. AND MRS. JAMES ARMSTRONG

Surviving his wife by little more than twelve hours, James Armstrong, of Prospect place, passed away at his home Saturday morning. Mrs. Armstrong had died earlier in the day, pneumonia being the cause in both instances.

Husband and wife were out on a shopping trip one week ago Saturday and on returning home were taken ill. Pneumonia developed and both were in a serious condition before they fully realized it. When Mrs. Armstrong died in the morning the fact could not be kept from the husband and he began to sink immediately.

Mr. Armstrong was sixty years of age and had resided in Plainfield for many years. Until a short time ago he lived on West Fifth street near Plainfield avenue and the acquaintance of both himself and wife in that section of the city was very wide. He was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and both he and his wife were members of Grace P. E. church. At the time his illness began Mr. Armstrong was employed by J. W. Davet, of West Front street. The only surviving relatives are a brother and sister to Mr. Armstrong; Robert Armstrong, of East Fourth street, and Miss Mary Armstrong, of West Seventh street, and a sister of Mrs. Armstrong who lives in New England. The latter is ill at the present time and is unable to come to this city.

The funeral of husband and wife will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon and will be private.

A Heart Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bennett, of the New Madison, gave a party at their home Friday night for their son and daughter, Henry Bennett and Miss May Bennett. The evening was spent in playing hearts and at the conclusion prizes were presented. Miss Helen Runyon received first prize for the girls, Miss Alice Drake second and Miss Helen George booby prize. Allen Diman received the first prize for the boys, Malcomb Krewson second and Andrew Stiglitz the booby prize. The girls' prizes were a beautiful wood handkerchief box, a Teddy bear and a pig pin cushion. The prizes for the boys were a penknife, a stick-pin of hearts and a peacock. The home was decorated with red and white colors. After the game refreshments were served. Those present were the Misses Ethel Runyon, Lois Diman, Alice Drake, Helen Gorge, Ruth Wean, Edith Lyons, May Bennett, and Ralph Martin, Malcomb Krewson, Andrew Stiglitz, Pierson Bailey; Allen Diman and Henry Bennett.

P. H. S. Boy Wins.

At the annual Poly Prep. meet held in the 34d Regiment, New York, Saturday, Chauncey Murphy, of the Plainfield High School, won first place in the o nce 75 yard dash, making it in 8 2-5 seconds. He won third place in the senior 100 yard dash, lowering his own record to 10 2-5 seconds.

Senator Briggs Will Speak.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs has been secured as one of the chief speakers at teh annual dinner to be given in Elizabeth by St. Patrick's Alliance, of that place, on St. Patrick's Day. His acceptance has been received by the committee in charge of the arrangements.

DIED.

ADAMS—At the Baptist Home for the Aged in Newark, N. J., on Monday, Feb. 4, 1907, Martha J., widow of John O. Adams, in her 78th year.

ARMSTRONG—At his late residence, Prospect place, North Plainfield, on Saturday, Feb. 9, 1907, James Armstrong.

ARMSTRONG—At her late residence, Prospect place, North Plainfield, on Saturday, Feb. 9, 1907, Ellen, wife of James Armstrong.

WYCKOFF—In this city, February 11, 1907, Mrs. Emma Wyckoff, of South Plainfield, aged 48 years.

GALBRAITH—In this city, February 10, 1907, Daniel Galbraith.

DOUD—On Saturday, Feb. 9, 1907, John McBain, youngest son of Thomas and Mary E. Doud, in his 23d year.

GUNTHER—In this city, February 6, 1907, George L. Gunther, Jr., at Muhlenberg Hospital.

WILLIAMS—In this city, Monday, Feb. 4, 1907, Henry Williams.

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago.

c 7 19 18

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnace. Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing. Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanslip manner.

Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

is now open ready for business. All the latest appointments in the tonsoria line.

EDWIN D. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, Jeremiah Manning, } Vice-Pres
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January teth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us, some to travel, appointing agents, others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed, paying extra commissions and expenses, rapid advancement, old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure pleasant, permanent position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once.

STAMFORD PRESS, 23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Office, Corner 1st Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with one name and address and 10c. for sample copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York

With Illustrations by Frederick Richardson will give such a Christmas Party as the De Bevoise Brochure

ing effect under the sheerest lingerie waists. Sizes 32 to 46 inches bust measure.

PRICE $1.00 EACH

As all corset departments, or most of your dealer's stocks, are sold out, order direct. Catalogue on request.

Chas. E. De Bevoise Co., 344 High St., Newark, N.J.

GRIP-CRAZED LIVERYMAN

Strangled to Death in a Noose Fastened to Rings on Door.

STRUGGLE HEARD

Sound of His Heels on the Door Ascribed to Steam in Radiator, and Louis Franken Died as He Planned.

His mind unhinged by the grip, Louis Franken, 38 years old, one of the proprietors of the Plainfield Cab Company, committed suicide by hanging in his room at the boarding house of Mrs. Elizabeth McAndrews, 130 North avenue, just before daybreak Thursday morning.

The body was discovered at 7:35 o'clock, hanging by a short piece of manila rope from the hinge of his door, by Dr. F. C. Herbert, a veterinary, and Mrs. McAndrews.

The man's death struggles were heard by Mrs. McAndrews at 5:30 o'clock. She first took them to be the sound of some one shaking out a skirt, and then decided, after trying the noise to Franken's room, that the sound came from a pounding radiator. Mrs. McAndrews conducts the whole house at No. 130, and rises at 4:30 to prepare breakfast and lunch packets for a houseful of boarders. About an hour after rising Thursday she heard a peculiar noise from the floor above, and afraid that the sound would disturb the boarders who were still sleeping, she went upstairs to have it stopped. The noise came from Franken's room, and she went to the door in alarm. Franken had been confined to the house since Tuesday, and she began to fear that something was wrong with him.

The noise seemed to her, then, to come from the door. She called William Walker, a boarder, to speak about the house. The noise was still going on when VanLiew came up. He listened a moment, and told Mrs. McAndrews there was nothing to worry about. "That's the steam in the radiator," he said. Mrs. McAndrews accepted the explanation and returned to her work. After a bit the noise stopped.

But Mrs. McAndrews was only partially reassured. Her fear that something was wrong returned almost as soon as she went on with her work, and it increased with each minute. She went to the telephone shortly before 6 o'clock, and called up the Cab Company's office. She told the man in charge to notify Dr. Herbert, who has an office at the Cab Company, and was friendly with Franken, to go to her house as soon as he reached the office. Dr. Herbert came to the house at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. McAndrews told the veterinary of her fears, and begged him to get into Franken's room. She told him she had looked through the keyhole and had seen that Franken was not in his bed. Dr. Herbert, with Mrs. McAndrews, went to the next room adjoining Franken's room, and unlocked the double doors between the two. Franken's body, hanging from the hinge of his door, confronted them. Dr. Herbert cut him down swiftly, but the man was beyond hope of resuscitation.

The manner in which he had gone about the work of self-destruction was evident. The rope about his neck had been doubled carefully to a length that would have put the feet close of the floor. His toes hung just about two inches from the floorboards. He must have stepped on a chair, after adjusting the noose about his neck, held the loop at the end of the rope over the hinge, and kicked the chair away. It was the drumming of his heels on the door, as he struggled slowly to death, that Mrs. McAndrews heard.

The body was partly dressed. Slippers were on the feet. The appearance of the body indicated that Franken had lain in it little, if at all, through the night.

The police were notified at once, and Coroner C. B. Lufburrow was on the scene with Chief Kiely within an hour. County Physician Westcott arrived at 9:30 o'clock, and satisfied himself that investigation was unnecessary. He gave Undertaker W. A. Moore a permit to remove the body.

Franken's illness is the only apparent reason for his act. He complained of pains in his head Wednesday to Dr. Herbert, who was with him up to 10 o'clock, and had told Mrs. McAndrews earlier in the evening that his head seemed to be "full" of heat. Mrs. McAndrews asked him if he couldn't forget his illness by reading, and he said he couldn't remember what he read. So far as the police could discover, Franken had no business worriment. Dr. Herbert said Thursday that Franken had been a man of very nervous temperament.

"He often complained of loneliness when I returned to the office after an absence of more than a few minutes," said the veterinary.

Franken was unmarried. He bought the Cab Company's business with Rudolph G. Toense, of North Plainfield, last summer. He came to this city from New York, where he had been associated in business with Mr. Toense.

The suicide's father and mother and two brothers live in Cologne, Germany, where he was born. His only relatives in this country are cousins in New York. They are members of the big leaf tobacco firm of Lichtenstein Brothers, 117 Malden Lane.

POOR OVERSEER'S REPORT FELL BY THE WAYSIDE.

And Mayor Fisk Forgot to Mention This Department in His Annual Message.

Through an oversight the annual report of Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayers was not included in the other reports mentioned to the Common Council in January, and Mayor Fisk forgot to mention this department of the city in his message. On the first of the year the city, through the poor department, was caring for ten widowed families and fifteen were eighteen inmates of the Industrial Home, ten men and eight women.

By way of comparison this work is equal, considering population, to the work accomplished by the poor department of Elizabeth, which has a population of nearly 60,000. In the annual message of Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, there are 110 families being cared for and there are sixty inmates of the poor house at the county seat.

During the coming year several improvements are being planned for the Industrial House, which will further increase the efficiency of the place in caring for the city's poor. Conditions here are different from those in Elizabeth, in that the co-operation on the part of the Charity Organized Aid and Plainfield Relief Association, which were recently merged. Through this agency much of the suffering on the part of the poor is relieved, thereby making it unnecessary for them to go to the Industrial Home.

DEEDS AND CONTRACTS.

Many of Local Interest Recorded at County Clerk's Office.

The following real estate transfers of interest to Plainfielders have been recorded at Elizabeth:

Robert A. Meeker et ux. to John P. Stevens, southerly side Highland avenue, Plainfield, westerly of Hillside avenue, Plainfield, $1.

E. Frank Vail to John P. Stevens, Highland avenue, 205 feet of Hillside avenue, Plainfield, $1.

William Barsel, et ux, to Stanley Brampton, southeasterly side East Sixth street, 320 feet northeasterly of Berckman street, Plainfield, $1.

Stanley Brampton to Susan M. Harsel, same as above, $1.

Elston M. French to Charles W. McCutchen, northwesterly side road to Westfield, corner Osborn's land, Westfield, $19,500.

Margaret E. Becker to Annie E. Murphy, northeasterly side Fifth street, 100 feet southeasterly of Goodman's line, Plainfield, $1.

John C. Smith, et ux, to Edward C. Dacey, lot 4, block B, "Map of E. M. French," Plainfield, $1.

Halsted C. Compton to Thomas A. Haskard, southeasterly side West Front street, corner Houston's land, Plainfield, $1.

Thomas A. Haskard to John S. Haskard, southeasterly side West Front street, 75 feet of Houston's land, Plainfield, $1.

Same to Frances Haskard, southeasterly side West Front street, corner Houston's land, Plainfield, $1.

Catherine Brady to Elias Nadel, Liberty street, 16 feet of Third street, Plainfield, $1.

Benjamin P. Hadley, et ux, to Eleanor I. Weeks, Berkeley avenue, 187 feet southwesterly of Leland avenue, Plainfield, $1.

The following contracts have also been filed:

Alfred Spangenberg with George Wiegand, carpenter work new building, 449-451 Fifth street, Plainfield, $510.

William H. Abbott with Louis Beck, carpenter work new building, Hillside avenue, Plainfield, $2,710.

W. G. BESLER WILL HELP.

Offers to Contribute to TenBroeck Memorial Fund.

W. G. Besler, of the borough, who is the vice president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, has interested himself in the erection of a TenBroeck memorial at Asbury Park, it having been proposed to erect a memorial pavilion at the beach at Fourth avenue. Mr. TenBroeck, prior to his death was Mayor of Asbury Park.

Mr. Besler has written to R. J. French, chairman of the soliciting committee, stating that in the effort to raise $5,000 for the memorial, he will be willing to be one of any fifty men to subscribe $100 each, or one of any one hundred men each, in order to make up the amount. And in case of his plan not being feasible he will be glad to make a suitable contribution in any event.

Injured by Fall.

Mrs. J. D. Ferguson, of Sherman avenue, who recently met with an accident in Canada, is now undergoing treatment at the home of her sister in Montreal. She fell on a slippery walk three weeks ago and will probably be detained two weeks longer.

HANGS HIMSELF IN ROOM

FRENCHY IS SANS BARN

Police Take the Little Old Frenchman From His Shelter.

BUT PEOPLE WERE BON

Battered Old Waif Was Getting Along Somehow, But Now He Must Go to the City House.

Frenchy has left Liberty street. Frenchy, whose real name is Jean Grethier, lived in a barn on Liberty street, for more than a year. All the children know him and most of the grown-ups.

Frenchy is sixty-eight years old. As a young man he was as lithe a caster as one could find in Saint-Germain, or in the whole department of Seine-et-Oise, which, as Frenchy will tell you, is as far from Paris as New York is from Plainfield. Frenchy left Saint-Germain to make the fortune he had heard was waiting for one who had the courage to go to America. Frenchy found plenty of work, but not the fortune.

He was an old man when he drifted to Plainfield, but managed to shift for himself until about a year ago. He couldn't weed any more, but the barn sheltered him, and he managed to get along somehow. The people, he says, were very good—"tres bon people, yes."

Patrolman Meyers saw Frenchy hobble into his barn Thursday, and he began to wonder how the old man would get through the winter. The policeman decided that the Industrial Farm was Frenchy's only insurance against cold and hunger. So he told the old man, gently, to come with him. Frenchy, contrary and meek as ever, obeyed without protest. He knew what the official intervention meant, but he had learned to be resigned to everything, and what could one do?—the poor they have no choice, no. He had gotten along, and no one complained—of a certainty, the people were tres bon—but when a garde de ville steps into a matter argument is foolish.

So Frenchy went, and Friday morning monsieur le garde de ville made out the papers that will immure the little old man in the city home, where one must do as one is told, and wait patiently for the one end.

As he sat in the police station waiting for his transfer to the Home, Frenchy's thoughts were over the seas. He confessed to a newspaper man that he wished to see Paris and the Parisian crowds once more. It was a foolish wish, surely, and only to be pardoned because one was old and had a childhood. The pride of the boulevardes were fine—and the Louvre, and the Arc de Triomphe; and the sight of the Hotel des Invalides and of Notre Dame would do one good.

Frenchy sighed softly as he thought of them all; the young man must go to Paris if he could by any possibility make the journey; he could never say he had lived rightly if he did not. Then Frenchy said "Bon jour," and dropped his head on his breast.

SOCIETY PEOPLE ATTEND DELIGHTFUL AFTERNOON TEA.

Affair Held at the Home of Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, on Crescent Avenue, Thursday.

Society people were present in large numbers at a delightful afternoon tea given Thursday by Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, the Misses Lovell and Mrs. Harry Borden Lovell at the home of Mrs. Leander N. Lovell on Crescent avenue. The hours were from 4 to 7 o'clock and the social features were greatly enjoyed by everyone. The home was attractively decorated for the affair, pink being the prevailing color in the dining room and red was used throughout the other rooms.

Those who presided at the table in the dining room were Mrs. J. S. Zeile, the Misses Anthony, Mrs. Israel D. Pierson, Mrs. Harry Borden, Mrs. George S. Ring, Mrs. Edward Gilbert and Mrs. Lucius Gilbert. Others assisting were the Misses Pierson, Moore, Kirby, Gilbert, Yates, of this city; Miss Wilder, of New York, and Miss Eleanor VanTuyl, of Texas.

Improvements at the P. C. C.

Included in the work of improvement planned at the Plainfield Country Club during the coming season is the filling in, more or less, of the third hole, and of the unplayable ground to the left of the fourth green. The latter will require much filling in, and will take time to complete. In addition, the green on the fourteenth hole is to be moved to the corner. It is hoped that more attention can be given another year to the tees. They have been in very bad condition and really require the constant attention of one man. An addition will be made to the force of men for this purpose, if possible.

Will Visit His Old Home.

James Kermode, an employee in the composing room of The Daily Press, will sail on the Cunard Liner Carmania on Saturday, February 16, for his former home in the Isle of Man. This will be his first visit to his native home and that of his parents since he came to this country twelve years ago. He will probably remain abroad until next fall.

MOUNTAIN FOLK OF KENTUCKY PICTURED

LECTURE BY PRESIDENT OF BEREA COLLEGE AT G. H. FROST'S HOME.

How the mountaineers of Kentucky live, and what manner of people they are, was told by one who knows them intimately in a lecture at the home of G. H. Frost, Watchung avenue, Thursday, by Rev. Dr. William Goodell Frost, president of Berea College. Berea College lies in the heart of the Kentucky mountaineers' country, and the institution is dedicated to the advancement of the strange, backward people of that section.

The lecture was an invitation affair. It was arranged at the request of President Frost, who knew that Ralph Dalzell Schoonmaker, of this city, was engaged in work among the mountain whites in North Carolina, and inferred that an audience with more than ordinary interest in such work might be gathered here. President Frost is related to G. H. Frost, and asked him to gather an interested group of people. About sixty attended the lecture.

Dr. Frost spoke with entertaining directness and anecdotal charm. He told of the feuds, the moonshining, and the ways of life in the mountain country. The people were of the sixteenth century, he said, and inheritors of undiluted Americanism. Shut off from railroads, telegraph and the other growths of progress, they retained the primitive habits and thoughts—even the speech—of the earliest settlers. They had very little literature, handing down traditions of their kind and of the activities of past years by word of mouth.

Dr. Frost on the whole lecturer declared emphatically, a degraded people; merely ungraded, undeveloped. They were splendid soil for the seed of uplift, and it was the aim and the effort of Berea College to sow and nurture that seed. The possibilities that lay in the mountaineers was shown by the life of Abraham Lincoln. Lincoln, the lecturere said, came from the Kentucky mountain district, and his was the strain that was to be found in the average mountainer.

A social hour followed the lecture. Mr. Frost showed a number of photographs of the mountain folk. Refreshments were served.

NEARLY 1,000 ATTEND F. O. E.'S ANNUAL BALL

PLAINFIELD AERIE HAS A BIG NIGHT AT SAENGERBUND HALL.

Unusual success attended the second annual reception and ball of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., held in Saengerbund Hall, Friday. The affair was attended by over 900 people, including delegations of Eagles from Newark, New Brunswick, Bound Brook, while the Plainfield Aerie and its friends were largely represented.

The grand march took place at 11 o'clock and was led by Mr. and Mrs. William Waglow. This was unique and in the attractive formations there was represented a star and the letters "F. O. E." The programme of dances was one of the best ever presented, and the music by Charles Suhr's orchestra was a feature. The dances included all of the popular selections of the day.

The hall was elaborately decorated by Decorgen, of Elizabeth, there being a fine display of the order's insignia. The arrangement on the stage was attractive, consisting of palms and flowers, while in the centre was an eagle surrounded by a number of small American flags.

The Eagles will net approximately $400 from the reception and ball. R. P. Kampf was general manager of the affair. William Waglow was floor manager and his assistant was S. P. Abiniste. The committee of arrangements consisted of R. P. Kampf, chairman; J. Vardon, secretary; H. Reilly, treasurer; S. P. Abiniste, Edward C. Searing and William Waglow.

Mrs. A. N. Selter Entertains.

Mrs. Andrew N. Selter, of Rockview Terrace, gave a tea at her home, Friday afternoon, February 9, which was attended by over one hundred guests. The home was decorated throughout, pink being the prevailing color. Those who assisted Mrs. Selter in receiving were Miss Klugman, of Trenton; Mrs. Charles A. Reed Mrs. Augustus V. Healy, Mrs. Max Munger and Mrs. Walter M. McGee. The young women assisting were the Misses Shreve, Thompson and Van Deventer.

Work to Defend Schuyler.

Former Congressman Josiah A. Clark, of Somerville, who has had a wide experience in trying criminal cases, has been engaged to assist in the defense of John E. Schuyler, who is confined in the county jail at Flemington on a charge of murdering Manning Riley at Califon recently.

Announce Wedding Date.

Miss Louise Fink Wilbur, daughter of Freeholder and Mrs. S. R. T. Wilbur, of Westervelt avenue, and Blake Broadhead Tatham, of Philadelphia, will be married at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday night, February 20.

ENLARGING CAMERA CLUB MEMBERSHIP

CLASS IN FENCING A NEW FEATURE OF CLUB LIFE.

Plans to enlarge the membership of the Camera Club have been made by the organization. Popular features of a social nature are being considered, and it has already been decided to add fencing to the amusements available to the club members.

Under the impulse of the new spirit, the membership has already started to grow. A dozen or more applications are expected within a day or so.

The interest in fencing will be fostered by the organization of a class. Louis A. Clement, who has law offices in the Babcock building handy to the club rooms, has agreed to take charge of the class and start its members on the road to experience. He is an experienced fencer, and enthusiastic at the sport.

When the class grows more skilful, an instructor from New York will be brought out one or two evenings a week to teach the members some of the finer points of the game.

JACK DUNN ON TEMPERANCE

Advised Baseball Players to Stay on the Water Wagon.

Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore baseball team, who has many friends in this city, is a staunch advocate of total abstinence among ball players. Dunn himself neither drinks liquor nor smokes, and in every way he is considered a model man to guide the affairs of a ball team. In addressing the men on the players recently the Oriole manager declared that he had no use for booze-fighters on any ball team he is running. "Before signing any player," he said, "the first thing I inquire about him is whether he is a boozer or a temperate fellow. If I find out he tampers with John Barleycorn I let him drop, no matter what his playing abilities are. A ball player that drinks too much for his own good is not worth a cent to any club. I have had experience with a lot of them, and know what I'm talking about. A man to hold a job in any of the big leagues now must take care of himself, not only in the playing season, but out of it." In his talk, Dunn emphasized the fact that conditions have changed for the good during the past few years in all of the leagues, and at the present time there is very little intemperance among ball players. Not so long ago, he said, it was no uncommon sight to see a player come on the field in an intoxicated condition and totally unfit for play, but nowadays such deplorable sights are unknown to fans. Occasionally, he said, a player makes a slip, but if given a chance to keep straight he invariably makes good. Over fifty per cent. of the players in the two major leagues today, Dunn declared, are strictly temperate and never use liquor, either in or out of season.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB ASKS FOR STEEPLECHASE DATES.

The Annual Event to Be Held at the Driving Park on Two Days.

The Watchung Hunt Club has made application to the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association for dates for the annual steeplechase events at the Plainfield Driving Park, and the same dates as last year, Decoration Day, and the Saturday following, have been granted the local club. Arrangements are now underway for the local event and it is proposed to make it the best in the history of the club.

Assurances have been received from those who have had entries in previous shows, that they will bring their horses to Plainfield this year, and besides the number of new entries have been promised, which will make it possible for the club to offer strong attractions for both days. Dr. M. O'Malley Knott, who is in charge of many of the details, is now in communication with owners of thoroughbred jumpers and hunters and judging by the responses the entry lists will even exceed that of last year.

Wanamassa Dinner.

The Wanamassa Boat Club will hold its fourth annual dinner on February 21, at the Hotel Churchill, Broadway and Fourteenth street, New York. The dinner will begin at 8 o'clock. The committee is made up of G. Harold Whitney, Percy L. Philbrook and Frederick A. Martin. The Wanamassa Club members number 150.

Celebrated Thirtieth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morley, of Grant avenue, celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of their marriage, on Thursday night at their home. There were a large number of guests present from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and other points. An enjoyable evening was spent and an elaborate supper served.

Pilmore Church Building Sold.

The old Pilmore Avenue Baptist church building, recently converted into flats by Aleck Kane, who had a hard job getting possession of the property after he secured title to it, has been sold by Mr. Kane to W. J. Conroy, of North Plainfield. The price is said to have been $3,000.

"CHIMES" SCORE A HIT PLAN HOLY NAME RALLY

Rendition by the Plainfield Operatic Association Its Best Achievement.

A SPLENDID CAST

Judge Runyon Adds to His Laurels By the Portrayal of "Gaspard, the Miser."

In the presentation of "The Chimes of Normandy," at the Casino, Thursday, it can be said that the Plainfield Operatic Association excelled all previous efforts in the amateur production of comic operas. The tuneful and catchy opera by Robert Planquette was given in a way that thoroughly pleased and delighted an audience that almost filled the auditorium at the Casino. It was the subscription performance and the liberal patronage accorded augers well for the next opera, "Pinafore," to be given later in the season.

Thursday's production was by far the most ambitious work yet attempted by the association and the members measured up to it exceedingly well. Under the careful and painstaking efforts of William Holmes, the director, the chorus of sixty voices was heard to the best advantage, in fact it was much stronger than on previous occasions. Augmenting the uniform excellence of the singing on the part of the chorus, the orchestra of thirteen assisted largely in making the performance a success.

As for the leading characters too much cannot be said in praise of their work. Each one showed great care in training, not only in the singing, but the speaking parts as well. There was a noticeable absence of the real amateur in the acting, the principals showing that they had learned their parts well. William N. Runyon, as "Gaspard," the miser; Miss Hortense Marie Sheldon, as "Serpolette," the good for nothing; Miss Ethel Moore, as "Germaine," the Lost Marchioness; William J. Tallamy, as "Henri," Marquis of Corneville; Elmer D. Cutting, as "Jean Grenicheux," a fisherman, and Joseph C. Martin, as "The Bailli," divided the honors of the evening, while those taking the less important parts left nothing to be desired in presenting a strong cast.

Mr. Runyon scored heavily in the second act where Henri determines to find out the real characters of the ghostly appearances and discovers that it is all the work of the old miser, who has concealed his treasures in the chateu. The discovery drives "Gaspard" crazy, especially when he hears the bells of the chateau ringing for the first time since the fight of the old Marquis. His impersonation of the character was ideal.

The singing of Miss Sheldon throughout was a decided feature, and she acted her part with a grace and ease that called forth spontaneous applause and praise. In the final act she sang a solo that was delightful and she was obliged to repeat it. The work of Miss Moore, who made her first appearance here in comic opera, was not disappointing. She has a voice that is pleasing and although much of the solo work fell to her lot she sang well in every number. Much credit is also due Mr. Tallamy and Mr. Cutting and their singing was a delightful feature. Joseph C. Martin also won much favor by his clever acting.

In the chorus work the sixty voices were round and full. Perhaps, the most effective part was the "Ding Dong Bell" chorus, in the first and third acts. The climax is reached in the last act when the full strength of "Serpolette" is met the real "Marchioness," but that to "Germaine" belongs the title.

The chorus and principals were handsomely costumed for the production, and this gave additional pleasure to the performance. The association can well feel proud of its latest achievement and encouraged to even greater things than were accomplished last night. Clifford A. Braider acted as stage manager and he performed his work faultlessly. The cast:

Henri, Marquis of Corneville, William J. Tallamy; Jean Grenicheux, a fisherman, Elmer D. Cutting; Gaspard, a miser, William N. Runyon; the Bailli, Joseph C. Martin; Notary, John V. Todd; Registrar, Warren French; Assessor, John B. Calder; Serpolette, the good for nothing; Miss Hortense M. Sheldon; Germaine, the lost Marchioness, Miss Ethel Moore; village maidens, Gertrude, Miss Nora B. Schenck; Jeanne, Miss Eliza W. Dunlap; Suzette, Miss Elizabeth V. Day; Suzanne, Miss Harriet a J. Winn; villagers and attendants of the Marquis.

Leaves Navy For Fire Department.

John A. Townley, who has been appointed a regular fireman in the local fire department, taking the place of Harry C. Bush, resigned, is now on duty. He was formerly in Uncle Sam's Navy, serving three years. He has decided to give up the sea for the present and fight fires.

Goes To Pacific Slope.

Charles Belknak, of East Front street, left for Sacramento, Cal., today to take a position in a large plant as draughtsman. He has been working for the Central Railroad in the pattern department.

The Members of St. Joseph's Church Society Now Working Up the Idea.

DIOCESE INTERESTED

Suggested That It Be Held on the Grounds of the New Mt. St. Mary's Convent.

If plans that are now being considered are formulated and carried out, North Plainfield will be the scene of a big rally of Holy Name societies. The members of the society in St. Joseph's church are working up the idea.

Once or twice each year there is a great rally of Holy Name societies in the State. They are designed to solidify the members and to hold their enthusiasm for the aims of the organization at crusading heat. They help swell the membership, and keep the spirit of advancement alive. They are heartily approved by the church authorities, and the diocesan heads lend their assistance to making them impressive.

The rally would be held some time during the mild weather. It has been suggested—and there is a decided probability that the suggestion will be carried out—that the rally be held on the grounds of St. Mary's Convent, on the mountain which is now building. Bishop McFaul, of the Trenton Diocese, would be secured as the chief speaker. Societies from all this section of the State would take part with big delegations.

It was reported yesterday that the plans for a Holy Name demonstration in connection with the consecration of the convent, Rev. Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church, said this morning that there was nothing in that report.

"It is true that there has been some talk of a Holy Name rally," he said, "but even that is not in any definite shape. It may not take place this year. It might be held on the convent grounds, when it is held.

"As to the consecration of the convent," continued Father Miller, "nobody can say when that will take place with any certainty as to the date. The building will not be completed for some time yet. I do not believe the date for the laying of the cornerstone has been fixed yet. It will probably be set in the spring."

ROBERT A. MEEKER SPEAKS ON STATE ROAD BUILDING.

Addressed Joint Session of the Delaware Legislature at Dover Yesterday.

State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, of this city, appeared at a joint session of the Delaware legislature, at Dover, yesterday, in the interest of a movement to adopt State aid in the matter of road building. There were several members who did not favor the plan proposed of having this system inaugurated in the leading roads, as in New Jersey, and Mr. Meeker was invited to go to Dover and explain the methods in force in this State.

His statements were so convincing that he was able to bring the wavering members over with the majority, and while no vote was taken on the proposed measure a canvass showed that there are now enough votes to put it through. Prior to yesterday four votes were necessary to adopt the measure, while seven were six members wavering. The legislators were much pleased with Mr. Meeker's talk and expressed surprise over what they learned concerning the great progress made in road building in this State.

While at Dover Mr. Meeker met Joseph J. Wilkins, whose niece is the wife of Jabez Gilbert, of West Eighth street, and who is a member of the Delaware Legislature.

Mr. Hand Arranges Hunting Party.

Captain William H. Hand, of East Second street, has received from his nephew, Charles Hand, Major of Sanford, Florida, an account of an enjoyable hunting expedition led by him in Florida recently. He has been entertaining Frank A. Burrella, of New York, and he decided to organize an old-fashioned hunting party. The participants took a trip of seventy miles below Sanford into the wilds of the State. Those in the party were Charles Hand, Richard Calhoun, Tom Williams, Harry Wilson and Mr. Rossiter, of Sanford; George Davies and William Sellig, of Jacksonville, and Messrs. Bulsky and Burella, of New York. Deer, turkey, ducks, quail, squirrels, rabbits and even wild hog were on the bill of fare. Mayor Hand is the son of the late Henry Hand, who for many years resided in Plainfield.

Won Gold Medal Prize in Paris.

John Wynkoop, of the firm of Squires & Wynkoop, architects, of 44 Cortlandt street, New York, recently won a gold medal in Paris in competition for the plans of a hotel. He has been abroad for over a year and as a result of winning the open competition for the Paris prize, he is admitted to the highest class in the school of fine arts in Paris which bore his expenses for travelling and study in Italy. Afterward he will return to take up his work with the firm of which he is a member. Mr. Squires, his partner, resides on Watchung avenue, and is a son of the late Henry C. Squires.

ADVICE FOR COMMISSION

Corporation Counsel to Be Asked to Enlighten Municipal Water Problem.

ENCOUNTER OBSTACLES

Mr. Dumont Says That Big Bond Houses Do Not Care to Handle Securities Needed—Mr. Frost's Opinion.

Rights and remedies were the chief topics of discussion at the meeting of the water commission which held its first session since organizing in the Mayor's office, Friday night. John B. Dumont presided and other members present were George H. Frost, Joseph O. Osgood, William S. Tyler, Mayor N. E. Mead, Engineer Charles Carleton, Harry L. Hall, Secretary Leon R. Thurlow, and Stenographer George B. Wyan. Mayor Fisk was detained by illness.

After considerable discussion of several matters, the suggestion of Mr. Coddington that the legal committee get the opinion of Corporation Counsel Marsh and decide upon a plan of action was put in the form of a motion by Mr. Tyler and adopted. The committee will report the result of its conference to the next general meeting of the commission Friday night, March 15.

By way of information Mr. Dumont stated early in the meeting that upon inquiry among large bond houses in New York he learned that they do not care to negotiate bonds for the maintenance of water supplies in small cities—say of less than 25,000 population.

Then the question was raised by Mr. Tyler as to what rights the Union Water Company has in selling water outside of Plainfield. He expressed the opinion that the city should be deprived of water to the extent of having the supply go somewhere else.

Mr. Dumont said that no one knows how much water there is in Plainfield and how long it will last. As to the rates he thought those charged by the local water company were as reasonable as any and lower than in some cases. Mr. Frost agreed with him, as did also Mr. Osgood.

Mr. Dumont raised the question of charging for water at so much per faucet. He cited an instance of a boarding house, where there might be as many faucets as in his house, yet a far greater amount of water would be used in the boarding house than in his own where there might be only two or three in the family.

It seemed to me the opinion that by the merger of the Plainfield Water Supply Company into what is now known as the Union Water Company, the corporation had protected every interest, and the question was raised as to whether the consolidated company has the right to take water from Plainfield and sell it anywhere in the county or places adjacent thereto. It was hinted that the city might have the right to prevent this action.

It was also hinted that if the city should buy the present plant the water company would sink other wells on land adjoining the city's plant and pump water just the same. An interesting discussion then followed as to the probable exhaustion of the water supply in Plainfield. It is known and was so stated last night that the water company has sunk its wells twice since the plant was put in operation, the present depth being about twenty-five feet.

Mr. Frost stated that such a water supply as Plainfield has would suffer exhaustion by the constant pumping and that the first signs of such exhaustion would be found in the sinking of the wells to a greater depth. He added that no one but the company has the correct information as to the underground supplies here, but he had understood that there is a good margin yet. He said that the present supply is good and the pressure satisfactory. He stated further that the constant pumping shows that the water table is lowered and in the section of the town in which he lives there is a noticeable absence of water in the brooks, also fewer mosquitoes. It was Mr. Frost's opinion that there is sufficient water here to supply Plainfield forever if the supply is not sent to Elizabeth and other towns.

The members realized the importance of prompt action if anything is to be done in determining rights and remedies and Legislative action as well as the right of injunction were suggested.

Then followed a discussion as to the rights of the company under its original charter and its possible relationship to the Union Water Company with which it is now merged, with the result that Mr. Coddington engineered a conference between the local committee and Mr. Marsh. The commission has laid in its possession much valuable information collected from various sources, including data from Mr. Marsh which relates suggestions of the past history of the water company.

Spafford Robbins Dead.

Spafford F. Robbins, a former well known resident of Somerset county, died a few days ago at the home of his son, William O. Robbins, at Matamaras, Pike county, Pa., at the age of 68 years old. A widow and four sons and four daughters survive him.

M'ADOO MADE NEW BED FOR THE HUDSON RIVER

TUNNEL-BUILDER HAD TO ADOPT INGENIOUS DEVICE.

Chief Engineer Charles M. Jacobs Thursday made public a summary of the work carried out in the McAdoo system of tunnels and subways during the past year. At one point in the operations in the Hoboken-Christopher street tube under the Hudson it was found the river bottom was imperfect. So a new river bottom had to be specially made, one that would not sag on the tube and spoil it. To do that it was necessary to dump a large quantity of clay in the river, and let it settle upon the bed of the Hudson.

At another point in the work under the Hudson the men driving the huge steel shields struck a bed of clay they could not cut through without the clay oozing back around the edges of the shields. The clay was too soft. It was like trying to bore through water or soft mud. It was a perplexing problem. Chief Engineer Jacobs personally went down into the tunnel and came there. He sent for a powerful heating apparatus, and directed an intense heat ahead of the shield. In this way he baked the clay into brick, and then bored ahead through the solid mass of brick.

At still another point under the river, instead of the hard clay expected, the bottom rose in a succession of rocky peaks, which had to be blasted off, one by one, before the shield could get past them.

The two tubes between Hoboken and Morton street are completed under the river, and on the Hoboken side 834 feet of one approach and 923 feet of the other approach are dug. On the New York side the land tunnel west from the bank has been completed 1,490 feet, almost to a point under Jefferson Market, and the east bound subway is dug, also through Christopher street, 2,100 feet, to and up Sixth avenue as far as Tenth street.

Of the two Jersey shore tunnels, extending from Cortlandt street, New York, to a point under the Pennsylvania terminal, Jersey City, both are about three-fifths completed under the river, the north or west bound tube having come out 3,120 feet from the Jersey shore, and the south tube having been driven 2,218 feet toward New York. Over 104,000 cubic yards of material have been excavated and removed and 35,000 tons of cast-iron plates placed in the tubes as a lining.

At Jersey City the two tubes that are to connect the McAdoo terminal under the Pennsylvania station with the Erie and Lackawanna terminals have been dug from the Pennsylvania terminal about half way up to the Erie terminal; from the Hoboken end of the Hudson-Christopher-Morton tubes terminal shaft at Fifteenth street about half way down to the Erie terminal, and from the Fifteenth street shaft up to within two blocks of the Lackawanna terminal. West of the Pennsylvania terminal four tunnels are converging tunnels that go to Newark have been dug to Grove street. Nearly 5,000 feet of the tunnels on the Jersey side are dug.

The terminal stations are well under way.

The tunnels under the Hudson are to be in operation, it is promised, by September, 1907.

ANOTHER LECTURE BY PEARY HERE, AT THEATRE.

Y. M. C. A. Secretary Gets His Promise to Return, at Midnight Meeting.

Peary, the Arctic explorer, will deliver a second lecture in this city. He will appear at the New Plainfield Theatre, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The date of the lecture has not been decided. Secretary Robbie, of the Y. M. C. A., secured Commodore Peary's promise to return to this city at a midnight meeting in Peary's rooms at the Grand Union Hotel, New York. Mr. Robbie was unable to see the explorer-lecturer until the latter returned from a dinner at 12:30 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Robbie had an interesting talk with Commander Peary. The explorer said he was at a harder grind than ever attended a near-discovery of the pole. He spends his nights lecturing or roaring gently for influencers and gets up at six o'clock every morning to edit his manuscripts on the expedition.

The lecture will be different from the one delivered at the First M. E. church. Peary has material for a dozen different lectures, and illustrations to go with them.

SUCCESS OF THE SUPPER.

Trinity Church Affair Will Net About $200.

More than 200 guests were served by the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity church Friday, when the annual turkey supper closed. The supper proved to be a complete success; practically all the good things were disposed of and the net profit will be about $200.

The social atmosphere last night was as delightful as on the opening night. The service was as perfect, and the comment of the guests was rich in praise for the committees in charge. The musical features were repeated.

FRANK BANUSIK HANGED IN ESSEX COUNTY JAIL

PAID THE PENALTY FOR THE MURDER OF THOMAS HOFF A YEAR AGO.

Frank Banusik was hanged Thursday in the Essex County Jail at Newark. Before his death Banusik confessed the murder of Thomas Hoff at Bloomfield the night of January 6, 1906.

The hanging was successfully carried out so far as is possible under this discredited method of inflicting the death penalty. James Van Hise, who boasts that he has sent eighty murderers into eternity, was the hangman.

Van Hise adjusted the noose and arranged the drop with a view of breaking the neck of Banusik. His calculations went wrong, for although Banusik was shot fifteen feet into the air and then fell back twelve feet, the rebel failed to break his neck, and death resulted from the slower and brutal process of strangulation.

Although the arms and legs of the condemned murderer were securely pinioned by leather thongs he struggled violently for nearly five minute, and more than two minutes elapsed before the last twitch of the body was observed.

Four minutes after the drop fell the body was lowered and the physicians in official attendance examined the body. They found the heart beating and a distinct pulse. The body was permitted to dangle until seven minutes more had passed. Then another examination was made by County Physician McKenzie and his assistants. The pronounced life extinct. As a precaution, the body was kept in suspension for a full half hour.

It was reported that one of the physicians composing the sheriff's jury expressed the opinion that if he were given permission he would be able to resuscitate Banusik even after the body had been hanging thirty minutes. None of the medical men present would admit that he expressed such an opinion when inquiry was made later.

Banusik manifested no sign of weakness either in his cell or during the short route to the scaffold. He was not permitted to speak after he was in the position of the noose around his neck, and Van Hise sprung the trap while Father Ivarnow was still on his knees praying. The priest motioned to the hangman to wait until he finished his prayer, but when Van Hise's assistant seemed willing to grant the brief extension of time, the chief executioner stepped quickly to the side of the scaffold and released the drop. Officially the execution was conducted under the direction of Under Sheriff Charles M. Mason.

Banusik's crime was the result of his infatuation for the wife of Hoff, with whom he boarded in Bloomfield. One Sunday, Banusik induced Hoff to accompany him to a saloon in Newark and there got his victim drunk. On their way home, Banusik, Hoff helplessly intoxicated, went on the track of the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad. Then Banusik knocked Hoff senseless with a blow from a metal mallet. He placed the body of his victim across the railroad tracks and a freight train passed over it. The death was at first officially declared to be the result of an accident, but Banusik couldn't keep his tongue still. He bragged that he had killed Hoff and his arrest followed.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR SOMERVILLE CLUB.

Dramatic Entertainment to Assist in Getting Funds for Baseball Nine.

Somerville society turned out in great numbers Thursday to attend the benefit performance for the West End Athletic Association. Local talent held down the boards and gave a very fine entertainment. The great advance demand for seats augured well for the success of the affair. Two short plays were presented, "Noah's Ark, Jr.," and "The Boston Dip." Those who took the various parts were: Miss Bess Lindquist, Miss Eva Terry, H. W. Reusswig, Clarence E. Case, Judson Galpin, Miss Mary Mercier, Robert L. Day, Jr., Miss Anna Yard, Miss Hilda Jessamine Burd, Louis Noll, Jr., and Philip Gasell. Between the acts Captain "Jack" Norton, of the West Ends, recited with dramatic effect.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the introduction to the public of the Somerville Mandolin Orchestra. This is a new organization and consists of the following talent: Director and pianist, Miss Amelia Porter; violins, Mrs. H. W. Reusswig and Frank Gunston; first mandolins, Miss Wink, Clarence Case and Miss Hall; second mandolins, Miss Martha Whitenack and Arthur V. DeHart; guitar, Miss Whitenack.

The West Ends expect to place a very strong nine in the field the coming season and have succeeded in securing Bogart T. Conklin, who was so popular in the management of the team last year, to again take charge of affairs. Very few players have signed as yet, but there is plenty of promising material in sight.

The Conversation of Coin.

"Money talks," said the succinct person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "and some of it at present seems to be quite gossipy and scandalous in its remarks."—Washington Star.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS HEAR AN ALASKAN LECTURE

INTERESTING FACTS RELATED BY MEMBER OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

An illustrated lecture on Alaska was delivered before the students of the Plainfield H. S. Friday morning by Frank W. Stone, of the United States Geological Survey, who has spent the last five years in that territory. He graduated at Hamilton in the class of '99 with Lindsey Best, who is at the head of the scientific department in the High School.

Mr. Stone said that the popular idea of Alaska as a land abounding in snow and ice throughout the year, is a mistaken one. As Alaska is seven times the size of New Jersey, it has a varied climate, affording the production of fruits and flowers in the southern part during the summer months.

Speaking of the industries Mr. Stone dwelt at some length on the various methods of mining, washing dirt from gold being the most important. Basketry, he said, which is the mother of pottery, is also an important industry. The Standard Oil Company does an immense business there, he declared. Oil is shipped in five gallon tin cans. As building material is scarce these empty cans are filled with shore sand and used as cement block, which serve the purpose almost as well. The roofs are covered with the cans flattened out.

The greatest pests in Alaska, he said, are mosquitoes, the Yukon flats being the greatest breeding place for them in the world. Men wear veils and gloves and cover their horses with suits made of blankets, as a protection against them. The full grown and healthy Jersey mosquito, declared the speaker, can be compared only with the infant mosquito of Alaska.

Mr. Stone said that a bunch of strange horses who are put in a pack train for the first time will invariably arrange themselves in the same order every day. Alaska, he said, is the "doggiest" country in the world. He has counted forty-two on a short and narrow street. They lounge about on the walks at their own sweet will and are never molested because they are the chief beasts of burden in that country.

JOHN DOUD PASSES AWAY AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

END CAME AT THE HOME OF HIS PARENTS AT NOON TODAY.

Following an illness that has extended at intervals over many weeks, John Doud, the youngest son of former Recorder and Mrs. Thomas Doud, of the borough, died at the home of his parents on Duer street shortly after 12 Saturday noon. He had been in a serious condition for the past two weeks and his death was not unexpected. The illness began with a rheumatic affection that was followed by pneumonia. The latter trouble spread to the heart and brought about his demise.

The young man was about twenty-two years old and had a host of acquaintances in every part of the city and borough. He was employed at the local A. and P. Tea Company's store, where he held down a responsible position for his energy and ability. He was of a most genial and happy disposition and was very popular with all with whom he came in contact.

Beside his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. James R. Blair, of Duer street, and Mrs. Herbert McVoy, of Westfield; also two brothers, Mark and William Doud.

WORKS OF ART FOR P. H. S.

Class of 1905 Present Panels in High Relief Sculpture.

The plaster casts of Luca della Robbia's panels in high relief sculpture have been purchased for the Plainfield High School by the class of 1905 and set in the wall of the lower hallway on either side of the main entrance. According to custom each class presents the school with a work of art, and with this in view the graduating class of 1905 left $60 to be spent in the most advisable way when the new building was completed.

One panel represents seven choir boys singing from one book; the other, five choir boys singing from one scroll. They are set in frames of dark stained antique oak which makes a striking contrast to the white of the wall and the light color of the plaster casts, and sets them off to their best advantage.

Wannamassa's Annual Dinner.

The Wannamassa Boat Club will give its annual dinner at the Hotel Churchill, New York, Thursday night, February 21. The committee in charge consists of G. Harold White, Percy Phillips and Fred H. Marsh.

His Experience.

"After all," said the philosopher, "the real joy of a thing is in the anticipation of it."

"Well," replied Henpeck, "if there's any joy in matrimony that must be it."—Chicago Standard and Times.

COMING GREAT COUNCIL OF THE IMP'D O. R. M.

JUDGE NEWCORN TO MAKE REPORT FOR LEGISLATION COMMITTEE.

The great council of the Improved Order of Red Men will meet at Trenton, February 28 and March 1. Plainfield councils will be well represented. District Judge William Newcorn, who is a past great sachem of the order, will attend.

All past sachems have a voice and vote in the meeting. There will be a short session on the evening of February 27, but the real business of the council will not be reached until the meeting on the twenty-eighth.

Judge Newcorn is chairman of the special committee on State legislation. His report on the fate of the two measures advocated by the Red Men at the last session of the Legislature has been sent in. The committee succeeded in having the law making it a misdemeanor to wear the insignia of any secret order without right enacted, but Governor Stokes vetoed the other measure supported by the committee, that making it a misdemeanor for an association to use the name or ritual of a secret order.

In speaking to Judge Newcorn on the bill, the Governor said he did not see the necessity for it, because the courts have the power to stop name and ritual-stealing. Judge Newcorn pointed out that the committee realized the force of this belief of the order that the way to check the use of name and ritual should be made shorter than by suing out an injunction in the Court of Chancery, a proceeding that is necessary in every separate case. The Governor, however, held to his position that the bill was unnecessary, and vetoed it.

DELIGHTFUL FINALE TO CONCERT SERIES

LAST OF THE NUMBER PROVES TO BE OF EXCEPTIONALLY ORDER.

The concert at the Casino Friday the last of the McIntyre Chamber music series was a highly enjoyable and altogether brilliant musical and social occasion. The audience was large and unusually enthusiastic. The concert itself was of the high quality established by these affairs, and reflects much credit on the artists, effort and discrimination in taste as to quality and kind of music performed as heretofore shown in the programmes.

The noble and beautiful trio of Schubert's, the one of two which this master wrote, is considered by and considered by authorities to be one of the masterpieces in this particular class of composition, was the first number. After each part of which the performers were compelled to acknowledge the appreciating plaudits of the audience.

The singer of this occasion was Mrs. Viola Waterhouse, of New York, an artist who enjoys a fine reputation among the prominent artists of the metropolis. She sang in her first number Elsa's "Dream from "Lohen. grin" showing her beautiful voice to delightful advantage, and responded to an encore by giving Dr. Arne's "The Lass With the Delicate Air." She also sang a group of songs on the second half of the concert in a charming manner.

Mr. McIntyre was heard at this concert as soloist, giving Mozkowski's Caprice Espagnal with great delicacy and brilliance. His reception can leave no doubt as to the place he occupies as a favorite with his hearers. He was recalled several times and forced to respond to an encore. These concerts have been a source of delight to the music lovers of Plainfield and reflect great credit on the city that they are given with such unqualified appreciation and hearty support. Much thanks to Mr. McIntyre for his splendid efforts and artistic results. He will continue his concerts next year and we trust with ever growing success.

MARTIN PASSED AT 100.

Second Regiment Officer in Line for Another Advance.

Major William B. Martin, formerly of Company K, has passed his examination for his new post with 100 per cent., but owing to the illness of the official who draws up the papers, has not yet received his commission. Major Martin made a perfect average in military science, tactics, the school of the soldier to the evolution of the brigade, when examined by a board composed of Colonel Freeman, First Regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel Andrews, Fifth Regiment, and Lieutenant-Colonel Brinkerhoff, Fourth Regiment.

It seems probable that before the ink is dry on Major Martin's new commission he will have practically received another promotion. Should Colonel Collins be elected brigadier-general to succeed General Gilmore, Major Martin will become second senior major, and will command the Second Battalion.

Harry Hummer has been ill for several days.

W. L. McCauley has been ill with the grip.

WESTFIELD MAN WEDS MISS CORNELIA SAMPSON

QUIET CEREMONY PERFORMED AT THE BRIDE'S HOME LAST EVENING.

Miss Cornelia Clark Sampson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sampson, of East Fifth street, and John C. Ketcham, of Westfield, were married at 6 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Dr. John I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Westfield. The affair was a quiet one, being attended only by the relatives and a few intimate friends from New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Westfield and this city.

The parlor, where the ceremony was performed, was simply decorated with palms and potted plants. The bride and groom were unattended. After the ceremony congratulations were offered. Later in the evening the couple left to enjoy an extended wedding trip. As they departed from the house they were showered with rice and confetti. Upon their return they will reside in Westfield.

The bride is well known here, especially in musical circles. She was formerly a member of the choir at the First Baptist church, and since that time has been the soprano soloist at the Presbyterian church, North Plainfield, of which Mr. Ketcham is an elder and a prominent worker. He holds a responsible position with the American Exchange Bank, New York, and at Westfield is one of the leading citizens.

The bride received a large collection of costly and useful gifts from relatives and friends, including china, silver and goldware, furniture, linen and many other things.

APPROVE OF BRIDGES OVER THE HUDSON RIVER

COMMISSION SO REPORTS TO STATE LEGISLATURE.

New York, Feb. 9.—The New York Interstate Bridge Commission, consisting of McDougall Hawkes, Emanuel W. Bloomingdale and Alexander Shamberg, which, in conjunction with representatives from New Jersey, have been studying the problem of uniting this city and New Jersey by bridges, has completed its investigations and sent its report to the Legislature. The commission has had frequent conferences with the New Jersey representatives, Messrs. George T. Werts, Victor L. Mason and James F. Minturn.

The report says that there "appears to be no doubt whatever of the practicability of the construction of one or more bridges across the Hudson, so far as the engineering proposition is concerned," and that the cost of constructing a bridge and anchorages within the limits of Fourteenth and Seventy-second streets, Manhattan, would be more than $25,000,000, and might easily run to $35,000,000.

The commission is of the opinion that a Manhattan terminal between Fourteenth and Seventy-second streets "would best serve the purpose for a bridge which would come within the scope of the organic act of your commission, and that in view of the large space needed for terminals, if they were to include transcontinental and through passenger and freight traffic, the bridge should be primarily for vehicles, foot passengers and trolley lines, rather than for the trunk lines; the trolley lines including, however, a high power line erected and connecting all the trunk lines in New Jersey at one or more points in the rear of the bluff parallel to the Hudson, where such connections would be the most convenient, providing for such high power trolley line a suitable passenger station in Manhattan, where tickets could be sold and baggage checked for points on the trunk lines with which this trolley line would connect."

On the ground that the borough of Richmond is a part of the city of New York, the commission says it considers recommendations for bridging the ills within its jurisdiction, and says it finds after study of the question that there are two points at which State bridges would be, with great advantage both to Staten Island and New Jersey, connected by swing or lift drawbridges, with the New Jersey shore; the first point is from Port Richmond to Bergen Point, which, with a bridge to Manhattan across the Hudson from Hudson county, New Jersey, would furnish land communication from Staten Island to the centre of Greater New York; the second point is from the south end of Staten Island to Perth Amboy, Howland Hook, to Elizabethport, which would furnish at that point, Elizabeth, connections from the Staten Island water front to various trunk lines terminating on the New Jersey side of the Hudson, opposite Manhattan, as they pass through Elizabeth.

Pasteurize Their Milk.

Most Plainfielders have noticed the articles appearing in the metropolitan press about the purity of city milk supplies. One of the principal milk problem most favored seems to be pasteurization. Pasteurized milk can be obtained here of the Plainfield Milk and Cream Co., 191 North avenue.

CAUGHT BETWEEN TRAINS

Local Mail Carrier Trapped at North Ave. Station Barely Saves His Life.

SLIGHTLY INJURED

Blue Line Flyer Struck His Right Hand and Damaged His Truck.

Benjamin Urquhart, colored, who carries the mail between the post office and the North Avenue Station, narrowly escaped being killed at the station at 7:30 o'clock, Thursday. He had a truck loaded with mail and attempted to cross from the eastbound to the westbound tracks. At the time he noticed two trains approaching, eastbound, one a freight and the other a passenger, and he believed that the latter train was the one on which he was to put the mail. Instead it was a Royal Blue Line Flyer.

Being caught between the two trains, he quickly reversed his truck, heading it eastbound and as close to the freight tracks as possible. As the flyer went by at full speed, Urquhart threw his right hand back of him and it struck one of the coaches of the train severely spraining it. The flyer hit the truck, slightly damaging it, but the mail bags and contents were undisturbed.

Urquhart suffered a severe nervous shock, but he did not recover from the rest of the night. However, he remained at his post and carried the mail as usual. Friday morning he went to the hospital where the Xrays were put on the injured wrist and it was discovered that no bones were broken. His escape from fatal injury or instant death was remarkable.

Urquhart is the sub-contractor for carrying the mail, his brother, Edward Urquhart, holding the contract. The latter carries one of the mail routes to Warrenville and vicinity. He receives $800 a year for carrying the mail between the post offices and the railroad station, and has arrangements with his brother for doing the work.

In explaining the accident to Postmaster Bird, this morning, Urquhart said that his eyesight being poor, he was unable to tell at first that it was a flyer that was approaching instead of the train which carries the mail and he believed that he had plenty of time to cross the tracks. Fortunately, he was standing back of the truck of mail, for if he had been at the side of it he would have felt nothing could have saved him for it was that end that was struck by the flyer.

CHARITIES AID FAVORS CIVIL SERVICE MEASURE.

Approve the Bill Which Is Fathered By Senator Everett Colby.

The members of the States Charities Aid Association of New Jersey are working hard to secure the passage of the civil service bill fathered by State Senator Everett Colby which provides for the appointment of a commission by the Governor for the examination under civil service rules of all State and county employes.

Senator Colby's bill, which was introduced by Assemblyman Thompson, of Mercer county, provides for the appointment of a commission by the Chief Justice and removal for cause by the Governor. This transfer of jurisdiction is believed to be one of the principal objections against the Thompson bill by the State Charities Aid Association. In addition to this the bill is held objectionable because it provides for a civil service examination for all officials of State institutions and provides for an examination open to the choice of the people through a referendum vote in the case of county institutions, where civil service regulations are most needed.

Senator Colby's bill provides for the approval of the appointments by the Senate, and leaves their removal for cause in the hands of the Governor.

The State Charities Aid is looking now for the passage of a bill that will put the supervision of all children placed in this State by societies or individuals from other States into the hands of the Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, and provide for a bond of $1,000 from all such societies for their adherence to all of the laws of the State.

Thomas Had Local Relative.

Joseph Thomas, the engineer of the Pennsylvania's flagship, the Special Limited express, who was killed at Philadelphia Thursday night, was a brother-in-law to John J. Kline, of Chatham street. His home was in Newark and he was one of the highest paid engineers on the road. Thomas was leaning out of the cab when he was struck by a projection from the Diamond street bridge. He fell back lifeless and the train, one of the finest in the world, ran for a mile with no one to guide it. Thomas' death was discovered by the firemen when he noted that the engine did not slow down for the North Philadelphia station.

No date has been set for the institute postponed on account of the big storm. It will probably not be held until next month.

STOKES PRAISES COLBY

Governor Links His Name With That of Hughes as a Reformer.

AT ALUMNI DINNER

Everett Colby and His Cousin, Gardner Colby, Also Speak at Brown Graduates' Dinner.

Governor Stokes gave high praise to Senator Colby, and linked his name with that of Governor Hughes, of New York, as a leader in political reform in a speech delivered Monday night at the annual dinner of the Brown University Alumni Association of New York. New Jersey was well represented at the dinner, which was held at the Hotel Astor, Manhattan.

Besides Governor Edward C. Stokes, State Senator Everett Colby, of Essex; Senator Boyd Avis, of Gloucester; Senator William J. Bradley, of Camden; Senator Oliver Brown, of Monmouth; Senator Edward A. Stephenson, of Atlantic; Senator Bloomfield H. Minch, of Cumberland, president of the Senate; William Cloke, State Riparian Commissioner; Walter Edge, of Atlantic City; the Rev. Dr. B. W. Borrow, of the class of 1876, oldest graduate present, and the Rev. Dr. Edward H. McGill were among the New Jersey alumni present.

It was notable that three of the six set speeches were delivered by New Jersey alumni—Gov. Stokes, Senator Colby, and the latter's brother, Gardner Colby, '87, president of the New York Alumni Association and toastmaster of the dinner.

Governor Stokes said:

I bring you greetings from New Jersey. New Jersey's reputation is well known. She needs no encomiums. She is the mother of reformers, and like the Roman matron of old, she says of Governor Hughes and former Governor Higgins and Senator Colby. These are my jewels. The other States have found foundations that made possible the intellectual development of these apostles; one to redeem Rhode Island, another to elevate the political and business ethics of New York and the other to start a movement in my own State that has become known throughout the country and that is unfortunate only in the suggestion that there could be anything wrong in New Jersey.

Brown University, like the Standard Oil, is a Jersey product. One hundred and fifty years ago the Baptists founded at Hopewell, across the Hudson, a school for the education of pious young men—a race that has run out in the days of the gold college—not for politics, but for the ministry. In this school were trained, among others, the pastor of the First Baptist church in New York, James Warren, a predecessor of President Manning, and Benjamin Howell, United States Senator from Rhode Island, before the deadlocks became fashionable.

New Jersey was not granting charters in those days, and when refused in this case lost her this famous school that Rhode Island welcomed and that developed into Brown University, our beloved Ala Mater. New Jersey then learned the lesson that has since stood her in good stead, and has never ceased to issue charters from that hour.

It was in Hopewell, the site of this famous institution of learning, that there lived a prototype of Mr. Rockefeller in Elizabeth Hobbs, who gave $1,150, the largest individual sum ever given for the education of young men, and out of this fund aid was given to Charles Thompson, the valedictorian of the first graduating class of Rhode Island College, and so I come as a commonwealth that is the birthplace of Brown, another badge of distinction to my State.

The consistency of today is better trained than that of half a century ago. As soon as the baby can walk it has the kindergarten. The printing press tolls day and night for the diffusion of knowledge, and although it gives most of its columns to murder trials, it does chronicle the events of the day. Art makes pictures of men without clothes, or expense can see distant countries and look upon the faces of the world's greatest men.

In 1860 there were only forty secondary schools in this country; today we have over seventeen hundred high schools. The number of high school students has increased two and a half times within a decade and the number of college students doubled within a few years. In the last thirty years the number of women engaged in higher education has increased three hundred per cent.

Such a constituency is demanding a leadership other than mere political boss, and it is this intellectual spirit that has caused the awakening for which Governor Hughes and Governor Higgins and Senator Colby speak.

The problems of today are not emotional, but intellectual. The relation between capital and labor, the accumulation of wealth, the power of corporate enterprise, reform in administrative methods, are questions that require a trained leadership that shall settle them fearlessly, courageously, with prudence and without shock, and not leave them to be fanned to fury by demagogues who go to extremes and who intelligence the disease by killing the patient.

I have had some little to do with politics. I have heard anathemas hurled against the machine. I never yet knew the hour when the machine, if it was wrong, would not break under the force of intelligence when intelligence was awakened to its duty. Men want to do the right and they follow the trained leadership that in thinking makes them think and see the right.

LOCAL COP FIRST OVER CHINESE WALL

DR. CORBUSIER REFERS TO PATROLMAN DOBSON IN HIS LECTURE.

Dr. Harold Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, gave an illustrated lecture on "China and the Boxer Uprising," before the Men's Club, of the First Baptist church, Monday. The lecturer was a U. S. Army surgeon during the troubles in China, being attached to the 15th Infantry. He gave a brief history of the Boxer troubles from its inception, it being a movement on the part of a certain element of the Chinese against all foreigners. He described the depredations of the Boxers and how they were eventually stopped by the soldiers from other nations, especially those from this country.

Dr. Corbusier's views were taken by himself while in the service. They included pictures of the various troops, the arrival of Count von Waldesee, who was nominally in command of the troops, British-Chinese soldiers, which the speaker said made good fighters; Bengal Lancers, which made excellent cavalrymen. Pictures were also shown of troops on the march, the walled city, with its wall twenty-five miles long and forty feet high, over which the 14th Infantry scaled in Pekin with the Stars and Stripes. In this connection Dr. Corbusier mentioned the name of George Dobson, a patrolman in this city, who was a member of the 14th Infantry and was one of the first soldiers over the wall. Mr. Dobson was present at the lecture.

A great tribute was paid by the lecturer to General Chaffee, who was in charge of Uncle Sam's troops in China, and said that in many instances he prevented looting and other depredations on the part of the Chinese and other foreigners. Other pictures shown by Dr. Corbusier included scenes in the forbidden city, the interior of the hospitals, and many public and private buildings of interest. Some of these views were among the first to be taken.

In connection with the lecture, there were a number of musical selections on a Victor talking machine by Elston M. Leonard and Henry C. Brose.

HOPE Y. M. A. READY FOR RE-ORGANIZATION

CONSTITUTION ADOPTED AND NOMINATING COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

Over fifty of the young men active in the old Y. M. A. of Hope chapel met Saturday night at the chapel to start the work of reorganization. A substantial start was made, and the final moves in the reorganization of the Y. M. A. will be accomplished at another meeting on February 26.

A constitution was adopted, and Rev. L. R. Howard, Charles Vincent, James Penny, Wallace Morton and Benjamin Swan were appointed a committee to nominate officers. They will report on the twenty-sixth. City Judge W. N. Runyon, long president of the Y. M. A., was chairman of the meeting and G. E. Firstbrook, secretary.

The plan to bring the Suburban A. C. nine under the wing of the Y. M. A. was broached by Mr. Penny, who manages the Suburbans. The proposed union will be discussed at the coming meeting. It was practically decided that the Y. M. A. would have a team in the field, whether the Suburbans came in or not.

UNION BUILDING LOAN HAD A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

The annual meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held Monday at the offices on Park avenue. The secretary's report was read and showed the association to be in an excellent condition. The earnings for last year were eight per cent. and for the past seven years averaged about seven and a half per cent. The loans made during the year on real estate to its members was about $25,200, and on shares about $5,000. The total receipts of the association for the year were $18,827.40.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President; Dr. M. B. Long; vice president, Eugene Miller, Jr.; secretary, John V. E. Vanderhoef; treasurer, M. C. VanArsdale; attorney, Nelson Runyon; auditors, Harvey R. Thorn, Clarence B. Vail, Walter L. Long; directors, D. M. Runyon, A. L. Force, A. D. Edgar, William Harper and William H. Callahan.

The president apopinted the following committees: Finance, Charles H. Dunham, Samuel J. Robinson, Henry Liefke; appraisal, E. M. Laing, J. P. Emmons, J. C. Manning and J. F. MacDonald.

ATTACKS PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

(Continued from Page 1.)

In Letter Read in St. Joseph's Bishop Says American System is a Failure.

HE CALLS IT UNFAIR

Bishop James A. McFaul Alleges That Non-Catholics See Danger In Present School System.

The Right Rev. James A. McFaul, Roman Catholic Bishop of Trenton, sent a pastoral letter to Rev. Father Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, which was read Sunday to the congregation. A similar letter was read in all the churches of the diocese. In it he says that the present public school is a failure because it educates the head alone and not the heart. He denounces the present tax system as unfair and unconstitutional, because it taxes Catholics for maintenance of educational institutions which they cannot use without sacrificing their religious convictions.

The Bishop has been contending for years that the Catholic church was entitled to a division of the State school moneys for the Catholic parochial schools, and the denunciatory letter sent out for reading in Catholic churches means that some one of the legislators has a bill for partition of school moneys. Politicians have been expecting such a measure at this session, and are sorry that the church issue is about to be injected in the politics.

The Bishop says Catholics are beginning to see the evil resulting from not giving their children religious education, and he holds it almost confiscation of property to tax Catholics for the support of a public school system they cannot avail themselves of, he says:

"The State may furnish education providing it does not infringe on the parents. It may not, however, legislate unfairly and a system of public education which many of its citizens are unable conscientiously to patronize. The rule of the majority may be as unjust as that of the greatest despot. The minority, even as a minority in the Italian Parliament, has undeniable that the State breaks its law, for it does not supply sufficient class room, not only for the Catholics now in the parish schools, but for the non-Catholic population.

"The State compels her our children in the public schools, and we could not patronze them if there was. We cannot use a system which bark religious instruction. It is certainly unjust to tax people for what they cannot conscientiously use."

He goes on to show that the maintenance of parochial schools by the Catholics saves the nation $181,099,962.39 per year in its educational outlay, New Jersey's share of this being $9,614,043.83. Then he continues by declaring that the State should be willing to pay for the secular education Catholic children receive in the parochial schools, saying that no pay was expected for the religious part of the training. He adds: "Let our children be examined by the State authorities, and if they are receiving the proper secular education let the State pay for it."

He concludes by deploring the country's evident drift from things religious, says that many have failed to educate their children in religion, that many children do not go to Sunday school, and that because of this it is necessary that religion be taught in the schools if the country is to remain a Christian nation. He ends by saying:

"Many non-Catholic citizens see danger in the present school system. They perceive clearly that if the head alone is educated and the heart left fallow, injury is done both to the individual and to society."

JOHN DOUD'S FUNERAL.

Mass in St. Joseph's Church Attended by a Large Gathering.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the funeral of John McBain Doud was held in St. Joseph's church Tuesday. A solemn mass of requiem was said by Rev. Father Miller and during the service he took occasion to speak at some length on the life of the young man, strewn down just after he had attained his majority. The gathering in the church included many companions of his own age and the words of the priest struck a responsive chord in the hearts of all, his commendable traits being known to young and old.

The display of floral tributes was one of the largest ever seen in the church and revealed as much as anything else the high regard in which he was held. The set pieces included a large pillow from the borough fire department of which he was a call man; another from the employees of the A&P Tea Company and one from the young men who had been his closest associates.

The interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery and the pall bearers were six companions who had been named by him before his death. They were Grover Schuck, Hugh Ricketts, William Bechtle, Morris Brokaw, John McCullough and George Conover.

Lindsey Woolley, of the New Madison, who has been in Boston during the past week on business, has returned.

C., and how the franchises paid $6,000 a year. He touched on the water investigation briefly. The water company, he said, had assured him that every assistance in arriving at the truth of the subject would be afforded the commission; and that, in the event of municipal ownership seeming wise, no impediment would be thrown in the way of securing the plant.

Rev. Mr. Warner, the second speaker, pleaded for a trade school in this city. He spoke with a touch of humor, and was roundly applauded at frequent intervals. He said, in part:

"Several years ago while traveling in the far west I visited the Board of Trade rooms in the city of Los Angeles, California. The impression made upon me was of a vivid and lasting sort. Practically a whole building consisting of several spacious rooms was given over to a systematized collection and display of State products illustrative of the fertility of the soil used in the development and transportation of the raw materials. What Los Angeles as a city with her facilities for trade, her location and climate, her resources of various sorts, were all set forth as indicements to attract people and capital to locate in the city. The genuine pride of the westerner in booming his city, and the hustling powers characteristic of the men of the frontier were splendidly shown forth in the subject lessons set before one in the Board of Trade building.

Every good citizen loves his home town and is willing to give his time, means and influence for its betterment. The normal, natural man was ever thus. I think we are all of the Pictures, beautiful types of manhood and every man here is an enthusiastic partisan, conscious of Plainfield's advantages, anxious and desirous to see her progress. Our city—and when I say our city I mean Plainfield and North Plainfield, for the two communities have identical interests and the line dividing them is imaginary and of arbitrary enactment, rather than a physical barrier such as a stone wall would be,—our city has a whole host of such citizens who is largely in the hands of the business men, the progressive men of this community representing its trade interests and here tonight for its annual dinner. Such a Board of Trade and business as is represented here and such needs as are demanding beside eating its annual dinner and listening to speeches. It must be an alert, progressive body of men, large minded and of sound executive ability—considering the present with thankfulness which does not degenerate into a sloth which is content with a minimum amount of progress, and which looks forward with the eye of the seer into the future planning for the accomplishments of its ideals.

I consider myself one of you. In every way permit me to do my share. Without getting into politics, disclaiming party lines, may I comment briefly on a defect as it seems to me of the present division which sets Plainfield and North Plainfield apart as two separate boroughs. It is a moral defect and its existence is that of a stronger community strengthening and safeguarding its welfare at the expense of its weaker neighbor. In the question of the liquor traffic as a municipality, you have done the best possible service for the community; the regulation of the traffic, the high license and the hours have all been attended to admirably and at 11 o'clock every man who has not satisfied the craving for drink is turned out into the streets and not a few streets away and by actual count of persons interested from twelve to fifteen drunks are found in one saloon alone in North Plainfield and the night is made hideous and the young of the community and the women if they are compelled to venture somewhere from a place of amusement have to meet this. Those who know how our county laws are framed know full well how our borough as a municipality is powerless to deal with it. Give the commissioners of this township a stone fence so broad and high that the new stone spire of Holy Cross church shall only appear over the top of it. But it was not primarily of this subject that I wished to speak to you tonight, but to introduce along another line and I give them to you in the nature of suggestion.

For ten years past my work has taken me in large part among the boys and young men of the community in which I have been placed. I have shared their confidence and been qualified to study their activities. One very suggestive hint by way of observation has come to me, namely, that some boys and youths are fitted for a very considerable mental training some are not; some at the age of fifteen or sixteen, which he was a call man; another from the employees of the A&P Tea Company and one from the young men who had been his closest associates.

The interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery and the pall bearers were six companions who had been named by him before his death. They were Grover Schuck, Hugh Ricketts, William Bechtle, Morris Brokaw, John McCullough and George Conover.

Lindsey Woolley, of the New Madison, who has been in Boston during the past week on business, has returned.

found in the p lacing of a boy in a properly equipped trades' school.

How many great men have been some times connected with working at a trade! Moses was the son of a poor slave who worked at brick-making; David was a shepherd boy; Euripides was the son of a fruiterer; Virgil of a baker; Horace of a freed slave; Tamerlane of a shepherd; Ben Johnson a mason; Shakespeare of a butcher; Melanchthon, the great theologian of the Reformation, was an armorer; Luther the child of a poor miner; Fuller was a farm servant; Carye, the originator of the plan of translating the Bible into the language of the millions of Hindustan, was a shoemaker.

St. Paul showed that men could serve God in honest daily labor. Business is a school in which men are learning God's lessons of truth, honesty, fidelity, patience, or Satan's lessons of dishonesty, deceit, selfishness.

What a splendid thing for Plainfield, for New Jersey this Board of Trade should use its efforts to the establishing of such a school in our midst. Think of the young fellows in the various factories who would jump at the chance right here in Plainfield. Then Emerson's plea for Reformer well been justified, Reformer beautiful lines descriptive of the connection of work with character will surely come true. For several months past I have been looking carefully into the subject of trade schools and the bearing they might have on the boy problem." I find the tendency of modern educators is towards manual training as one of the means of culture and education. May I divide my subject very briefly into two heads. First, the need of trades schools; second, the part they play in the boy problem."

Listen to this:

Quotations.—At the Social Education Congress, in session in Boston, industrial training for boys was strongly advocated by Frederick W. Fish, president of the Bell Telephone Company; Frank A. Vanderlip, and others. Professor Charles R. Richards, of Columbia University, said that labor union rules limiting apprentices were so stringent that in a few years the death of now living skilled workmen, with no successors to take their places, would cause a scarcity which would interfere seriously with the manufacturing industries.

Here is a summing up from one of the sanest and oldest papers of the country, The Youth's Companion:

Investigation by the National Bureau of Labor shows that industries are suffering from a lack of trained workmen with an all-round knowledge of their trades. The apprentice system has all but disappeared, and its place has not yet been taken by an adequate trade school system. The extensive use of machinery and the subdivisions of labor have given rise to thousands of operatives who are confined to well-defined trades. Many of these occupations consist of a single simple operation. Production on a large scale has destroyed the personal relation between employer and employe, between master and apprentice. The employer may spend his life pulling a lever on one kind of machine and never know anything of the other processes in the factory. Employers are unwilling to take apprentices, journeymen are unwilling to instruct them, and ambitious boys have little or no opportunity to learn. The bureau believes that even under modern complex conditions, the old-fashioned apprenticeship would be very useful. It is a grave question how the foreman, the superintendent, the captain of industry of the future are to be made out of the boy of today.

"Now as to my second point. The part that such schools play in education may be found in the realization that man's labor, if working at a trade calls into being some of the highest capacities of a man and fits and trains his character. Work it is that demand precision, perseverance, inexhaustible patience, endurance, honest workmanship, will, determination, self-reliance combine to form the fine side of men? Patience, honesty, endurance, determination, courage and numberless other qualities, how they grow in a man and become fine by his work we little realize!

The commander of the fortunes Will furnish all we ought to ask,
Room to deny ourselves
A road to bring us daily nearer God."

"The toastmaster has told me to amuse you for about ten minutes," said Senator Coleman Crowther in opening; he obeyed the letter with unbounded success. He told stories that kept the diners alternately roaring and giggling. He closed with a tribute to the water front of Perth Amboy, to the American spirit in Perth Amboy's foreigners, and to Lincoln's memory.

Father Bogan followed Mr. Crowther. He said, in part:

"I am deeply grateful for the honor conferred upon me in asking me to say a word to this gathering. I am glad to see the spirit in which you give c ordial greeting to a Catholic priest. In the short time I have been here, I can say that your tokens of friendship have made me feel perfectly at home.

"I didn't know that I was to speak until this morning, but the inspiration has been such that preparation has not seemed necessary. I have heard tonight what should go down in the history of the Public Service Corporation as a classic and frank statement of what that company is striving to do. I feel a personal friendship toward President McCarter now, and I feel sure that the next time the meter in any house gets to living a fast life he will come up to the house with his wrench and fix it.

"I feel as I believe you feel, from the honest presentation of the difficulties of the P. S. C., that those difficulties will be straightened out. I believe the promises of the company are honestly made.

"A serious thought in conclusion. It may be out of place to champion the cause of our religion, but I can say that if our men are true to the teachings of the church they will uphold the honor and the dearest wishes of the city. I may say for the men of our parish that they will respond to every call of civic duty, without an appeal from their priests. They strive for the right, above class distinctions, and the principle is to be true to their convictions. This is not a challenge; this is merely a statement of what I feel as the spokesman of our men. If their boly faith be misunderstood, let those who question look to the annals of their teaching. Fellow citizens, give those men the benefit of the belief that they are honestly striving to attain the execution of honest convictions." (Sustained applause.)

Mr. Fisk did not read Major Briggs' regret until after Father Bogan's speech. Mr. Bowne was introduced as a substitute for the senator-elect. He told a string of stories under the head of "The Humorous Side of Life."

In bringing the dinner to a close Mr. Fisk reminded the diners that Plainfield would complete its fortieth year as a corporate city in 1909. "Hold yourselves in readiness," he said, "to join in the celebration we will hold at that time."

The dinner committee was made up of Mr. Fisk, Alexander Gilbert, B. F. Coriell, H. L. Saunders and H. W. Marshall. Among the guests were Frank Bergen, general counsel of the P. S. C., and Hamilton F. Kean, former chairman of the Republican County Committee.

TRIBUTES TO LINCOLN

(Continued from Page 1.)

is history teching by example.' There are a few heroic figures that stand out in bold relief and arrest the attention. I never let an anecdote of Napoleon pass unread; but most of the world's celebrities have been metamorphosed into demi-gods. Washington has become a steel engraving,' but Abraham Lincoln is flesh and blood, still with us and of us.

"A great writer has declared that wit and humor are the greatest attributes of the greatest minds; and Jouvenal, Servantes, Shakespeare and Lincoln may be called as witnesses to the truth of this assertion. It is but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous. Man is a pendulum between a smile and a tear; the ludicrous and the serious are closely related; and nowhere is this fact more forcibly illustrated than in the character of the great emancipator. In the oceanic depths of his nature there was a commingling of comedy and of tragedy, of lights and shades. He was L'Allegro, and Il Penseroso.

"From the cradle to the grave, his life was a struggle; a hand to hand fight. He never knew a truce or an armistice, and yet, in an atmosphere of hate, with a tempest of angry passions surging around him, and with threats upon his life, he could say, 'With malice toward none, with charity for all.' Words that breathe the spirit of Him who said, 'Father forgive them, for they know not what they do.'

"Here was a man who knew no resentment. In his early practice at the Circuit, Salmon P. Chase had treated him with utter contempt and had called him a fool and an angry baboon; he made him a member of his cabinet. Edwin M. Stanton had reviled and ridiculed him; he made him his war secretary. There was marvelous complacency in his humor. Stanton called him a fool, and an order upon the Secretary of War. When it was presented Stanton ignored it and denounced the President as a fool for signing it. The bearer returned to Stanton and reported, 'Mr. President, Stanton said I was a fool?' 'Yes, a fool.' 'Then,' said Lincoln, with a comical expression on his face, 'If Stanton said I was a—— fool, I must be one for he is nearly always right and generally says what he means. I will just step over and see Stanton.'

"In all things he was for peace. His advice to lawyers is worthy of lasting rememberance. It was this: 'Discourage litigation. Persuade your neighbors to compromise whenever you can. Point out to them how the nominal winner is often a real loser—in fees, expenses, and waste of time. As a peacemaker the lawyer has a superior opportunity of becoming a good man. There will always be enough business. Never stir up litigation. A worse man can scarcely be found than one who does this. Who can be more nearly a friend than he who habitually overhauls the register of deeds in search of defects in titles, whereon to stir up strife and put money in his pocket? A calling like this ought to be infused into the profession which should drive such men out of it.'

"As a story-teller, he stands alone and unrivalled. Listen to this; he is speaking of the taking of slavery into Kansas and Nebraska, and he said: 'If I found a poison snake crawling in the road, I'd kill it with the first thing I could grab, but if I found it in bed with my children, I'd be mighty careful how I touched it, for fear I'd make it bite the children. If I found it in bed with somebody else's children, I'd let them take care of it; but if I found somebody putting a whole batch of young snakes into an empty bed where mine, or anybody's children were going to sleep pretty soon, I'd stop him from doing it if I had to fight him.'

"The narrater said, 'I had heard Abe Lincoln say a hundred times, 'Boys, we must keep slavery out of the Territories, or it will spread everywhere.' but I never understood it till I heard him make that speech. Them snakes done the business for me. I am a Democrat, but I had to vote for 'Old Abe.' He was a consummate master of the whole range of wit and humor. It might be said that in him could be found the whypercing buffooneries of Aristrophanes, the matchless irony of Lucian; the stern and terrible satire of Juvenal; the fun-drunken extravagance of Rabelais; the self-pleased chicicle of Montaigne; the farcical caricature of Scarron; the glowing and sparkling verse of Dryden; the genial fun of Addison; the scoffing subtilities of Butler; the aerial merriment of Sterne; the cheery chaucy and stinging emphasis of Pope; the patient glitter of Congreve; the teasing mockery of Voltaire; the polished sharpness of Sheridan; the wise oddities of Sydney Smith; the wit, why, elusive, ethereal humor of Lamb; the short, sharp, flashing scorn of Macauley; the careless gaiety of Beranger; the humorous sadness of Hood; the summary of mirth by Whipple.

"A great modern orator in his youth purchased a ten volume set of oratory in order to get a single sentence from a single speech. The speech referred to was the one by Pericles on those who had died in the Peloponesian War, and the sentence was: 'Let no man for such a country then, that these men nobly resolving not to have it taken from them, fell fighting, and every one of their survivors may well be willing to suffer in its behalf.'

"This has been justly considered one of the finest passages in the annals of oratory. Let me give you a finer. I will venture to say, the finest extant. 'I am loath to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies, though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic cords of memory stretching from every battle field and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better Angels of our nature.' He was a born leader of men. One of his eulogists has aptly said: 'That the most experienced and accomplished generals of the day were made to stand aside; were sent to the rear; while this fantastic figure was led by unseen hands to the front and given the reins of power.

"It is immaterial whether you were for him or against him, for in the immaterial is the fact that during four years, carrying with them such a weight of responsibility as the world never witnessed before, he filled the vast space alloted to him in the eyes and actions of mankind, is to say that he is supposed of many qualities nowhere else could he have acquired the wisdom and the virtue.

"Where did Shakespeare get his genius? Where did Mozart get his music? Whose hand smote the lyre of the Scottish plowman, and stirred the soul of Burns? God! God! God! and God alone! And as surely as these were raised up by God, inspired by God, so was Abraham Lincoln; and a thousand years hence, no drama, no tragedy, no epic poem will be read by mankind with deeper or be followed by mankind with deeper feeling, than that which tells the story of his life and death.

"A friend who had known him in life, saw him as he lay in his coffin, and he said that death had not changed the homely ruggedness in any line. There was upon it the same sad look that it had worn always, though not so intensely sad as it had been in life. It was as if the spirit had come back to the poor body and left the wonderful sweet face, and given it an expression of gladness that he had finally gone where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

"There are two places I would like to visit in this world before I am called into the next. The one is that over which the Star of Bethlehem stood, the other is that where Abraham Lincoln first saw the light."

At the close of the addresses and at the suggestion of Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the church, a rising vote of thanks was given to the two speakers. The women who assisted in serving the dinner were Mrs. John S. Johnston, Mrs. Alvin E. Hoagland, Mrs. Freeman Boswell, Miss Miller, Mrs. Ricker. During the evening, Elmer D. Cutting sang several selections and told stories of a humorous nature.

Mrs. Edward C. Morse, of Jackson avenue, has about recovered from an attack of the grip.

Captain Stuart, of Grove street, is recovering from an illness that has detained him at home.

Mrs. William VanDuyne, of the borough, has returned from a visit with relatives at Somerville.

Miss Lackland, of St. Louis, has been the guest of Miss Georgiana Smith, of Belvidere avenue.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, has been visiting relatives at Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

Mrs. Lynas, of Chicago, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harwood Frost, of Woodland avenue, has returned.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1907. NO. 8.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

DISTRICT PLAN CERTAIN

Bill For New Method of Choosing Assemblymen will be Passed Next Week.

WITHOUT OPPOSITION

Technical Objection to Measure Changing Representation in Assembly Will Be Overcome.

Only the early adjournment yesterday of the Senate at Trenton, before there was time to ascertain from Attorney-General McCarter whether or not the Hillery concurrent resolution is in proper form as a legislative bill, retarded the passage of the measure supported by popular sentiment. It is certain to have unopposed passage in the upper House next Monday night, and it will probably go through the Assembly before the end of next week's sessions.

The question as to the proper form of the measure, which was raised by Senator J. Boyd Avis, of Gloucester, did not arise from any opposition of the South Jersey member, for in fact, Senator Avis is strongly in favor of the abolition of the present system of electing members of the Assembly by counties and is as desirous of having the proper constitutional means taken to bring about the establishment of districts as any member of the Legislature.

As Mr. Avis explained to the Senate, his anxiety to have the measure placed in proper form was born of his wish to avoid any further snags in the consummation of the plan.

The most convincing arguments in favor of the Assembly District plan are those that have been advanced along the lines of the messages of Gov. Stokes by Senators Hillery and Bradley. Mr. Hillery declared that the proposed change is desired by the people who have long demanded, as the courts have declared, the Assembly District method invalid because of its being in conflict with the organic law of the State, that the necessary means should be taken to secure the change under the constitution as at present worded.

"The desirability of the passage of this proposed amendment is so apparent," Senator Hillery said yesterday, "that it is not necessary at this day to discuss the reasons for it. The people understand it, they want it because they are convinced that it will provide the proper sort of representative government, and they should have it."

The Legislature should take the necessary steps to place this question of Assembly districts before the people," Senator Bradley said. "There seems to be a strong popular demand for a change from the present system and the people should have their way. If we have mistaken the sentiment of the voters of the State in respect to this question we may safely leave it to them, for no amendment can be had to the State Constitution until as a final act the people themselves vote on it. I know there are some skeptics who believe the people are sometimes in error, but I am not one of them. I believe we can safely trust the people to do what is best for them and for the State."

Mrs. Fisher's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Richard C. Fisher, who died Saturday night, was held at her late home on West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. F. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Mrs. Fisher was a member. The only son of the deceased, George B. Fisher, of Denver, Col., was unable to be present and one of his intimate friends, John P. Meakin, of Salt Lake City, who is spending a short time in the East, represented him at the service. He rendered a solo, "Sunshine of My Soul" and recited "The Guard of Gethsemane." Interment was made at Hillside. Beside the son, George B. Fisher, of Denver, Mrs. Fisher leaves four daughters, Mrs. J. P. Gifford, Mrs. J. H. Leggett, Mrs. Victor Christofferson and Miss Anna L. Fisher. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. J. M. Packer, of Norwich, Conn.

Traffic System Satisfactory.

The new traffic system inaugurated at the Eastbound railroad station by Mayor Fisk is working very satisfactorily. All carriages and autos approaching the station with or for passengers enter from Park avenue and leave by the way of Fourth street. In this way there is no confusion and the possibility of accidents is reduced to a minimum.

Discussing Fire Appropriation.

The Councilmanic Finance Committee met Monday night and transacted routine business. There was also a discussion regarding the appropriation to be asked for the coming year, but no decision was reached. Another meeting will be held between now and the first part of March to determine the amount to be asked for.

LARGE GATHERING AT FUNERAL OF P. A. EMMONS

SERVICES CONDUCTED BY MASONIC BRETHREN.

With a large gathering of Masonic brethren included in the attendance, the funeral of Peter A. Emmons, who was one of the most prominent members of the order in this section, was held at his late home on Jackson avenue, yesterday afternoon. The house was filled almost to crowding and beside the fraternal order representatives there were many New York business men and local officials present. Large delegations came from Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T.

The opening part of the service was conducted by Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, pastor of Grace M. E. church, after which the officers of Anchor lodge took charge. The full Masonic ritual was carried out by Worshipful Master J. Travis Sutphen, Past Worshipful Master L. A. VanAlstyne and Chaplain Dr. E. M. Rodman. The members of the lodge participated. Many handsome floral tributes were presented by the organizations.

Interment was made at Hillside cemetery and only the commitment service took place. The pall bearers were George Nicholson, John Melick and Edward Squires, all connected with the United States Shirt and Collar Company, of New York, which Mr. Emmons represented; P. J. Young, a New Brunswick merchant, and Mayor Newton B. Smalley and H. W. Marshall.

COLONIAL SUPPER SERVED BY WOMEN

HELD BY THE FIRST BAPTIST YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, and for the benefit of home and foreign missions, a colonial supper was held in the Sunday-school room last night. The room was elaborately decorated with American flags and draperies, while the several tables were garnished with flowers and small banquet lamps.

*One room was devoted to an ex*hibition of old articles, including quilts, warming pans, books and candle-sticks. These were owned by Miss Clara Denton, Mrs. Pauline Denton, Mrs. House and Miss Whitney, and they were in charge, explaining incidents in connection with them. One quilt exhibited was said to be 110 years old.

The general committee consisted of Miss Ada Fountain, president of the society; Mrs. Harold Serrell and Miss May Shreve. The decorating committee consisted of Miss Pauline Denton, Miss Kathryn Rocap, Miss Margaret Chambliss and Miss Bessie Flanders.

Those presiding at the various tables were Mrs. William A. Connor, Mrs. George A. Chapman, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, Miss Ida Yerkes, Mrs. John Peeke Reynolds, Mrs. Frank W. Stone, Mrs. Thomas McGee, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. George White and Mrs. Morris Zook. These women were attired in the costumes of the colonial days, as was also these waitresses: Miss Helen Robins, Miss Margaret Chambliss, Miss Bessie Flanders, Miss Marion Rocap, Miss Kathryn Rocap, Miss Elizabeth McGee, Miss Mabelle Cubberly, Miss Corine Tennyson, Miss Josephine Serrell, Miss Marguerite Serrell, Miss Alice Drake, Miss Elsa Drake, Miss Annie Kinsman, Miss Carrie Demler and Miss Ada Fountain. Those who assisted in the kitchen included Mrs. George H. Robins, Mrs. Stephen W. VanHorn, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, Mrs. S. W. Dunning, Miss Edna Van Cleef, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, Miss Abbie VanCleef, Mrs. David Sutphen.

There was also a candy table, Mrs. W. B. Vail, Miss Carolyn Coombs and Miss Gladys Leland being in charge. It is expected that the society will net $50 for missions.

Brooks Carson In the Hospital.

Brooks Carson, of Belmont avenue, who fell out of a tree last summer and broke several bones in his arm and hand, is now under treatment at a Jersey City hospital. At the time of the accident it was not thought that any bones were broken, but later an X-ray examination disclosed that there were and that in knitting they were out of shape. Now an effort is being made to straighten the bones.

Death of Thomas E. Morris.

Thomas E. Morris, a prominent citizen of Freehold, died at his home on Monday after an illness of two years. He is survived by a wife and three sons, Linden and Nathaniel, of New York, and Edward Morris, of this city.

REMEDIAL JURY MEASURE

As Passed by Senate, Bill Includes Union and Seven Other Counties.

TWO-WEEK JURIES

Bill Introduced by Colby—Plan to Investigate Stone Road Construction.

After agreeing to adjourn for the week at the close of a single session yesterday, the Senate at Trenton settled down to business and cleared the calendar before adjournment.

The Colby bill remedying the blunder in the jury act of last year, and providing for two-week juries in Essex and Hudson counties, was passed after being amended so as to include Passaic, Bergen, Camden, Mercer and Union counties.

Senator Robbins made his maiden speech in the Senate in defense of his joint resolution to investigate the increased cost of stone road construction. He submitted figures to show that a road built in Burlington some years ago, at a cost of $40,000, would now cost $75,000, due to the fact that the cost of stone had abnormally increased, due, he believed, to the result of a combine which made the State and counties pay higher prices for stone than individuals.

Senator Lee, as a dealer in stone, said there was no necessity for the investigation, and remarked that it was increased wages for labor which raised the price. Senator Slizer told of exorbitant charges made in his county, and the resolution passed unanimously.

Other bills passed were the Plummer act, creating townships as a fire protection district, and the Frelinghuysen bill giving trustees appointed in Chancery the same control over estates as executors under a bill.

Fifteen bills were introduced in the Senate today, including four election reform bills, by Mr. Colby, similar to bills introduced last year. A joint resolution was introduced providing for the removal of the remains of the Senator and Philip Kearny to the National Cemetery at Arlington.

MAYOR FINANCE HEAD OF COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Andrew McCardell Chairman of Republican Outing Committee.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith, Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, Councilman Herbert Buxton, Arthur Murphy and Robert E. Hall attended the meeting of the Union County Republican Executive Committee at Elizabeth last night. The most important business considered was the appointment of the various committees for the coming year, as follows:

Executive—Hamilton F. Kean, Robert J. Kirkland, Charles M. Codding, William H. Lawrence, James White, Finance—Charles J. Fink, W. B. Parrot, Robert E. Hall, H. S. Fullerton, Dr. F. W. Westcott. Speakers and Halls—Corra N. Williams, Duncan W. Taylor, John Farrell, O. R. Graham, Joseph Cahill. Outing—Andrew McCardell, Edward Bauer, Herbert Buxton, S. Russling Ryno, W. A. Benbridge, Harry Pflug.

Immediately after the regular meeting, the outing committee met and decided to hold the annual outing at Winward's Grove on Saturday, August 10, and the Steamer Isabelle has been engaged for the occasion.

NICARAGUA'S WAR.

Interest In It Here Because of Alfonso Zelaya.

Plainfielders have more than a general interest in the war that Nicaragua is waging against Honduras. President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, who is in command of the Nicaraguan troops, is the father of Alfonso Zelaya, for two years a student at Cedarcroft school and well known about town. General Zelaya's ambition is said to be back of the conflict.

It is declared that the ambition of President Zelaya is to establish a union of the States of Central America. His plan is to replace the present Presidents of these States by others favoring his project. He is trying to begin with Honduras, which is considered the weakest of these countries. General Policarpo Bonilla, who was at one time President of Honduras and who led the recent revolution in that country, is now in Costa Rica, presumably for the purpose of persuading that gov*ernment to remain neutral.* The government of Costa Rica is enforcing the existing statutes to prevent the arming and organizing of Nicaraguan "emigrados," or refugees, who are living in Costa Rica.

Business in both Honduras and Nicaragua is paralyzed. The recruiting of men is causing heavy losses to the coffee planters. Last week Honduras received a large consignment of war material.

MR. ACKERMAN SEEKS TO ESTABLISH CO. HOSPITALS

ANOTHER MEASURE PROVIDES FOR PAY OF PATIENTS IN ASYLUM.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman introduced two measures yesterday, the first one providing that counties not having county hospitals may construct the same at a cost not exceeding $20,000 the money to be appropriated in the usual way.

The second measure amends the law regulating the admittance of pa*tients into lunane asylums, so that* relatives able to pay for the maintenance of patients will be required to do so, and preventing the confine*ment in asylums of persons who are* not insane.

Senator Freilinghuysen introduced a bill yesterday, which provides for the appropriation of $15,000 for the expenses of a detail from the National Guard to be appointed to represent the State at the dedication of the McClellan Monument in Washington on May 2, 1907.

SENATOR'S DINNER A GREAT SUCCESS

F. O. BRIGGS AND D. S. VOORHEES ADMIRABLE HOSTS.

Everybody who is somebody in New Jersey politics, from Governor Edward C. Stokes to the youngest newspaper correspondent, was at the Trenton House, at Trenton, yesterday, enjoying the hospitality meted out by Senator-elect Frank O. Briggs and Transit S. Voorhees, his successor as State Treasurer.

Good fellowship and congratulations for the two hosts were the order of the day, while the guests partook of the good things that took up every inch of the surface of the tables, which bore salads, lobster included, and seafood—in fact all that the lusty appetites of the legislators could demand was there.

Senator-elect Briggs and Treasurer-elect Voorhees were the centre of attraction. All the guests had cordial congratulations for them, and they themselves felt felicitated to know that they had had a joint reception which Congressmen present declared had discounted White House functions.

Governor Stokes was one of the first arrivals at the dinner, but he remained only half an hour after tendering his congratulations, as stress of official business prevented a longer stay.

Later in the afternoon, a delegation of legislators, headed by Senator John Hinchliffe, with other Democrats and Republicans, captured the Senator-elect and subjected him to a very pleasant experience. Placing a wreath of roses on his head, they formed a ring about him and sang "Auld Lang Syne" and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," as he modestly bowed his acknowledgements.

"Uncle Dan" Voorhees was not forgotten, either, in the round of pleasantries. Captain Lovett, the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, also wore a crown of green after some of his friends had decamped with his brand new tile. It was late in the afternoon when the guest dispersed.

REV. DR. CHAMBLISS WILL SPEAK AT DEDICATION.

New Baptist Edifice Will Be the Scene of Three Days' Celebration.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will assist in the dedication of the new edifice of the First Baptist church at Rahway, which will be observed with elaborate services, beginning on Sunday. He will speak at the service to be held Sunday night. In the morning Rev. Dr. T. E. Vassar, of Elizabeth, will preach and the dedication will take place in the afternoon, when Rev. W. G. Fennell, of Newark, will speak.

On Monday night there will be ad*dresses by the pastors of Rahway* and former pastors of the church; Tuesday night will be found Miles, of Summit, and Wednesday night, Rev. Dr. Henry M. Sanders, of New York, will speak. It is expected that the Baptist churches of this city will be represented at the several services.

Pythians at Grand Lodge Session.

The annual Grand Lodge session of the Knights of Pythias began at Trenton today and will be continued tomorrow. The two local lodges are represented by Asa D. Pope, Philip Jahn, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Elmer D. Cutting and Morgan Turton for Perseverance, No. 74, and Harry Werner for Unity, No. 102. The election of Grand Lodge officers and other business will be transacted.

Miss Etta Raybert, of East Second street, is visiting Mrs. Emma Starr Kirch at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson.

A TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT

To Be Shown Here For A Week Beginning March 4.

MODEL TENT ADDED

Store In Stirling Building Will Be the Scene of the Exhibit—Trained Nurse In Charge.

The exhibit of the method to be used in handling tuberculosis cases prepared by the State Board of Health for display in cities and towns all over the State will be shown here the week beginning March 4. The Tuberculosis Society, of this city, organized last year to take part in the general campaign against the disease, will meet tonight to arrange for the exhibit.

A model of the tent used in the experiment conducted on the Casino grounds with the Michael Muldowney case will be shown. It will be made a regular part of the exhibit. Besides the tent will be shown apparatus, schedules of diet, arrangements for blanketing the patient and literature. A trained nurse will be in charge to explain the exhibit which will be installed in the vacant store in the Stirling building, Park avenue. Health Officer Thurlow, who is secretary of the Tuberculosis Society, will assist the nurse in carrying on the exhibit.

The display is part of an organized crusade of tuberculosis educa*tion that is being carried on by the* State health board. The Tuberculosis Society of this city, of which Dr. B. Vail Hedges is president, is actively helping in the work.

MR. AND MRS. C. EGEL FIFTY YEARS MARRIED.

Surrounded by Their Eight Children Couple Celebrate Event.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Egel, of Lin*coln, celebrated the fiftieth anniver*sary of their wedding at their home, last night. Relatives and friends to the number of fifty gathered, including five sons and three daughters. There was an evening of general sociability, interspersed with piano selections by Miss vonMindern, of New Market; vical solos by the Misses Margaret and Emma Egel, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Egel.

The couple received a large collection of gifts, including cut-glass, goldware, money and many other useful articles. They were also the recipients of hearty congratulations from all.

Mr. Egel is a native of Germany. He came to this country when a young man, locating near his present place of residence and was married there. He acquired considerable property, porpions of which he afterward sold to the New Jersey Central, the Lehigh Valley Railroad and the Standard Oil Company for the extension of its pipe line from the oil fields.

The couple have eight children, five sons, Dr. Chauncey Egel, of Westfield; Fred and John Egel, of Philadelphia; Bernie Egel, of this city; Paul Egel, of Bound Brook; the Misses Margaret and Emma Egel, of Lincoln, and a married daughter living in Newark. Mr. Egel has only one brother, Fred Egel, of Somerset street. All of the children attended the celebration.

Fencing Class.

The Camera club voted to organize a fencing class at a meeting on Monday night. Lawyer L. A. Clement, who is an expert with the foils, will have charge of the class to begin with. As the fencers become familiar with the game a professional fencing master will be retained to carry them on into the expert moves.

Powlison Plans Meetings.

The noonday shop meetings which are now being held in New York under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. are under the direction of Charles F. Powlison, formerly of Plainfield, and now religious secretary of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association. The meetings are having great success.

Seegar's Trial Off.

George Seegar was to have been put on trial in the Union County Court today on the charge of larceny and felonious assault committed at the jewelry store of Leo Blonin on West Front street last November, but through his counsel, S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., the case was put off for the term.

Will Probated.

The will of Catherine Carney, who lived in Dunellen, was admitted to probate in New Brunswick yesterday. Dr. A. H. Dundon is executor. F. J. Blatz is counsel for the estate.

Oysters at Mt. Pleasant.

An oyster supper will be held at the Mt. Pleasant chapel, Friday night. The committee has mapped out an enjoyable programme.

CENTRAL OFFICIALS INSPECT STATIONS

VISITED PLAINFIELD YESTERDAY—GOING OVER ENTIRE ROAD.

Officials of the New Jersey Central are making a tour of inspection over the entire road, this week, traveling in the special car "Central" drawn by the observation engine No. 900. Those in the party include General Superintendent C. W. Huntington, General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope, Chief Engineer Joseph O. Osgood, Division Superintendent E. E. Kerwin, Passenger Trainmaster Chas. H. English, General Baggage Agent F. B. Greenwalt, General Advertising Agent Arthur Tomalin, District Passenger Agent L. E. Whyte, of Asbury Park; District Passenger Agent C. K. Armstrong, of Newark, and Superintendent of Telegraph F. H. Sherman, of this city.

All the stations from Communipaw to Perth Amboy were visited yesterday, including those on the Bound shore branch to Chrome and the South Branch from Somerville to Flemington. Other stations on the main line visited yesterday afternoon were Bound Brook, Dunellen, Finderne and Garwood. The stations from Elizabeth to Plainfield were inspected this morning and the officials *then visited the stations west of Som*erville, including the High Bridge branch. They will probably stop tonight at Phillipsburg and tomorrow and Friday will be spent in going over the company's lines in Pennsylvania. A trip will then be made over the New Jersey Southern Division.

MANY WOMEN MEET TO DISCUSS Y. W. C. A.

MISS SNIDER EXPLAINS PROPOSITION TO GATHERING AT WARREN CHAPEL.

In the interest of the movement to organize a Young Women's Christian Association in Plainfield, a public meeting was held in Warren chapel last night. There was a large attendance of women, including many of wealth and influence who will lend their support and assistance in the matter. Miss Snider, one of the traveling secretaries of the association, has been in town several days calling on women who are likely to be interested in the formation of an association. She was present at the meeting and spoke at some length.

Rev J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, was in charge of the meeting and after conducting the opening exercises, he introduced Miss Snider. She told of the objects of the association, which are for the social and physical development of its members and instruction in millinery, the arts, dressmaking, bookkeeping, stenography and other commercial courses. Of course, Miss Snider explained, the association is chiefly intended for the advancement of religious principles, Bible study. There are two classes of membership—active and associate. The active members are expected to be Christians and naturally identified with some church. The associate members need not be Christians, and they have all privileges except that of voting. There is also a junior department for girls under fifteen years. Their dues are fifty cents a year, while the dues for others are $1 a year, with extra fees for membership in the commercial and industrial classes and gymnasium.

Miss Snider explained that she had just organized an association at Camden with a membership of 600. A property was purchased and about $3,300 was raised, $1,000 of which was paid on the place and the balance put in the treasury. She said that she did not favor starting an association with less than 300 members. After her talk Miss Snider answered a number of questions put to her by those particularly interested. A conference will be held at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, "Sunnyside," East Front street, on Thursday afternoon, February 28, at 4 o'clock, when Miss Snider and others will speak.

Endorse Local Option Bill.

*The Men's Club of the Congrega*tional church at its regular meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 5, passed the following resolution: "Resolved, That we endorse the Local Option bill to be introduced into the Legislature by the Anti-Saloon League, and urge their representatives to give the same their careful attention and strong support. It is further resolved, that the secretary, Sidney Dunning, forward copies of this resolution to the members representing Union and Somerset counties."

—To enjoy breakfast a cup of good coffee is essential. If its bought of Neuman Brothers its sure to be good. Only the best grades sold at this store.

POLICE BOARD AGREES ON NEW APPOINTMENTS

Chris. Frederickson For Captain, John Flynn, Sergeant, and Herbert Overbaugh for Detective-Sergeant.

HIGGINS, ROUNDSMAN

Such Is the State Made At Board Meeting—Common Council to Act On Monday Night.

When the Common Council meets on Monday night it will receive a communication from Mayor Charles J. Fisk containing a list of nominations for police department promotions. These are the lucky men slated:

For captain, Sergeant Christian Frederickson.

For sergeant, Roundsman John Flynn.

For detective-sergeant, Patrolman Overbaugh.

For roundsman, Patrolman Morris Higgins.

These appointments were agreed upon at a meeting of the Police Board on Monday night. After wrestling with the subject for fully two hours and a half, the board in session at the mayor's office, arranged with Mr. Fisk, who by virtue of his office is a member of that body, that these nominations should be passed up to the city fathers for confirmation.

The original list presented to the Common Council and then withdrawn by the Mayor was made up in this fashion: Captain, Christian Frederickson; sergeant, John Flynn; detective-sergeant, Florence J. McCarthy. It developed at the meeting that the appointments had not come before the Police Board for approval, and at the request of the Mayor, Councilman Frank Randolph obtained permission to withdrawn them.

A Daily Press man attempted to interview Mayor Fisk last night regarding the action of the Board in reviving the list, but the Mayor refused to discuss the subject. "I have absolutely nothing to say about this matter," he declared. "The fact is I am considering the matter and will make up my mind this week, but I will have nothing whatever to say until after I have communicated with the Common Council. I will neither confirm nor deny any question you may put to me."

BIG PRAYER MEETING.

Interdenominational Gathering Planned by Congregational Mission Association.

An interdenominational prayer meeting was planned at the monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Association of the Congregational church yesterday afternoon. It will be held at the Congregational church February 28. Mrs. Curtis Bates will lead. The association has invited all the home missionary societies in the city to take part in it.

A paper by Mrs. J. M. Whiton on Porto Rico and the Congregational missions there was read by Mrs. C. L. Goodrich. Mrs. Whiton is attending a missionary conference in Washington. Mrs. Goodrich has travelled through Porto Rico.

The meeting was marked by a solo by Mrs. Thomas McDonald. Refreshments were served.

Moving Picture Show.

On Washington's Birthday, afternoon only, at 3:30 o'clock, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A., D. W. Robertson's moving picture company will appear at the Y. M. C. A. hall with the best programme that has ever been given. All the pictures will be entirely new. In addition screaming comedy entitled "Society." By request "Robin," the comedy juggler, will also appear again. Seats now on sale at Hodge's drug store and at Y. M. C. A.

Public Library Class.

In another column appears an advertisement for Public Library helpers. It has been the custom for some years for the Public Library to train its own helpers, thus giving an excellent opportunity of learning approved library methods, etc., and later, when vacancy arises, of entering the library as a member of the regular staff.

VIEWS OF A SOCIALIST

John R. McMahon, Novelist and Dramatist, Warns Capitalist Leaders.

CALLS 'EM OSTRICHES

Tells of the Social Revolution in an Interview Secured By a Daily Press Reporter.

John R. McMahon, the novelist and dramatic writer, who has been living in Scotch Plains for the last year, moved to New York last week, in order to be convenient to the publication of his story, "Toilers and Idlers," in book form. The novel has been running serially in Wilshire's Magazine, has attracted a great deal of attention, and may be published in foreign languages, as well as in English. The Wilshire Book Company will bring it out in the fall. The story has an iron foundry for its industrial background, and contrasts the life of rich and poor in the metropolis.

Mr. McMahon has lived a varied life. He was born 31 years ago in Roy Bareilly, India, of American parents. After going to school in a Western New York seminary he broke loose and learned type-setting. He set type for a while in metropolitan offices and became a member of Typographical Union No. 6. In the last dozen years he has been a New York newspaper man, a farmer, a soldier, a dramatist and magazine story writer. Several months ago, for weeks, a foreign and an East Side residence account for the realistic quality of "Toilers and Idlers." In 1898 Mr. McMahon enlisted as a private in the 202d Regiment, N. Y. Volunteers, and spent some months in Cuba on garrison duty. He went to Scotch Plains to live four years ago and remained there a year and a half. He returned to New York, but responded to the lure of the wilds again a year ago. He has a comfortable home in a comfortable old house, that dates from Colonial times, and leaves it with an artist's regret.

Mr. McMahon's wife is also a writer of note. Her pen name is Margherita Arlina Hamm. She has been war correspondent, traveller, author and nurse. She reported the Chinese-Japanese war for several American papers, and did corresponding for New York and Chicago papers in the Spanish-American war. When she wasn't writing in Cuba, she was at work as a nurse, and acted as inspector of supplies for the government. She is the author of several books, is a member of scientific societies among them the Royal Geographical Society, of London. She has been around the world a number of times. A series of stories laid in the Egyptian quarter of New York by her is now running in The Century Magazine. Mrs. McMahon is in accord with her husband's views on Socialism. Which means that she is a thoroughgoing Socialist. Mr. McMahon is so strongly imbued with Socialist views that his descriptive and propaganda drips from his pen whenever he tips it toward a virgin sheet of paper.

A Daily Press reporter met the novelist Wednesday afternoon and asked him if he would mind giving a few of his Socialistic thoughts for publication. Mr. McMahon took a deep breath and spoke from his heart:

"The only live literature today is Socialistic, and the only writers who amount to anything are compelled to use the Socialistic idea in their work. The individual themes were long ago threadbare. Such subjects as those of individualism are almost as old as romances of chivalry. The people today are thirsting for true stories about their lives from the Socialist point of view, and to a limited extent they are getting them. Socialistic art is essentially truthful and realistic; belongs to the present and future, and wastes little time over the past. The great realistic writers of Europe, and especially Russia, are naturally Socialistic. Take Sinclair, in this country, Zola, in France, and Gorky, in Russia. Tolstoy, if he were a little younger, would be the greatest Socialist of them all.

"It is quite easy to see the beneficial effects of even amateur and Utopian Socialism upon writers. But the individualistic writer has practically nothing to say, stands on no scientific truth, is inspired by no great hope, and is condemned to be a mere manufacturer of commercial wares. He lacks vitality, or what life he possesses needs to be discovered by the microscope. He deceives himself into thinking that his negative attitude, his word juggling, and his detail of trifling corners of life, is Art.

"It is a monumental error that a writer has nothing to do with life and must only observe it. He should be conscious of the fact that, while doing so, he is the paid register of the powers that be. It's a fact that writers of that sort are, today, in the position of the old court jesters. They write and sing for 'art's sake,' and take the pay that the bourgeoise that employs them gives for their pranks of vocabulary. They have become merely the amusement purveyors of the monied classes.

"It is very unfortunate that our masters are keeping the people in such dense ignorance on the subject of Socialism, which will soon overshadow every other question and issue the world over. We believe that Socialism is bound to come, and whether it comes peacefully or otherwise will depend upon the education of the people in regard to it. The ostrich-like policy of the capitalists and their collegiate and other retainers may someday involve a bitter penalty. A great scientific theory, a deep philosophy, a world-movement, is scarcely at all understood by our most eminent men, and they seem to make every effort to keep the masses from enlightening themselves. They seem to think that the laws of nature will cease operation if they are only well misrepresented or ignored. Of course, hunger and suffering are the great educators of the people, and the Socialistic movement does not depend for its success on the patronage of eminent men. The eminent men and their retainers can only make the transition painful and difficult, instead of easy and beneficient.

"As a slight instance of the ostrich policy, I might mention the Plainfield Library. As a member of Typographical Union No. 6 in the last dozen years he has been a New York newspaper man, a farmer, a soldier, a dramatist and magazine story writer. Several months ago, for weeks, a foreign and an East Side residence account for the realistic quality of "Toilers and Idlers." In 1898 Mr. McMahon enlisted as a private in the 202d Regiment, N. Y. Volunteers, and spent some months in Cuba on garrison duty. He went to Scotch Plains to live four years ago and remained there a year and a half. He returned to New York, but responded to the lure of the wilds again a year ago. He has a comfortable home in a comfortable old house, that dates from Colonial times, and leaves it with an artist's regret.

Mr. McMahon's wife is also a writer of note. Her pen name is Margherita Arlina Hamm. She has been war correspondent, traveller, author and nurse. She reported the Chinese-Japanese war for several American papers, and did corresponding for New York and Chicago papers in the Spanish-American war. When she wasn't writing in Cuba, she was at work as a nurse, and acted as inspector of supplies for the government. She is the author of several books, is a member of scientific societies among them the Royal Geographical Society, of London. She has been around the world a number of times. A series of stories laid in the Egyptian quarter of New York by her is now running in The Century Magazine. Mrs. McMahon is in accord with her husband's views on Socialism. Which means that she is a thoroughgoing Socialist. Mr. McMahon is so strongly imbued with Socialist views that his descriptive and propaganda drips from his pen whenever he tips it toward a virgin sheet of paper.

A Daily Press reporter met the novelist Wednesday afternoon and asked him if he would mind giving a few of his Socialistic thoughts for publication. Mr. McMahon took a deep breath and spoke from his heart:

"The only live literature today is Socialistic, and the only writers who amount to anything are compelled to use the Socialistic idea in their work. The individual themes were long ago threadbare. Such subjects as those of individualism are almost as old as romances of chivalry. The people today are thirsting for true stories about their lives from the Socialist point of view, and to a limited extent they are getting them. Socialistic art is essentially truthful and realistic; belongs to the present and future, and wastes little time over the past. The great realistic writers of Europe, and especially Russia, are naturally Socialistic. Take Sinclair, in this country, Zola, in France, and Gorky, in Russia. Tolstoy, if he were a little younger, would be the greatest Socialist of them all.

"It is quite easy to see the beneficial effects of even amateur and Utopian Socialism upon writers. But the individualistic writer has practically nothing to say, stands on no scientific truth, is inspired by no great hope, and is condemned to be a mere manufacturer of commercial wares. He lacks vitality, or what life he possesses needs to be discovered by the microscope. He deceives himself into thinking that his negative attitude, his word juggling, and his detail of trifling corners of life, is Art.

"It is a monumental error that a writer has nothing to do with life and must only observe it. He should be conscious of the fact that, while doing so, he is the paid register of the powers that be. It's a fact that writers of that sort are, today, in the position of the old court jesters. They write and sing for 'art's sake,' and take the pay that the bourgeoise that employs them gives for their pranks of vocabulary. They have become merely the amusement purveyors of the monied classes.

"It is very unfortunate that our masters are keeping the people in such dense ignorance on the subject of Socialism, which will soon overshadow every other question and issue

PLAN A MACADAM ROAD

If Approved by State Commission, Somerset Will Build Needed Thoroughfare.

N.B. SMALLEY'S EFFORTS

Borough Mayor Urges Freeholders to Construct Road Through Warren and North Plainfield Townships.

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders held its regular February meeting Wednesday in Somerville and transacted a great amount of business. All the members were in attendance.

In the matter of the claim for damages of David Taylor, by reason of his horse falling through the Washington avenue bridge, in North Plainfield, Mr. Demler reported that the committee had settled the claim for $17.50.

Mr. Demler offered a resolution that as no macadam roads had been built in the townships of Warren and North Plainfield, although their locations warrant such improvements, the State Commissioner of Public Roads be requested to view that part of the road applied for beginning at the bridge at Watchung, thence continuing to Warrenville, thence to the road leading to Countown, from the road applied for, a distance of about three miles, and if the same meets his approbation that the same be built this present year. Mayor Smalley spoke in favor of the construction of the road. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Mayor Smalley asked for the construction of abutments to the West End avenue bridge in North Plainfield. The board agreed to meet there at the call of Director Baird to investigate the matter.

DEEDS AND CONTRACTS.

Many of Local Interest Filed at County Clerk's Office.

The following real estate transfers of local interest have been recorded at Elizabeth:

Mary Leahy to Thomas G. Knight Co., lot 9, block 1, "Map of C. Elmer Gulick," Plainfield $1

Central Park Realty Co. to Edward S. F. Randolph, lot 105, "Map of Central Park," Plainfield $1

Cormick Caulfield et ux. to Barnett Butensky, southerly side New street, 75 feet southwesterly of J. Leonard, Plainfield $1

Martin A. Rose et ux. to Samuel Newman, lots 53-54, "Map of Mountain View," Fanwood $1

William H. Lawrence, sheriff, to J. D. Loiseaux Lumber Co., southwesterly side New street, 85 feet southeasterly of West Fourth street, Plainfield $3,160

Mary Hyland et al. to Peter M. Felmley, southeasterly side South avenue, 180 feet northeasterly of Berckman street, Plainfield $1

Francis D. Lockhart et ux. to Emma F. Du Bois, southeasterly side West Front street, 60 feet southwesterly of Emma J. Johnson, Plainfield $1

Highland Park Realty Co. to Ralph Bultman, northwesterly side East Second street, 683 feet northeasterly of Leland avenue, Plainfield ..$200

William H. Lawrence, sheriff, to Amanda M. Ayers, northerly side Clinton place, 206 feet northeasterly of Clinton avenue, Plainfield..$1,173

Rev. Reverre ux. to Salvina Venezia southerly side Terrill road, corner Medtea place, Plainfield..$150

Sarah R. Runyon to Jacob Sachar, lots 9, 10, 11, block 3, "Map of Plainfield Real Estate Co.," Plainfield..$1

Edward F. Randolph et ux. to James H. Freeman, westerly side Park avenue, corner J. H. Freeman, Plainfield $1

Union County Investmtnt Co. to Dorsey H. Hyde, La Grane avenue, corner Central street, Plainfield $27,100

Same to Edith Hyde Colby, La Grane avenue, corner Leland avenue, Plainfield $25,000

Charles H. Snyder to Mowbray W. Forney, lot 4, block 2, "Map of C. E. Gulick," Plainfield $1

These contracts have also been filed:

Lena Vogel et al. to Michael D. E. Keefe, entire work new building, West Fifth street, Plainfield..$3,000

Clifford D. Manning et al. with Michael O'Keefe, carpenter work on building, West Eighth street, Plainfield $2,840

King's Daughters on a Strawride.

Thirty members of Emanuel Circle, King's Daughters, of Faith chapel, enjoyed a sleigh ride to Rahway Thursday. The affair was arranged by a committee consisting of Miss Mackey, Miss Vlebrock and Miss Martha Peck, and besides clearing expenses the circle cleared $7.50 for its work. It was about 11:15 when the party returned to Plainfield and then a social hour was spent at the home of Mrs. Valentine Uttinger, on Grandview avenue, where refreshments were served.

Stabbed.

"How is it that ou and your husband have so much trouble, dear?"

"When he married me he said that all I would have to do would be to look beautiful."

"And now he gets angry because you can not do it!"—Houston Post.

LITERARY.

In McClure's for February, the Christian Science serial steadily increases in interest and power. Mrs. Eddy's relations with P. P. Quimby, the mental healer of Portland, are taken up in this instalment, and a thoroughly convincing and able presentation of the man who was so potent an influence in her career is given. Mrs. Eddy's first visits to Quimby, her letters and verses in praise of him, and Mrs. Crosby's account of Mrs. Eddy's performances as the medium of her dead brother, Albert Baker, are presented, together with some striking facsimiles and portraits. William Allen White contributes in this number a brilliant analysis of Roosevelt and his career. The Campaign of 1904 is described in the Carl Schurz Reminiscences, and dramatic episodes occurring at the time of Lincoln's nomination are related with much spirit and humor. John La Farge contributes a fine critical study of Sacred Conversations in Italian Art. W. Bolles writes of "The Wild Animal Physician and His Patients," and recounts many thrilling illustrations of the courage and ingenuity that enter into this branch of medicine.

Success Magazine, in pursuance of its policy of opposition to legislative abuses, which led to the establishment of the People's Lobby, at Washington, has called the attention of its readers to a work of real, practical, legislative reform which has been going on quietly out in Wisconsin, where Charles McCarthy, a man "with a brogue, a Ph.D., and an ideal" has labored between the lobbyists of the "interests" out of business. In this article, "Putting the Lobbyists on the Square," Samuel Merwin describes the bureau conducted by Mr. McCarthy, shows its wonderful value, and suggests how it may be converted in other sections of the country. "In five years," says Mr. Merwin, "Mr. Carthy changed the scheme of lawmaking at Madison from a disastrous chaos to a scientific system."

The February number of The Metropolitan is the strongest and most entertaining aby magazine has put forth in many months. Powerful, absorbing articles and the very best fiction and verse make it almost a necessity to all who like good and timely reading. "The Scars of War," by John D. Wells, is a sympathetic account of the battlefields of Northern Virginia as they appear compared with their condition forty-five years ago. War time sketches and photographs are placed side by side, with pictures of the same localities recently made.

The Red Book Magazine for February comes to hand with one of the most attractive covers it has ever had. Moreover, it is doubled in fiction publication at twice the price has ever contained better stories or a better list of names. Names, however, would not appear to count in The Red Book. The story seems to be the thing. Among the authors represented, are Maarten Maartens, the famous Dutch novelist, with a story, "Science and the Cow," designed primarily for mothers; Churchill Williams, whose name is familiar to novel readers, with a striking and intensely dramatic story of the steel mills entitled "Red Hagan;" Marvin Dana has a romantic tale entitled "The Wisdom of the Abbot," while Wilbur Nesbits' story "Valentine Timmons" is as spontaneous as a conversation in a country store.

Arthur Stringer, whose work in recent years has grown in strength and importance, is the author of the novel which opens the March number of The Smart Set. It is a love story of absorbing interest, entitled "Creeping Rails," depicting the passion of a wealthy woman for a musician who, in the end, proves worthy of her love. Mr. Stringer has done no better piece of work and this story will win him added admirers. John G. Neihardt, a new writer whose name is becoming known to magazine readers, is the author of a very short but powerful story, entitled "Mignon." "The Bashful Elder," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, is a delightfully humorous story of rural life; Seumas MacManus contributes another of his inimitable Irish tales. "For His Town's Sake;" and van Tassel Sutphen, a modern love story. Other writers of short fiction are Yoshio Markino, Harriet Gaylord, Cecil Carlisle Pangman, Edward Clark Marsh, Walter E. Grogan and May Harris.

The new number of The American Magazine—the February number—is easily the best one issued so far by the new editors. It is full of snap. Miss Ida M. Tarbell's article on Rockefeller will undoubtedly one of the great stories of the year. JosephineDaskam Bacon begins her new series, "We And Our Servants." The first article contains enough vital opinion and lively satire to make interesting and discussing the servant problem for a month. Frederic C. Howe reveals some astonishing facts about "Graft in England." Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg tells the truth about "Cancer, the Unconquered Plague." W. G. Fitz-Gerald reports the discovery, in South Africa, of a diamond three times bigger than any ever before found—a diamond bigger than a baseball. "The Interpreter" this month talks about Lincoln's talk. Ida M. Tarbell shrewdly suspects is from the pen of F. P. Dunne, the creator of "Mr. Dooley," although it is unsigned.

—Andrew Bentford, arrested for helpless drunkenness yesterday, was released under suspended sentence this morning by City Judge Runyon.

VOORHEES GETS THE PLUM

Leaders Agreement Carried Out by His Election To State Treasurership.

C. A. REED WITHDREW

By Strict Party Vote "Uncle Dan" is Chosen, Ballot Being 41 for Him and 33 for L. T. Fell.

Daniel S. Voorhees, county clerk of Morris, succeeds United States Senator-elect Frank O. Briggs as State Treasurer, having been elected at a joint session of the Legislature Thursday. He will take office immediately after resigning his present job. "Uncle Dan" received forty-one votes, while the Democratic choice, Lawrence T. Fell, of Essex county, received thirty-three. It was a strict party vote, all the Democrats voting for Fell and all the Republicans for Voorhees. Senators Colby and Brown and Assemblyman Buck were absent.

After a visit to Trenton yesterday afternoon, it is said that former State Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, found that the cards had been shuffled and that it would be impossible for him to receive any showing should he keep in the fight for the office. He immediately announced his withdrawal. Senators Bradley and Wakelee also announced that they were out of the race. It was commonly known that matters had been fixed by the State leaders that "Uncle Dan" should get the plum after John F. Dryden had given way for Mr. Briggs to land the Senatorship.

The Democrats held their caucus yesterday afternoon and agreed to support L. T. Fell. As Senators Colby and Frelinghuysen, the latter being the sponsor for Mr. Reed, were not present, the Republicans decided to postpone their caucus until this morning. When they went into caucus this morning only one name was presented, that of the Morris county man and he was unanimously agreed upon by those present.

EXPLOSION AT BAYONNE RESEMBLED EARTHQUAKE.

Shock So Severe Inhabitants Fled From Houses In a Panic.

The lower part of Manhattan Island, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Staten Island, Jersey City and other towns in New Jersey were shaken as by a small earthquake at 10:37 o'clock Thursday by the explosion of an oil tank containing 1,500 barrels of petroleum in the Standard Oil works at Constable Hook, Bayonne.

The explosion was so severe in the town of Bayonne itself that the inhabitants rushed from their houses in a panic, firmly believing that an earthquake had occurred.

The buildings shook and tottered. The window panes in hundreds of houses were shattered. Furniture danced and pictures fell from the walls and crockery was broken. Pedestrians on the streets were thrown from their feet. People rushed wildly hither and thither in terror of another shock. It was not for an hour that the real cause of the shock became known to the people generally. Then an enormous crowd rushed toward the Standard Oil works.

The shock was hardly less severe in Staten Island, across the Kill von Kull. People on the north shore were thrown into panic and rushed from their houses. Buildings were shaken and here, similarly, window panes crashed in scores. The word earthquake was on everybody's lips.

The tank took fire and a great column of flame shot high. The Standard Oil Company maintains its own fire department, which went to work at once.

No loss of life had been reported up to noon.

R. A. ENTERTAINMENT.

Plainfield Council Entertains Its Women Friends.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, gave a "ladies' night" entertainment in its rooms in the Babcock building, Thursday. The programme was in charge of a committee consisting of W. Hanford, chairman; William Carr and Regent William R. Townsend. There were piano selections by Miss Boss and then the first part of the evening was occupied by Prof. Irving, who gave a clever exhibition of magic. Grand Vice Regent Harry D. Ward, of Trenton, made a short address in which he set forth the objects and benefits of the order, citing several instances where widows and orphans have been taken care of by reason of the fact that the husbands and fathers were Arcanumites.

Charles Simonson, who is not a stranger here, entertained with humorous stories and topical songs. He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Boss. The programme closed with additional sleight -of-hand by Prof. Irving.

The Hitch.

"Does running an automobile encourage the use of profanity?"

"Yes; it is the trying to run an automobile that won't run that encourages the use of beautiful language."—Houston Post.

NEGROES WILL CONDUCT A DEPARTMENT STORE

PLANS COMPLETED BY A CONCERN WHICH OPERATES IN THIS CITY.

The Metropolitan Mercantile Company, which operated a grocery store on Plainfield avenue for some time and which recently erected ten houses on the north side of West Fourth street, near John, has decided to enter the New York retail dry goods trade. The concern has purchased the abandoned grocery warehouse at 8th Ave. and 46th street, New York, and will remodel it into a department store to be operated for negroes. The building is four stories, fronting fifty feet on the avenue and 125 feet on the street, with a twenty-five foot L running north. The ground belongs to the Astor estate and has been leased.

E. R. Williams, a negro architect and a member of the company, has been given the contract for the reconstruction of the building and places the cost at $30,000. An additional $200,000 will be spent in stocking and equipping it and it is hoped to be ready for business by May 1. Williams is well known here, as he has designed the West Fourth street houses and superintended their construction. All the work was done by negroes. The company owns the plot of ground on the south side of West Fourth street, running from Plainfield avenue to the L. Besides the store here and it is said plans are underway to put up more houses there in the spring.

The Metropolitan Mercantile Company started on a small scale in New York a few years ago, at first operating grocery stores for negroes. The venture proved successful and deals in real estate followed. It now operates a negro department store and a bank in Savannah, Ga., an apartment house in Orange and deals in Plainfield real estate. The grocery business in this city was sold soon after it was established. The organization is composed solely of negroes.

PENSION INCREASES.

726 Private Bills Go Through at One Sitting.

The House of Representatives has broken several records, and the last one consisted of passing 726 private pension bills at one sitting. The members from New Jersey were particularly fortunate in securing a larger number than they have ever had passed at any one sitting, as the following will indicate:

By Congressman Fowler, increasing the pension of Edward Willis from $16 to $30; increasing the pension of Edward Burtch from $12 to $24, and increasing the pension of Adeline Brown from $8 to $25 a month. The Burtch and Willis bills were both reduced $5 a month by the committee, while the Brown bill was reduced from $50, although Mrs. Brown's husband, James M. Brown, served as captain in Company K, Seventh New Jersey Infantry, for ten months, and as a major in the Fifteenth New Jersey Infantry for six months.

By Congressman Wood, increasing the pension of William L. Stewart from $12 to $24, increasing the pension of Minna Y. Field from $25 to $35, and increasing the pension of Richard Frost from $12 to $30. Mrs. Field is a widow of Edward Field, who entered the army in 1861 as second lieutenant, First New Jersey Cavalry. He was transferred to the regular army in 1862, in the same rank, and gradually advanced until he was made major by reason of physical disability in 1900, with the rank of colonel. The committee increased the amount named in the bill from $24 to $30.

Moments of History.

Cornwallis hesitated to surrender until he had made the proper terms. Calling the Father of this country aside, he put the case plainly.

"If," he said, "no arrangement is made so that in the future English lords can have any American girls they want for the mere asking, the country will go to the dogs."

Washington, patriotic to the core, could scarcely express his gratitude.

And when the papers had been signed, he said:

"Old man, I can't thank you enough! Newport and London are now one!"—Life.

Entertained Sunday-school Teachers.

The teachers in the Sunday-school department of Watchung chapel were entertained by Superintendent E. E. Parvin at his home on Watchung avenue, Thursday. The gathering was in reality a Valentine party and feature was an auction sale of appropriate articles conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey. They were catalogued in a novel way and the bidding was accomplished by beans, the one securing the largest number being awarded a prize. Pretty valentines were also presented and supper was served at 11 o'clock.

Coarse.

If you've always got an appetite,
And always got the dough
To buy the things to satisfy
Your appetite, you know,
You've got as good foundation
As man has ever had
To look on life with laughter,
And be content and glad.
—Houston Post.

MUTUAL BENEFIT PLANT

Employees Share in Profits of Manufacturing Concern's Business.

150 MEN BENEFITTED

Firm Contributes Half of Workmen's Aid Society Fund—Free Coffee For All the Men.

In order to promote a feeling of good-will between employer and employes, the Quincy-Manchester-Sergeant Company, which succeeded the Pedrick & Ayer Company, has adopted several novel ideas to attain the desired result and to all appearances has succeeded. The concern has 150 men on its payroll and at the present time there is not a more contented force of workmen in the city.

A short time ago one of the officials noticed that the men who remained in the shop at noon time partook of a cold lunch and decided that they would be much the better for the rest of the day by having a hot cup of coffee and gave instructions to see that they got it at the company's expense. Since then a woman comes to the place every day and when the noon whistle blows she has a great quantity of the beverage prepared. On an average about 125 pounds of coffee are used in a week and the amount is steadily growing. Since the innovation has been introduced the number of shop diners has almost doubled.

The shop force has a mutual benefit society for the protection of the members against sickness or injury and the company has further shown its kindness by aiding it in no small way. The men were notified that for every dollar they raised for this purpose the concern would add a similar amount and it has since been done. It means a donation of about $15 a week or $720 a year.

Still another plan that has been put into effect is to divide the company's profits for the year with the employes on a percentage business. When the amount is learned all the men who have been in the works for twelve months will receive a share based on the salary he commands. This one box has been adopted by other factories in the State and is said to have worked to the advantage of both capital and labor.

MATCH HEAD STARTED BLAZE IN FRUIT STORE

FLAMES SWEPT THROUGH TONY LUSARDI'S PLACE CAUSING LOSS OF $200

Someone struck a match in Tony Lusardi's fruit store at Front and Somerset streets at 1:20 Thursday afternoon and part of the lighted head flew to the ceiling, igniting a lot of inflammable decorative papers. Inside of a moment or two the whole interior of the place was a mass of flames and the interior was threatened seriously. An alarm was turned in from box 12 and the department put out the blaze with extinguishers. Though it lasted but a short time, the loss from the fire will probably reach $200, most of it on stock.

In responding to the alarm, the drivers of the apparatus had considerable difficulty in keeping their horses from falling. The chief's horse went down at Second street and Park avenue and one horse of the truck team took a tumble on Park avenue between Front and Second.

A still alarm was received at headquarters Friday morning for a fire in the house at 401 Plainfield avenue. It was caused by plumbers working about some frozen pipes and sprang after they had left the place. Chief Doane went with a hose wagon but was unable to locate the house because of a wrong address given by the man who telephoned. He said 401 Fourth street at first and discovered his mistake after the apparatus had left the house. He 'phoned a second time and the West End chemical engine was sent out. They had practically extinguished the fire when Chief Doane and his men got the tangle straightened. The damage is put at $75.

Miss Reighton's Wedding Day Set.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Bessie Reighton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reighton, of 72 Webb avenue, Ocean Grove, to William Everitt, of New York. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents on Wednesday afternoon, February 27, at 4 o'clock. Both Miss Reighton and Mr. Everitt were former local residents.

Police Offices to Be Filled.

Among the important matters for the Common Council to take up at an early date will be that of filling the new positions in the police department provided for in the amended ordinance, that of captain, sergeant and detective sergeant. Mayor Fisk made appointments for these offices, but they were held up by the Common Council. It is likely that the question will be settled at the March meeting of the Common Council.

Forthcoming Book on Governor.

State Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, chairman of the Somerset county Republican Committee, is being groomed by State leaders for the gubernatorial nomination.

"BISHOPS' ACT" IS SAFE

Democratic Majority in House Determined at a Caucus To Let It Alone.

FRIENDS CALL MEETING

Minority Party Committee to Report to General Caucus Monday Night What Action Will Be Taken.

No attempt will be made by the Democratic majority in the House of Assembly at Trenton to repeal the so-called "bishops' law" or to legalize directly the sale of liquor on Sunday.

That was determined in caucus Wednesday, after Laurence T. Fell had been named as the minority choice for State treasurer, and when a committee was appointed to consider the several excise bills now pending and report to the general caucus next Monday night for action. If any, the Democrats may take toward a modification of the existing Sunday laws.

The committee, as named, consists of Senator Silzer, Assemblymen Baker, Brady and Holcombe, with Senator Minturn, as chairman of the joint caucus, an ex-officio member, and not one of the members will agree to a report in favor of the absolute repeal of the existing law.

All admit that it should be modified to meet existing conditions in the larger cities, but that is a matter which they hold should be left to the judgment of the local governing bodies.

As to the enactment of the Blohm bill, which permits the sale of liquor on Sunday during certain hours, provided such action should be approved by a majority vote of the residents of municipalities affected, the members of the committee are very much in doubt. A majority are unqualifiedly opposed to having the Assembly go on record as favoring a law that might be construed as abolishing the American Sabbath, but all admit that the people may be safely trusted in the management of their own affairs, and suggest that inasmuch as the Blohm bill was a referendum clause it might be a happy solution of the problem on a local option basis.

The idea of the Democrats favoring anything savoring of local option seems to embarrass the Republicans that the latter have given no consideration whatever to the several excise bills already introduced. So far as the Senate is concerned it is probable that a modification of the screen feature of the Smith bill, leaving the regulation in the custody of local excise boards, would be acceptable, as that is the form in which the "bishops' law" originally passed the Senate last year.

Governor Fielder is silent as to his attitude in respect to an attempted change in existing conditions, but the promptness he displayed in signing the "bishops' law" on April 13 (the day after final adjournment last year), which did not become operative until July 1, indicates that he is in favor of the existing law.

Meanwhile Peter Backes, counsel to the interdenominational committee which promoted the excise legislation of last year, has issued a call for a meeting of that committee to be held Monday afternoon at the Trenton House at 2 o'clock to arrange for the making of a formal protest against any attempted repeal of the "bishops' law" or an effort to legalize the sale of liquor on Sunday. Incidentally the committee will renew its effort for a further restriction of the number of saloons which, according to statistics collected by Mr. Backes, are under existing laws too numerous. This will be attempted by a further increase in the minimum license fee or a law limiting the number of saloons to each municipality to one for each 1,000 inhabitants, which would be practically equivalent to one saloon for each 200 adult male inhabitants.

The anxiety of Mr. Backes is prompted largely by the apparent confidence of the Saloonkeepers' Association concerning the repeal of the "bishops' law," and Assemblyman Klenert's refusal to accept a hearing on the same bill now pending.

Mr. Klenert said that the people appeared to have determined the question at the polls, and this led Mr. Backes to infer that the Democratic majority in the House intended to repeal the law as it now exists. The actions taken at Wednesday's caucus demonstrates that such action is not intended.

That something will be done, however, was confidently asserted Wednesday night by President Thomas C. Hayes, of the Liquor Dealers' Protective Association, who is watching developments as closely on behalf of his organization as Mr. Backes is for the interdenominational committee.

Democrats Appoint Committees.

The Union County Democratic Executive Committee met at Elizabeth, Thursday night, and the following committees were appointed: Executive, John L. Crowell, chairman; James E. Martine; finance, R. H. McAdams, Walter L. Herbold, Sr.; organization, Edward L. Sargent, John P. Owens; entertainment, Henry C. Coulter, J. V. S. Fiedler; naturalization, Fred Zinn, Stephen Schleif; printing, Van S. Rooth, Michael D. O'Keefe; speeches and halls, A. P. Mahon, Edward J. McGee.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT AT WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

MR. AND MRS. ST. JOHN 25 YEARS MARRIED—DAUGHTER TO WED.

In honor of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. B. V. St. John, about fifty of their friends called at their home in Division street, Thursday, to extend congratulations. The evening was spent in an informal social manner, and the couple received a great many handsome gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. St. John were formerly residents of Leonardsville, N. Y., where they were married. They removed to this city about twelve years ago. Mr. St. John is employed ed at the Potter Press Works.

Last night's affair had a double significance, the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. St. John's daughter, Miss Mary Alice St. John, to Rev. Eli Forsythe Loofboro, of Riverside, California, being announced. She is the private secretary for Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of the Sabbath Recorder and has always been active in affairs at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Mr. Loofboro was formerly acting pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New York, succeeding Rev. George Shaw, when he came to Plainfield. He has since taken a charge at Riverside, Cal.

HENRY FRANCIS ALLEN CROSSES GREAT DIVIDE.

Passes Away at the Hotel Iroquois Saturday After a Long Illness.

Henry Francis Allen, a resident of Plainfield for forty years, died at 5 o'clock Saturday at the Hotel Iroquois, where he had lived for several years. Death was due to paralysis. Mr. Allen being stricken two months ago. Since that time he failed rapidly and there was no hope from the first, owing to his advanced age.

Mr. Allen was born in Bridgeport, Conn., eighty-one years ago, his birthday occurring on January 29 last. During the early part of his career he was engaged in the shipping business in New York, but for many years he has lived in retirement. He was a cousin to Mrs. Thomas B. Brooks, of North Plainfield, and his wife, who died about five years ago, was a sister to Mr. Brooks. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks are the nearest relatives surviving.

The funeral services were held from the Church of the Holy Cross Monday morning at 9 o'clock and interment was in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

CHARLES GEIESE STRICKEN BY FATAL HEART ATTACK.

Was a Member of the Plainfield Police Force for Nine Years.

Charles Geiese, a former local resident and for nine years a member of the police force, died suddenly at his home in Washington Valley just back of Scotch Plains, Friday afternoon. He was stricken with heart disease while standing in the kitchen of the house and sank to the floor unconscious. His wife ran to the nearest neighbors and summoned a physician by telephone but life was extinct when one arrived.

Mr. Geiese was in his sixty-sixth year and came to Plainfield from Germany. He was a cigar maker by trade and was in business locally for many years. He retired to go on the police force and as a patrolman served with distinction. Three years ago he removed to Washington Valley to engage in farming in a small way but was in town very frequently. Beside his wife he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Casper Waglow, of Elm place, and Mrs. Frank Coode, of High Bridge; also one son, Philip Geiese, a letter carrier in Plainfield and Dover. A brother is a policeman in Rahway.

The funeral was held at Mrs. Waglow's home, Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

Miss Campbell Entertains.

Miss Anna May Campbell, of Grove street, gave a valentine party at her home Thursday, but instead of carrying out the usual idea in such a celebration, the company of thirty-five young people engaged in an old maid party. Many of the guests appeared gowned as old maids. Several novel games were played in addition to "old maid," and Miss Marion Hall of Glastonbury, Conn., was awarded the prize. Handsome and unique favors were distributed among the guests. Refreshments were served after playing games. Miss Norma Northrup won the card prize and Miss Marion Hall the other. The guests included Miss Mildred Williams, of Glastonbury, Conn.; Miss Margaret Lewis, Brooklyn; Miss Florence Johnson, Providence, R. I.; Miss Chamberliss, Tennessee.

Will Speak at Masonic Gathering.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss has received and accepted an invitation to speak before a large Masonic gathering at Orange on the evening before Decoration Day. The occasion will be a union service one and the various Masonic bodies of the Oranges will participate.

Right of Property Case.

The right of property case of Isaac Feinberg against J. Powlaunburg will be heard in the District Court March 12. F. J. Blatz is counsel for Feinberg.

HIS TRADE SCHOOL IDEA

Rev. George A. Warner Is Working It Up With Vigor.

HE HAS A LOT OF DATA

And Is Going to Get More—Will Study New York Trade Schools and Consult With Local Shop Men.

Rev. George A. Warner is actively engaged in securing data relative to the trade school idea, which he broached at the Board of Trade dinner Tuesday night. He has gathered a lot of information already and is adding to it daily.

Mr. Warner is sure a trade school would be a good thing for Plainfield, and he means to work up the idea until it is either well on the way toward successful execution or shown to be impractical beyond any doubt. He will consult a number of workers in the trade school field in New York and earn their views and methods. He will visit schools in operation and see how the work is done. Grounded in the generalities of the field after a course of such investigation, Mr. Warner will then go about among the shops and the shopmen of this city and learn just how a trade school would be received. He will consult with the men who ought to know conditions here, and find out whether a school would be a good thing, and, if so, how best to start and maintain it.

Rev. George A. Warner.

Mr. Warner believes that a trade school would be of great value in Plainfield's educational scheme. He believes there are boys of a certain trend of mind who are unfit for the higher branches of schooling but who are peculiarly adapted to, and would enjoy, trade schooling. He is convinced such a school could be endowed without any great difficulty.

NEW BOWLING ALLEY SCHEME FELL THROUGH

NEWARKERS' PLAN FOR A "PALACE" ON PARK AVENUE DIDN'T GO.

Unable to get a building according to plans prepared by themselves, Johns & Sturr, of Newark, owners of the Oxford alleys, of that city, gave up a scheme, this week, to open a bowling and billiard "palace" in this city. Lee R. Johns, head of the firm, is engineering a scheme to put alleys Park avenue, near the railroad, as in all the chief cities of the State, and he turned his attention to Plainfield in furtherance of it.

Johns picked out the lot where Justice V. W. Nash's old office stood on the desirable site for the alleys. D. S. Smalley owns the land, and Johns went to him with a proposition. He asked Mr. Smalley to erect a building designed especially for alleys, and offered to take a long lease. It was his plan to install about six alleys, and a number of billiard and pool tables. He was certain that the location would be the best in the city, and couldn't see how the place could fail to make money.

It looked like a good scheme from Johns & Sturr's standpoint, but Mr. Smalley looked as it from a different angle. He couldn't see where the erection of a building designed primarily for bowling alleys and billiard parlor offered any one certain a return as an abiding investment. He decided against it. Sturr came here with Johns to urge Mr. Smalley to carry the deal through, but the landowner could not see enough of the golden pounds to satisfy him.

It is not likely that Johns & Sturr will make another effort to come here. They will scarcely tie up enough money or shoulder a loan big enough to build, and it is highly improbable that they will find anybody willing to build for them.

In Eagle Eyes.

"Where's the bahbah?" asked the soft young chap from the east.

"I'm the barber, sonny," drawled the big man in the wide hat and red shirt.

"And do you know how to clip hair?"

"I should say so. Just stand about ten paces, and if I can't clip off every lock in 12 shots, I'll set up the licker."—Chicago Daily News.

The property belonging to the Opdyke estate, in North Plainfield, has been sold by Phillips & Wells, Tribune Building, N. Y. The same agents recently sold the Darby farm at South Plainfield.

REMEMBERS AARON BURR

Interesting Reminiscences by Mrs. Mary Chetwood, of Elizabeth.

DEFENDS HIS MEMORY

She Believes He Has Been Grossly Maligned—Tells of His Place in American History.

No town in New Jersey is richer in Revolutionary lore than is Elizabeth, which furnished more men for Washington's army than any other locality in the colony. No other town in New Jersey was so beset by the enemy during the seven years' struggle, and no community made greater sacrifices of blood and treasure. Elizabeth enjoys the distinction of having furnished more commissioned officers than any other town, the most daring and distinguished men having their homes there when the war broke out. Some of them rose to national prominence in field and forum.

Quite a number of the lineal descendants of these heroes and statesmen are still living in the town, notably Mrs. Mary Chetwood, still hale and hearty at the age of 90 years. Mrs. Chetwood, widow of John Chetwood, born here in 1817, is a granddaughter of Colonel Aaron Ogden, aide-de-camp to General Washington and General Lafayette, and one of the most famous soldiers of the American Revolution.

In a recent intensely interesting conversation with Mrs. Chetwood she narrated many personal recollections of General Lafayette, Colonel Aaron Burr and other noted heroes of the war of independence.

*"I am glad to know," said this pa*triotic and most amiable lady to me, "that you are an admirer of Colonel Burr, whom I repeatedly met and conversed with at the home of Colonel Aaron Ogden, my grandfather. No American was ever more foully aspersed than he, I never saw a more unselfish character, and never talked with such a brilliant conversationalist. No one who ever looked into his keen, black, luminous eyes, could forget them. I was in my early childhood when first presented to Colonel Burr at my grandfather's home, and was so fascinated with his appearance that I could scarcely withdraw my gaze. Perhaps he noticed this, as directly he made it his way across the great drawing room and asked me in a silver-toned voice if I played on the piano. When I told him I did not, he smiled sweetly and remarked: 'It is as well: you will have more time to improve your mind.'

"Colonel Burr, my grandfather and his brother, General Matthias Ogden, were boom friends, almost inseparable, and of about the same age, 19 years, when the war broke out. General Ogden was two years their senior. The intimacy and burning love existing between the three was formed at the home of Colonel Burr's father, the Rev. Aaron Burr, son of President Edwards of Princeton College, who had married Rhoda Ogden, daughter of Robert Ogden, and a sister of Matthias and Aaron. Colonel Burr's mother was a daughter of President Edwards.

"Colonel Burr's parents dying when he was 5 years old, he and his sister made their home with their uncle, Timothy. Young Burr inherited a *considerable estate, which al*lowed him the privilege of living and regulating his conduct according to the bent of his own inclinations. Burr's grief at the loss of his parents, to whom he was devotedly attached, seems to have completely changed his character, and historians, taking advantage of this, have been very hard on him, painting him in the blackest colors. Some writers in aspersing his character, have gone so far as to say that Colonel Burr died unbefriended, and his place of sepulchre is unknown."

"I never understood why so-called historians wrote so venomously of a man who had faithfully and brilliantly served his country on its battle fields. Colonel Burr died at a pleasant home on Staten Island, his bedside surrounded by sorrowing relatives and friends. His mortality was interred at Princeton, near the happy scenes of his college days. Some of the relatives present at the obsequies were Pierrepont Edwards, son of the distinguished Jonathan Edwards, Pierrepont Edwards and Colonel Burr's mother were descendants of Colonel Burr's uncle, brother and sister. Mrs. Lily Devereaux Blake's mother was a daughter of Pierrepont Edwards, Judge Edwards, who long lived on North Broad street, Elizabeth, and died there, was a great-grandson. His family still lives there.

"Ogden Edwards at one time possessed an oil painting of Theodosia Burr (Mrs. Aaron Burr's only daughter. It hung in the parlor for many years, where I frequently admired it. One night the house was entered and the canvass cut from the frame and carried away. The painting could never be traced, and a fine work of art, together with the picture of a lovely and fascinating woman, whose fate was melancholy, was thus forever lost. Theodosia Burr, in both girlhood and womanhood, was all brain and heart, the former too active and the latter too loving for the fragile casket in which nature had enclosed them.

"I delight in recalling recollections of Colonel Burr, and the many thrilling stories I heard when a girl, of his great bravery and gallantry; of his long, perilous and fatiguing march through the enemy's country, amid deep snow and intense cold, to carry a dispatch from his commander—General Benedict Arnold—to General Montgomery, then besieging Quebec; of his carrying the latter after falling desperately wounded through a red sea of the enemy's shots to a place of safety; of his pleasant association with General Israel Putnam, on whose staff he ably served, and of his distinguished conduct at Monmouth, in which campaign he was stricken with a disease which necessitated his retirement from the army, to whose interests he had been entirely devoted for more than four years.

"In stature, Colonel Burr was about five feet six inches; of spare, meagre form of elegant symmetry; fair and transparent complexion. He did not dress flashily, but well, and was of a commanding presence, erect and dignified deportment. His forehead was prominent and broad. His eyes, of which I have already spoken, were of ordinary size, of a dark hazel, appearing almost black, and scintillated with the most tremulous sensibility. They rolled with poetic fervor and beamed at all times with the piercing rays of genius. His mouth was large, his voice manly, clear and as melodious as a lute. His face, analyzed, showed unimportant traits, but upon a superficial view they were obscured like the spots in the sun by a radiance that dazzles and fascinates the sight.

"Colonel Burr in a promiscuous company was rather taciturn, but when he spoke it was with frankness. He was the most perfect model of an accomplished gentleman that could be found, even by the wanton imagination of poetry or fiction.

"I am heartily glad," said Mrs. Chetwood, in conclusion, "to learn that Americans are beginning to appreciate the great services rendered our country by Colonel Burr, and to bestow upon him that meed of praise of which he has so long been bereft by the machinations of envious men, who have labored to blacken his character and fame, as has Hon. J. Madison Drake in the Newark Sunday Call.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

The Joy Hand in Greenwater.

Ewald Kune, hale, hearty, big as life, jovial, and ever full of the vim that counts, is "just," as it were, "got back from Chicago and other eastern points.

G. T. Nighbert, a jolly good-natured fellow, is in from Bakersfield, Cal. What a rollicking laugh he has, such a jovial friendly handshake.

An old-time mining factor, one of those who has made his fortune on the booming of most of the western mining camps, is Frank Cawley. Mr. Cawley is a fountain on the growth and development of what is today the mighty west.

Whoever would have thought it? But it is true. Mike O'Brien is an elucutionist, with all the gestures and inflections of voice that carries it from the melody of a sweet-toned bell that of a rolling, leaping thunderstorm. What deep, soul-stirring pathos he puts into some of his recitations, and then some others like that of the rollicking fellow who makes tears transports themselves into laugh and the world laughs with you."

Billy Rice was in from Dry Camp. Billy is one of those whole-souled fellows who is always in clover, and as a consequence has many friends. He was in Greenwater a while here and when he went home left many regards.—Greenwater (Cal.) Times.

Schedule in Kansas.

Since the pass is no more he has taken out the railroad time cards, and runs this instead: "Trains are due when you see the smoke."—Barber County (Kan.) Index.

KING'S DAUGHTERS ENTERTAIN FOR DAY NURSERY BENEFIT.

Brightside Circle and Its Friends Gather at the Home of Mrs. F. W. Jones.

Under the auspices of Brightside Circle, King's Daughters, and for the benefit of Day Nursery, a musical and literary entertainment was held Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Jones, on Mountain avenue. Over sixty members and friends of the circle attended the affair and it was a great success financially and socially. Assisting in the entertainment were Clarence B. Hayes, tenor soloist at Christ's church, New Brighton; Miss Searles, accompanist, of New York; Miss Ethel Englehart and James Vail. The program was as follows:

Piano solos, Perle Du Nord, La Polka De La Riene, Nearer My God to Thee, variations, Cradle Song, Old Black Joe, variations, Polish Dance, Old Oaken Bucket, variations, Home, Sweet Home, James Vail; tenor solos, My First Love, You Had Better Ask Me, Love Me and the World Is Mine, Until God's Day, Clarence B. Hayes; recitations, So Was It, Miss Ethel Englehart; Angelina Jackson, Miss Fowler.

The new officers of the circle just elected are as follows: President, Mrs. J. A. Powlison; vice president, Miss Claypool; secretary, Miss Kiernan; treasurer, Mrs. Frank W. Jones. After the entertainment a social hour was ad-

PARK AVE. BAPTISTS GREET PASTOR AND WIFE

ANNUAL RECEPTION LARGELY ATTENDED BY HIS FLOCK.

The members of the Park Avenue Baptist church joined in giving their pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, and wife a reception at the church, Thursday. It was the fouth annual reception to the pastor and his wife. The Sunday-school room was appropriately decorated for the occasion by Miss Charlotte Tennant, there being an arrangement of red hearts. Another feature was that the women wore small red hearts and the men wore arrows and upon each appeared the name of the wearer.

There was a programme of music by the amateur orchestra under the leadership of G. W. V. Moy, which gave addition pleasure.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the church, of which Mrs. F. T. Oltrom is the president, Mrs. Walter Freeman, secretary, and Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson, the treasurer, was in charge of the reception. The following young women assisted as waitresses: The Misses Marguerite Osmun, Alice Brown, Margaret Brown, Arline Brown, Mabel Stutsman, Eleanor Stutsman, Grace Weeks, Mary Leveridge, Sarah Boyd, Anna Clark and Mary Clark.

PETER A. EMMONS DIES AFTER A WEEK'S ILLNESS

PASSED AWAY AT HIS HOME ON JACKSON AVENUE THIS MORNING.

Following an illness of one week, Peter A. Emmons, one of the best known residents of the borough, died at 10:30 Saturday at his home on Jackson avenue. He was taken sick last Saturday with an ailment that quickly developed acute Bright's disease and he bagn to fail rapidly. For the past two or three days his condition was known to be serious and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. Emmons was in his fifty-eighth year and came to the borough from New York in 1882. From the outset he evinced an interest in its affairs and in 1888 he was elected a member of the Common Council. He served *but one term as a pressure of busi*ness matters prevented his taking the office a second time. He did not retire f rom public affairs entirely but at intervals served the borough in various political matters, being affiliated with the Democratic party and one of Mayor Smalley's lieutenants. He was a delegate to the county convention last fall and was prominent in the Good Government Club.

As a member of the Masonic order Mr. Emmons was known by the fraternity throughout the State. He had advanced from Anchor Lodge, in which he served as worshipful master, to Jerusalem chapter and to Salaam Temple, Mystic Shrine. He was also a member of Trinity Commandery No. 17, Knights Templar, and he seldom missed a gathering of the Grand Commandery. He was also an attendant at Trinity Reformed church.

Mr. Emmons was engaged in business in New York for a long time, in recent years importing and selling laces and linens to the retail trade. He is survived by a wife, two daughters, Mrs. Gilbert Fletcher and Mrs. Arthur Smith, both of the borough, and two sons, Walter and William Emmons. Beside those there are two brothers, John P. Emmons, of Prospect place and James Emmons, of South River; also three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Little, of Fords Corner; Mrs. Ellen Holman and Mrs. Ada Otis, of New Brunswick.

"No more Chinese or reluctant kaffirs; but labor from the great central 'mill' as it were, driven by the milewide Zambesi through its fall of 400 feet," says W. G. Pitz-Gerald in an article on the tremendous new water power in South Africa, which appears in the Technical World Magazine for March. "The diamond mines of Kimberley should profit too—those locked up valuable deposits from which have been won sixty tons' weight of glittering gew-gaws, whose value can hardly be computed in figures. And the Transcontinental Railroad should be electrified by the same power; quarries and forests developed, and electricity transmitted on vastly increased Niagara lines to the gold fields of Mazoe, Hartley and Lo Magdhunda, as well as to light the fastgrowing cities of Salisbury, Gwelo and Buluwayo. Telephone and telephones, too,—but why continue the list? The force of the Falls is to be the new heart of Africa in the more literal sense that its power will drive life in all directions through the Dark Continent."

Laws of Health.

Tramp—Thankee kindly, mum; I'd no hope of gettin' sich a fine supper today, mum. May heaven bless ye!

Housekeeper—As you've had good supper, I think you might chop some wood.

"Yes, mum; but you know the old adage: 'After dinner rest awhile; after supper walk a mile.' I'll walk the mile, first, mum."—New York Weekly.

BACK IN BOYS' WORK

Mr. Robbie Will Take Mr. Barrows' Place at the Y. M. C. A.

CHANGE ORGANIZATION

Routine of General Secretaryship to Be Lightened by Appointment of Assistant—Farewell Party for "Pop."

Haydn W. Barrows, who resigned as boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A. last month, left the association staff Friday afternoon. His place on the staff will be taken by J. F. Billet, who was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in this city four years ago.

Announcement of Mr. Billet's appointment was made by General Secretary Kenneth Robbie on Thursday morning. Mr. Billet will not take up Mr. Barrows' work in the boys' de*partment. He will become assistant* secretary, and Mr. Robbie, relieved of considerable routine in his department, will conduct the boys' work. Mr. Robbie was the most successful boys' secretary the association ever had, and it was deemed best to arrange his work so that he might oversee the junior work. He will have charge of the Boys' Club, Sycamore street, which is part of the Y. M. C. A. organization, as well.

Mr. Barrows went directly to Jacksonville, Fla., Thursday, to engage in his new work. He will be the engineer in charge of the construction of a circle swing, an amusement device, for the Circle Swing Company.

The juniors gave Mr. Barrows a surprise party last night. Thirty of them trip-toed upstairs, and burst in on him as he was packing a trunk and overwhelmed him with shouts and hugs. The boys think a heap of Mr. Barrows; they call him "Pop."

Without flustering any more than a healthy boy ought to with a speech choking him, Stan Karner gave "Pop" a pair of gold cuff buttons and a dandy pearl-handled nife, with one big blade and a nail cleaner that's fine for digging out nuts and things. Then Mr. Barrows was overcome and said things in a way that sounded as if something was tickling his throat.

There was a great time in the boys' room after the surprise was sprung, with the crackling in the grate, whereat real corn was popped, and songs and stories knocked the tickles out of everybody's throat. There were other things to eat besides corn.

SENATOR COLBY DENIES SOME POLITICAL TALES

RUMOR THAT HE WILL REMOVE HERE IS WITHOUT FOUNDATION.

The story circulated in political quarters here that State Senator Everett Colby, of Essex county, the Republican reform leader in New Jersey, was about to transfer his place of residence to Plainfield turns out to be one of the many political canards that pop up every day. In reply to a query from The Daily Press, Senator Colby has telegraphed from Atlantic City: "There is no foundation for the rumor whatever." The Senator has been staying at the seashore resort for sometime, his wife, who was formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of this city, having been taken there for the benefit of her health. She has been suffering from a severe case of nervous prostration and her mother, Mrs. Charles Hyde, and other relatives also being at her bedside. Some credence was given the report that the Senator is coming to Plainfield here because of the fact that his wife's relatives live here and also because Mr. Colby has a host of personal and political friends in Union county and particularly in Plainfield.

Another tale about the Senator's plans, which proves equally untrue, had it that he was about to be honored by President Roosevelt with some important appointment. This story also gained circulation here, being looked upon as possible inasmuch as Mr. Colby has frequently visited the President at Washington and is said to be held in high esteem by the Chief Magistrate of the Nation. The Senator, however, declares that there is absolutely nothing in the report.

TYPOS ELECT OFFICERS.

Plainfield Typographical Union, No. 299, elected these officers Friday night: President, Roy Woolley; vice-president, Henry Dressell; secretary and treasurer, Peter Caldwell; sergeant-at-arms, Frazee Putnam.

The newly-elected officers provided a spread and smoker for the members and a farewell reception was given to James Kermode, of The Daily Press, who sailed this morning on the Cunrad Liner "Carmania," to visit his native home in the Isle of Man. He will remain abroad several months.

To Address Editors.

James E. Martine has accepted an invitation to speak at the fifteenth celebration and banquet of the New Jersey Editorial Association to be held at Hildebrecht's, West State street, Trenton, on Monday afternoon, February 25, at 2 o'clock.

The Costitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

Published a.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms: $2.00 per year.

A. L. FORCE, Editor and Proprietor.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1907.

UNCLE DAN'S JOB.

Daniel S. Voorhees will be in his element at Trenton if the State Treasurership is the snap it is represented to be by the New York Herald's Jersey political writer. Granting that such is the case, it is well that Senator Morris county man, and not former Senator Reed landed in the berth for the "Tall Sycamore of Somerset" would soon weary of a job where there is no work to do.

Concerning what the office is and what it is going to be under the Democratic "boss," the Herald says:

"The election of Daniel S. Voorhees as State treasurer in place of Senator-elect Frank O. Briggs excited no very positive emotions one way or the other. The position is nearly of little importance. The State treasurer of New Jersey is a purely perfunctory official. His duties, mainly consisting of signing checks, are mapped out for him by a clerical force, which really does all the work. He has nothing whatever to do with shaping the financial policy of the State. Many persons think it would be better if, the fiscal officer had more influence in that direction.

"The State treasurer should be consulted, it is held, as to receipts, as to expenditures, as to the state financial resources, &c. But this is now all done by the State controller, and the treasurer is practically a nonentity. The position carries a salary of $6,000 a year and is a "plum." It is handed out as such. The treasurer's office under his administration will be a sort of politicians' club, where leading Republicans from different parts of the State will gather and hobnob and take a little social refreshment on 'Governor's day' each week."

TEACHERS' WORK RECOGNIZED.

The action of the Board of Education in increasing the salaries of all teachers connected with the city schools should meet with the hearty approval of the public. The cost of living has advanced immensely in the last few years. In fact so great has been the increase for all necessities of life that every corporation and every individual concern of any size has conformed to the present high standard of wages, by putting in effect a similar increase of wages varying from five to twenty-five per cent. What was considered a fair wage five years ago, to work on can be accomplished by combining forces than for two independent bodies working separately.

For some reason unknown, the meetings of the Board of Trade have been poorly attended in recent years. At some meetings not more than eight or ten are present, although the membership includes practically all the local merchants and business men generally. On the other hand, much interest is being taken in the Protective Association work, which is practically that which should be done by the former body. The proposition is to consolidate the two bodies and elect entirely new officers.

The New San Francisco.

"Some Cities and San Francisco," by Hubert Howe Bancroft, (New York: The Bancroft Company) is a slender but interesting volume on the plan to make San Francisco greater and fairer. It is a vivid plea for the beautification of the fire-scarred metropolis of the Pacific coast, so that it will arise from its ashes with wider boulevards, broader parks, more spacious avenues, and busier marts. The book makes very good reading even for those who have only the slightest interest in San Francisco.

Middlesex's Best 'Squire.

Justice of the Peace Rene P. F. Von Minden, of New Market, who has a law office in the Marsh building, is the prize 'squire of Middlesex county. When the county court had completed its investigation of the justices' books, 'Squire Von Minden was told that his docket was the most complete and satisfactory in the county. He has turned in more fines under the disorderly act than any other justice.

Crushed His Fingers.

While at work in a new building a few days ago, Max Neuman, Jr., of Spooner avenue, a plumber's apprentice, had several fingers crushed by the falling of a water-back. They were dressed by a physician and he will be detained from work for several weeks.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Vincent Tozzi, of Grant avenue, and Miss Catherine Verdi, of Jersey City. The wedding will take place in April.

Mr. and Mrs. Kanen, of West Sixth street, have been entertaining Chas. Goldacher, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. Harry Auten, of Somerville, has returned home after a visit with her parents on Central avenue.

Miss Agnes Brown, of the West End, who has been visiting relatives in Brooklyn, has returned home.

he, however, and despite the assertion of Senator Colby that the naming of a "machine" man means defeat, the Raritan politician would make a very creditable candidate.

There are disappointed aspirants whom the Senatorial lightning failed to strike and who would very much like to stand in the shoes of Senator-elect Briggs just at this time, and the year 1911 seems so far remote to wait for another political lightning bolt.—Newark Star.

This is undoubtedly true; and it might be added that the majority of the friends of good government in New Jersey are equally disappointed.

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine's announcement that he will run for Governor provided he is given an unanimous nomination by the Democrats will cause no surprise to those who know that good old soul. But if there is any chance for a Democrat to win, the bosses may be depended upon to see that a less deserving and less conscientious one will be picked for the race.

President Woodrow Wilson hastens to deny the report that some friend of his institution was about to furnish a big endowment for the college. We may therefore dispell the fear that "The Sage of Princeton" was going to unloosen his purse strings.

The borough of North Plainfield suffers a distinct loss in the death of Peter A. Emmons. For years he had been actively interested in civic affairs and always did more than his share in promoting the interests of the community in which he lived.

It is made to appear by "machine organs" that Governor Stokes was only joking when he linked Colby's name with that of Hughes. If it be so, the Governor has certainly a queer idea of humor.

Mr. Rockefeller must have come to the conclusion that "a little learning is a dangerous thing" when he set aside $12,000,000 for an abundance of education.

Cambridge University needs $7,500,000. How would a Carnegie library donation satisfy it?

PLAN TO MERGE P. P. A. AND BOARD OF TRADE

OFFICER OF ONE BELIEVES THAT CONSOLIDATION WOULD BE BENEFICIAL.

That the Plainfield Protective Association, which is composed of a couple of hundred representative men of Plainfield and North Plainfield be merged with the Board of Trade is the proposition advanced by one of the head officers of the latter body. It is argued by him that much more work can be accomplished by combining forces than for two independent bodies working separately.

"On January 28," said Mr. Montgomery to a reporter, "there appeared in The Daily Press the following statement: 'The report of Alfred Spice, of New York, the expert employed by the Plainfield Protective Association to investigate the lighting service of the Public Service Corporation in this city, was made public today.'

"On January 29 I received a communication from R. Henry Depew, dated January 28, in which he said, 'I am sending you under separate cover report of my examination of the lights in Plainfield.'

"As I read in your paper of the 28th the P. P. A. report and from it was first made acquainted with the contents thereof, the statement of Mr. Depew in the issue of February 16 is not found to be fitted in the case. Mr. Depew wrote: 'Moreover, it is not true that the report was given to the press before it was furnished to the Council.' Comment is unnecessary."

In his letter on the reasons leading to the resignation Mr. Saunders made the incident in which Mr. Montgomery was invited to retire from a meeting of the P. P. A. executive committee meeting a prominent feature.

Funeral of Charles Giese.

The funeral of Charles Giese, who died suddenly at his home in Washington Valley, Saturday afternoon, was held Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Caspar Waxlow, of Elm place. The service was in charge of Rev. C. H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hauser, of New York, a former pastor, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being members of the local police force, on which Mr. Giese served for nine years. They were Patrolmen Martin Vanderweg, Andrew Saffron, William Vanderweg, Andrew Saffron, Nicholas Meyers, Frank Stillwell, George Dobson and Dennis O'Keefe.

Miss Hudson Among the Killed.

Miss Clara L. Hudson, of Minneapolis, daughter of Joseph B. Hudson, who spent Sunday, February 10, with her friend, Miss Norma Northrup, of 97 Mercer avenue, was killed in the accident on the Harlem Division of the New York Central Saturday night. She was a member of a party of eight young women from the school who attended a matinee performance in New York and were returning home on the train which was wrecked. The other young women escaped with injuries.

FAVOR SEPARATE PLANT

Borough Sewage Commission to Recommend to Council an Independent System.

KILLS CONSOLIDATION ?

At Meeting At Park Club Report of G. W. Fuller, the Expert, Is Thoroughly Discussed.

Preliminary negotiations are underway, it is said, for the purchase of a farm in North Plainfield township for the purpose of building a sewage disposal plant to be used by the borough. If the action of the sewage commission is favorably received by the North Plainfield Council, the movement to consolidate that municipality with Plainfield will be dealt a death blow it is generally believed.

A meeting of the commission was held at the Park Club Monday and a free discussion was held at that time on the report of the expert, Geo. W. Fuller, of the firm of Herring & Fuller, of New York. Mr. Fuller has been working on the matter for months past and the matter is now in such shape that the committee will communicate with the borough fathers at their next meeting. It appeared to be the consensus of opinion that it would be cheaper and better for the borough to erect and maintain an independent sewage disposal plant rather than to connect with the Plainfield system.

W. J. Buttfield, as chairman of the commission, presided and among the other members present were Edwin S. Hooley, N. B. Smalley and C. W. McCutcheon. It is understood that a majority of the members are opposed to consolidation; at least that was the opinion stated by one of the members this morning.

QUOTATIONS IN THE P. P. A. REPORT TILT

COUNCILMAN MONTGOMERY DENIES ALLEGATIONS OF R. H DEPEW.

Councilman F. L. Montgomery, who figured in the incident leading to the resignation of W. L. Saunders from the Plainfield Protective Association, and the subsequent epistolary exchange between Mr. Saunders and R. Henry Depew, president of the Protective Association, added a side issue to the politely conducted duel this morning.

"On January 28," said Mr. Montgomery to a reporter, "there appeared in The Daily Press the following statement: 'The report of Alfred Spice, of New York, the expert employed by the Plainfield Protective Association to investigate the lighting service of the Public Service Corporation in this city, was made public today.'

"On January 29 I received a communication from R. Henry Depew, dated January 28, in which he said, 'I am sending you under separate cover report of my examination of the lights in Plainfield.'

"As I read in your paper of the 28th the P. P. A. report and from it was first made acquainted with the contents thereof, the statement of Mr. Depew in the issue of February 16 is not found to be fitted in the case. Mr. Depew wrote: 'Moreover, it is not true that the report was given to the press before it was furnished to the Council.' Comment is unnecessary."

In his letter on the reasons leading to the resignation Mr. Saunders made the incident in which Mr. Montgomery was invited to retire from a meeting of the P. P. A. executive committee meeting a prominent feature.

Funeral of Charles Giese.

The funeral of Charles Giese, who died suddenly at his home in Washington Valley, Saturday afternoon, was held Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Caspar Waxlow, of Elm place. The service was in charge of Rev. C. H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hauser, of New York, a former pastor, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being members of the local police force, on which Mr. Giese served for nine years. They were Patrolmen Martin Vanderweg, Andrew Saffron, William Vanderweg, Andrew Saffron, Nicholas Meyers, Frank Stillwell, George Dobson and Dennis O'Keefe.

Miss Hudson Among the Killed.

Miss Clara L. Hudson, of Minneapolis, daughter of Joseph B. Hudson, who spent Sunday, February 10, with her friend, Miss Norma Northrup, of 97 Mercer avenue, was killed in the accident on the Harlem Division of the New York Central Saturday night. She was a member of a party of eight young women from the school who attended a matinee performance in New York and were returning home on the train which was wrecked. The other young women escaped with injuries.

ATLK ON PRIMITIVE MAN

George Wharton James Lectures on Primitive Arts and Crafts.

AT THE CASINO

Before the Monday Afternoon Club —His Descriptions Prove Very Interesting.

The lecture on "Primitive Arts and Crafts," given by George Wharton James before the Monday Afternon Club at the Casino, Monday, was enthusiastically received by a large audience. The talk was given in connection with the club's study of "Primitive Man in America," covering the latter part of the club year.

Mr. Wharton prefaced his remarks with the statement that his accounts of the primitive arts and crafts of the Indians of the Southwest were not theories but facts gained by a long residence among them. *The de*velopment of mentality in the Indian, he said, was shown by his work, the first step taken by primitive man being the art of war and hunting and that of woman the domestic inventions. He vividly described the crude process of maize planting, maize grinding that led to the primitive mill, the invention of traps for catching fish and animals, the ingenious construction of the bow and arrow, the building of mats that led to weaving, basket making, pottery, the beginning of masonry and the building of their simple homes. Mr. Wharton said they learned these crafts by keeping themselves in constant communion with nature and made a plea for teaching children to observe rather than gain all their knowledge from books.

In connection with their home making the speaker referred to their religious ceremonies, each step of their work being accompanied with a petition for a blessing on their deeds and he contrasted some of the shams of civilization with the simplicity and honesty of the Indian.

In describing the baskets and blankets made by these primitive people, the artistic quality was brought to notice. "Art," Mr. Wharton quoted, "was the expression of a man's joy in his work" and some of the baskets he exhibited had claim to the perfection of Art, thus considered. The baskets, he said, became enshrinements of woman's prayers, hopes, aspirations, love and despair. One beautiful specimen he said represented the light of the morning with the dark points of the Lucs leaves reflected on the background; another wrought with doves, enshrined the woman's thought of life in the companionship of her prospective husband and one marked with a large star surrounded by smaller ones was the enshrinement of Monona's joys and despair. Mr. Wharton's lecture recalled the old thought of the poet, "Lo! the poor Indian, whose undeloved mind Sees God in the cloud and rears Him in the wind."

SAGAMORE MUSICAL CLUB GIVE CONCERT AND DANCE.

Malcolm Shackleford and Fred Van Eps Assist in Pleasing Affair at the Casino.

The Sagamore Musical Club held its annual entertainment in the Casino Monday night, assisted by Fred VanEps, Malcolm Shackleford, humorist, and the affair was largely patronized and greatly enjoyed. After the entertainment dancing was continued until a late hour. Owing to the death of her uncle, Peter A. Simmons, Miss Aimee Louise Emmons, who was to have given recitations and readings, was unable to appear. Her place on the programme was taken by Mr. Shackleford and Mr. VanEps.

An excellent programme was arranged. The numbers by the Sagamore Musical Club were features and the banjo solos and banjo and mandolin duets by Fred VanEps and his brother, William P. VanEps, elicited great applause. Mr. Shackleford was, as usual, very funny. His stories, as well as his impersonations of various characters, brought down the house. He was repeatedly called back. The programme follows:

Love and Honor, Sagamore Musical Club; Laughing Eyes, Fred Van Eps; Nursery Rymes, Malcolm Shackleford; University Girl Waltzes, Sagamore Musical Club; Buffalo Rag, Fred and William P. VanEps; Let It Alone, Malcolm Shackleford; Cherry, Sagamore Musical Club; My Lady, Malcolm Shackleford. There were sixteen numbers on the dance order, comprising two steps and waltzes.

The Sagamore Musical Club is composed of the following: Leader, William VanEps; first mandolins, Martin Stuisman, Monroe H. Long, Chester H. Briggs; second mandolins, Theodore D. Gavett, Erwin Leland, Vincent B. Miner; banjo, William E. Briggs; 'cello, Herbert Smith; pianist, Samuel B. Howe, Jr.

Favor Local Option Bill.

By a rising vote the congregation at Warren chapel, on Sunday, voted to petition the Legislature to pass the local option bill which it is proposed to introduce at the present session. The wish of the congregation will be expressed to the local representatives in the Legislature.

TAX RECEIPTS WRONG

North Plainfield Collector has Not Observed the State Law.

VALUES NOT SEPARATED

Rule of State Board Requires Houses and Lots To Be Valued Separately—Collector Hadn't Heard of It.

The tax receipts of North Plainfield are made out in a way contrary to the law. In fact, they are made out in a form the law was designed to prevent.

The State Board of Taxation has issued a rule ordering the assessors of all districts outside of farming sections, to value the lands and the buildings on them separately and that the separate valuations must be noted on the tax receipts. The receipts of the borough do not specify the separate valuations.

The law under which the State Board issued the rue is as follows:

"The State Board of Taxation may by rule direct the assessor in any taxing district to determine the true value of each parcel of real estate assessed by him without the buildings and improvements and to note the same on his list, and to determine and note separately the true value of every building and other structure on each parcel, and add and carry out the same as the assessed value of the parcel, and in such case the receipt given for the payment of the tax shall contain such separate valuations; * * *"

Borough Collector George E. Brown doesn't know of any such rule. He told a reporter he didn't this morning.

"We have always lumped the values in the borough, on the receipts," he said. "I didn't know there was any requirement to separate values on my bills. I thought it applied to the assessors' field book."

The rule was read to Mr. Brown.

"Yes, it would appear that we have been making out the receipts wrongly," he said.

Assessor J. H. Cooley was out of town when a reporter called up his office on the telephone.

GETS BIG PRODUCTION.

"The Girl and the Governor" Coming to Plainfield Next Tuesday.

Manager Counihan received notice by wire this morning that his overtures for the big, new musical comedy, "The Girl and the Governor," now appearing at the Manhattan theatre, New York, had been considered favorably and it will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. The company numbers sixty people and is headed by Jefferson De Angelis, the well known comedian who led the east of the original "Fanana" production during its long run at the Lyric.

"The Girl and the Governor" has been forced out of the Manhattan because of its rollicking songs and Manager Counihan is one of the theatrical men who offered suitable terms to get it. The entire cast and scenic equipment will be brought to Plainfield.

Will Ask for Clemency.

The following persons who have filed their petitions with the pardon clerk at Trenton will apply to the Court of Pardons at the March term for the exercise of clemency: John Galbraith, convicted of criminal assault, February, 1906; term of sentence, three years; term expires, September, 1908. Peter Linzer, convicted of criminal assault, February, 1906; term of sentence, two years; term expires, November, 1907. William Ross, convicted of criminal assault, February, 1906; term of sentence, two years; term expires, November, 1907.

Percy DeWitt Dead.

Word has been received here of the death of Percy DeWitt, who lived in this city a number of years ago. Details of his death could not be learned.

TEACHERS' PAY RAISED

Board of Education Authorizes Increase Approximately $100 a Year.

NEW STUDENTS FIXED

Present Appropriation Will Not Permit It to Go Into Effect Until Next September.

At a special meeting of the city Board of Education Monday night the first steps were taken toward giving every principal and teacher in the local schools a substantial increase in salary. It will amount to practically $100 annually in each instance, but will not go into effect until September 1 next, as the appropriation of this year was based on the present schedule. The matter has been under consideration by the the board for several months and was brought to a head by the introduction of a resolution, calling for the increase. It was passed unanimously with the salaries fixed as follows:

Grade teachers and kindergartens, minimum salary $550, maximum $800; maximum for assistants in kindergarten $700; increase $50 annually the first three years, then $25 annually, until the maximum is reached.

Upon recommendation of superintendent and principal, a teacher of a seventh grade class may receive $50 additional and a teacher of an eighth grade $100 additional during the time of assignment to such a grade.

Assistants in high school, male assistant, minimum $1,000, maximum $1,800.

Female assistants, minimum $700, maximum $1,200.

Increase, $100 annually for two years, then $50 annually until maximum is reached.

Upon recommendation of superintendent and principal, a teacher in charge of a class room may receive $100 additional during assignment to that position.

The increase for a teacher in any year may be withheld by the board in case the teacher's work is not approved by the superintendent and the principal.

Principals of graded schools, maximum $1,400. When a principal is not receiving the maximum, the increase will be $100 annually until the maximum is reached.

Vice-principals may receive $100 in addition to their salaries as teacher of a class.

The board also discussed informally the plans for the new school to be erected at Darrow avenue and Essex street. The architecture, size and cost are still in a tentative stage but the building committee hopes to reach a material point within a few weeks. It was intended to put up a structure costing about $75,000, but because of the high price of materials a lot of figuring will have to be done in order to get a large enough building for the money.

POLICE BOARD MEETS.

Mayor to Communicate With Council Monday Night.

The police board held a lengthy session Monday night in the office of Mayor Charles A. Fisk, when important matters concerning the police department were discussed. The board decided not to give out for publication the result of the conference, but Mayor Fisk will present a communication to the Common Council Monday night on the subject. It is presumed that the question of appointments was taken up last night, especially those to fill the newly-created offices of captain, sergeant and detective sergeant which were held up at a previous meeting and subsequently withdrawn by Mr. Fisk.

Yale Club Dinner March 15.

The Plainfield Yale Club has changed the date for holding its annual dinner at the Casino from March 8 to 15. An effort will be made by the club to bring the Yale Glee Club to Plainfield in April for a concert.

Radium Radia

Is admitted by the thousands who have used it to be

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER DISCOVERED FOR THE CURE OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, NEURALGIA, COUGHS, COLDS ON CHEST, SORE THROAT, PNEUMONIA, SPRAINS, SWELLINGS, ETC.

IT NEVER FAILS TO CURE

Hundreds have been cured with one Application

Recommended by Eminent Physicians

APPLIED EXTERNALLY

Sold at Drug Stores and 13 W. 26th St., N.Y. City

PRICE $1.00 and 50c. Write for Booklet

MAILED ANYWHERE ON RECEIPT OF PRICE

MRS. ROSS H. FOSTER BEQUEATHED $200,000

Former Plainfield Woman One of Sixty-Five Heirs to An Estate of $12,000,000.

FROM BACHELOR UNCLE

Peter Pohrr Died in Washington a Year Ago—Printer and His Wife Receive Big Share of His Property.

Through a legacy left to her by a rich bachelor uncle, who lived in Washington, D. C., Mrs. Augusta Louise Foster, formerly of this city but now of Bellville, will come into the possession of $200,000 next month. Her husband, Ross H. Foster, formerly employed by the Courier-News of this city and now a compositor on the Newark Evening News, is well known here, the couple having resided on Maple avenue until two years ago.

Mrs. Foster was married when she was but sixteen years of age. Her maiden name was Augusta Pohrr and her parents were not only well endowed with the world's goods but were society folk. The marriage to Mr. Foster estranged her from her family but it is said that in recent years a reconciliation took place. Peter Pohrr, her uncle, died a year ago at his home in the exclusive section of Washington. His estate amounted to more than $12,000,000 and the former Plainfield woman was one of sixty-five heirs among whom the property will be divided. Settlement of the estate was delayed on account of the absence of one of the heirs who years ago married on English lord.

Pohrr was a brother of Mrs. Foster's father, George W. Pohrr, who also left her considerable property. The uncle made his money in property in the South. He owned a large part of the water front in Baltomire, Md. When he died a year ago at the age of seventy-eight years he was considered one of the wealthiest men at the National Capitol. Her own father owned a fine big stock farm near Old Georgetown, Md., where many blooded animals and race horses were raised.

CLERGY "STAND PAT" ON BISHOPS BILL

INTER-DENOMINATIONAL COMMITTEE HOLDS POW-WOW AT TRENTON.

The Inter-Denominational Committee, composed of prominent Bishops and clergymen of the State, who so successfully fought for the present Bishops' law, held a meeting in the Trenton House, Trenton, Monday afternoon, and after a short discussion, agreed to "stand pat" on the present liquor law and to assist with all their influence any attempt to change it. They will refuse any compromise. All of the bills which have been introduced in the Legislature were carefully gone over and none of them found favor with the committee.

The following were among the prominent clergymen present: Bishop John Scarborough of the Episcopal church, Bishop James A. McFaul of the Roman Catholic church, the Rev. Father John Bryan, of Jersey City, the Rev. Father Charles, of Hoboken, the Rev. John H. Fox, pastor of the leading Methodist church in Trenton; Dr. George B. Wight, Methodist, and State Commissioner of Charities; the Rev. Henry Collin Minton, former moderator of the PresbyterianGeneral Assembly; the Rev. Hugh B. MacAuley, Presbyterian, of Trenton; the Rev. E. J. Knight, Episcopalian, Trenton; S. H. Hans, Secretary of the Supreme Order Society of Camden, and Peter Backes, Trenton, Secretary of the committee.

The conference was held behind closed doors, but at the end it was given out that there was the utmost harmony among the clergy, and they are all firm on the policy of fighting any attempt of the present Legislature to touch excise legislation. The screens down during forbidden hours and the joint liability of the tenant and the landlord in cases of the Bishops' law which the committee will especially fight to retain.

Postal Card Showers.

"Postal showers" are taking the place of birthday parties in South Jersey. When a celebration of this "shower" kind is planned word is sent around that a birthday anniversary will occur on a certain date. That is sufficient. The mails are flooded that the postal cards usually arrive all at once.

CITY OFFICIAL TEN YEARS

Andrew J. Gavett Rounds Out First Decade as Street Commissioner

IDEAL PUBLIC SERVANT

During His Service Mr. Gavett Has Made the Streets of Plainfield Famous Through Jersey.

Andrew J. Gavett completed his ten-a year as city engineer on Saturday. It was the end of a decade of service of the highest value to Plainfield. The general public scarcely realizes the rare municipal service that Plainfield has in Mr. Gavett, or the quality of the work he has done for the city.

He is largely responsible for the excellence of the streets, and it is due to him that the sewer farm is running so successfully that it is regarded as the standard of such plants in operation. Engineers and municipal officials from all over the East have come here to see the workings of the septic tanks and disposal beds, and after a talk with Mr. Gavett they go, not a way empty of information. This is not to be said of every city engineer in the country.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett.

Mr. Gavett is thoroughly versed in his profession. His experience had included work with the city engineer of Bayonne, railroad work, water works drafting in New York, a city road and brick pavement work. He has been constructing engineer of the Plainfield sewers.

Mr. Gavett's chief characteristic is thoroughness; after that the thing that most impresses those who know him is his modesty. It is on record that he has refused an advance in salary from the city. Has it not said that he is a most remarkable municipal official?

Mr. Gavett is essentially a servant of Plainfield. He will be speak of this and will hate to see it in print, but it is a fact that he has had more than a few opportunities to go into other positions at larger salaries, but has always decided to remain in Plainfield because he prefers this city above all other places as the scene of his labors.

NEW SWITCH TOWER UP.

First Step in Installation of Interlocking System.

The Jersey Central's construction gang Sunday placed in position the cross-over piece for the switch tower of the new interlocking system which is to be installed in the freight yards. The tower is located over the main tracks just east of Berckman street and is to be one of the largest and best equipped along the line. The cross-over was put up in about fifteen minutes and traffic was not interrupted.

The company has been compelled to put in the switching system because of the great volume of business that is now being done at the local freight house. It is said the monthly receipts aggregate $50,000 and the amount is still growing. By the old hand method of throwing switches much valuable time is lost and it endangers the members of the drill crews in running about.

LECTURE PATRONESSES.

Women Who Will Help Make Peary's Second Coming a Success.

The second lecture of Peary, the arctic explorer, at the Theatre March 6, for the Y. M. C. A., will be under the patronage of the following Plainfield women:

Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. F. De L. Hyde, Mrs. E. R. Ackerman, Mrs. A. C. McCrea, Mrs. L. V. S. Randolph, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. T. M. Dey, Mrs. Geo. A. Chapman, Mrs. Alexander Millar, Mrs. D. H. Rowland, Mrs. I. N. Van Sickel, Mrs. William H. Wadsworth, Mrs. George P. Mellick, and the women of the Y. M. C. A. auxiliary.

Holiday Attractions.

The Y. M. C. A. Washington's Birthday attractions include a strong musical and literary programme for the evening's entertainment. The Mendelssohn Concert Company, each member of which is strongly endorsed by the press, includes Marguerite Smith Atkins, whose reputation as a reader is already established in this city, having appeared in the association course at previous engagements. The announcement of the Robertson Projectoscope Company also assures the public for a good programme for the matinee.

COUPLE BADLY BURNED

Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy in Hospital and Their Country Home in Ashes.

MRS. CORLIES DAUGHTER

Insurance Man and Wife Will Recover—Loss On House $50,000 —Oil Stove the Cause.

Hartshorn's Park, the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. DeLanoy, in Forest Drive, Short Hills, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy are in the private hospital of Dr. Mercer Runyon, at South Orange, severely burned about the head and hands, whereas, in fact, their clothing failed to protect them. Neither is likely to succumb to the injuries they received, but they will be in the hospital for some time.

Mrs. DeLanoy is the daughter of Mrs. J. Edgar Corlies, of Road Ending, and she assisted her mother last week at the first of a series of three "at homes," and spent several days in town. In consequence of the injuries sustained Sunday by Mrs. DeLanoy, her mother recalled the invitations for her second "at home" which was to be held Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. DeLanoy is a member of the insurance firm of DeLanoy & DeLanoy, of 2 Wall street, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy's two children were carried to safety by their nurse and escaped injury, but the parents delayed their departure from the burning building and were trapped by the flames. It is thought the damage to the building will approximate $50,000. It burned with great rapidity, and little of the contents was saved.

The fire was discovered about 8 o'clock yesterday morning by some of the servants, who saw a blaze in the conservatory at the rear of the house, where Mr. DeLanoy had a collection of costly plants. It is supposed that an oil stove used to heat the place exploded, and that the blaze communicated to the wood work. An alarm of fire was telephoned to Millburn, about two miles away, and Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy, who were about to get up, were told of the fire. The children, who were fully dressed, were carried across the street to the home of William G. Sickel.

At this time the smoke had not penetrated to the upper part of the house, and, thinking that there was no immediate danger, Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy finished their dressing, and then gathered up some jewelry and valuables, preparatory to leaving the house.

Opening the door into the hallway, they were met by a great gust of smoke and heard the roar of the flames in the lower part of the house. Mr. DeLanoy grasped his wife and started down the stairway. The smoke was blinded and choked by the time they reached the foot of the stairs.

Downstairs they found that the flames had spread in such a manner that escape by the front of the house was entirely cut off, and they would have to fight their way through the blazing hallway to a rear door, which was not far from the place where the fire started. Neighbors were rallying to their aid, for the word spread quickly that Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy were still in the blazing building, and as the couple staggered out of the rear door, with their clothing afire, they were caught by eager hands and hurried to the residence of Mr. Sickel and made as comfortable as possible pending the arrival of Dr. Wellington Campbell, of Millburn.

Dr. Campbell applied temporary dressing, and the private ambulance of Frederick Ardrey in South Orange and one of the Record ambulances from Orange were summoned, and Mr. and Mrs. DeLanoy rushed to the hospital as fast as the horses could be driven.

Meanwhile the firemen, who had made good time over the uphill roads, which were blocked with snow, got to work, but the handsome stone and frame house was doomed, and every effort had to be exerted to save other houses in the neighborhood from being set afire by the flying brands. The building was practically wrecked within an hour.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss Carrie Krewson Became the Wife of Leslie Sackett.

Miss Carrie Krewson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krewson, of Manning avenue, and Leslie Sackett, of Stebbins place, were quietly married Saturday afternoon by Rev. J. O. McKelvey at his home on Grandview avenue. The bride was gowned in white taffeta and carried a bouquet of roses. Her attendant was Miss Dora Bennett, of East Front street, who wore white silk maile over pink taffeta and carried pink carnations. Mr. Sackett's attendant was William S. Kenney, of East Fifth street.

Following the ceremony a supper was served at the home of the bride's parents and later Mr. and Mrs. Sackett left for New York. After a wedding trip to several points of interest they will make their home on Stebbins place.

MR. COLBY MAY RETIRE

Senator Who Brought About Dryden's Defeat to Leave Public Life.

THINKS PARTY BETTER

If Machine Republican Is Nominated For Governor He Says Democrats Will Win.

Senator Everett Colby, the reformer who paved the way to republican seats as United States Senator John F. Dryden, and whose work was effective in breaking up the powerful influence of the Public Service Corporation in Jersey politics, believes that permanent good has been done. He thinks, however, that he has come to must cease such active labors as he has given to politics in the last two years. In an interview the Senator says:

"I do not see how I can remain actively in politics. For two years I have given of my time and effort, not knowing a day, or scarcely an hour, that was my own. I have been going about all over the State, day and night, neglecting domestic ties and duties, away from home, the zealous servant of the public. I do not see how I can give the same amount of time to it in the next two years.

"All these movements go in waves, and what we should do is to hold on to what we have accomplished and prevent the standard from being lowered in a reaction.

"I have no confidence in the reformer who promises more than he can promptly accomplish, and who expects to bring about an ideal condition of affairs within a short time. If each year he can compel the two great political parties to make progress in the solution of some of the great problems we are facing, it is about all that he can expect to do.

"Just where the line should be drawn between the radical and the conservative is difficult to determine. Personally, I am a radical within the ordinary meaning of that word. By radical I mean one who believes that no true progress can be made without the infusion of new and aggressive ideas into politics. The radical idea is, to my mind, never dangerous when it is freely discussed by the people. The danger comes from the refusal of our political parties to consider and deal with these questions and their tendency to suppress and throttle them in the dark and too frequently by order of special interests.

"I think the Republican party in this State is beginning to get back the confidence of the people. If they nominate this year a machine man for Governor, a man who has been allied *with the interests the people have re*pudiated in politics, they will be defeated. They must nominate a progressive man, a man who will carry the work already started, a man who is independent and courageous. There are such men. I could name them, but do not want to seem invidious.

"The Republicans are getting back the confidence of the people because they have been willing to take up and discuss questions in which the people are deeply interested. They will, this year, pass a bill giving the people of the State the right to express their choice for United States Senator. It has already passed the Senate, and will go through the House.

"They will pass a civil service law, which I regard as one of the greatest reforms in the State. It is a very important matter, of far reaching and beneficial effect, to get the offices out of politics. They have passed a railroad tax law; have increased the tax on franchises, and have passed *numerous other acts that have been de*manded for years.

"There is still one great demand which the party has not complied with, and *that is, that political of*fice and political honors shall not be dealt out as rewards for party services. Offices of the highest importance demand the highest qualifications. New Jersey is rich in such material, but it is often barred by the miserable doctrine that partisan services, rendered on the lower levels, deserve these great public trusts as rewards.

"There is still one great demand which the party has not complied with, and *that is, that political of*fice and political honors shall not be dealt out as rewards for party services. Offices of the highest importance demand the highest qualifications. New Jersey is rich in such material, but it is often barred by the miserable doctrine that partisan services, rendered on the lower levels, deserve these great public trusts as rewards.

"This year's Legislature is above the average; on a high plane. The Senate is this year especially strong in able, upright and patriotic men. I know that these Senators are sincere in their desire to meet the reasonable demands of the people in the way of reform in good legislation. No measures will be smothered in the dark recesses of the committee rooms this year. They will all be reported in some form or other, and every bill will get a square deal."

Dr. Moldenke on Egypt.

"Sailing Up the Nile," will be the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given by Dr. C. E. Moldenke at St. Peter's Lutheran church on Grove street, Wednesday night, February 27, for the benefit of the church. This will be a superbly illustrated narrative of a trip to the Land of the Pharaohs.

Another Sea-Food Market.

Gustave Hoffman, formerly with Rogers and Ivamy, sea-food dealers, will engage in the fish business for himself on March 1, when he will open a first-class market on West Front street, adjoining the store of Demolli, the caterer.

TALKED ON LINCOLN, THE MAN OF FAITH

DR. PARSONS SAYS MARTYR-PRESIDENT BELIEVED IN EFFICACY OF PRAYER.

At Sunday's service in Grace M. E. church, Rev. Dr. Parsons preached a timely and interesting sermon from the subject, "Lincoln—the Man of Faith," making plain the fact that his had been a true Christian life.

Dr. Parsons began his discourse by relating some of the things in connection with Lincoln and his career that had been told him by his father when he was a little boy. He remembered distinctly the political slogan, "Free Soil, Free Men and Fremont" and led up to the time when Lincoln ran against Douglas for Senator and the cry was "A house cannot stand divided against itself; all slavery or all free."

No other president of the United States, said Dr. Parsons, had ever quoted so widely from God's word as Lincoln. When a boy at home there were only five books in the house and the Bible was one of them. The future President read and re-read them all until he had committed the greater part of them to memory and he was familiar with the gospel from end to end. He was also a great believer in prayer and nothing relieved him more than to invoke the Divine blessing. The night before the battle of Gettysburg he asked for God's help and he said afterward that a great burden had been lifted from him and that he was confident the battle would be won by the Union army.

SURPRISED ON FORTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Guests Came Unexpectedly at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shearer.

In celebration of the fortieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Shearer, of the Jackson building, their children and a number of friends tendered them a surprise Saturday night. The coming of the delegation was entirely unexpected by the couple, who had been observing the event quietly, and on its arrival the self-invited guests took full possession of the home. After Mr. and Mrs. Shearer had recovered from their surprise and congratulations had been extended, games and vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed. Refreshments were served in conclusion. Just before the guests departed, another "wedding" ceremony was performed with Mr. and Mrs. Shearer as the participants. A young woman guest "officiated" and the bride and groom were attired in costumes in vogue a century ago.

The guests present included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shearer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shearer, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Symons, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Drake, Mrs. Waldron, Miss Grace Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Polkinghorne, the latter of Nevada.

Throng at First Lenten Recital.

The church of the Holy Cross was thronged with worshippers Saturday afternoon, when the first free Lenten recital was held. F. Clinton Lee, assistant organist at Trinity chapel, New York, presided at the organ, and was assisted by Fred'k J. Pope, baritone, of the church choir. The programme as published on Saturday was rendered entire and was greatly enjoyed. Evening prayer followed immediately after the recital. Rev. George L. Warner, the rector, has arranged to give these recitals every Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock during Lent, except Holy Week, and well-known musical artists will appear.

BOYS' FIVE LOST.

Got an Unusual Taste of Defeat in Summit.

The Y. M. C. A. junior team of Summit took revenge on the Plainfield junior five at basketball Saturday afternoon for the defeat sustained in this city a few weeks ago, by capturing the game 21 to 10. The first half was very even, the score standing 10-to 8 at its conclusion, in favor of the locals. The second period, however, went all Summit's way, the local boys scoring 11 points, at the same time holding the visitors down to 2. It was the first game the Plainfield boys had lost in twelve contests. The line-up:

Summit.		Plainfield.
Carmen	right forward	Bohan
Jones	left forward	Conroy
Buckley	centre	Caldwell
Alesbury	right guard	Overton
Thompson	left guard	Morris

Score at end of first half—Summit 10, Plainfield 8. Goals from field—Alesbury 3, Jones 3, Carmen 3, Buckley 2, Bohan 2, Conroy, Caldwell, Morris. Free throw—Alesbury. Referee—E. Buckley. Time of halves—20m.

In Memory of Dr. Yerkes.

The committee, of which Alexander Gilbert is the chairman, is making arrangements, in accordance with action taken by the First Baptist church, to have a memorial tablet placed in the church in memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, for nearly fifty years its pastor.

URGES HIS CONGREGATION TO FIGHT THE SALOON

REV. L. R. HOWARD PREACHES AGAINST THE DRINK HABIT.

Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, began Sunday, a series of sermons on "Things to Oppose." He talked on the saloon, from the text, "Take ye the stumbling block out of the way of my people."

The saloon, he said, was a stumbling block to the way of society's advancement, and the little good it might do could be accomplished better by other means; the harm it did was almost incalculable. The saloon not only ensnared the drunkard but increased drunkenness. Mr. Howard cited figure to show that fifty per cent. of the crime and twenty-five per cent. of the poverty came from drink.

Mr. Howard urged his people to talk strongly against the saloons, to refuse to speak lightly of drunkenness, and to withhold signatures from every application for a license and to refuse to rent property for saloon purposes. He spoke in approval of the local option bill to be presented to the Legislature, and advised his flock to write the Senator and Assemblymen in favor of it.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE.

Mr. Swackhamer's Talk on Lincoln at Congregational Church.

In place of the usual Sunday evening service, a Sunday-school concert was held at the Congregational church, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, when an attractive programme arranged by Miss Alice Morgan was presented. It included vocal and instrumental selections and address on "Lincoln" by B. S. Swackhamer. Edson C. Martin led the school in the singing of the hymns and other selections, and at the close an offering was received for the Mountain Whites.

There were hymns by the Sunday-school and the Junior department, violin and organ duets by Miss Alice Morgan and Mrs. B. T. Barnes; piano selections by Elizabeth Martin and Martine Weeks, and anthem by the Sunday-school choir, with Miss Lee at the organ.

At the close of Mr. Swackhamer's address the school sang the Star Spangled Banner, while Miss Esther Hellstrom, a member of the banner class, of which Miss Winckler is the teacher, waved an American flag.

SURPRISED MISS SMITH.

Affair Arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Arnsburg of Leland Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Arnsburg, of Leland avenue, gave a surprise party at their home Friday night in honor of their guest, Miss Ida Smith. The home was elaborately decorated, the chief colors being red and green. There were piano solos by Miss Smith and John Clements; violin solos by Mr. Arnsburg and vocal solos by Frank Mackney, after which dancing was enjoyed.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arnsburg, Mr. and Mrs. Loction, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Pearson, Mrs. Margaret Hanson, Mrs. Fitzgerald, the Misses Nila and Lizzie Smith, Gwendenna, Hannah Hansen, Mabel, Florence and Ida Pearson, Florence Pedelfous and Albert and Oscar Pearson, William and Ernest Banks, Fred Vilbrock, Frank Mackney, John Clements, Preston and Roy Goodfellow.

Miss Heidelolf Surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas H. Heidelolf, of West Front street, gave their daughter, Miss Luli Heidelolf, a surprise party Saturday night, in honor of her eighteenth birthday anniversary. When she arrived home from New York, where she now holds a position, she was greeted by the party relatives and friends to wish her many happy returns of the day. She received many gifts, including a gold watch from her father. After a pleasant evening, during which there was vocal and instrumental music and games, supper was served. There were guests present from New York, Newark, Orange and this city.

Y. W. C. A. Conference.

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, of East Front street, has issued invitations to a parlor conference to be held at her home, "Sunnyside," Thursday afternoon, February 28, at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of furthering plans for the organization of a Young Women's Christian Association in Plainfield. At that conference Miss Brownell, Miss Holenquist and Miss Snider, of New York, will speak of the work of the Y. W. C. A. Tomorrow night a public meeting is to be held at Warren chapel, when Miss Snider will be present and speak *concerning the plan to organize an as*sociation here.

Somerset Farmers Meet and Talk.

The quarterly meeting of the Somerset County Board of Agriculture was held in the First Reformed church at Somerville Saturday afternoon. Among the speakers were Judge Louis H. Schenck, the Rev. Dr. James Le Fevre, J. Newton Van Derbeek, Freeholder Joseph Fitzgerald, Frederick A. Pope and Abram A. Cortelyou. The principal speaker was F. H. Castner, of Glen Gardner.

Her Reason.

"How is it you never use pins in your waist any more?"

"I'm engaged now."—Houston Post.

TAXPAYERS TO BE HEARD

The Consolidation Commission Practically Completes Preliminary Conference.

DISCUSS TAX MATTERS

Mayors Fisk and Smalley Express Their Views—Meetings To Be Held In Council Chamber.

The bi-municipal commission consolidation at a meeting Monday in Mayor Fisk's office practically completed its preliminary work and is about ready to inaugurate a series of public meetings where taxpayers of both Plainfield and North Plainfield will be given the opportunity to express their views. For more than an hour behind closed doors yesterday, the commissioners discussed the taxation aspect of the proposed merger, but nothing definite came of it.

Both Mayor Fisk and Mayor Smalley gave their opinions regarding what changes would be brought about in taxing powers and tax receipts should the two places be consolidated. The city mayor gave it as his opinion that in the end taxes would be considerably reduced by the change. Mayor Smalley impressed upon the members that the only feasible thing to do would be to annex North Plainfield's territory to Union county as soon as possible after the merger is made.

It is understood that the series of public meetings will all be held in the Plainfield Common Council chamber. In every instance it will be a free and open discussion and the opponents of consolidation will be given every opportunity to explain their reasons for not desiring the merger to be made.

Those at the meeting Monday were Chairman Alexander Gilbert, Floyd T. Woodhull, Mason W. Tyler, Elston M. French, Charles W. McCutchen and the two mayors.

Jerome Leary, 2d, Celebrates.

Jerome, Leary, 2d, son of the proprietor of the Hotel Iroquois, celebrated the anniversary of his birth-day on Friday at the hotel, and entertained among others Marie Tobin, Marie Whelan, Charles and George Ward, of this city, and Miss Edith M. Vogel, of New York. Master Leary received a number of valuable gifts.

DIED.

MULLIGAN—Suddenly, on Second month 13th, 1907, Maria L., widow of William Mulligan, in her 83d year.

ALLEN—At Plainfield, N. J., on Saturday, Feb. 16, 1907, Henry Francis Allen, aged 81 years.

GEIESE—Suddenly, on February 15, 1907, Charles Geiese, in his 68th year.

FISHER—In this city, Feb. 16,1907, Catharine J., wife of Richard C. Fisher, in her 74th year.

BUSH—At Dunellen, N. J., Feb. 17, 1907, Donald E., son of Rowland and Elizabeth Bush, aged 1 year, 5 months, 27 days.

MILLS—In New York city, Saturday, Feb. 16, 1907, Robert Mills, in his 67th year.

MAC GOWAN—At the residence of her aunt, Miss Vaughan, 1224 West Seventh street, Grace Vaughan Gideon, beloved wife of T. Lomax MacGowan, of Jacksonville, Florida.

EMMONS—On Saturday, February 16, 1907, Peter A. Emmons, in his 57th year.

MAGAZINE READERS

SUNSET MAGAZINE beautifully illustrated, good stories and articles about California and all the Far West. $1.50 a year

CAMERA CRAFT devoted each month to the artistic reproduction of the best work of amateur and professional photographers. $1.00 a year

ROAD OF A THOUSAND WONDERS a book of 75 pages, containing 120 colored photographs of picturesque spots in California and Oregon. $0.75

Total . . . $3.25

All for $1.50

Address all orders to

SUNSET MAGAZINE

Flood Building San Francisco

WANTED.

WANTED—By Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory; salary $25 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced; work pleasant; position permanent; no investment or experience required; spare time valuable; write at once for full particulars and enclose self-addressed envelope. Address General Manager, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago. Je 7 19 18

Sanitary Plumbing

Brick and Portable Furnaces. Gas Fitting, Tin Roofing, Etc., Etc., Etc.

I am prepared to do any of the above branches in strictly first-class sanitary and workmanship manner. Having associated myself with the Master Members Association of New York City, I employ none but first-class mechanics and non-union men. I believe in every man running his own business, at all times and in all cases.

D. W. LITTELL

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

NEW IN EVERY DETAIL

My new barber shop at

143 NORTH AVE.

a how open ready for business. All the latest appointments awaiting the patronage of the public.

EDWIN B. MAYNARD.

DIME

Savings Institution,

Of Plainfield, N. J.,

Is now receiving deposits with interest, allowed on all sums from $5 to $3,000.

J. Frank Hubbard, President.
Wm. F. Arnold, Vice-Pres
Jeremiah Manning, Vice-Pres
J. C. Pope, Sec'y and Treas.

Money deposited on or before January tenth will draw interest from the first.

Guaranteed Salary $900 YEARLY.

Men and women of good address to represent us some to travel; appointing agents; others for local work looking after our interests. $900 salary guaranteed yearly; extra commissions and expenses. Rapid advancement; old established house. Grand chance for earnest man or woman to secure permanent, pleasant position, liberal income and future. New, brilliant lines. Write at once,

STAFFORD PRESS,
23 Church St., New Haven, Conn

W. R. CODINGTON,

Counsellor-at-Law

Commissioner of Deeds, Master-in-Chancery, Notary Public. Offices Corner of Park avenue and Second street.

"Beautify Your Home"

The Burr McIntosh Monthly

"Pictorial Perfection"

"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAGAZINE IN THE WORLD"

Ask your newsdealer for this superb magazine. If he does not handle it send us his name and address with your name and address and 10c. for sample copy. Regular price 25c. Mention this paper.

Burr Publishing Company
4 West 22d Street New York

WITH Princess or close-fitting gown nothing will give such a beautiful outline to the figure as the worn in place of a corset cover. A perfect bust supporter and corset cover combined, fitting like a glove, fine batiste, lace trimmed and daintily boned. It pulls down deep over the figure, fastens to the corset clasp with a straight front busk, eyeletted, causing the bust, with no pressure, to be in proper place. Comes well above the top of corset in back, holding the flesh and shoulder blades in place. Easily laundered. Wonderful effect under the sheerest lingerie waists. Sizes 32 to 46 inches bust measure.

De Bevoise Brassiere

PRICE $1.00 EACH

At all corset departments, or send to your dealer's name and we will supply you direct. Catalogue on request.

Chas. E. De Bevoise Co., 344 High St. Newark, N. J.

REPLY TO MR. SAUNDERS

Made by President R. Henry Depew of the Protective Association.

MONTGOMERY INCIDENT

Councilman Was Only Told An Executive Committee Session Was About to Begin.

A reply to William L. Saunders' strictures on the P. P. A. was made public by President R. Henry Depew, of the Protective Association, this morning. Mr. Saunders, in withdrawing from the association, wrote a letter to Mr. Depew in which he expressed disapproval of what was intimated to be the association's assumption of a representation of the people higher than that reposed in the Common Council. Mr. Depew's reply is as follows:

"While I am, of course, ignorant of the differences which you believe to exist in our views regarding the policy of the Plainfield Protective Association, it is so clear from your letter of February 4th that your position is based upon an entire misapprehension of the association's policy, actions, and methods that I deem it the duty of myself, as president, toward you, as a valued member of its executive committee, to make clear by written reply what I evidently failed sufficiently to explain, previous to the publication of your letter, in my conversation with you upon the same subject.

"It is true that an association formed for the uprooting of error in any community must necessarily create antagonism among those whose business or political interests are connected directly or indirectly with the sources of such error, and I suppose that the governing body of such an association will at times inevitably subject itself to the criticism of such interests.

"It naturally follows that those interests will not only, themselves, oppose the association and the principles of honest and straightforward dealing for which it stands, but will endeavor, through willful misrepresentations and garbled accounts, to shake the confidence of the community and win a perverted and disingenuous sympathy.

"For years a complaint has been made, with apparent justification, that our city lighting has been insufficient, and the contracts therefor more honored in the breach than in the observance. Our association, formed for the amelioration of conditions in the city and believing it deemed this condition a proper subject of investigation, and adopted the ordinary business method, where technical matters are involved, of employing an expert to prevent, if possible, any imposition, and to take and possible injustice, and to hold him out of its own funds, and likewise sought from the city government information and co-operation, frankly stating the purpose thereof, and Mayor Pyle, being in favor of our executive committee, was specifically informed by myself as to the proposed investigation.

"Such expert report being naturally the private property of the association must necessarily have been as it was, presented in the first instance to the executive committee for appropriate action, and it would have been not only manifestly improper, but entirely outside of my power to have previously submitted it to a city official, or to any other person.

"At the time of Mr. Montgomery's appearance before the executive committee, he was not told that his presence was no longer required, but on the contrary, he was received with courtesy and expressions of appreciation for the information furnished, and when the committee convened an executive session it was politely explained to him that he was not a member thereof, and was naturally unable to ask him to participate, in which explanation he as politely acquiesced. You, of course, understand that Mr. Fisk, being a member of the committee, might have attended had he so desired, and was urged to do so.

As you also know, the association's constitution prohibits the consideration of any political question whatever, and when the prohibition has rigorously insisted, with the single exception of the resolution, favoring consolidation, offered by yourself, unadvisably passed, and of which I afterwards unsuccessfully requested you to allow the rescission on this ground. But, aside from this fact of such prohibition The Executive Committee not only never assumed that "the City Council, or that any of its committees are either incompetent or corrupt," but had not even a thought of such allow officially, or otherwise, the connection of the said City Council or its committees with the subject of the investigation.

If such investigation makes it patent to your mind that successive City Councils composed in whole or in part of the same membership as the present Council, might have ascertained for themselves the facts shown by our expert's report and corrected the existing conditions, this certainly cannot be in your judgment, or in the judgment of any other thinking citizen of our commonwealth, a source of criticism of our association which at its own expense has made such investigation and without compensation has presented the results thereof to our city and borough governments for their assistance.

Moreover, it is not true that the report was given to the press before it was furnished to the Council, they knowing that its distribution among the members of the association would probably cause it to reach the press, the executive committee showed both city and borough governments the courtesy of forwarding to them at the same time as to its own members, copies thereof. In other words, the association obtained and paid for an expensive expert's report upon certain business conditions, and without one word or thought of criticism because its governments had not themselves made a similar investigation into conditions which had existed for years, furnished them, free of charge, with such report and offered to co-operate in any manner desired to obtaining an amelioration of the conditions shown.

I am sure that upon second thought you will agree with me in feeling that the publication of your communication to me regarding the action of your associates on the executive committee was hardly in order before you had conferred with them respecting the same, but as such letter has been published, and as your position taken therein has now been shown to have been based upon mistaken facts, I am equally sure that you will also agree with me in feeling that justice to your said associates and the association at large will best be promoted by the publication of this reply.

If, after considering the above, you care to withdraw your resignation, we shall be glad to have you do so.

Yours very truly,

R. HENRY DEPEW,
President.

SALAAM MYSTIC SHRINERS HOLD "LADIES' NIGHT."

Plainfield Members and Their Women-folk Well Represented at Big Affair in Newark.

Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles Mystic Shrine, gave a "ladies' night" entertainment at Krueger's Auditorium, Newark, Friday, which was attended by several hundred members and their wives, including a large delegation from this city. There was a vaudeville entertainment, followed by a banquet and a dance. The Plainfield party went to Newark on the 6:18 train and returned home in a special trolley car, making the trip to this city in less than two hours.

Those attending from this city included Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Ewart, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Liefke, Miss Irene Samuels, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Smith, and Mrs. James F. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Williams, Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Coriell, Thomas Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. Christian Glueckler, Edward Sebring, Chr. and Mrs. Nathaniel R. Codington, Miss Martha Codington, Miss Lucy Coriell, Miss Clara Buckle, Miss Edna Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Mac Murray, Mrs. Fred Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Lowe.

SPENT $50,000; TOOK POISON.

Last Straw Was When Taylor's Love Was Scorned—His Farewell Letters.

Mount Holly, Feb. 18.—James A. Taylor, 25 years old, of Beverly, attempted to commit suicide Saturday night by taking two ounces of laudanum, because he had spent his inheritance of $50,000 after failing desperately in love with his landlady and had been supplanted in her affections by a rival.

He was discovered at 3 o'clock yesterday morning in his room in an unconscious condition, and after being revived was sent to jail a prisoner.

Taylor came to Beverly about a year ago from Madison, Wis., where his family is well known. Being plentifully supplied with money he spent his freely. He made his home at the boarding house of Mrs. May Vannell, with whom he soon fell in love. Soon, however, a new boarder became Taylor's rival. The new boarder was Earl Chambers, of Sykesville, N. J.

In the rivalry for Mrs. Vannell's affections Taylor gradually lost ground. Taylor in a few months had spent $15,000, which represented the last of his fortune. With his money gone and his conquest for Mrs. Vannell's affections lost, he repeatedly threatened suicide, but these threats were not taken seriously until he was found lying in his room at Mrs. Vannell's home yesterday morning unconscious from the effects of the heavy dose of laudanum.

On the table beside which the unconscious man was found, were three letters, one to Mrs. Vannell, one of his sister, Mrs. George Renk, of Madison, Wis., and another addressed to the public.

The letter to the public stated that he had died by his own hand, and that no other persons were concerned in his death. The letter to Mrs. George Renk, recited his troubles, and said that he died with a broken heart from unrequited love.

The letter to Mrs. Vannell was the last written, and was concluded by his falling from the chair, where he became unconscious from the effects of the poison. This letter was a passionate appeal to the woman to keep his memory sacred. The letter concluded by saying:

"I am writing this with a dying hand. I can see the paper but not the lines. Good-bye."

Mrs. Whitfield Frazee, of South avenue, has recovered from a recent severe illness.

TWO VETERAN PYTHIANS MARTINE WOULD ACCEPT

They Observe Their Lodge Birthday at Meeting of Perserverance.

SOME REMINISCENCES

Asa Pope and Thomas Caleen Tell the Brethren of Days Agone In the Order.

Members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, who turned out to the meeting Friday had the pleasure of hearing reminiscences exchanged between Asa D. Pope and Thomas Caleen, two of the oldest living members of the lodge. It so happened that last night was the twenty-fifth Pythian birthday of Mr. Caleen, while it was twenty years ago that night that Mr. Pope was initiated in the lodge. Messrs. Caleen and Pope have both "gone through the chairs" and are past chancellor commanders. Mr. Pope is still one of the most active members of the lodge and seldom misses a session. For several years past he has served the lodge as representative to the Grand Lodge at its annual sessions. In his capacity as a member of the Grand Lodge he has served with credit several years on the committee on laws.

Following the business session the good-and welfare period was turned over to these two patriarchs of Pythian brotherhood. Mr. Pope recounted the many good times he had enjoyed while a member of the lodge, and although he did not feel older himself he reviewed with much sadness that the goat was not quite so frisky as in the days of yore. He graphically illustrated his fidelity and love for Perseverance Lodge in his description of being a regular attendant for twenty years. In that time, he said, he had gone through floods, snowstorms, blizzards and sweltering hot weather, but had always been repaid for his trouble.

After Mr. Caleen made remarks in a similar vein, Morgan Fenton, another old veteran of the lodge, took a glance at the past, and reviewed the many changes brought in a long stretch of time. On August 3 he will have been a member of Perseverance twenty-four years. Mr. Fenton was one of the sponsors for Mr. Pope when his application for membership was filed with the lodge. Peter Stram and Mr. Moore and other old "vets" were present and drank in the testimony of the other patriarchs along with the younger members. Short addresses were also made by Chancellor Commander William Baker, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., J. B. Higgins, V. W. Nash, Jr., and others.

The lodge completed preparations for entertaining the Newark lodge bowling team, which will compete with the Perseverance quintet on McLaughlin's alleys next Tuesday night. V. W. Nash, Jr., was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange for a collation to the visitors after the match is rolled.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS ENJOY INDOOR PICNIC.

Heart Hunt, Golf Tournament, Beau Bag and Picnic, Refreshments Some of the Features.

More than 200 young people of the First M. E. church enjoyed an indoor picnic in Vincent chapel, Friday, under the auspices of the social committee of the Epworth League, of which Miss Bessie Whitney is the chairman. Miss Edna French and her assistants decorated the chapel with rustic seats, hammocks, evergreen roping, giving the place the appearance of good old summer time. In one corner of the chapel were two tents, where Miss Lillian Glen and Miss Antoinette Aalholm told fortunes by the reading of the palm.

When the young people gathered a large chain was formed and each one was introduced to the other. Then a heart hunt kept every one busy for awhile until a golf tournament was started by Charles B. Morse. A number engaged in this sport, which furnished lots of fun. Another feature was the bean bag game. During the evening Elder Miss Whitney as an old "Rube," sold peanuts. There was a silver offering for the flower fund. Later picnic refreshments were served by the committee. Those who assisted Miss Whitney were Miss Huber, Miss Clark and Miss French.

Will Sing "Love and Praise."

The combined choirs of the First M. E. church, of this city, and the Presbyterian church, Westfield, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster, will give Wm. Gaynor Cantata, "Love and Praise," at the First M. E. church on Sunday night, March 3. The cantata will give that afternoon in the Presbyterian church, Westfield, by the two choirs.

The Same Number of Applicants.

For the first time in several years there is no increase in the number of applicants for liquor licenses. The twelve licensed places have renewed their applications and all are likely to be granted at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night, March 25. This year's licenses expire March 1, hence the necessity for action prior to that time.

"Farmer Orator" Willing to His Party's Candidate For Governor.

OPTIMISTIC AS EVER

Believes That Democrats Will Win—Will Preach Party Creed Until His Dying Day.

Although he absolutely refuses to accept the advice of political friends about the State and groom himself for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination next fall, James E. Martine, known far and wide as "the farmer orator of New Jersey," admits that if a nomination were forced upon him by the convention he would be in honor bound to lead the fight to wrest the State from Republican control. Mr. Martine's announcement is considered important, inasmuch as the press of the State has frequently stated that the Plainfield veteran would in no circumstances allow his name to go before the gubernatorial convention of his party.

"I have no desire to run again for public office," said Mr. Martine. "The fact is that I have been before the people in such capacity so often that I think it is high time that I be given a perpetual leave of absence from such duty. Of course, I propose until my dying day to preach the gospel of Democracy, for it is my religion. It has always been my ambition to go to Congress, and while I have come very near attaining the goal, the fact remains that I have not achieved my life's aim."

When asked point blank whether he would decline absolutely to run for the Governorship if the opportunity were presented to him, the "farmer orator" pondered a moment, running his hand through his hair in his peculiarly characteristic way, and the blurted out, "Yes. Should it so happen, and I consider it almost an impossible condition," he said, "that the convention should unanimously tender me the nomination, I would be honor bound as a Democrat to answer the call of my comrades. It would be as much my duty as it is for me to act as a Grand Juror when I am summoned.

"I am constantly getting letters from Democratic leaders in various counties, particularly in the rural districts, suggesting and offering their support. The whole idea, however, is distasteful to me. As I grow older, and you know I am not a young man by any means, I am more and more convinced that the office should seek the man, and not the man the office.'

"The Democratic party in New Jersey is blessed with having an abundance of true, honest and loyal men who would be most creditable as chief executives. Why my mind now come the names of splendid Democrats in a dozen counties who would serve the State well in this capacity, and I would take to the hustings and work with might and main that any one of them should be nominated. Of course, you know I'm an optimist, but I want to say right here that I believe sincerely that we are going to rescue the State from the Republicans next fall. The people are sick of Republican rule and its consequent mismanagement and extravagance.

"The election of Briggs in place of Dryden for United States Senator has not helped them any. Briggs is a fine fellow, but he bears the Dryden label and represents nothing but interests inimical to the masses. We'll meet the Republicans squarely on the issues and there will be plenty of them on which we will make a winning fight."

PROGRESSIVE SIN.

Small Boy's Theft Led to Shoving the Queer and Lying.

Reuben Johnson, a tough small boy, was arrested by Patrolman Payne Friday afternoon for attempting to pass a counterfeit half-dollar. Johnson sent George Hubbard, another small boy, to Timbo's restaurant with the coin, to have it changed. It was a very bad counterfeit and Sig. Timbo spotted it right away. Payne was in the restaurant and the arrest followed.

Reuben lied valitnly in court Saturday, to convince the magistrate that he was an innocent little angel with a taste for candy as his only failing. After a pending examination in which Chief Kiely and Capt. Irwin, of the children's court, took part, brought out the facts that Reuben had stolen a dollar bill from his mother to begin with, and then, finding the bad half-dollar in the change he received on breaking the bill, foxily sent the Hubbard boy to pass it on. Reuben was swelled up a bit over his arrest Friday afternoon, but he was crying like any ordinary small boy in trouble before Capt. Irwin got through with him. The probation officer ordered him to go to school Monday, and to report to him next Saturday, at headquarters. Incidentally, the Hubbard boy was pounced on and ordered to school; he hadn't been going very regular.

Mrs. William Staats, of Brooklyn, has returned after a visit with relatives here.

L. M. Codington, of North Plainfield, has been visiting relatives at Somerville.

DRUGGISTS.

WEEKS' Break Up a Cold TABLETS 25C PER BOX. Guarantee No Cure No Pay. POWERS' Pharmacy Co.

B-WISE and get a bottle of Nagle's Laxative White Pine Balsam, an excellent specific for coughs and colds. 25c per bot. "Prescriptions our specialty." C. M. NAGLE'S PHARMACY, Tel. 911-L. Front and Grove Sts.

COUGH WAFERS. A Cough Syrup without water. A common sense, antiseptic, soothing expectorant for cough and sore throat. For the relief of bronchial, cutaneous, spasmodic, asthmatic coughs, bronchitis, hoarseness, loss of voice and all irritations of the throat and lungs. DUDLEY S. MILLER Prescription Druggist. Park Ave. and 4th St. Plainfield, N. J.

Hodge's Pharmacy. Reliable goods in all Departments. Agency for Belle Mead Sweets. Tel. 210-J. Y. M. C. A. Building.

HOTELS.

HOTEL WALDORF EAST FRONT STREET. HENRY WINDHAM, Prop. Gottfried Kruger's Extra Beer on Draught. Imported Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Hotel accommodations and private Dining-Room.

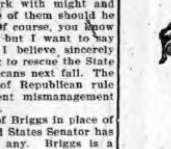
HOTEL KENSINGTON (Licensed.) J. H. STAATS, Prop. 107-109-111 North Avenue. Everything New and Up-to-date. An inspection solicited

HOTEL IROQUOIS Commercial Headquarters. J. W. LEARY, Proprietor Plainfield, N. J. Pabst Milwaukee Beer on draft. SUNDAY DINNERS SPECIAL FEATURE

EDUCATIONAL.

PLAINFIELD BUSINESS COLLEGE. Cor. Park Ave. and E. Front St. Tel 471-W Day and Evening Sessions. Superior ENGLISH TRAINING. Fine opportunities for young men.

All the latest Popular Sheet Music Vocal and Instrumental at 19c a copy. CHAS. M. SUHR. 144 E. 4th St.



Not Hard To Get Good meats if you come here. We serve a great number of customers with choice ROASTS, CHOPS, STEAKS, ETC. They must be pleased or we would not be in business today. Our meats are selected with great care, and you will certainly be pleased with what you buy here. We also have a fine lot of poultry. Fred. Endress, 131-135 WEST FRONT ST. 'PHONE 155.

STATIONERY AND TOYS. HARPER, 411 PARK AVENUE. Try a Box of DOBBINS' CIGARS. Clear Havana Nickle Yara or any kind that you desire. Manufactured at 120 North avenue, opposite Kensington Hotel, Plainfield, N. J.

REMOVAL NOTICE. STANLEY, Florist Is now located at 159 EAST FRONT STREET. Woodhull & Martin Building. TELEPHONE 928

RENTALS — REAL ESTATE. GEO. F. BROWN, Insurance and Real Estate. Commissioner of Deeds—Rents. 94 Somerset St. 'Phone 180. REAL ESTATE.

COAL DEALERS.

Difference In Coal. All coals may look alike to some people, but compare our "Lehigh" Coal with the Coal you bought somewhere else and you will see a difference. You will notice that our Coal Burns Brighter, Gives More Heat, and Lasts Longer than any other Coal you ever bought before. Boice, Runyon & Co., Coal, Lumber and Masons' Materials. Park Ave., opp. North Ave. Plainfield N. J.

Coal Down 25 cents SEE NASH'S OFFER In Cent-a-Word Column Every Saturday. Yard and Office, 686 South Second St. Central Office, 311 Park Avenue. Two 'Phones: 494-L; 857-W.

TenEyck & Harris, —DEALERS IN— LEHIGH VALLEY COAL. Office: Rowley's Drug Store, 218 West Front Street. Telephone 22-L.

JOHN JOHNSTON All the best grades of COAL. 929 South Ave 'Phone 193

Coal I have on hand some very fine hard and Medium Coal. All kept under sheds. Full Coal. 25 cents a ton reduction on cash orders. L. A. RHEAUME, 144 East Fourth St. Telephone 440-W Yard, 676 South Second St. Telephone 231

GEORGE O. STEVENS 747 West Front St.

R. L. CLINE (Successor to C. H. Rugg & Co.) Best Quality Lehigh Coal Yard and office 430 West Third St. Tel. 95.

JOS. HARRIGAN OLD COMPANY'S LEHIGH COAL. Tel. 497-L. 4th and Richmond Sts.

PAINTERS AND DECORATORS.

We call your attention to our fine display of New Wall Papers. We can't describe the patterns, but they are new, striking and effective, and with our large assortment we are sure to please. Paints, Oils and Varnishes. Woolston & Buckle, 145 North Avenue.

Don't Wait Till Spring before giving me the order to paint your house. Let me give you an estimate now and do the work at the first favorable weather. Then I don't have to disappoint you when the rush season comes. JAMES C. HANSEN, DECORATOR and PAINTER. Dealer in Wallpaper, Paints, Oils, Glass, Etc. 141 East Front St.

1907 Wall Papers. IMPORTED & AMERICAN GOODS. C. CONOVER & CO. Decorators, Painters and Paperhangers Window and Plate Glass. 115 Elmwood Pl. Tel. 226-J

W. S. CHEEVER 1326 Park Ave. Painting and INTERIOR DECORATING WALL PAPER of every description at the Lowest Prices. 'Phone No. 538-J.

GREAT BARGAIN SALE of Nursery stock. We are not going out of business, but have some bargains left over from last fall's sale. Don't wait until you need your stock; order now and get your choice of Evergreens, Roses, Shade Trees, Hedge Plants Flowering Shrubs and Vines. BELLEVIEW AVENUE NURSERY CO. Off Park Avenue, near Hillside Avenue

Don't Spend More Than ..... $15.00 for the works of a watch, but be sure to get THE HOLT SPECIAL It is as good a set of works as was ever or can be built for four times as much; this statement is attested by the four hundred and more sold by us. FRANK HOLT & Co. Trustworthy Jewelers 9 Academy St., opp. P. O., NEWARK

Pure Olive Oil Imported direct from France, our Olive Oil is justly celebrated for its purity and extra good quality. Put up in half pint, pint and quart bottles. This is just the Oil you want for salads and table use. W. W. DUNN, THE PARK GROCER Duer Street and Lincoln Place

ATLANTIC CITY. CHALFONTE ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. On the Beach. Fireproof. Always Open. THE LEEDS COMPANY. 11 2 m-tu-th-f-st

YOU WILL NEVER BUY A HOME WITH MONEY PAID FOR RENT IN THE PAST. START NOW TO OWN A HOME of your home by taking out shares in THE CENTRAL BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD. J. F. MacDonald, Sec'y. Smalley Building, 149 North Ave.

Mrs. John Brown, Successor to John Burke and Tenne & Co. Cesspoos and Vaults Cleaned from $3.00 upwards Satisfaction Guaranteed. Don't give your order until you consult me. Estimates Cheerfully Given. Leave orders at 1 Vail's Drug Store, Plainfield, N. J. Postoffice Box 718. FRANK BURKE, Manager.

NOW OPEN. Baths! Baths! HOT AND COLD. 207 Park Avenue. WM. CLAASSEN.

JOHN A. KOCH. Dealer in Meats, Poultry, Fish, Oysters, etc. 200 Watchung Ave. Corner Second Street. Telephone 573-J Orders Called For and Delivered.

Warren B. Travell, C. E. GENERAL CONTRACTING and ENGINEERING 816 Third Place. Telephone Plainfield, N. J. 804-J

William H. Pope, ELECTRICIAN. All kinds of electrical work done at reasonable prices 116 NORTH AVENUE.

BIG REDUCTION in prices of Lumber. I have over two hundred thousand feet of lumber on hand. All boards, $15, $18 and $20 per thousand feet. Pine, $15, $18 and $20 per thousand. You can always find me in my yard at any time. A. KANE.

TURKISH BATHS! TRY ONE Ladies, morning. Gentlemen, afternoons. Take trolley to Sanitarium. Somerset Street

AZIENZA cures pimples and all inflammation of the skin. Used by physicians. Orders received at 69 Somerset St. JOHN MOBUS, P. O. Box 126.

CREAM. Kindling and Grate Wood. Cedar Posts and Bean Poles. Prompt Deliveries. Orders received at 69 Somerset St. JOHN MOBUS, P. O. Box 126.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 24:

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions. The kingdom in the islands.—Isa. xxiii. 1-18; lx. 9.

In this chapter the prophet lays special emphasis upon the fact that the islands of the sea will receive in the salvation of the Lord. In the fourth verse he declares that "the isles shall wait for His law;" in the south verse he calls upon "the isles and the inhabitants thereof" to sing unto the Lord a new song and His praise from "the end of the earth," and in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses he prophesies moral and spiritual transformations such as have been particularly applicable to the people of islands. Nor did Isaiah prophesy in vain. What he declared 700 years before Christ Christian missions have realized. The islands of the sea have been most susceptible to Christian influences. They waited for God's law, and when it came they received it with a universal readiness that has not been equaled in continental missions.

Christian missionary work has been signally successful among islanders. Paul's first converts were made on the island of Cyprus, and, strange to say, among these was Paulus, the Roman governor of the island. This fact seems almost prophetic, for nowhere have governments so readily responded to the teachings of the gospel as island governments. Not only have the people responded to the gospel call, but in a remarkable degree the laws of God have been incorporated in the laws of the state. We have only to call the roll of the important islands of the world to see how universally they have accepted Christianity. Great Britain, the most influential island in the world's history, was at one time heathenish and barbarous, but was conquered by Christianity.

The gospel has met with wonderful success in Greenland, the Sandwich Islands, Philippines, New Hebrides, Madagascar, the south sea islands and in Japan, the most influential oriental empire of today. A study of mission work in any of these islands will prove most interesting and illustrate the wonderful saving power of the gospel, for in the islands of the sea the most benighted people have lived. The worst forms of vice, superstition and cruelty have existed. But the gospel has triumphed in spite of all difficulties and hindrances, and those we are encouraged to continue zealously our mission work, even under the most adverse circumstances. "With God nothing is impossible."

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lii. 7; Nah. i. 15; Matt. xxvii. 19, 24; Acts i. 1-11; viii. 26-40; Rom. ix. 1-5; x. 14, 15; II Tim. iii. 6-8; Heb. xi. 36-40; Rev. xxii. 17.

Christian Endeavor in Jamaica.

This is the catchy design which the Jamaican Christian Endeavorers have been putting everywhere in their advertising of their annual convention at

WILL MEET

Kingston, Christian Endeavor is one of the strongest church forces in the island and is more and more making its influence felt.

Three L's.

A veterans' association is one of the new things in Christian Endeavor from Ohio. The Ohio Endeavorer says of it that it is going to be "lively, lovely and lucky."

With Foreign Flavor.

The Primitive Methodists of Great Britain are making remarkable progress in Christian Endeavor. During the past year their young people's societies have increased 120 and the juniors 122.

Among the prominent Norwegians who have recently expressed great sympathy for Christian Endeavor are the bishops of Christiansand and Christiania and the dean of Christiania.

The British Christian Endeavor organ has heard of the formation of the first Christian Endeavor society in British Central Africa. It consisted of a nucleus of twelve young men in the boarding school and has already grew to fifty-six young men. The pledge has now been translated into their language.

Dr. William Carey in reporting the Christian Endeavor work of his mission field admits that they go called "regular" prayer meetings, but in other ways go with clockwork precision and adds that he knows of only one clock in the entire district. Some of our American societies, with five or six clocks in every home, are sadly irregular also.

"I feel as if I were going to swim across an ocean when I look upon the possibilities for Christian Endeavor and the work it will require from all of us, but I love the work and am exceedingly happy in it." This inspiring sentence occurs in a letter by that active Christian Endeavor worker in Norway, F. C. Reiersen.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 24: "Convincing the World."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

John xvii. 20-23; x. 25-38; v. 37, 38; Phil. ii. 13; I Pet. ii. 12.

"That men may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

The Christian, it has well been said, is the world's Bible. Paul speaks of some of his converts as his epistles known and read of all men. The promise of God is to write His laws not on tables of stone, as in the days of Moses, but on human hearts.

When a person becomes convinced of the truth of moral or religious principle and feels it to be important and chooses to accept it and make it a working factor in his life, he begins to change under the influence of that new force. Not only does the inner character change and become obedient to the control of the new ideal, but the outer life conforms to the inner. Men see the thought become visible and believable. It is not put into words so much as it is manifested in flesh and blood. It appears in the lines of the face, the tones of the voice, the sweep of the hand and in the very step of the foot. The whole being, inner and outer, is a revelation of the invisible, intangible principle which has seized the man.

One may catch a glimpse of a great truth and may simulate it—that is, he may become an actor and go outwardly and his skill in imitation may be so great as for a time to make men think he is inwardly what he appears outwardly. But this deception can continue but for a limited time and the mask will be removed and the real man through which the real man beneath will appear as he actually is to those who look closely.

The world is not long deceived as to a person's real character, and if men be not true to their ideals they are mocked. Whatsoever the man purposes down deep in his heart to be, that he becomes, and all the forces of life, physical, mental and moral, are like powerful hammers beating him into the shape of his inner intention. We choose our patterns, and into our lives are relentlessly shaped into those forms.

We may deceive ourselves and suppose because we have never breathed a syllable of our inner life to another that therefore no other one knows what we are in design. But even this our inmost thought and know our secret desires even if we have ourselves but fully realized that we have cherished them.

An unclean thought harbored in the mind, an impure desire allowed to remain in the soul, prints its stamp indelibly in the look of the eyes, the grasp of the hand, in the lines of the telltale face. The power which chisels the human face into settled form is the thought force which dwells within, and no art can conceal for long time His work.

The power which convinces the world of the living power of Christ to save a soul is the life of a child of God lived daily before the eyes of the world. The most convincing of Christian evidences are not the miracles recorded in the Bible or the prophecies it relates. They are the visible miracle of a daily Christian life lived before the eyes in the midst of trials and temptations here and now and the Christian testimony of joyousness of living that same life. The illumined face is the surest prophecy of the inner spirit.

That which silences all doubts and answers all questions is the living, joyous, victorious, right man of God, the man who is so sure of his faith for advice rather than to any other, the man to whom you go for sympathy in temptation before you do to any other, because he is so human and natural.

What convinces the world today or the next period of the world is the appearance of a man whom He has saved. Are you convincing the world of anything? Is it of the success of Christ or of His failure in you? Be a man, be a true woman, in fact, if that is what you desire to appear. Live the Christ life, and the world shall come to know Him as you do.

Will Swing True Again.

The human mind has been compared to a compass set on a rickety table. Any jar sets the needle swinging untruly. A single sharp temptation or worry will send our conscience all wrong sometimes. But if we collect ourselves and wait quietly a moment upon God, the needle will swing true again and point the right way.—Forward.

A Christmas Prayer by Dr. Hale.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, who in the declining years of his long and noble life still clings steadfastly not only to the tenets of his religious belief, but also to his wonderful love of country, contributes the following Christmas prayer to the December number of the Woman's Home Companion:

Father of Love, Father of Life, our Father who art here.
We thank Thee for everything—
For the glory and beauty and wonder of the world.
For the glory of springtime,
For the glory of summer,
For the glory of autumn,
For the glory now of winter.
Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits. On this Christmas day we bless Thee,
For Thy love which never fails,
Who saves us from our sins
And gives us life more abundantly.
He is our Master, and all we are brethren.
We praise Thee, we bless Thee, we thank Thee
For peace on earth and
Good will among men.
And our Christmas prayer is that we all may be one—that we may be made perfect in One.
Hear us and bless us in our Christmas prayer.

BY CARMEN SYLVA.

All lives are beautiful in which the sovereign thought has been for others.

The Fountain of Youth is work; woe to him who ceases to plunge therein.

By the side of tombs only kindly and courteous words are spoken; let us treat our friends like tombs.

A lost battle is often worth many victories; a victorious war may bring deep-seated loss to the nation that rejoiced for a conquest.

This life is but an image of the true life, a reflection of what the soul attains to in the beyond, of what only the death of the body shall reveal.

It is so good to be beautiful and so beautiful to be good that it is a sad mistake not to be the one by sheer force of being the other.

We must wring the neck of our deepest passions, of our most ardent desires, and walk in the way we would never have chosen.

Life is a stuff spun and woven by our hands; others will cut it and shape it, others again deck themselves with it.

What is called luck or fortune is only the gift of recognizing when our hour strikes, of not taking the hand from the plow until the Angelus sounds.

There are so many people whose only reason for depriving themselves of the sight of the rising sun is to sleep away the evening. Thus, the joyous moment of each day slips away from them.

One word has before now traversed the centuries and stirred hearts anew in every successive generation; why be content to chatter like the popular to the passing wind instead of sowing abroad words that will endure?

FURNITURE.

Let simplicity by the keynote, by all means, provided you bear in mind that we moderns don't pay any more attention to freedom and ease in our furniture than in our music.

On the other hand, avoid furniture which is going to be too hard to dust. No man of true feeling will run the risk of getting himself disliked by his servants, just to please mere connoisseurs.

Don't exclude light and air entirely. It is no longer true that everybody can have them, especially in New York.

You make a great mistake if you imagine it, furniture doesn't matter. Other things being equal, that family is likeliest to rise to social eminence whose furniture is the most hideous and useless and costly.

Glitter, gaucherie and glut, these three; but the greatest of these—Well, there's no telling. They are all very great, as we find them.—Puck.

Why He Suspected It.

"So," the editor remarked, looking up over his spectacles at the young man who had applied for the job of writing the paper's funny paragraphs, "you think you are a humorist, do you?"

"Yes, sir."

"What's your name?"

"Well, I always refer to him as 'Bill' Shakespeare."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Proof Positive.

Maude—Fred proposed last night, and he was awfully rattled.

Clara—Well, I'm not surprised. I always thought he had a screw loose somewhere!—Chicago Daily News.

Mrs. William Newcorn, of West Front street, has about recovered from a recent illness.

Miss Agnes Daley, of this city, has returned from a visit with Miss Ashford, of Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fralcigh, of Central avenue, have been visiting relatives in Bound Brook.

E. A. Embury, formerly of the borough, but late of Philadelphia, has been visiting friends here.

*Mrs. Christina Codington, of Mar*tinsville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John G. Bicknell, of South avenue.

Miss Louise Robertson, of Martinsville, who has been spending several days with relatives, has returned home.

George Cornwall, of West Second street, who has been detained at home with the grip, is able to be out again.

Rufus Giddes, of Martinsville, who recently underwent an operation at Mulhenberg Hospital, is slowly improving.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, and Dr. M. O'M. Knott, of Putnam avenue, are spending some time in Canada.

Mrs. Ida Randolph-Smalley, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with her grandmother, Mrs. A. C. Randolph, of East Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fluck, of West Fourth street, are the parents of a baby girl who came to their home a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Limbarger, who have been residing on East Fifth street, have returned to their former apartments in the New Madison.

Benjamin Evans, janitor of the Plainfield High School, is able to be out again after being detained at home by illness for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, of Duer street, leave for Macon, Ga., tomorrow, where they will remain for about six weeks in the hope that the change will benefit Mr. Smith's health. He has been suffering from a severe attack of neuralgia around the heart.

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Selected List of Books in the Public Library on the Arctic Regions.

(Made upon request.)

Arctic Exploration.

Abruzzi, Duke of the.—Luigi Amedeo of Savoy. On the "Polar Star" in the Arctic sea . . . . with the statistical investigations of Cavaliere C. Cagni upon the sledge expedition.

Astrup, E.—With Peary near the pole.

Blackwood, F. T. H., Earl Dufferin.—Letters from high latitudes: account of a voyage in 1856 in the "Foam" to Iceland, Jan Meyen and Spitzbergen.

Gilder, W. H.—Ice-pack and tundra: an account of the search for the Jeanatte and a sledge journey through Siberia.

Greely, A. W.—Schwatka's search: sledging in the Arctic in quest of the Franklin records.

Greely, A. W.—Report on the proceedings of the U. S. expedition to Lady Franklin Bay. Grinnell land. 2v.

Greely, A. W.—Three years of Arctic service: an account of the Lady Franklin bay expedition of 1881-'84, and the attainment of the farthest north. 2v.

Hall, C. F.—Arctic researches and life among the Esquimaux, 1860-62.

Hayes, I. I.—Arctic boat journey in 1854.

Jackson, F. G.—Great frozen land: narrative of a winter journey across the Tundras and a sojourn among the Samoyads, edited from the author's journals.

Jackson, F. G.—Thousand days in the Arctic.

Kane, E. K.—Arctic explorations: the second and last Grinnell expedition in search of Sir John Franklin, 1871.

Kane, E. K.—United States Grinnell expedition in search of Sir John Franklin, 1854.

Keely, R. N., and Davis, G. G.—In Arctic seas: the voyage of the "Kite" with the Peary expedition.

McCormick, R.—Voyages of discovery in the Arctic and Antarctic seas. 2v.

Nansen, Fridtjof.—Farthest north: voyage of exploration of the ship Fram, 1893-'96.

Nansen, F.—First crossing of Greenland.

Nansen, F.—Norwegian North polar expedition, 1893-1896. v. 1-6.

Nordenskiold, A. E.—Voyage of the Vega round Asia and Europe.

Nourse, J. E.—American explorations in the ice zones.

Peary, R. E.—Northward over the great ice: Northern Greenland in the years 1886 and 1891-'97. 2v.

Peary, Mrs. J. D.—My Arctic journal: a year among icefields and Eskimos.

Peary, R. E.—North polar exploration: third work of the Peary Arctic Club, 1898-1902.

Richardson, Sir John.—Arctic searching expedition.

Russell, Frank.—Explorations in the far north: being the report of an expedition under the auspices of the University of Iowa, 1892-'94.

Smithsonian Institution.—Letters from the Andree party: the balloon expedition to the pole. (Annual report, 1897.)

Bolton, S. K.—Famous voyagers and explorers.

Bull, J. B.—Fridtjob Hansen: a book for the young.

Elder, W.—Biography of Elisha Kent Kane.

Kingston, W. H. G.—Notable voyagers.

Greely, A. W.—Explorers and travellers.

Prentiss, H. M.—Polar papers: De-Long, Nansen, Peary.

Verne, Jules.—Exploration of the world.

Whymper, F.—Heroes of the Arctic and their adventures.

Note.—For articles on the life and work of Commander Peary consult recent magazines.

Eskimo Life.

Grinnell, G. B.—Natives of the Alaska coast: region: the Eskimo we saw.

Nansen, F.—Eskimo life.

Packard, A. S.—Labrador Eskimos.

Peary, Mrs. J. D.—My Arctic journal: a year among icefields and Eskimos.

Peary, Mrs. J. D.—Children of the Arctic.

Peary, Mrs. J. D.—Snow baby: a true story.

Schwatka, F.—Children of the cold.

Fairy Tales in The Public Library.

Anderson, Hans Christian.—Fairy tales, translated by E. Lucas.

Anderson, Hans Christian.—Stories and fairy tales.

Anderson, Hans Christian.—Wonder stories told for children.

Andrews, William, ed.—New fairy book.

Arabian night's entertainments.

Aulnoy, M. C., Comtesse d'.—Fairy tales, tr. into English.

Aunt Louisa's book of fairy tales.

Austin, Mrs. Jane Goodwin.—Moon-folk: a true account of the home of the fairy tales.

Bain, R. N., and tr.—Cossack fairy tales and folk-tales.

Bain, R. N.—Russian fairy tales.

Bain, R. N.—Turkish fairy tales and folk-tales.

Baldwin, James.—Fairy reader, adapted from Grimm and Andersen.

Browne, Frances.—Wonderful chair and the tales it told.

Bunce, J. T.—Fairy tales, their origin and meaning, with some account of dwellers in fairyland.

Burgess, Gelett.—Lively city O'Ligg: a cycle of modern fairy tales for city children.

Craik, Mrs. D. M. M.—Fairy book: the best popular fairy tales.

Crane, Walter, illustrator.—Goody Two Shoes picture book.

Dixon, E.—and Fairy tales from the Arabian nights.

Dodgson, Charles Lutwidge. (Lewis Carroll.)—Alice's adventures in Wonderland.

Dodgson, Charles Lutwidge. (Lewis Carroll.)—Through the looking-glass, and what Alice found there.

Frere, Mary.—Old Deccan days; or, Hindoo fairy legends.

Frost, W. H.—Wagner story book: firelight tales of the great music dramas.

Gibbon, J. M., and Canton, William, eds.—True annals of fairy land. 2v.

Grimm, W. E.—Japanese fairy world.

Grimm, Brothers.—Fairy tales, tr. by Mrs. Lucas.

Grimm, Brothers.—Household stories.

Horwitz, C. N.—Fairy lure: German and Swedish fairy tales.

Horwitz, C. N.—Swanhilde, and other fairy tales, adapted from the German.

Jacobs, Joseph, ed.—Celtic fairy tales.

Jacobs, Joseph.—English fairy tales.

Jacobs, Joseph.—More Celtic fairy tales.

Jacobs, Joseph.—More English fairy tales.

Johnson, Clifton, ed.—Oak-tree fairy book: favorite fairy tales.

Kennedy, H. A.—New world fairy book.

Laboulaye, Edward.—Fairy tales of all nations.

Baboulaye, Edward.—Last fairy tales.

Lang, Andrew, sel. and ed.—Arabian nights' entertainments.

Lang, Andrew.—Blue fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Brown fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Crimson fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Green fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Red fairy book.

Lang, Andrew, ed.—Violet fairy book.

Lang, Andrew.—Yellow fairy book.

Mabie, Hamilton, Wright, ed.—Fairy tales every child should know.

Macdonald, George.—At the back of the north wind.

Macdonald, George. — Dealings with the fairies.

Macdonald, George.—Light princess, and other fairy tales.

Macdonald, George.—Princess and Curdie.

Nordau, Max.—Dwarf's spectacles, and other fairy tales.

O'Shea, M. V., ed.—Old world wonder stories.

Perrault, Charles, and others.—Old fashioned fairy tales.

Perrault, Charles.—Tales of Mother Goose, as first collected.

Perrault, Charles.—Tales of past times.

Rolfe, W. J., ed.—Fairy tales in prose and verse.

Scudder, Horace E.—Book of folk stories.

Scudder, Horace E., comp.—The children's book: a collection of the best and most famous stories.

Smith, J. M., col.—Tales of old Thule.

Tappan, M. M.—Golden goose; and other fairy tales.

Thorpe, Benjamin, ed.—Yule-tide stories: collection of Scandinavian and North German popular tales and traditions from the Swedish, Danish and German.

Treasury of fairy tales for little folks.

Valentine, Mrs. L. J., ed.—Eastern tales, by many story tellers.

Valentine, Mrs.—Old, old fairy tales.

Yeats, W. B., ed.—Fairy and folk tales of the Irish peasantry.

CARPENTERS ARE MAKING GREAT GAINS.

27,000 New Members in 1906 and More Than $225,000 Paid in Sick and Death Benefits.

General Secretary Frank Duffy, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, commenting upon the success of the brotherhood for 1906, states that during the fiscal year just closed over $107,000 was paid out by local unions in sick benefits, while the general office paid in death and disability benefits the sum of $218,202.18. On January 1, 1906, there were 157,197 members in good standing, while on December 1, of the same year, the brotherhood had a membership of 184,329 in good standing, a gain in membership in eleven months of 27,142. The total now figures up to 225,000.

From the requests being made for charters, Secretary Duffy is sanguine the membership will surely reach 250,000 mark at the end of 1907. The income for the year amounted to $556,303.91, the expenses for the sae amounted to $486,864.02.

The seventy-one amendments adopted at the general convention held at Niagara Falls in September of last year, which were referred to 992 local unions to be voted upon, were adopted by an overwhelming majority.

Wouldn't Suit the Furniture.

Doctor—No wonder you are sick. Open your blinds and let the sun*shine into your room.*

Fair Patient—Mercy! It wouldn't harmonize with this expensive furniture. Sunshine is disgustingly cheap. —N. Y. Weekly.

AGREED ON MACKAY.

Recommended as Postmaster at Ratherford.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Representative Allen, of the Sixth District, and two Senators from New Jersey have agreed in recommending William H. Mackay for appointment as postmaster at Ratherford, N. J. The appointment will probably be sent to the Senate by the President within a few days.

This is the office over which there has been considerable friction or difficulty between Allen and the Senators for several months. The term of Charles Burrows, the present postmaster, expired a year ago, and Senator Kean favored his re-appointment. Allen then recommended Mackay for the office, but the two Senators would not concur in the recommendation.

Senator Dryden's secretary admitted yesterday that the recommendation had been made but refused to say who the appointee was to be. From other sources, however, it was learned that Kean, Dryden and Allen all signed the recommendation for Mackay, and that it went to the department two or three days ago.

The Growth of Religion.

The Rev. H. K. Carroll, D. D., has given to the public, through the columns of the Christian Advocate, statistics that show the condition of the various religious bodies in the United States. To report for the last calendar year has been presented, in short grand totals, all denominations of them end of 1906 of 159,503 ministers, 207,707 congregations, and 32,283,658 members. The increase for 1906 was 4,870,589 members, as compared with a gain in 1905 of 2,628 ministers, 4,100 congregations, and 783,979 members. All the denominations have gone forward. The Friends, but the Unitarians appear to be pretty nearly stationary. These figures seem to show how unfounded are the claims of some people that Christianity is on the wane in this country. Statistics prove that fully forty per cent. of the population of the United States is composed of church members. In speaking of this matter the Washington Post says: "And there is a deal of genuine religion in the country outside of church membership. Many of the best men are contributors to the support of the church in all its good works at home and abroad are not church members. Millions of outsiders try as hard as any of the members to live up to the golden rule." Of course, the Journal would like to see the percentage of church members still greater, but the figures quoted by Dr. Carroll show that religion is making advances that are gratifying.—Elizabeth Journal.

Mott May Succeed Voorhees.

Morristown, Feb. 18.—Rumor is rife as to who will succeed Daniel S. Voorhees as county clerk, his term here closing March 1, when he takes up his new duties as State treasurer. The Governor will appoint a clerk from the date of Mr. Voorhees' resignation until the election next fall, and it is supposed the appointee will be Deputy Clerk E. Bertram Mott, who has been connected with the office since it was held by his father, Elias Mott, of Rockaway. There will doubtless be many candidates next fall, but those prominently mentioned are Gustav A. Becker, director of the Board of Freeholders, and Deputy Clerk Mott.

Schooner Sank With Crew.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—There is doubt as to what became of the crew of the two masted schooner, now know to be the Sylvester Hall, of Fall River, Mass., that sank in the Sound two miles off Charles Island, near Milford, on Tuesday night. Captain Calhoun and Joseph Patience, of New York, sighted signals of distress on Tuesday afternoon and gave the schooner a tow until near Milford, when Captain Nelson asked him to let go, as he thought he could sail the Hall into Milford harbor, as she was leaking badly. In the darkness the aHll sank and nobody saw or heard in Milford of the crew, which numbered four men.

Pays for Fowls, Not Child.

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 18.—In New Britain a rabid dog, running loose, killed chickens belonging to Thomas Clerkin and fatally bit one of his children. The city paid for the chickens, but the committee on claims voted the father leave to withdraw his claim, as the city is not responsible for the life of a child. Corporation Counsel Hungerford says the father's only recourse is to sue the owner of the dog, if he can be found.

Banquet to State School Teachers.

Trenton, Feb. 18.—The faculty of the State Normal and Model schools gave a banquet Thursday night to Professor Alfred C. Apgar, vice-president of the State schools, and Miss Sarah Y. Ely, supervisor of the girls' department of the Model School. The occasion was the commemoration of their completion of forty years' service as instructors in these institutions. Principal Dr. James M. Green, of the State schools, presided.

Hanged for Attacking Girl.

Russellville, Ky., Feb. 18.—Guy Lyon and Polk Fletcher, white men, were hanged here yesterday for an attack upon Mary Glader, a young German girl, two years old. Lyon attempted to commit suicide by opening a vein in his left arm. He was so weak that he had to be supported to the scaffold.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

On Monday night, February 25th, at Daly's theatre, New York city, will be celebrated the 160th performance of "The Belle of Mayfair" in New York city. The occasion will be marked by the distribution of one of the most perfect souvenirs ever decided upon for such an event. It will be the complete $2.00 score of all the words and music of the opera. The demand for seats has been so great that the management in the history of musical comedy on Broadway the house has been completely sold out two weeks in advance.

"The Girl from Vienna" changed to "The White Hen." The title of the beautiful Penfield-West-Kerker musical comedy, "The Girl from Vienna," has been changed to that of "The White Hen," and it is under this name that it will open at the Casino next Saturday night. The management has decided upon to run the balance of the season and predict great things for the lyrics of Paul West and the music of Gustav Kerker which are said to be the best these two talented writers have ever turned out. Especially is this so of the song called "The Last We Are Alone," which has all the elements of a Broadway success.

Elaborate preparations are being made by William A. Brady and Jos. R. Grismer for the celebration of the one hundredth performance in New York of "The Man of the Hour" which takes place at the Savoy theatre, Monday, Feb. 25. The record of the Broadhurst play itself which has been pronounced by the most eminent reviewers of dramatic subjects to be by all odds the best play of the season. "The Man of the Hour" is unique, it is believed, to have a longer run than any other piece produced in the past decade. "The Man of the Hour" has to an unusual degree a combination of a live and interesting subject treated in a masterly manner by an experienced playwright, and enacted by a company of superior entertainers and wide capabilities. The characters are those to be found in real life in any of the large cities where "graft" is to be discovered in political life. Governor Hoke of Missouri Governor Hughes of New Yor, President Roosevelt and those who have led the forces which have uncovered dishonest practices in public life the those who have done most to prepare the public for the reception of "The Man of the Hour."

Henrietta Crosman's New York engagement at the Bijou theatre, and her comedy is "All-of-a-Sudden-Peggy," a London success which at the Duke of York's theatre last year had a long run. Miss Crosman's role in the Bijou is limited to three more weeks. Its brevity is due to the fact that she is booked for the Pacific coast and San Francisco, her first appearance in the latter city, an event to be made the more notable by her return to the scenes where "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy" may be described as a farce. It is a modern play in three acts with scenes laid in England. Miss Crosman as Peggy O'Mara will once again be seen in an Irish role, which means that she will be altogether delightful, as everybody will agree who saw her in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" and in "Mistress Nell." Peggy O'Mara is an up-to-date Irish girl, a twentieth century young woman with a decided independence of conduct. Her chief startegy is designed to escape marriage to Lord Anthony Crackenthorpe and to have her mother marry him. To clear the way for this project Peggy gets up a mock elopement. Donald Macdonald is played by Ernest Denny and is considered one of the best comedies that England has ever sent to this country, and one of the cleverest of recent years.

Marah Ellis Ryan's dramatization in collaboration with McPherson Turnbull of her popular novel, Told in the Hills, was given its initial production in New York citi at the Astor theatre in Monday evening, under the title of "Genesee of the Hills." The play is a sturdy, wholesome and breezy one, replete in the atmosphere of the mountains and made to order for his, adding another to the already long list of successes in the New York playhouses. In the play, Mrs. Ryan has followed the lines of her story very closely. Rachel Hardy lost in the snow storms of Montana prairie is rescued by Genesee Jack, the unregenerate hero of the romance. Jack is acting as scout for a detachment of U. S. cavalry stationed on the Hardy ranch and as he is an adopted son of the colonel's wife and is free with his speech, besides having a long record behind him, is decidedly unpopular with most of the officers of the detachment. An Indian raid relives the cavalry of several of its horses and Jack, unwilling to explain his absence from the scene at the time of the depredation, is ordered under arrest by a bumptious captain. Rachel alone believes in his innocence and later in the play when the detachment is surrounded by a horde of blood thirsty redskins in Jack alone, at the risk of his life, who saves them all from certain death and becomes a hero even in the eyes of his enemy. Of course, the play ends as it should, obstacles, apparently unsurmountable, are swept aside and the two lovers united. The production is elaborate, three different settings being shown and the action takes place in Northwestern Montana early in the nineties.

GETS SWEETHEART IN OLD ROMAN WAY

LOVER CAPTURES HER IN TUG OF WAR WITH BROTHERS.

KNOT THEN QUICKLY TIED

Irate Father Accepts the Inevitable and Forgives—Story Showing Romance Still Lives in Tennessee Hills.

Dresden, Tenn.—A good story of a lover who captured his sweetheart and carried her off and married her in the good old Roman way came from the Twentieth district of this county and is told as follows in a local newspaper:

It appears that Ed Grief has been much in love with Ella Francis for some time. The courtship, however, was carried on very much against the wishes of the young woman's parents. For some six months they had kept their eyes upon her at church, at school and at home. If they were not watching they had some person always near whose intention was to keep down the match.

In that mysterious way known only to lovers, however, they kept up a correspondence with each other, she assuring him upon every occasion possible that her heart was still true. One recent Sunday morning she conveyed the intelligence to her lover that she was going to visit her uncle in Hyndwer community, and would likely be accompanied only by her two brothers, aged 15 and 17 years. This news was sufficient for the young man, and he made preparations accordingly.

He came to Dresden and procured the necessary license. He then secured the services of Squire W. W. House, a bosom friend of his, and posted him near the roadside where the wagon was to pass. At the hour of ten the wagon came rolling along, and sure enough the young woman was in it, sitting on the front seat between her two brothers. As it passed Grief came out of the bushes, halted it and reached for his sweetheart.

The brothers, seeing what was about to happen, whipped the mules, but Grief had taken the precaution to build a rail fence across the road just in front. He swung on the wagon with all his strength, and the team soon came to a standstill. He seized Miss Francis with both arms around the waist, while the brothers hung on to her feet, but like all lovers in such cases he pulled her loose, and they struck across the open field before you could say "Jack Robinson."

After the marriage, the couple, fearing the father, who had just lost a daughter, and gained a son-in-law might carry out his often-expressed desire to thrash the life out of both of them if ever this important event which had just occurred did occur, got in the justice's buggy and drove to his house for dinner, where they could at the same time have the protection of the law.

Brother and Lover Struggled for Possession of the Girl.

The boys in the meantime had gotten out of their notion to visit their uncle and had struck for home and told the story. Francis, finding his daughter had beaten him, rode one of the mules back, looking for the fleeing couple. He leaped when they were at the justice's residence and called with the voice of a roaring lion.

Squire House went out to see him and after much discussion and assurance he agreed to take his daughter back and receive his new son-in-law into the family. They put the girl on the mule, while the father and son walked homeward together, discussing the weather and crops and old-time friends.

Feat of Woman Astronomer.

By placing a negative at the focus of a telescope during the hours of the night, Miss Harriet S. Leavitt, one of the members of the Harvard observatory examination force, has recently discovered 38 new variable stars. These latest additions to the known twinkling points of light make a total of 1,364 stars which Miss Leavitt has discovered.

DRESS THAT COST $40,000.

Three Hundred Mexican Women Made the Wonderful Garment.

After nine years of most painstaking toil, Senora E. Leon of Aguas Calientes, living in the City of Mexico, has completed a dress which is valued at the sum of $40,000 gold, says the Middlesex Dispatch. She was assisted in his arduous toil by 300 expert needlewomen, all of whom were well paid.

The dress was first intended for the Mexican exhibit at the Paris exposition. As it was at that time incomplete it was decided to display it at the St. Louis world's fair, but the time of this exposition still saw the work unfinished.

Aguas Callentes is famous for its drawn-work and needlework, and its fabulously artists, but this dress excels anything ever attempted or completed in that city. The dress is an exquisite and wonderful example of woman's skill, patience and artistic conception.

It consists of a full trained skirt, Eton jacket and bertha, and is made of the sheerest linen, the thread for which was imported from Paris and bore the number 600, the finest manufactured. The design, which was originated by Signora Leon, is a marvel. There are no visible seams in the entire garment, which is drawn in sheets in such a way that the original fabric is changed into a flimsy, mesh-like lace.

The dress will be put on exhibition in the City of Mexico and offered for sale. No price under $40,000 gold will be considered. During the winter, when the city is filled with American millionaires, it is not thought that finding a purchaser will be difficult

FOLDING SHEEP BY HAND.

Herder Was Doing His Best to Obey Boss' Instructions.

Ab Wade, a well-known character of Ashland, Mass., was in his early days a farmer's boy. One day the farmer, a large cattle owner, said:

"Abner, after yer chores is done you just put th' sheep in fold."

"Yes, sir," replied Ab, in his soprano drawl. Toward sundown the farmer, going around to see that everything was secure, heard the plaintive bleating of a lamb. He located the sound, and ran across Ab with a ewe across his knee, doing his best to break it in two.

"Confound yer!" roared the farmer, "what yer doin'?"

Ab dropped the bleating lamb and staggered a few feet away from his irate master.

"Well, sir, y' said t' put 'em sheep in fold, an' I was doin' my best without a foldin' machine."

With Congo Gold.

Where does it go, this blood-stained Congo gold? Into the fairy palaces, the wonderful gardens of enchantment in which this grim old, gray king delights. Into the collections of rare and priceless trees and shrubs and flowers that have made his conservatories at Laeken famous throughout Europe. Into the white hands of the women who, each for her brief hour, have ruled the Congo's lord—the queens of the Congo, whose jewels are bought with human lives. Into the far-reaching schemes of aggrandizement which a most marvelous combination of cruelness, political sagacity and selfish ambition can devise, and limitless wealth and a diabolic ability in choosing the proper tools can execute. And, lastly, into the huge machine—his gigantic press bureau—which is all that maintains Leopold's good name before the world; a machine grinding tirelessly, night and day, that its owner may pose as the philanthropist, and not be exposed as the vampire.—Robert Park, in Everybody's.

In Old Egypt.

The camel express had come and gone and still Mark Anthony had not arrived.

"Four long months since he was here," sobbed Cleopatra, "and he promised to return in a few weeks. I wonder if anything has happened to him. Can it be possible—"

"Can what be possible, your majesty?" asked one of the court ladies.

The great queen turned deathly pale.

"Can—can it be possible that he smoked some of those Egyptian cigarettes he bought at the pyramids? If so, his doom is sealed."

Calling the swiftest Egyptian runner she dispatched him to Rome to find out the truth.

Awakening Him.

The honeymoon was over and the cupboard was bare.

"Listen, darling," said the romantic husband, as he opened the piano; "remember, music is the food of love."

The practical little wife shook her head.

"But if you really think music is the food of love," she responded, "perhaps you can step around and get the butcher to give you a beefsteak for a mere song."

Then the long-haired genius woke up.

Representation Not Growing.

The first British parliament, consisting of its present number of members (670), was elected in 1885.

Two of Life's Tasks.

It takes us half our lives to learn who our friends are, and the other half to keep them.

MAKER OF DIAMONDS

M. MOISSAN AWARDED NOBEL PRIZE FOR CHEMISTRY.

Noted French Experimenter Also Invented the Electric Furnace—Was First Man to Discover Calcium Carbide.

London.—The manufacture of diamonds has been successfully performed by M. Henri Moissan, to whom the Nobel prize for chemistry was awarded the other day, but that is not his chief claim to fame. The electric furnace, which nowadays plays so large a part in industrial processes, owes more to him than to any other experimenter.

About the year 1878 M. Moissan was engaged in developing an electric furnace, which consisted in its simplest form of two blocks of lime or limestone, forming the body of the furnace, through which an arc was formed between carbon electrodes. The peculiarity of M. Moissan's furnace was that it was able to produce far greater temperatures than had previously been attained. As much as a hundred horsepower was used to concentrate its energy on a small charge, and in this way a temperature was reached only limited by the boiling point of carbon, which lies between 6,000 and 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

At this tremendous temperature, which is probably not far off that which exists in the sun's atmosphere, the most refractory metals are converted into vapor, and chemical changes or combinations are produced which are quite impossible at the comparatively low temperature of ordinary furnaces. The investigations of M. Moissan, which have been placed freely at the disposal of the world, unhampered by patents, have done more than those of any one else to advance the use of the electric furnace in the

HENRI MOISSAN.
(French Chemical Investigator Awarded a Nobel Prize.)

industries. He was, for instance, the first to discover that calcium carbide so largely used for the production of acetylene, that brilliant and convenient illuminant, could be cheaply produced in the electric furnace by the direct combination of lime and carbon; and the whole department of electro-chemistry, which has revolutionized so many industries and utilized so much water power that was previously running to waste, owes more to him than to any other of the numerous workers who have built it up in the last 20 years.

The most interesting, though not the most industrially important, of the researches which M. Moissan has carried out in his electrical furnace is the manufacture of artificial diamonds. We have long known that the diamond is only a crystallized carbon. If we could melt carbon and allow it to cool slowly, there is no doubt that it would solidify into the brilliant crystals which we call diamonds. Unfortunately carbon cannot be melted at all under ordinary conditions. It is one of the few elements which pass directly from the solid to the gaseous condition—like iodine.

But there is another way of producing crystals. Instead of melting the substance which we desire to crystallize, it is sufficient to dissolve it and allow it to crystallize out of the solution by evaporating the latter. The crystals of barley sugar which are to be seen in every confectioner's window are thus produced. Molten iron happens to be a good solvent for carbon, which is usually set free when it cools in the form of graphite scales. M. Moissan, however, hit upon the brilliant idea of making the molten iron charged with carbon cool under great pressure. This pressure is easily obtained, by using the property which cast iron shares with water of expanding when it cools, that is expands instead of contracting at the moment when it solidifies.

M. Moissan thus melted iron mixed with carbon in his electric furnace, at a temperature of about 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and then plunged it into water or molten lead. The sudden cooling solidified the outer skin of the ingot. The expansion of the inner part, still liquid, on solidifying within this hard skin, produced enormous pressure, and it was found that the carbon under this pressure actually crystallized into minute diamonds. The largest yet made is only about one-fiftieth of an inch in diameter, but they are genuine diamonds, and M. Moissan is thus the first and only diamond maker.

HANGS BY LEGS FROM FIFTH FLOOR WINDOW

Daring Young New York Bookkeeper Risks His Life to Save Two Strangers.

New York.—An old six-story American basement dwelling on East Eleventh street caught fire on the first floor the other afternoon and in the scramble to get out no one on the five lower floors thought of two men, Louis and Max Schwartz, who were working in a fur room in the rear of the top floor.

The first known of their danger was when the Schwartz brothers came out on the fire escape and shouted for help.

No hook and ladder had arrived and there seemed to be no way of escape but to jump. The Schwartz brothers were about to leap to the sidewalk when a window adjoining in a nine-story building was raised and Charles Bell, a bookkeeper 21 years old, called to them to stay where they were and he would rescue them.

He Pulled Both of the Men to Safety.

Abraham Goldberg and Solomon Strow, workmen for a manufacturing company, for whom Bell is bookkeeper, had remained with him. The window of the building where Bell and his comrades stood is half a story higher than the fire escape where the Schwartz brothers stood and about five feet to one side. Bell told the two workers to hold fast to his legs and the young bookkeeper crawled out on the window ledge, over the coping and swung, head first, far to the side toward the balcony of the adjoining house. Louis Schwartz, standing on the fire escape rail, was just able to reach Bell's outstretched hands when the bookkeeper was let down almost to his full length by his legs. The young bookkeeper pulled both men to safety.

Dead Man Sat Beside Him.

New York.—Harry Melbourne drove a heavy furniture van through the Christmas shoppers Sixth avenue for nearly an hour with a dead man on the seat beside him. With John Parker, 45 years old, the regular driver of the van, Melbourne went to a house in West Thirteenth street to get a load of household goods to take to Harlem. The two men carried out chairs, tables, beds and other effects and had a large pile on the sidewalk when Parker reeled and complained of feeling ill. Melbourne supported him and led him to the wagon. Propping him up on the seat and wrapping a blanket around him he finished loading up the big vehicle alone. At Thirty-first street Melbourne drew his wagon up alongside the curb, made a hasty examination and found that Parker was dead. A physician called from the New York hospital said that Parker had died of heart disease and apparently had been lifeless for nearly an hour.

Finds Family Are Disagreeable.

Edmonton, Ala.—A weird tale of cannibalism among the Indians of the far north was brought in the other day by John McDougall, son of the first missionary to the Canadian northwest, who is in the employ of the Hudson's Bay company, and L. S. C. Ward, an independent trapper. A member of an Rib tribe, when provisions ran short, killed and ate his wife and three children, one by one, but soon died from the effects of overeating.

MacDougall and Ward are enthusiastic over the possibilities of the great wilderness. They tell of salt wells of inexhaustible wealth, of supplies of game limited only by the abilities of trappers to carry it away and of lakes full of excellent fish, but at present inaccessible on account of the lack of transportation.

College Gets a Mule.

Oberlin, O.—A big mule in Peter's hall was what greeted Janitor May as he entered the building early the other morning.

No sound did the animal make except the shuffling of his hoofs as he stood on the second floor in the gallery overlooking the central court. He was a large specimen and it required the united efforts of May and Folk, the college carpenter, to get him out of the building.

The stairs were broad and it was not very difficult for a bunch of college boys to lead him up, where he would have caused trouble had he not been discovered by the janitor. Whether it was a class "stunt" has not been learned, but it is attributed to the freshmen.

NEW ENVOY IS RICH

ENRIQUE CREEL WILL SOON BE WEALTHIEST MEXICAN.

Will Represent His Country at Washington—Practically Owns Chihuahua—Has American Blood in His Veins.

Chihuahua, Mexico. — Enrique C. Creel, acting governor of the State of Chihuahua, and who has been appointed ambassador to the United States, will be one of the richest men in the world when he comes into possession of his share of the fortune of Gen. Luis Terrazas, his father-in-law, and adds it to his own wealth.

Governor Creel is an American in his parentage but a native of Mexico. He was born in this city August 31, 1854. He is one of the ablest financiers in Mexico.

He took a leading part in establishing the new monetary system for the Mexican government. He is interested with Gen. Terrazas in many big enterprises and has practically had the control of his father-in-law's vast holdings for many years. This has brought him into close contact with men of finance of all lands, particularly Mexico and the United States.

Governor Creel's wealth is now estimated to be not less than $25,000,000. The fortune of Gen. Terrazas is upward of $200,000,000. It has been said that he practically owns the state and city of Chihuahua.

His mines, ranches, farms, banks, manufacturing plants, houses and business blocks bring him in a great annual revenue. He was governor of Chihuahua for many years, but on account of his advanced age he relinquished active duties of the office about three years ago, and his son-in-law, Mr. Creel, was appointed acting governor by President Diaz.

Although Mr. Creel was born in Mexico, his Americanism is plainly shown in his personality. His father

ENRIQUE CREEL.
(New Ambassador from Mexico to the United States.)

was Reuben W. Creel, who came to Chihuahua from the United States in the late 40's and opened a little store here.

Reuben Creel was a graduate of one of the Eastern colleges of the United States. He and his wife lived here until they died. They reared a family of seven children, of which Enrique was the oldest.

The little business which the elder Creel started did not prosper and the family had a hard struggle to live. Enrique forged ahead and got a place as teacher in a private school in Chihuahua. His earnings all went to support his parents and his brothers and sisters.

His brightness attracted the attention of some Mexican citizens of the place and they put him in the way of starting a small mercantile business. His business ability soon brought him success.

He branched out into other lines of business and added to his fortune until he became one of the wealthy men of the state. He married the daughter of Gen. Terrazas, the richest man in Mexico.

In 1884 he became manager of the Banco Minerel, one of the largest financial institutions in northern Mexico. He is also president of the Banco Central, a leading bank of this state, and is a director in three other banks. He is interested in scores of industrial enterprises and in many mines, and owns large estates.

Governor Creel attributes all his success in life to hard and persistent work. Although born in Mexico, he does not follow the usual custom of this country of putting off until tomorrow what could be done to-day. He rises every morning at five o'clock, winter and summer, and is at work an hour later. He puts in twelve to fourteen hours a day at hard work in his office of governor and in attending to his private business affairs.

Governor Creel has any particular hobby it is that of uplifting the poor and ignorant people of this state. He believes that the progress and development of a nation lies in the education of its people. He is applying this principle to the children throughout the state of Chihuahua. It is his ambition to give the state of Chihuahua the best public school system of any state in Mexico, and to put it on a par with any state in the United States.

SHE COULDN'T FIND TIME.

Pathetic Story Containing Moral, Told by Ian Maclaren.

One of the prettiest of Ian Maclaren's stories is called "Only a Servant Lass," and it's only a servant lass who is the heroine of this story.

The oldest of a big family of children—a poor family, of course—her pitiful wages made the great part of the family living. So, of course, she hadn't time—nor money—to bother with doctors, she thought. But that swelling bothered her, and finally she went.

"Come back in a week or two," the doctor said, after giving her some medicine, "unless you're worse. If you are, come at once."

Six months later she "found time" to go back to see him. She had been getting rapidly worse, was suffering, but there was always something that needed to be done, and apparently no one else to do it.

It was a case of malignant tumor, and an immediate operation was the only chance she had.

Her mistress was ill—the woman she had been with so many years, who had been good to her family. So she stayed a while, did the housecleaning, nursed her mistress, helped until vacation came, and her younger sister could do her work without affecting her own school work.

And then? Then it was too late.

WOULD MAKE ANYONE ANGRY.

Carried Potatoes Six Miles; Camped in a Field of Them.

"Speaking of incidents, I saw a few in the four years I spent in the Union army during the civil war," said William Kingsland, a Union army veteran living at Rucklin, Mo.

"One time down in Georgia during Sherman's march to the sea, myself and another man dug about a bushel of sweet potatoes while on the march, expecting to cook them when we camped about a half mile further on. 'Grub' was pretty scarce in those days, and we valued those sweet potatoes pretty highly. Then we received orders to continue the march. We didn't suppose it would be much further, as it was already almost night, so we carried the sweet potatoes on a stick between us. We marched and marched and marched, and oh, but those potatoes grew heavy. Six miles from where we dug the potatoes we pitched camp—oh, but it makes me mad every time I think of it."

"Naturally," was the remark.

"Yes, naturally, seeing that we camped right on a great big field of sweet potatoes."

Those Evening Chimes.

Edgar Allan Poe is dead, and I do not want to say anything rude about him. In his poem of "The Bells" he seems to think that under certain conditions the mechanical banging of a clapper against large masses of metal may have pleasing qualities; possibly he now has a wider knowledge. But there are some versions of nothing if they are not sincere, who have written the praise of those Sabbath bells. They may also have written in praise of those practice-nights. They may even have a sympathetic sonnet for the murderous rascal who tries to ring a brass tune on a peal of bells which is not provided with the necessary accidental. (He gives the nearest match to the note that he has in stock, and I suppose he gets police protection on his way home from the abominable work). I want to get all these poets and tie them up together in a churchyard. I would then put several shifts of good, lusty, campanologists into the belfry and pay them to keep those bells going for the space of three days and three nights, having previously given me time to get out of ear-shot.—Barry Pain, in Black and White.

North Carolina Wonders.

Mr. Tom Pennell was down in Antioch last week and stayed over night with Mr. Moses Armstrong. He tells us that Mr. Armstrong has a wonderful pet pig, and he saw it himself with a broom sweeping out the yard. Of course the pig couldn't do as well at sweeping as some of his two-legged brethren, but it was wonderful to see how hard the pig worked and what progress he made. Mr. Armstrong says he has a wonderful gander, too. The gander will climb an apple tree, shake it and then get down and eat the apples. Mr. Pennell says he did not see the gander, but after seeing the pig sweep he believed anything Mr. Armstrong told him—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

Walker Family Clash.

John T. Baker, of Turner, Me., is a character whose sayings are reported and whose doings told of pretty much all over that section of the state. Mrs. John, who is, by the way, John's only intellectual peer in those parts, one day discovered a hen's stolen nest containing 14 eggs. Upon examination, however, the eggs proved to be too aged for culinary purposes. Then these two intellects clashed.

Said the lady: "Tha' ain't no use wastin' uv 'em so we might's well set 'em."

"Huh!" retorted John, "what's the usen settin' uv 'em? They won't hatch; an' ef they do they'll all be fools."

It's Cigarettes Now.

The licorice trust is now on trial. There was a time when a licorice trust would have been a serious menace to the small boy, but he long ago graduated from the licorice habit.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SPANISH HEIRESS ROVED AS TRAMP

BEAUTIFUL SENORITA OBJECTS TO DISTASTEFUL MARRIAGE.

RUNS AWAY FROM HOME

For Three Months She Roams Country In Male Attire, Part of Time as Member of Robber Band.

Madrid.—Truly an amazing story is that of Senorita Esperanzi Vasquez, a wealthy merchant's daughter, who, after being missing for three months, was found masquerading as a male tramp, and it now a nun in a convent. She is only 19 and her father is a leading citizen of Santander. The senorita was carefully brought up and educated. She is a tall, good looking, and well built girl, who was known as a regular dare-devil, and the heroine of many merry escapades. With men and women alike, she was intensely popular.

One night, three months ago, the Vasquez mansion was ablaze with light, as a great ball was being given to celebrate the betrothal of the Senorita Esperanzi and the Senor Pablo y Cerda of Bilboa. The next morning the senorita was missing. Day after day passed and there was no word of her; no clue by which her whereabouts could be discovered. She had simply vanished.

For several weeks the girl's disappearance was the sensation of the district. Then her discovery caused an even greater sensation. Disguised as a man, she was found in a tramps' "refuge," a type of lodging house run by the municipality of Paula Christina, in a district of Madrid. Clad in rough men's clothes, the girl had been a lodger for three days. On the night before her discovery a dispute arose between her and a burly giant, the bully and terror of the place. The bully struck her, knocking her senseless.

When the police rushed in, a doctor was sent for and thus it was found that the tall, well built, comely lad was in reality a girl. Then it came out that she was the much-sought Esperanzi Garcia Vasquez.

The girl was reconciled to her family, and her lover pleaded for an immediate marriage, but instead the senorita has just taken the veil in the Hermanas de Caridad convent in Madrid, and swears she will spend her life as a sister of mercy, tending the poor and nursing the sick.

She told a remarkable story of her wanderings in the three months. It was because of the distasteful betrothal that she determined to leave home.

The Bully Knocked Her Senseless.

The household, in the early morning, tired out with the ball, was soundly asleep. The girl dressed in her roughest clothes and taking only such money as she had in her purse, quietly walked to the railway station and boarded a milk train bound for Bilboa. From there she took another train to a lonely country station and began a tramp over the highway to Madrid. The first night she slept with the female servants in a cottage back of a big mansion.

On her second day she fell in with a male tramp who suggested that she assume male attire and join an adventurous band of which he was a member. She agreed and he introduced her to the chief, who gave her man's clothes, cut her hair and taught her to walk, swagger, talk from her chest and put her hands properly in her pockets.

She was treated with great consideration and finally a position was secured for her as footman in a nobleman's house. The suggestion was that she furnish plans and information of the house so that the band could rob it. The girl declares that she did not intend to do this, but seemingly agreed in order to enjoy the experience and adventure. But she only stayed the one day, for she found she had to share the sleeping accommodation of one of the other men servants.

The robber band were angered at her behavior, so she escaped and became a wanderer in the land—a tramp. Frankly she says she did not enjoy herself and is glad of the haven of rest and peace which the convent has now given her.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XXXIX. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1907. NO. 9.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

A FRIEND OF EVERYBODY

John Kean as the Natural Receptacle For All Sorts of Confidences.

HIS EARS WIDE OPEN

Saturday Evening Post Says Union County Statesman Is the Logical Present Man in the Senate.

The word portrait of John Kean, of Elizabeth, in the current number of the Saturday Evening Post is a most lifelike painting in proof of the senior Senator from New Jersey, and as it will prove interesting to Plainfielders who help him draw dividends by patronizing his water works, and who aid in keeping him in political power by voting his ticket at election times, it is herewith reproduced by permission of the editors of that excellent weekly publication:

"Naturally, the boss of the United States Senate needs legs and ears. Nor is this statement to be taken to mean that Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, who holds that powerful job, has not a full assortment, personally, according to correct physiological standards. What it means is that he needs extra ears and extra legs, and being a good, experienced handy boss, with a card room the bosses' union, he has provided himself skillfully.

"The legs are Murray Alden Crane, Senator from Massachusetts, and the ears are John Kean, Senator from New Jersey. It is of the eagerness of the ears, rather than the gyrations of the legs, that this chronicle is written, for, no matter what the possibilities of the legs, they are of little use unless the ears have heard something that furnishes work for the legs to do.

"There are men who invite confidence, and men who repel it. John Kean always has cards out to all the world to come and tell him troubles. Superficially, he seems to be a Professional Genial, with no other mission than to weep with you, laugh with you, and present you cheery handclasp that means so much when you have a cargo of thought that must be unloaded on some friendly dock. John Kean has a winning way with him. Four minutes after you have met him you are telling him your name, how much money you have in the bank, where you intend to spend the summer, and how much trouble your daughter is having bringing her children through the heated spell.

"You can't escape it. John Kean is a natural receptacle for all sorts of confidences, and, while you may know it and resolve to be most conventional in your conversation, very soon you are looking on Kean as your original and personal rock, and you are clinging to him with a frenzied grip and simply forcing him to hear all your hopes, fears and aspirations.

"Still, he doesn't need to be forced. He likes it. It is meat and drink to Kean to potter around and talk to people, and he will talk on any subject that may occur to you. If he wanted to, Kean could be the Pepys of this period, for there is no gossip he doesn't know, and no policy he has not the inside of, no motive that has not been explained to him fully. Naturally, people are afraid to let themselves know what their honest thoughts are.

"There is no eavesdropping about it, no spying about it. Kean simply mingles with everybody and hears everything. He permeates. Whenever there is a measure up in the *Senate that is vital, and there ap*pears to be opposition to it, Kean starts out to find where the opposition is, what it is and who it is. Aldrich is a kindly enough person, and is likable and all that, but there are many Senators who will not tell him what they intend to do. Everybody will tell Kean, and everybody knows that Kean is finding out for Aldrich, but nobody resents and all confides. It is only John Kean, you know, who is gossiping with them, and, being human, the average Senator likes to gossip back.

Always Among Those Present.

"Only John Kean—simple soul, genial, kindly, sharer of sorrows, helper over rough places, bearer of burdens—only John Kean—simple soul! Ah, yes; simple soul. Simple as fox! Absolutely as sophisticated as any man who has been successful in New Jersey politics and business for thirty years, where unsophistication grows on the trees. Nothing on his mind but interest in the little tattle. Certainly not! Nothing but that and his hair, and as acute an appreciation of what is going on in the Senate and what is needed by the ruling coterie as any member of that coterie and more acute than most. Oh, simple John!

"When you go into the galleries of the Senate and look down on the statesmen you will always find John Kean in his seat or in the chamber. If there are only a dozen Senators there, Kean is one of them. If there

(Continued on Page 4.)

"LONGFELLOW DAY" IS OBSERVED BY PUPILS

FATHER BOGAN REHEARSES AUTHOR'S LIFE AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL.

At St. Mary's School today the pupils of the higher grades observed "Longfellow Day" with a programme of musical and poetical selections from the author's work. A synopsis of the poet's life formed the theme for the introductory remarks of Father Bogan, who presided at the gathering. "My words," he said, "are but the echo of the common tribute of a Nation's sentiments appreciation. The literary style to which a knowledge of Longfellow contributes, need never be purchased at the price of intellectual decency. With the gentle poet as your guide you need never fear the relevations 'close to nature,' for to his eyes Nature turns a face of innocence whose eyes the blue-eyed violets are, and whose rippling rills, the laughter that tells of eternal Spring. Yet, when care and sorrow meet advancing years, he speaks with gentlest sympathy these consoling words:

"These severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise,
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise."

